THE PRESIDENT VISITS NASHVILLE AND VIEWS MANY HISTORIC SPOTS

Many Grizzled Confederates Extend Warm Greeting.

After Extended Parade President Makes An Address.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 22.—Never before in its history has Nashville been so elaborately decorated as it is today, to give welcome to President Roosevelt. Bunting, flags, banners and pictures of the president are almost on every house in the uptown section of the city, which is crowded with people, from a radius of 100 miles, and the reception he is being accorded is of the old-fashioned kind. The weather is cool, bright and bracing.

When the special train bearing the president and his party arrived, it was greeted with the booming of cannon, ringing of bells, blowing of whistles and the cheering of thousands of persons who had gathered to do honor to the president. The president was met at the depot by a reception committee, who were introduced by Governor Patterson, after which Mr. Roosevelt and those accompanying him were escorted from the train to their carriages. The parade was then formed, the chief executive in the carriage heading the procession. The president had as his hosts in the carriage Governor Pattersen, Samuel Douglass, president of the local board of trade, and M. C. Latta, assistant secretary to the president. Directly following the president's carriage were other members of his party. Then followed a battalion of the Tennesssee State Guard, a company of Confederate veterans in uniforms, a platoon of mounted police, and state and city officials and citizens in carriages.

As the procession proceeded through the decorated streets, the president received one continued ovation from the thousands that lined the sidewalks. One feature of the parade that was particularly pleasing to Mr. Roosevelt was the presence of the company of gray and grizzled Confederate veterans in line. It was a compliment which he deeply appreciated.

On Sixth avenue, near the state capitol, the parade was brought to a full stop, in order to enable the president to view the tomb of President James K. Polk, after which the march to Ryman auditorium was continued. As the president entered the auditorium, the immense audience arose and gave him a welcome that he will not soon

THREE BALLOONS PASS NEAR CHICAGO AND ARE LAST SEEN OVER LAKE

WILLIAM E. WALLING,
American Who Was Arrested by the St. Petersburg Police, But Who Was Quickly Released.

Traveling in Northeasterly Direction Very Close to Ground.

Occupants Asked Workmen the Name of the Place.

Other Airships Are Sighted in Various Localities.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Three balloons passed over Lake county today. Two of them were seen by workmen at 6:30 o'clock at Gray's Lake, Ill., which is about eleven miles west of this city. They were traveling in a northeasterly direction and very close to the ground. The occupants of one of the balloons called down through a megaphone, asking what was the name of the place they were passing over. The workmen answered, but, apparently, their reply failed to reach the balloonists, as the question was repeated the second time. It was impossible to identify either of the balloons.

One of the American balloons was seen passing over Zion City, six miles north of here, at about 6:39 o'clock today. It was going easily and in a northeasterly direction. One of the occupants called down to know the name of the place. The balloon was soon lost to view over Lake Michigan.

Washington, Oct. 22.—One of the competing balloons from St. Louis, that piloted by Maj. H. B. Hersey of the weather bureau, is reported to have begun passing over Lake Michigan. The report came in a dispatch received today by Prof. Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau, from Observer Bowie at St. Louis as follows:

"Maj. Hersey reported to have started across Lake Michigan from Zion City, just north of Chicago this morning. I think he will make a record trip."

Watseka, Ill., Oct. 22.—Two balloons passed over this place today. The first one was discovered by some railroad men about 6 o'clock. It was traveling in a northeasterly direction and very low, the drag rope at times almost touching the ground. The second one appeared about twenty minutes later and was traveling smoothly at an altitude of approximately 1,000 feet. It was going very slowly and in a more easterly direction than the first one. There was a slight wind blowing at the time. It was impossible to identify the balloons.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 22.—A balloon passed over Bloomington at 3 o'clock this morning, going in a northeasterly direction. It was about 500 feet above

KNICKERBOCKER TRUST CO. STOPS PAYMENT OF CHECKS

Said to be Solvent, But Cannot Get Sufficient Money.

Heavy Run on the Institution All the Forenoon.

Payment of Depositors May be Resumed on Wednesday.

New York, Oct. 22.—The Knickerbocker Trust company stopped paying money to depositors at 12:30, the statement being made that the company could not obtain currency rapidly enough.

Second Vice President Brown of the Knickerbocker Trust company, in announcing that the company had stopped payments to depositors, said:

"The trust company finds that it will be impossible to pay any more checks today on account of the company's inability to get sufficient currency. The trust company is perfectly solvent and may resume payment tomorrow."

New York, Oct. 22.—Bankers, brokers and business men generally came down to their offices early today to prepare for whatever further developments there might be in the financial situation. The feeling of relief and satisfaction with which these men began the transaction of business yesterday was succeeded by considerable nervousness today as a result of the developments concerning the Knickerbocker Trust company. The news made public last night and printed in the newspapers today that the National Bank of Commerce yesterday gave notice that it would decline any longer to act as clearing house agent for the Knickerbocker Trust company and the resignation of Charles T. Barney of the presidency of the latter institution, served to unsettle sentiment more than the Morse-Heinze developments of last week. The magnitude of business transacted by the Knickerbocker Trust company, with its deposits amounting to more than $60,000,000, gave a much more serious aspect to the charges made in its management than did the changes in the relatively smaller Morse-Heinze concern.

The announcement of Mr. Barney's resignation was followed by a series of conferences of financial men at Sherry's, which lasted until nearly 2 o'clock this morning. Among those present at the conferences were J. Pierpont Morgan and his partners, George W. Perkins and Charles Steele, Mr. Morgan taking a leading part in the discussion looking to the improvement of the situation.

Three separate meetings were held, one of the directors of the Knickerbocker Trust company, a second of the trust companies' associations and a third of bankers and financiers generally to consider what was best to be done. When the meetings broke up the following statement was given out by a committee of the directors of the Knickerbocker Trust company:

"In view of the fact that Mr. Bar-

"NO CAUSE FOR ALARM," COMPTROLLER RIDGELEY

Washington, Oct. 22.—Comptroller of the Currency Ridgeley, in speaking of the financial situation in New York today said:

"My advices from New York this morning are reassuring and the situation there should now improve. The storm has broken and the damage known without any failures of the national banks which have lately been criticised. The clearing house confirms my reports that these banks are all solvent and standing by them. Their debit balances at the clearing house this morning are less than expected and I understood one bank paid its balance. National banks of the country generally are in strong shape and there is not the slightest occasion for any alarm in regard to them. This is a time for coolness and prudence, not for alarm."

ALL SOUND IN CHICAGO

The Financial Institutions There Never in Better Condition.

Money as Plentiful as Usual This Time of Year.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—The officials of the banks of the city are a unit in declaring that never in the history of the city have its financial institutions been on as sound a basis as they are at present.

Following the failure of the Chicago National bank, two years ago, the Chicago Clearing House association, dissatisfied with the state and national inspection of banks, appointed an inspector of its own, at a salary double that paid by the government for similar work. The inspectors' bureau has the power to audit any bank at any time, and as a consequence all of the banks know exactly, every day, the condition of the other banks. When a bank demurs to the work of the auditor, it is promptly denied clearing house facilities. The result has been in the last two years that a number of weak institutions have been compelled to liquidate, and that the banks of this city are stronger today than they have ever been.

Cashier B. M. Chattel of the Illinois Trust & Savings bank declared today that there is no weak spot in the banks of Chicago. There is not only money here in sufficient quantities, he said, for the ordinary demands of business, but for the moving of all the grain crops in the West. Money is as plen-

ST. PAUL NOT DISTURBED

Troubles of Wall Street Not Felt in Saintly City.

Milwaukee Banks Are Prepared for Any Emergency.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The financial troubles in Wall street have in no way disturbed the financial conditions in St. Paul and the Northwest, according to bank officials here.

"We are not at all worried by the troubles in the East," said W. B. Geary, vice president of the Capital National bank, to the Associated Press.

"Business is in fine condition. It is, of course, dependent on the crops, and while the crop is fair, it is being moved at a big price with plenty of money to move it. Jobbers' collections, as reported to us, are unusually good for this time of the year. In North Dakota there is a fair crop, but a big price is being obtained for it and that tends to make conditions easy. In South Dakota there is a large crop, so all things considered the Northwest is in an unsually good condition."

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 22.—National and private banks and trust company banking institutions in Milwaukee are doing business as usual today without the least excitement.

A prominent local banker said the different Milwaukee banks have been expecting the situation as obtains in New York and have prepared themselves for any emergency which may arise. Another banker said he looked for the situation in the East to clear very soon, and that it would be only a short time when banks throughout the country would be stronger than ever.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to Minneapolis bankers the time has passed when conditions such as are reported from New York today, can have an immediate effect upon the financial situation here. For several years the Northwest has been a lender rather than a borrower of money. Deposits in commercial banks of Minneapolis are now at a higher figure than ever in the history of the city and money is being sent into the country to facilitate the movement of wheat, which at the present prices is being released by the farmers. This money is in turn deposited in country banks by the farmers and is gradually returning to Minneapolis in the form of reserve deposits from the country banks.

ONE KILLED; FIVE HURT

In An Automobile Smash-Up in Streets of Chicago.

A Twenty-Year-Old Boy Was Racing With Machine.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—While racing an automobile on Michigan boulevard early today, Adrian Sibson, 20 years old, son of a prominent attorney of Cleveland, Ohio, was killed and five companions bruised. Sibson's automobile skidded, struck the curb stone and was smashed. He was buried beneath the wrecked car. The others injured are A. D. Kent, George A. Slausin and H. A. Bears of Toledo, Peter Comberger and Edward Ettel of Chicago. The first named three and Sibson had been touring several days in the automobile, which was presented to young Sibson by his father.

THE PRESIDENT WILL CONTINUE HIS POLICIES

"There has been trouble in the stock market; in the high financial world during the past few months. The statement has frequently been made that the policies for which I stand, legislative and executive, are responsible for that trouble. Now, gentlemen, these policies of mine can be summed up in one brief sentence. They represent the effort to punish successful dishonesty. I doubt if these policies have had any material effect in bringing about the present trouble, but if they have it will not alter in the slightest degree my determination that for the remaining sixteen months of my term these policies shall be persevered in unswervingly."

TELEGRAPHERS RETURN.

Omaha, Oct. 22.—Three striking telegraphers, including the secretary and treasurer of the local union, returned to work today. Two returned yesterday.

THAW SELLS PROPERTY.

Prisoner and Wife Transfer Real Estate to Amount of $120,000.

Pittsburg, Oct. 22.—Harry K. Thaw, in the tombs for killing Stanford White, and his wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, yesterday through their attorneys, at the present unknown, filed four deeds in the office of the Allegheny county recorder's office here, transferring four pieces of real estate in Pittsburg to members of his family. The transfer is made to his mother, Mrs. William Thaw; his two sisters, the countess of Yarmouth and Mrs. George Lauder Carnegie, and his brother, Josiah Thaw.

The money consideration in each case is $30,000, making a total of $120,000.

NO DANGER OF COMET STRIKING THE EARTH.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 22.—University astronomers are interested in the new comet discovered by an astronomer named Mellish of Wisconsin. Prof. Leuschner, head of the department of astronomy of the University of California, with a corps of assistants, has been figuring the orbit of the new heavenly body. Announcement is made today that the new comet is rapidly approaching the earth. There is no danger, however, that it will strike this planet, as its nearest approach will be more than 35,000,000 miles or 150 times the distance between the earth and moon.

STOCKHOLDERS ADJOURN ACCORDING TO PROGRAM.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—The meeting of the Illinois Central stockholders today was adjourned until Dec. 18 in accordance with the program outlined yesterday in the agreement of William Nelson Cromwell, for Mr. Harriman and Judge Farrar for Mr. Fish.

The meeting today was poorly attended, and no business was transacted save the making and adoption of the motion to adjourn.

RUSSIAN STEAMER ASHORE.

Malmo, Sweden, Oct. 22.—The Russian steamer Lituania, from Libau for Copenhagen and New York and having about 500 passengers on board, went on shore off Skillinge today during a thick fog.

FOUR BALLOONS SIGHTED.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 22.—A special to the News Press from Gower, Mo., twenty miles southeast of here, says four balloons were sighted there at 9:45 this morning, moving slowly to the northwest.

THE PRESIDENT AT VICKSBURG

Executive Delivers Speech to Large Assemblage in That City.

Vicksburg, Miss., Oct. 22.—President Roosevelt arrived on time yesterday and after a ride through the National cemetery was introduced by Congressman Williams to a large crowd that had assembled to hear him speak. Referring to interior waterways the president said:

"Ultimately, I believe there can be an enormous spread of activity of the national government in the care of our waterways. Ultimately I believe that the national government, for instance, can do an immense amount of irrigation through certain portions of the Southern states not affected by the project for deepening the Mississippi, of which I am now speaking.

"I believe that ultimately we shall be able to deepen a very large number of streams and waterways in the nation—but take the big rivers first—take the Mississippi and its most prominent tributaries first."

TO ELECT ROOSEVELT.

Senator Offers $1,000 for Arguments in Favor of Another Term.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Senator Bourne of Oregon has offered a cash prize of $1,000 through a magazine published in Boston, for the strongest argument in support of the assertions that the people and not President Roosevelt shall decide who shall be his successor; that Theodore Roosevelt cannot decline a second and elective term nor attempt to name his successor without making his own personal desires or egotistical opinions paramount to the combined wishes and intelligence of the Republican party and the electorate of the nation, and that, barring death and illness, President Roosevelt must, and will be selected and elected for a "second elective term."

Senator Bourne said last night:

"My purpose is to secure discussion. Confident that the overwhelming sentiment of the country, regardless of party, favors the renomination and re-election of Roosevelt, I take this method of inviting an expression on the subject."

STEAMER WRECKED.

Crescent City, Cal., Oct. 22.—The British freight steamer Queen Cristina struck on North Seal Rock eight miles northwest of this place at 1:30 a. m. yesterday. Sixteen members of the crew reached here in boats at 1:45 yesterday morning and sixteen others remained on board. There are four fathoms of water around the steamer. When the crew left the vessel her pumps were still going and her bulkhead was holding. The steamer will prove a total loss.

BEFORE AND AFTER.

(1) President Roosevelt: "We got three bears, six deer, one wild turkey, twelve squirrels, one duck, one possum and one wild cat. We ate them all except——

(2) The wild cat, and there were times when we almost felt as if we could eat IT."

STOP WORK ON BIG SMELTER

Men in Employ of C. D. Balaklala Copper Company Discharged.

Redding, Cal., Oct. 22.—In obedience to orders received from Boston the C. D. Balaklala Copper company at Coram stopped construction work yesterday in big smelter now nearly completed at a cost of a million dollars. Every man in the company's employ was dismissed, save enough to care for the machinery yet arriving. All accounts were to be closed and nothing will be done towards completing the smelter or reopening the mine until the copper market is more favorable. The town of Coram with a population of 1,500 was thunderstruck at the situation. It was expected that the smelter would start up before next year. Now the opening is put off indefinitely or until copper is selling higher. So far the flurry in the copper markets has made no difference in the copper camps of Keswick, Kennett and Ingot where the smelters are running as formerly and there is no talk of shutting down.

WOULD STOP THE SUNDAY GAMES AT LEAGUE ISLAND.

Philadelphia, Oct. 22.—Clergymen of this city have entered a vigorous campaign to stop Sunday baseball at League island. Having found that the protests to the commandant are unavailing, they have decided to petition President Roosevelt to prohibit a sport which, the ministers say, is harmful to the city. The commandant refused to stop the Sunday games, as he declared the sport was beneficial to the men.

GHETTO IS IN GRAVE DANGER

Warning is Published by a Jewish Journal in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—A warning and appeal to Jews of Chicago to adopt stringent measures for the protection of their daughters and to unite in a crusade against the encroachment of the West side levee on the Ghetto was made by the Daily Jewish Courier.

In a double-column editorial article that paper states that the "white slave" traffic is eating its way into the heart of the Ghetto and that hosts of Jewish girls are in constant danger of falling victims to it.

The paper especially warns Jewish parents to be on their guard against young men who seek to penetrate into Jewish homes in various ways. Some seek the company of Jewish girls with the avowed intention of marrying them. Others actually marry the girls, then force them to lead dissolute lives. Many of these young men, the paper says, marry dozens of them under various names and disguises.

The warning came after a thorough investigation which for several months has been made by a committee of Jews.

The committee has been instrumental in the introduction of a bid before the legislature demanding severe punishment for all traffickers in "white slaves."

The editorial article calls on the traffickers in "white slaves," especially the Jewish dealers among them, to leave the West side, as a vigorous prosecution will be begun against them.

The article expresses great regret and sorrow for "these monsters who blacken the name of hundreds of thousands of peaceful and thrifty Jewish citizens in Chicago, and in the United States by their disgraceful conduct.

"In Chicago these monsters in human forms have made their nests and dens on the West side along Peoria and Green streets, and that entire neighborhood is now filled with them. A writer in one of the leading monthly magazines described the conditions in that neighborhood a few months ago, and asserts that both the inmates of these houses as well as their keepers are Jews."

WANTED MONEY'S WORTH.

Chicago Tribune: "All we can afford to give you miss," said the trustee of school district No. 16, to the young woman who had applied for the position of teacher, "is $45 a month."

"At that figure, of course, you would not expect me to teach any fads?" she said.

"Fads?" echoed the trustee taken slightly aback; "why—h'm—yes. If you can teach it we'll want that, too."

"But if it isn't in the curriculum—"

"You may as well understand, miss, that we ain't throwing any money away. The $45 a month is to pay for the whole thing—fads, crickalum and everything else that's goin'."

CUTS INTO EARNINGS

Gross Earnings Increase But So Do Operating Expenses.

The current issue of the Railway Age, obviously arguing that the appearance of the time are deceptive in showing that the railways of the country are making more money under the reduced fare, presents a compilation of reports submitted by various roads, tending to show that the increase in operating expenses has about kept pace with the increase in earnings. It argues that the legislative reduction of earning powers of the roads has hardly been felt as yet, and therefore that a further reduction of net earnings will follow in the near future.

*Decrease.

These figures show that on twenty-five of the roads the increase of expenses has been greater—than the increase in net earnings, and that eleven of them show actual decreases of net earnings, in spite of remarkable increases in gross earnings. Aggregated, it appears that a gain of $108,000,000 in business was nearly absorbed by an increase of $90,000,000 in the cost of handling it, leaving less than $18,000,000 or 16½ per cent of the gain in gross, to apply on increased investments in improvements.

Railroad Personals.

W. F. Fitch, president and general manager of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlaitic railroad, will reach Duluth this evening on business connected with the road.

H. A. Kimball, assistant freight agent of the Great Northern, was in the city today.

A. W. Trenholm, general manager of the Northwestern line, was in Duluth today. Mr. Trenholm came to Duluth in his private car for the inspection of the line. He left this afternoon for the Twin Cities.

INSPECTED BY J. J. HILL

Great Northern Chairman Looked Over the Interstate Bridge.

May Have Considered Proposed Agreement With Soo Road.

Men who are posted on railroad affairs at the Head of the Lakes lean to the opinion that the visit of James J. Hill, chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern, was in connection with the entry of the Soo into Duluth.

There is a rumor afoat to the effect that the interstate bridge will be rebuilt and enlarged to admit of four tracks being laid, and that arrangements are under way whereby the Soo will secure a right of way into this city over the bridge. Negotiations are said to be pending in Minneapolis looking toward this arrangement.

Mr. Hill yesterday went over the ground carefully. The plan is said to involve the use of the Great Northern's right of way on the bridge, the Soo coming over the Main street tracks in Superior and also utilizing the Great Northern elevated tracks on this side of the bay.

Just what arrangements will be eventually made by the Soo cannot be learned here at this time. It is known, however, that the visit of several officials to the Superior yards the past week is in connection with some arrangement that the Soo desires to carry out.

SHORTAGE GROWS WORSE.

Car Situation in the Northwestern States is Serious.

Statistics issued by the car efficiency department of the American Railway Association show that the car shortage in the Western states is steadily increasing.

The states of Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota shows surpluses of 1,960 cars against a shortage of 12,575 cars. This is a very heavy increase over the previous two weeks and confirms the complaints of Northwestern shippers—in which Duluth shippers are included—that the car shortage question is becoming one of serious menace.

Many of the local officials admit that business is very good, but also admit in the same statement that cars are very hard to secure.

Reach Agreement.

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 22.—Under an agreement between Governor Comer and the officials of the Southern railroad, reached late tonight, the Southern will dismiss its litigation attacking the law made rates in the federal courts and the state of Alabama will permit the road to charge a passenger rate of 2¾ cents a mile and a freight rate permitted the same road in Georgia which is 25 per cent higher than the standard Georgia rate.

RETURNS FROM EAST

General Manager Warren Attends Convention of Street Railway Men.

Head of Local Company Elected President of Association.

General Manager Herbert Warren of the street railway company, Mrs. Warren, and Thomas S. Wood, attorney for the company, came home this morning from Atlantic City, N. J., where Mr. Warren and Mr. Wood have been attending the annual meeting of the American Street Railway association.

"The meeting was a very successful one," said Mr. Warren, this noon. "There was a large attendance of street railway men from all over the country and some from other countries. The association has affiliated with it a number of organizations comprising the associations of the accountants, the claim agents, the engineers, the manufacturers, etc. Each department holds its meetings during the week beginning Oct. 14.

"One of the features of the meeting this year was the big map prepared by the passenger department of the Twin City Rapid Transit company, showing its complete system. It was well gotten up and attracted much attention, for the Twin City company has a system that is recognized as one of the best in the world.

"President Goodrich of the Duluth Street Railway company, who was vice president of the American Street Railway association last year, was elected president this year. The honor is no small one and speaks for the prestige gained by the street railway interests in the West.

"There were a great many questions discussed, largely technical in nature, which were of importance to street railway men, but which would probably be of little interest to the public in general. In the main the discussions showed that there is a spirit of progress among the street railway interests all over the country, and the amount of money that is yearly being spent in the improvement of the lines and equipment reaches an enormous sum. Old antiquated methods of operation are giving way to those thoroughly modern, and the street railway interests seem to be keeping pretty well up to the front in the way of general improvement of their property.

"The weather in the East during our stay was fairly good. While at Atlantic City I took advantage of the opportunity for a plunge in the ocean. It was a long way from being a warm experience, but I think the temperature of the water was higher than that of old Lake Superior.

American Occupation of Cuba.

Whether the occupation of Cuba by the United States forces will prove eventually a good thing or not, it is a very costly luxury. The actual cost for using a portion of our army as insular police is at least $5,000,000 a year besides other expenses which have to be met out of the Cuban treasury. Whether you have been a sufferer from ailments of the stomach, liver or bowels for years or only a short time, we believe that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will greatly benefit you. At least our past experience has proven beyond all doubt that it is a very superior medicine for such cases, and if a cure is possible the Bitters will make it. It is worth a trial at any rate. It cures indigestion, dyspepsia, costiveness, biliousness, sleeplessness, chills, colds, female ills and malaria. Try it.

FIGHT FOR THEIR LAND

Twenty-Two Settlers Arrayed Against State of Minnesota.

Most of Their Worldly Goods Are at Stake.

Arrayed on one side, in a series of contests being heard in the contest room of the United States land office before Register Engle, are twenty-two settlers whose homesteads are located in what is known as the Beaver Bay district. On the other side is the great state of Minnesota.

The settlers' all-in-all, their homesteads, where they have spent several years of their lives, and upon which they have made many improvements, are involved in the contests. They claim these homesteads because they settled upon them and last year filed entry papers at the land office.

On the surveyor's map the land in which the homesteads are situated is designated as swamp and therefore the state lays claim to it under the so-called swamp land act, which provides that all swamp lands of the public domain shall revert to the state.

Allegations are made by the homesteaders that they settled upon the land prior to the survey and therefore did not know that it was swamp. Furthermore, they claim that it is not swamp, but that it is high, dry land.

After the survey was made and the towns opened a few months ago, these people, who claimed settlement prior to the survey, were given a chance to file entry papers for the land at the land office. They had three months in which to do this and the state was given a certain time to come forward and give notice that it would contest the claims of the settlers.

Cruisers in the employ of the state were sent to the districts about Beaver Bay and they brought back the report that the land was valuable and soon notice came from the state officials that the settlers would have to fight for their rights or give up their claims.

The settlers had spent too much time living upon the land and making improvements to give it up without a fight. The land is of considerable value. There is enough timber upon it to more than pay the expenses of the contest, and most of the homesteaders are fighting it out with the state.

The first of these twenty-two cases was begun yesterday. Jerry Cavasin is contesting the right of the state to hold out three forties of his claim. He has four froties altogether, situated in township 57, range 10, section 35, and all but one of these, the state claims, are swamp. Up to this afternoon four witnesses, all settlers in the Beaver Bay district, were examined, and testified in behalf of Cavasin, that the land is not swamp, but is high land.

When Cavasin was on the stand, he swore that he had settled upon his claim in 1904, and that he had been living upon it continually since that time. The state denies this, and claims that he has not acted in good faith.

The two main points to be settled in the suit are, the existence, validity and good faith of Cavasin's claim to settlement prior to the survey, and the character of the land, whether or not it is swamp.

Cavasin's contest will probably not be completed before some time tomorrow, and the rest of the cases will be taken up as rapidly as possible.

"It will probably be the middle of November before all of these suits are disposed of," said Register Engle, this afternoon.

For several months after the hearings are completed, the principals in the suits will not know which are the victors, as the register will take them under advisement, and he already has a big stack of like contests to decide.

WAS LAST LAUNCHING

No More Will be Witnessed at Superior This Season.

New Steamer Bope Will Come Out About Nov. 1.

Construction work at the Superior shipyards will continue for the remainder of the season, but there will be no more launchings at the Head of the Lakes until next spring at least. People at the Head of the Lakes had their last chance to see a launching this year when the new freighter H. P. Bope slid into the waters of Howard's pocket last Saturday.

Besides what repair work will come in during the remainder of the season the shipyard at Superior and the ship carpenters and iron workers will have plenty of work to do. Contracts have been awarded for three more steamers to be built for 1908 delivery at the Superior yard.

One of these is a big freighter of the largest type, while the others, although they are good sized boats, will not be in the 600-foot class. The officials of the yard were unable to give out the names of the companies or men for whom the boats are to be built.

At present there is no repair work going on at the shipyard. Last month the yard was pretty well crowded with ships waiting to be repaired, but during October only a few minor jobs have been done. There is likely to be considerable of this work, however, before the season is over.

The H. P. Bope, the new steamer, which was launched Saturday, will be ready to go into commission about the first of November. The fitting out work and finishing touches are being put on as rapidly as possible. Capt. Rae will bring out the Bope and will command her for the remainder of the season.

The season will be short for the Bope, as well as three other boats, which were launched at various shipyards on the lakes Saturday. The Bope, if she comes out Nov. 1, will not be able to make more than three or four trips before the season of navigation closes, and she will have to lay up.

MUD SCOW ADRIFT.

One Was Sighted in Track of Vessels by Capt. Allen.

Capt. Albert Swenson of the local hydrographic office has been notified by Capt. Allen, master of the steamer Rennselaer, that a scow of about twenty feet beam, seventy feet in length and with a flush deck was sighten about twenty miles southeast by south ¾ south from Portage canal.

Capt. Allen sighted the derelict when bound up from the Soo to Duluth. The scow is supposed to have drifted from the Rock of Ages where she was probably used in carrying cement or concrete. Most of the cement mixing for the new Rock of Ages lighthouse is being done on the mainland and the material taken out on scows towed by a tug.

The scow might prove to be a dangerous obstruction to vessels on dark nights or during thick weather and Capt. Swenson warns them to be on the look out for it.

GOPHER TO BE LAID UP.

Training Ship Will Soon Go Into Winter Quarters.

The United States ship Gopher, of the Duluth naval reserves, will go into winter quarters within a day or two. No more cruises will be taken by the naval militiamen and the warship will have a rest until next spring.

Commander Eaton of the Gopher, says that the ship will be laid up at the Head of the Lake avenue slip. Her engines will be put in winter condition and the fires in the ship's furnaces will be put out. During the winter a crew of six men from the United States navy will live aboard the Gopher and will be in charge. They are called ship keepers.

The Gopher has had an active season. She has made numerous short cruises on Lake Superior and also took part in the maneuvers in Lake Huron last August when the Duluth reserves captured the majority of the prizes. Last spring an attempt was made to get a bigger ship for Duluth but it failed at that time. Commander Eaton is still hoping to get something better next season, however.

Suspend Work at Shipyard.

Buffalo, Oct. 22.—At the Canadian Shipbuilding company's plant on the Niagara river, below Bridgeburg, Ont., thirty men have been laid off. Work has been practically suspended on two new steel freighters. The steamer E. B. Osler for the St. Lawrence & Canadian Steam Navigation Company of Toronto, was launched a month ago and should have been ready in a few weeks. The keel for a freighter for McKay & Co. of Hamilton, Ont., was laid last month and the vessel was to be ready for spring.

Death Results From Fall.

Buffalo, Oct. 22.—Capt. John McDermott died in a hospital here Saturday from cerebral hemorrhages, resulting from his fall a fortnight ago into the hold of the barge Iron City, in the Detroit river. He was 42 years old and lived in Tonawanda. His wife is seriously ill at the general hospital.

Will Raise Steamer Case.

Detroit, Oct. 22.—With his wrecking tug Snook, Capt. H. W. Baker has gone down to Amherstburg to commence operations on the raising of the wrecked steamer Case, which was sunk a few days ago by the Mariska. Capt. Baker was given the contract without the usual submission of bids. He stated before leaving Detroit that he would patch the break, pump her out and have her alongside a Detroit wharf next Monday.

New Freighter About Due.

Capt. F. B. Chilson, well known among the vesselmen on the Great Lakes, is bringing up the new steamer Edwin N. Ohl, now on her way up to the Head of the Lakes on her first trip. The boat left Detroit Sunday and should be here soon. W. H. Becker, manager of the ship, and a party of friends went as far as the Soo on the Ohl.

Gas Buoys Installed.

Detroit, Oct. 22.—President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association announces that the two acetylene gas buoys have been placed at the lower end of the new westerly channel at Bar point. One buoy is painted red and the other black, and each will show a white light. The light on the red buoy will be a flash, showing for five seconds. The light on the black can will be fixed white. Installation of the two buoys marks the completion of the equipment of the new temporary channel for downbound vessels.

Middle Pier Being Repaired.

Repairs on the center pier of the wrecked Interstate bridge were begun today by Whitney Bros., of Superior. The masonry will be laid in cement and three feet will be added to the height of the structure, so that there will be three feet more head room for tugs to pass without swinging the draw. The alterations on the Northern Pacific draw on the Minnesota side are proceeding rapidly and the wreck of the other draw is nearly all removed.

Barge Jenness Laid Up.

Buffalo, Oct. 22.—The barge E. W. Jenness, of the Zillah's tow, has been laid up here, the insurance regulations forbidding more than two barges in a tow after Nov. 1.

Grain Trade in Good Shape.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—The grain trade is in an easy comfortable shape with shippers taking boats as offered at 1¾ cents on corn. Charters to Buffalo: Parent, Panther, wheat; City of Rome, wheat or corn.

Cleveland, Oct. 22.—Coal is slow in coming forward and the demand for tonnage is light, but vessels are having no trouble in getting cargoes at upper lake ports.

More Men Laid Off.

South Chicago, Oct. 22.—Two hundred more workmen have been laid off at the yard of the Chicago Ship Building company. This leaves but 300 men out of a total of 1,800 employed before the recent strikes and it is stated that some of these will soon be let go. It is rumored here that the local yard is to be entirely abandoned by the American Shipbuilding company for the construction of new tonnage, but the local officials refuse to deny or affirm the report.

Both Mr. Chattel and other prominent financiers of the city asserted that the financial troubles in New York did not involve Chicago in the slightest degree. They declared that Chicago investors had for some time been chary of investing in securities offered in Wall street, and had made it a practice, if they bought, to buy only on declines. The result has been, they declared, to place the financial institutions of this city in a position where it cannot be disturbed by the present conditions in New York.

President Forgan of the First National bank said:

"The Chicago banks are absolutely sound. They are not in the habit of handling undigested or indigestible securities. We can use all of our money in legitimate enterprises. The disturbance in New York cannot disturb us in the slightest degree."

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 22.—Officials of the local trust companies and bankers and brokers say that they anticipate no effect locally from the developments concerning the Knickerbocker Trust company in New York. But one local bank carries an account with the Knickerbocker Trust company, and at this institution it was stated that the account was small, and that the developments there could be of no effect here.

VETERANS IN MEET.

Basket Social for Aid of Civil War Heroes.

Three veterans of the Civil war living in Duluth are in destitute circumstances, and are lacking the comforts due an honored old age.

For the purpose of relieving their condition, the Sons of Veterans will, this evening, give a basket social at their hall. The proceeds will be turned over to the veterans, whose names, for obvious reasons, are withheld.

We Apologize.

Have to do it. You know the line "For Sale Everywhere." It isn't—except on the 20th of the month.

A week later it is like finding "a needle in a hay stack" to locate an EVERYBODY'S MAGAZINE among the high piles. Your newsdealer sells a lot of EVERYBODY'S in a short time at a good profit.

We sold out too soon in September, increased the October edition, sold out too soon again. Increased again for November, but with Booth Tarkington starting his new story, with O. Henry's "Phoebe"—and you know O. Henry can make you ache as you laugh—and with Wm. Hard's "Making Steel and Killing Men," we are wondering again if there are magazines enough.

ON THE IRON RANGES

CITY CAMPAIGN GETTING LIVELY

Two Remaining Weeks of Eveleth Fight to be Warm.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The remaining two weeks of the campaign promise to be warm ones. With the announcement that Frank Carlson, will become a candidate-at-large, opposing such a tried campaigner as Alderman Sax, and such men as Tim Shea and Matt Doyle, makes the fight an interesting one. Frank Sutherland's name is also mentioned for alderman-at-large.

The friends of Mike Maxwell are at work repairing political fences. The friends of Alderman Mulligan are taking things coolly and relying on Mr. Mulligan's past record.

The list of candidates for municipal judge to date, includes Judge Prince, Ed Skeel, Frank Matson, J. C. McGillvery and Louis Finn, the latest candidate, T. P. Ferry has withdrawn from the race.

Around the remaining offices little interest is displayed owing to the vigor of the contest for mayor and municipal judge.

CASES PUT OVER.

Hearing of Alleged Dynamiters Comes Up Next Tuesday.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The preliminary hearing of Abgelo Specialo, Tony Fido and John Clarence of Nashwauk, which was to have been held before Justice of the Peace Bailey last Saturday, was postpond for ten days, or until one week from today, on motion of County Attorney Thwing, who desires to secure additional evidence. The accused are charged with being implicated in the recent blowing up with dynamite of a barn at the LaRue mine at Nashwauk. The accused are represented by John A. Keyes of Duluth and George H. Spear of Grand Rapids.

WILL LEAVE RAPIDS.

Banker Sheldon and Family Will Locate in City of Minneapolis.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Sheldon and family expect soon to leave Grand Rapids to make their home in Minneapolis.

Mr. Sheldon has been prominently identified with the First National bank since its establishment in Grand Rapids sixteen years ago, when he came here as cashier of old Lumbermen's bank, then a private institution. During all these years he has been the virtual head of this financial house. How ably he has directed its affairs is amply attested by the remarkable growth it has ever maintained under his able management. It has long been recognized as one of the safe and solid financial institutions of the state. Mr. Sheldon's extensive and varied business interests makes the change of residence desirable.

KAPLAN MAY OPERATE.

Duluth Man May Manage Eveleth Co-Operative Store.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is certain that whatever hope the co-operative store promoters have had of inducing the union to take stock in the store, has gradually disappeared. The store has not been doing business for the past week, awaiting the outcome of the meeting held last Sunday at Urania hall. What developed could not be learned. But it is positive that the store if continued will be operated by private parties. It is possible that M. Kaplan of Duluth, one of the store's heaviest creditors, may secure control of a majority of stock and operate the store as a branch of his Duluth business. Manager Bonino has severed his connection with the store since last Saturday.

ON ORE LAND.

Farmer Paine Raises Pride of Derbyshire Potatoes Near Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—When Will Cooper left with Philemon Paine, two quarts of potato eyes, he did not think that Mr. Paine would succeed in raising therefrom in ore country soil thirteen and a half bushels of the Pride of Derbyshire potatoes.

This is the second crop of the original planting. Last year Mr. Paine secured three packs of the native English product. Mr. Paine did not believe that the soil of this county would nourish a potato that has its haoltat in a more southerly latitude.

Mr. Paine is proud of his achievements and feels the distinction offering the only man in America, who has successfully grown the Pride of Derbyshire. His farm, is better known as the Barnes claim. It is situated on St. Mary's lake, from where the city draws its water supply. It comprises 132 acres, which is situated two miles from Eveleth.

FALSE ALARMS BOTHER.

People of Eveleth Hope to See the Practice Abolished.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The paid fireman for the department has at last been appointed. He is John Bartness. He was formerly employed by Jules Thibaut as a drayman. Being a lithe young man, he was recommended to Chief Silver for the place on the department.

Some objection is being made to the frequency with which the fire whistle has been heard recently. There is no way for the citizens to know whether a fire is meant or practice, and much worry is caused to men away from their homes.

The false alarm fiend is again out in Eveleth, making trouble for all concerned. Chief Silver is doing all in his power to stop the nuisance.

EVELETH IN BRIEF.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Young Men's club that is connected with the M. E. club will hold a meeting Thursday evening in its rooms, to plan for the coming winter's work.

Policeman Bilson's 4-year-old son, who was saved from drowning by Mike Maxwell, has recovered to such a degree that he was taken home from the hospital Sunday morning. He is expected out soon.

The record for late sittings in the municipal court was broken Monday, for Judge Prince did not finish the case against Caralaglia Cirello and Caraiani Angelo against Enrico Battaglia. The defendants pleaded guilty and were fined $5 and costs. The judge did not care to postpone the case until today, as the docket is crowded.

The scheduled meeting of the Italian political club that was held Sunday to consider the advisability for starting a fund by the payment of dues. The club took the matter under advisement.

Robert Wesley, the manager of Ed Finch's saloon, has been on the sick list for a few days. He is back to his work now.

A cow barn is being erected by the management of the Tower hotel on Jones street on the open space near Shea's barn.

H. Siegel went to Duluth to purchase stock for the store he is opening on Pierce street.

Mr. Finnicon, who is now working in McKinley, was in town Monday to visit his family and see how the political situation was affecting his candidates. Mr. Finnicon expects to be in Eveleth all day election day.

FOR SHOOTING DEER.

New Deputy Game Warden Makes Arrest at Two Harbors.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new game warden for this district, August Tabor, got busy yesterday and arrested Richard McKenzie, an engineer in the employ of Barnett & Record, the contractors who built ore dock No. 6, on the charge of having the carcass of a deer in his possession. It is claimed by the officer the game was killed within three miles of the city limits, which is against the law.

PRIZE WINNERS.

Some of Those Who Have Captured Blu Ribbons at Lake County Fair.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first annual Lake county fair which began in this city yesterday is certainly a success, and those who have been working on the enterprise are wearing happy smiles today. The exhibits of farm produce, as well as the displays of livestock, are eliciting high praise. Yesterday afternoon the pupils of the public schools were entertained at the fair and they greatly enjoyed looking over the exhibits which proved quite instructive. Some prizes have been announced as follows: Beckman Bros. the best brood mare and colt; Napoleon La Sonde, the best gelding; James H. Lunz, the best farm team, Swan Bros. & Magnuson, the best driving team; William Gable, the best pair of pigs; Gustaf Lund, the best coop of spring chickens, and L. D. Rise, the best coop of turkeys.

Were Confirmed by Bishop McGolrick at Tower on Monday.

Tower, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Monday morning at St. Martin's Catholic church, high mass was celebrated at 11 o'clock and the sacrament of confirmation was received by a class of about thirty children, Rt. Rev. Bishop McGolrick of Duluth, officiating. The church was packed to its utmost, for besides the regular parishioners, there were present several followers of other faiths, who were desirous of seeing the ceremony. The bishop returned to Duluth on the afternoon train. His last visit here was about three years ago.

WANDERER RETURNS.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Martin Toban has returned to town, after his wandering about in the woods. While looking for partridges he lost his way and became separated from his companion. He plundered into Kelsey, a small neighboring station on the Missabe railway, and came home. His friends had planned to go in search of him.

TAKEN TO MOUNT CLEMENS.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—George H. Shores, one of the old-time freight conductors on the Swan River road, who has been ill for some time at St. Benedict's hospital, has been taken to Mount Clemens, Mich., for treatment for a severe attack of rheumatism, which does not respond to the usual treatments.

FARMER IS ACQUITTED.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The jury that was called in by Judge Hudson a few days ago to hear the evidence in the case against A. Lundstrom, a farmer living at Trout Lake, on the charge of assaulting a neighbor, returned a verdict of not guilty after a brief deliberation.

MAYOR'S FATHER ILL.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor H. R. Wearick of this city is in Pittsburg, where he was called a few days ago by the serious illness of his father, who has been in poor health for some time.

the ground and was traveling at the rate of twenty-five or thirty-five miles an hour. The balloon carried red and green lights and was visible for about five minutes.

AIRSHIP RACES

Sheduled for Tuesday Afternoon, Are Postponed Until Wednesday.

St. Louis Oct. 22.—The dirigible balloon or airship races scheduled for today as a part of the week's aeronautic carnival in this city, have been postponed until tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock. This action was taken because of the inability of some of the contestants to get their machines in shape, while the international cup balloons had the right of way on the ballooning grounds in Forest park. Several of the motor propelled vehicles are in readiness, however, and these will make exhibition flights late today. They are now housed under canvas tents, and special hydrogen gas, of a far lighter quality than that used by the balloons yesterday is being manufactured for their use. The dirigible bags are also made of much lighter material than the varnished cotton of the cup contestants.

In the official dirigible race tomorrow many novelties are promised. The first prize of $2,000 will be awarded to the airship which, in the shortest time, covers a prescribed triangular course, to be announced just before the race is started. The entries in the race include several airships that have records of achievement behind them. The "California Arrow," entered by Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin of New York, made numerous flights here during the World's fair. One of the novelties entered is the "sky bicycle" of Cromwell Dixon, a 16-year-old lad of Columbus, Ohio. While most of the other vehicles will be driven by gasoline motors, the "sky bicycle" depends for propulsion upon the muscles of the aeronaut.

Altogether there are nine dirigible machines being prepared for flight in tomorrow's contest. These include the "California Arrow" and "Double Propeller," entered by Baldwin; the "Beachy Airship" and "Strobel Airship," entered by Charles J. Storbel of Tojedo, Ohio; the "Airship Eagle," entered by Horace B. Wild of Chicago; the "Jorgensen Airship," entered by E. Jorgensen of Chicago; the "Mixon Airship" and "Sky Bicycle," entered by Cromwell Dixon, and the "Airship America," entered by J. Berry of St. Louis. The airship contests are to be under the direction of the Aero club of St. Louis.

For Chronic Diarrhoea.

"While in the army in 1863 I was taken with chronic diarrhoea," says George M. Felton of South Gibson, Pa. "I have since tried many remedies but without any permanent relief until Mr. A. W. Miles of this place persuaded me to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, one bottle of which stopped it at once." For sale by all druggists.

NOT LIKELY TO REACH DULUTH

Winds Are Against Balloons Visiting Head of the Lakes.

Forecaster Richardson of the Duluth weather bureau, reported this morning that the wind at St. Louis is blowing from the south and the balloons are probably coming north. There is little chance of them reaching the Head of the Lakes, however, as at St. Paul the wind is blowing from the west.

According to the weather reports the balloons from St. Louis are more liable to be going eastward and are not very likely to get further north than Chicago or Milwaukee. One of them is reported as having been over Lake Michigan last night.

As the currents of air are liable to be different the higher the balloons get, the weather bureau reports cannot be relied upon. Near the surface the wind may be blowing in one direction while in another strata of the atmosphere the current may be directly opposite.

Violent Expulsion of Air Known as Coughing.

At this season of the year, when people are especially subject to coughs and colds, it isn't out of place to know just what it is that causes one to cough and the action of a cough on the organs involved.

The violent expulsion of air from the lungs, through the mouth, the result of an irritation in the air passages, is what is commonly known as coughing. This in turn irritates the lungs and renders them sore, weakening their natural power of resistance to attack. Several diseases, some of which are often fatal, usually originate in this common ailment.

To stop a cough, the following mixture has been found most effective: Take a half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine, two ounces of glycerine and a half pint of good whisky. Mix thoroughly and use in teaspoonful doses every four hours. Five ounces of tincture Cinchona compound can be used in place of the whisky with the same effect.

The ingredients are inexpensive and can be purchased without trouble at any good drug store. To avoid substitution of some inferior pine product for the Virgin Oil of Pine, it is better to purchase each separately and mix them at home.

The genuine Virgin Oil of Pine is put up for dispensing, only in ½-ounce vials, each vial securely sealed in a round wooden case, with an engraved wrapper, showing plainly the name—Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906, Serial No. 451, prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, Ohio. Be sure to get the genuine, as the oil sold in bulk and cheap imitations put out to resemble Virgin Oil of Pine in name and style of package are ineffective, being largely composed of a distillation of pine needles, or leaves, instead of from the pine tree proper.

These pine needle oils are not intended for internal use, and when taken internally usually cause nausea. Their use is mainly confined to the manufacture of soap and similar purposes.

ADVOCATES DAIRYING

Professor Haecker Says Northern Minnesota Has Great Future.

Believes It Will Become Greatest Dairy Section in State.

Prof. Haecker of the dairy department of the state university and one of the highest dairy authorities in the country, predicts that the time is coming when the income from the dairy products of St. Louis county will be its mainstay, and will surpass all other lines of profit producers.

Enthusiastic over the possibilities of the northern part of the state, Prof. Haecker has, by his visit to Duluth and vicinity, given the highest encouragement to the men who are bending their efforts to develop the agricultural and dairy possibilities of the country and his opinion, coming as it does from so a high authority, carries with it considerable weight.

Prof. Haecker returned early last evening from Two Harbors, where he went with the State Farmers' Institute party to attend the farmers' meeting and the Lake county fair. While in Two Harbors he drove out into the country and inspected it as to the grazing quality of the lands. He expressed much satisfaction over the trip and believes that the land is splendidly fitted for the purpose mentioned.

Speaking of the great dairy development in Minnesota, Prof. Haecker said that the state had within its borders last year 973,000 dairy cows. These average a profit of $34 per cow, or a total revenue of $30,000,000.

Prof. Haecker said that prior to 1890 Southern Minensota was a wheat producing country. By reason of successive crops the land became worn out. Farms deteriorated in value, mortgages were a common thing, and matters were in a bad way generally. The farmers began turning their attention to dairying with the result that there is now no more prosperous section in the country than Southern Minnesota.

Prof. Haecker says what has been done in Southern Minnesota can be done here, in fact there are greater possibilities before Northern Minnesota because the land has not yet been exhausted by a succession of crops. The soil is capable of producing prodigious crops of clover, and it is the grazing quality of the land that makes the dairy country.

Small Farms.

Farms comprising forty and eighty-acre tracts are strongly advocated by Prof. Haecker. He claims that with small farms, well managed there is greater profit to the owner than with the large farms poorly managed. He says that the tendency of the times is toward the establishment of the small farms, specialization in farm methods.

Besides participating in the farmers'-institutes at the Jean Duluth farm and at Two Harbors, Prof. Haecker made an early Sunday morning trip to the Trianon dairy farm with the owner, J. Uno Scbenius. As an expert on dairy methods, Prof. Haecker stated that the Trianon farm is one of the finest and best managed of its kind that he knows of in the state of Minnesota.

It is believed that the visit of Prof. Haecker and the other dairy and agricultural experts, and the interest that they have taken in Northern Minesota agricultural and dairy development, will result in much good for this part of the country. Prof. Haecker has been so much interested that he has taken the time from his work at the state university to come here and spend several days with the farmers and has given some valuable advice as to the methods which he thinks should be pursued. He has also promised to come again when he can be of any assistance in boosting the dairy development of the county.

LOST ALL HOPE OF CURING HUMORS

Member of U. S. Ordinance Corps Had Skin, Scalp, and Blood Trouble —For Four Months Tried Various Remedies with No Lasting Effect —Permanently Cured and Says:

"CUTICURA REMEDIES ARE UNEXCELLED"

"About a year ago I was a sufferer from skin, scalp, and blood humors. For four months I used various remedies prescribed to me for their treatment, but they gave only temporary relief and then the distressing blood humors were back as usual. I finally lost all hopes of getting cured of this ailment. But a friend induced me to give the Cuticura Remedies a fair trial. He had been troubled with the same disease and said he had been permanently cured by Cuticura. So I got the whole treatment, consisting of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent, and after I began the treatment I could see and feel that it was a success. The Cuticura Resolvent is certainly of great value as it cleanses the system of all humor germs and makes digestion easy. I used two complete sets of the Cuticura Remedies and I can say this much, that I was permanently cured by them. I want to say further, that these Remedies are unexcelled in curing the worst forms of skin and scalp humors. S. D. Phillips, Ordinance Corps, U. S. A., Rock Is. # EXHAUSTED BY TALKING.

Chicago Man, Obeying Order of the Court, is Overcome.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Adolph Felder, the Ghetto philosopher, who thinks much and talks so little that Judge Cleland was forced to "sentence" him to talk half an hour to his wife, "suffered the penalty" yesterday, unfolded the great secret of his life, and then went to bed, exhausted by the effort.

"I don't know what to do about it. If it is going to make him sick to talk I guess I will go to the judge and ask that the order be rescinded. You see, he isn't used to talking."

Felder, who is a husky looking machinist, prepared for his ordeal by eating a big dinner.

"You wonder why I don't talk, wife," he began. "Well, with a little logical deduction from the surrounding circumstances, you might be able to make a fair guess.

"You caused me to give up drinking. You noticed the minute I gave up drink I stopped talking. The conclusion is apparent. It is drink that used to make me as conversant as I was."

This was the secret of it all.

At this stage the philosopher called for a glass of water.

Several neighbors and Felder's two daughters acted as referees.

"Adolph is a smart man and could talk if he wanted to," said one daughter. "He talked about Jensberg's children making so much noise that he can't read sometimes, about how rich Rockefeller is, and about the crowds down in Halsted street. He said he thought women were better talkers than men. He and mamma got in a little argument about whether or not a man ought to get up and get his own breakfast, like he does."

HAYWARD'S BIG DAM.

One Hundred and Eighty Feet Long and Will Furnish Much Power.

Hayward, Wis., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The newly completed dam across the river here will furnish a water power that will supply electricity for the interurban roads and for lighting the city, and is of strong construction. It is 180 feet long, 80 feet wide, and 147 carloads of sand, 95 wagonloads of brush and 10,000 feet of logs were used in its construction. Two hundred and twenty-five men worked three weeks, night and day. Sixteen feet headwater is carried.

SHIPS IN SHEEP.

Animals to be Grazed on Hubbard County Cut-Over Lands.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Senator S. D. Works of Mankato, who owns considerable land in the northern part of Hubbard county, and who is also interested in cut-over lands in Beltrami county, has brought to this country two cars of sheep which he will rent out to the farmers on shares.

Senator Works has noted the results of experimenting with sheep, in clearing cut-over lands of the small brush and timber.

He will bring a lot more sheep from the southern part of the state to this country and will let them out on the same conditions as the car lots which he has just brought here.

HAVEN NOT IN THE RACE

Claims He is Not Candidate for Republican Nomination.

The List of "Possibilities" Has Been About Exhausted.

I am not a candidate for mayor nor have I given the subject any consideration. True, I have been approached by some of my friends, but I would not consider the matter only under certain conditions. I have no idea who the Republicans will select to head their ticket at the mass meeting next Saturday evening. As for myself, I am not looking for the honor, and, as I have said before am not a candidate in any sense of the word.

ALDERMAN R. D. HAVEN.

"All down. Set 'em up in the other alley."

One by one the Republican "possibilities" for mayor have been eliminated from the race, and it looks as if a new list of names would have to be brought forward at the meeting next Saturday night.

Alderman Haven made the statement given at the head of this article to The Herald last evening and although it is generally conceded that he is likely to be seriously considered at the mass meeting to be held next Saturday evening in the council rooms, it would appear that he will not consider the mayoralty nomination except under conditions, and he declined to state just what those conditions are.

Considerable repartee followed the introduction of the rsolution authorizing the use of the council chambers for the Republicans next Saturday. Alderman Staples, who introduced the resolution, remarked in all seriousness that the meeting was for the purpose of naming the next mayor of Duluth.

Someone asked the alderman whether or not any Democrats would be permitted to attend.

"Well," replied Mr. Staples, "I held a meeting on the hill one year and I recall that Mayor Cullum attended. He wasn't put out, either."

He thought that it would be a good thing to permit the Democrats to attend the meeting, as they might learn the folly of their ways and the one great fundamental principle of Republicanism being, as everyone knows, the enlightenment of the world in general, there should be no show of narrowness." A general laugh followed the sallies of the alderman and the repartee was spicy and good natured.

SAWMILL BURNS.

Plant of Garth Shingle & Timber Company Totally Destroyed.

Escanaba, Mich., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sawmill of the Garth Salngle & Timber company at Garth, Mich., near here, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday. The Hines Lumber company of Chicago is heavily interested in the property. It was a large mill and was valued at $75,000. The mill is a total loss. The amount of the insurance is not known. The timber piled in the yard escaped. The origin of the fire is not known. Garth is a small place and has no fire department. The mill probably will not be rebuilt.

CEDAR YARDS BLAZE.

New Duluth Firemen's Prompt Action Probably Prevents Big Fire.

New Duluth, Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire broke out in the Cedar yard Monday, starting in the bark on some of the poles. The blaze caught in the sawdust with which the yard is filled and was spread rapidly by the high wind. The fire department was called out and soon had the blaze under control.

It is thought that the fire was caused by someone dropping a lighted cigar stub near the cedar poles.

Why Colds Are Dangerous.

Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Everyone knows that pneumonia and chronic catarrh have their origin in a common cold. Consumption is not caused by a cold, but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest way to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by all druggists.

COL. JOHN C. GRESHAM.

New Commander of Fort Snelling Belongs to Fourth Cavalry.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under orders issued at the war department on Saturday, Fort Snelling is to have a new post commander. The new commander is Col. John C. Gresham, Fourth cavalry, who has been relieved from duty at the Army war college in Washington, D. C., to take effect Oct. 31, and will then join at Fort Snelling immediately afterwards.

Col. Gresham is a native of Virginia, and a graduate of West Point in the class of 1875. He is but little known in St. Paul, having served almost his entire service in the famous Seventh cavalry on the frontier.

MRS. KAUFMANN DENIED

New Trial on Charge of Killing Her Young House Servant.

Yankton, S. D., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is up to the supreme court to decide whether a new trial shall be granted to Mrs. Emma Kaufmann, the wife of the wealthy Sioux Falls brewer, who was convicted several months ago at Flandreau, S. D., of manslaughtor in killing her domestic, Agnes Pelrels, as Judge E. G. Smith has overruled the motion of Mrs. Kaufmann's counsel for a new trial. Preparations are being taken for an appeal and this will probably be passed upon by the higher court before the holidays. In the meantime it is expected Judge Smith will pass sentence and there is a likelihood the woman may be sent to the penitentiary before the motion for a new trial is passed upon.

VICTIM OF CYPRUS.

Body Washed Ashore May be One of Victims of Disaster.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 22.—The body of an unidentified man floated ashore above the pumping station Sunday night, and then came the rumor that a launch had gone down with all hands. This lacks confirmation, and the man may possibly be a victim of the wrecked steamer Cyprus, although the marine men are skeptical. The body of Capt. Huyck has been found.

BOY ATTEMPTS SUICIDE RIGHT BEFORE COURT.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a sensational incident in the juvenile courtroom yesterday afternoon, when Arthur Williams, aged 15, attempted to commit suicide.

Williams had been accused of several petty thefts, and as he had been in trouble before Judge John Day Smith decided to send him to the state training school at Red Wing. Another case was occupying the judge's attention, when a woman in the courtroom screamed and pointed at Williams, who sat in front of the judge's bench.

The boy had taken a 32-calibre revolver from his pocket and placed it at his head. Copeland sprang forward and wrested the gun from young Williams' hands. At the same time a number of cartridges fell to the floor.

FARGO CAPTURES IT.

Gets Next Meeting of Northwestern Laundrymen's Association.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo will entertain the Northwestern Laundrymen's association at its next semi-annual meeting in April. Messrs. F. B. Leach, F. B. Loomis and O. A. Miller of Fargo, and a large delegation of members of the North Dakota association from elsewhere over the state, were in attendance at the Northwestern meeting and made a fight for the convention, which was captured for Fargo.

The Northwestern association includes Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and both the Dakotas. It has a membership which practically includes every laundryman of any importance in the five states.

It is expected there will be at least 200 delegates at the meeting here in the spring.

STILL BOOMING JOHNSON.

Washington, Oregon and Idaho Likely to be In Line.

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 22. — "Only one Democrat who has ben mentioned as a presidential possibility by leaders of the Democratic party can unite the party and receive the undivided support of the Democracy of New England and New York state. The nomination of William J. Bryan will be disastrous and will cause the party to split into powerless factions."

This is the message brought to the Democratic leaders of the Northwest, and Hugo Wallace of New York is the envoy delegated to sound the Democracy of Washington, Oregon and Idaho and secure the pledges of the party leaders for Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota.

Governor Johnson is the man referred to as being the only person who will receive the undivided support of the Democrats of the United States. Mr. Wallace is a wealthy capitalist and accomplished politician. Until 1886 he lived in Tacoma, and from 1886 to 1896 he dominated the Democratic conventions of the state, and by virtue of his political ability, could generally throw the support of the state delegation in national conventions to whatever candidate he pleased.

Violent Expulsion of Air Known as Coughing.

At this season of the year, when people are especially subject to coughs and colds, it isn't out of place to know just what it is that causes one to cough and the action of a cough on the organs involved.

The violent expulsion of air from the lungs, through the mouth, the result of an irritation in the air passages, is what is commonly known as coughing. This in turn irritates the lungs and renders them sore, weakening their natural power of resistance to attack. Several diseases, some of which are often fatal, usually originate in this common ailment.

To stop a cough, the following mixture has been found most effective: Take a half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine, two ounces of glycerine and a half pint of good whisky. Mix thoroughly and use in teaspoonful doses every four hours. Five ounces of tincture Cinchona compound can be used in place of the whisky with the same effect.

The ingredients are inexpensive and can be purchased without trouble at any good drug store. To avoid substitution of some inferior pine product for the Virgin Oil of Pine, it is better to purchase each separately and mix them at home.

The genuine Virgin Oil of Pine is put up for dispensing, only in ½-ounce vials, each vial securely sealed in a round wooden case, with an engraved wrapper, showing plainly the name—Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906, Serial No. 451, prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, Ohio. Be sure to get the genuine, as the oil sold in bulk and cheap imitations put out to resemble Virgin Oil of Pine in name and style of package are ineffective, being largely composed of a distillation of pine needles, or leaves, instead of from the pine tree proper.

These pine needle oils are not intended for internal use, and when taken internally usually cause nausea. Their use is mainly confined to the manufacture of soap and similar purposes.

ADVOCATES DAIRYING

Professor Haecker Says Northern Minnesota Has Great Future.

Believes It Will Become Greatest Dairy Section in State.

Prof. Haecker of the dairy department of the state university and one of the highest dairy authorities in the country, predicts that the time is coming when the income from the dairy products of St. Louis county will be its mainstay, and will surpass all other lines of profit producers.

Enthusiastic over the possibilities of the northern part of the state, Prof. Haecker has, by his visit to Duluth and vicinity, given the highest encouragement to the men who are bending their efforts to develop the agricultural and dairy possibilities of the country and his opinion, coming as it does from so high authority, carries with it considerable weight.

Prof. Haecker returned early last evening from Two Harbors, where he went with the State Farmers' Institute party to attend the farmers' meeting and the Lake county fair. While in Two Harbors he drove out into the country and inspected it as to the grazing quality of the lands. He expressed much satisfaction over the trip and believes that the land is splendidly fitted for the purpose mentioned.

Speaking of the great dairy development in Minnesota, Prof. Haecker said that the state had within its borders last year 973,000 dairy cows. These average a profit of $34 per cow, or a total revenue of $30,000,000.

Prof. Haecker said that prior to 1890 Southern Minnesota was a wheat producing country. By reason of successive crops the land became worn out. Farms deteriorated in value, mortgages were a common thing, and matters were in a bad way generally. The farmers began turning their attention to dairying with the result that there is now no more prosperous section in the country than Southern Minnesota.

Prof. Haecker says what has been done in Southern Minnesota can be done here, in fact there are greater possibilities before Northern Minnesota because the land has not yet been exhausted by a succession of crops. The soil is capable of producing prodigious crops of clover, and it is the grazing quality of the land that makes the dairy country.

Small Farms.

Farms comprising forty and eighty-acre tracts are strongly advocated by Prof. Haecker. He claims that with small farms, well managed there is greater profit to the owner than with the large farms poorly managed. He says that the tendency of the times is toward the establishment of the small farms, specialization in farm methods.

Besides participating in the farmers' institutes at the Jean Duluth farm and at Two Harbors, Prof. Haecker made an early Sunday morning trip to the Trianon dairy farm with the owner, J. Uno Sebenius. As an expert on dairy methods, Prof. Haecker stated that the Trianon farm is one of the finest and best managed of its kind that he knows of in the state of Minnesota.

It is believed that the visit of Prof. Haecker and the other dairy and agricultural experts, and the interest that they have taken in Northern Minnesota agricultural and dairy development, will result in much good for this part of the country. Prof. Haecker has been so much interested that he has taken the time from his work at the state university to come here and spend several days with the farmers and has given some valuable advice as to the methods which he thinks should be pursued. He has also promised to come again when he can be of any assistance in boosting the dairy development of the county.

LOST ALL HOPE OF CURING HUMORS

"CUTICURA REMEDIES ARE UNEXCELLED"

"About a year ago I was a sufferer from skin, scalp, and blood humors. For four months I used various remedies prescribed to me for their treatment, but they gave only temporary relief and then the distressing blood humors were back as usual. I finally lost all hopes of getting cured of this ailment. But a friend induced me to give the Cuticura Remedies a fair trial. He had been troubled with the same disease and said he had been permanently cured by Cuticura. So I got the whole treatment, consisting of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent, and after I began the treatment I could see and feel that it was a success. The Cuticura Resolvent is certainly of great value as it cleanses the system of all humor germs and makes digestion easy. I used two complete sets of the Cuticura Remedies and I can say this much, that I was permanently cured by them. I want to say further, that these Remedies are unexcelled in curing the worst forms of skin and scalp humors. S. D. Phillips, Ordinance Corps, U. S. A., Rock Is. Arsenal, Rock Is., Ill., Nov. 22, 1906."

SLEEP FOR BABIES

And Rest for Tired, Fretted Mothers in Cuticura.

A warm bath with Cuticura Soap and a single anointing with Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, will afford instant relief and refreshing sleep for skin-tortured babies, and point to a speedy cure of the most distressing forms of eczemas, tetters, rashes, itchings, irritations, and chafings, when all else fails. Guaranteed absolutely pure under U. S. Food and Drugs Act, and may be used from the hour of birth.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults, consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.) (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass.

HAVEN NOT IN THE RACE

Claims He is Not Candidate for Republican Nomination.

The List of "Possibilities" Has Been About Exhausted.

I am not a candidate for mayor nor have I given the subject any consideration. True, I have been approached by some of my friends, but I would not consider the matter only under certain conditions. I have no idea who the Republicans will select to head their ticket at the mass meeting next Saturday evening. As for myself, I am not looking for the honor, and, as I have said before am not a candidate in any sense of the word.

ALDERMAN R. D. HAVEN.

"All down. Set 'em up in the other alley."

One by one the Republican "possibilities" for mayor have been eliminated from the race, and it looks as if a new list of names would have to be brought forward at the meeting next Saturday night.

Alderman Haven made the statement given at the head of this article to The Herald last evening and although it is generally conceded that he is likely to be seriously considered at the mass meeting to be held next Saturday evening in the council rooms, it would appear that he will not consider the mayoralty nomination except under conditions, and he declined to state just what those conditions are.

Considerable repartee followed the introduction of the resolution authorizing the use of the council chambers for the Republicans next Saturday. Alderman Staples, who introduced the resolution, remarked in all seriousness that the meeting was for the purpose of naming the next mayor of Duluth.

Someone asked the alderman whether or not any Democrats would be permitted to attend.

"Well," replied Mr. Staples, "I held a meeting on the hill one year and I recall that Mayor Cullum attended. He wasn't put out, either."

He thought that it would be a good thing to permit the Democrats to attend the meeting, as they might learn the folly of their ways and the one great fundamental principle of Republicanism being, as everyone knows, the enlightenment of the world in general, there should be no show of narrowness. A general laugh followed the sallies of the alderman and the repartee was spicy and good natured.

SAWMILL BURNS.

Plant of Garth Shingle & Timber Company Totally Destroyed.

Escanaba, Mich., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sawmill of the Garth Shingle & Timber company at Garth, Mich., near here, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday. The Hines Lumber company of Chicago is heavily interested in the property. It was a large mill and was valued at $75,000. The mill is a total loss. The amount of the insurance is not known. The timber piled in the yard escaped. The origin of the fire is not known. Garth is a small place and has no fire department. The mill probably will not be rebuilt.

WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Hold Annual Meeting at Wahpeton and Transact Business.

Wahpeton, N. D., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual meeting of the North Dakota Women's clubs, which brought about 100 delegates to this city, has adjourned to meet next year in Minot. Mrs. Frank White of Valley City continues as president, while the other officers are:

Vice president-at-large, Mrs. H. L. Bolley, Fargo; recording secretary, Mrs. Dollinger of Jamestown; treasurer, Mrs. C. F. Amidon, Fargo; general secretary, Mrs. Oliver of Lisbon; directors, Mrs. Mudgett, Wahpeton; Mrs. A. Gurr, Minot; Mrs. R. M. Pollock, Fargo.

CEDAR YARDS BLAZE.

New Duluth Firemen's Prompt Action Probably Prevents Big Fire.

New Duluth, Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire broke out in the Cedar yard Monday, starting in the bark on some of the poles. The blaze caught in the sawdust with which the yard is filled and was spread rapidly by the high wind. The fire department was called out and soon had the blaze under control.

It is thought that the fire was caused by someone dropping a lighted cigar stub near the cedar poles.

Why Colds Are Dangerous.

Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Everyone knows that pneumonia and chronic catarrh have their origin in a common cold. Consumption is not caused by a cold, but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest way to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by all druggists.

COL. JOHN C. GRESHAM.

New Commander of Fort Snelling Belongs to Fourth Cavalry.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Under orders issued at the war department on Saturday, Fort Snelling is to have a new post commander.

The new commander is Col. John C. Gresham, Fourth cavalry, who has been relieved from duty at the Army war college in Washington, D. C., to take effect Oct. 31, and will then join at Fort Snelling immediately afterwards.

Col. Gresham is a native of Virginia, and a graduate of West Point in the class of 1876. He is but little known in St. Paul, having served almost his entire service in the famous Seventh cavalry on the frontier.

MRS. KAUFMANN DENIED

New Trial on Charge of Killing Her Young House Servant.

Yankton, S. D., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is up to the supreme court to decide whether a new trial shall be granted to Mrs. Emma Kaufmann, the wife of the wealthy Sioux Falls brewer, who was convicted several months ago at Flandreau, S. D., of manslaughter in killing her domestic, Agnes Pelrels, as Judge E. G. Smith has overruled the motion of Mrs. Kaufmann's counsel for a new trial. Preparations are being taken for an appeal and this will probably be passed upon by the higher court before the holidays. In the meantime it is expected Judge Smith will pass sentence and there is a likelihood the woman may be sent to the penitentiary before the motion for a new trial is passed upon.

VICTIM OF CYPRUS.

Body Washed Ashore May be One of Victims of Disaster.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 22.—The body of an unidentified man floated ashore above the pumping station Sunday night, and then came the rumor that a launch had gone down with all hands. This lacks confirmation, and the man may possibly be a victim of the wrecked steamer Cyprus, although the marine men are skeptical. The body of Capt. Huyck has been found.

BOY ATTEMPTS SUICIDE RIGHT BEFORE COURT.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a sensational incident in the juvenile courtroom yesterday afternoon, when Arthur Williams, aged 15, attempted to commit suicide.

Williams had been accused of several petty thefts, and as he had been in trouble before Judge John Day Smith decided to send him to the state training school at Red Wing. Another case was occupying the judge's attention, when a woman in the courtroom screamed and pointed at Williams, who sat in front of the judge's bench.

The boy had taken a 32-calibre revolver from his pocket and placed it at his head. Copeland sprang forward and wrested the gun from young Williams' hands. At the same time a number of cartridges fell to the floor.

FARGO CAPTURES IT.

Gets Next Meeting of Northwestern Laundrymen's Association.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo will entertain the Northwestern Laundrymen's association at its next semi-annual meeting in April. Messrs. F. B. Leach, F. B. Loomis and O. A. Miller of Fargo, and a large delegation of members of the North Dakota association from elsewhere over the state, were in attendance at the Northwestern meeting and made a fight for the convention, which was captured for Fargo.

The Northwestern association includes Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and both the Dakotas. It has a membership which practically includes every laundryman of any importance in the five states.

STILL BOOMING JOHNSON.

Washington, Oregon and Idaho Likely to be in Line.

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 22. — "Only one Democrat who has ben mentioned as a presidential possibility by leaders of the Democratic party can unite the party and receive the undivided support of the Democracy of New England and New York state." The nomination of William J. Bryan will be disastrous and will cause the party to split into powerless factions."

This is the message brought to the Democratic leaders of the Northwest, and Hugo Wallace of New York is the envoy delegated to sound the Democracy of Washington, Oregon and Idaho and secure the pledges of the party leaders for Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota.

Governor Johnson is the man referred to as being the only person who will receive the undivided support of the Democrats of the United States. Mr. Wallace is a wealthy capitalist and accomplished politician. Until 1886 he lived in Tacoma, and from 1886 to 1896 he dominated the Democratic conventions of the state, and by virtue of his political ability, could generally throw the support of the state delegation in national conventions to whatever candidate he pleased.

ONLY PARDON CAN NOW HELP BANKER CLEMENT.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The supreme court yesterday denied application for a writ of mandamus to the United States district judge of Minnesota to compel him to issue a writ of error in the case of Thomas B. Clement, former president of the First National bank of Faribault, Minn., who is now serving an eight-year sentence for violation of the national banking laws. There was no written opinion filed, Chief Justice Fuller simply making oral announcement from the bench. This disposes of Clement's last chance for release, short of a pardon by the president.

LEAVES TO TAKE CHAIR

Rev. K. E. Forsell to be Professor of Languages in College.

Appointment is Marked Recognition of His Ability.

Rev. K. E. Forsell, formerly pastor of the West Duluth Swedish Mission church, leaves today for Minneapolis to take the chair of languages in Northwestern college, the conference institution of the Swedish Mission church.

The appointment to the professorship in Northwestern college is a recognition of Mr. Forsell's ability, which is pleasing to his West Duluth friends. During his pastorate here he did excellent work for the church, and built up a small parish to one of considerable consequence.

Last spring he resigned his pastorate here, on account of illness and need for a rest, and removed with his family to his homestead, near Cotton, Minn., where he remained for several months. He returned this fall, much refreshed and ready to resume pastoral work. At the recent conference of the church he was appointed to the position in the college.

Mrs. Forsell and children will remain at their home, 335 North Fifty-ninth avenue west, for some time, following Mr. Forsell to Minneapolis later.

SOCIAL OF SEASONS.

Unique Event to be Given by Young Ladies' Guild.

The Young Ladies' Guild of Holy Apostles' Episcopal church is busy preparing for the "Social of the Seasons," to be held at the parsonage Friday evening of this week. The social will be unique in its way, and the young ladies are working hard to make the innovation a success. Four rooms of the parsonage will be given over to the social, each room to be decorated and fitted out so as to represent a season of the year.

The young ladies have provided a number of forms of entertainment for their guests, including a musical and literary program. Miss Ethelyn Abbott will render several vocal selections, and Miss Belle McClaran and her pupils will give a declamatory sketch. There will be several other intereeting numbers, and those who "live a year in an hour" will find the time passes pleasantly.

Literary Meetings.

The meeting of the Ladies' Guild of Holy Apostles' Episcopal church, to be held tomorrow afternoon, is the first of a series of literary meetings, featured by the club each winter season. Tomorrow, H. W. Richardson, observer of the United States weather bureau, will give a talk on "Practical Astronomy," which promises to be an interesting explanation of the work of the United States weather bureau, and the methods employed by the government officials. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Seashore, corner of Fifty-sixth avenue west and Elinor street.

McIntyre Is Fined.

Peter A. McIntyre, the man whom Officer Henry Brouillette charged with interfering with him while attempting to arrest Charles Murray, Saturday evening, was up before Justice Flack last evening on the charge. Quite a number of witnesses appeared for each side, McIntyre being found guilty. He was fined $5 and costs.

Infant Dies.

Adeline, the 3-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John St. Marie of 3932 Halifax street, died this morning at the home after a short illness. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning from the residence, with interment at Calvary cemetery.

West Duluth Briefs.

James Ermatinger, Jr., returned this morning to his home in Hibbing after a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Richter of 425 Central avenue.

The members of Old Hickory Camp, M. W. A., will have a social session after the regular business meeting tomorrow evening. It will take the form of a smoker, with refreshments, addresses, etc. During the meeting the degree team will put on the work and initiate a class of candidates.

Friends of Earl Fraleigh, who formerly lived at 626 North Fifty-ninth avenue west, have received an announcement of his marriage at Detroit, Mich., last week, with Miss Parl Fraleigh.

Miss Jessie Jeffrey has returned to her home here after an extended visit with friends in Iowa cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Solberg have returned from a ten days' wedding trip and will be at home to their friends after Nov. 1 at 631 North Fifty-seventh avenue west.

Watch and jewelry repairing, Hurst.

Last Sunday afternoon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Nystrom, their little son was baptized with the name, George Lester. The ceremony was performed by Rev. K. E. Forsell in the presence of a number of friends of the family.

Mrs. Armstrong of Thirty-ninth avenue west and Halifax street, slipped and fell from a porch in front of her home last evening, suffering a fracture of her left forearm.

Tonight, at Wade's hall, the Royal League entertains with a social dance, the first of a series to be given during the winter months.

Rev. Arthur Hoag, pastor of the West Duluth Baptist church, has returned from St. Paul, where he attended the state convention of the Baptist church.

Mrs. J. C. Murphy of Grand Marais, Mich., has returned to her home after a visit in West Duluth.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will serve coffee and cake at the rummage sale, room 314 Central avenue. Wednesday afternoon. Charge, 10c.

No home is so pleasant, regardless of the comforts that money will buy, as when the entire family is in perfect health. A bottle of Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup costs 50 cents. It will cure every member of the family of constipation, sick headache or stomach trouble.

ARE HELD TO GRAND JURY

Nelson and Eklund Must Stand Trial for Bold Robbery.

Claimed to Have Held Up Companion in Freight Yards.

Hugo Nelson and Lauri A. Eklund were bound over to the grand jury today by Judge Windom on the charge of grand larceny in the first degree.

Lauri Pitkanen, the complaining witness and victim of the alleged robbery, was placed on the stand and told his story through an interpreter.

He stated that he was employed at the lumber camps of the Hines Lumber company at Hines, Wis., and that on the 9th of this month, together with Hugo Nelson, another employe of the company, took the train for Superior. Arriving there, the two, together with another man, Eklund by name, repaired to a saloon where they had a few drinks. They then took the ferry for Duluth and arriving at the foot of Fifth avenue, started across the tracks for a lodging house on St. Croix avenue.

At a dark spot along the tracks, Pitkanen alleges that his companions set upon him, threw him to the ground, and relieved him of the sum of $8, three $20 gold pieces and $8 in silver. He broke loose from them and frightened by his calls for help the pair fled into the night in the direction of the union depot.

Pitkanen followed them for a short distance and then went to a lodging house for the night. The following day, he alleges, he went to Superior, located his treacherous companions of the night before and had them arrested. Some of the money was recovered, a $20 gold piece being discovered on the railing of the patrol wagon in which they were being taken to the station. An officer went over from here and the men were brought to Duluth.

A saloonkeeper where the men purchased a drink in Superior, testified that he overheard the companions of Pitkanen say that they must get the old man drunk, referring to Pitkanen, as he had a lot of money on him.

Pitkanen had other money secreted in his coat pocket, but they failed to get this, he states, as they were frightened by his calls for help and only secured the amount mentioned which was in a handkerchief tied securely and in his pocket.

County Attorney Norton conducted the preliminary examination today.

TRIAL NEARING END.

Defense Begins Rebuttal in the Macomber Land Case.

Testimony in rebuttal was introduced by Warren Macomber, this morning, in his suit against O. D. Kinney and others to secure possession of a tract of land in 59-14 which he claims to hold under a patent and on which he had not paid the taxes for, it is said, for over twenty years. The trial has been in progress for two or three days and is likely to reach the jury some time tomorrow.

In Judge Cant's room, testimony for the defense was introduced this morning in the damage case of John Oberster against the Mohawk Mining company and it was expected that a motion for a directed verdict in favor of the defendant will be made some time this afternoon. Oberster claims that he was injured in a mine and he demands $2,500 damages.

ON A PEACE WARRANT.

Mrs. Ella Munroe Asks Protection From Her Husband.

John Munroe, residing at 621 East Second street, was arrested today on a peace warrant sworn to by his wife and will be obliged to give bonds to keep the peace hereafter or suffer the consequences.

His wife alleges that she is in fear of great bodily harm from her husband, whom she alleges has assaulted her and handled her roughly at times.

PARENTS WRITE FOR INFORMATION

Want to Know the Details of Their Son's Death.

Will you kindly write me the particulars of my boy's death. We have only been able to obtain meager details and it would be some comfort to know more of the facts. Did he ever regain consciousness? Was he dead when found? Any information will be appreciated by his father and mother.
M. J. TUTTLE.
Bay City, Mich.

The above letter, written in an old-fashioned hand, but neatly and carefully subscribed, was received by an official of the health department from the father of L. P. Tuttle, the young man who met his death by a fall into the hold of a vessel being loaded at the docks of the Pittsburg Steamship company, in this city on Sept. 24.

It was an appealing letter, and touched the heart of the official of the department to whom it was addressed. The desired information will be secured and forwarded to the mourning ones back in the old home in Michigan.

L. P. Tuttle was an employe of the steamship company, and on the morning of the day mentioned his lifeless body was discovered in the hold of a steamer belonging to the company. He was last seen the night before the accident, at about 9 o'clock. His crushed and lifeless body was discovered at 3 o'clock in the morning, the skull fractured by a cruel blow from the heavy timbers of the dark hold into which he must have accidentally plunged some time between the hours mentioned. No inquest was held, as it appeared to be an accident. The remains were shipped by request of the heart-broken parents to Unionville, Mich., the former home of the young man.

VIRGINIAN IN COURT.

Young Southerner Admits That He Was "in Likah."

John McMillan, a young laboring man from the state of Virginia, was in police court today on a charge of drunkenness.

McMillan is a Southerner and this was his first experience in a police court, according to his story, which he told with trembling lips and downcast head.

He is a bridge construction man and had but recently returned from a visit to his young wife in the South. He hastily wiped the tears from his eyes when he responded to the question, "have you a family?" and told the court he had a wife living in the state of Virginia and from whom he but very recently parted to come to work in the North.

The honest countenance of the young Virginian and his straight forward story impressed the court and all who heard it and sentence was suspended.

"This is the first time I was ever in such trouble, gentlemen," he remarked, with a noticeable Southern drawl. "I can't understand it. I took only a small drink of likah, sah, just a small drink, but I acknowledge the chawge against me, sah. Ah reckon I must have been in likah, sah."

COUNT IS COMPLETED

Nearly Four Hundred Thousand Pieces of Mail in Week.

Total Revenue Amounted to Nearly $5,000 in Six Days.

For the week beginning Oct. 13 to 19, inclusive, there was a total of 368,683 pieces of mail of all kinds passed through the Duluth postoffice, according to the count made by the postal clerks as required by the government. The total revenue from postage on this mail matter amounted to $4,666.40.

The work of counting the mails at the postoffice has been completed and the figures have been added up. The weighing of the mail will continue until the first of the year, but the counting extended over only one week. The local authorities at the postoffice are very much satisfied at the showing made here.

The first class mail matter is considerably in the lead. All letters and postal cards are in this class, although the postal cards are considered separately. The total number of letters during the week was 144,963, and the total revenue on them amounted to $3,109. The total number of postal cards amounted to 23,171, and the revenue on them was $231.71.

In the other classes the publications numbered the highest. The rate on these is a cent a pound. The total number was 135,106, and the total revenue therefrom amounted to $289.04. In the third class which includes all advertising matter, circulars and pamphlets, the total number amounts to 57,388, and the total revenue is $917.41. The fourth class, which includes merchandise the rate is high, a cent an ounce and the total number which passed through the office was only 1,242 on which the revenue amounted to $101.80.

During the week the number of pieces of mail which passed through the office as penalty matter, letters and packages sent out by government officials, the total number was 6,228.

The work of weighing all the mails will continue until Jan. 1, making a full six months. During the month of October the officials are weighing the mails by classes, and at the end of the month will be able to give a report on the amount of mail, which passes in or out of Duluth and they are also keeping track of the mail matter designed to the different states and territories separately.

SUPERIOR NEWS

James J. Hill in Superior.

James J. Hill, chairman of the board of directors of the Great Northern railway, passed through Superior last evening on his return from a short trip to the range with a party of capitalists.

Mr. Hill spent the time between his arrival in Superior and the departure of the special for St. Paul in an inspection of the work being done along the bay front. A brief inspection was made of the interstate bridge that rumor says is to be used by the Soo in its entrance to Duluth.

Found Dead on Tracks.

The death of a man, supposed to be Charles Caswell, a stevedore, was the result of an accident in the Great Northern railroad yards at a point half way between the elevators and Winter street last evening. The body was badly mutilated, both arms being broken, and one of the lower limbs being nearly severed from the body. The man had evidently been dragged for some distance along the track. As there were no eye witnesses it is not known how the accident occurred.

Suit Ties Up Timber.

About $47,000 worth of timber and lumber located in the vicinity of Boylsten is tied up by the provisions of a restraining order issued yesterday by Court Commissioner Cooper against the firm of Murphy Brothers, pending a hearing in the superior court next Monday. The suit is brought by George Fillau, who also asks that a receiver be appointed to settle the accounts of the partnership existing between R. J. Andrews, John Murphy and Michael Murphy as to the timber and lumber in question. Fillau is bringing suit for the purpose of recovering $360 back salary, and also for the purpose of securing one-third interest in the timber and lumber and having Michael Murphy ousted from the partnership.

Belano Gets In Trouble.

WIRE NETTING

Suggested as Covering for Aerial Bridge Car.

It has been suggested by the board of public works that a steel netting be placed above the aerial bridge, for the purpose of catching any falling pieces of iron or bolts which may work loose from the top of the bridge. This is one of the schemes suggested, but members of the board are inclined to favor the placing of a sheet iron roof over the car.

City Engineer McGilvray is considering plans, and will make recommendations to the board in the near future. The fact that fall winds will be likely to lift the roof from its supports has been advanced, and the work of placing the roof may not be done until the weather has settled down for the winter, and the season of fall winds is over.

Danger from falling ice has been considered, and the steel roof will in all probability be the solution of the problem, as it is admitted that there is more or less danger to passengers from the liability of either bolts or ice falling from the extreme height.

It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed to give both old and new addresses.

DEEPSEATED LAWLESSNESS.

Addressing an audience at Minot, N. D., the other day, Judge Amidon of the United States court touched to the quick one of the most vital evils in American life. Said he:

> The greatest danger to this country, as every candid student of it feels, is the growing disrespect for law. It belongs to no class. It reaches from the lowest groveler in the mine to the highest manipulator of high finance. The fact that a thing is against the law is a negligible circumstance in the United States. You step across the line into Great Britain, and you find there that the simple fact that the law forbids a thing is a constructive and controlling force upon the consciences of men. There is no such force here. It has disappeared; and I think the greatest cause for that is our highly artificial and metaphysical administration of law.

There can be no doubt of the truth of this scathing arraignment. We have many laws, and but little enforcement of law. The only effective law is public sentiment, and that is unreliable and unsteady.

The average citizen would probably be indignant if one said that he is responsible for the great crimes of the Rockefellers, the Harrimans, the Ryans and the Rogerses, but he is. He has followed the fashion of disobedience of law because it was more profitable and more convenient, and so have Rockefeller, Harriman, Ryan and Rogers, only their violations were on a larger scale. That gives the small lawbreakers no right to arraign the great lawbreaker. Lawbreaking is lawbreaking, whether it is high or low, great or small, and the indignation of the small lawbreaker against the great lawbreaker is like the scorn of the sooty pot for the blackness of the kettle.

Every dead law on the statute book is an encouragement to crime. Lawmakers make laws, society agrees to disregard them, and they are violated daily. Then some day society has a twinge of conscience, wakes up, demands instant and rigid enforcement of the law, and a lot of people that had presumed on society's continued slumber are squeezed.

The citizen who violates a health ordinance is lending aid to the great despoilers of the people. The property-owner who deliberately violates a building ordinance is paving the way for the big offender who violates an anti-rebate law.

We need more respect for law in this country. We need fewer laws and more rigid enforcement. Laws are made to enforce, not to be ignored. The disregard of small laws leads to the disregard of large ones; small lawbreakers breed large lawbreakers; petty disobedience of wholesome local regulations plants the seed that grows the great plunderers of the people.

Better conditions will prevail when the public conscience awakens to that respect for law which is the foundation of stability and security. The present contempt for laws, great or small, has bred lawlessness that makes for insecurity, peril, and disaster.

If we wish to be sure that big John Rockefeller is going to obey the law, we must have a public conscience that will insist upon punishing little John Smith if he throws his garbage in the alley.

Most of the problems of society would be swept away by a wave of honesty and respect for law.

SELLING LIQUOR TO MINORS.

One of the worst evils of the liquor traffic, and the one that brings it into blackest disrepute, is the sale of liquor to minors, and the city council did well at its meeting last night when it took steps to stop the practice and to provide suitable punishment for those who break the wholesome law that prohibits it.

There are saloonkeepers who set their faces against this awful traffic, and refuse to sell their goods to boys. Such men give credit to their calling, but those who fail to heed this rule are sowing the seed of a whirlwind.

The spectacle of young boys obviously under the influence of liquor is by no means uncommon in Duluth. Lads of tender years reeling along the streets, or supported on their way homeward by more sober companions, have been seen frequently. Somebody sells them the liquor that produces this effect, and there should be swift and adequate punishment for those who do it.

Last night the city council adopted by a unanimous vote a resolution instructing the chief of police to serve written notices upon the saloonkeepers, warning them against the sale of liquor to minors. Before this resolution was adopted it was amended so as to provide that hereafter the license of every saloonkeeper convicted of this offense shall be revoked. This is proper and timely action.

One saloonkeeper had a narrow escape from losing his license last evening, the council accepting his excuse that he believed that a boy to whom he sold liquor was buying it for his mother. That is a mighty poor excuse, and it should not serve to gain exemption in the future. Indeed, there should be some punishment for parents that would send their children to saloons to buy liquor.

REDUCING FREIGHT RATES.

The Railway Age, which is of course a railroad mouthpiece, and an advocate of railroad interests, as it ought to be since it is by the railroads and for the railroads and railroad men that it is published, says that reductions in railroad freight rates do not benefit the public.

Of course if this is true we don't want any more rate reductions. And if it is true that reductions do not benefit, it is difficult to avoid the correlative conclusion that increases in rates ought to profit the people. Therefore the higher the rates the better off the people are. Q. E. D.

But there is an "if" back at the foundation of the problem which is thus demonstrated. "If" the Railway Age's statement is true; that is the "if," and it is a large one.

It seems that the Age thinks reductions don't benefit the people because they never reach them. The manufacturers and jobbers, and possibly the retailers, absorb all the benefits and give none forth to a needy people.

The Age cites the case of Georgia. The state railroad commission made reductions in freight rates aggregating $2,000,000 a year. Did the public benefit? Not at all. "The manufacturers and jobbers promptly advanced the prices of their various commodities far more proportionately than the freight rates were reduced," says the Age.

The Age proceeds to explain that even if the reductions do reach the people, they are a bad thing. What the people are chiefly interested in is the rates on low-valued commodities, like grain and lumber. The railroads, says the Age, like to cut these rates, which really benefit the people, but they can't because the merchants and manufacturers plot to have the rates reduced on high-priced goods and then gobble the benefit by increasing their prices.

In spite of this warning, the people will probably proceed in fatuous blindness to demand lower freight rates. They realize that often the middlemen take most or all of the benefits, but then if the rates are reduced perhaps the people may be able to get at the middlemen later, and see that they disgorge a proper share of the rate reduction benefits.

There is one feature of the rate reduction problem that is getting to be more evident every day, however, and that is that the legislatures are not proper bodies to regulate rates. For this purpose railroad commissions have been created, and the work should be done by them. No legislature can be in a position to fix a proper rate for carrying freight. If it does fix a rate, its lack of facilities for investigation makes the reduction wholly arbitrary, and reduces the chance that it will stick. On the other hand, when it is done by a properly constituted railroad commission, it is the result of proper investigation and should be reasonable and logical enough to stand the test of the courts.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME.

The publication in The Herald last night of the annual report of the officers and committees of the Children's Home society calls to public attention one of the noblest and most beneficial charities of Duluth.

It receives, supports, and provides homes for the orphaned and homeless children of the community, and there can be no nobler work than this.

During the year covered by the report the society received 155 children, and cared for an average of sixty children per month. That the children were well cared for goes without saying, and that their fate would have been miserable indeed if there had been no Children's home is an unpleasant but unavoidable reflection.

There is not a public charity in the city of Duluth more deserving of popular support than this. Yet the fact that it is not as fully supplied with funds as it should be is made evident from the report that it was found necessary during the year to cut into an endowment fund of $2,000, which was reduced to less than $1,300 at the close of the year. Though the society had hoped to keep this fund intact, it is clear that a few more years will see it all spent, unless contributions come in at a more rapid rate.

The women who conduct and in a large measure support this institution are deserving of praise, but they would probably appreciate it better if it came in the form of enlarged contributions. It is a splendid work they are engaged in, and one that should not be allowed to suffer in the least for lack of funds. Those who are doing it are doing the work of Him who said "Suffer little children to come unto me," and "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me."

THE VIRTUES OF FRESH AIR.

The people of this country are growing in their appreciation of the benefits of fresh air, and no sanitary or hygienic movement in recent years will work so strongly for the prolonging of human life and the improvement of health.

Perhaps the chief consideration that has tended to this growing belief in the efficacy of fresh air as a producer and preserver of health has been the realization of its value in treating consumption.

A few years ago consumption, in the popular and even in medical belief, was hereditary, incurable and not contagious. Now it is generally understood to be not hereditary and to be contagious and curable. This discovery marked the beginning of a campaign that will inevitably kill consumption, as vaccination has killed smallpox.

In the treatment of consumption the two chief ingredients are fresh air and nourishing diet. An ordinary case of consumption, taken in time and treated in this way, is easily curable. Windows open night and day, summer and winter, or better still, sleeping quarters outdoors in an open tent, accompanied by proper diet, will cure consumption in almost any climate.

Thus it was discovered that fresh and pure air is a deadly enemy to the germs of disease. If it is good for consumption, it is good for other diseases. If it will prevent and cure tuberculosis, it will prevent and cure other germ diseases.

So people are throwing their bedroom windows open to the fresh clean air, night and day. "Night air," once dreaded and shut out by closed windows, has been discovered to be as wholesome and curative as day air. People in health can preserve and prolong that health by getting plenty of fresh air and sunlight, and people who are sick can find more healing in it than in all the drug stores.

It is stated that a Philadelphia hotel, a building of many stories, has established on its roof what it calls an Adirondack camp, where its guests may sleep out of doors if they wish to, or where they may sleep indoors with wide openings to admit the fresh air. This innovation, which has proved popular, shows the growth of the popular belief in the virtues of fresh air, and it is one of the sanest and most beneficial beliefs that the people ever embraced.

The bedroom of the future, it is easy to believe now, will carry out this idea still further. An architectural authority says that the home of the future will be mostly out of doors. There will be a large living room, a small kitchen with electrical conveniences, and a great enclosed porch with facilities for outdoor sleeping. It will be fashioned like the Southern California bungalow, but will be adapted to all climates and all kinds of weather. The meals can be furnished on the porch or in the living room, as the temperature dictates, but the sleeping quarters will be on the porch whatever the weather.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The talk the other night at the Lenox drifted to women. Most of the traveling men engaged in the discussion agreed that most cities possessed feminine inhabitants that for the most part are characteristic of the city.

"Now, there is Milwaukee," spoke up one of the traveling men, who hailed from the Wisconsin metropolis. "Prince Henry said that Milwaukee possessed the handsomest women in the world."

"Tut, tut, also Duluth," spoke up a man from Chicago. "Walk down State street on a fine summer or autumn afternoon and you will see the best looking and best gowned women in this country."

Of course the man from little old New York was strong for the crowd that makes Fifth avenue and Broadway one of the sights of this country. Everybody knows, of course, that the town placed on the map by venerable Peter Stuyvesant possesses many beautiful women, and the crowd was chary in disputing the claim of the New Yorker.

"Have any of you ever been in Hays City, Kansas?" spoke up J. D. Frazier. "This talk of beautiful women has led me to think of a woman who once lived there, who was induced to send her picture to a paper that was running a beauty contest.

"The people of Hays City are loyal if nothing else. Some one in a spirit of extreme levity told the young woman that she was beautiful; that she was characteristic of the type that predominated in Hays City. The last statement may have been true, all right, for there were not many beautiful women in Hays City then. Since we have added to the quota materially, but in those early days it was different.

"As I was saying the town was loyal to its most humble citizen. When the lady in question began to feel around for opinion on the fitness of sending her picture to the paper that was conducting the beauty contest, she received unanimous encouragement. Our loyalty blinded us.

"The picture was duly forwarded. No reply came for some time. We felt relieved—some of us. Perhaps it was all for the best. Suddenly there came a flat package for the lady. It was the returned picture. With it was a note, or rather a query, short and cruel. It ran: "Is this really a true likeness of you, or is it merely a typographical error?"

Charles Lindrum of Williams, Ariz., was telling a story about Gen. Nelson A. Miles. The general was near Cody, Wyo., one day while on some military duty connected with the department of the West and decided to pay a visit to his old friend, "Buffalo Bill," or Col. William Cody, as he is known to his most intimate friends.

The general secured a wagon, that was not very long on springs, and started over the rocky road for Cody. The driver let his team, which were the tough little Western horses, have the reins, and the way the wagon hit the high spots was a sight. Gen. Miles was a great campaigner in the early border days. He had traveled in the roughest possible manner and he stood the bouncing very well. Suddenly, however, he commanded the driver to stop, turn around and drive back for over a quarter of a mile.

"Now," said the general, as they resumed the trip to Cody, "drive over that rock in the center of the road. The driver did and silence again resigned uninterrupted.

Finally the curiosity of the driver got the better of him. Assuming a very deferential air, he asked the general the reason for turning around to drive over a rock.

"I only did that," said the general, "so that when we get to Cody we can tell them on this twenty-mile trip we have not missed a single obstruction that lay in our path.

Egyptian Sarcasm.

A TRAGEDY IN SIX ACTS.

Act 1.—The Missionary.
Act. 2.—Whisky and Pale Ale.
Act. 3.—The Maxim Gun.
Act. 4.—A Newspaper.
Act. 5.—Cricket and Football.
Act. 6.—Death of the Last Aborigine.
Finis.—Band plays "Rule Britannia."

White House Steins.

Cincinnati Enquirer: When Prince Henry of Prussia was in Washington a few years ago, the president had a feast for him in which casks of beer were the chief ornamental pieces. The White House party did not hold the equipment needed to serve the beer, so the president asked a local saloonkeeper to send up ten or fifteen dozen steins. When Prince Henry drained his on the bottom of the stein were disclosed these words: "Stolen from Ernst Gerstenberg."

The thrifty Gerstenberg had paid such heavy tribute to his stein collecting patrons that he undertook to stop the thieving by having the legend blown in the bottoms.

THE WEATHER.

The weather is still unblemished. Cloudless skies, a brilliant blue, softened by an Indian summer haze, and a glorious and bracing air, still prevail. The temperature is mild but seasonable giving a stimulus to fall trade. Tonight it will be colder, the weather man says, but tomorrow will be fair. Last night's lowest temperature was 40 degs. and tonight's is likely to be about 30 degs. The highest yesterday was 55 degs.

The sun rose this morning at 6:36 and set tonight at 5:09, making 10 hours and 33 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Low pressure areas are centered this morning over Lake Superior and the extreme Southwest, with high pressures over Wyoming and Atlantic states. These conditions are attended by fine weather throughout the country except that very light rains fell during the past twenty-four hours over Florida, Alabama and Middle California, Coast districts. Temperatures have risen throughout the lake region and the Central valleys and have fallen in Alberta and Northwestern border states. Partly cloudy and chilly weather is indicated for St. Louis and Douglas counties during tonight and Wednesday."

Time to Call a Halt.

Washington Herald: Perhaps it would be well to call a halt, now that George Washington has been shown up as a tax dodger and the cherry tree myth exploded. The two circumstances have not been unproductive of some good; they have brought the Father of his Country down more nearly to the level of his fellowman—to common and average clay, as it were—and thereby rendered judgment as to his real worth and greatness, a matter much more likely to be tempered with fairness and justice than heretofore.

We should regret, however, to see the iconoclasts of the land sieze upon this first and foremost of Americans and hack his erstwhile good name and reputation to pieces. Already one of them—a certain Mr. P. J. Reed of Missouri—has come forward with information—backed, as usual, by apparently authentic testimony—to the effect that the pioneer president of the country was a frequent visitor to the race tracks at Annapolis, and, moreover, often lost large sums of money betting on the wrong horse.

We do not want to see any further muckracking of Mr. Washington. We doubt not that he was much as other men were in habits and thoughts, in so far as the usual walks of his life were concerned; but he was the biggest war hero we ever had, the first president of the land, a great and good statesman, and was permitted to have the fairest city in all the world named for him! He was "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen!" And that's where we want him to stay!

The truth of the matter is this thing of invading the tombs of dead and gone celebrities is getting to be too much of a fad for comfort., On general principles it is wrong, and, in the case of Washington, it is little short of reprehensible. To be perfectly frank, we are not sorry to learn that he was not entirely immune to temptation—but we have heard all of the bad things in connection with his name we care to!

A Ballad of Balloon Week.

The chauffeur's seen his little day,
He's been shoved to the rear;
He honks in vain upon his way—
Men neither see nor hear;
Their necks are stretched, their eyes aloft,
A-watching cloudland's boats,
While from above this song comes soft
In downward fluttering notes:

Balloonacy,
Balloonacy,
It is the latest fad;
Balloonacy,
Balloonacy,
The world is airship mad!

The pensive farmer, as one hurt,
Now thrusts his horny hand
Adown the neckband of his shirt
In search of much coarse sand;
A bag of it has dropped kerplunk,
Upon his shining head,
And while he curses, chunk by chunk,
He hears this song o'erhead:

Balloonacy,
Balloonacy,
It is the latest fad;
Balloonacy,
Balloonacy,
The world is airship mad!

On yonder tree, in distant field,
A gas bag's seen to shoot;
The tree was never known to yield;
But now it bears strange fruit;
For there has landed in its crown
And hangs there by his belt,
A cloud pusher who can't get down,
And chants this lay heartfelt:

Balloonacy,
Balloonacy,
It is the latest fad;
Balloonacy,
Balloonacy,
The world is airship mad!

The Stout Army Colonel.

"You are fat, Colonel Boomer," the orderly said;
"Your weight must be near twenty stone;
And yet when I entered you stood on your head—
'Twas cleverly done, you must own."

"My friend," said the colonel, "I know I am slow,
I'm wheezy and corpulent, too;
Yet I'm in condition because I don't know
What Teddy will next make us do."
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

A steel tow barge of about 1,500 tons measurement is to be constructed during the coming winter in Duluth by Duluth enterprise and Duluth capital. Capt. Alex McDougall and one or two other gentlemen own about eight acres of land at the westerly end of the Bay Front canal, and it is there that the experiment of steel shipbuilding in Duluth will be carried out. The machinery and material for the work are now arriving in Sarnia and will be brought to Duluth by the steamers United Empire and Ontario.

With common laborers' wages at $2 a day, teamsters at $2.25 to $2.5v and bricklayers and stone masons at from $6 to $7, it does not seem as if the workingman was very badly off this fall, in Duluth at any rate.

Mayor Sutphin has appointed William J. Tackaberry poundmaster for the city of Duluth and hereafter all cows found at large will be impounded, without exception.

The adjourned baseball meeting last night was well attended, and it was announced that subscriptions to the amount of $5,425 had been taken yesterday for the support of next year's club. Between $2,000 and $3,000 is needed to make up the required amount. The grounds for next season will be at the West end.

L. Beaurivage to Joseph St. George, lot 339, block 175, Second division, $1,000.

W. W. Spalding to Henry H. Turner, lots 121, 122, 123 and 124, block 61, Third division, $3,333.

C. Markell to John Johnson, lot 5, block 114, Portland division, $650.

R. H. Hartley to James Oliver, lots 11, 12, 13 and 14, block 8, Clough's addition, $2,100.

Engineer Baker was crushed to death by a caboose rolling on him in a collision between two freight trains at a curve on the St. Paul & Duluth road between Fond du Lac and Spirit Lake.

Wallace Warner received a telegram yesterday that his brother-in-law William Forehope, was killed near Altoona, Ill., in a railroad accident.

County Attorney Sherwood has rented a house on Second street and will occupy it as a residence after Nov. 1. Mr. Sherwood's sister from Towanda, Pa., will reside with im.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Princeton Union: In ancient times it was customary to swear by the beard of the prophet. Now comes a prophet (weather species) who swears by the beard of the barley that the winter will be an open one. But don't let this deter you from putting in a supply of fuel.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel-Free Press: A. R. Dare of the Elk River Star-News is being mentioned for state railroad and warehouse commissioner. The Sherburne county sage would make good in this office as he did in the speaker's chair and as state printer.

St. Peter Herald: Somebody is trying to inject new life into the Clapp vice presidential boom. Judging the junior Senator by his senatorial achievements, he would make an ideal presiding officer for the Millionaire's Club.

Redwood Revelle: Our sympathy is extended to the man in politics. About the time he has spent from $1,500 to $2,000 to land some office that is good for two years and carries a yearly salary of about $1,200 to $2,000, some one wants his scalp. We would rather run a country newspaper, a peanut stand or a 160-acre farm.

Appleton Press: We will wager it will be Taft for president on the first ballot.

Albert Lea Standard: The iniquity of the trust barons and big financial magnates is being exposed, and it is worse even than we Populists ever predicted, but they are all yet at large and seem to be enjoying life with their wonted and wanton hilarity.

International Falls Press: Members of congress friendly to the railroads have been so badly scared by the late uprising that they are afraid to show their friendliness. But the friends of the tariff are still bold. And the tariff is the worst robber of the two.

Aitkin Republican: The state board of equalization ended its labors last week and one of its members was so overcome that he collapsed and had to be attended by a physician. It's a wonder the whole board didn't collapse after its herculean attempt to tax the iron mines of St. Louis county out of business.

Cass Lake Times: Appearances are in favor of relieving the special tax on oleo butter and allow the poor fellow who can't afford to pay thirty or forty cents for a pound of real butter to indulge in an occasional taste of the counterfeit.

Deer River Press: What with roads and railroads opening the view, this section is destined to be the summer resort region of the north, to say nothing of the agricultural developments making.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Editor Hannaford has inaugurated a puzzle department in his excellent publication, the Virginia Enterprise, and propounds this right off the reel: "Do the voters think?" It's a stunner.

POINTED REMARKS.

Houston Post: "Cholly has brain fever."

"How'd he get it?"

"I'll be honest with you, ma'am," said the foxy milkman, confidentially, "you see, the cows got into the salt bin somehow last week, and it made 'em awful tairsty. It won't occur again, though."

Washington Sar: "I suppose you will have some great speeches at your banquet."

"Speeches don't make any difference," answered the statesman. "What voters are interested in now is whether or not there are any cocktails on the bill of fare."

A Bit of Human Nature.

Philadelphia Record: P. A. B. Widener tells this story on himself. It is the custom of one of the railway boards of directors of which he is a member to pay each director who attends a board meeting $20, and the money due to the absentees is divided among those present.

On one blizzardy day when the board was scheduled to meet, Mr. Widener figured that the snow and cold would keep the other members away from the meeting, and he determined to attend and thus secure the fees of all the absentees as well as his own fee. Not that Mr. Widener needed the money; but he chuckled as he thought of the joke he would have on all his fellow-directors.

So he put up with the inconvenience and dangers of the storm and made his way to the board's meeting-place. His amazement was complete when he entered the room and found that every other member had preceded him. The intended joke was too good, and he frankly told of his purpose in turning out on such a wretched and death-inviting day. The other board members laughed heartily and before many minutes had elapsed all had confessed that they were present as a result of the same mental figuring. Each had thought as Mr. Widener had—that he would capture his own and all his fellow-members' fees. But each had to be satisfied with the usual $20.

IMPROVING ITS PLANT

Red River Lumber Company Will Increase Its Output.

New Machinery Installed in Saw and Planing Mills.

Akeley, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Numerous improvements are being made in the Red River Lumber company's saw and planing mills here which will give a greater output and employ more men. The new twin band saw, greatly improved, will be in operation this week. A new Corliss engine is being installed to help run the large band saws. The lath mill has received a new band saw. Another boiler 20x37 will be put in the new boilerroom. There is building an additional smokestack 150 feet high and 54 inches wide, with a 12-foot screen. A foundry and machine shops will be erected. The old machine shop will be used as a blacksmith shop. The box factory has been improved with a large warehouse 60x100 and several new machines have been added to the box factory, which greatly increases its output.

So great has been the demand for lots on which to build that the company has platted sixty additional acres called the R. F. Pray addition. Many lots have been sold, wells are being put in and electric lights. Houses are being erected on this new addition.

The large loggers are beginning to ship in men for the various camps, and men are very busy fixing the camps for the winter's work. Logging roads are being graded and steel laid as rapidly as possible to permit early logging by train. The logging roads have been extended for many miles northwest and east, and several new spurs have been added. This year will see immense lumbering operations in and around Akeley.

KOOCHICHING COURT.

Several Civil and Criminal Cases Disposed of by the Judge.

International Falls, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first term of court held in the county of Koochiching adjourned Saturday to meet again next February in adjourned session. C. W. Stanton of International Falls conducted all cases for the county. Cases were disposed of as follows:

John Haluptzok vs. August Peterson, findings and judgment for plaintiff for $210.39 and interest.

John Haluptzok vs. D. W. Whitford et al., findings and judgment for plaintiff for $234.55 and interest.

Lillian Lukenbill, especial administratrix, et al., vs. Hans O. Weme, et. al., action to enjoin mortgage foreclosure, tried and submitted.

O. L. Hillistead vs. S. J. Axdahl, appeal on questions of law. Argument.

Edw. Bennett vs. J. A. Godettes, et al., tried and judgment ordered for plaintiff.

Several personal tax cases went to next term.

State of Minnesota vs. Edw. Whitcom, indicted for grand larceny in the second degree. Entered plea of guilty and sentenced one year in state penitentiary.

State of Minnesota vs. Jas. A. Godettes, indicted for murder in the first degree, filed demurrer to the indictment. Demurrer overruled, then entered plea of not guilty; trial continued to adjourned term, Feb. 18, 1908.

There were twenty naturalization papers issued, Tuesday, the first day of court.

GET NEW TRIALS.

Men Convicted of Rebating, Win in Higher Court, Because of Error.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 22. — (Special to The Herald.)—Because the judge sitting in the case declined, at the request of the attorneys for the defense, to state in instructing the jury that the defendants "were presumed to be innocent and that the presumption remained until overcome by proof," George L. Thomas and L. R. Taggart of Kansas City, who are charged with conspiring with railroad companies to accept rebates from them on goods shipped from New York and New Jersey to Kansas City, will get new trials.

The two men were found guilty and sentenced in the district court of the United States for the Western district court of Missouri. They appealed, alleging a number of errors by the lower court. Their appeal was sustained in a decision filed by Judges Sanborn, Hook and Adams, of the circuit court of appeals yesterday, on the grounds above named and the case is remanded for trial.

GHOST WILL WALK.

October 29, Indians Will be Paid by Uncle Sam at Cass Lake.

Cass Lake, Oct. 22. — (Special to The Herald.)—Indian Agent Frater has given notice that he will be in Cass Lake on Oct. 29 and on that day will give all the Indians in this district their annual pay. It is not known how much money will be expended, but it will amount to several thousand dollars.

OLIVER COMPANY TO CUT TIMBER

Big Logging to be Carried on West of Michigamme.

Negaunee, Mich., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Logging operations will be commenced soon at the Oliver Iron Mining company's camp, a few miles west of Michigamme. A force of from forty to sixty men will be employed, and there will be work for the crew throughout the season.

The Oliver company owns six forties in the district. The tract was formerly known as the Illinois Steel lands, but the latter concern did not cut any of the timber, which includes pine, tamarack, spruce, cedar and maple. The Oliver company worked about sixty men there last season. The pine and other heavy timber will be shipped to the company's mill at Champion, and the smaller stuff will be distributed to the corporation's mines on the range. There is enough timber on the tract to keep crews busy for two or three years. The company has very comfortable camps, which were erected last winter; they are conveniently located and a good road extends to Michigamme.

The officials of the company do not anticipate difficulty in securing men for the camp as woodsmen are now more plentiful than they were a few weeks ago. With the Oliver company operating camps near Michigamme, with a force of from forty to sixty, the number of men employed in that vicinity during the winter will be larger than has been the case for years. It is understood that both the Imperial and Ohio mines will be operated throughout the winter months with as many men, if not a greater number, than are now employed. Both the Ohio and Imperial have been shipping all season.

DOG IS BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Mule Kicks a Poodle Who Has Swallowed Dynamite.

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 21.—An accident took place on the farm of Siver Johnson, two miles south of the city. While two men were blasting out stumps and had their backs turned, a poodle dog swallowed two sticks of dynamite. Acting as though he had swallowed a bottle of patent medicine, he made his way to a gray mule grazing near. He bit the mule in the leg, and the latter responded with a swift kick that landed hard on the dog's stomach. The result was an explosion and the dog was blown to atoms. The mule was thrown fifty feet into the air, but in his downward flight landed on a straw stack and escaped uninjured. The explosion threw the granary off the foundation and broke all the windows in one side of the house.

FATAL SMOKE.

Farmer Killed in Runaway Started by Scratching Match.

He stood up in the wagon and tried to light a cigar. The noise made by striking the match scared the horses and they started to run. Kaiser was thrown, and his skull and one side of his face were badly crushed. He was operated on to relieve the pressure on the brain, but it was of no avail. He was 35 years of age and leaves a wife and daughter.

GREAT TUBERS IN RED RIVER

Farmers in Fertile Valley Are Reporting Fine Yields.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The average farmer in the Red River valley this year has a bright cheery self-satisfied smile which won't come off this fall. Especially is this true if he has from several to 100 to 200 acres of potatoes. Not only is the price good this year, but the yield is of better quality and larger quantity than in most years. One hundred bushels per acre is a very poor crop. Two hundred bushels per acre is a good crop and 250 bushels per acre is a very good crop. Quite a number of farmers have very good crops this year.

H. C. Schroeder of Sabin had 240 acres this year, which averaged 188 bushels per acre, and brought him $04 per acre, or an aggregate of $22,500. A month ago a Southern potato buyer is said to have offered Mr. Schroeder $12,000 for his crop in the ground, which was refused.

C. A. Gardner of Argusville brought two potatoes to the office of H. Amerland Saturday. One weighed two pounds, the other one and three-fourths pounds. His potato yield is from 200 to 250 bushels per acre.

Henry Schroeder brought a potato to the city Sunday weighing three and a quarter pounds.

Charlie Peterson of Moorhead, engaged in gardening, dug up a potato, which is said to weigh four pounds.

RAISES ANGORA GOATS.

Roseau County Farmer is Branching Out in New Industry.

Badger, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ole Norman of Stokes, one of the most progressive farmers in the country, is branching out in a new industry. Some time ago he secured two Angora she goats and last week he received from Montana a registered Angora buck. It has been demonstrated that Angoras will thrive in this Northern latitude and inasmuch as Angora wool sells at a dollar a pound, it would seem that this ought to be profitable business. There is no better or cheaper way to get brush land cleared up than to turn in a few goats.

AD FOR WIFE

Then Came Trouble, Ending in the Divorce Court.

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.) — Two years ago C. C. Thysell, a farmer, advertised for a wife. He got one and they were promptly married. Thysell took his wife to his farm north of the city. Soon the honeymoon waned as it was there she saw Engebert, Tuft, a young man of 19, a ward of Mr. Thysell's. Love grew up between them. The complaint charges the statutory grounds of divorce, and the wife's answer admits the charge. The financial part was covered by agreement of the parties, and it is said that the husband paid $1,000 for his freedom, to his faithless wife.

DROWNED IN SLOUGH.

Olivia, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of E. Palmund, who disappeared Sept. 30, was found in a slough, in three feet of water. He probably drowned while intoxicated. He was 65 years old, a farmer, and the father of seven children.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

Bagley—Simon Swenson, one of the oldest settlers in this county, died Sunday night at his home in the town of Popple from injuries received in a runaway. He was thrown from his wagon and sustained an injury to his spine which caused paralysis.

Rockford—The flour and sawmill, owned by the G. W. Florida, was destroyed by fire early Sunday. The loss is estimated at from $8,000 to $10,000. The insurance is light. A thousand bushels of wheat stored in the bins were destroyed.

St. Paul—Mayor Smith has appointed a committee of twenty-five local business men to investigate the street railway service, and ascertain whether the company is doing all that it can be reasonably expected to do in the way of turning out additional cars to meet the growing demands of the service.

St. Cloud—Nic Weigert and C. H. Peterson of Watab, while driving home Sunday night were struck by a Northern Pacific freight train. Weigert was fatally injured. Peterson was slightly hurt.

St. Paul—L. A. Rosing of the state board of control, who has been off duty the past two months because of sickness, attended the meeting of the board for a short while Monday. He has improved considerably.

Moorhead—Miss Marie Christian, who is well remembered here from her former connection with the city schools, was recently married to Mr. E. I. Garland of Minneapolis.

Dilworth—Actual work has begun upon the construction of residences upon the townsite of Dilworth. The railway company has let to Gloss & Sleeger of Casselton the contract for erecting six houses and they are on the ground with the material.

Stillwater—Ward Goodman of the St. Paul Capitol football team, received an ugly scalp wound in the game here Saturday afternoon. He made a long end run, fell, and in crawling over the goal line struck a jagged rock. He was carried off the field unconscious, and the wound was dressed by a surgeon.

Blue Earth—George Spencer Converse died at Spokane, Wash., Thursday, Oct. 17, of Bright's disease, of which he had been subject to for the past eight years. He with his wife, left Blue Earth last December for Spokane, where it was thought the climate would benefit his health.

Stillwater—Edward Hanley, aged 17, son of Michael Hanley, is at the city hospital with a bullet wound in his right thigh. The wound was inflicted by accident while Hanley and other boys were hunting.

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Rice Lake—The Rice Lake Lumber company has operated the big sawmill in this city every season from July 11, 1887, to Oct. 11, 1907, when it finished the last of its pine cut and blew the last whistle at 4:45 p. m. as a signal that its work was ended. The next day the work of taking off and measuring the belts was begun and the mill will probably be dismantled.

Milwaukee—Hiram Bender, one of the oldest settlers of the city, died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Andrew Molbach, Saturday at the age of 80 years. Death is said to have been due to a shock he received in a street car accident.

Watertown—Sacred Heart college won distinction here Saturday by piling up one of the biggest scores in football history and allowing the Pewaukee highs, their opponents, not a single point. In two fifteen minute halves the college team scored 107 points to 0.

Janesville—Because they issued a saloon license to George Lynts, after limiting the number of saloons in the city, the entire council will be sued by Charles M. Fletcher by a writ of certiorari.

Chippewa Falls—Many of the farmers in the town of Sigel have formed an anti-wolf organization, whose aim is to rid the town of the pest, which is killing their sheep and keeping them awake nights. A wolf hunt will be organized, and it is expected that practically all the men will participate.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Houghton—The College of Mines class in G 2 (Metallurgy) returned Saturday from Marquette, where it has been securing data for a report on the Pioneer blast furnace.

Jacobsville—Mrs. Andrew Muller died very suddenly Friday. She had not been feeling well for several days, and Friday while at the dinner table she dropped to the floor dead. She leaves a husband and a large family of children, the youngest a son about 7 years old.

Painesdale—Arrangements are now being completed for a social to be given at Painesdale in the parlors of the new church on Oct. 31, the party to take the name of a Hallowe'en social.

Marquette—A mortgage which provides for the issue of $25,000 worth of bonds has been filed in the office of County Recorder Joseph Primeau from the Marquette County Telephone company to the Miners' National bank at Ishpeming, which is to act as trustee.

Hancock—Richard Minnear of Quincy and Miss Myrtle Lloyd of Hubbell were united in marriage by Justice C. O. Oliver yesterday. The young people are well known and their many friends join in wishing them much joy and happiness.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Fargo, N. D.—While engaged in practice Friday evening, Norman Brophy of the Fargo college football team broke his collarbone. The injury will probably keep him out of the game for the season, and will seriously cripple Coach Grogan's giants.

Bismarck, N. D.—State Commissioner of Insurance E. C. Cooper has decided to issue a monthly bulletin to the newspapers of the state, which are to include interesting matters of news of the department from time to time.

Fargo, N. D.—Five Fargo young men enlisted in the United States marine corps during the past week and have left for their various stations. They are John Kandal, Roy Van Pelt, Olendo Tromsness, George Anderson and Dan Lax.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The government dredging fleet has about completed the work for the season and will be laid up by Nov. 1, Capt. Hayes states. The fleet is about twenty-five miles down the river, where some dredging work is being done.

MAN TORTURED FOR 33 YEARS.

A story written in the own words of the sufferer has just come from Covington, O., which has caused a big stir among skin specialists and among those suffering from Eczema and other forms of skin diseases. George Flammer of that city, an old and honored resident, suffered from Eczema for 33 years before he was able to find a cure, and was then saved from further suffering by D. D. D. Prescription. Here is what he says about it:

"I had Eczema for 33 years and two bottles of D. D. D. Prescription completely cured me. I know that this sounds strange. I can hardly believe it myself, but it is the gospel truth. As soon as I found out what D. D. D. would do I hunted up two of my best friends, Mr. Shuman and Mr. Rank, both of whom had Eczema. Both of them are nearly cured, and Mr. Rank has used only seven bottles. It is a wonderful remedy."

D. D. D. Prescription is a liquid remedy which gets right at the roots of such diseases as eczema, psoriasis, salt rheum, barber's itch, etc. It doctors the skin where the skin needs to be doctored. It kills the germs and the itching scales fall off, leaving the skin fine and white.

We know that this remedy is absolutely reliable, and that it has cured eczema, and the patients appear to be cured forever. Come in and let us give you a booklet on dieting, bathing and other necessary things if you are a sufferer from skin disease.

HAPPY WOMEN

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?
No reason why any Duluth reader

Mrs. M. McGillvray, of 1228 Superior street, Duluth, Minn., says: "As I told in my former statement I was troubled with my kidneys a good deal for a year or two and had heavy dull pains through my loins. My back tired easily, especially if I reclined or sat long in one position. In the morning I felt tired and worn out. The kidney secretions were unnatural and I was troubled with persistent headaches. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the Duluth Drug Co.'s store, and began to use the preparation. I received wonderful benefit from this remedy. It imparted strength to the different organs and banished the backaches and headaches. I am glad to re-endorse such a valuable remedy for backache and kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The Universal Trade Mark

SUPERB UNIVERSAL

The Home Test Tells The Tale--- Let Us Place a Universal in Your Home on Trial?

That's the sure way for you to know that what you are buying is perfectly satisfactory. We are willing and glad to place any Universal Cook Stove, Steel Range or Heating Stove in your house on trial—let you test it there thoroughly for thirty, sixty or ninety days, and if after giving the stove a thorough test it does not prove perfectly satisfactory in every way, we will gladly take the stove back and refund the money you have paid on it.

A Universal, we know, will give you better and more lasting service than any other make of stove you could possibly buy, but we want you to prove this to your own satisfaction, right in your own home.

One Hundred and Thirty Universal Base Burners went into Duluth homes last fall and out of the 130 users we heard nothing but words of praise for their stove. A pretty good testimony to the goodness of Universal Stoves.

What satisfaction others have derived from their use you can also derive. We will place one in your home on very easy payments, too. Here they are—

Our Terms of Payment on Any Universal Stove

$1.00 DOWN AND $1.00 A WEEK—$5.00 DOWN AND $5.00 A MONTH—or your old stove as part payment and the balance $1.00 a week, or $5.00 a month. These terms apply to any Heating or Cooking Stove in our store.

Best Coil Bed Spring on Earth

WHY FOSTER'S IDEAL IS THE BEST.

The Foster Ideal or "400" Spring Bed is acknowledged by the furniture trade and by its thousands of users to be the acme of perfection. It is constructed on unique patented lines and is the crowning achievement of a life time's experience and effort. Every one of its many speciality tempered coil springs acts independently, gently yielding to the downward pressure of the body in exact proportion to weight, and conforming perfectly to every curve, yet returning instantly to its original height as soon as the occupant arises. The upper tier of springs carries the weight of light persons; the central metal strips distribute the weight of heavy persons throughout the lower tier. The only spring on which a heavy and a light person may sleep at the same time without being involuntarily rolled together. A priceless boon to invalids—a delightful luxury for all.

We fully guarantee them to give satisfaction in every respect, or your money cheerfully refunded.

M'CORMICK MAKES HIT

Danahey Says Duluth Man Will Do Well in Class A.

Umpire Advises Against a Step Back for Duluth.

Umpire Danahey, who was on Glass' staff for a time during the past season, but was forced to return to his home in Rochester, N. Y., on account of illness, gives Duluth a little gratuitous advice in a letter to the sporting editor of The Herald. Likewise he puts in a boost for Dr. Glass, for the old league and for some of the Duluth players. He says:

"Duluth will make a very foolish move if it gets into the Wisconsin State league. Now is no time for the city to retrograde in baseball. It has had Class C. ball for two years and a step backwards would be hard to regain. Let the members of the old league get together, patch up differences and endorse Glass for president in 1908. He is all right. Baseball to be successful must be harmonious. Where harmony does not exist, a league is certain to go to the bowwows.

"I am glad to see McCormick taken up by Little Rock. I started in August to get him promoted and I recommended him to Rochester. He is a good ball player, a gentleman and a good actor in all departments and I am sure he will make good in Class A. I do not know McCormick personally and never spoke to him, but I saw him play and know he is a good man. With the proper kind of coaching he will make a great hitter.

"I would have landed Cummings, Tracey and Leighty in the Eastern league only for Ned Egan of Burlington, and Ted Sullivan, sometimes of Houghton. I may get Livingstone, Williams, Monroe and Helding in Class B. I like Haney, too. He is good natured and honest and a good ball player, though unfortunate. There is a lot of knocking of Duluth and its players, but I think Duluth is well able to take care of itself.

"I wasn't well in 1907, but expect to be better next year and I will try to land a place on the staff of umpires there. I like the country and, though I did not get to Duluth last year, I hope to do so next year."

PURPOSES OF MOTOR LEAGUE

National Organization Making Bid for Recognition of Autos.

The American Motor league is making a strong bid for recognition, and the advancement of the cause of the automobile. It is gaining many members throughout the country, and Minnesota has already a strong membership. In a circular, recently issued, the following explains the purposes and aims of the league:

"The American Motor league is trying to encourage the safe and proper use of automobiles. It favors the holding of automobile speed-contests, under proper conditions; but is opposed to all forms of racing on the public highways, and to the dangerous speeding of motor vehicles on the roads and streets. It seeks to improve the quality and capacity of these vehicles, and to reduce the cost of manufacture and, as a consequence, the cost to the purchaser. It aids the movement for improving the public roads; it publishes printed routes, maps and guide books, by which touring may be facilitated and encouraged; it erects proper guideboards, and other signs necessary to guide and warn the users of automobiles and other vehicles; it aims to secure fair and reasonable legislation—laws that will protect everybody and oppress nobody."

The league has obtained a reduced rate of fare for all automobilists in this state, who are members of the A. M. L., attending the meetings of the league during the weeks of the automobile shows in the city of New York. Members must buy their tickets to New York not earlier than Oct. 25, nor later than Oct. 31, no matter when they are used. Each members must obtain a certificate from the ticket agent when he buys his ticket, and upon having his certificate countersigned at New York, by the secretary of the A. M. L., he may buy a return ticket at one third the regular fare at any time up to Nov. 11, inclusive. Automobilists who desire to avail themselve of this reduction must have their names on the A. M. L. roll not later than Oct. 25, on which date the membership roll goes in the hands of the railway associations.

The International Hockey League Ratifies Election of Officers.

Withdrawal of Pittsburg From the Circuit is Final.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The meeting of the International Hockey league, held here Saturday, confirmed the fact that Pittsburg is irrevocably out of the league. The announcement of Pittsburg's withdrawal some weeks ago was final, as Pittsburg was not represented at Saturday's meeting, and has dropped all pretensions of being in the league this season.

Those present at Saturday's meeting were M. J. Kemp of Calumet, W. A. Murdock of the American Soo, W. L. Laughton of the Canadian Soo, and John McNamara of Houghton.

Despite the fact that relations in the league were severely strained after a session in Chicago, Sept. 27, everything was harmonious Saturday. Houghton had threatened to withdraw on account of not being represented at the Chicago meeting, when the representatives of the two Soos and Calumet went ahead and elected officers. The election was ratified Saturday, and all is running smoothly in the league. The officers are: President, M. J. Kemp; vice president, W. A. Murdock; secretary, W. L. Laughton.

It is very probably that several new members will be admitted to the league before the meeting of the schedule board, which will be held soon. The board will arrange the schedule, and before it is done, the league membership will probably be extended to about six teams. W. L. Laughton of the Canadian Soo announced at the meeting that the Corky Distilling company has offered a cup to the team winning the championship of the league this season. The cup has been given to the Canadian Soo to defend, but it is doubtful if the league will accept the trophy. There are some objections to the acceptance on account of the source of the offer.

The dropping of Pittsburg from the league leaves a more compact circuit, all of the teams being now within 250 miles or so of each other. Traveling expenses were too heavy with Pittsburg in, but now they will be much lighter, and the chances of a successful season bettered. Marquette may secure a team in the league, and efforts may be made to place a team in Duluth, giving the league six teams in a very compact circuit.

OFFICIALS ARE CHOSEN

Disinterested Men to Officiate at C. H. S.-Blaine Contest.

Duluth Boys in Good Shape After Saturday's Battle.

At a meeting of the faculty and student managers of the Duluth Central and Blaine high schools held last evening all arangements for the game at Superior next Saturday to decide the Head-of-the-Lakes championship were completed.

The engagement of outside officials was decided upon, the representatives of both schools holding that outside men would be more likely to give satisfaction, than any local men, who might be secured. One man will be secured from the University of Wisconsin and the other will probably be Doane, a former University of Minnesota player, now at Milaca. Doane officiated at the Duluth-St. Cloud game here and he gave excellent satisfaction.

People contemplating attending the game will be pleased with the decision in regard to officials. All games played here this year have been marred by frequent wrangles, and considering the rivalry between Duluth and Superior and the prestige to be gained by a victory Saturday, disinterested officials are practically necessary in order that the long arguments may be avoided.

The Duluth boys were out for practice last evening in good condition after the battle of Saturday. The boys were a little tired after their hard struggle, but there were none but minor injuries and they came out well, in view of the hard battle. Cummings' ankle is in bad shape, but he expects to be well by Saturday and fit for a hard game against Blaine.

The boys are not disheartened over their defeat Saturday. They have lost their chance for the state championship, but they are just as anxious as ever to win from Blaine and retain the Head-of-the-Lakes honors. There was little scrimmage work last evening, most of the work being designed to correct mistakes in Saturday's game and bolster up the interference. The signal practice was fast and the boys show that they have learned by the hard test Minneapolis put on them.

Arranegments are being made for the Duluth rooters to go to Superior by special train. It is certain a sufficient number will go to make a special train advisable and the arrangement would be much better than the use of the interstate car line, with the vexatious delays at the ferry and the overcrowding of the cars at both sides of the bay. The train, if it is secured, will leave Duluth at 2:30, arriving at a point back of the Superior park some time before the game begins. It will then be ready immediately after the game to return the Duluth supporters.

Whether the Centrals' season will end with the St. Paul Central game at St. Paul, Nov. 2 or not has not yet been decided. The weather must be considered in arranging games after that date and the management is rather wary of taking chances. However, fairly good weather may be counted upon for Nov. 9 and a game may be arranged for that date here. The high school team of Hancock, Mich., is being considered as an opponent. The Hancock team, which was in a fair way to win the championship of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan last year, was to have come to Duluth last fall, but on account of the death of one of the Hancock players, the team disbanded and the game was called off at the eleventh hour. This year, Hancock has practically the same team and is again making a good bid for championship honors in its territory, having won all of its games by big scores. The Michigan team would be a good attraction, and if any game is arranged for Nov. 9, the Copper country boys will probably be taken on.

GOLF SEASON COMES TO END

Mrs. W. C. Winton Defeats Mrs. Hartman in Final Match.

Yesterday afternoon on the grounds of the Northland Country club, Mrs. W. C. Winton won the president's cup by defeating Mrs. A. W. Hartman in the last trophy game of the season. Mrs. Winton and Mrs. Hartman have both shown good form in their golf play this season and the match yesterday was close all the way.

The golf season in Duluth was brought to an end with the match yesterday, it being the last of a most successful season. There will be a short lull in the activities at the Northland club now, after which the members will turn their attention to winter sports. A toboggan slide will be provided and also a ski course and it is expected both of those branches of sport will be popular at the club this year.

TWO HORSES FALL

But Jockeys Escape Uninjured on Latonia Track.

Cincinnati, Oct. 22.—Three favorites won at Latonia yesterday. In the last event Stroud and Bitter Brown fell at the last sixteenth pole. Jockeys Taylor and Bowers were slight injured.

BOUTS ARE CALLED OFF.

Curley Ullrich's Illness Throws Out Ashland Card.

On account of the illness of Curley Ullrich, who is confined to St. Mary's hospital, Superior, by an attack of typhoid fever, the fight card, which was to have been pulled off at Ashland the latter part of this week, has been called off. Ullrich was to have met up with Jack Dougherty of Milwaukee, one of the cleverest of the Wisconsin city's welterweights.

Several fight fans from the Head of the Lakes were counting on going to Ashland to see the bouts. Ullrich would probably have it on Dougherty in the matter of weight, but the Milwaukee man is fast and clever and would probably give the wily Curley a great scrap. Another go was to have been between Joe Clements of Superior and Eddie Santry. Both are shifty boys and they would have added interest to the card.

OPPOSE THE EXTENSION

Railway Companies Do Not Want Railroad Street Extended.

Much Routine Business Disposed of by the Council.

The extension of Railroad street to Garfield avenue was vigorously protested against in a communication received by the council last night from Attorney J. L. Washburn, representing the Northern Pacific and the Omaha roads.

The communication stated that the tracks along that street bring in nearly all of the main line trains and that a surface extension would prove a veritable death trap. The communication strongly protested against the extension on other than an elevated plan and importuned the council to go slow in the matter. The communication was referred to the proper committee.

* * *

Alderman McEwen introduced a resolution instructing the city engineer to investigate and furnish estimates on the cost of a wagon road to run from Sixth avenue east and Fifth street to Duluth Heights. The plan is to tunnel under Mesaba avenue and also under the boulevard. The proposed road would lead along Brewery creek to a point where the creek crosses Swan Lake road.

The project, if undertaken, is a mammoth one and the resolution was for the purpose of setting the ball rolling.

A communication from the American Carbolite company asked permission to construct a steel runway across Central avenue from their plant to the packing building for the purpose of conveying empty cans. This was referred to the proper committee.

The proposed sale of the fire hall at Hunter's Park was discussed and the council seemed inclined to the opinion that the price offered, $250, was too small. The time is coming when fire protection for the residents of that section must be furnished, and as the old fire hall has been used for department headquarters, it was deemed wise to investigate its condition before authorizing the sale of the same. The matter will be investigated by the fire department and a report made later.

* * *

The paving of Fourth street in the East end will probably be authorized next year. Last evening the council instructed the engineer to investigate and report on the cost of paving the street and a petition from property owners is liable to be circulated soon.

* * *

The naming of city banks as depositories for city funds was authorized, the finance committee making its final report last evening. The amounts to be placed in each bank and the rate of interest have been published heretofore. The committee reported that the banks have agreed to carry the short time certificates of indebtedness mentioned in The Herald last evening, at the rate of 5 per cent.

Chief of Police Troyer reported that the salary budget for 1908 in his department will be about $66,357.83 and as the appropriation for the department is only $70,000, he was of the opinion that the small balance, after salaries are paid, $3,642.17, would not be sufficient to pay the running expenses of the department. He asked that an additional appropriation of $3,780.27 be made.

* * *

Contractor McDonnell asked the council for permission to use the street railway company's cars to convey rock to the scene of the Ramsey street paving. Arrangements have already been made between the contractor and the street railway company, but it is necessary to secure the sanction of the council to the agreement. The street railway company is furnished an indemnity bond by the contractor and in turn becomes responsible for any accidents, the city being exempt from the same. The use of the cars for the purposes mentioned was authorized.

Will Meet Again.

This evening at the Lincoln Park Roller rink in the West end, the Northern Hardware and Lincoln Park roller polo teams will meet in the second game of the season. In the initial game, each team scored two goals, so this evening's game will be in the nature of a play-off of the tie. Both teams are starting into the season with a strong membership and they are out for Head of the Lakes honors.

GREAT CROWD HEARS BRYAN

Nebraskan Delivers Address on "The Democracy of Today."

New York, Oct. 22.—William Jennings Bryan spoke last night before an audience that filled Cooper Union, while many thousands were turned away. The meeting was under the auspices of the Progressive Democratic league, and Mr. Bryan's subject was "The Democracy of Today." He was introduced by Augustus Thomas, president of the league. On the subject of national control of corporations, Mr. Bryan said:

"The president suggests the national incorporation of all railroads engaged in interstate commerce and all corporations engaged in interstate commerce. Not since the days of Alexander Hamilton has such a doctrine of centralization been advanced as this suggestion by the president. It would practically place the government of the state in Washington.

"The Democratic doctrine is that the federal authority attend to federal affairs and leave the state to attend to their home government. The federal authority should be added to the state authority, not substituted for it."

He said the federal government, acting within its present powers, could curb the trusts.

AMERICANS RELEASED

Russian Police Find Nothing to Cause Their Detention.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 22.—Adam English Walling, of Indianapolis, his wife and sister-in-law, Rose Stransky, who were arrested Sunday night because of their association with members of the Finnish Progressive party, were released last evening. The police found nothing among their papers to warrant detaining them. No conditions are attached to the release, but Mr. and rMs. Walling and Miss Stransky intend to leave St. Petersburg on Wednesday. They say they have practically finished their work in Russia. All their papers and manuscripts have been restored.

The officials expressed regret at the arrest, which thy say was ordered upon the report of an over-zealous spy who had been shadowing the Finnish revolutionists with whom the Americans had associated. The two women prisoners were confined for the twenty-four hours in a prison overcrowded with young women revolutionists. They were conducted to a small cell, 8 by 10 feet, but they said last evening they had suffered no especial discomfort during the confinement. They told amusing tales of the laxness of Russian prison discipline.

As soon as it was rumored in the institution that two women had been brought in, they began to receive visits from the other prisoners. They held a regular reception in their cell and related the latest history of the outside world to the curious women who crowded to see them. They were questioned about conditions in America and talked of liberty and social progress. As soon as the order for their release was received last evening the news became known throughout the entire prison.

Mr. Walling was assigned to a separate cell in the detention prison. Nominally, he was not permitted to communicate with anybody, but he found no difficulty in getting a letter out to the American embassy, making use of the "underground" postal service, maintained by the prisoners who were aided in this practice by severeal subventioned officials.

TO LIVE THE SIMPLE LIFE.

Mr. and Mrs. John Medill McCormick Take Up Settlement Work.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—The Record-Herald says: "Weary of the monotony of life in a mansion on the Lake Shore drive and in a palatial summer home in Lake Forest, Mr. and Mrs. John Medill McCormick are about to take up their residence in the University of Chicago Settlement, 465 Gross avenue. Mrs. McCormick, who was Miss Ruth Hanna, daughter of Senator Hanna, is said to be enthusiastic over the idea of helping the working classes. Mr. McCarmick believes the environment in which he has lived has had a tendency to narrow his vision of the world.

"The rules of the settlement house require each resident to engage in some useful work, so Mr. and Mrs. McCormick will have their share to do. Mr. McCormick's friends deny that he has Socialistic tendencies. Mrs. McCormick, as one of the heirs of Mark Hanna, inherits several millions. They expect to take up their residence in the settlement this week.

S. S. S. CURES ECZEMA
The cause of Eczema is a too acid condition of the blood. The itching, burning eruptions are caused by the outpouring through the pores and glands of the skin, of the fiery poisons with which the circulation is loaded. This acrid matter coming in contact with the delicate tissues and fibres with which the skin is so abundantly supplied causes irritation and inflammation and often excessive discomfort and annoyance. While external applications, such as salves, washes, lotions, etc., are soothing and cleansing they are in no wise curative, because they do not reach the blood where the trouble is located. You can never cure Eczema with outside treatment; the blood must be purified. S. S. S. is the best treatment for the dsease. It goes down into the circulation, neutralizes the acids and humors with which the blood is infected, and makes the blood-current fresh and healthy. Then instead of fiery, acrid matter oozing out through the pores and glands, irritating the cuticle, the skin is nourished by a rich, cooling, healthy stream of blood. S. S. S. removes every trace of the disease, and when the cure is complete the skin is left smooth and free from any eruption. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice furnished free of charge to all who write.

H. B. Munsen Returns to Itasca County to Re-engage in Business.

Deer River, Minn., Oct. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. B. Munson, the timber and log dealer, who has for the past five years had considerable business in Itasca county, has returned from Idaho, where he has been interested in large logging operations for the past year at Couer d'Alene, and announces that he has withdrawn from the company with which he was interested. Mr. Munson, together with A. Y. Merrill and A. M. Powell, the Minneapolis attorneys, are forming a company to log out timber in township 62-24, containing several hundred million feet. It is the intention of the company to put a railroad from that town to Prairie river, a distance of fifteen miles to haul their logs, and they expect to bank from twenty million to thirty million feet a year.

MAY MAKE TROUBLE

Relocation of Lost Corner Posts a Bad Precedent.

Several Petitions Said to be Circulating for Commissioners.

At the earliest solicitation of several settlers interested in lands in sections 34 and 35, 61-20, the county board, at its last meeting, directed the county surveyor to make a resurvey with the idea of relocating and re-establishing the northwest corner posts of each section, also the quarter posts.

Since that action was taken it is understood that there are several petitions of a similar nature, for the relocation of other lost corner posts in various part of the county, being prepared for presentation to the county commissioners.

The settlers in localities where the old government corner posts cannot be found, or where there is a dispute as to the location of the same, seem to have the idea that the county board has established a precedent, and they are, in common parlance, "going to get into the game."

Information of the petitions being circulated has come to the ears of the commissioners, and, it is said, there is a strong sentiment on the board toward rescinding the resolution adopted at the last meeting, directing the surveyor to locate the lost corners. During the discussion over the resolution, some of the members of the county board expressed an opinion that the matter would open the door to an endless amout of trouble for the board, by reason of so many lost corners in the county, and the train of events seems to bear out the predictions.

In the meantime, County Surveyor Ayers has not yet made the resurvey. The next meeting of the board will occur within a few weeks, and it is likely that he will defer action until that time to see whether the commissioners want him to carry out the order.

While the cost of the resurvey would not, probably, be a very large sum, the county would be put to a big expense if it had to relocate and re-establish all the lost corner posts in districts where the settlers are now planning on getting out petitions. It is figured that the expense of such a proceeding, if carried out, would run up into the thousands of dollars.

It is rumored, since the last meeting of the board, that the settlers in sections 34 and 35 are now in litigation over the section corners; that a resurvey has been had since the government first established the corner post, and new corners were located, but which are now in dispute. It is intimated that the settlers have figured it out how, under a new law, they might get the county to bear the expense of another survey, in the effort to promote their interests in the law suit.

The commissioners have not doubted but that the people who have bought lands in some localities have been put to much inconvenience and hardship by reaon of lost section corners, corners that have been obliterated by fire or other caues, but they are said to be chary of doing anything that is going to bring the county into a wholesale business in the way of finding these lost corners, especially when litigation is already in progress.

The proceedings were instituted in the supreme court by a committee of the North Dakota Bar association with a view of securing the disbarment of Norskog.

FARMERS FIGHT FIRE.

Barnesville, Minn., Oct. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—A prairie fire is devasting the northeastern part of Wilkin county, Minn., and three farms have already been wiped out. The damage thus far is estimated at $50,000. The fire was started Saturday afternoon on the farm of Charles Fundsbeck by a boy who was playing with matches. All the buildings of that farm were soon destroyed.

Thus far efforts to check the progress of the fire have been unavailing, but all the farmers in the vicinity are plowing up the country in an attempt to stop the flames.

THE "GROWLER" WAS TABOOED

Council Took Steps to Stop Minors "Rushing the Can."

The license of W. H. Erickson to conduct a saloon at 19 South Sixty-third avenue west was spared last evening by the council, although there was considerable discussion of the matter, and the vote on revoking the license stood 5 in favor and 9 against it. Erickson's bartender was convicted in municipal court of selling a 10-cent pail of beer to a minor, and paid the minimum fine of $25 and costs.

Mr. Erickson was not present at the council meeting last night, but a representative appeared for him, and explained the situation, the facts being practically the same as those brought out in the trial. It appears that the bartender sold the boy a pail of beer, on the supposition that it was for his parents, the lad offering a dollar in payment, which tended to strengthen his story.

Alderman Haven spoke at length on the subject of selling liquor to minors, and the evil results liable to arise from carlessness on the part of saloonkeepers in furnishing them liquor, even when they had every reason to expect it was for an elder person.

Alderman Moore questioned closely relative to this particular case, and spoke of the necessity of protecting the youth of the city. Chief of Police Troyer was called upon, and explained the situation, stating that there had been no previous complaints relative to the manner in which the saloon in question had been conduced. Erickson is an old man, and can speak but little English. City Attorney McKeon related the circumtances leading up to the conviction and the evidence in the case.

Following the vote of the council on the question of revoking the license, Alderman Staples introduced a resolution to the effect that the chief of police be required to serve written notices on all saloonkeepers, to the effect that the sale of liquor to minors in any form will be strictly and sverely punished, and that filling "growlers" must end so far as minors are concerned. This motion was amended by an amendment offered by Alderman Moore, implying that in cases where the saloonkeeper has been convicted of selling to minors, the council will stand ready to revoke the license. The resolution and amendment passed without a dissenting vote.

FINDS KILLING ACCIDENTAL

County Attorney Norton Orders Release of John Jacka.

John Jacka, master mechanic of the Kellogg mine, near Biwabik, who was accused of shooting and killing John Silka, was released from custody on his own recognizance, yesterday afternoon, on the order of County Attorney Norton. The shooting is held by the county attorney to have been purely accidental and it was not believed that there could possibly be a conviction. Unless something new should be disclosed to cause the authorities to take action Mr. Jacka will not be arrested.

Last Sunday morning Mr. Jacka shot at a partridge with a rifle. The bullet whizzed between trees bordering the road, and struck Silka, who was passing, in a vital spot. Mr. Jacka, as soon as he learned of the accident, nastened to render all the assistance possible to the wounded man, and gave himself up to the authorities.

As soon as the people of the location fully understood the situation they were satisfied that the shooting was accidental, but Nestor Heino, a companion of the dead man, filed formal information in the justice court accusing Jacka of manslaughter. This necessitated the arrest of the latter and he was brought to Duluth. According to the reports, Mr. Jacka did not know there was another person within 100 yards of him when he shot at the partridge.

POTATOES AND EGGS

Both Profitable for Red River Valley Farmers This Fall.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The potato crop in this section of the Red River valley this year is the biggest that has been raised for many years, and the price is steady at 50 cents per bushel and the tubers are hard to get at that price, as the demand from outside points is so brisk that many of the producers are shipping their entire crop to Montana and points in Iowa and the Twin Cities and Duluth. Eggs also are the highest they have been at this time of the year in the past ten years. Even from country points 22 cents is the very lowest price at which they can be obtained, and at retail here by the case they cost 28 cents. The dealers here state that before Thanksgiving they will be worth 40 cents per dozen and will be very had to get even at that price.

An Increase of over 25% in Dividends To Policy Holders

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York has paid more in dividends to policy holders than any other company in the world. Since organization it has returned in dividends over $118,000,000. As a result chiefly of increased earnings and decreased expenses the annual dividends to policy holders this year, on policies issued in 1905, will be 25% to 30% more than in 1906.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company

feels sure its policy-holders will be pleased with this great reduction in cost. The news may be doubly welcome now when increased cost in other lines seems everywhere the order of the day. If you have others for whose continued care you are concerned, you should learn for yourself how and how cheaply it can be guaranteed by the staunchest life insurance company in the world.

Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic

FOR CHILDREN AND ADULTS

Antiseptic and Hygienic

A Hair Invigorator—Just what its name implies. It supplies nourishment, the elements of growth, which, when absorbed by the hair, strengthens and beautifies it in the same way that sap glorifies the foliage of a tree. Even where the follicles are seemingly dead, if the scalp is massaged daily with Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic a vigorous growth will be produced. It has honestly earned its title of "the great hair grower." It stimulates the most stunted growth and makes the hair magnificently healthy and beautiful. By its use women can provide themselves with a trailing mantle of hair—woman's natural raiment, her birthright.

Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic is prized equally by men and women, particularly when the hair begins to weaken or fade. Cures baldness, grayness, splitting of the hair, dandruff and all diseases of the hair, scalp and beard. One application usually stops hair falling. A nursery requisite; no mother should neglect to use it for her boys and girls; when the hair is made strong in childhood it remains proof against disease and retains its vigor and youthfulness throughout life.

Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic is a colorless, fragrant, delightful hair dressing; neither sticky, gritty, nor greasy; makes the hair soft, fluffy and glossy. Contains no artificial coloring; would not soil the whitest hair; restores original color by invigorating the scalp and re-establishing normal circulation and proper distribution of the live coloring matter. Beautiful hair redeems the plainest countenance, and any one can secure it by using Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic. Now in three sizes. Our special price

MANY CHANGES IN GYMNASIUM

Michigan College of Mines Has Well Equipped Building.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many changes have been made in the gymnasium of the College of Mines this year and the building now stands out pre-eminently as being one of the finest and best equipped buildings at the college. The building offers to the students of the institution a well appointed club and one of the best gymnasiums of the Northern peninsula.

The club or lounging room is unique in its furnishings. The portieres of green double flax lined velour, the curtains of the same material lined with satin and the heavy green Mosaic rugs on the floors lend a general warmth to the room, which is set off by the harmoniously tinted walls. The chairs and corner seats are of turned oak, upholstered in leather. There is a large open fireplace in the north end of the room surmounted by a fine moose head. On the walls of the room are framed pictures of the graduating classes, the various clubs and organizations of former years. A piano with player attachment, the gift of O. C. Davidson of Iron Mountain, adds materially to the furnishing of the room.

N. D. POSTMASTERS.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—A dispatch from Washington says that rural free delivery route No. 3, in this, Cass county, at Wheatland, has been decided upon to begin Dec. 16, and the following North Dakota postmasters have been appointed: Columbus Ward county, Ole Renning, vice W. H. Graham, resigned; Forest River, Walsh county, John A. Carpenter, vice J. H. Warren, resigned; Hallson Pembina county, Benjamin Peterson, vice K. N. Tharwaldson, removed.

BAD COMBINATION.

Whisky and Strychnine Nearly Kills Two Farm Hands.

Devils Lake, N. D., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Whisky and strychnine formed a combination which nearly killed Joe Hessing and Frank Nort, two farmhands, who had been employed by Martin Gulseth, seven miles east of here. Hessing had sent to Devils Lake for a quart of whisky and when it arrived put half of it in a pint bottle which had contained strychnine. He then hid it in a manger. The two farm hands went to the barn and expected to take a little drink. Shortly they began to feel the effects of the poison, their limbs became stiff and began to twitch and they laid down, hoping for the best. They were found by another employe, who loaded them in a wagon and hurried them to Devils Lake. Nort soon recovered, but it took several hours to bring Hessing out of danger.

WEST END

PLANS ARE APPROVED

Board of Control Satisfied With Lock-Up Specifications.

One Delay in Establishment of Western Station Overcome.

Possibly most of the delay incident to the establishment of a police station in the West end has been overcome, as the state board of control has approved of the plans for the new lock-up and work may begin at once, despite the lateness of the season. However, it is likely that the work of building the police sub-station will be deferred until next spring.

In any event, any obstacles which the board of control might throw in the way of the lock-up have been overcome, the members of the board signifying its satisfaction with the plans drawn by Architect Kelly.

The site for the new lock-up is located on the lower side of Superior street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues west. The selection of a site was a topic of lively conversation in the West end for some little time, so great was the difference of opinion as to where the building should be built.

There were those who, for a time, insisted that the station should be put on First or Second streets farther west than Twentieth avenue. Another site that was much spoken of was the old horseshoe factory property on Michigan street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenues west.

The building was in comparatively good condition, but the city engineers decided that the cost of remodeling the building for police station purposes would be too great. So the Superior street site was accepted as the most logical, after all.

Twentieth avenue is really the business center of the West end, and the police officials declare that the selected site for the station is admirable.

MAY CALL SPECIAL MEETING

West End Democrats Must Find an Aldermanic Candidate.

The West End Democratic club will probably hold a special meeting the last part of this week to discuss the Seventh ward aldermanic situation and propose a Democratic candidate.

At the meeting of the club last week, a committee was appointed to call upon Charles E. Dice, and urge him to become a candidate. But Mr. Dice told the committee when it called upon him yesterday, that it would be impossible for him to enter the race because of personal business matters.

And now the question is, who will the Democrats put up as an aldermanic candidate in the Seventh? The Democrats do not know themselves. When the meeting last week was held, they felt that Dice could be induced to run, and they were satisfied that if he did, he would be a very strong candidate.

But now Mr. Dice states positively that he cannot consider the proposition, although very grateful to the club for its endorsement.

The West end Democrats will probably get together at the special meeting Friday evening and all the eligibles checked upon and some suitable man suggested as the Democratic candidate in the Seventh.

In the Sixth ward, it is practically settled that Alderman Mork will run again, it was not his original intention to do so, but the pressure brought to bear upon him by his friends in and out of the Democratic club, was so strong that he decided to accede to their wishes and become a candidate for re-election.

MACKEY-CAHILL NUPTIALS.

Many Friends at Wedding of Popular West End Couple.

The marriage of Miss Maude Mackey and Tobie Cahill took place this morning at 8 o'clock at St. Clement's Catholic church, before a large company of friends.

The bride was given away by William Mackey, a brother. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Mackey and William Cahill acted as his brother's best man.

Both the bride and the bridegroom have lived in the West end for a long time and have a host of friends in the city. After Nov. 15, they will be at home at 1923 West Superior street.

Last evening the young couple were the recipients of a parcel shower, at the home of the bridegroom's parents, 2025 West Third street.

Office Nears Completion.

The Dulutn Street Railway company's new office building at the barns, Twenty-sixth avenue west and Superior street, will be ready for occupancy within a short time and the present general offices at Twelfth avenue west will be abandoned by the office workers of the company.

The exterior work has all been done and only the interior decorations, with the putting in of the windows and a few finishing touches, remains to be done.

West End Shortrails.

Mrs. J. T. Anderson and daughter Eva of West Fourth street have returned from Coleraine, where they have been visiting Mrs. Anderson's sister.

The Unique Social club will entertain this evening at Columbia hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street.

Roy Selbini has gone to Winnipeg, where he will go into business with his brother. His family will remove to the Manitoba metropolis in the course of a few weeks.

Rev. A. Edstam, pastor of the First Swedish Baptist church, has returned from Two Harbors, where he conducted services Sunday. Rev. P. Ryden of Cambridge, Minn., occupied Mr. Edstam's pulpit here, Saturday evening. Rev. Mr. Ryden lectured to the young people of the church on "What I Would Do if I Were Young."

Mrs. John Nelson, Mrs. Andrew Peterson and Mrs. Charles Peterson, who have been visiting friends and relatives in the West end, returned to their homes at Grand Marais, Minn.

Rev. S. R. Davies preached his first sermon as pastor of Grace Methodist church Sunday morning. Mr. Davies was assigned to this church by the Methodist Episcopal conference, succeeding Rev. J. W. Robinson, who was pastor of the church for several years. Rev. Mr. Davies was formerly presiding elder of the Crookston district.

1907 imported cod liver oil. A. E. Swedberg, 3 E. Sup. St. and 2015 W. Sup. St.

Mrs. John Olson of Twenty-third avenue west and Third street will give a reception Wednesday afternoon for the ladies of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church.

It's worth while to see our hats; none better; bring your old hat—we'll make it new. Pearson's, 1814 Piedmont avenue west.

It is rumored that the owners of the Sloan block, at Twentieth avenue west and Superior street, are contemplating the addition of another story. The same rumor was heard a year ago about the Columbia block, across the street. It was said that the Columbia block was to be added on to at the rear, as well as on top, in order to give more space to the mercantile establishment of S. Morterud and the Roy Prytz company.

Martin Bird has gone to St. Paul, where he is visiting his brother, William Bird.

Miss Elva Lofgren of 2524 West Second street has returned from Eholt, B. C., where she has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. William Chesser, for seven months.

S. A. Ritter of the Esmond hotel left yesterday for Hibbing, where he will remain about a week on business.

Guy Hill has gone to Brainerd, where he will visit his parents for a few days.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

THE BIJOU BILL.

Contains Many Interesting Feature Acts This Week.

The best comedy cycle act yet seen in Duluth is being presented this week by the Baker troupe at the Bijou. Their work is of a really high order, and the act is one that cannot fail to entertain and amuse, in spite of the fact that bicycle acts are no longer a novelty.

Ben W. Dawson gets away with a blackface monologue containing some new jokes and some not quite so new, and Welch and Earl are well received in their comedy sketch. Tom and Edith Almond are singers, musicians, and novelty dancers, and their act is somewhat out of the ordinary.

H. E. Parkhurst is singing "Thelma" this week, and the motion pictures show scenes from Roumania, which are both interesting and instructive.

The Burlesquers.

Larry McCale, Margie Hilton, Julia Heltzman, May Belmont and George Brennan, Harry Bentley, the Adams Brothers and a comely chorus are giving a most acceptable entertainment at the Metropolitan this week, as the Imperial Burlesquers.

The Williams Brothers, sponsors for the show, seem to have engaged about as competent people as are to be found in the burlesque field and the vaudeville farce concoction which they present, is comparatively free from objectionable features.

"A Night In Paris" and "Off to the Front," serve as titles for the two burlesques. The first concerns the adventures in Paris of a stranded American circus canvas-man and the second is described as a "military satire."

Margie Hilton's songs are well chosen and so are her gowns. Larry McCale and company have a funny sketch called "The Irish Admiral." Larry ends it with an unexpected dose of pathos. Harry Bentley, who sings parodies, ought to be suppressed. The Adams Brothers do some novel roller skating and May Belmont and George Brennan sing and dance.

"A Texas Steer."

"A Texas Steer" attracted a big audience to the Lyceum last evening, and the old favorite seemed to please as it has never failed to do in the past.

"The Man From Mexico."

The Mack-Leone Players will return to the Lyceum tonight with "The Man From Mexico," which made a distinct hit in the first two performances Sunday afternoon and night.

Henry E. Jones of Tampa, Fla., writes: "I can thank God for my present health, due to Foley's Kidney Cure. I tried doctors and all kinds of kidney cures, but nothing done me much good till I took Foley's Kidney Cure. Four bottles cured me, and I have no more pain in my back and shoulders. I am 62 years old, and suffered long, but thanks to Foley's Kidney Cure I am well and can walk and enjoy myself. It is a pleasure to recommend it to those needing a kidney medicine." ## DIES IN CANADA.

Ex-Sheriff Sawyer of Otter Tail County Passes Away at Weyburn.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—A telegram was received here Sunday announcing the death of E. J. Sawyer, at Weyburn, Canada, from typhoid fever. Mr. Sawyer was widely known throughout this section of the state, having been sheriff here for a number of years. He came to this county twenty-three years ago and engaged in the blacksmith business at Perham, where he resided until his election at sheriff, when he removed to this city, making his home here until three years ago. He then went to Weyburn, in the Canadian Northwest, and has done a very prosperous business there. He was a brother of County Commissioner J. L. Sawyer of Perham, and the remains will be brought back to that village and interred there under Masonic auspices.

FIRE BEYOND CONTROL.

Farmer Comes Near Losing Buildings by Burning Old Straw Stack.

Moorhead, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—M. J. Miller, owner of the old O'Laughlin farm on section 9, in Moland, came near losing his farm buildings Saturday afternoon as the result of a prairie fire. Miller set fire to an old straw stack and everything went along all right until the fire got beyond his control and started through the stubble toward his buildings. Miller was helpless, but on the C. A. Nye farm adjoining, threshing operations were in progress. Seeing the danger, Mr. Nye shut down and led the whole crew to the fight. It was a stiff battle for a time, but by hard work the buildings were saved.

FOUR YEGGMEN TAKEN BY POSSE

Gang is Captured After Lively Exchange of Bullets.

Manitowoc, Wis., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four men, believed to be the professional cracksmen implicated in the Hilbert station robbery, were captured by Sheriff George Lambries and Deputies Robert Puls, Fred Guse and Max Woellert, shortly after midnight Sunday, after a revolver fight, in which no one was injured, although one deputy had a hole shot through his hat. The capture was made in an old barn, near Centerville, twelve miles south of this city. Three of the men gave their names, but a fourth, supposed to be the gang's leader, refused. They are Jim Schiller, Jack Hopkins and Peter Busch. The men are held here to await the arrival of officers from Calumet county for identification.

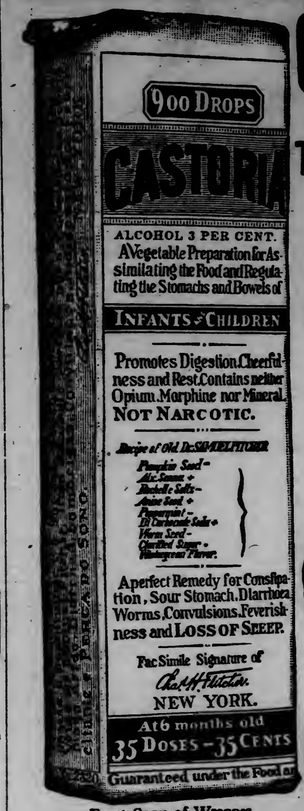

In the possession of the men was found much merchandise, tallying with that stolen from the Hilbert hardware store and the John Grub company.

BRICK PUMP HOUSE.

Bids Invited by Cloquet for That Part of Water System.

Cloquet, Minn., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bids will be received by City Clerk Joseph Loisel to erect a brick pump house at the reservoir at Spring Lake, according to the plans and specifications on file in the office of the city clerk. The concrete walls of the reservoir and the covering of the springs has been finished, and the digging of an outlet for the overflow is under completion. There is yet about 300 feet of ten-inch pipe to be laid to complete the pipe line to the city, and when this is laid, the ditch of the main pipe line filled in, and the pump house built, the work of getting water to the city will have been completed.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The annual round-up of the local branch of the Needlework Guild will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. The place of the round-up has not yet been decided upon, but the section presidents and members have been busily preparing for the annual event, and it is expected that the display of new and warm garments for the poor of the city will equal the display of any former year. The custom of the past will be followed, and the garments will be gathered in the first day, arranged, and counted, and upon Wednesday will be on display. The annual distribution will take place Thursday.

There are few of the charitable institutions of the city but in whose annual reports appears a word of thanks and appreciation for the contributions from the Needlework Guild. As is well known, the only requisite to become a member of this organiaztion is to contribute two or more new garments for the use of the poor. The lack of unnecessary detail appeals to many women, who are glad of the opportunity of doing a small amount of charitable work with the least possible expenditure of time.

The annual round-up will occupy the attention of Duluth women next week.

KATE UPSON CLARK

The series of three lectures which Kate Upson Clark will present in the city, the first of which was delivered this afternoon, at Steinway hall, is the subject of most interest among the women of the city. The demand for tickets was so large that the number sold in advance warranted the engaging of Steinway hall for the lectures, and tomorrow's lecture, at 3:30 o'clock, and the Saturday morning lecture will both be held at that place.

Mrs. Clark has been a journalist, and most widely known and respected for many years. She is the author of several books. Those from her pen which may be found in the Duluth public library are: "Bringing Up Boys," "Move Upward," "Up the Witch Brook Road, a Summer Idyl," "White Butterflies," "Child Life in New England in 1907," and "That Mary Ann."

The opinions of women who have no children on the methods of raising them usually read best, but Mrs. Clark, before committing herself on the subject of "How to Bring Up Boys," successfully grappled with the subject and brought to manhood's estate three sons, of whom she is justly proud. Her first efforts in a literary way did not come until after her marriage, when two of her sons were occupying much of her attention. Mr. Clark was at that time managing editor of the Springfield Republican. He was planning a Sunday edition, and wanted a story for which there were no funds to pay. Mrs. Clark wrote one for him as a surprise, and it passed the critical judgment of a near relation, and was published in the Springfield Republican. Although that was not paid for, it being a contribution to her husband's paper, to help him out in his need for a Sunday story, it was the beginning of Kate Upson Clark's literary work. Very soon, however, her work was sent to editors throughout the country, until there was a keen demand for it. She is at present an editorial writer for the Brooklyn Eagle.

Mrs. Clark's lecturing is taken as a rest from her constant writing, although when one considers that upon one of her Western tours she addressed eighteen meetings in eleven days, one rather wonders what Mrs. Clark would consider work. The address which she is delivering this afternoon is one of her newest lectures, having been delivered only six or seven times before. It has been enthusiastically received and is founded on the description and value of the virtuous woman, as set forth in the thirty-first proverb, Solomon, the King of Lemuel, who is supposed to be the author of the words, is pronounced by Mrs. Clark to be a modern of the moderns. She was greeted by an audience of nearly 300 women.

Violin Recital.

The pupils of Oliver Colbentson will appear in a violin recital this evening at Pilgrim Congregational church. The program will begin promptly at 8 o'clock. The assisting musicians will be Miss Ethelyn T. Abbott, soprano; Walter L. Smith, tenor, and Miss Elizabeth Morton, accompanist.

HONOR MISS NOYES.

A Representative Gathering of Duluth People Greet Her.

From 8 to 9:15 o'clock last evening a continuous line of Duluth people of almost all ages and sizes were greeted by Miss Louise K. Noyes in the parlors of Pilgrim Congregational church. The guests called to extend their greetings and good wishes to Miss Noyes before her departure for the East to make her home, and the affair, which was arranged by the women of the church, was a splendid testimonial by the people of Duluth to Miss Noyes for her many years of splendid service in the city. A very large number of the callers were those who had been pupils of Miss Noyes in their high school days, and a large number of the recent alumni and the present day high school pupils were among the guests. The parlors were prettily decorated in leaves and bright mountain ash berries. Receiving with Miss Noyes were Rev. and Mrs. Alexander Milne, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge and Mrs. W. B. Dunlop. After the larger number of guests had been received, a short musical program was given and then Mr. Milne, as spokesman for the friends of Miss Noyes in the church, presented her with a brooch of topaz and pearls, and spoke simply of the loss that her going will be to many departments of Duluth life. Her work and kindly influence in the church during the years of her life here were spoken of and the regret that many parents who have children not yet of high school age, feel that they may not later be under her guidance and help.

The remainder of the guests were received after the presentation. At the refreshment tables, which were prettily decorated in red and green, Mrs. Theron K. Hawkes, Jr., and Mrs. Albert Baldwin presided. Mrs. W. G. Hegardt assisted about the rooms.

Miss Noyes will leave Thursday afternoon for Boston, where she will make her home.

Church Societies.

A new circle of the Women's Guild of St. Paul's church was organized yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. S. E. Atkins of 104 South Fourteenth avenue east. The members are the young matrons and young women of the church, and sewing for the Christmas sale and a course of reading will occupy their attention. The officers who will serve the first year are: President, Mrs. S. E. Atkins; vice president, Mrs. T. L. Chapman; secretary, Miss Margaret Ryan, and treasurer, Mrs. Percy Ginder. The circle will be known as Circle No. 5.

Circle 3 of the Women's Guild of Endion Methodist church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Mrs. Clausen of South Nineteenth avenue east.

Events of Interest.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Williamson were hosts at a small dinner last evening at the Spirit Lake clubhouse. Covers were laid for six.

* * *

Mrs. John Panton has issued invitations for a series of three bridge receptions, to be given Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons at her home on East Second street.

* * *

Mrs. A. Fitger was hostess at a reception yesterday afternoon at her home, 627 East First street, in compliment to Mrs. Kate Upson Clark. The rooms were prettily decorated in roses and ferns, and sixty Duluth women called during the receiving hours. Assisting about the rooms were Mrs. Ralph G. Hubbell, Mrs. F. L. Barrows, Miss Statham, Mrs. C. J. Lesure and Mrs. George S. Richards. Presiding in the dining room were Mrs. W. S. Bishop and Mrs. F. E. House, and assisting were Miss Mary Paine and Miss Wilhelmina Fitger.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Woodbridge will be hosts at dinner this evening at their home at Glen Avon.

* * *

Mrs. E. H. Smith entertained at an informal afternoon of bridge yesterday at her home, 2319 East First street. The game was played at four tables, and the favors were won by Mrs. Rice and Mrs. E. F. Burg.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. A. P. Stevenson, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Morrow of Seventeenth avenue east, has returned to her home.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Stryker have arrived in the city from their wedding trip through the East. They will be at home at Hunter's Park.

* * *

Mrs. A. M. Miller and Miss Berenice Crowley are in Chicago for a short visit.

* * *

Mrs. Ferd Edwards of 422 East First street left last evening to attend the funeral of her father, Capt. Alexander Grant of Marquette, Mich.

* * *

Mrs. Frank Pomeroy of Park Point has returned from a visit at Minneapolis.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Black walnuts, 60 cents a peck.
Kohl-rabi, 30 cents a peck.
Apples, $5 or $6 a barrel.
Hot house cucumbers, 12 cents each.
Butter beans, 20 cents a qt.
Fresh tripe, 12 cents a lb.
Sweet potato squash, 5 cents each.

Somebody who knows has told the market column that sweet potato squash, split and baked, and a little chunk of butter and sprinkling of pepper and quite a lot of salt on the inside, is the nicest thing that ever was. The market column has no way of proving it, and individually it is not awful crazy about hearing of these delicacies that people have enjoyed the night before. It makes one hungry, and whoever begins to tell the column about such things must needs go into the most luscious details, the while looking sleek and well fed. The market column can feel itself getting gaunt and hollow eyed, and when the psychological moment for saying, "Come out and have dinner with us" arrives, these tantalizing humans usually end with, "You want to try it some day."

Sweet potato squashes are seldom seen in the Duluth market, but one store has them.

KNICKERBOCKER TRUST CO.

ney's outside interests had become greatly extended, and in view of his personal position in the directorate of certain institutions recently under criticism, in particular because of his position with Mr. Morse and some of Mr. Morse's companies, he has decided that the best interests of the company would be served by his resignation, although he had no loans with the Knickerbocker Trust company. He has resigned as president of the trust company and will resign as a director. He also will resign as a director of the National Bank of Commerce, which was the clearing house agent of the Knickerbocker Trust company. In view of the fact that the Knickerbocker will hereafter clear by itself it was deemed advisable to obtain guarantees of additional cash, should it be needed. These guarantees have been obtained and the Knickerbocker will be amply prepared to meet any exigencies that may grow out of a change in the method of clearing. The Knickerbocker has in its vaults tonight $8,000,000 in cash. If more cash is needed it will be immediately forthcoming under the guarantees. The meeting of the trust company presidents was largely for the purpose of outlining a plan for a clearing house of trust companies, similar to the clearing house of banks. This will enable all trust companies to stand together as the banks are standing together."

In brokers' offices the London quotations on American shares were anxiously awaited. When they were received they showed sharp declines from yesterday's New York prices. At 1 p. m., in London, American stocks showed the following declines:

Amalgamated Copper, 1½; Atchison, 3⅜; Baltimore & Ohio, 1½; St. Paul, 2⅜; Southern Pacific, 2¼; Union Pacific, 3⅜; United States Steel, 1½.

Shortly after the main office of the Knickerbocker Trust company, at Thirty-fourth street, opened for business, depositors began to arrive in still greater number, and at 10:20 more than 150 people were in line at the paying teller's window. Many depositors came in carriages, and the carriage line extended for over a block from the bank. There was a short run on the Bronx branch of the Knickerbocker Trust company, when it opened for business. It was promptly stopped by the arrival of two wagons, from which were unloaded in view of the waiting depositors, big bundles of specie and currency.

There was a run of depositors to withdraw money at the main office of the Knickerbocker Trust company, when it opened for business this morning and also at the branch offices of the company at 66 Broadway and in One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. At the main office there were about seventy-five persons in line and others were constantly arriving. Many of those who came to withdraw their money were women.

At 66 Broadway there was considerable excitement when the office opened for business. A line of about fifty persons had gathered and made their way to the paying teller's window to withdraw funds.

Second Vice President Allen, who was in charge of the downtown office, gave out the following statement:

"There is nothing to be alarmed about. We have $8,000,000 of cash in the vaults and are prepared to meet all demands. The company is perfectly solvent."

Mr. Allen said that the fears or alarm created by Mr. Barney's retirement from the presidency of the company will soon be allayed.

The 2 p. m. quotations in London showed the following declines in American shares:

Amalgamated Copper, 4; Atchison, 3¼; Canadian Pacific, 2¾; St. Paul, 2⅝; Northern Pacific, 3½; Pennsylvania, 1½; Reading, 4⅛; Southern Pacific, 2⅞; Union Pacific, 3⅞, and United States Steel, 2.

W. F. Havemeyer, the newly-elected president of the National Bank of North America, gave out the following statement this morning:

"I can state with assurance that Charles W. Morse at present owes this bank nothing. The bank's holdings of Consolidated Steamship bonds are insignificant."

Mercantile National bank, $454,000; National Bank of North America, $543,000; National Bank of New Amsterdam, $340,000; the Mechanics & Traders National bank, $335,000, and the National Bank of Commerce, $7,000,000. It was officially announced that the clearing house committee had rendered assistance today to the Mercantile National bank, the National Bank of North America and the National Bank of New Amsterdam. It was stated that the large debit balance of the National Bank of Commerce represented the clearances of the Knickerbocker Trust company.

State bank examiners today visited and started an examination of the accounts of the Knickerbocker Trust company.

The presidents of the trust company of this city met this morning at the office of Oakleigh Thorne, president of the Trust Company of America.

A. Foster Higgins, the newly-elected president of the Knickerbocker Trust company, was in charge of the company's affairs today.

At 11 o'clock there was over two hundred persons in line at the Knickerbocker Trust company, on Thirty-fourth street, and depositors were being paid off at the rate of forty an hour. Several who came to deposit money decided to wait a while when they found a run was in progress.

GOVERNMENT FUNDS

May be Distributed Among the Leading New York Banks.

Washington, Oct. 22.—When Secretary Cortelyou was questioned today as to his intentions with respect to the financial situation in New York he said he was not prepared to make any statement. It is known, however, that the secretary stands ready to meet any situation that may develop and that he is in a position to do this.

While it is believed that some action is being taken by the treasury department in the matter of making deposits of government funds to national banks to meet the present emergency in New York, Secretary Cortelyou refused to discuss the subject in any way. Mr. Cortelyou said that not only would he not make any statement at this time, but would not discuss with any one the matter of deposits. It is understood that Secretary Cortelyou has ordered $6,000,000 distributed among the leading national banks of New York.

Omaha, Oct. 22.—The financial troubles of the past few days have had no effect on Omaha and Nebraska banks, according to prominent financiers of this city.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 22.—Banking and business interests of Denver have not felt seriously as yet the effects of the falling prices of copper, the declines in the stock market and the business disturbances in New York. There are no large copper mining operations in Colorado and few moneyed men here are heavily interested in that industry. Businss in Denver, as reflected by the bank clearings, has been steadily increasing of late. For the first time in the history of the city the banks' clearings last week exceeded $10,000,000.

London, Oct. 22.—The cable dispatches received here from New York regarding the changes in the management of the Knickerbocker Trust company, and the receipt of heavy selling orders from New York, caused marked uneasiness on the stock exchange today. Americans, which opened strong, following Wall street quotations of yesterday, fell heavily on wild reports in connection with the financial situation in New York, and liquidation by American houses in London caused a further decline in the prices of favorite American rails of from 3 to 4 points below parity. Union Pacific fell 3¾, Southern Pacific 3, Atchison 2¾ and Canadian Pacific 2 points.

The market at noon was exceedingly weak, each selling order from New York increasing the general anxiety. The weakness extended to other sections. Consols dropped 3-16 and Kaffirs and foreigners were also offered at lower level.

THE PRESIDENT VISITS

forget. Governor Patterson, in a brief address, then welcomed the president, who responded.

On the arrival of the party at the Hermitage mansion, the president was presented by the president of the board of trade to Mrs. Mary C. Dorris, regent of the Ladies' Hermitage association, who then presented Mr. Roosevelt to Mrs. Rachael Jackson Lawrence, grand-daughter of President Jackson. Mrs. Dorris, assisted by the ladies of the Hermitage association, conducted the president and his party through the Hermitage, visiting various rooms, after which he was served with light refreshments in the historical dining room of the Hermitage.

The president proceeded directly to the tomb of President Jackson at the lower end of the garden, and from this spot repaired to the speaker's stand, where the president of the board of trade introduced Judge John Allison, who, in a brief address, presented President Roosevelt.

Immediately following the delivery of his address, Mr. Roosevelt was presented by President H. A. Tuck of the McKinley club of Nashville with a beautiful McKinley button, the official emblem of the club, which the members had designed for the occasion.

Mr. Roosevelt and the accompanying party then began the journey to the president's train at the Hermitage station, the road passing the Tennessee Soldiers' home. At this point the Confederate veterans received the president in line, and requested that he favor them with his autograph in a register specially prepared for the occasion. His signature was written in the book with a quill and made at their instance for this feature of the program.

PUT COWS ON GOOD BEHAVIOR

Judge Gives Them Chance to Save Owner a Fine.

Charles Olson's cows were placed on their good behavior this morning by Judge Cutting.

According to the complaint of a neighbor, Edward Glass, of the West end, the cows have shown an almost human intelligence in the methods they followed in getting into his garden and chewing his cabbages. They have lifted the bars from the fence with their horns and overcome all obstructions.

Finally Mr. Glass became exasperated and swore out a warrant for Olson's arrest.

Judge Cutting heard the case this morning and finally decided to place the cows on their good behavior until Dec. 4. If there is no more trouble the case will be dismissed, but if more complaints are heard, Mr. Olson will have to dispose of his cows or pay a fine.

GIVEN HER FREEDOM.

Bessie Davis Released and Leaves the City.

The woman was implicated in the case against W. L. Wright, and was being held with Wright on a statutory charge. Wright was yesterday sentenced to ninety days in the county jail for non-support, and the Davis woman was released on the understanding she leave the city. The evidence in the case against her is said to have been conflicting and will not be pushed.

Tropical Fruit That Preserves Youth

Wonderful Cure for Chronic Constipation, Lost Power, Kidney Disease, Rheumatism, etc., Found in Tropical Fruits.

A truly wonderful discovery has been made in medical science which every chronically constipated, weak, nerve-broken, run-down man or woman, and victim of kidney disease or rheumatism should know about, particularly as the cure is so easy to obtain, and its effect so quick, so nerve-stimulating and so satisfying.

Hardly any man or woman need now complain of the terrible effects of chronic constipation and loss of nerve-force, with this cure at hand. It has been the lack of such a remedy which has caused heretofore such unhappiness and real misery among men and women who have found themselves suddenly deserted of their former youthful vigor and health. Nine times in ten it is not old age, but simply weakness of the nerves and lack of sufficient nerve tissue, which causes loss of power and vigor.

Once the nerves are made strong, the natural vigor should continue even into advanced old age.

Here is a simple home remedy which we recommend most highly to all our readers for building up lost nerve-force. Its results have proven as marvelous as its ingredients are simple. Anyone can mix this remedy at home:

Mix one ounce of Obifrut Compound Extract with seven ounces of port wine or unfermented grape juice. Of this mixture, take a dessertspoonful three or four times a day after each meal and at bedtime.

It will cure you of nerve weakness in almost any stage, chronic constipation, brain-fag, loss of courage, nervous prostration, kidney disease, weak back, and insomnia, and is an almost sure preventive of disease when constantly and persistently taken.

Nearly every drug store will supply you with Obifrut Compound Extract, and port wine or unfermented grape juice.

ALL SAINTS' DAY COMING

Duluth Children Are Preparing for Hallowe'en Celebration.

A Night of Freedom and License for the Boys.

"No, Sarah, you cannot go out upon Hallowe'en. I can't help it if Margaret and Dorothy and Louise and Katherine and Jane and all the other little girls in town are going. You can't go. Because you can't. It isn't nice for girls to go out Hallowe'en. I don't know why, but it isn't. That will do now, you're not going, and that settles the matter. It's different with boys. I don't know why it is, but it is. I don't care if you won't move a step off the porch, you're not going out. You can bob for apples in the house. Very well, then, you may go to bed if you won't bob for apples. I've heard every word I intend to listen to from you. You are not going. Do I make myself clear? I'm sorry if you can't see the reason. Maybe you will when you get older. Well, I can't help whether you want to get older or not, you will, and then you will be glad that I had sense enough to keep you in the house. The subject is exhausted, my dear; we will talk of something else. As I said before, you cannot go out."

Such is the motherly part of dialogues that are going on in every house in Duluth where there is a girl of tender years, who longs for the freedom and license that is given with free hand to the youths of the city next Wednesday evening.

With her son a mother adopts different tactics. After a week of gentle, but quite spirited discussion on both sides, it ends almost invariably with a helpless, "Well, all right. You may go between 7 and 8 if you will not ring any door bells, nor use a peashooter, nor carry off gates, nor any of those awful things."

"No'm, I won't," promises the heedless youth.

That time, which makes boys glory in the liberty of their sex, and makes girls kick unoffending chairs, and later press their noses flat against the windows which bar them from the beautiful license of the out of doors, while tears of rage quietly trickle down their disappointed cheeks; that time when mothers pray fearfully for the protection of their courageous young ones, is almost here.

HIT BY COAL BUCKET.

Workman Sustains Serious Injuries to His Back.

Gus Anderson, employed by the Pittsburg Coal company, was seriously injured this morning while at work on the Ohio docks.

GENERAL BOOTH SICK; MAY FORGIVE HIS SON.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—A bedside reconciliation between General William Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, who is ill here, and his estranged son, General Ballington Booth, commander-in-chief of the seceding Volunteers of America, may take place at the home of Commissioner Kilby in Chicago. Father and son have not passed a word of greeting for four years. Last night Ballington Booth, in New York, broke silence long enough to say that, if sent for, he would come.

General Booth's attending physician, Dr. Oscar Cliff, called in Dr. Frank K. Billings for consultation. Dr. Cleff's diagnosis of gastros enteritis, a feverish inflammation of the mucous membrances of the stomach, was confirmed.

It was said that under no circumstances could he arise from his bed for several days to come at least, although hope for recovery was extended.

In most cases consumption results from a neglected or improperly treated cold. Foley's Honey and Tar cures the most obstinate coughs and prevents serious results. It costs you no more than the unknown preparations and you should insist upon having the genuine in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

Too Expensive!

RECONSIDER THE TAX LEVY

Conference Commission May Make Cut in City Figures.

An important meeting of the conference committee is being held this afternoon in the mayor's office for the purpose of reconsidering the tax levy question. The statement from County Auditor Halden to the effect that he could hold up the tax levy for a time in order to give the conference committee an opportunity to go over it at length, and, if possible, make reductions, was published in The Herald, and it is understood that there have been many protests since that time from prominent taxpayers.

The Standard Oil Company Purchases Property in Oneota.

Will Remove Old Structure From the Harbor Front.

Plans and specifications for the construction of the new warehouse to be erected by the Standard Oil company are almost completed and will be submitted to the proper city officials at a very early date. The company has acquired a lot on Oneota street, between Thirty-ninth and Fortieth avenues west, and upon the submission and approval of the plans, the erection of the proposed plant will begin.

W. T. Lang, local manager for the Standard Oil company, says that the officials of the company desire to work in harmony with the building inspector and other officials on the proposed plans, and that any suggestions that may be made by the city officials will be incorporated in the specifications of the new warehouse.

It only requires a final approval of the plans by certain company officials before they will be submitted for approval to the building inspector. The plans call for the erection of a thoroughly modern warehouse on the site acquired by the company.

FIVE ENLISTED FOR THE NAVY

Recruiters Are Getting Some of Returning Harvest Hands.

Lieut. Jesse B. Gay, in charge of the naval recruiting offices of Minnesota, came up to Duluth from Minneapolis this morning for the purpose of enlisting five men who had been secured during the last few days by the local recruiters. Dr. Bogan, medical officer, accompanied him.

The five who were enlisted were Henry L. Deguir of Duluth, Clarence W. Zimmer of Syracuse, N. Y.; Claude A. Barteau, Bay City, Mich.; Henry J. Holappa of Chassell, Mich; Edward Gardner of Windom, Minn. All enlisted for the service as apprentice seamen, and they will be sent to San Francisco direct. The new men will receive their training at San Francisco and will be ready to go on the big Atlantic squadron when it reaches the Pacific coast next spring.

The recruiting business at the Head of the Lakes is picking up rapidly. Harvest hands are coming in from the West and each of the recruiting offices at Duluth managed to get a few of them for Uncle Sam's forces.

Yesterday the marine recruiters sent out eight new men to Mare Island, and the army station is doing better than for several months.

COPPER SHARES WEAK ALL THROUGH SESSION

Open Lower and Continue to Fall Under Hammering.

New York Market Conditions Have a Bad Effect.

Copper stocks opened several points under yesterday's close and remained weak during all of the session of the market today. The financial tangles in New York caused a depression and many of the leading issues lost several points during the day.

The bears have been hammering Greene-Cananea for several days now. There has been a tremendous amount of selling in this stock. It opened today at $6.25, advanced to $6.37½, declined to $5.87½ and closed at $5.87½ bid and $6 asked.

North Butte opened lower at $35, advanced to $35.50, declined to $33 and closed at $33.25 bid and $33.50 asked. Amalgamated opened at $44, went to $45.50, slumped to $43.87½ and rallied to $45.62½, the high price of the day just before the close, which was $45.50 bid. However, this price shows a loss of about two points from yesterday.

Butte Coalition opened at $11.37½, declined to $11, rallied to $11.37½ and closed at $11.12½ bid and $11.37½ asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $95, declined to $92 and closed at $92 bid and $94 asked. Anaconda opened at $28, sold off to $26 and closed at $26 bid.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $8.12½, declined to $7.87½, but became firmer, rallying to $8.25. The close was $7.87½ bid and $8 asked.

Denn-Arizona sold at $3.25 and $3, and closed at $3 bid and $3.25 asked, and Globe Consolidated closed at $3.87½ bid and $4 asked, after selling at $3.75, as low as $3.62½ and at $4.

Carman sold at $2.37½ and closed at $2.25 bid and $2.50 asked, Butte & Superior at $1.25 and closed at $1.12½ bid and $1.25 asked, Calumet & Sonora at $5.25 and closed at $5.25 bid and $5.50 asked and Copper Queen of Idaho at 80 cents and closed at 75 cents and 80 cents asked.

Keweenaw was inactive and closed at $4.50 bid and $4.75 asked, Hancock $4.50 bid and $4.75 asked, Nipissing $5.75 bid and $6 asked, Warren at $3 bid and $3.50 asked and Cliff at $1 bid and $1.06 asked.

Black Mountain sold at $5 and $4.87½ and closed at $4.62½ bid and $4.75 asked.

PRESIDENT STANDS PAT

Will Continue His Policy of Exposing Wrongdoing.

Executive Delivers a Stirring Speech at Nashville.

"I will permit neither demagogue upon one side nor the reactionary on the other to drive me away from the course or policy which I regard most vital for the well being of this nation. And the thing most important to remember is that that policy has two sides. It would indeed be an evil day for this nation, it would indeed mean the beginning of the end of our nation's greatness if we ever permitted in this republic to grow up a spirit which would discriminate against the honest man who achieves business success. There is nothing baser and meaner than the hatred of the men who prosper honestly, simply because he has prospered. The honest railroad man, the honest banker, and the honest business man, the man who makes a fortune because his exceptional business ability enables him to render exceptional service to the community should receive the amplest protection and be safeguarded against all injustice. If there ever should be any temporary gusts of popular feeling that demand what is wrong, what is uprighteous, then the true servant of the people, the man who truly serves the interests of the people, is the man who disregard that temporary wish of the people to do evil. (Great applause.)

"No man will stand more strongly than I will in the defense of property, so long as it is honestly acquired, and honestly used. (Cheers). I will stand against the poor man if he does wrong, just as I will stand against the rich man if he does wrong. I will stand against crimes of brutal violence just as I stand against crimes of unscrupulous cunning. A crime is a crime, and it makes no difference whether the wrong is perpetrated by plutocracy or by a mob; by a capitalist or by a wageworker. There are certain great men who have affected to misunderstand my position on that point, and to say that I have talked against men of wealth as such; that I have incited attacks upon the class that owns great wealth. Those genetlemen are blind if they see facts in that light. I will protect every way in my power honest property, I will protect the honest man of wealth to the extent of my ability, and in no way can I ultimately protect the honest man of wealth so effectively as by doing everything in my power to bring to justice his dishonest brother of wealth. (Great applause).

"It is a difficult matter to punish the crimes of unscrupulous cunning committed by men of great wealth. It is a difficult matter to punish, as he should be punished, the man who is at the head of a great business concern, or at the head of a great railway, who does wrong to the whole body politic by mismanagement of that policy; it is difficult, because as yet we hardly have proper laws, and still more because the people themselves, through their representatives and personally, do not yet fully realize how enormous the crimes are which are committed in this fashion. The man who builds a railroad where it is needed, and runs it honestly, is a benefactor. We should back him up, and protect him against unjust attacks. The man who manipulates the securities of that railroad, so as to swindle the outside public, or the stockholders, or the investors of many kinds or shippers, to swindle the people at large, that man is doing all that he can to bring down in ruin the fabric of our institutions; and it is our business to set our faces like flint against his wrongdoing, to war to undo that we can, in the interest of the people, and primarily in the interest of the honest man of means. (Applause).

"Remember this, that atonement in this world is largely vicarious; that if we sit supine and let men of great wealth set before the country as a whole the standard of successful dishonesty, so that young men are taught to think of business trickery, of evasion and violation of the law, of stock gambling and swindling as the chief roads to financial success, that if we should let such a state of affairs exist, not only do we bring about a determination of the public conscience as a whole, but as sure as fate we ultimately invite ignorant and vile reaction which in trampling out the wrong will trample out each right at the same time; which in punishing the wealthy wrongdoer will inflict the punishment so brutally and so unskillful as to confound it in many men who have done honestly and well. I want to see the process, the process in gaining wealth by successful dishonesty stopped before it goes so far as to invite the very reaction of which I speak. And the man of property, the man of great means, will do well to turn and in the loftiest way back up a national movement for reform; a rational movement for such supervision and control over the use, over the accumulation and business use of these great fortunes as will, if not eliminate, at least minimize the evil of which I complain. Such a movement in which we are now engaged is not in the least undertaken with any vindictive purpose. It is undertaken to cure evils and to prevent their recurrence.

"If the beneficiaries of these evils succeed, which they will not do, but if they did succeed in stopping the movement it will merely mean that in a very few years it would break forth again and that in time it would be in the control of men who would legislate with a vindictive purpose, who would legislate and act as executives with the desire to hurt and damage the men at whom the movement was not aimed. There is no movement in its proper sense that can more properly be described as conservative, using the word with its real significance, than the movement which we have developed during the past four or five years, the movement for the proper supervision and control in the interest of the general public of those collossal fortunes, which singly, or in combination, are of such tremendous importance in the modern industrial world; to control and supervise them that in their accumulation and their business use there shall be as far as we can prevent it, no wrong-doing to the small man whether that small man is a competitor and an aged worker or investor. In other words, gentlemen, our whole movement is simply and solely to make the decalogue and the golden rule of some practical movement in the business life of the community." (Great applause and cheers.)

VERY GOOD, IF YOU NEED IT

Says This Helpful Mixture Should be Used Promptly

A well-known authority states that Backache and pains in the loins are only too often the danger signals which notify the patient that something is wrong with the Kidneys, and warns every one to be careful, particularly at this period of the year, when the skin pores are closed, forcing the Kidneys to do double their work of filtering the impurities and poisons from the blood and system.

At the first sign of Backache or pain in the region of the Kidneys, or weakness and Urinary trouble, the following simple recipe should be used. Any on can easily prepare it:

Any good prescription pharmacy will supply these ingredients at small cost, which can easily be mixed by shaking well in a bottle. Few people seem to know the value of these common remedies in the treatment of the kidneys. This simple prescription, when taken as directed, will regulate the urine, clear up and remove sediment, overcome back pains and cleanse the entire kidney structure, correcting bladder troubles in just a little while.

MUST STAY IN ST. PAUL

Attorney General Cannot Leave City Until Appeal is Decided.

St. Paul, Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the next week or so, or until the supreme court has either affirmed or disapproved of the fine for contempt, imposed by Judge Loohren of the federal district court, Attorney General Young will have to confine his residence to St. Paul.

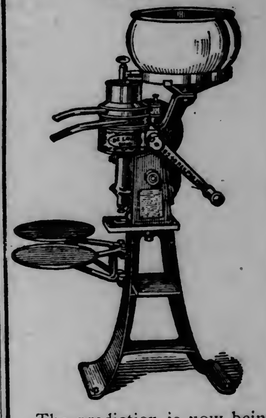

Because of this fact, Mr. Young has been compelled to cancel his engagement with the Anti-Trust league gathering at Chicago, where he was scheduled to make one of the principal addresses. He had prepared his speech, but it will not be delivered.

Fifty-two square miles, St. Paul's corporate area, is Mr. Young's only stamping ground for the present, and he will have to confine himself to it until the contempt matter is settled. He may not even visit his home at Appleton, though if occasion demands it, the court will probably give permission.

Assistant Attorney General George T. Simpson and T. D. O'Brien, special counsel, left last night for Washington, D. C. They will at once make application for a writ of habeas corpus.

50c BUTTER THIS WINTER! HOW MUCH WILL YOU HAVE TO SELL?

The prediction is now being made that butter will be retailing in the cities this coming winter at 50 cents per pound. It is now selling around 40 cents, which makes the 50-cent price later on seem almost a dead certainty. Surely, this is the cow owners' harvest time and equally sure is it that the man who does not use a centrifugal cream separator will lose from one-third to one-half the harvest these high butter prices offer him. Buy your separator now and be prepared to wring every last penny from your cows' milk. Don't let the pigs and calves have from 30 to 50 per cent of all your butter, as they are sure to get this much if you use the old gravity setting process. They don't need the butter, for they will grow just as strong and fat on the warm separator skim milk with a little corn meal or other grain substitute that is a whole lot cheaper than butter. Buy your separator at once and watch the dollars roll in a little later.

You pay us $10.00 cash and let the machine pay the rest.

TIGHT MONEY SENDS GRAIN PRICES TUMBLING

American Markets Are Demoralized by Lack of Buyers.

Wheat and Flax Suffer Heavy Losses During Day.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 22.—Tight money and a demoralization of the New York stock market sent grain prices tumbling in all the American markets today, and Duluth was no exception to the general rule.

There seemed to be no buyers for the grain—not because they hesitated to pay the price, but because they did not have the ready money. The condition of the market was reflected in the quotation on grain in store. On Saturday wheat in store was selling at 1½ cents over the December option. Today it was quoted at ½ cent under the December option, a relative loss of 2 cents in two days.

The big brewers and other heavy buyers stood out from under the barley market for the same reason. They are anxious and ready to buy their supplies of barley, but lack of ready money keeps them out of the market, and barley today sagged again.

Receipts of grain at the local elevators have been very heavy during the last forty-eight hours. 1,148,000 bushels of all kinds having been received. Of this amount there were 601,000 bushels of wheat, 292,000 bushels of flax and 211,000 bushels of oats.

Receipts were liberal and the world's visible supply of wheat showed an increase, which helped bear prices down. The opening prices were more than a point off and the selling continued without interruption during the session.

Liverpool closed 1⅞d to 2d lower, Berlin 1c lower and Budapest unchanged.

The December option closed 4c lower in Duluth, 3¾c in Chicago, 3⅝-4c in Minneapolis, 2⅞c in New York and 3c in Winnipeg. The May option closed 3⅜c lower in Duluth, 2⅝c in Chicago and Winnipeg, 2⅞-3c in Minneapolis and 2⅜c in New York.

December corn closed 2c lower in Chicago and was 1⅝d lower in Liverpool. December oats closed 1⅜ c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cables from Liverpool:

"Easiness with the liberal selling pressure characterized the early dealings in wheat, and at the opening values were 1d to 1½d lower. Weakness in America yesterday, together with the continuance of favorable climatic conditions in Argentina and heavy American receipts, prompted yesterday's early buyers to sell freely. At this level the leading bull interests supported the market and a slight recovery took place, with a steady undertone. At mid-day, however, further pressure developed and an additional decline of ⅝d to ¾d took place on the unconfirmed rumors of rain in India.

"Corn was weak. At the opening values were ½d to ¾d lower. During the morning a further decline of ⅝ to ⅝d occurred, due to the weaker American cables yesterday, larger and cheaper offerings and lack of support. Spot wheat was neglected ½d to 1d lower. Corn was quiet, ½ to 1d lower."

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,263,000 bus., last year, 1,227,000 bus. Shipments, 648,000 bus., last year, 530,000. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 477,000 bus.

Bradstreet's report an increase of 4,103,000 bus., in the world's visible supply of wheat. East of the Rockies there was an increase of 747,000 bus., in Canada, an increase of 2,150,000 and in Europe and afloat, an increase of 1,266,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 734,000 bus., last year, 614,000 bus. Shipments, 856,000 bus., last year, 826,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 266,767 bus.

Wheat was active during the session today. Offerings were liberal and while they were fairly well taken care of, the market sold lower and lower during the day. Trading was lively at all times. December wheat opened 1⅝c lower at $1.07⅞, declined to $1.06⅞, rallied to $1.07¾, went off to $1.06⅝, rallied to $1.06⅞-1.07, slumped to $1.05¾, rallied to $1.06 and closed at $1.06⅛, a loss of 4c from yesterday. May wheat opened 1¾c lower at $1.12⅛, declined to $1.11⅞, rallied to $1.12¾, went off to $1.10⅝, rallied to $1.11 and closed at $1.10⅝, a loss of ⅜c from yesterday.

Flax was active during the day, opening strong, and declining steadily after the first hour, making a most sensational slump. Receipts of flax were big. October flax opened ¼c higher at $1.28, declined to $1.26¼, rallied to $1.27, dropped 5 points to $1.22, rallied to $1.22¼ and closed at $1.21⅜, a loss of 6c from yesterday. November flax opened ¼c higher at $1.28, declined to $1.20½, rallied to $1.27¾, went off to $1.22¾, rallied to $1.23½ and closed at $1.22, a loss of 5¾c from yesterday. December flax opened ¼c higher at $1.28, declined to $1.26½, rallied to $1.27¾, went off to $1.22¾, rallied to $1.23½ and closed at $1.22, a loss of 5¾c from yesterday.

Wheat was active during the session today. Offerings were liberal and while they were fairly well taken care of, the market sold lower and lower during the day. Trading was lively at all times. December wheat opened 1⅝c lower at $1.07⅞, declined to $1.06⅞, rallied to $1.07¾, went off to $1.06⅝, rallied to $1.06⅞-1.07, slumped to $1.05¾, rallied to $1.06 and closed at $1.06⅛, a loss of 4c from yesterday. May wheat opened 1¾c lower at $1.12⅛, declined to $1.11⅞, rallied to $1.12¾, went off to $1.10⅝, rallied to $1.11 and closed at $1.10⅝, a loss of ⅜c from yesterday.

Flax was active during the day, opening strong, and declining steadily after the first hour, making a most sensational slump. Receipts of flax were big. October flax opened ¼c higher at $1.28, declined to $1.26¼, rallied to $1.27, dropped 5 points to $1.22, rallied to $1.22¼ and closed at $1.21⅜, a loss of 6c from yesterday. November flax opened ¼c higher at $1.28, declined to $1.20½, rallied to $1.27¾, went off to $1.22¾, rallied to $1.23½ and closed at $1.22, a loss of 5¾c from yesterday. December flax opened ¼c higher at $1.28, declined to $1.26½, rallied to $1.27¾, went off to $1.22¾, rallied to $1.23½ and closed at $1.22, a loss of 5¾c from yesterday.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Weak, Nearly 2 Cents Lower Than Monday's Close.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Wheat today opened very weak and nearly 2c lower than yesterday's close. A break at Liverpool and the weakness of Wall street were the depressing factors. December opened 1¾c to 1⅞c lower, at $1.01 to $1.01¾ and sold at $1.00⅝@¾. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 886 cars against 1,092 cars last week and 917 cars one year ago.

The low point for December wheat was 99½c. The close was very weak, with December 2¼c lower, at 99⅝c.

The corn market opened very weak, partly on account of the break in wheat and partly on account of the decline at Liverpool. The weather conditions were favorable for the new crop. December opened ⅝c to ¾c lower at 58⅛c to 59c and sold at 58¼c. Local receipts were 473 cars with 143 of contract grade.

Oats opened quiet and weak in sympathy with the break in wheat and corn. December opened ⅝c lower, at 52¼c and sold off to ½c. Local receipts were 378 cars.

The provisions market was fairly active and weak. January pork was off 2½c to 27½c at $15.15 to $15.20; lard was down 2½c to 7½c at $8.80@8.85. Ribs were 5c to 10c lower, at $7.82½ to $7.87½.

Wheat—Dec., 99½c; May, 89¼c. Corn—Dec., 57⅜c; May, 59¼c. Oats—Dec., 51¼c; May, 53⅞@54c. Pork—Jan., $14.80; May, $15.20. Lard—Jan., $8.70; May, $8.80. Ribs—Jan., $7.70; May, $7.95. Rye—Cash, 85@86c. Barley—Cash, 85c@$1.03. Clover, flax and timothy, nothing. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.00½@1.02¾; No. 3 red, 98@⅞@$1.01¾; No. 2 hard, $1.00½@1.02¾; No. 3 hard, 98⅛@$1.01⅜; No. 3 spring, $1.02@1.12; No. 1 northern and No. 2 northern, nothing doing.

Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Oct. 22.—The flour market is lower. Millers reduced flour prices on patents twenty cents per barrel. The weakness in wheat continuing a general readjustment to a lower level will follow. The market is not the sort that makes for increased business, buyers looking for a cheaper spot to buy on. Shipments are moderate. Shipments, 47,477 barrels. First patents, $5.70@5.80; second patents, $5.50@5.70; first clears, $4.50@4.60; second clears, $3.70@3.80.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 22.—The cotton market opened easy at an advance of 6 points on October, while later months were 4 to 13 points lower, under liquidation and bear pressure, after selling off to a net loss of 9@13 points on the active months, with January and later positions making new low records, the market rallied slightly on covering.

Futures closed steady; closing bids: Oct., 10.77; Nov. 10.78; Dec., 10.88; Jan., 10.48; Feb., 10.50; March, 10.50; April, 10.52; May, 10.55; June, 10.60; July, 10.52; August, 10.45.

EXTENSIVE RALLY IN STOCKS IN FINAL HOUR

When Uncovered Bears Bought on an Extensive Scale.

Early Part of Session Marked by Heavy Selling.

New York, Oct. 22.—The stock market opened in great disorder and at wide declines in prices under a heavy unloading of stocks in all parts of the list. Losses in the principal active stocks were quite uniform between 2 and 3 points. In excess of that declines were: Reading, 4¼, Canadian Pacific 3¾, Union Pacific, 3½, Amalgamated Copper, 3¼ and Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Delaware & Hudson and American Ice about 3 points. There was a handful of isolated gains in contrast to the prevailing slump, American Car preferred rising 1½ and Sloss-Sheffield Steel 1.

The decline was stopped momentarily when the supporting orders were executed, Amalgamated Copper rallying 2 and a dozen or more stocks from 1 to 1½. Large sales were then made of the United States Steel stocks and the market receded again but did not reach the low point. Another rebound in prices occurred but the market showed the effects of continuous liquidation in spots and was hovering around the low points at 11 o'clock. New York Central was sold extensively and touched 98. Lackawanna dropped 10, Westinghouse Electric 5, Delaware & Hudson 3¾, Northern Pacific, 4; New York Central, 3¼; St. Paul and Consolidated Gas, 3; Atlantic Coast Line and United States Steel preferred 2½. Pullman exceptionally gained 2 and Corn Products preferred 1½.

Liquidation continued intermittently in heavy volumes through the morning. This selling developed supporting orders on a scale downwards, which regulated the rate of the decline. There were very wide drops in prices between sales. The fall in prices, however, was violent. In Northern Pacific it reached 7 points, Delaware & Hudson, 6¾; American Ice, Westinghouse Electric, Union Pacific and Reading preferred, General Electric, 5½; Illinois Central and American Smelting, 5; Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha and Southern Pacific, 4¾; St. Paul, 4½; Great Northern preferred, 4 and Louisville & Nashville, Atlantic Coast Line, Northwestern, United States Steel preferred and the National Lead stocks 3 to 3¾. Bonds were weak.

The first spasm of liquidation was precipitated by the announcement that the Knickerbocker Trust company had temporarily discontinued paying out cash to depositors because it was unable to secure sufficient currency to meet the demand. Calling of loans evidently played a part in the forced selling and the money rate ran up to 50 per cent. Northern Pacific was carried down 8, Reading 7¾, Union Pacific, 7½, St. Paul, 6½, General Electric, 7, Southern Pacific, 6; Manhattan, 5¼; Great Northern preferred and Metropolitan Street Railway, 5; Canadian Pacific and Atchison 4½ and Pennsylvania and People's Gas 3½. There were feverish rallies of a point or more at one o'clock.

The market became much quieter after the spell of liquidation prompted by the closing of the doors of the Knickerboker Trust company had spent its force. Rallies of between 1 and 2 points followed. A feature was a sale of 100 shares of Westinghouse Electric at 72 following a sale at 97 earlier in the day and compared with 103 yesterday. New York, Chicago and St. Paul second preferred declined 19 and Knickerbocker Ice, 21½. There was a fall of 8 points in General Electric, 7 in American Locomotive preferred and Consolidated Gas, 6, in Wisconsin Central preferred 5¼ in People's Gas and 5 in Union Pacific preferred and Brooklyn Rapid Transit.

The market closed generally firm at the rally. The most extensive rally of the day occurred in the final hour, when uncovered bears bought on an extensive scale. Delaware & Hudson had sold 10 under last night, Union Pacific 8⅝, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie 5½, St. Paul 7¼, Great Northern preferred 6½ and Atchison 5⅜. The rally ran from 2 to 4 points where the losses had been most severe. The Knickerbocker Ice fell another 10 points to 31½ below the price previous to today. There were a few renewed breaks in the late dealings.

Stock Gossip.

New York, Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The unsatisfactory developments in the New York banking circles caused considerable apprehension. Liquidation and covering by shorts were noticeable. It would sem that the stock market is passing through a vigorous house cleaning process. Public confidence has been undermined to such an extent that the buying power of the market is mostly confined to the demands of the short interest. Toward the close the market enjoyed a substantial recovery due to shorts covering.

New York to Walter W. Carr: The downward procession was started again in London this morning, Amalgamated being off $4 per share when our market opened, causing a wild selling movement, which continued most of the day and went to new low levels in all directions.

The standard rails were hit the hardest. Coppers were very weak in sympathy with New York, although the pressure was not so great in the better class of coppers. The decline, however, extended from 1 to 3 points against 5 to 8 points in New York.

After yesterday's reassuring statements it was thought a rally was due, but the banking situation is in such an unsettled state that confidence is lost entirely and it will take some time and some large weeding out to get the public's confidence back, and until that time there is not much to be looked for.

New York Money.

New York, Oct. 22.—Close: Money on call excited and strong 6@7 per cent; ruling rate, 4¼@5; last loan, 6; no closing bid, offered at 25. Time loans nominal; 60 days, 6½ per cent bid and 80 days, 6½ per cent bid; 6 months, 6 per cent bid. Prime mercantile paper, 7@7½ per cent. Sterling exchange heavy with actual business in bankers bills at $4.85.25@4.85.3 for demand at $4.81@4.81.05 for 60-day bills; $4.80½. Bar silver, 61½c. Mexican dollars, 48⅝c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds weak.

STREET CARS.
NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point, and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.

The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passenger safely between points on the above mentioned lines.

This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has no better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and, therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.

SEASON FOR DEER SOON

Hunters Look Forward to the Opening Nov. 10.

Deer Reported Plentiful and Successful Season is Reported.

Duluth hunters are dragging their rifles out of retirement and shining and priming them up preparatory to invading the woods of Northern Minnesota in quest of big game. In less than three weeks, the season for deer and moose will open. There isn't much danger of many hunters adding moose heads to their collection of trophies of the chase, but every day will be after a deer and some will get them.

The season will open Sunday this year and hunters will lose no time. Nov. 9 will see an exodus to the Northern woods and the deer whose haunts will not be invaded by the blood-thirsty crew is indeed a lucky animal. Shotguns will be laid away and partridge and chicken will wing their way unmolested by the great body of hunters, but deer tracks will be anxiously watched for and just as anxiously followed.

Fair success should attend the efforts of the hunters this year. Last year the early fall of heavy snow followed by warm weather during the hunting season and consequent slush and mud made hunting in the Northern Minnesota woods a hardship, and the army of hunters was not as great as it usually is. This year, however, with good weather, those who did not go last year will not miss another season. Reports from the woods indicate that deer are plentiful in the most frequented hunting spots, and the hunters are looking forward to good sport.

The game wardens are on a close watch for violators of the laws. Reports of game being killed by woodsmen and people in camps have stirred them to activity, and they are bent on preventing the diminishing of the game supply in that manner. Wolves are creating havoc in the woods also, but even with those forces working against them, the deer are reported to be plentiful.

Dainty people with delicate tastes will find that the most delicious viands can be produced always with Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder and Extracts.

CAVERLY CASES OVER.

Two Actions for Assault Continued to November Term.

Two actions for assault against J. B. Caverly, proprietor of the Esmond hotel, were to have been heard today, but owing to the absence of the defendant's attorney, a continuance was taken to Nov. 4. Caverly is defendant in two actions, one brought by Hildah Woldman, formerly a domestic in the hotel, and one by Otto Pearson, a young man who claims he was handled roughly by the defendant when he called at the hotel on a Sunday afternoon recently.

FOR OVER-DRIVING HORSE.

Arguments Made in Tierney Case in Municipal Court.

The action against Pat Tierney, charged with overdriving a lame horse, occupied the attention of municipal court today.

The case was continued from the last term, and is being heard by a jury.

Evidence was introduced to show that the animal was lame for some time, and that it has improved under Tierney's care, rather than grown worse.

Several witnesses are being examined, and the arguments will be made late today. Tierney has resided in the city for some years.

THE EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH HAS BAD NIGHT.

Vienna, Oct. 22.—Emperor Francis Joseph did not pass a good night owing to frequent attacks of coughing. He arose before 4 o'clock and was examined by his doctors, who found that the catarrhal symptoms were unchanged, that there had not been sufficient expectoration and that his strength was less satisfactory than yesterday, but he was not suffering from fever. In brief, his malady is pursuing an irregular fluctuating course. After the doctors' examination the emperor attended to his regular work as usual.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR LICENSE TO SELL, MORTGAGE OR LEASE LAND—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. In Probate Court.

The petition of Elizabeth Ashton Wilson as representative of the above named estate, having been filed in this court, representing, among other things, that for reasons stated in said petition, it is necessary and for the best interest of the estate of said J. Hubley Ashton and of all persons interested therein, to sell certain lands of said estate in said petition described, and praying that license be to her granted to sell the said lands.

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth in said County on Monday the 4th day of November, 1907, at ten o'clock, A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in the Duluth Evening Herald according to law.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., October 7th, 1907.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY!

Goes further than the table. There are a dozen other places where waste comes in to dissipate your bank account.

Perhaps you have discarded the old coal range for a gas range and have the old one stored away in the cellar or attic. It's worth some price to someone.

You might better have the cash for which it will sell than have it rusting to absolute worthlessness and always in your way.

It's the same way with a dozen other discarded articles lying about the house. Turn them into money—save the waste.

A Herald want ad. will find the purchaser. It has for many other people. Why not for you! The price is one cent a word.

If you don't have time to call at The Herald office, tell your want over the 'phone—

BIG GERMAN BALLOON REACHES THE ATLANTIC AND HAS TO DESCEND

The Pommern Comes to Earth at Asbury Park, N. J.

The American Balloon, United States, Lands in Canada.

Others Are Coming Down in Widely Separated Localities.

W. W. BEATTIE,

Asbury Park, N. J., Oct. 23.—The German balloon Pommern, from St. Louis, Mo., landed here about 9 a. m. today.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23.—Reports from various sources indicate that three of the balloons which left St. Louis, Mo., Monday afternoon passed over this city between 6:45 a. m. and 7:10 o'clock this morning. One was positively identified as the German balloon Pommern. Another was identified as the English balloon Lotus II. A note dropped from the German balloon and picked up by a man on his way to work reads:

"Am 8,000 feet in the air and have traveled 1,000 miles. Am trying to make Atlantic City."

The third balloon was not identified. All were traveling in a northeasterly direction, and unless they meet with some accident they will land on the coast within a few hours.

Washington, Oct. 23.—A balloon described as a very bright pink passed over Rockville, Md., sixteen miles from this city at daylight today. It was

CIVIC FEDERATION

Hears Papers on the Construction and Regulation of Corporations.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—The second day of the convention of the National Civic Federation was devoted to the consideration of the corporation, its construction and regulation.

The chief speakers on the program and the subjects they discussed were as follows:

J. W. Jenks, Cornell university, "The Trust Situation;" Edgar A. Bancroft, Chicago, "Destructive Versus Regulative Legislation;" Isaac N. Seligman, New York, "The Trust Problem;" Irving Fisher, New Haven "Overcapitalization."

In the afternoon the principal speakers were Judge Grosscup of Chicago, who discussed "The Construction of a Corporation;" Samuel Gompers, Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul, and E. E. Prussing of Chicago.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

State Council Organized by Members in North Dakota.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A state council of the Knights of Columbus was organized here Sunday with the following officers: State treasurer, George W. Morrow, Minot; state deputy, C. H. Anheier, Fargo; state secretary, B. F. Brockhoff, Grand Forks; state advocate, T. D. Casey, Grafton; state warden, J. E. McKoane, Minot; state chaplain, Rev. Thomas Egan, Fargo.

Other matters of business were transacted, and the next meeting will be held in Fargo next May.

LAWYER A BIGAMIST.

Technicalities Could Not Longer Prevent Conviction of Wurtsbaugh.

Pocahontas, Iowa, Oct. 23.—J. D. Wurtsbaugh, one of the best known attorneys in this section, has been found guilty of bigamy and sentenced to the penitentiary for two years.

The case has been hanging fire several years. Up to the present term Wurtsbaugh escaped trial on technicalities. He has lived in Fonda about ten years. The county bar has started disbarment proceedings. Wurtsbaugh says he will appeal to the supreme court.

OPEN AIR MEETINGS ARE FORBIDDEN IN HAVANA.

Havana, Oct. 23.—In order to minimize the chances for disorder, and to prevent the coercion of men who are willing to work in the places of strikers, the mayor of Havana has forbidden open air meetings, and authorized the railway companies to employ armed guards to protect their workmen. Reinforcements of policemen now guarding buildings under construction, being fearful that the strikers may attack the non-union masons, or damage the buildings.

CONVALESCENCE OF THE EMPEROR BEGINS.

Vienna, Oct. 23.—Everything this morning points to a decided improvement in the health of Emperor Francis Joseph. His attending physicians admit that convalescence has begun. During the early part of the day the emperor signed state documents with a firm hand.

DIRIGIBLE BALLOONS

Will be the Next to Compete in Aeronautic Carnival.

Four Motor Propelled Airships Entered in Race for $2,000.

St. Louis, Oct. 23.—With favorable weather conditions prevailing late this afternoon, the St. Louis Aeronautic carnival of 1907 will be brought to a close today. The important event on the program is the race for dirigible balloons or airships, with four of the big motor propelled, cigar-shaped craft entered for the prize of $2,000. There will also be various aeroplane contests and exhibitions during the afternoon. The latter events were planned for Thursday, but it has been decided to combine the flying machine groups into one day's sport. The dirigibles entered in today's contest represent the latest ideas of American inventors. The race is to be watched by Brig. Gen. James Allen, chief of the signal corps, United States army, and other prominent army officers. The dirigible balloon, as an implement of war, is recognized by most of the European powers, England being the last to take up the fascinating study of the mastery of the air.

It is the plan to send all four of

BARKER'S NEW PLAY BARRED BY CENSOR.

London, Oct. 23.—J. H. Radford, London's censor of plays, who has autocratic power from which there is no appeal and who need give no reason for his decision, will not permit Granville Barker's play, "Waste," to be produced here. As a result of this latest decision by Radford, a petition, signed by every well known playwright in London, is about to be presented to the government asking that the censorship of plays be abolished, and that the playwrights and theatrical managers be left to the wrath of public opinion if they overstep the bounds of propriety.

Barker, who is a friend and pupil of George Barnardshaw, considers the problems of sex alone worth dramatic treatment, and, pudging from the censor's action, his "Waste" must deal with one of these problems intimately.

Shaw himself is indignant at the treatment the latter's production has received and declares Barker must abandon his whole program at the Savoy theater if the censor persists in objecting to such plays as "Waste."

ENDEAVOR TO PRESENT PLAYS AT WHITE HOUSE.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Charles Frohman is endeavoring to make arrangements whereby the most eminent American actors under his direction may give a series of monthy performances at the White House in one-act plays by the foremost American authors.

For the president and his cabinet to give recognition in this manner to those actors who have achieved pre-eminence in their profession and to the authors who would be invited to produce the plays would, in Mr. Frohman's opinion, be better than a Comedie Francaise for the encouragement of dramatic art. Maud Adams, John Drew, Ethel Barrymore, William Gillette, William Crane and William Collier are actors whom Mr. Frohman would present in plays by authors of the rank of William Gillette, Augustus Thomas and Clyde Fitch.

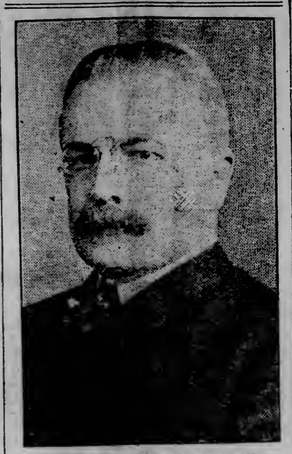

With arrangements perfected for such performances, Mr. Frohman would bring his companies from New York without interfering with any engagements playing in Washington. The plays could be put on in the east room of the White House without much stage setting. Instead of scenery, curtains of different colors would be used.

WESTINGHOUSE COMPANY IN FINANCIAL TROUBLE

Big Electrical Concern is Unable to Secure Funds

To Enable It to Carry On Its Enormous Business.

Orders Are Far Ahead of This Time Last Year.

GEORGE B. CORTELYOU,
Secretary of the Treasury, Whose Presence in New York, With Promises of Aid From the Government, Has Had a Good Effect on the Financial Situation.

Pittsburg, Oct. 23.—Financial circles in Pittsburg received a jolt, temporary it is believed, shortly after the opening of the Pittsburg stock exchange this morning, when announcement was made that, owing to the embarrassment of the Security Investment company, it was thought advieable to close the stock exchange until after a meeting had been held by the members, and the situation had been carefully looked into.

The action seemed entirely unexpected and caused considerable excitement. The officers of the stock exchange took the action at the request of the Pittsburg Clearing House association.

The embarrassment of the Security Investment company affects a number of the Westinghouse interests, and an application will be made some time today for a receiver for the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company, the Westinghouse Machine company and the Nernst Lamp company. The Union Switch & Signal company and the Westinghouse Air Brake company are not involved.

The embarrassment of the Security Investment company, it is said, is only temporary, and is attributed to the inability of the company to secure funds on account of the stringency in the money market.

The amount involved is not known yet, but will be millions of dollars.

"The Security investment company finds itself involved. This will necessitate a temporary suspension or receivership of the Westinghouse Electric company and the Westinghouse Machine company and the Nernst Lamp company. The manufacturing companies are in an absolutely solvent condition. The condition of the Security Investment company will in no way affect the Union Switch & Signal company, and the Westinghouse Air Brake company would like it explicitly understood that it was at the request of the Pittsburg clearing house that we have suspended trading temporarily."

The capitalization of the Westinghouse Electric company is: First preferred stock, $4,000,000; second preferred, authorized, $46,000,000; outstanding, $21,689,650; debenture 5 per cent bonds, 1913, authorized, $3,500,000; outstanding, $2,278,000; convertible sinking fund 5 per cent bonds, 1931, convertible into stock after 191, authorized, $25,000,000; outstanding, $15,000,000.

The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company has more orders on its books than it can comfortably handle, according to statements of officials and bankers conversant with the affairs of the corporation. So much business has been offered that they did not have sufficient capital to handle it. Money has been exceedingly tight, and all corporations and industrials have been having difficulty in securing sufficient capital to handle the enormous business it is possible to secure.

The president of the leading bank said today:

"The Westinghouse Electric company has had the same difficulty as that which other great companies have met. The business of the country has been on an enormous scale. It has been almost unnecessary for the Westinghouse company to look for business, so much was offered.

"Under these conditions the capital of the country has been taxed to its utmost. New money has been scarce. The Westinghouse company has merely overreached itself; tried to do too much business on its available cash. The matter will work out all right, and while it is liable to cause a scare, there is no need for a scare. It might be said that the company is suffering from over-prosperity."

An officer of the company said:

"They talk about laying off men, but I assure you that the output and shipments of the company for this month to date are $200,000 ahead of the same period of last year. We have plenty of orders and business."

The severe decline in Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing second preferred from 54½, on Monday morning, to 36 yesterday, forecasted some important developments. It had been known for several months that the electric company was in need of funds. The failure of the stockholders to take up the $5,000,000 new stock at $75 per share, a few months ago, naturally disarranged the plans of the management for financing its requirements. It had been expected to pay off maturing loans with the proceeds, and the exigencies of the situation in New York prevented the company from making such loans that would carry it over a period of several months. The situation became acute within the past few days, and it is understood that large loans were called, which, when unpaid, were liquidated yesterday.

SAYS PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IS THE CAUSE OF TROUBLE

New York, Oct. 23.—After the doors of the Knickerbocker Trust company were closed yesterday William Turnbull, the fourth vice president, said to several newspaper men:

"All the disturbance in the money market has been caused by one man, who in the past six months in public and private speeches has been gradually undermining the credit system of the country. Last night the Knickerbocker Trust company had assets way in excess of its liabilities, and in one night the confidence of its patrons and its credit were destroyed. This was brought about by one man, and that a man who knew nothing whatever of the credit system."

"You know perfectly well who I mean," replied Mr. Turnbull. "There is no need for me to specify."

CAR JUMPS TRACK, THREE BADLY HURT.

Anderson, Ind., Oct. 23.—An interurban car of the Indaina Union Traction company jumped the track just east of this city last evening, turning completely over, fatally injuring three persons and slightly bruising a score of others. The fatally hurt are:

Mrs. Frank Donovan of Yorktown; Eugenia Williams, a girl 14 years old; Mrs. Charles Walker of Dalesville.

HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE DRAWING OUT FUNDS FROM N. Y. TRUST COMPANIES

The Knickerbocker Trust Company Fails to Reopen Its Doors.

Trust Company of America in Need of Assistance.

Will Probably be Given After Investigation is Completed.

SIR JOHN CHARLES BELL,
New Lord Mayor of London, Who Gets $50,000 a Year Salary and Spends Twice That Amount in Maintaining His Dignity.

New York, Oct. 23.—A heavy run of depositors on the Trust Company of America to withdraw money today served to continue the nervousness brought about by the developments in the Morse-Heinze-Thomas banks last week until the closing of the Knickerbocker Trust company yesterday. The crowd at the doors of the Trust Company of America grew steadily throughout the morning, until at 12:30 it was estimated that there were about 700 persons waiting their turn to reach the paying teller's window. Three paying tellers were at work handing out money and payments were made as rapidly as possible, while at the same time a force of expert accountants were at work looking over the bank's collateral preparatory to making a report to J. Pierpont Morgan, James Stillman of the National City bank and other bankers as to the extent to which it would be advisable and proper to extend aid to the Trust Company of America should the run against that institution become so persistent as to require outside assistance for the company to meet the demands made upon them. At 12:30 it was announced that the committee would require several hours more to finish its report, and also that a meeting of trust company presidents to undertake protective measures had been called to assemble at the time the accountants reported.

The stock market opened excited, weak and lower, but rallied from the low point, and throughout the morning held much firmer than had been expected. Shortly after 12 o'clock, however, there was a renewal of weakness, and the leading shares ran off again sharply. The closing of the Pittsburg stock exchange, and the announcement of the troubles of the Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing company, the Westinghouse Machine company and the Nernst Lamp company, caused a sharp decline in Westinghouse Electric on the New York stock exchange, the shares of that company falling to 41 at 12:30, as against 79⅞ at last night's close.

New York, Oct. 23.—The Knickerbocker Trust company announced to depositors who were waiting at its main office that it would not resume payments today. The announcement was made by a police captain on the authority of the officials of the trust company.

New York, Oct. 23.—Anxiety over the situation that has developed in the trust company and banking situation during the past week continues to cloud the business horizon today, although the nervousness and alarm so noticeable yesterday was considerable lessened by the presence of Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou in the city, and his promise to remain at the subtreasury throughout the day. Mr. Cortelyou's statement, made last night,

THE BODY OF WOMAN

Found in the East River May be Mrs. Hartridge.

Husband Ill and Impossible for Him to Identify It.

New York, Oct. 23.—The body of a woman of refined appearance found yesterday floating in the East river answers in most particulars the description of Mrs. Clifford W. Hartridge, the missing wife of Harry K. Thaw's consuel and friend. The body will be viewed today by a member of the family to determine if it is Mrs. Hartridge.

Mrs. Leslie W. Russell, the missing woman's mother, said last night at her home that she was impressed with the similarity of the description of the body in the Fordham morgue with that of her daughter. The only difference seems to be that when she went away Mrs. Hartridge wore a black skirt, while the skirt of the woman found in the river is a very dark gray. The wife of the lawyer could be positively identified by a mole behind her right ear, but there is an abrasion behind the right ear of the body, which might have easily removed such a mark.

The woman's nails were manicured and she bore every evidence of having come from good surroundings. Coroner Schwanneck said that the body might prove to be Mrs. Hartridge's. She has been missing nineteen days. Mrs. Russell said last night that Mr. Hartridge was under care of a physician and that it would be impossible for him to endeavor to make an identification.

"NATURE FAKER" LONG

Takes Another Fling at the President, Declaring He Glorifies Butchery.

New York, Oct. 23.—Rev. Dr. William I. Long, the nature writer, was asked if he had anything to say about President Roosevelt's recent bear hunt in the Louisiana canebrake.

"Oh, yes, a little to say and a lot to think," was the reply. "It's a fine specimen of Mr. Roosevelt's brand of nature study. He went into the canebrake, according to accounts, with six or eight professional hunters, two surgeons, sixty odd dogs, unnumbered camp followers, camera men and a few dispatch bearers to carry out accounts of his heroism to a breathless world. There was a hullabaloo enough to scare any bear from here to Texas."

"Did you notice that when the president finally killed his bear, he is reported to have hugged somebody and to have given a big tip to a negro?" was suggested.

"Yes," said Dr. Long. "That's Roosevelt, glorifying butchery as usual. With him the whole object of the hunt seems to be the killing. The funny thing is that presently he will be out with a magazine article telling us all about the habits of Louisiana bears and incidentally calling 'liar' to some other man who has gone into the canebrake by a different route and seen more than he has."

DRUNKEN SAILOR DROWNS.

Falls Into Cedar River While Trying to Board His Ship.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—An unknown sailor on the steamer Markham of Chicago, was drowned last night in Cedar river, while attempting to board the ship in an intoxicated condition. His absence was not noticed by the crew when the ship sailed. His body was recovered this morning. He is about 45 years old, unmarried and has a home in Cleveland.

STEEL MEN NOT AFRAID

That Financial Disturbances Will Delay Work on Plant.

Say Preparations for Establishment Will Continue as Before.

Local officials of the United States Steel corporation do not think that the financial depression in Wall street will in any way retard the building of the new steel plant at Duluth.

They declare that preparations for the establishment of the new industry here are progessing as rapidly now as they ever did and are being carried forward with the same aggressiveness as before the disturbances in Eastern financial centers began.

"Everything is going along nicely and I do not think that the trouble of Wall street will in any way delay the establishment of the plant," said J. B. Cotton, of the steel company's legal department, when interviewed by The Herald today.

At any rate, there seems to be no halt in the work, to see what the crash in securities is going to bring.

It is stated that bids have been submitted for the dwellings, to be occupied by steel employes and to be erected near the site of the new manufactory.

Manager Reis of the Minnesota Steel company, was so busy today with his work that he was unable to see reporters, to state whether or not the bids had been considered yet.

WILL USE INTERSTATE BRIDGE ACROSS THE BAY

Eastern Minnesota Road Begins Condemnation Proceedings.

Will Extend Steel Trestle for Tracks to Bridge.

The Great Northern road will use the interstate bridge for its entrance to Duluth as soon as the repairs are completed.

Condemnation proceedings were begun this morning in the district court by the Eastern Minnesota railroad for a right-of-way from the Minnesota end of the interstate bridge to the steel trestle owned by the Duluth Terminal company, on Cox avenue, and over which the Eastern Minnesota company has running rights. The company asks the court for the appointment of three commissioners to appraise the property that it seeks to acquire under condemnation proceedings, it being stated that the corporation has been unable to enter into satisfactory arrangements with the owners of the property it seeks.

According to the petitioning company the railway company will build a steel, iron and stone trestle, twenty-eight feet high, and it promises that the traffic of the public over the streets crossed will be in no way interfered with.

The petition states that the Duluth Terminal company will make an extension of its trestle, where it makes the curve on Cox avenue to go to the Northern Pacific bridge, in a southerly direction to Ole avenue, from which point the Eastern Minnesota company proposes to build a trestle to the Minnesota end of the Duluth-Superior bridge.

Parallel Street Railway.

According to the plat filed with the petition, the Eastern Minnesota Railway company's tracks will run alongside or over the street railway tracks from Alger, Smith & Co.'s mill office to the approach to the bridge, and between the street railway tracks up to the approach and over the bridge.

The parcels of land which the Eastern Minnesota Railway company seeks to acquire are owned by the Northern Pacific Railway company, and by Alger, Smith & Co.

The first, owned by the Northern Pacific Railway company is described as a strip of land belonging to the Northern Pacific Railway company, extending in a general easterly and westerly direction entirely across block 57, Rice's Point, the northerly and southerly sides of which are parallel to, and 57 and 43 feet distant, respectively, from the located line of the proposed Eastern Minnesota Railway company to the Duluth-Superior bridge.

The second parcel, owned by Alger, Smith & Co., is described as a strip of land eighteen feet wide, in block 58, Rice's Point, bordering on Arthur and Pine streets on the east and the north, respectively, the westerly side of which is parallel and distant eighteen feet, westerly from the west boundary line of Arthur avenue.

The petitioner recites that the city council has already instituted condemnation proceedings under the franchise given the company.

Outgrown Present Yards.

The Eastern Minnesota Railway company, in making the petition for the acquisition of a right of way, states that it now has tracks, yards and terminals on the Wisconsin side of the St. Louis river, terminating at the Wisconsin side of the Northern Pacific bridge, and that it has operated trains over and across the Northern Pacific bridge to the Minnesota side and from there over the Duluth Terminal company's trestle and a surface track from the bridge to the Union depot. It is represented that the company's transportation business has recently grown so very rapidly that the present facilities both in Duluth and Superior are inadequate to conduct this increased transportation, that the yards are congested and it is essential that the railway company acquire additional grounds for its yards and connections.

Special emphasis is laid on the fact that the Northern Pacific bridge, which accommodates practically all the railroad traffic between Duluth and Superior, is now unable to handle with speed and dispatch the cars and trains seeking entrance to or leaving Duluth, in consequence whereof the Eastern Minnesota Railway company has secured rights of passage and the operation of its trains over the Duluth-Superior bridge between Connor's Point, Superior and Rice's Point, Duluth.

In order that it may furnish the additional transportation facilities to relieve the congestion in its terminals and yards, the Eastern Minnesota company says it is now building a line of railway commencing at the Wisconsin end of the interstate bridge and down Connor's Point, along the bay shore to Old Superior, to a junction with the Northern Pacific line, from thence to the Great Northern main line near South Superior. It is claimed by this bay shore road and connections the Eastern Minnesota company will be able to afford every railroad facility to the industries along the bay front. The new line, it is said, will also relieve the congestion in the yards and terminals.

By building the trestle extension to the Minnesota end of the interstate bridge the Eastern Minnesota company claims that it will be able to utilize the facilities offered by the Duluth-Superior Bridge company and that it will be enabled to make better, safer and more rapid passage for its trains, especially the passenger trains, entering and leaving Duluth.

The petition states that the Duluth Terminal company will extend its trestle from a point in Cox avenue, block 53, Rice's Point easterly to the southerly side of Ole avenue, giving the Eastern Minnesota company running rights and passage over the same. The company proposes to build the remainder of the trestle to the bridge.

HAS ONLY BOARDS IN PLACE OF LEGS

William Peterson Makes Poor Living Selling Lead Pencils.

William Peterson, a great, able-bodied man of about 27 years of age, hobbled into police headquarters today and asked for permission to sell lead pencils and shoe strings for a week in the city.

There was nothing out of the ordinary in the appeal, for not a day passes but some unfortunate makes an application for help in one way or the other; but the appearance of Peterson attracted more or less interest, and his story is a sad one.

Both of the man's legs are off midway between the knee and ankle, and he moves painfully about upon these stubs of his once powerful limbs, the part below the knee being supplied by rude strips of board strapped on.

Peterson is a young man of massive build and has a clean, open face. He was employed as a pilot on one of the big ore vessels running into Conneaut, Ohio, and one day shortly after landing about seven years ago he met with an accident which deprived him of his legs and threw him upon the world, crippled and without an education to enable him to make his living under his crippled condition.

He secured some money in the settlement with the company, and after getting out of the hospital, purchased artificial limbs, with which he was able to get about quite handily. Later he fell, dislocating his hip, and since then has been unable to purchase the proper artificial limbs.

Peterson has been moving about on his crude wooden protectors for two years. His mother is an old lady and in poor circumstances, and Peterson stated that he had been sending her what money he could spare out of his small earnings.

OFFICIAL VOTE OF THE UNIONS

Per Capita Tax Increase Carried, According to Secretary's Figures.

W. E. McEwen, secretary of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor, is sending out official notices to the affiliated unions of the result of the recent referendum vote taken on the question of an increase in the per capita tax increase of the organization.

According to the official figures, there were seventy-eight unions which voted on the proposition. These unions have a total membership of 7,998, but only 2,613 voted on the proposition. The number of votes in favor of the increase was 1,859 and the number against was 760.

The number in favor of the proposition necessary to adopt it was 1,742, so it is seen that the increase carried with a good margin over. The amendment provides for an increase in the per capita tax of the state federation of 1 cent, making the total rate 2 cents. The new law will go into effect with the quarter beginning Nov. 1, and Secretary McEwen notifies the unions that the tax is now due.

The 1 cent additional in the per capita tax will be used for organization purposes throughout the state by the federation, and already this work has been begun. Official organizers of the state federation have been appointed, and the regular officials are all doing their part in the work of adding more unions to the list in Minnesota.

Mr. McEwen says that the prospect of a big increase in the list of unions affiliated with the state federation before the first of the year is very bright. He says that the months of November and December should result well for the organization work. In Duluth there are prospects of several new unions being organized within the next few weeks.

NO CHANGE IN TAX LEVY

School Board Will Let the First Figures Stand.

High Levy Necessary to Care for Wage Increase.

Even though the board of education may still leagally change its mind and reduce the tax levy decided upon at the last meeting, there is little likelihood of any such action being taken.

At the last meeting of the board, practically the maximum levy for the general fund at least, was assessed and this levy will stand, if the school directors have anything to say about it. As one director said today, "The board will stand or fall on the figures already decided on."

All summer long the school board was petitioned by well meaning individuals who sought to have the board raise the salaries of the teachers. The members of the board want to pay the highest possible wages, but the salaries of every teacher had been raised for the coming year, and it was necessary to put the general fund tax levy up to the limit allowed by law in order to care for the wage increases.

And now, since the amount of the school tax levy was announced, the board has been criticised for making the levy too high.

"We are damned if we do and we are damned if we don't," was the way one member of the board expressed the situation today.

The high levy will stand, though. The wages of the teachers were boosted last spring, and the board must have the money with which to pay for the increased cost of maintaing the public schools of Duluth. When it was decided on the first of this month, the county auditor was requested to let it go through as it stood.

"The board needs every cent of the taxes to be levied," said J. J. Le Tourneau, treasurer of the board of education and a member of the committee on administration and finance, when discussing the matter with a reporter for The Herald today.

"The board will stand or fall on the levy that has been made. I have heard of no alterations in the levy, and if any were to be made, it is quite likely that I would hear about them.

"There has been a demand for higher wages for the teachers, and when the consideration of this matter came last spring, the board raised the wages of all the teachers as high as possible under the present law. In order to get the money, it was necessary to put the tax levy as high as possible. Eight mills is all the board is allowed to assess for the general fund.

"The levies for the building and sinking funds had to be where they were placed. We must provide money for new schools, as the evils of issuing bonds to erect them has been clearly demonstrated to the board members. And speaking of bonds, at least 1 mill a year must be levied to liquidate the outstanding bonds which mature in the future. There is a big bunch of them I'll tell you. One mill a year won't care for all of them, but it will help a whole lot."

The next meeting of the board will be held Nov. 1.

OBERSTER GETS $1,000 VERDICT

Jury Finds Him Entitled to Damages for Injuries.

A sealed verdict, opened this morning in the district court, awarded John Oberster $1,000 damages against the Mohawk Mining company for injuries alleged to have been received in the company's mine. Oberster claims that he was caught and crushed between two cars, that the accident was due to the negligence of the company. His injuries are alleged to be permanent. Oberster started suit for $5,000 damages. He was represented by Alexander Marshall.

Owing to the illness of Judge Dibell the trial of the case of Warren McComber against O. D. Kinney and others, to decide title to lands in 59-14, was postponed until tomorrow morning, the jurors being excused until that time.

BIG CLASS FOR EXAMS

Many Grades Are Represented in Civil Service Applications.

Commission to Make Rankings on Papers Nov. 15.

The class which will take the civil service examinations on Oct. 30 at the city hall will be the largest in the history of the department, so far as the number of grades represented in the examinations is concerned.

Every grade in the fire department will be represented by applicants and three grades in the police department, that of promotion from liutenant to captain, patrolmen to sergeants, and applicants for positions as patrolmen.

There are eleven vacancies on the fire department to fill and one on the police force, that of captain, which will necessitate a change in the personnel of the force of officers, as this position must be filled by those in regular line of promotion, and this will make vacancies in the ranks below.

Thus far there have been filed with Secretary Johnson of the commission twenty-one applications, one for captain of the police force, eight for promotions to sergeant and applications from four who desire to be patrolmen. Eight applications have been received for positions on the fire department.

The examinations will commence at 9 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 30 and close at 12 noon. The civil service commission will meet on Nov. 15 to look over the papers and make rankings.

The civil service commission requires that applicants shall have resided in the city for a term of at least three years, and their applications shall have at least five endorsers as to habits and qualifications.

DEPACHMANN WAS INDISPOSED

But His Private Secretary Thinks America is Just Grand.

The first minute you are impressed with the importance of the person you are to see; the second minute you are more impressed; the third minute you wonder what kind of person it is who can keep people waiting half hours at a time kicking their heels in the ante room; the fourth minute you feel sure that promptness and not cleanliness is next to godliness; the fifth minute you think you'll not wait; the sixth minute you decide you will; the seventh minute you wish you had some lunch; the eighth minute you wish you had eaten more breakfast; the ninth minute you decide not to speak to him when he does come and

The tenth minute he came.

"This is M. DePachmann?" the interviewer assumed with easy grace.

No, indeed. This was only M. De Pachmann's personal representative.

He was a young Italian, two months in America. He does not look after sordid business details, just after M. DePachmann. He explained in the most elegant Italian-French-English that M. DePachmann was entirely and completely desolated, that he could not come down after keeping a person waiting ten minutes. M. DePachmann was very tired. He had traveled from Buffalo and was much upset. Indeed, he made the personal representative ill and he had not been affected in the whole journey across the ocean. Then from the parlor of the Spalding to the elevator the interviewer learned while taking that young journey with the personal representative, that he, the personal representative, had been in America two months. In some ways it was grand. He felt, however, that he would prefer living abroad, but without any doubt the American women were the most beautiful on the face of the earth and he had traveled over at least one cheek and brow of the earth's face. He was absolutely not handicapped by any sense of loyalty to anybody who might have remained in Italy. He had plenty of friends, of course, but was as yet absolutely free to admire beauty wherever he saw it. DePachmann would be absolutely happy to meet this person who wanted to meet him after this evening's concert. The people in Buffalo went perfectly wild over De Pachmann. Then the elevator came and with a continental bow the personal representative disappeared.

Gets Word of Father's Death.

George W. Buck received a telegram this morning notifying him of the death of his father at Le Raysville, Pa. Mr. Buck will leave for there tonight.

Claims Wife Cruel.

Charging his wife with cruel and inhuman treatment Samuel Gillespie has started divorce proceedings against Kate Gillespie, in the district court. According to the complaint they were married in Duluth in 1895. Gillespie claims that his wife refused at times to get his meals and slept daytimes in order to keep him awake nights. He claims that on one occasion she nailed up the doors and compelled him to remain out all night. Mrs. Gillespie is claimed to have deserted her husband in July, 1906. She is believed to be in Canada.

Mattson Got Shower Bath.

Charles Mattson has sued the street railway company and Capt. D. E. Stevens, who operates the interstate ferry for $300 damages. Mattson claims that Aug. 4 he was assaulted by the employes on the ferry boat, and that one of them threw a bucket of water over him.

Prisoner Changed His Mind.

Thomas Solverson agreed to plead guilty, on information of the county attorney, to the charge of grand larceny in the second degree. When taken before Judge Dibell to plead yesterday afternoon, he changed his mind and started in to give a long history of his case. The court decided that Solverson needed more time for reflection, so the latter was sent back to the jail. Solverson is accused of stealing $40. He claims he only took $30 and afterwards gave $11 of it back. He will be given plenty of time to reflect.

West Enders Will Debate.

West enders are planning to hold debates on the topics of the day during the long evenings this winter and to this end have organized the West End Debating club. The membership is limited to fifteen and the officers expected to have a full quota of members in a few days. Meetings will be held every Monday evening, the next one being scheduled for Dr. Oredson's office. Different subjects will be taken up. George M. Jenson is president of the new club, Dr. Osterberg, secretary, and Leonard Pearson, treasurer.

Bede Will Give Talk.

Congressman J. Adam Bede will deliver an address at the First Swedish Methodist church, Third street and Twentieth avenue west, Thursday evening, when an entertainment will be given. Miss Florence Fielder of Superior will sing, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. R. D. Haven. Members of the choir will sing several songs and refreshments will be served.

Missing Man Located.

Advices received from St. Cloud are to the effect that Charles Bachelor, the man who has been missing from that city for some time has turned up safe and sound. He has been heard from at a small town named Oslo, Marshall county. The body of an unknown man was buried at the poor farm some weeks ago and was supposed to have been that of Bachelor. The grave is marked "unknown." The man was taken from a train suffering with blood poisoning and never recovered consciousness, dying at St. Luke's hospital a few days later.

Funeral This Afternoon.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Sigrid Sivertson was held from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. P. Solheim, 119 East Sixth street, this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The remains were shipped to Madison for interment.

Frightened School Children.

A runaway horse created considerable excitement among a number of school children last evening as the animal dashed down the sidewalk on Third street between Fourth and Fifth avenues west, finally being brought to a standstill by the wagon being hung up against some shade trees. No one was injured. The horse was driven by John Haley of the Victor company.

Busy Times in Court.

This week has been a busy one thus far in municipal court. There have been a number of civil actions to dispose of and the police court grist has kept the other court room well filled. The corridors of the city hall near the court room are crowded and the employes unusually busy.

Teamster Declared Not Guilty.

Pat Tierney, charged with over-driving a lame horse was found not guilty of the charge late yesterday afternoon, the jury being out but a short time. The evidence went to show that the horse had been lame when Mr. Tierney first purchased it but that under his care it was much improved. At the time of the alleged fast driving the day was warm and witnesses who saw the animal after it arrived at Hunter's Park testified that it did not appear like an animal that had been overdriven.

A Brown Roast

In sight for those who favor us with an order for a roast pan. Northern Hardware company.

Hearing Is Adjourned.

Judge Dibell has ordered an adjournment of the hearing in the Duluth-Thunder Bay Railway company's condemnation proceedings for a right of way on Rice's Point and across the streets and alleys, until Nov. 5 next. The hearing was to have been held yesterday.

Wait.

Damage Case Settled.

The suit brought by Gunda Hammarsten, a domestic, against Mr. and Mrs. William White, to recover damages for an accident sustained while in the defendants' employ, has been dismissed from the district court on a settlement effected between the parties. Miss Hammerstein waives all claims for damages on the receipt of $250 from the defendant.

Send Out Three Recruits.

The army recruiters in Duluth last night sent out three men who had been enlisted since the first of the week. They were James P. Sicotte Marquette Mich.; Frank Laga, Warsaw, Mich., and Albert Trelawny, Belfast, Iowa. The three recruits were sent to Fort Snelling, where they will receive their first training.

DRUNKENNESS A Curable Disease

Eminent Physicians and Scientific Men Agree That it Should be Treated as Such.

Drunkenness is a progressive disease; the moderate drinker is not satisfied with two or three drinks a day, the craving for more and more becomes irresistible as the disease advances; the result is Chronic Alcoholism.

The treatment used successfully by thousands right in their own homes is Orrine. It is a scientific cure for Drunkenness and has given such universal satisfaction that it is sold under a positive guarantee to effect a cure or your money will be refunded. This guarantee is given in good faith and is carried out to the letter. Orrine is not a new remedy; it has been sold by the leading druggists in every city for years. It has lifted tens of thousands from the depths to worthy manhood and has the hearty endorsement of grateful men and women in every state in the Union.

Orrine No. 1 is the secret remedy; Orrine No. 2, is for those willing to take the treatment. Either form costs $1.00. The guarantee is the same in either case. Write to The Orrine Co., Washington, D. C., for free treatise on Drunkenness, mailed in plain sealed envelope. Orrine will be mailed sealed on receipt of price. Sold by the leading druggists in every town and city, and in this city by F. W. Kugler & Co., 108 West Superior street.

BEARS ARE STILL AT IT

Tight Money Hammered Price of Coppers Down.

Some Issues Act Well, But Others Are Forced Lower.

Copper stocks went down again today, in the face of the bearish news. Amalgamated and Anaconda acted very well and so did one or two of the other issues, but the market generally was weak.

The further financial troubles in New York, the closing of the Pittsburg stock exchange, a decline of ¼c in the price of copper metal and the big advance in the call money rates in New York were not calculated to infuse the shares with any great strength.

North Butte opened at $33, went as high as $33.25 and made a new low mark by sinking to $31.75. The close was $32 bid and $32.25 asked.

Amalgamated opened weak at $44.50, declined to $44.25, but rallied during the latter part of the session to $45.62½ and closed at $45.25 bid. Anaconda opened unchanged at $26, advanced to $27.37½ and closed at $27.37½ bid.

Butte Coalition opened at $11.37½, declined to $11.12½ and closed at $11 bid and $11.25 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $92, advanced to $93, declined to $90.50 and closed at $90.50 bid and $92 asked.

Greene-Cananea continued on the toboggan again today, going off from $6, the opening price, to $5.50, and closing at $5.50 bid and $5.62½ asked.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $8.12, declined to $7.50 and closed at $7.62½ bid and $8 asked. Globe Consolidated advanced during the day, going from $3.75 to $4.12½ and closing at $3.87½ bid and $4 asked.

Denn-Arizona sold at $3.12½ and $3 and closed at $3 bid and $3.12½ asked, and Butte & Superior sold at $1.25 and closed at $1.12½ bid and $1.25 asked.

Keweenaw was $4.25 bid and $4.50 asked, Hancock $4.62½ bid and $4.87½ asked, Carman $2.25 bid and $2.50 asked, Calumet & Sonora $5.25 bid and $5.50 asked, Copper Queen of Idaho 75 cents bid and 80 cents asked and Cliff $1 bid and $1.06 asked.

Black Mountain sold at $4.75 and closed at $4.62½ bid and $4.75 asked.

WANTS DAMAGES FOR DRENCHING

Charles Mattson Sues the Street Railway and Ferry Boat Owner.

An action for damages arising from an alleged assault upon one Charles Mattson is being tried in municipal court today, the defendants being the Duluth Street Railway company, Joseph Jacobs and D. E. Stevens.

The alleged assault occurred on the ferry boat which conveys passengers from the foot of the interstate bridge across to Superior, and which is operated in conjunction with the street railway service. Jacobs is captain of the ferry boat and Stevens, the owner of the same.

The complaint alleges that on the night of Sunday, Aug. 14, the plaintiff Mattson was a passenger on the ferry boat, coming to this city from Superior, and that an employe threw water on him, struck, beat and injured him to the extent of $300. He asks damages in that amount and additional exemplary damages in the sum of $200.

Attorney Wood is representing the defendant railway company, and Attorney Norton the defendant, Stevens. Attorney John Jenswold, Jr., represents the plaintiff. The case is being heard by a jury, and it is anticipated will require all of the afternoon.

MELDAHL-HABER.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon, at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Meldahl, 305 South Sixty-third avenue west, Miss Julia Haber and John D. Meldahl were united in marriage. In the presence of a small gathering of friends and relatives of the young people in the parlor of the Meldahl home, Rev. Thomas Grice, pastor of the Asbury M. E. church, performed the ceremony. The home was decorated with white flowers and greens.

The bridesmaid was Miss Louise Renfry and Martin Meldahl, a brother, attended Mr. Meldahl. The marriage ceremony was followed by a reception to those present and a wedding dinner. The young couple leave this afternoon for a short wedding trip to the Twin Cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Meldahl will be at home after Nov. 1 at the home, which Mr. Meldahl has prepared for the reception of his bride, at 522 Sixteenth avenue east. Both parties to today's wedding are well known in West Duluth. Mr. Meldahl is a West Duluth young man and is associated with his father and brothers in lathing contracting. His bride was a member of the city teaching corps coming here from Neenah, Wis., to make her home with her sister, Mrs. Martin Christensen of 9 North Fifty-seventh avenue west.

Arguments Are Filed.

In the bankruptcy matter of Hansen Smith and others, the attorneys for the respondents, Thomas A. Merritt, David L. Fairchild and Walter A. Barrows, filed a brief with the clerk of the federal court today giving arguments in support of the objection to the jurisdiction of the court to determine the petition of the bankrupts to set aside conveyances of real estate by trustee pursuant to orders of the referee. Davis & Hollister are the attorneys for the respondent.

INTERESTED ONLOOKERS

Duluth People Not Vitally Affected by Money Stringency.

Difficulty in Moving Grain is Most Serious Feature.

The money situation was almost the only topic of conversation among Duluth business men today, and on all sides the conditions of the New York stock markets were discussed.

"The New York stocks are getting what we got a little while ago," said one of the curb brokers today. "A month or two ago they were advising the public to sell good coppers and buy industrials. Now they are selling industrials to pay their bills."

Duluth people can watch the situation with a very fair degree of equanimity. About the only ones affected are those who were carrying stocks on margins, and who were called upon to put up the cash to carry their stocks.

About the only way in which the money stringency has affected Duluth and the Northwest is in the movement of grain. The big buyers of grain cannot get funds to move the wheat and flax. It costs money to move wheat this year, with prices ranging over $1 a bushel. The big millers, brewers and flaxseed buyers are not in the market for cash grain. They haven't the ready money to buy their supplies. They stand ready to pay the prices for the grain, realizing that there is not a heavy crop and that the foreign demand is heavy, but they are tied up for lack of funds.

The tight money is also tying up the export business. The shippers have to carry the grain to tidewater and across the Atlantic. A shipload of grain represents an enormous cash outlay, and that amount of money is tied up for weeks.

This is the condition that will most seriously affect the Northwest, but the outlook was better today than it was yesterday. Wheat and flax both rallied today, and the margin between the May and December options narrowed a trifle showing that the buyers are more ready to carry the nearby options.

Fay-Cananea Copper Company Selling Stock on Easy Terms

The Fay-Cananea Copper Company is now selling stock on terms so easy to investors that no one need to miss the opportunity to acquire a part of the small block of stock now offered.

This stock, fully paid and non-assessable, $5.00 par, is now being sold at the company's office, 610-11 First National Bank Bldg., Duluth, Minnesota, at $2.00 per share, as follows: 50c per share down when stock is subscribed for; 50c per share in thirty days, 50c per share in sixty days, and 50c per share in ninety days, the stock to be delivered upon receipt of last payment.

Those preferring to pay in full and receive stock when application is made, may do so.

McCUEN BEING URGED TO RUN

Pressure of Friends May Make Him Mayoralty Candidate.

The political weather vane continues to fluctuate with the variable winds of public sentiment and surmise, pointing now at this candidate now at that until it is difficult to surmise just who will be selected by the Republicans at the mass meeting Saturday night.

Within the past two or three days there has been more or less talk relative to Coroner McCuen. He was seen by a Herald reperesentative today and did not deny the fact that he has been persistently urged of late to allow his name to be considered. In reply to a pointed question as to whether or not he would make the run providing his party insisted, Coroner McCuen stated that there are certain conditions which would make a refusal to become a candidate a demonstration of a lack of the right kind of party sentiment and it appears from the conversation with him, that he is weakening under the force of his friends' arguments and may be the man selected after all.

Alderman Staples has been prominently mentioned within the past few days and in fact a well informed Republican stated today that Staples will be the man. Others point to Alderman Haven as the Republican Moses to lead his followers out of the slough of despond into the light of victory. The interest in the mass meeting Saturday night continues keen and all sorts of surmises and forecasts are being made.

WALTON MUST ANSWER QUESTIONS OF JURY.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Judge Bethea in the United States district court today directed L. A. Walton, the former vice president of the Equitable Trust company, to answer questions asked of him by the federal grand jury.

Mr. Walton several days ago, when questioned regarding the affairs of the company, which was an off-shoot of the Chicago National bank, which failed about two years ago, declined to answer questions on the advice of his counsel, who claimed that the questions were beyond the power of the grand jury. Judge Bethea today ruled otherwise and directed Mr. Walton to make reply to what was asked him.

PROGRESSING RAPIDLY.

Track Laying Crew of Wisconsin Centr. l Now at Ladysmith.

The track laying outfit of the Wisconsin Central has been moved from a location near Gordon, Wis., to Ladysmith, a point much nearer Duluth, and work will be carried on from that place.

An official connected with the track laying work of the road is expected in Duluth within a few days to arrange for other details of the work. With the establishment of the camp at Ladysmith the work of track laying and grading will be resumed with more rapidity.

SUIT FOR LIBEL

Brought Against Magazine and San Francisco News Company.

San Francisco, Oct. 23.—Former Police Commissioner Thomas Regan began suit in the United States circuit court for $100,000 damages against the S. S. McClure company yesterday and for a like sum against the San Francisco News company in the superior court of Marine county for defamation of character. Regan based his suit on articles published in the September issue in the McClure magazine, entitled "A Fight for Reform in San Francisco," in which he is charged with having divided "graft" with Eugene Schmitz.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"Solomon's model woman was a married woman."

"Those of you who are unmarried, don't be too particular. If a good honest fellow wants to marry you, don't hold off just because he may be a head too short, or is too religious, or not religious enough, or his hair isn't just the right color. Don't be too particular. Solomon's model woman was a married woman, and she had children.

"If you have a husband, be sure you treat him well. Don't ride rough shod over all his pet theories.

"The only thing to which I can ascribe the lack of energy and health which afflicts the modern woman is the nerve-trying, strength-destroying corset. I have no remedy to offer—all I can say is, 'The Lord help us.'"

From the above extracts from Mrs. Upson Clark's talk on "Solomon vs. the Modern Woman," which she presented yesterday afternoon at Steinway hall, it is easily apparent that Mrs. Clark will be very popular with the men of Duluth. She evidently appreciates their value. All their pet theories she holds to vallantly. There never was a man who approved of corsets, unless, of course, he made and sold them. Neither does Mrs. Clark. Every married man wants to be well treated and gently considered; so does Mrs. Clark want him to be. Every unmarried man at some time in his life is probably piqued at the course of reasoning which some contrary-minded woman follows, and which nobody else can, out which, nevertheless, ends in "no," and that same process piques Mrs. Clark. There is no doubt about her popularity.

Mrs. Clark took for her text the thirty-first chapter of Proverbs, in which an unknown author gives his views on the virtuous woman. Mrs. Clark chooses Solomon as the author of the words, and during her hour's talk, she expounds paragraph by paragraph the wise king's views of the model woman, giving a bright and amusing string of anecdotes and comment. Mrs. Clark evidently thinks that a joke is not a criminal offense, nor yet a misdemeanor in the sight of the law.

"Solomon describes his model woman as a willing worker, as one who looked after her children and did much to advance her husband's position," she said: "She had good business judgment, and transacted business without asking her husband a word about it; she varied her work and got outdoor exercise; she had a noble pride and dignity; she was cheerful and charitable, and dressed well, and she opened her mouth with wisdom; but Solomon doesn't say a word about how she worked to make her eyebrows darker, and her ears smaller, and her hands more slender, and her complexion smoother. I believe in my soul that Solomon's model woman was homely. He says beauty is vain, and surely he had experience enough to draw from to find out, and I think that after his years of matrimony, he decided in favor of the plain woman. And as there are a good many more plain ones of us than beautiful ones, that at least will comfort more of you than it will offend.

"His model woman was well dressed. I do not believe that many of us need be urged to consider that, but at least I would have you know that the desire is not wrong. But in this day of atrocious hats, I often think, like the small boy who awoke from a bad dream, saying, 'I see a scarecrow perchin' by.'"

Considering that Mrs. Clark was about the only woman in the gathering of 300 who was wearing a small hat, the likeness was personally appreciated by almost every individual of her audience.

"And, then," continued Mrs. Clark, "Solomon's model woman opened her mouth with wisdom. If we as women have a common failing it is that we talk too much. The reason for it is that probably most of us who do it are married to silent men, and are forced into it. But if we only might do as Solomon's model did, open our mouths with wisdom!"

Mrs. Clark closed her talk with a reading of Wordsworth's poem, describing the model woman, beginning, "She was a phantom of delight."

The second in the series of three lectures was given this afternoon at Steinway hall, when Mrs. Clark spoke on "The Effects of Women's Clubs Upon Domestic Life." The last lecture of the course will be given Saturday morning, at 10:30 o'clock.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Cornishon grapes, 60 cents a basket.
Hallowe'en pumpkins, 20 cents each.
Pie pumpkins, 10 cents each.
Oyster plant, 5 cents a bunch.
Veal steak from the leg, 25 cents a lb.
Veal cutlets, 18 cents a lb.

The kind of pumpkins known as "whoppers" are now being carefully selected by the far-seeing grocery man, and are being hidden away in the rear of his shop, to be available on demand. And the demand is almost here. The quantity of pumpkin pie that one small boy will eat in order to make use of the shell of the pumpkin astonishes even mother, who usually has a word of excuse for that prodigious appetite, upon which less sympathetic souls comment harshly and without feeling. The Halowe'en lanterns are in course of construction in many homes, and the kind mother will see that an order for an extra large pumpkin is sent in soon.

Cornishon grapes are long and rather thin and purplish, with a thin veil of gray must over them. They come from California, and are delicious, and the local market never has many of them in a season.

A few of them are to be had at present.

To Represent Chapter.

The state meeting of the Minnesota chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be held Friday of this week at Minneapolis. The Greysolon du Lhut chapter of this city will be represented by Mrs. Julia M. Barnes, who will leave tomorrow for Minneapolis. The Daughters of Liberty chapter of this city will not be represented at the state meeting.

LITERATURE CLASS

Pays Tribute to Departing Member, Miss Louise K. Noyes.

At the meting of the Ladies' Literature class, which was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge, one of the charter members of the club, a tribute was paid to Miss Louise K. Noyes, who has been a member of the class for twelve years, and who will leave the city tomorrow for the East to make her home, was incorporated in the minutes. The Ladies' Literature class is the oldest established women's club of the city. It is now entering upon its twenty-fourth year of study and during the years it has had enrolled upon its membership list the prominent women of the city in educational and cultural lines. The minute in regard to Miss Noyes reads as follows:

"With great regret we learn of the departure from Duluth of Miss L. K. Noyes, who has been a valued member of this class for twelve years.

"With her keen mind, her broad scholarship and her aptness in expression, she has long been considered one of our most valued members.

"We feel that Miss Noyes' departure to Boston is not only a loss to our class, but a great loss to the high school of Duluth and to the whole community."

INTERESTING LECTUR

Rev. C. C. Coyle Presents the First of a Series.

The first of a series of eight evening Bible lessons, conducted by Rev. Campbell C. Coyle, was held last evening at the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association with twenty-five interested young women as the members of this class. The class is open to any one interested in the course, whether members of the association or not, and the succeeding lectures promise to be well attended.

Dr. Coyle's subject last evening was "God." He expounded the four standard arguments for the existence of a Supreme Being as accepted by theologians. The first or ontological argument that the idea of a Supreme Being is innate in the human soul, a part of its original furnishings and that it is but developed by education; the second or cosmological argument that the cause back of the universe must be God; the argument of design or teleogical argument, and the fourth or anthropological argument that the idea of God is involved in the fact of man's moral nature, were clearly expounded. The eternity, personality, holiness and love of God were spoken of briefly and the acceptance of th unity and trinity of God were dwelt upon.

"No man can understand the trinity of God," said Dr. Coyle. What man has invented man can understand, and no man has yet understood or ever will understand the tri-unity of God, and therefore it must have been a revelation."

The next talk will be given Tuesday evening of next week when "Sin" will be the subject of the address.

Visiting Days.

A series of visiting days has been inaugurated by Miss Pullar, the new physical director of the Young Women's Christian association, and the first of this series will be held Saturday when the friends of the members of the children's class, or those interested or invited to be present at the children's class conducted at 10 o'clock. The gymnasium classes are always of interest to visitors and many will doubtless avail themselves of this opportunity.

Pupils' Recital.

An interesting pupils' recital was given last evening at Pilgrim Congregational church, when the violin pupils of Oliver Colbentson, assisted by Miss Ethelyn Abbott, soprano, and Walter L. Smith, tenor, appeared in a well-arranged program which was heard with much pleasure by the large audience assembled. The young pupils acquitted themselves with credit and each number was much enjoyed. Those who took part were Misses Sarah Danelko, Emily Smith, Rowena Steele and Masters Gustaf Hawkinson, Conrad Nordwall, Edwin Skinner, Leonard Lugoff, Herman Bergstrom, Willard Lewis, Joseph Hoffman, Arthur Tengblad, Morris Thomas, Lester Whalen, Arthur O'Donnell, Wallie Gunderson and Thomas Colbentson.

Buchanan - Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Buchanan have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Wilhelmina Buchanan and Raymond Hilliard Hall, to take place Wednesday evening, Nov. 6, at the home of the bride's parents, 217 Second avenue east. Mr. Hall and his bride will be at home after Dec. 1 at 506 Fifth avenue east.

Personal Mention.

THE FARMER'S WIFE

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

To aid in healing old sores, or ulcers, apply Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve to them while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" to purify and enrich the blood.

Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve is cleansing and pain relieving. It destroys the bad odors arising from suppurating, or running, sores and puts them in the best possible condition for healing.

The "All-Healing Salve" is a superior dressing for all open, running, or suppurating, Sores or Ulcers. For healing open wounds, cuts and scratches it is unsurpassed.

If your medicine dealer does not have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock mail 50 cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive it by return post.

In treating all open sores, or ulcers, boils carbuncles and other swellings, it is important that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery be taken persistently to purify the blood and thereby remove the cause of the trouble. It is in the blood that the great battle of health has to be fought. The ulcer and the sore are simply the scarlet flowers of disease, with roots running down into the blood. These roots must be eradicated or the disease will break out afresh. "Golden Medical Discovery" cleanses the blood of all foul and poisonous accumulations, pushes out the dead and waste matter, and thus purifies the entire life current. Disease in the flesh must die out when it is no longer fed by foul blood. "Golden Medical Discovery" effectively cures disease in the flesh by curing its cause in the blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter rising after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid, or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and its attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as attested by the writings of leading teachers and practitioners of all the schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fyfe one of the Editoral staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "In Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhea; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhea (surpressed or absent monthly periods), arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and anemic (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no invalid woman can do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says: "It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions * * * and general enfeeblement, it is useful."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original Little Liver Pills, first put up by old Dr. Pierce over 40 years ago. Much imitated, but never equaled. Easy to take as candy.

WHERE IS JOHN OTTO?

Inquiries Made Indicate He Has Money Coming to Him.

Chief of Police Troyer is in receipt of a communication requesting information relative to the whereabouts of John Otto, who was a long time a resident of Duluth, but whose whereabouts are at present a mystery. Otto formerly resided at 817 West Michigan street, but efforts to locate him have been unavailing.

The communication received by the police intimates that Otto is wanted in the settlement of an estate and possibly has some interest in the same, so that it will be of financial benefit to him if he communicates with the police or any of his friends do so who have a knowledge of his whereabouts.

Before he reformed and went on the burlesque stage, Larry McCale, the principal comedian with the Imperial Burlesquers at the Metropolitan this week, was a black-face minstrel. One season, he succeeded no less a person than Chauncey Olcott in a part, which consisted of sitting on the side-lines throughout the performance, jauntily resting a fan on his right knee. But McCale thought the minstrel a little out of date so he went in for burlesque, a style of entertainment in which he has made a hit and some money, being the possessor of a neat country place at Orange, N. J. His establishment boasts of several fast trotters, a species of horseflesh over which the comedian is very keen.

NELSON AN EARLY BIRD

And Employes at the Capitol Object to His Habit.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota has a habit which does not tend to make him popular with employes at the capitol. Without doubt he is the hardest working man in Washington. No objection would be made by the men employed in congress to this trait of character were it not that they suffer from it.

The senator sometimes arrives at the capitol as early as 7 a. m., rarely later than 8:30. The result is that some of the employes who have a fondness for "turning over" in the morning are deprived of this sweet privilege and have to hustle through breakfast and to the capitol in order not to inconvenience the august statesman from Minnesota.

One day Mr. Nelson remarked pleasantly to an employe that "it was an early bird that caught the worm."

"I didn't say anything to the senator," said the employe, vindictively, "but I thought a whole lot. I'd like to have said to him that there are some worms which would like to catch a bird such as he is, and swallow him whole. I believe he's the kind of bird that sets himself to catch the worm, if he has to stay up all night to do it."

How to Take Care of Nature's Gifts.

Dorothy Maitland, writing, about "The Well-Groomed Woman" in McCall's Magazine, says:

"Most women would be terribly shocked by the imputation that they neglected their personal appearance, yet the fact remains that many otherwise festidious people are more or less careless in this respect.

"Society girls, business women and others whose days are full to running over with engagements of one sort or another are very apt to invent all sorts of excuses for what by rights should be a nightly duty—washing the face in warm water and soap or massaging the scalp. It is so easy to say, 'Oh, I'm too tired out tonight. I'll leave it until tomorrow.'"

We all know how true this is—yet we all do it. Nature is very patient, but there comes a time when she rebels against our neglect. Of course, the first evidences show in the complexion—woman's greatst charm. Then cosmetics, rouges and powders are called upon to cover up the colorless skin. The inevitable results follows—the natural complexion is ruined and must be supplanted by an artifical one.

"But what shall I do?" says My Lady. "I can't go out like this—just a little rouge, a touch of carmine or a few strokes of the eyebrow pencil can't be very noticeable."

But they are, my dear, and what's more, they are unnecessary. If your complexion is not all it should be and you will take a little good advice, the ravages of time and natural faults can easily be corrected.

Here is a simple wash—the ingredients can be obtained at any druggist's—which will give a soft, velvet appearance to the skin and tone up the poorest complexion in a manner which will surprise you.

Obtain at a drug store rose water, 2 ounces; cologne spirits, 1 ounce; Eppotone (skin food), 4 ounces.

Put the Eppotone in a pint of hot water (not boiling), and after dissolved strain and let cool. Then add the rose water and cologne spirits.

Make the wash yourself, then you know it is right. The face, neck and hands should be washed each night in warm water, dry thoroughly, then apply the above wash liberally. Do the same in the morning and it will be but a short time before you notice the improvement in your complexion. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, so make a permanent place for the above on your dressing table.

HE CALLED THE BLUFF

Dan Cupid Decimates the Ranks of the "Bachelors' Club."

Half of the Original Members no Longer Bachelors.

Did Dan Cupid take the choice of the name "Bachelor's club" as a dare? That is the opinion of some of the members who were discussing matters last evening, and found that out of the fifty original members of the club, a social organization, which was formed three years ago, between twenty-five and thirty had succumbed to the little blind God and entered the bonds of matrimony.

At least half that many more are suspected of contemplating the plunge, and if the pace is maintained for a year or two more, the "old guard" will be reduced to four or five veterans, who are believed to be immune.

When a "bachlor" enters the married state, he becomes an honorary member of the club, the active membership of which is limited to fifty. New recruits take the place of those who step out of the active membership, but the active members are entering the ranks of the honorary members at such a pace that it is proposed to make it unanimous and turn the club into an organiaztion for young married men and their wives, or else advertise it as a matrimonial agency.

M'CUMBER BUSY ON GRAIN INSPECTION.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Senator McCumber has returned from his trip to North DaKota and has begun the campaign for the passage of his national grain inspection bill during the coming congress. In anticipation of the arrival of President Roosevelt from his hunting trip this week, Mr. McCumber is gathering a lot of detail on the subject for presentation to the chief executive in the belief that some mention will be made of the subject in the annual message to congress in December.

Senator McCumber has sounded Secretary Wilson and other officials of the department of agriculuture on the subject and found them favorably inclined toward a national inspection law. A step in that direction has already been made by the department in the establishment of testing stations at Minneapolis and other grain centers, and it is the belief of the senator that these stations could be expanded to the extent necessary to carry out a federal grain inspection law.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

There will be no strike of telegraphers on the Denver & Rio Grande railway on account of the discharge of wire chief R. Y. Skeggs of Grand Junction. Mr. Skeggs has secured other employment.

Mrs. Evelyn Romadka of Milwaukee, who was recently arrested on a charge of being implicated in burglaries committed by Albert Jones, a negro, was held in bonds of $18,000 to await the action of the grand jury.

At a meeting of the local telegraphers union in Helena, Mont., the strike was formally declared off. It is believed the action of the local union here will have the effect of breaking the backbone of the strike throughout the Northwest, as Helena, being a big relay point, is one of the most important offices west of Chicago.

Food Poisons

90 Per Cent of All Diseases the Result of Undigested Putrefying Foods.

Men of affairs, women of society and children with active brains are too often sedentary in their habits, giving little time to exercise. To this evil is added that of high and irregular living—as a result, the stomach cannot stand the demands upon it. The abused and overtaxed stomach does not properly do the work of digestion, food taken in ferments and the poison permeates the whole system. The body loses in weight and becomes a prey for the attack of whatever disease it may encounter.

Did it ever occur to you how busy that stomach of your is? It only holds three pints, but in one year you force it to take in 2,400 pounds of material, digest it and prepare it for assimilation into the blood. No wonder it rebels when overworked. We crowd it with steaks and pastry, irritate its juices with spices and acids, and expect the stomach to do its work. It can't do it.

All over the inner layer of the stomach are glands which secrete the juices necessary to digestion. The entrance of food into the stomach is the signal for these glands to do their work. The more the food, and the more indigestible, the greater the demand upon them and upon the muscles of the wall adjoining.

Think of the tons of high-seasoned game, sweetmeats and appetizers crammed into this little four-ounce mill, and then wonder, if you will, why you are dizzy or nauseated or constipated. Don't blame your stomach or curse your fate that you should be born so unfortunate. Blame yourself and apply the remedy.

First, get a small package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, taking one after each meal and at bedtime. They are not a medicine, but a digestive. Your stomach is worn out and needs help, not medicine. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do the work that the stomach fails to do. There's enough power in one grain of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to digest 3,000 grains of ordinary food, so you needn't fear that anything you eat will remain in your stomach undigested.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will rout the poison because they remove the cause—food fermentation. They are nature's own cure for dyspepsia. The host of troubles dyspepsia is father of cannot be numbered, for a healthy stomach is the source of all health.

Seize your opportunity before worse conditions confront you. Send today for a free trial package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They will bring your stomach relief. F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

MAY CLUB TOGETHER

"Economia Hall" to be Organized by Young Women.

Will Experiment With the Co-operative Plan of Living.

Economia Hall is in process of formation.

Economia Hall will not be along the lines of the famous Hellicon Hall of Upton Sinclair, nor will it be a kind of social Arcadia, with the avowed purpose of remedying all social evils, but it will be a means of reducing the cost of living for a number of young school teachers and office assistants in Duluth, or at least that is the hope of its founders.

The plan is for a number of young women to club together, secure suitable quarters, engage a steward, and live on the co-operative plan.

The plan has been successful in college towns, and many of those who are likely to become members of Economia Hall were formerly members of some eating club or sorority in a university city.

The plans are still incomplete, and the young women shun the light of publicity until they have accomplished something, but if their experiment proves a success, Economia Hall may be copied extensively in Duluth among the clerks, stenographers, teachers and office workers of all kinds, who find that the present high prices of board leave them little from their weekly salaries.

KILLS FORMER CONVICT.

Two Fatal Shootings in Montana---Series of Crimes and Accidents.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 23.—Frank Flannagan was shot and killed by Mack Hunter at the latter's ranch, a few miles from Glasgow. Hunter says the shooting was done in self-defense, and the circumstances seem to substantiate his statement. Flannagan had just been released from the penitentiary.

Holmes Hays shot and killed a Montenegrin laborer at a construction camp near Missoula. He also asserts the act to have been one of self-defense.

The dead body of Fred Remey was found lying in a creek bottom, near Plains. He was last seen alive on the Flathead reservation in August. Partially demented he had wandered into the woods and probably fell into the stream.

IOWA MAN LEFT $12,000

By Girl With Whom He Broke Troth Years Ago.

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 23.—Breaking an engagement ten years ago, following a quarrel, Frank Seney, a busines man here, was astounded to learn that his former sweetheart, Miss L. McMillan, who died at her home in Idaho a few days ago, had left him $12,000.

Ten years ago Seney resided in a small Iowa town and was in charge of an elevator. Miss McMillan was at work in a local bank. After their quarrel Seney came to Sioux City and she went to Idaho, where she invested her savings in a gold mine, which proved rich. Both remained single, though they did not correspond. Seney has gone to Chicago to attend the funeral of the young woman.

REMOVE GIANT'S CAUSEWAY.

Natural Curiosity of Ireland to be Shipped to the United States.

London, Oct. 23.—Widespread indignation has been caused in Ireland by an announcement in the Belfast Northern Whig that the world-famous Giant's Causeway is about to be shipped to the United States. The first consignment of 200 tons will go to Philadelphia on a White Star freight steamer. It is apparently the intention to erect the causeway as a show.

The causeway is a natural irregular pier on the rocky coast near Port Rush, consisting of about 20,000 prismatic columns of basalt, 30 feet high, 700 feet long and 350 feet wide. It is much visited by tourists.

CITY WILL ADVERTISE.

Des Moines to Proclaim Advantages to in the Country Press.

Des Moines, Oct. 23.—Every country newspaper in Iowa is to be asked to advertise Des Moines. The Greater Des Moines committee has decided to purchase advertising space in all of the country papers, particularly in county seat towns. Each advertisement will recite the advantage of Des Moines for laboring men and as a residence city. This advertising campaign will be kept up for months and the results are awaited with general interest.

ROCKEFELLER INSTITUTE

To Raise Monkeys, Goats and Mice for Vivisection.

New York, Oct. 23.—Vivisection on a large scale and by more scientific methods than ever have been practiced is being arranged for the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, the organization created and endowed four years ago by John D. Rockefeller.

The first step in the elaborate scheme has been taken in the purchase of a ninety-seven-acre farm in New Jersey. The stocking of this farm with animals and fowls for vivisection purposes has begun. When the arrangements are completed, the farm will be the most scientifically equipped and extensive place of its kind in the world.

The chief reason for the establishment of this first great scientific farm was the increased facilities that could be obtained for scientific work.

There is to be a monkey house that will contain more monkeys than any zoo. Special attention, in fact, is to be paid to the raising of monkeys because of their peculiar relationship to man and their consequent high value for research purposes.

The dog kennels will be extensive and will accommodate hundreds of dogs.

There will be pens for sheep and goats, the latter especially playing an important part in the work of the institute on account of the uses to which goat serum is being put.

A unique building will be the one to be provided for mice, another animal of peculiar value to the vivisectionist.

INTENDED NO FRAUD.

William Dushane Says He Did Not Jump Board Bill.

William Dushane, charged with jumping a board bill of $9 at the International hotel, New Duluth, was arrested at Carlton last evening by Detective Irvine and brought back to this city.

The fugitive was traced by means of his trunk check and when he called at the depot at Carlton to identify the trunk the detective was there and put him under arrest. Dushane had $59.52 on his person when arrested. He was arraigned this morning on the charge and entered a plea of not guilty. He said he had no intention of swindling the proprietor and intended to pay as soon as he received his wages. The case will probably be dismissed on settlement of the claim.

LARGE LYNX IS KILLED

Brute Largest of Its Species Killed in That Section.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special ti The Herald.)—Andrew Clavin, who owns a farm on the northwest shore of Lake Bemidji, yesterday shot a lynx, the largest animal of its species ever seen in this part of the country.

Mr. Clavin was walking around his farm, looking after the work of cutting the jackpine, when he espied the lynx coming out of the woods into a clearing. He rushed to the house and secured his rifle. Then he hastened back and as the lynx was crawling into the brush, dispatched the animal with a well directed shot.

Mr. Clavin intends having the animal mounted and displayed in his place of business, demonstrating the fact that there are other than game animals in this country.

ONE BROTHER RELEASED.

Other Shoulders Crime and Will Remain in State Penitentiary.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state board of pardons has ordered the release of John Van Winkle, sent from Traverse county, Dec. 1 1906 to Stillwater for four years and nine months for assault in the third degree. A full pardon was granted.

His brother Joel Van Winkle, is now serving a similar sentence on the same charge. The affair was a saloon stabbing affray, and it now develops that Joel wielded the knife instead of his brother.

Joel confessed that he was the guilty man. Both were in the saloon at the time.

OLD CLOQUET CITIZEN.

Peter Sundvall Died in Hospital and Was Buried Tuesday.

Cloquet, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Sundvall, one of Cloquet's pioneer citizens, who died at St. Luke's hospital in Duluth last Saturday afternoon, had been suffering for some time with a weak stomach, and at last it was found necessary to send him to Duluth, where he could receive better treatment, but all efforts to save him were in vain, and he died after being at the Duluth hospital but a short time. The deceased was unmarried, and as far as can be found out, he has no relatives in this region. Mr. Sundvall came to Duluth about twenty years ago, and had been employed as grader by the Johnson-Wentworth company for a number of years, during which time he had made many friends, all of whom will miss him greatly. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon from the Swedish-Lutheran church at 2:30 o'clock under the auspices of the members of the S. H. & E. F. lodge.

VAN DUSEN BUYS BIG ELEVATORS

Purchases Holdings of Chicago & Northwest Granaries Co.

Minneapolis, Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Chicago & Northwest Granaries company, an English corporation, has sold to the Van Dusen-Harrington company of Minneapolis, the Star elevator in this city, which has a capacity of 2,225,000 bushels, the Interstate elevators with 2,000,000 bushels capacity; and 115 country elevators located on the Chicago & Northwestern, Minneapolis & St. Louis, and Great Northern railways in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

The Chicago & Northwest Granaries company was organized and financed in London in 1889. It bought the business of the old house of G. W. Van Dusen & Co., and also the big property known as the Star elevator located in North Minneapolis. Later it purchased the plant of the Inter-State elevators.

G. W. Van Dusen, F. C. Van Dusen, and Charles M. Harrington were appointed by the English syndicate as American managers for a term of fifteen years. The senior Van Dusen retired from active business three years ago and the younger men filled out the unexpired time. The negotiations looking to the purchase of the property by the Minneapolis men were brought to a head, and F. C. Van Dusen and C. M. Harrington will now handle the big properties for their own account. The English company will wind up its affairs.

NOT IN MINNESOTA

Can Any Non-Participating Insurance Policies be Issued.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Insurance companies doing business in Minnesota are within the law if they issue their Minnesota policies as the Minnesota law requires, regardless of the kind of policies they may write in other states. This is the gist of an opinion rendered to J. A. Hartigan, state insurance commissioner, by C. S. Jelley, special counsel for Attorney General Young. The question arose under the law prohibiting the issuance of non-participating policies. Mr. Jelley holds that Minnesota cannot regulate the business done by insurance companies in other states, and they may issue non-participating policies there as much as they like, so long as they comply with the law in Minnesota. The same is true with regard to deferred dividend policies, which are prohibited in this state.

MUCH HAY BURNED.

Barnesville Prairie Fire Did Extensive Damage to Farmers.

Barnesville, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The prairie fire that was started in Wilkin county Saturday was checked at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At least 140 stacks of hay, totaling ten thousand tons were destroyed. The loss in hay alone was upward of $40,000. Many buildings were also burned. Cinders from the fire were carried twenty-five miles. The blaze was started by a boy playing with matches.

ROB FIVE STORES.

Burglars Play No Favorites at Lake Crystal, Minn.

Lake Crystal, Minn., Oct. 23.—Burglars made a big cleanup here at an early hour Tuesday. Five stores were broken into and all money in the drawers and cash registers taken, but just how much is not known.

At Thomas & Jones' hardware store, razors and scissors were taken; Frank Bartlett's jewelry store, Hammond gold watch and two gold cases taken; John Williams' shoe store, one pair of shoes; Hans Moe's and Joseph Rask's saloons, money gone.

SEEKS HEAVY DAMAGES.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—John L. Rancour has sued the Great Northern road for damages of $50,250. He was a brakeman on a freight train running out of Melrose. Owing to a defective coupler, as he says, between the tender and the next car, the coupling broke, the air hose parted and the action of the automatic brakes stopped the train suddenly. He was at the time standing up in the caboose, and with the sudden stoppage, was thrown down and injured. The accident happened, he says, November, 1906.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

St. Cloud—Nic Weidert, a Watab farmer, was fatally injured and Charles Peterson of Watab may die as the result of being struck by a Northern Pacific freight train. Both were half asleep at the time. The engine smashed the buggy, throwing the men forty feet.

St. Paul—The State Bank of Hampton has been authorized by Public Examiner Sheffer; also the State Bank of Avon. The capitalizations are $10,000 and $12,000 respectively. J. G. Schmidt is president of the former and C. Boerding of the latter.

Lake City—John C. Schmidt, aged 74, died at his home in this city after a lingering illness of jaundice. He was one of the early settlers of this county, having come here in 1858.

Crookston—A bold attempt was made to wreck the safe in the office of the Heileman Brewing company in this city some time during Sunday night, and it is believed that Capt. Vonderbeck of the local police force frightened the safe crackers away from their attempt.

Moorhead—District court convened Monday, Judge L. L. Baxter of Fergus Falls presiding. The calendar is as usual a heavy one, there being eighty-two civil cases, in addition to twelve tax cases. Fifty-two of he civil cases are jury cases.

Grand Marais—It is announced by the Booth company that the steamers America and Easton will run till about he first week in December, and then the Moore will go on as a winter boat, and continue operating until she is compelled to stop for the ice.

TENTH WARD IS RATHER HOODOO

Four Aldermen Die in Office and None Wants Job.

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—This city is confronted with a peculiar situation; namely, a shortage of political material in the Tenth ward. Alderman M. A. Broback died two weeks ago, and no one will consent to fill his position.

The Tenth ward was organized seven years ago. Four men have served as aldermen from that precinct and every one died while in office. Just at present no one from that district can be induced to accept aldermanic honors.

LARGE CREW IS WORKING ON LINE

Electric Road Between Eau Claire and Menominie Going Ahead.

Menominie, Wis., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—A camp of thirty-five men connected with the line of the Chippewa Valley Light & Power company has been established on the fair grounds, and the blasting of stumps in the right-of-way, trimming trees and other preliminary work is being pushed rapidly. The poles are now in place all along the way to Eau Claire and three wires have been strung from that city to a point near the asylum. It is stated that the cause of the rushing of work is the fact that Eau Claire is needing more power. Street lines have been extended, and several new plants requiring power have been established there. It is expected that the lines will be completed to the power house as soon as the work there is finished. The hardest work is still before the linemen, on account of the lake and the character of the ground to be crossed between the lake and the point where the wires leave the road.

DIVORCEES WED.

Actress Jane Peyton and Actor Guy Bates Post Married.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jane Peyton, the actress and former Milwaukee society woman, who has been twice divorced since her girlhood days as Jessie Van Norman, has started upon her third matrimonial venture, her present husband being Guy Bates Post, also divorced. The bride's former husbands were Robert Curtis Brown and Arthur Cecil Gordon Weld. She met Mr. Weld in amateur theatricals, which he directed. She and Mr. Post played opposite each ither three years ago when he was starring in "The Heir to the Hoorah." At that time he was the husband of Sarah Truax, and she the wife of Mr. Weld. Both couples were divorced within the last few months. Mr. and Mrs. Post are now in New York city.

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Waunakee—While walking along the track south of Waunakee, J. Martin and Christ Orren of Madison were struck by a southbound train. Martin was killed instantly and Orren fatally injured.

Rhinelander—The body of Frank Costly, an employe of the Rhinelander Paper company, who has been missing for two weeks, was found floating in the Wisconsin river just below the Davenport bridge. Costly, who is 21 years old, is survived by a widow and infant son.

Oconomowoc—A small army of workmen are employed at Okauchee, where four cottages, barns, coachman's cottage, icehouses and pumping station are being erected on Oconomowoc lake for William Franzen of Milwaukee, the cost of these buildings to be $30,000.

Ripon—A. A. Schultz, a farmer living three miles west of this city, claims to have discovered iron ore in paying quantities on his farm. The ore is found in a high ledge some miles in extent, running from near Ripon to the south shore of Green lake.

Beaver Dam—J. S. Rowell, the pioneer seeder manufacturer of this city, has died here, aged 82 years. Mr. Rowell was one of the pioneer citizens of this city, and was president of the J. S. Rowell Manufacturing company, and also president of the Old National bank, and a director of the Beaver Dam cotton mill, ever since its organization in 1881.

Ashland—The marriage of Miss Maude Johnson to John Paulis took place at Washburn Saturday. Mr. Paulis is the proprietor of the Ashland Candy kitchen, while the bride is a charming young lady who has numerous friends in the city. Mr. Paulis and bride have returned to Ashland and will make their permanent home here.

SENT TO ASYLUM TO SAVE MONEY

Serious Charges Against Relatives of Patients at Newberry.

Negaunee, Mich., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—That indigent or helpless people are committed to insane asylums in order that their relatives may escape their care and maintenance is the charge made by C. W. Mason, a Menominee man, after a visit to the upper peninsula hospital at Newberry. The extent to which this practice is carried on is not realized by the average person, according to Mr. Mason.

At Newberry, he says, he saw nearly 700 pitiable creatures housed and cared for, most of them "poor wrecks thrown up by the tide of humanity." A prominent citizen of the town told him that nearly every week some hopeless person is brought to the Newberry institution, whose mental condition does not in any way warrant such commitment. The sole reason for this, Mr. Mason declares, is because unnatural relatives "do not want them around," and seek to shirk their duty in supporting them. Most of these unfortunates are aged persons, whose active lives are over, and who are helpless to resist.

The Newberry hospital is an unusually fine institution of its kind. It is under the management of an able corps of medical experts, and some 130 assistants and attendants minister to the needs of the unfortunate.

Mason's story is scouted.

DIES FROM EXPOSURE.

Frank Schaffer Perishes While Trying to Cross Stream.

Ontonagon, Mich., Oct. 23—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Frank Schaffer of Bruces Crossing was found lying on the Northwestern railroad track, about three-quarters of a mile west of Paulding, by the section foreman. Schaffer had been employed by L. C. Fletcher at Bruces Crossing as choreman.

An investigation showed that he had taken off his coat at a bridge a short distance from where his body was found, and had taken a plunge into the water, and had then endeavored to make his way to Paulding. For some little distance the ground showed that he had dragged himself along on his hands and knees, but his wetting and subsequent exposure weakened him so that he had to give up the struggle.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—William J. Pennhallegon of Calumet, who has been connected with the Manito Mining and the Frontenac Copper companies as superintendent, has resigned his position and accepted a place with the Tennesse Coal, Iron & Railroad company as assistant general manager.

Houghton—The juvenile court bill has been amended in the state senate by exempting Houghton and Marquette counties on the grounds of expense.

Negaunee—Julius Johnson, chief of the Negaunee fire department, who, in company with Chiefs John Lacey of Ishpeming and T. J. Maney of Marquette, attended the annual meting of the International Fire Chiefs' association at Washington, has arrived home.

Hancock—The junior class of the Hancock high school has about completed arrangements for the presentation of a play and the giving of a dance party at Germania hall Nov. 15.

SUICIDE IN STREET.

North Dakota Man Takes His Life Before Crowd.

Cogswell, N. D., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the presence of fifty or more residents of this place, William Jahnke committed suicide in a sensational manner, Sunday afternoon, by shooting himself with a revolver.

He and his wife could not agree, and last spring he made an unsuccessful attempt to kill himself, then left this section. He returned Sunday, and sought in vain to induce his wife to live with him again. She declined, and Jahnke then threatened to kill her, but the city marshal interfered. A few minutes afterwards Jahnke walked out into the middle of the main business street and shot himself. He lived for more than an hour after the shooting.

DRIVING REINS CATCH TRIGGER

Gun Goes Off and Nygaard is Instantly Killed.

Orr, N. D., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Nygaard, a young man who recently arrived in this town, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a shotgun. Nygaard was out hunting, and was driving in a single seated rig.

He had the gun leaning against his breast. In some manner the lines became tangled in the trigger, and the gun was discharged into his breast. The gun made a fearful wound and Nygaard's death was instantaneous.

The young man was about 23 years old. He has been here but a few days and little is known of his family or home. No inquest will be held.

MORE TROUBLE FOR FAIRBANKS

His Telegraph Frank—Turned Down in South Dakota.

Vermillion, S. D., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The anti-pass law in South Dakota proved its effectiveness here when Vice President Fairbanks, or rather his private secretary acting under him, was refused the privilege of sending a telegram over the Western Union line on a "frank." The secretary had never encountered this obstacle before, but did not care to argue the point.

Manager Totten of the Western Union says that since the anti-pass law went into effect in South Dakoat he has orders to refuse every "deadhead message," and that he was not going to take chances, even with the vice president.

The message was one to Kansas City to engage sleeping apartments for Vice President Fairbanks for his trip to Dallas, Tex. The secretary was obliged to hand over $1.57.

BAD CONTRACTOR

Was Working on Milwaukee Grade and Was Killed in Duel.

Dickinson, N. D., Oct. 23.—A shooting affray on the Milwaukee grade, sixty miles south of here, has just been reported to the authorities in this city. John Gilliland, a contractor, was instantly killed by a bullet through the head. One Devine fired the fatal shot, and was himself badly wounded from a shot fired by Gilliland.

The dead contractor had the reputation of being a bad man. L. M. Scrivner is at the Dickinson hospital as the result of a bullet wound in the leg, fired by Gilliland last week. Devine probably will recover, and it is not thought that any arrests will be made, as he is believed to have been justified in the killing.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Bismarck, N. D.—C. R. Lahart, a prominent real estate man of Underwood, was found dead in his bed at that place, death resulting from heart failure.

Dickinson, N. D.—Col. P. H. Swift, field inspector for the United States land office, has decided to resign his position and expects to be relieved about the first of November.

Kenmare, N. D.—The funeral of the late David R. Pierce was held with services at the family residence Sunday afternoon. The services, which were very largely attended, were conducted by the Masons, of which order the deceased was a prominent member.

Fargo, N. D.—Cyrus G. Heifner, a farmer at Deering, Ward county, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court. He places his assets at $3,666 and his liabilities at $2,161, of which $1,000 are exempt.

Minot, N. D.—John Mathewson, a Tolley, N. D., farmer, committed suicide Sunday by hanging himself in a shed. He was 65 years of age and left a wife and five children.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The United States marshal's deputies are busy issuing summonses for the petit jury for the next term of the federal court at Grand Forks on Nov. 5. Deputy McKay is at Minot issuing summons for the term at Devils Lake on Oct. 29.

Minot, N. D.—Chief of Police Hagen, who went to St. Paul with a prisoner, landed another bird in the person of W. F. Kelly, who is wanted in this county on the charge of stealing a load of grain. Kelly was captured in the postoffice, where he called for his mail.

Bismarck, N. D.—R. S. Hardy, a local druggist, pleaded guilty before Judge Winchester in the district court to failure to register an dadvertise his government liquor tax receipt, according to the new law passed by the last legislature, and which the supreme court has just declared constitutional. He was fined $100, which he paid.

Quinsy, Sore Throat, Neuralgia of the Nerves

MRS. WM. VAN GAASBEEK.

A remarkable cure was effected in the case of Mrs. Wm. Van Gaasbeek of 14½ Foxhall Avenue, Kingston, New York, who suffered a long time from Quinsy, Sore Throat and Neuralgia. After all other medicines failed, Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey made a permanent cure.

In a recent letter Mrs. Van Gaasbeek wrote:

"I have been a great sufferer for a long time from quinsy, sore throat and neuralgia of the nerves. I had tried almost everything but nothing seemed to help me. A friend advised me to try Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and after taking a half dozen bottles I was cured. Have never had any symptoms of the disease since. I recommend it to any one suffering from these diseases."

Thousands of unsolicited letters of gratitude like this of Mrs. Van Gaasbeek are received from grateful patients who are anxious to extol the merits of this great life-saver—Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture its palatability and freedom from injurious substances renders it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It is recognized everywhere as the unfailing specific for the cure of consumption, nervousness, typhoid, malaria, every form of stomach trouble, diseases of the throat and lungs, and all run down and weakened conditions of he brain and body. It restores youthful vigor to the old and maintains the health and strength of the young. It nourishes and feeds the vital forces. It is a form of food already digested. It is prescribed by doctors of all schools, is used in the leading hospitals of the world, and is recognized as a family medicine everywhere. It is absolutely pure.

CAUTION—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure yoo get the genuine. It is the only absolutely pure medininal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Price $1.00. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Illustrated medical booklet and doctor's advice free. Duffy Malt Whisky Co., Rochester, N. ## ONE BROTHER RELEASED.

Other Shoulders Crime and Will Remain in State Penitentiary.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state board of pardons has ordered the release of John Van Winkle, sent from Traverse county, Dec. 1 1906 to Stillwater for four years and nine months for assault in the third degree. A full pardon was granted.

His brother Joel Van Winkle, is now serving a similar sentence on the same charge. The affair was a saloon stabbing affray, and it now develops that Joel wielded the knife instead of his brother.

Joel confessed that he was the guilty man. Both were in the saloon at the time.

OLD CLOQUET CITIZEN.

Peter Sundvall Died in Hospital and Was Buried Tuesday.

Cloquet, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Sundvall, one of Cloquet's pioneer citizens, who died at St. Luke's hospital in Duluth last Saturday afternoon, had been suffering for some time with a weak stomach, and at last it was found necessary to send him to Duluth, where he could receive better treatment, but all efforts to save him were in vain, and he died after being at the Duluth hospital but a short time. The deceased was unmarried, and as far as can be found out, he has no relatives in this region. Mr. Sundvall came to Duluth about twenty years ago, and had been employed as grader by the Johnson-Wentworth company for a number of years, during which time he had made many friends, all of whom will miss him greatly. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon from the Swedish-Lutheran church at 2:30 o'clock under the auspices of the members of the S. H. & E. F. lodge.

VAN DUSEN BUYS BIG ELEVATORS

Purchases Holdings of Chicago & Northwest Granaries Co.

Minneapolis, Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Chicago & Northwest Granaries company, an English corporation, has sold to the Van Dusen-Harrington company of Minneapolis, the Star elevator in this city, which has a capacity of 2,225,000 bushels, the Interstate elevators with 2,000,000 bushels capacity; and 115 country elevators located on the Chicago & Northwestern, Minneapolis & St. Louis, and Great Northern railways in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

The Chicago & Northwest Granaries company was organized and financed in London in 1889. It bought the business of the old house of G. W. Van Dusen & Co., and also the big property known as the Star elevator located in North Minneapolis. Later it purchased the plant of the Inter-State elevators.

G. W. Van Dusen, F. C. Van Dusen, and Charles M. Harrington were appointed by the English syndicate as American managers for a term of fifteen years. The senior Van Dusen retired from active business three years ago and the younger men filled out the unexpired time. The negotiations looking to the purchase of the property by the Minneapolis men were brought t on head, and F. C. Van Dusen and C. M. Harrington will now handle the big properties for their own account. The English company will wind up its affairs.

Can Any Non-Participating Insurance Policies be Issued.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Insurance companies doing business in Minnesota are within the law if they issue their Minnesota policies as the Minnesota law requires, regardless of the kind of policies they may write in other states. This is the gist of an opinion rendered to J. A. Hartigan, state insurance commissioner, by C. S. Jelley, special counsel for Attorney General Young. The question arose under the law prohibiting the issuance of non-participating policies. Mr. Jelley holds that Minnesota cannot regulate the business done by insurance companies in other states, and they may issue non-participating policies there as much as they like, so long as they comply with the law in Minnesota. The same is true with regard to deferred dividend policies, which are prohibited in this state.

MUCH HAY BURNED.

Barnesville Prairie Fire Did Extensive Damage to Farmers.

Barnesville, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The prairie fire that was started in Wilkin county Saturday was checked at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At least 140 stacks of hay, totaling ten thousand tons were destroyed. The loss in hay alone was upward of $40,000. Many buildings were also burned. Cinders from the fire were carried twenty-five miles. The blaze was started by a boy playing with matches.

ROB FIVE STORES.

Burglars Play No Favorites at Lake Crystal, Minn.

Lake Crystal, Minn., Oct. 23.—Burglars made a big cleanup here at an early hour Tuesday. Five stores were broken into and all money in the drawers and cash registers taken, but just how much is not known.

At Thomas & Jones' hardware store, razors and scissors were taken; Frank Bartlett's jewelry store, Hammond gold watch and two gold cases taken; John Williams' shoe store, one pair of shoes; Hans Moe's and Joseph Rask's saloons, money gone.

SEEKS HEAVY DAMAGES.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—John L. Rancour has sued the Great Northern road for damages of $50,250. He was a brakeman on a freight train running out of Melrose. Owing to a defective coupler, as he says, between the tender and the next car, the coupling broke, the air hose parted and the action of the automatic brakes stopped the train suddenly. He was at the time standing up in the caboose, and with the sudden stoppage, was thrown down and injured. The accident happened, he says, November, 1906.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

St. Cloud—Nic Weidert, a Watab farmer, was fatally injured and Charles Peterson of Watab may die as the result of being struck by a Northern Pacific freight train. Both were half asleep at the time. The engine smashed the buggy, throwing the men forty feet.

St. Paul—The State Bank of Hampton has been authorized by Public Examiner Sheffer; also the State Bank of Avon. The capitalizations are $10,000 and $12,000 respectively. J. G. Schmidt is president of the former and C. Boerding of the latter.

Lake City—John C. Schmidt, aged 74, died at his home in this city after a lingering illness of jaundice. He was one of the early settlers of this county, having come here in 1858.

Crookston—A bold attempt was made to wreck the safe in the office of the Heilleman Brewing company in this city some time during Sunday night, and it is believed that Capt. Vonderbeek of the local police force frightened the safe crackers away from their attempt.

Moorhead—District court convened Monday, Judge L. L. Baxter of Fergus Falls presiding. The calendar is as usual a heavy one, there being eighty-two civil cases, in addition to twelve tax cases. Fifty-two of he civil cases are jury cases.

Grand Marias—It is announced by the Booth company that the steamers America and Easton will run till about he first week in December, and then the Moore will go on as a winter boat, and continue operating until she is compelled to stop by the ice.

TENTH WARD IS RATHER HOODOO

Four Aldermen Die in Office and None Wants Job.

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—This city is confronted with a peculiar situation, namely, a shortage of political material in the Tenth ward. Alderman M. A. Broback died two weeks ago, and no one will consent to fill his position.

The Tenth ward was organized seven years ago. Four men have served as aldermen from that precinct and every one died while in office. Just at present no one from that district can be induced to accept aldermanic honors.

LARGE CREW IS WORKING ON LINE

Menominie, Wis., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—A camp of thirty-five men connected with the line of the Chippewa Valley Light & Power company has been established on the fair grounds, and the blasting of stumps in the right-of-way, trimming trees and other preliminary work is being pushed rapidly. The poles are now in place all along the way to Eau Claire and three wires have been strung from that city to a point near the asylum. It is stated that the cause of the rushing of work is the fact that Eau Claire is needing more power. Street lines have been extended, and several new plants requiring power have been established there. It is expected that the lines will be completed to the power house as soon as the work there is finished. The hardest work is still before the linemen, on account of the lake and the character of the ground to be crossed between the lake and the point where the wires leave the road.

DIVORCEES WED.

Actress Jane Peyton and Actor Guy Bates Post Married.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jane Peyton, the actress and former Milwaukee society woman, who has been twice divorced since her girlhood days as Jessie Van Norman, has started upon her third matrimonial venture, her present husband being Guy Bates Post, also divorced. The bride's former husbands were Robert Curtis Brown and Arthur Cecil Gordon Weld. She met Mr. Weld in amateur theatricals, which he directed. She and Mr. Post played opposite each other three years ago when he was starring in "The Heir to the Hoorah." At that time he was the husband of Sarah Truax, and she the wife of Mr. Weld. Both couples were divorced within the last few months. Mr. and Mrs. Post are now in New York city.

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Waunakee—While walking along the track south of Waunakee, J. Martin and Christ Orren of Madison were struck by a southbound train. Martin was killed instantly and Orren fatally injured.

Rhinelander—The body of Frank Costly, an employe of the Rhinelander Paper company, who has been missing for two weeks, was found floating in the Wisconsin river just below the Davenport bridge. Costly, who is 21 years old, is survived by a widow and infant son.

Oconomowoc—A small army of workmen are employed at Okauchee, where four cottages, barns, coachman's cottage, boathouses and pumping station are being erected on Oconomowoc lake for William Franzen of Milwaukee, the cost of these buildings to be $7,000.

Ripon—A. A. Schultz, a farmer living three miles west of this city, claims to have discovered iron ore in paying quantities on his farm. The ore is found in a high ledge some miles in extent, running from near Ripon to the south shore of Green lake.

Beaver Dam—J. S. Rowell, the pioneer seeder manufacturer of this city, has died here, aged 82 years. Mr. Rowell was one of the pioneer citizens of this city, and was president of the J. S. Rowell Manufacturing company, and also president of the Old National bank, and a director of the Beaver Dam cotton mill, ever since its organization in 1881.

Ashland—The marriage of Miss Maude Johnson to John Paulis took place at Washburn Saturday. Mr. Paulis is the proprietor of the Ashland Candy kitchen, while the bride is a charming young lady who has numerous friends in the city. Mr. Paulis and bride have returned to Ashland and will make their permanent home here.

Serious Charges Against Relatives of Patients at Newberry.

Negaunee, Mich., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—That indigent or helpless people are committed to insane asylums in order that their relatives may escape their care and maintenance is the charge made by C. W. Mason, a Menominee man, after a visit to the upper peninsula hospital at Newberry. The extent to which this practice is carried on is not realized by the average person, according to Mr. Mason.

At Newberry, he says, he saw nearly 700 pitiable creatures housed and cared for, most of them "poor wrecks thrown up by the tide of humanity." A prominent citizen of the town told him that nearly every week some hopeless person is brought to the Newberry institution, whose mental condition does not in any way warrant such commitment. The sole reason for this, Mr. Mason declares, is because unnatural relatives "do not want them around," and seek to shirk their duty in supporting them. Most of these unfortunates are aged persons, whose active lives are over, and who are helpless to resist.

The Newberry hospital is an unusually fine institution of its kind. It is under the management of an able corps of medical experts, and some 130 assistants and attendants minister to the needs of the unfortunate.

Mason's story is scouted.

DIES FROM EXPOSURE.

Frank Schaffer Perishes While Trying to Cross Stream.

Ontonagon, Mich., Oct. 23—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Frank Schaffer of Bruces Crossing was found lying on the Northwestern railroad track, about three-quarters of a mile west of Paulding, by the section foreman. Schaffer had been employed by L. C. Fletcher at Bruces Crossing as choreman.

An investigation showed that he had taken off his coat at a bridge a short distance from where his body was found, and had taken a plunge into the water, and had then endeavored to make his way to Paulding. For some little distance the ground showed that he had dragged himself along on his hands and knees, but his wetting and subsequent exposure weakened him so that he had to give up the struggle.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—William J. Pennhallegon of Calumet, who has been connected with the Manito Mining and the Frontenac Copper companies as superintendent, has resigned his position and accepted a place with the Tennesse Coal, Iron & Railroad company as assistant general manager.

Houghton—The juvenile court bill has been amended in the state senate by exempting Houghton and Marquette counties on the grounds of expense.

Negaunee—Julius Johnson, chief of the Negaunee fire department, who, in company with Chiefs John Lacey of Ishpeming and T. J. Maney of Marquette, attended the annual meting of the International Fire Chiefs' association at Washington, has carried honors.

Hancock—The junior class of the Hancock high school has about completed arrangements for the presentation of a play and the giving of a dance party at Germania hall Nov. 15.

SUICIDE IN STREET.

North Dakota Man Takes His Life Before Crowd.

Cogswell, N. D., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the presence of fifty or more residents of this place, William Jahnke committed suicide in a sensational manner, Sunday afternoon, by shooting himself with a revolver.

He and his wife could not agree, and last spring he made an unsuccessful attempt to kill himself, then left this section. He returned Sunday, and sought in vain to induce his wife to live with him again. She declined, and Jahnke then threatened to kill her, but the city marshal interfered. A few minutes afterwards Jahnke walked out into the middle of the main business street and sot himself. He lived for more than an hour after the shooting.

DRIVING REINS CATCH TRIGGER

Gun Goes Off and Nygaard is Instantly Killed.

Orr, N. D., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Nygaard, a young man who recently arrived in this town, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a shotgun. Nygaard was out hunting, and was driving in a single seated rig.

He had the gun leaning against his breast. In some manner the lines became tangled in the trigger, and the gun was discharged into his breast. The gun made a fearful wound and Nygaard's death was instantaneous.

The young man was about 23 years old. He has been here but a few days and little is known of his family or home. No inquest will be held.

His Telegraph Frank—Turned Down in South Dakota.

Vermillion, S. D., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The anti-pass law in South Dakota proved its effectiveness here when Vice President Fairbanks, or rather his private secretary acting under him, was refused the privilege of sending a telegram over the Western Union line on a "frank." The secretary had never encountered this obstacle before, but did not care to argue the point.

Manager Totten of the Western Union says that since the anti-pass law went into effect in South Dakoat he has orders to refuse every "deadhead message" and that he was not going to take chances, even with the vice president.

The message was one to Kansas City to engage sleeping apartments for Vice President Fairbanks for his trip to Dallas, Tex. The secretary was obliged to hand over $1.57.

Was Working on Milwaukee Grade and Was Killed in Duel.

Dickinson, N. D., Oct. 23.—A shooting affray on the Milwaukee grade, sixty miles south of here, has just been reported to the authorities in this city. John Gilliland, a contractor, was instantly killed by a bullet through the head. One Devine fired the fatal shot, and was himself badly wounded from a shot fired by Gilliland.

The dead contractor had the reputation of being a bad man. L. M. Scrivner is at the Dickinson hospital as the result of a bullet wound in the leg, fired by Gilliland last week. Devine probably will recover, and it is not thought that any arrests will be made, as he is believed to have been justified in the killing.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Bismarck, N. D.—C. R. Lahart, a prominent real estate man of Underwood, was found dead in his bed at that place, death resulting from heart failure.

Dickinson, N. D.—Col. P. H. Swift, field inspector for the United States land office, has decided to resign his position and expects to be relieved about the first of November.

Kenmare, N. D.—The funeral of the late David R. Pierce was held with services at the family residence Sunday afternoon. The services, which were very largely attended, were conducted by the Masons, of which order the deceased was a prominent member.

Fargo, N. D.—Cyrus G. Heffner, a farmer at Deering, Ward county, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court. He places his assets at $3,995 and his liabilities at $2,161, of which $1,000 are exempt.

Minot, N. D.—John Mathewson, a Tolley, N. D., farmer, committed suicide Sunday by hanging himself in a shed. He was 65 years of age and left a wife and five children.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The United States marshal's deputies are busy issuing summonses for the petit jury for the next term of the federal court at Grand Forks on Nov. 5. Deputy McKay is at Minot issuing summons for the term at Devils Lake on Oct. 29.

Minot, N. D.—Chief of Police Hagen, who went to St. Paul with a prisoner, landed another bird in the person of W. F. Kelly, who is wanted in this county on the charge of stealing a load of grain. Kelly was captured in the postoffice, where he called for his mail.

Bismarck, N. D.—R. S. Hardy, a local druggist, pleaded guilty before Judge Winchester in the district court to failure to register an dadvertise his government liquor tax receipt, according to the new law passed by the last legislature, and which the supreme court has just declared constitutional. He was fined $100, which he paid.

Quinsy, Sore Throat, Neuralgia of the Nerves

MRS. WM. VAN GAASBEEK.

A remarkable cure was effected in the case of Mrs. Wm. Van Gaasbeek of 14½ Foxhall Avenue, Kingston, New York, who suffered a long time from Quinsy, Sore Throat and Neuralgia. After all other medicines failed, Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey made a permanent cure.

In a recent letter Mrs. Van Gaasbeek wrote:

"I have been a great sufferer for a long time from quinsy, sore throat and neuralgia of the nerves. I had tried almost everything but nothing seemed to help me. A friend advised me to try Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and after taking a half dozen bottles I was cured. Have never had any symptoms of the disease since. I recommend it to any one suffering from these diseases."

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture its palatability and freedom from injurious substances renders it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It is recognized everywhere as the unfailing specific for the cure of consumption, nervousness, typhoid, malaria, every form of stomach trouble, diseases of the throat and lungs, and all run down and weakened conditions of he brain and body. It restores youthful vigor to the old and maintains the health and strength of the young. It nourishes and feeds the vital forces. It is a form of food already digested. It is prescribed by doctors of all schools, is used in the leading hospitals of the world, and is recognized as a family medicine everywhere. It is absolutely pure.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It is the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Price $1.00. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Illustrated medical booklet and doctor's advice free. Duffy Malt Whisky Co., Rochester, N. # MAIL BOXES AS TARGETS

Hunters Violate Federal Law by Shooting Holes in Them.

Are Liable to Stiff Fine and Term in Prison.

Unable to find any real game to shoot in the woods, some of the Duluth hunters are said to be making themselves liable to a stiff fine and imprisonment by using Uncle Sam's rural mail boxes for targets. Some of the boxes look like sieves, and they would be of little protection to mail matter in wet weather.

The postal authorities are "next" to the game, too, and this makes it all the more likely that somebody is going to be punished for tampering with the mail boxes. Postal Inspector Munroe has been informed of the violations of the law, and is investigating.

One of the postal officials, who took a trip out in the country over one of the rural mail routes recently, says that many of the boxes are full of holes, and along some parts of the route hardly a box has escaped the bullets of the hunters. The boxes make good targets, and it seems to be difficult for men out in the woods to resist shooting at them.

The federal statutes say that anyone shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100, and not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not less than one year, and not more than three, for this offense. It is not the first time that the attention of the authorities has been called to this form of law violations, as the boxes are used as targets nearly every fall, when there are many men out hunting.

But the authorities propose to make an example of some of the violaters this year, and perhaps in the future there will be fewer mail boxes tampered with. Inspectors will be sent out and anyone caught shooting at, or otherwise injuring mail boxes, will be placed under arrest and made to answer for his fun.

The federal law relating to these violations is found in section 3869 of the United States statutes, and reads as follows:

"Every person who wilfully and maliciously injures, tears down or destroys any letter box, pillar box, or other receptacle established by the postmaster general, for the safe deposit of matter for the mail, or for delivery, or who wilfully and maliciously assaults any letter carrier, when in uniform, while engaged on his ruote in dicharge of his duties as a mail carrier, and every person who wilfully aids or assists therein, shall, for every such offense, be punishable by a fine of not less than $100, and not more than $1,000, or by imprisonment for not less than one year, and not more than three."

GOOD MONTH FOR SHIPMENTS

October Ore Figures Are Beginning to Loom Up.

Just a little more than a week of the month of October remains and if the weather continues as good as it has been, the ore shipments for the month will eclipse those of September, or equal them anyway, which is most unusual for October.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern road broke all its previous records in September. The total of shipments for the month made those of the previous high months look small, which was an innovation in ore shipping, inasmuch as all previous years have shown a perceptible falling off in shipments after the first day of September.

And to see the month of October overtaking September, or even tieing it, in the matter of iron ore shipments, is quite new.

As the situation looks now, it would seem that the Missabe's chances of exceeding the two-million ton mark in shipments for the month of October, are good. The figures are to be well on the way toward that large amount named.

The Duluth & Iron Range has been catching up somewhat during the month and should make a better showing than during September or the corresponding month a year ago.

FARMERS' CONGRESS

Concludes Its Business With Election of Officers for Ensuing Year.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 23.—The Farmers' National Congress adjourned yesterday, after electing the following officers for the year: President, Colben Hall; first vice president, Joshua Strang; second vice president, A. L. Stracy; secretary, George M. Whitlock; treasurer, W. L. Ames; executive committee, J. W. Strang, Miss Strang.

It was decided to leave the selection of the next meeting place to the executive committee.

ROADS ARE IMPROVED

Good Work Done on Highways Out of City.

Automobile Parties Into Country Now a Frequent Occurrence.

The Rice Lake road from the city to the Cloquet river, and the North Shore road eastward from Lester Park, are excellent examples of the good road work that has been done by the county this year in this vicinity. The roads named were never in better condition than at the present time, a fact that has been a matter of a great deal of favorable comment on the part of Duluth people who have occasion to ride over them.

Commissioner George Tischer, in whose district the roads are located, has used the funds appropriated for the improvement of the roads, to good advantage and the highways have been gravelled and packed down until they are almost as smooth as the proverbial floor.

The fact the roads are in such good shape has resulted in their use to a large extent this fall by local people who own automobiles and who wish to take a spin out into the country afternoons and Sundays. Within the past several weeks there has not been a Sunday but that several automobile parties have taken long trips out on the Rice Lake road, many of them going through to the Cloquet river. In some places where the grades were heavy the hills have been cut down in an appreciable degree and the gravel removed has been used to fill the lower ground on either side. By reducing the grades much has been accomplished in the way of making it easier for the farmers hauling loads to the city, and for those hauling supplies out to the country.

The Rice Lake road, especially, was in need of repairs early this season, and the county board made quite a liberal appropriation for its improvement.

A great deal of work has been done on the old Vermilion road, the East Duluth and Lester river roads and the Howard-Gnesen road this past summer, and the results have been very gratifying to those who have occasion to drive over those highways.

Out of Sight.

"Out of sight, out of mind," is an old saying which applies with special force to a sore, burn or wound that's been treated with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's out of sight, out of mind and out of existence. Piles, too, and chilblains disappear under its healing influence. Guaranteed by all Druggists, 25c.

BARNUM & BAILEY SHOW SOLD TO RINGLING BROS.

London, Oct. 23.—At an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Barnum & Bailey show yesterday, a resolution was adopted ratifying the provisional contract, providing for the sale of the property for $410,000 to Ringling Bros. of Wisconsin. With the other assets, this will give the shareholders $2 to $2.50 per share. When the company was formed in 1899, British investors almost fell over each other in their anxiety to purchase the stock at $2,000,000.

PASS BOOKS WERE FORGED

Is Statement of Bank Examiner Concerning Chadwick Securities.

Pittsburg, Oct. 23.—Contrary to expectations, no further steps were taken yesterday before the supreme court of Pennsylvania, sitting here, to have the deposition of the late Cassie L. Chadwick made public. The document was made by Mrs. Chadwick while a prisoner in the penitentiary at Columbus, to attorneys representing Mrs. W. C. Jute, widow of the millionaire coal man, who charges James W. Friend and F. P. Hoffstot with fraudulently obtaining $1,000,000 worth of securities belonging to her husband's estate.

The court Monday ordered the attorneys to file briefs, and it was thought the matter would be argued yesterday, but the case was not reached. The effort to conceal the deposition is causing much comment. Bank Examiner Charles Stark, who investigated the Chadwick case for the department of justice, said, regarding the pass books at Cleveland:

"In the full investigation into the affairs of Mrs. Chadwick in connection with the failure of the Oberlin, Ohio, bank, I found nothing which would connect any bank in Pittsburg or vicinity with her.

"I have no doubt that the pass books in question were a forgery, as were others which she had in her possession. I know in some instances of Cleveland and New York banks where she had similar pass books.

"In some instances all the entries in the pass books were forgeries, while in others the entries were changed. For instance, in some cases of New York banks I found that the original entry was $200, and this had been raised to $200,000. This system of raising deposits in pass books was carried on in many cases, and I visited many banks and found that this had been done, but I found no such condition of affairs in Pittsburg, and so concluded that the entire entry against the Pittsburg bank was a forgery. She was the most marvelous woman who ever wrecked a bank, in my estimation, and this I found out when I went after the evidence I was directed to secure to aid the department of justice. Not one-tenth of the evidence was used against her at the trial, which resulted in her conviction, and many of the details of her work never will be known, now that she is dead."

THE NEW YORK CRISIS.

It was too much to expect that the values of securities of all kinds could undergo such a tremendous shrinkage as that of the past few months without causing trouble in New York, the center of speculation. That trouble has come, and it is yet too early to predict how widespread it will be, though the atmosphere is hopeful, and the big men of finance are straining every nerve to avert serious results.

Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou is in New York, and he will undoubtedly contribute all that he can legitimately to steady conditions and restore confidence and credit. No trouble with the banks of New York is likely. The banking situation is sound, and now that the Heinzes, Thomases and Morses, whose methods have contributed a dangerous element of insecurity to banking conditions, have been eliminated, the situation so far as the banks are concerned should clear itself rapidly.

With the big Knickerbocker Trust company the situation is not quite so hopeful. Its president, C. T. Barney, of Barney & Berry skate fame, brought danger to the institution by his close business association with Charles W. Morse, so that the trust company trouble is a part of the Heinze-Morse-Thomas difficulty. He was removed, and an attempt made to meet the run on the company caused the exhaustion of its supply of ready money, and a consequent suspension of payments. This morning it looked as though the trust company would have to undergo liquidation, though it would be solvent in ordinary times, the other financial institutions appearing to have come to the conclusion that the situation will be safer if efforts to support it are not spread over too wide a territory. The Trust Company of America, another large institution, has asked for aid in anticipation of a run, and it will be extended freely.

The situation in New York argues no fundamental weakness in the financial situation. Certain bankers—who had no business to be bankers—have been plunging, and have thereby become involved in the stock market collapse. Every banking institution in which they are interested has become an object of suspicion, and that is the whole story. These men have "kited" their resources until they have suddenly proved inadequate, and they are down and out while the legitimate bankers are doing their best to repair the damage they have wrought. Everywhere else in the country banks and trust companies are sound and money is plentiful.

The condition makes very timely this comment from the Wall Street Journal, which gives forth a clarion note of truth, honesty, sobriety and commercial good sense:

> After all, is not old-fashioned banking the best—the kind of banking that regards a bank as a commercial institution intended to promote commerce, not a finance company for the purpose of promoting private speculations or speculative enterprises?
>
> Is not that kind of banking the best which looks upon the banker as a member of a profession, as the confidential custodian or steward of other people's money? Is not that banking the best which seeks to serve the public instead of the individual? Is not that banking the best which is the evolution from a neighborhood need for banking facilities rather than an evolution from some individual's desire to obtain the use of other people's funds for his own purposes whether they be beneficent or not?
> It does not follow because a man has made a conspicuous success in some line of enterprise and has amassed a great fortune in it that he is fitted to be the head of a banking institution. In fact, his very success in that particular line of business may incapacitate him in a large degree for the duty of a bank president.

A NATURAL OPTIMIST.

Justice Brewer of the supreme court of the United States, in a recent speech, had some good things to say about the negro that are worth considering. The black man has been a football of politics, of charity and of misguided reforms, but he has never had even the appreciation to which he has been entitled. He has either been lauded far byond his capacity by his fool friends, or condemned as much less than he really is by his unjust enemies.

Justice Brewer says that the negro is a good citizen, a native of the soil who is in sympathy with the letter and spirit of American institutions, and who is a safe and conservative power that tends to sweep aside the dangerous vagaries of white economists and politicians.

"The negro in his worst state," said Justice Brewer, "is a better citizen than the white anarchist or the foreign ignoramus. He never strikes; he has some respect for the majesty of law; he worships our God, enjoys our religion and loves our country. We should punish his offenses, be tolerant of his faults, patient with his failures, and with true missionary spirit endeavor to improve his morals and his religion. Many of the vast multitudes of immigrants pouring into this republic are racially cold-blooded and selfish. Not a few come tainted with the spirit of anarchy and are willing to destroy all social order in the hope of personal gain out of the wreck. These immigrants become citizens as we are citizens, and as is this colored and enfranchised race. The colored brothers are firm believers in social order. You will find no Most, Goldman, Czolgosz or Guiteau among them. In the struggle which may be expected to come between order and anarchy, may it not be that these people, grateful to the nation for their liberty and to the good people of the land for their uplift in knowledge, purity and social standing, will prove themselves a mighty force, upholding law, order and the supremacy of the nation?"

This shows rather a pessimistic attitude toward the immigrants that are making their homes in this country, but it does no more than justice to the negro. It is impossible for the negro, who is temperamentally happy and hopeful, to be a pessimist, and in order to be an anarchist and shout for the destruction of law and order it is necessary to be a pessimist. The optimist, even though he admits that great evils exist, realizes that evils will exist until the millenium, and that it is the duty of mankind to fight them and destroy them one by one. He does not believe that they can be remedied by a sudden upheaval, by a resolving of order into chaos, of law into anarchy. And of this school is the negro. He is an optimist, the most naturally and thoroughly optimistic of all the world's races.

The race problem is not so alarming as people used to think. The colored strain in the American nation is not increasing in proportion, but rather diminishing. What there is of it is no menace, but if it is uplifted and properly treated we can get along with it very well, and we may find useful lessons in contrasting the happiness and contentment of the negro with the bitter, ambitious, grasping discontent of many white people.

SOME PATRIOTIC VIEWS.

It is pleasant to note that most of the iron range newspapers that have discussed the new courthouse proposition in its latest phases have done so from a broad and enlightened viewpoint. They are conscious that they live in a great and rich county, and they believe that the new courthouse should correspond with that fact.

One or two of the range newspapers, however, have taken a different tack, though their course is apparently based upon misapprehension of the facts, and will undoubtedly coincide with that of the other newspapers when they learn the truth.

These opposing newspapers seem to have an idea, because the grouping plan is a scheme upon a somewhat larger scale than the first plan proposed, that it involves vastly greater expense to the county. It does not. The cost of the courthouse will be the same, whether it is built upon the site already purchased or upon one that will harmonize with the grouping plan. In the latter event a little more money will be required for the site, but not a great deal, and by the sale of such portions of the first site selected as are not used this extra expense will be largely overcome.

The idea is not, as at least one range newspaper seems to believe, to have the county purchase the whole group site and provide quarters free for the city and federal buildings. The county is to pay for its own site alone, and the government and city will have to take care of theirs.

It is simply a question of whether in building the new courthouse it shall be placed in a sightly and commanding position, at once scenic and convenient of access. The additional expense involved for the county is very small compared with that which the city will have to assume if it buys a site near the courthouse and erects a new city hall.

One range newspaper says that the ranges were ignored by the Duluth Commercial club when its mass meeting on the subject was held. That meeting was open to all citizens of the county, and The Herald in announcing it distinctly stated that each section should be represented. There were range citizens there, and they did not protest. The largest taxpayer on the range, the Steel corporation, officially declared its approval of a broad and picturesque plan.

The Hibbing newspapers have taken a correct, sensible and patriotic view of the matter. Says the Hibbing Mesaba Ore:

> St. Louis county is rich enough to build a county building that would over-shadow the capitols of many states, and the Ore hopes it will be done.

Says the Hibbing Tribune:

> As for us, so long as we are a part of St. Louis county, we are desirous that it shall have a public building in every way adequate—in size, in beauty of architecture, in fitness of location. If all the souls that ought to live in Podunk had had their way there would now be a tarpaper shack on Wabasha hill instead of the stately and beautiful marble pile that is not a whit too stately or too beautiful for the great state of Minnesota. The Tribune sincerely hopes that the county house of St. Louis county may in every way be as worthy of the county as the new capitol is of the state.

That's the proper spirit.

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT.

Fortified by abundant success in the states, the advocates of restricting the liquor traffic are preparing for a raid upon congress this winter, and they apparently have large hopes that they will be successful in securing the passage of a law which they have sought through several sessions, so far without avail.

The Prohibitionists have been hampered in their efforts in the states, they claim, by the fact that no matter how hard and fast a state temperance law may be, it will be more or less ineffectual so long as it is possible to ship wet goods into that state from other states. Being interstate traffic, the state laws have no control over such goods, and the thirsty residents in a Prohibition state are able to have sent in from outside the borders of the state all the liquor they want.

The Anti-Saloon league, which is back of the fight, will ask congress to pass a law giving the states jurisdiction over interstate shipments of liquor. Up to this time the allied liquor interests, which mantain an elaborate and expensive lobby in Washington, have been able to block the passage of such a bill, but the temperance folks confidently expect to get their measure, which is known as the Littlefield-Dolliver bill, adopted at the coming session.

The league claims that for years the federal government has thwarted the will of the people of the states by preventing the success, or even a fair trial, of state liquor laws. It is pointed out that while certain public men in demanding more power for the government have been complaining that the states no longer do adequately what they formerly did, the fact is that so far as the liquor traffic is concerned many of the states have been moving ahead right along, while the federal government has been maintaining obstacles in the paths of the commonwealths.

The temperance movement is unquestionably forging ahead rapidly. According to the latest statistics, the "uplift" has gone on until about 30,000,000 people are living in "dry" territory. Four states now have complete, state-wide prohibition, and twenty-one other states have local option. In the local option states the "dry" area, or arid regions, so to speak, have been broadening constantly, particularly in the South, where the majority of the counties of most of the states have driven the saloon beyond their borders.

While the extensive growth of the temperance movement in the South is unquestionably due to the race problem, the white people voting "no license" and prohibition in order to deprive the negro of liquor, in many states where the liquor problem is fought out solely on its merits the temperance sentiment is on the increase, and the dry sections are widening and becoming more numerous.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Blue serge suits are not so very much unlike each other, and the numbers 76 and 67 might be transposed if the bellboy on the job were not paying attention to instructions. One of the little Japs at the St. Louis was either thinking of flowery Nippon or was immersed in the latest adventures of "Jack, the Hero," as bellboys, both Anglo Saxon, Ethiopian and Japanese follow the fortunes of "Jack, the Hero" with a devotion that sometimes precludes the correct catching of commands from the desk.

The occupant of 76 had a dinner engagement Monday night. The blue serge had been sent to the cleaners with the engagement in view. The man in 67 had no special dinner engagement, had no engagement in fact, but had sent two suits to the cleaners Saturday; one of them a blue serge. When the bellboy knocked on the door of 67 and delivered the package, the occupant of that room neither took the time nor trouble to look at the name on the bundle, but continued to read Foxe's lives (not Charles Fox) with unabated interest.

It was waxing late. The occupant of Room No. 76 wondered why they didn't bring his suit. Inquiries at the office brought the statement that the blue serge had been sent up to 76. The bellboy who delivered the suit, had gone off watch; the man in 67 was so immersed in the lives that one Foxe has so graphically illustrated, that he failed to examine the bundle, which would have swiftly clarified the whole situation.

Half past six, seven, a quarter past and the desk was informed that the man in 67 had received a suit that did not belong to him. It looked like his at first, but it wasn't. Then the plot of the missing blue serge suit was straightened out. But when the clock showed the way to 7:15, the disgusted traveling man in 76 had abandoned the cherished dinner engagement, and was masticating food and swallowing hard words in the dining room of the hotel.

Traveling men say—and hotel owners bear them out—that all over the country hotel proprietors are complaining that the increased cost of living is striking with particular force against the hotel business. One of the Duluth hotels will abolish the American plan upon the first of the year, and traveling men say that a general movement has started for the doing away with the American plan in hotels throughout the country.

The increased cost of food has made the American plan dining room a source of loss to most hotels. Even some of the little hotels in towns of a few thousand inhabitants are adopting the European plan. With the dining room a continual financial loss, at the present high cost of living, it won't be long before nearly all the hotels have exclusively adopted the European plan.

Charles Pierce, who is at the St. Louis, says that the coming year will witness the opening of Alaska to the commercial traveler. Mr. Pierce has made one trip to Alaska in the interests of his house, and he says that the expense accounts that a commercial man piles up while selling goods in the Arctic regions are sufficient to appall the head of the house. Of course the prices paid for the commercial articles are much higher than in the states, but modes of travel and hotels make the invasion of the drummer a sort of foray into a country that as yet is not provided with the best accommodations for the Knight of the Grip.

Mr. Pierce made part of his territory with dog sleds. "Fancy the difference in the physical comfort that exists between riding in a Pullman cozy and warm and being jerked through atmosphere that fairly hardens the marrow in your bones," he says. The grill room, the openwork fireside, those little comforts that attend the life of the average traveling man, will give way to primitive conditions, and the traveling men who hit the trail for the frozen north will face conditions similar to those encountered by the drummers of the early days in the United States. It was the last complaint of the man who was obliged to travel for his livelihood that brought the American hotel up to its present plane of efficiency, so that the invasion of the traveling man to Uncle Sam's acquisition from Russia may have a softening effect upon conditions.

THE WEATHER.

This is the eleventh straight day of perfect weather. It has been a little cooler one time than another, but there has not been a drop of rain, there have been few clouds, and generally the sun has worn the smile that won't come off, the sky has been bright and glorious, and the days have been a procession of delights, this one bringing as many as any. The weather man looks for more good weather tomorrow, when it will be warmer though partly cloudy. Last night's lowest temperature was 32 degs., and yesterday's highest was 59 degs.

The sun rose this morning at 6:38 and set tonight at 5:07, making 10 hours and 29 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Fair weather continued in Northern, Central and Southwestern states. Disturbances central over New England states and Western Mexico caused light rains over the lower Missouri valley, Gulf states and California during the past twenty-four hours. A high pressure area has moved to Lake Superior attended by cooler weather in the Western Lake region, Upper Mississippi and Middle Missouri valleys. Falling pressures in the Northwest are causing milder temperature in Western Canada and the Rocky Mountains. Generally fair weather is indicated for this section tonight and Thursday."

LAUGHING GAS.

Washington Star: "So your boy has gone back to college."

"Yes," answered Farmer Corntossel; "an' I'm glad of it. He's done nothing but read books all summer. Now, maybe he'll get a little exercise."

"Why do you leave off the hips?"

"They won't be fashionable this winter."

Philadelphia Press—"Yes," said Hi Tragedy, self-complacently, "I am satisfied that I would make an ideal 'Hamlet.'"

New York Sun: Knicker—Does he play football?

Philadelphia Press: "When Jinks went home last night he found his wife fairly boiling with anger and weeping scalding tears."

"He remarked this morning that he had been in hot water."

Baltimore American: "Joakley was telling me he saw you in a restaurant yesterday," said Coakley.

"Yes," replied the new rich Kadley, "and I cut him. Did he tell you that?"

"No; but he said he was in constant fear that you'd cut yourself."

Houston Post: "Do you ever take your wife a box of candy or a bunch of violets?"

"Nope."

"And why not? Is she not as dear to you as she was beforo you married her?"

"Yep; but if I was to send her flowers and candy, she'd wonder what crime I was trying to cover up."

Chicago Tribune: "I don't look much like an athlete now'days, ma'am," said Wareham Long, with his mouth full, "but when I wuz young I held a champeenship fur two years hand-runnin'."

"Championship for what?" asked the woman of the house.

"Pie eatin', ma'am."

The Platitudinist.

If you'd win the world's applause in a-working of your jaws, in an oratorical way,
You should never be too deep, but be commonplace and cheap in a-saying of your say.
Do not scorn the platitude and you'll find your way bestrewed with bouquets of every kind and hue;
For A-One you'll not be rated if your talk is complicated—you should cut it down to two and two:
And hoi polloi will cry
As you wink the other eye:
"If we understand this speaker so very easilee,
What a singularly bright young man this candidate must be!"
Be eloquent in praise of the dear, old fashioned ways that have long since seen their day;
Boost the honest man of toil and the tiller of the soil in the same old sloppy way;
Praise the honest citizen quite as if that chap had been a discovery just made by you;
Laud the mother up, of course, as the nation's leavening force, and the crowd will yell "Hurroo!"
And when he goes away
Each listener will say:
"I could understand each thing this politician said to me.
Ah, what a high browed thinking man this candidate must be!"

—Denver Republican.

Happy Days.

What a happy time is coming,
What contentment we shall reach
When the frost is on the pumpkin
And the lid is on the speech.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1887.

William Hunter, generally known as "Long Billy Hunter," died yesterday at his boarding house. He has a brother in Superior, where he at one time tended bar for George Follis.

O. D. Cummings left last night on the United Empire for Port Arthur, where he goes to inspect the progress made upon the Crown Point mine at Silver mountain. It is in the vicinity of the Rabbit Mountain and Beaver mines and was discovered and located by himself.

James D. Ray to Snively & Craig, lots 13, 14, 15 and 16, block 113, Portland division, $3,000.

W. W. Spalding to D. W. Scott, lots 125 and 126, block 61, Third division, $1,667.

Advices from the Southwest state that a party of engineers in the employ of the St. Paul & Duluth road, is laying out a route for the extension of that road from St. Paul to Omaha. The survey crosses the Minneapolis & St. Louis road at Waseca and the Illinois Central at Fonda, Iowa.

There is considerable talk of forming an historical society in Duluth.

The Rev Mix of the Second Presbyterian church has returned from a trip to Minneapolis.

A. P. House of Cleveland, who has been here looking over his new four-story building on West Michigan street, has returned home.

On Oct. 20, Miss Helen McKinney, sister of F. W. McKinney, was married by the Rev. C. A. Poole to Edward Scarborough of New York.

Robert Williams, a former Duluthian, who is well known in this city, is fitting up a sample room at Tower and has secured the services of Ed Campbell as an assistant.

The Detroits won yesterday's game from the Browns at Baltimore, clinching their hold upon the world's baseball championship. Out of eleven games played, the Wolverines have captured eight, or a majority of the entire series of fifteen.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Albert Lea Standard: Minnesota, in the next Democratic national convention, will be for Bryan as long as he will permit the use of his name. Next, although he honestly and earnestly would not be president if he knew he could be, it ought to be and will be for John A. Johnson. It follows that only trustworthy friends of Governor Johnson, as well as of Bryan, should be on the delegation.

Deer River News: About as good an advertisement as the north part of the state could have for the development of its lands happened last week when four of the high up state officials interested in immigration and development bought for themselves several hundred acres of bog land in the vicinity of the Hartley island bog farm near Floodwood. The board can truly say it has faith in what it preaches henceforth.

Floodwood Broadaxe: There has been entirely too much talk about the "swamp lands of Northern Minnesota," and the impression has gone out that this part of the state was nothing but one great swamp—this is not true—with the lands cleared and good roads, there will not be 10 per cent of this land that could be called swamp in any sense. Help us to get settlers, assist us in making roads, and we will show you that the investment will pay a dividend.

Fairmont Sentinel: The Republicans of New York City have joined fortunes with their erstwhile hated enemy, William R. Hearst, to overthrow Tammany. The purpose may be praiseworthy but speaking of politics making strange bed fellows! Isn't this the limit?

Hallock News: Citizens of Minnesota have cause to feel proud over the splendid showing of its school fund. It now has the largest of any state in the union and has reached the enormous sum of $2,975,155. There are still nearly a million acres of school land unsold and besides this, the income to this sum from the enormous holdings in the iron properties in the northern part of the state will swell the fund still more in the years to come.

Hallock Enterprise: The nearest any Republican leader has come to proposing tariff reform is Secretary Taft, and he does not want to meddle with the tariff until all Republicans are united for revision. When such unity prevails the present generation will be where no tariff will bother them unless St. Peter has formed a trust in palms and angels wings.

Thief River Falls Press: To run for office and be abused, or stay out and let the other fellow get what is coming to him, is the question that is agitating the mind of the would-be city official.

Speaking of Nature F—k—g.

John Burroughs: A friend of mine was walking in the fields when he saw a commotion in the grass a few yards off. Approaching the spot, he found a snake—the common garter snake—trying to swallow a lizard. And how do you suppose the lizard was defeating the benevolent designs of the snake? By simply taking hold of its own tail and making itself into a hoop. The snake went round and round and could find neither beginning nor end. Who was the old giant who found himself wrestling with time? This little snake had a tougher customer the other day in the bit of eternity it was trying to swallow.

HALF MILLION FEET OF LUMBER DESTROYED.

Menominee, Mich., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lumber yard of the Oakwood Lumber company, near Talbot, Mich., was swept by fire this morning, 500,000 feet of mixed lumber being destroyed. The damage is $7,000. Insurance, $1,200. The origin of the fire is unknown, but is suspected to have been the work of an incendiary.

RAILROADS

RATE WAR IN PROSPECT

Erie Road May Slash Its Rate to New York.

South Shore and Other Roads Will Follow Its Example.

A rate of $18.50 from Duluth to New York city is a possibility.

There is a well defined and well grounded rumor that the Erie intends cutting the present fare of $16 from Chicago to New York to $10, and in that event the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic stands ready to meet the reduction by reducing its present fare from Duluth to New York from $22 to $18.50.

The rumored rate cut is scheduled to go into effect Nov. 22. The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic announces that it is ready to meet the Erie's cut by chopping $2.50 from its present tariff.

Should the Erie decide to make the cut it will have an effect on the through fares of the Chicago-St. Paul lines and the local traveling public will gain this advantage in the Eastern rates. This move by the Erie is thought by railway men to be the first of one that will be made in passenger rates by some of the Western and Eastern roads.

Other Chicago, New York lines will in self-defense, have to meet the contemplated cut of the Erie, and the general traveling public will reap the advantage in reduced rates while the reduction lasts. The preparation of the D. S. S. & A. to meet the cut of the Erie is only an indication of what other lines will do.

USE N. P. BRIDGE.

Wisconsin Central Will Run Over Rice's Point Structure.

Officials of the Wisconson Central and the Northern Pacific are negotiating an agreement that will give them the use of the Northern Pacific's Rice's Point bridge as an entrance to Duluth.

The agreement, if entered into between the two roads will be for a specified number of years. It is believed that five years will be the length of the agreement reached by the two roads. The terms of the contract will be based upon the value of the bridge, cost of maintenance, etc.

SUPERIOR NEWS

COUNCIL BOOSTS LEVY.

Superior Aldermen Refuse to Act on Mayor's Suggestion.

The council, last evening, boosted the tax levy to $275,073. This was done over the protest of Mayor Linley. The amount is $25,000 more than that originally recommended by the finance committee. The additional sum was attached to the levy to provide a sinking fund for the proposed new high school building.

Mayor Linley suggested other methods by which he thought the money could be secured without increasing the taxes. He claimed there is upwards of $200,000 in the local banks to the credit of the city and that there will be $80,000 saloon license money next year. The mayor claimed that there would be enough money to take care of the bonds offered for settlement and build a new high school.

Alderman Ekstrom moved that the mayor's recommendation be carried out, but the motion was tabled. Discussion over the levy drew out some sarcastic comments, in which one of the aldermen accused the mayor of making his suggestion for political purposes.

By a vote of 15 to 3, the council revoked the saloon license of A. F. Erdman. Erdman was convicted of "tiling the lid" several weeks ago. The aldermen who voted against the revocation of the license claimed that in being fined $400 Erdman had been punished enough. Erdman's attorney objected to the proceedings, claiming that the council had lost jurisdiction in his case.

Mayor Linley's veto to the ordinance giving the telephone companies thirty-nine months to remove their poles from Hammond avenue, between Third and Twenty-first streets, was sustained. Mayor Linley holds that thirty-nine months is too long a time for the companies to take action. He wants the speedy removal of the poles.

Body is Identified.

It is now definitely known that the man killed in the Great Northern yards Monday night was Charles Caswell. Mrs. Annie Zebott, 1810 Third street, visited Coroner Dudley's undertaking rooms yesterday and stated that the dead man had been a roomer at her house for over a year. Caswell was 38 years old. Mrs. eZbott could give no information concerning the location of relatives of the dead man.

Mayor Favors Cass Avenue.

In a letter to the street railway officials, Mayor Linley has intimated that he believes it would be best to run the Allouez extension line down Cass avenue instead of McBain avenue. He says by putting it there any friction with the city would be avoided. The mayor says that as the original plans called for a line on Cass avenue, the street railway officials should stick to this plan and not let any "interested public officials" change the route at their desire.

Garbage in his Pockets.

Sergeant Dwyer had an obnoxious task on his hands when he began to search Peter Kruke's clothing. Kruke had been arrested on a charge of vagrancy and when the sergeant began the search it was found that Kruke was a regular walking garbage wagon. In his pockets were found pieces of stale bread, a decayed onion, a snuff box and a quantity of cigar stubs, pieces of meat and an old pipe. A few small pieces of change were also found mixed up in the "garbage."

J. J. HILL SAYS

The Great Northwest Stands on Safest Basis in United States.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—"No part of the United States stands on so safe a basis as the Northwest," declared James J. Hill in an address delivered last evening at a dinner given by the St. Paul Jobbers' and Manufacturers' association, at the Minnesota club, in honor of William Magiveny, president of the St. Paul Union Stock Yards company. He based his confident utterance on the fact that the soil is the foundation of the prosperity of the Northwest, and it never fails so long as it is properly cultivated.

NEW UNIT INSTALLED

Great Northern Power Company Ready to Furnish More Power.

Increase in Voltage Will be Greatly Appreciated by Customers.

The Great Northern Power company has installed its second unit of 10,000 horsepower at the power house up the St. Louis river, and it was expected that the new unit would be in operation some time today, furnishing the additional voltage to supply the customers already using the electrical power.

Since the power company began operations several weeks ago, it has been furnishing a current generated by the first unit. This power has been utilized by the Duluth-Edison company, the street railway company, the carbolite works and the Berwind-White coal dock.

When the company began furnishing power it was known that the one unit could not furnish all the power required for immediate needs of the customers named, and the work of installing the second unit has been pushed forward as rapidly as possible.

It is claimed that with the two units in operation, the power company will have ample power for present needs and some to spare.

General Manager E. P. Coleman and Chief Electrician Frazee left this morning for the power station above Fond du Lac, but up to a late hour this afternoon they could not be reached to learn whether the company began furnishing additional power today, as expected.

Indoor Ball Team.

An indoor baseball team, which promises to be a whirlwind, has been organized among the professional and semi-professional ball players of the city. The boys challenge any indoor baseball team in the city, and will later extend their challenge to the entire Northwest. The membership of the team will probably include the following: Newt Randall, Si Bennett, Frank Summers, B. Bennett, B. Pfitzmaier, Allan MacCauley, Charles Irwin, Frank McGraw and Sam Menelce. Frank McGraw, Sam Menelce and James Leighty.

PAUPER IS VICTIM OF HUGE CANCER

Unfortunate is Thrown on Hands of Police Department.

One of the most trying cases that it has ever been the misfortune of the police department to cope with was furnished today in the person of a stranger, who appeared at the station, his face done up in bandages and countenance swollen to twice its normal size. The man could not talk or write, but a physician, who was called by Chief Troyer, discovered conditions so revolting that the indignation of the department towards whoever shipped a person in such a condition into this city, is only exceeded by sympathy for the poor wretch himself, whose life, at the best, can not run on another month, according to the examining physician.

An examination of the man's face under the bandages developed a hideous cancerous growth, which had eaten away the whole side of the face and jaw bone, leaving the tongue of the unfortunate man hanging outside the hideous cavity made by the cancer.

The sufferer will probably be taken to the poor farm, if arrangements can be made to place him there, isolated from the other inmates. An effort is being made to discover where he came from, and the authorities who shipped him into Duluth, for he is a stranger here. The physician pronounced it one of the most horrible cases of neglect and disease he ever witnessed in many years' practice.

FOUND GUILTY OF MISUSING HORSE

Albert Premert Fined Five Dollars by Judge Prince.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The absence of the county attorney rather congested the number of cases before Municipal Judge Prince and he was busy until 6:45 o'clock last evening. Among the cases considered was the state against Albert Premert for cruelty to animals. It was charged Mr. Premert maltreated a horse belonging to Eddy's livery barn a week ago last Sunday on the road going to Virginia. He was hauling telephone poles up the steep hill, and tried to make the horse bear an extra burden. Premert wanted a jury trial and this was secured, consisting of E. J. Millette, Matt Doyle, Alex McDonald, M. E. Nichols, M. J. Hoar and J. Murnik. T. P. Terry appeared for the state and Attorney Poirier defended Premert. The jury decided that Premert was guilty, but entitled to clemency. He was fined $5 and costs.

Paul Hudi was charged with larceny of $40 from Tony Betizt on Oct. 13. Matt Premovich appeared as witness for Betizt. Attorney Terry appeared for the defendant and Attorney Poirier for the prosecution. The case was referred to the district court. Hudi was held under $200 bonds.

Frank Liposeak was charged with assaulting John Brascovich. The latter's eye was badly injured Sunday evening so that a doctor bill for $48 was presented to the court. Liposeak was fined $25 and costs.

WANT UNION DEPOT.

Eveleth Business Men May Also Agitate That Subject.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many prominent citizens have urged the train committee of the Business Men's association to consider the matter of a union depot for Eveleth, in addition to better train service.

The citizens' grievances run strongest against the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, for the passengers from three coaches are let off the train in the mud, nearer the Spruce-Adams stockpile than they are to the depot.

In the station, thirty to forty men and women are often crowded together in a little room about 25x15, without a lavatory or toilet rooms. The little room is not partitioned off for men and women, so that the language used is too often unbearable for the women.

The company has promised to better the conditions, but has done nothing as yet.

MANY SCANDINAVIANS

Coming to Eveleth to Work in Mines—Other Events.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rev. M. Martinson has been doing valiant work in inducing Scandinavian laborers to come to Eveleth.

Many Scandinavians have arrived here and have found employment in the mines. They have been brought, it is believed, to take the places of the men who went out.

The Lady Maccabees of the World are to give a dance in the Vail hall next Thursday, the 25th. Music will be furnished by Flaaten's orchestra from Duluth.

Father Floyd has arranged to give a supper and card party this evening for the benefit of St. Patrick's church, of which he is the priest. Tickets will be 25 cents.

Frank Schrogg and Sam Dorfman of Virginia were in town Tuesday on business.

A son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Abram Rubinstein.

The program of the Crescent Literary society that was announced for the coming Friday evening in the high school auditorium has been postponed until Friday evening, Nov. 1, because of the Turner exhibit of pictures.

F. Marco of Sparta was in town visiting his sister and inspecting the building that is being erected for F. Rabinovitz.

The Fitger Brewing company has secured a judgment against Mike Bonda for $93.70. To meet the judgment Bonda's stock of liquor will be sold at auction by Nick Kent.

NEW MILL RUNNING.

Virginia Lumber Company's Additional Plant in Operation.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new mill of the Virginia Lumber company, which was started up Monday, is now running quite smoothly. A couple of bandsaws were broken Monday on account of some hitch in the machinery but these were the only setbacks of any moment.

The old mill will continue sawing until the lake freezes up, when it will be closed down for repairs and a night run started at the new mill.

VIRGINIA BREWERY

Has Installed Electric Dynamo and Other Improvements.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Virginia Brewing company recently installed a new pump with a capacity of 360 gallons per minute. A shaft was sunk and the pump placed therein at a depth of twenty feet so that it will be closer to the water supply.

The company has also contracted with Fairbanks, Morse & Co., for the installation of an electric dynamo and engine and as soon as it is installed the company will supply all electric light needed in the brewery. It is necessary to keep up steam night and day, hence the electric plant can be operated at very small additional cost.

RAISING ADAMS SCHOOL FOR NEW FOUNDATION.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Adams school is being raised so that a stone foundation can be put under the building. The building is used as a kindergarten and accommodates seventy-five pupils.

The foundation is to cost $26,000 and is to be put in this fall. The superstructure will be completed in the spring. It will contain six rooms and prove very convenient to the children living on the Adams location who have to go a mile to school under the present arrangement.

HIBBING BUYS HOSE.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—B. H. Hayes acted as president pro tem. of the council last night in the absence of Mayor Weirick and President F. A. Klass. The most important matter disposed of was the acceptance of the offer of E. J. Hilliard & Co. of Chicago to furnish 500 feet of fire hose at 75 cents per foot. An arc light was ordered established at the corner of Second avenue and Garfield street, as per petition.

SEWER CONTRACT

Has Been Awarded by the Virginia City Council.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last night awarded the contract for building the sewer in the "3-G" district to Charles C. Butler of this city for $3,078.64. Arc lights were put up at the corner of Hemlock and Mesaba avenues and Poplar and Central avenues. The fire engineer ordinance was adopted, but the appointment of an engineer went over and will probably not be made until the fire hall is completed.

NELSON WANTS MONEY.

Newly Appointed School Treasurer Goes After His Predecessor.

Aurora, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. F. Nelson, who was recently appointed school treasurer to succeed Charles Olson, removed, being unable to secure the effects of the office, and principally a large sum of money derived from the sale of bonds, has served formal notice on Olson to turn over everything to him forthwith. If this is not done, Nelson will begin proceedings in the courts. Olson is said to have asserted that he would ignore the demand, so a lively tussle in the courts is anticipated. The affair promises to cut quite a figure in the village spring election and the election next July, when a successor to President C. W. Williams of the school board is to be chosen.

BOARD OF HEALTH

Requested to Take Charge of Two Harbors Smallpox Situation.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The smallpox situation having become rather alarming, the city council has requested the city board of health to assume full charge and adopt severe measures if necessary to check the disease.

A request from Mayor Rofthus for an appropriation of $200 to be used by him in obtaining evidence against alleged violators of the law was laid over until the next meeting.

The quarterly report of City Water and Light Collector P. L. McAlpine showed $5,652.20 collections for July, August and September.

Two bids were received and opened for the proposed sewers on Fourth and Sixth avenues, and their consideration laid over until next Monday evening. They were as follows: Fourth avenue sewer—Hagsten & Johnson of this city, $3,631.70; Pastoret & Lunz of this city, $3,839.50. Sixth avenue sewer—Haugston & Johnson, $3,194.20; Pastoret & Lunz, $2,472.40.

FORTUNE IN ROYALTIES.

State Received Over Seventy-Three Thousand Last Month.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state realized $73,358.67 from its iron properties on the range during the quarter ending with September. This represents royalties of 25 cents per ton, and was turned into the treasury Tuesday.

In all, 295,944 tons of ore were taken from the state properies. This is a much larger onnage than was reported for the same quarter a year ago.

From the Yates mine was taken 67,640 tons, netting the state $16,907.50; Mesaba Mountain, 13,974 tons, realizing $3,493.57; Pool mine, 115,473 tons, netting $28,868.45; Alberta mine, 11,644 tons, for which $2,-911.24 was paid, and the Wacoutah mine, 87,212 tons, which brought the state $21,-177.91.

BOATS TAKE LUMBER.

Loading at Two Harbors and Hurrying Before Navigation Closes.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.) — Lumber business is brisk as the close of the season draws near extra efforts being made to send forward all the lumber possible. The Langell, Niko and Arizona are taking on cargoes and the Ashland is due for a load. The boats will probably make one more trip before navigation.

SCHOOL EXHIBITS

At Recent County Fair That Were Awarded Prizes.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Phoebe Wadsworth and Mrs. Earl Hunner, the judges of the school exhibit at the late St. Louis county fair, have announced the following awards:

Primary work—First, $5, to B first, Miss Grant's room at Center street school, for rug weaving; second, $2.50, to A first, Miss Colbrath's room at Central school, for paper work.

EXTENSIVE LOGGING

Will Be Carried on This Winter by Oliver Mining Company.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Oliver Iron Mining company will do considerable logging in the vicinity of McKinley and Mariska again the coming winter and probably on the Upper Cloquet river also. The company now has several million feet of logs in the Cloquet river above Brimson station which were purchased from Logger William O'Brien, when his holdings were bought up by them. They have not yet decided where the timber will be sawed.

TWO HARBORS BRIEFS.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following births were reported Monday: To Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Stott, a son; to Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Anderson, a daughter.

L. B. Arnold, land commissioner for the Duluth & Iron Range, looked over some of the company's land near Embarass, yesterday.

G. A. Tomlinson, the vessel owner, made a trip over the iron range, yesterday, in the private car of President T. F. Cole of the Oliver Mining company.

Richard McKenzie, an engineer, employed by the Barrett & Record company, was arrested Sunday by Game Warden August Tabor for killing deer out of season.

VIRGINIA IN BRIEF.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. A. Fider of Duluth, deputy for the Modern Samaritans order, is in the city endeavoring to revive the local council. He has secured a large number of new applicants and there will be many initiated a week from next Friday. Mrs. W. J. Merritt, who resides here, is also working for new members among the ladies with good success.

Mrs. Leah Heath Hancock has resigned her position as stenographer for Attorney McGray and will returne to her home at Superior.

DIRIGIBLE BALLOONS

the airships away at the same time, and if this arrangement is adhered to the spectacle will be one rare in the annals of the history of air navigation. The contestants are all similar in design, the gas bags or envelopes being of the cigar patterns, sharpened at both ends. Suspended from this envelope filled with hydrogen gas and by cords, which appear little stronger than spider webbing, are long, skeleton-like bits of wooden framework, triangular in lateral construction. The propellers at the forward end of this under-structure are driven by four gasoline motors, fitted amidships. The rudders are huge rectangular affairs of cloth spread on bamboo framework.

The coures of the race will be a right-angled triangle, the start and the finish being from inside the ballooning grounds at Forest Park. The contestants will be the "California Arrow," entered by Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin of New York and operated by himthe "Double Propeller," also entered by Capt. Baldwin and operated by G. M. Curtis; the "Beachy Airship," entered by Charles J. Strobel of Toledo, Ohio, and operated by Lincoln Beachy, and the "Strobel Airship," entered by Mr. Strobel and operated by Jack Dallas. The "Double Propeller" is of slightly different construction from the others, and as its name implies, has two propellers.

affirming the strong condition of the national banks of this city, also had a very good effect on sentiment, and served to relieve the apprehensions of business men that the curtailment of credits through the situation following the suspension of payment by the Knickerbocker Trust company might hamper the financing of general mercantile affairs.

Mr. Cortelyou's statement was as follows:

"I repeat what I stated before leaving Washington, if for no other reason than to emphasize the attitude of the treasury department. It will use its facilities to assist in every proper way legitimate business interests, and its action will be prompt and thorough.

"The national banks of New York are in an exceptionally strong condition. The general situation here seems to be well in hand and is being looked after by many strong and influential men, such as those whose recent action in the clearing house received emphatic public approval. The movement for similar concert of action among the trust companies should have a helpful and far-reaching effect. I shall spend the day at the subtreasury."

The unfavorable development of the night was the news that the Trust Company of America, one of the city's largest financial institutions, with deposits approximating $50,000,000 and total assets and liabilities in excess of $60,000,000 was in need of assistance. At the same time that it became known that the Trust Company of America had given a statement of its affairs to other bankers with a request for aid, it was also announced that liberal assistance would be given the Trust Company of America today and also that that institution had in its vaults $12,000,000 in cash with which to begin payment of its depositors today, should there be any unusual demand. It became known last night also that bankers generally did not regard the position of the Knickerbocker Trust company as very favorable and were inclined to permit it to go into liquidation.

As is usual in time of stress in London quotations on American securities were eagerly awaited today. The 1 o'clock prices showed only fractional changes and these were mixed, some stocks notably Baltimore & Ohio, and St. Paul, which advanced ⅞. Amalgamated Copper declined ⅞.

Lines of people began to gather early in front of the doors of both the Trust Company of America and the Knickerbocker Trust company. At 9 o'clock there were from forty to fifty persons at the main banking office of the Trust Company of America at 43 Wall street, and at the same time there was a crowd extending for more than a block from the Fifth avenue office of the Knickerbocker Trust company.

Oakleigh Thorne, president of the Trust Company of America, was at his place of business early in the morning. He made a statement to newspaper reporters who called on him to the effect that the institution was all right. "We have plenty of cash on hand and are prepared for all emergencies. We are facing the situation calmly."

A committee of accountants representing the bankers who have taken the whole financial situation in hand went into the offices of the Trust Company of America at 6 o'clock this morning and began an exhaustive examination of its books and the securities held in its vaults as collateral on loans. This committee expects to finish its labors by about 11 o'clock and at that time will report the result of its findings. It was learned on unquestioned authority this morning that if this report bears out statements made by officers of the institution last night verbally as to its condition, aid will be extended in whatever sum may be required to pay off the depositors who demand their money.

Every preparation was made by the Trust Company of America to meet any unusual rush and it was announced that three paying tellers would be on duty at 10 o'clock.

The crowd in front of the Wall street office of the Trust Company of America grew steadily, and at 9:20 it was estimated to number about 150 persons. The Knickerbocker Trust company also was surrounded by a constantly increasing number of persons who were waiting in the hope that the institution would open today.

The stock market opened at declines from last night's prices. Southern Pacific sold at 69, a loss of ⅞, Great Northern at a loss of 1½, United States Steel at 22, a decline of ⅜, Baltimore & Ohio at 81, a loss of ⅞, Amalgamated Copper at 44¼, a decline of 1¼, Atchison at 76, a loss of 1¾.

Northern Pacific sold at 168, a loss of 4 points, Union Pacific opened at 110, a loss of 2¼, and sold off immediately to 107½, from which it rallied to 108½.

Announcement was made today that Oakleigh Thorne, president of the Trust Company of America, had sold control of the Central of Georgia railroad, which he purchased jointly with Marsden J. Perry, last July. Mr. Thorne declined to say to whom the railroad had been sold. He admitted that the road had been sold to the Rock Island interests.

Secretary Cortelyou said today that he had nothing to add to his former statement. "I have nothing to add to my statement of last night. I will be here throughout the day, and as long as the situation seems to need my presence."

Mr. Cortelyou reached the sub-treasury at 9:40 a. m.

Acting State Superintendent of Banks Skinner took possession of the 66 Broadway branch office of the Knickerbocker Trust company this morning. Mr. Skinner said there would be no further resumption of business by the Knickerbocker Trust company until he has thoroughly investigated its condition.

In the corridors of the office of the Trust Company of America there were 600 persons when the hour for beginning business arrived. It was almost impossible for any more to enter. President Thorne said at that hour that he hoped to meet all demands, unless the depositors came in too large numbers. He said the company had not asked for assistance.

The clearing house committee was in conference with several bankers at 10:30 a. m.

After taking charge of the Knickerbocker Trust company, Acting Superintendent of Banks Skinner made the following statement:

"Under advice of the attorney general, I have taken possession of the Knickerbocker Trust company and its branch offices. The support to the institution, which was expected yesterday, has not been furnished. A bank examiner is in charge of each office. Payments will be received on obligations due to the trust company, but no payment will be made by the examiner in charge. Payments should be in cash. Collateral will not be surrendered until it is shown that it is not pledged for other indebtedness to the institution."

The scenes about the various offices of the Knickerbocker Trust company, early today, indicated the alarm felt by the public. A line of 350 persons extended from the main office along Thirty-fourth street, when a police captain announced in the corridor that the officials had decided to make no payments today. The depositors were reluctant to accept this, and demanded to know if it was official. Upon assurances that it was authorized by the officials, about 100 of the depositors departed, but at least 200 still waited in line.

There were 400 depositors waiting at the Harlem branch of the Knickerbocker Trust company, and 1,000 spectators watched them when the news came that there would be no payments.

Westinghouse Electric declined rapidly selling down to 41 at 12:30, a decline of 38⅜ from last night. At midday General Electric sold at 94½, a decline of $12 a share from yesterday's closing.

J. Pierpont Morgan has practically assumed command in financial circles in New York today. He is striving to bring order out of chaos and see what can be done to protect the large interests that are now in jeopardy. Up to this time there has been no organization among the trust companies' officers, and Mr. Morgan and James Stillman of the National City bank are earnestly engaged in an effort to bring about co-operation among these institutions. Wherever it is found that the management of any institution under suspicion has been sufficiently conservative to warrant rendering assistance, that assistance will be forthcoming.

When it became known that prominent banking houses were loaning money on call at the stock exchange at 6 per cent, the market became quieter, and a substantial recovery followed. St. Paul, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Great Northern preferred and Northwestern, the United States Steel stocks and Amalgamated Copper & Smelting rose to last night's level, or above. Chicago Great Western preferred "A" sold at an advance of nearly 4 points over the previous sale, and Colorado & Southern first preferred a point. There were sales of other inactive stocks at wide declines. United States Pipe preferred declining 15, United Railways & Investment preferred 3½, and New Haven and Mackay Companies preferred 3. The stock market turned quite weak again about 12:15. Reading sold down to 76¾, a decline of 4 points from last night, and Union Pacific fell to 107¾. The rate for call money rose to 90 per cent before 1 o'clock.

UNSETTLED IN LONDON.

But Promise of Cortelyou to Deposit Money Favorably Viewed.

London, Oct. 23.—The promise of Secretary Cortelyou of the United States treasury to place large deposits of government money in the New York banks created a favorable impression on the stock exchange here today, and the American section rallied. Prices started at a round parity, and improved during the forenoon on moderate support. Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Louisville & Nashville and Canadian Pacific showed an improvement of 1 point over the New York equivalent. The feeling in London, however, was still unsettled at noon, and the market was inclined to await the receipt of the New York opening prices before entering in on fresh commitments. Dealers do not anticipate any trouble at the settlement, owing to the smallness of the account open. British holders have been unloading Americans for some time.

BROKERS FAIL.

Firm of Mayer & Co. Suspends With Liabilities Amounting to $6,000,000.

New York, Oct. 23.—The assignment of the firm of Mayer & Co., brokers and members of the New York Stock Exchange, with liabilities amounting to $6,000,000, was announced on that exchange during the final hour of trading yesterday. Although there has been rumors that the firm's condition was weak the extent of their liabilities was greatly in excess of the expectations of most of the traders. It was announced that the assets might be sufficient to meet the liabilities and that the firm hoped to resume business, offers of aid having ben received.

THOSE LADIES' GLOVES AT THE COLUMBIA

drew such an immense crowd of women at the appointed hour this morning that the space available for the special sale proved utterly inadequate. The "squeeze" was fully as tight as that of the financiers who gathered this morning on the New York Stock Exchange, or that of the surging Chattanooga crowd which greeted President Roosevelt. It took away the breath of the floor managers who thought they had well provided for the comfort of our Lady Patrons. We must apologize, and yet we cannot hide our joy over the fact revealed, that the Columbia reputation for giving values and for doing exactly as they advertise is now so well established among the wives, sweethearts and mothers of our men and boy customers.

At this writing—just before noon—there is a good assortment of these $1.50 Women's Gloves left, in sizes 5½, 5¾, 6 and 6¼, but the larger sizes are pretty well thinned out. "Small hands" may have another chance tomorrow morning.

CONTRACTORS OFFER $3 PER DAY FOR LABORERS

Wages for common labour reached the point of $3 a day here today. It is stated by employment men that this is the highest point reached in the history of the city. Urgent need for men that cannot be secured for $2.50 and $2.75 a day was the motive that induced employers to offer an almost unprecedented wage scale.

A certain contracting firm, that has some work in the city streets that must be completed before heavy frost sets in, established the high water mark in the scale of wages for common labor, and other firms may be called on to make further advances over the high wages that are being paid at the present time for day labor.

The wages offered are for common shovelers. The firm in question wants about thirty men to do the work, but strange to say the scale has not resulted in a scramble for positions on the firm's pay roll.

NEARING HOME.

President Rapidly Approaching Washington After His Hunting Trip.

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 23.—President Roosevelt reached Roanoke at 8 o'clock this morning, the last day of his twenty-four days' outing.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 23.—President Roosevelt arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning and found awaiting him at the station about 1,000 persons. He spoke briefly from his car platform.

Speaking of his feast on game in the canebrake, he said:

"They were all good, including the 'possum."

Just before the train left Roanoke the president espied a boy crawling under the car and yelling lustily to some one to have him rescued, he succeeded in having the youngster dragged out just before the wheels began to revolve.

REAL ESTATE MEN WILL INVESTIGATE TAX LEVY

At a meeting of the real estate exchange, held today, it was decided to appoint a special committee of three to investigate the taxation on personal property and real estate that has been levied by the city.

Since the publication in The Herald of the increase in the tax levy, an increase amounting to approximately six mills, real estate men and taxpayers in general have been aroused. There is a great deal of complaint over the heavy increase in both personal and real estate taxes, and the action of the board of directors of the real estate exchange was made with the idea of investigating the cause for the tax boosting.

It was expected that the conference committee would take some action in the matter of reducing the rate somewhat. The failure of this committee to take the expected action has led the members of the exchange to look into the matter.

THE CITY'S POSITION

Conference Committee Gives Reason Why the Taxes Are High.

Says Actual Maintenance Expenses Are Lower Than Last Year.

The clerk of the conference committee, H. W. Cheadle, has prepared a statement at the request of the committee, outlining its position and giving reasons why the tax levy cannot be lowered. It is as follows:

"By direction of the conference committee of the city of Duluth the following is submitted as showing that the tax rate of the city is as low as good business policy will permit.

"There has been no increase whatever in the aggregate appropriations for the different operating departments of the city, but they are held down to the same appropriations as they had for the present year. There have been slight changes, some slightly increases and some slightly decreases, but, as stated above, there has been no increase in the aggregate. The total increase in the taxes levied by the city amounts to $78,250. The increase in the sinking fund and permanent improvement fund amounts to $31,825. It is thus seen that the total increase is caused by the increase in the sinking and permanent improvement funds. The increase of $28,750 in the sinking fund was occasioned by the necessity of paying maturing bonds of the old village of Duluth, due Jan. 1 next. These bonds were in the amount of $28,500, and provision was made at the time the city was incorporated as a city for a levy to be made on the taxable property in the city by the county auditor each year, which was supposed to be in a sufficient amount to pay said bonds at maturity. Either through insufficiency of levy by the county, or through loss of the funds so levied in banks becoming insolvent, there is a shortage in the sinking fund created by this special act and in the hands of the county treasurer to meet these bonds, and the city is called upon to make up the deficiency of approximately $70,000.

"The increase for the permanent improvement fund is for the purpose of making much needed public improvements, such as the repair and replacement of bridges in different portions of the city; the erection of a detention hospital; the erection of a police station at the West end; a site for a fire hall on the hillside in the vicinity of Fifth avenue east; a horse hospital for the fire department; a roof for the library building; and other similar public improvements.

"While the conference committee was unanimous in its opinion as to the necessity of these improvements, the desire to keep down the tax levy caused some city officials to vote for a less appropriation for this fund, but it was the unanimous opinion of the presidents of the different boards represented on the conference committee, which are representative business men of the city, that it would be poor public policy to postpone such necessary improvements, which idea was also advocated by commercial organizations and the public press.

"The increase made by the city for these purposes is 1.69 mills, while the increase made by the school board is 4.51 mills.

"The conference committee has nothing to do with fixing the rate of taxation, but determines the amount in dollars, which it is necessary for the different departments and funds of the city to have. As an incident to this question, it may be stated that while as above set forth, the general operating expenses of the city have not been increased, but rather decreased to the extent of $7,000.

"The levy for county purposes has been largely increased. The county rate, to be sure, has been decreased, but it has been so decreased by the action of the state board of equilization in increasing the valuation of the iron mines, but the county tax rate has not been decreased to the extent of the increase in the assessed valuation; and while we do not question the desirability of raising the amount of money, which will be raised by the county levy, we do consider that if any cut is to be made, it should be made by those bodies which have levied the increased amount of money. H. W. CHEEDLE,
"Clerk of the Conference Committee."

DID NOT SEND THEIR DELEGATE

Duluth Telegraphers Decided to Save the Money, Instead.

The special convention of the Commercial Telegraphers' union of America, called to consider the proper course of the telegraphers in the present strike, began its sessions at Milwaukee today.

Richard Jones, secretary and treasurer of the local union, was elected a delegate from the Head of the Lakes, but he did not go to the gathering, nor was any other member of the strikers' local organization sent.

The expense of sending delegates to the convention devolves upon the local unions individually, and the Duluth strikers decided they would not send a delegate, but use their money for other purposes.

Samuel Gompers and other high officials of the American Federation of Labor will confer with the strike leaders at Milwaukee.

PAY MORE FOR WEEDS

Price of Havana Cigars to be Heavily Increased.

Failure of Cuban Crop Causes Shortage in Supply.

Lovers of pure Havana cigars are warned to purchase their favorite brand of smoke at the present price of the weed, as an increase in the price of imported tobacco is expected within a very short time.

Leo Schoeneman, representing a tobacco company of Tampa, Florida, was in Duluth today and said that repeated failures of the Cuban tobacco crop, together with the effects of the recent revolution in the island has resulted in an increase of over 100 per cent in the price of imported tobacco. The shortage has become so serious that some of the larger manufacturers of pure Havana cigars are facing a curtailment in their output.

Unsettled weather this spring and through the growing months, contributed to decrease the output, and the Cuban planters and growers are experiencing a financial pinch as the result. They are charging the American importers a fabulous price for the raw material, but even at the heavy increase in price cannot begin to make up for the heavy crop failure.

Mr. Schoeneman was in Cuba two months ago, studying the tobacco situation there. He says that some of the plantations have been abandoned because of the repeated failures of the past three years. The planters and growers are discouraged over the adverse weather conditions and many of them have sought other lines of business.

Tampa, says Mr. Schoeneman, will be the largest tobacco center in the world within three years. The business men are perfecting a cigar label to be known as the Tampa label, which is to be employed as an advertising medium for the city. The Tampa cigars travel world-wide and the boomers of the Florida city are figuring upon making the industry of their town known the world over.

AMENDED PAPERS FILED IN COURT

William H. Murphy and Others in Battle for Iron Land.

An amended complaint was filed today in federal court in the case of William H. Murphy, Elisha H. Flinn and Selwyn Eddy, executors and trustees under the will of Simon J. Murphy, deceased, Geoorge C. Robinson and Elisaa Flinn and Temple E. Dorr against Malinda Tanner and Michael Cronin.

A stipulation was filed allowing the amended answer filed by the defendants to stand as the answer to the amended complaint.

The suit is a fight over a tract of land up near Sparta, which has now been found to contain millions of dollars' worth of iron ore. The land was purchased by Simon J. Murphy originally under the first survey. When he died, the executors and trustees and the heirs sued for its possession.

The defendants, claiming that the original survey was not correct, filed upon the land and are still in possession. The plaintiffs are asking that they be awarded possession of the land and the sum of $5.00 judgment to be paid by the defendants for holding it for the prolonged period.

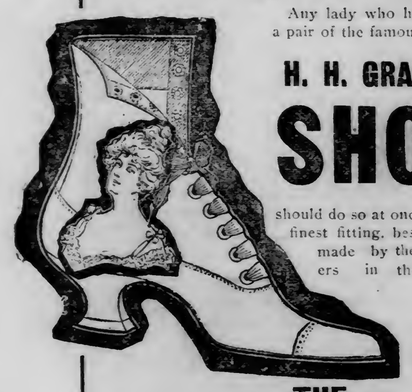

M. H. Stanford is the representative for the Murphy heirs, and J. B. Middlecoff and Theodore Hollister will conduct the case for Malinda Tanner and Michael Cronin.

POLICE MAKE IMPORTANT HAUL

Two of Gang of Alleged Boxcar Thieves Taken.

With the co-operation of the local police force Detective Britt of the Great Northern road today succeeded in rounding up the last of the gang of six alleged box car thieves wanted by the authorities at Virginia, charged with grand larceny on the night of Oct. 16.

The two men taken into custody today, Olaf Peterson and Swan Larson by name, will be taken to Virginia tonight. They were arrested today by the local police and identified as the men wanted by Detective Britt. Two others of the gang are in jail at Virginia, Erickson and Johnson by name, and a fourth, Richard O'Connel, is doing time in the county jail here. He will be required to face the charge of grand larceny when he is liberated.

The men, it is stated, were employed by the Great Northern railroad as laborers and during a wreck of a freight train at Virginia on the 16th of the month, it is claimed, they broke into a box car and appropriated a quantity of wine and other liquors to their own use. They have been trailed for the past week and are now all in custody.

CAVASIN'S SUIT NEARLY ENDED

State Admits Two of Forties Are High Land.

Two of the state's witnesses in the contest case instituted by Jerry Cavasin against the state, were examined this morning. The most important witness was Capt. Case, special agent of the state auditor's office, who testified as to the character of the land in dispute.

Mr. Case is a surveyor and is familiar with most of the land in the northern part of the state. Two of the forties, claimed by Cavasin, he says, are swamp. The state has admitted that the other two forties consist of dry land.

The Cavasin suit will probably be finished by the end of the session this afternoon. The next suit will be that of W. J. F. Schuman against the state of Minnesota. It is a case similar to that of John Cavasin and will be taken up tomorrow morning, if the Cavasin case is finished this afternoon.

Capt. Smallwood will represent Sohuman, and W. E. Culkin will defend the claim of the state.

RECEIVED SAD NEWS.

Chief Troyer Called to Funeral of His Aged Mother.

Chief of Police Troyer received a telegram today announcing the death, at Goshen, Ind., of his mother, Mrs. Seth Troyer, and will leave tonight, on the 5:15 train, to be present at her funeral.

Mrs. Troyer was 73 years of age at the time of her death. She is mourned by her husband and four children, two daughters and two sons, all of whom reside in Indiana with the exception of Chief Troyer of this city.

ANNUAL MEETING.

San Francisco, Oct. 23.—Stockholders of the Western Pacific Railroad company held their annual meeting yesterday and re-elected the present board of directors.

Great progress has been made during the summer and autumn. Five hundred and twenty miles of the road has been graded between Salt Lake City and San Francisco, 240 miles of track has been laid and work has been commenced on the 1,600 foot tunnel near this city. Grading has been completed on both sides of this tunnel, which has already been excavated to a distance of 500 feet.

FALLEN PIER IS REMOVED

Channel Through Northern Pacific Bridge is Again Opened.

Has Been Dredged Out Deep Enough for Big Boats.

Notice was given out this morning by the government engineer's office that the north opening of the Wisconsin draw of the Northern Pacific bridge has been dredged out and is again ready for navigation.

The opening has been obstructed for several weeks by the debris of the wrecked pier of the bridge, which was knocked into the water by the steamer Hoover & Mason.

Capt. James Reid had the contract for dredging of the channel. It was necessary to use dynamite to remove the pier.

The engineer's office notifies masters that the channel is now dredged deep enough for the big boats.

CAPTAIN KENT FINED.

Failed to Have Name as Master Properly Endorsed.

Capt. A. H. Kent, master of the supply boat Superior owned by the Pittsburg Steamship company and stationed at Sault Ste. Marie, has been fined $10 by the customs authorities. As the boat is enrolled at Duluth the fine was imposed by Collector Wilcutts of this port.

Failure of Capt. Kent to have his name as master of the supply boat properly endorsed on the ship's papers when she was boarded by an officer of the United States revenue cutter Tuscarora on Oct. 19 is the cause of the fine being imposed.

The officers of the Tuscarora are said to have reported another violation of the rules by some steamer, but the name has not been given out and the fine has not yet been imposed.

INSPECT NEW BOAT.

Boilers of Bope Looked Over---Ship is Measured.

Capt. John Monaghan and M. F. Chalk, United States steamboat inspectors, were in Superior this morning, where they were inspecting the boilers of the new steamer H. P. Bope which will be placed in commission next week. They will make a complete inspection of the steamer when she comes out.

The customs officials have taken the official measurement of the new freighter and the papers have been filed at the Duluth office. Officially the Bope has a gross tonnage of 5,750, and a net tonnage of 4,422. Her total length is 540 feet, breadth 56 and depth 30.

The Bope is owned by the Standard Steamship company of this city and will be enrolled at the local customs house as soon as her official number is received from Washington.

Swedish Steamer Loads Grain.

The Swedish tramp steamer Tollux, which arrived in the harbor last week, is loading grain at the different elevators today and will clear for lower lake ports soon. She was moved from Alger-Smith slip on Rice's Point last night and after being overhauled and repaired. The little steamer has been an object of considerable interest since coming to this port and many visitors have been aboard her.

Steamer St. Paul Overdue.

Mackinaw, Oct. 23.—The steamer St. Paul, which passed through the Straits of Mackinaw at 4:40 p. m. yesterday, had not reached Gladstone, according to dispatches received from that point last night. It is feared the ship has met with some mishap while crossing the end of Lake Michigan, although it is possible she has sought shelter at some point from the strong northwest winds.

Loading Cargo of Hay.

The little supply steamer Hilton, belonging to the John Schroeder Lumber company, was taking on a cargo of hay and merchandise at the Fifth avenue slip for the lumber camps belonging to the company along the south shore. Capt. Manning Kilton is the master of the steamer.

Car Shortage Affects Trade.

Cleveland, Oct. 23.—Coal is very scarce on account of the shortage of cars, and boats in some cases are having trouble in getting fuel. Several steamers had to leave Conneaut without enough coal to take them to the Head of the Lakes, and they will have to stop at river points for fuel. The car shortage is being felt in the grain trade, and dispatch with Buffalo will be slow after this week. Grain carriers are in fair demand at Duluth, and vessel capacity to move over 500,000 bushels was chartered today at 2½ cents. Ore boats for spot loading are scarce.

Captain Commits Suicide.

Green Bay, Oct. 23.—Capt. Henderson of the steamer Bermuda, which arrived here from Quebec with a cargo of pulpwood Friday, committed suicide by hanging himself. It is believed that ill health prompted the deed, as his accounts are all in good condition.

Barge Wayne to Be Repaired.

Cleveland, Oct. 23.—The wrecked lumber barge Wayne, which recently passed Detroit bound for the lower lakes in tow of the Great Lakes Towing company's tug Abner C. Harding, has arrived at Cleveland, where she will be overhauled and repaired for next season. The Wayne was driven ashore on Lake Superior last fall and was released three weeks ago by the wrecking tug Favorite. The Harding is on the way to Buffalo and will tow a new lighter from there to Port Huron, where she will be stationed in the future. The Harding is ninety feet over all, is strongly built and will be a great ice smasher.

BIG GERMAN BALLOON REACHES THE ATLANTIC.

traveling very slowly and in an easterly direction.

A message received in this city today says that two balloons passed over Wilmington, Del., this morning.

The weather bureau today received a dispatch from Maj. Hersey, reporting his landing in the United States balloon at Caledonia, Ont., at 5:15 o'clock yesterday and that he would leave for Milwaukee tomorrow.

Detroit, Oct. 23.—A balloon is reported anchored this morning on the farm of John Rhode at Anchorville on Lake St. Clair, forty miles above Detroit. Its identity has not yet been learned, but reporters have gone from Mt. Clemens and Marine City, the nearest points, and it is expected that the name of the balloon and its occupants will be learned soon.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 23.—A long distance telephone message to the News Leader from Mineral, Louisa county, says that a balloon passed over Armonious Mines near that city at 7:35 this morning. It was heading northwest. There were two men in it.

LANDS IN CANADA.

The Big Balloon United States Descends After Covering 700 Miles.

St. Louis, Oct. 23.—The beginning of the end of the greatest balloon race ever held in America, the second contest for the International Aeronaut cup, was signalled last night by the landing of the American balloon "United States" at a point twelve miles south of Hamilton, Ont., near the shores of Lake Ontario.

The "United States" is believed to have held the lead in the race at the time of landing, and in its twenty-five hours of flight from St. Louis has covered a distance of about 700 miles in an airline. The United States is the present holder of the cup and the record of the race having established it in the flight from Paris last year at 402 miles. The pilot of the balloon is Maj. F. B. Hersey of the United States weather bureau at Washington, who acted as aid to Lieut. Lahm of the United States army, who piloted the balloon in its winning race of 1906. Lieut. Lahm was too ill to participate this year.

The nearest rival to the United States is believed to be the big chrome yellow German cruising balloon, the Pommern, which was last reported as whirling across Lake Erie in the teeth of a thirty-five-mile gale.

WOMAN LOSES MIND

Over Her Terrible Mistake in Shooting Editor for Burglar.

Kenmare, N. D., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Assistant States Attorney Murphy returned yesterday from Columbus, where he investigated the circumstances surrounding the death of I. P. Neal, editor of the Columbus Reporter, who was shot at that place last Wednesday evening by Mrs. R. C. Rasmussen, who mistook him for an intruder. After investigation, the coroner's jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by a shot fired by Mrs. Rasmussen, who was prompted by fear that her life was endangered from the fact that a tough element threatened the citizens that night.

Although led to believe that Neal is still alive, Mrs. Rasmussen is temporarily insane, and little hope is entertained for complete recovery from the terrible shock.

Tired, Nervous Mothers

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of hysterics, is unfit to care for children; it ruins a child's disposition and reacts upon herself. She is a source of misery to every one who comes under her influence, and unhappy and miserable herself. She cannot help it, as her condition is due to shattered nerves caused by some feminine derangement, with backache, headache, and all kinds of pain, and she is on the verge of nervous prostration. Proof is monumental that nothing is better to regulate a woman's health than

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I was a wreck from nervous prostration. I suffered so I did not care what became of me, and my family despaired of my recovery. Physicians failed to help me. I was urged to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I want to tell you that it has entirely cured me. I think it is the finest medicine on earth, and I am recommending it to all my friends and acquaintances."

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I was in a terribly run down condition and had nervous prostration caused by female trouble, in fact I had not been well since my children were born. This condition worked on my nerves, and I was irritable and miserable. I had tried many remedies without getting much help, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me back to health and strength. It has also carried me safely through the Change of Life. I cannot too strongly recommend your medicine."

MRS. PINKHAM'S INVITATION TO WOMEN.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to communicate promptly with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. She will hold your letter in strict confidence as indicated by the fact that every private letter received by her during the last twenty years, and more, she now has in the Company's laboratory under lock and key, and no testimonial has ever been published without special written permission. Her advice is free and always helpful.

SPORTS OF THE DAY

WINS GAME IN WEST END

Northern Hardware Roller Polo Team Wins by 3 to 1 Score.

Games Will Soon be Played in Temple Rink.

The Northern Hardware company roller polo team scored a victory over the Lincoln Park team in the first decisive game of the year, by a score of 3 to 1. The game was played before a large crowd at the Lincoln Park roller rink and the play was of the whirlwind order all the way through.

In a former game this season, the teams had tied, and the big end of the count last night meant the start of a clean record. Both teams played fiercely and so well matched were they, that the result was by no means certain until time was called.

The Northerners had it on the West end boys on the defensive. Furni at cover and Fenton in the goal put up a great game, stopping the fast Lincoln Park forwards time after time, when they passed the Northern forwards and were off for the goal.

The Duluth forwards played fast polo all the way and kept their men well checked. Dietz shone, his speed and excellent stick handling being a constant source of worry to the West end men.

The first score of the game was made after about eight and one-half minutes of play, Dietz netting the ball. In four minutes he repeated the trick, the half ending with the score standing 2 to 0. Winters of the hardware men made it three early in the second half and from then until nearly the end of the half, the teams battled without a count. Shortly before time was called, the West end boys, after bombarding the Northern defense fiercely, succeeded in eluding them and sending the ball into the net for their only score.

The teams lined up as follows:

| Northern Hdw.— | | Lincoln Park. |
|---|---|---|
| Dietz | center | Olson |
| Cummings | left rush | Swanstrom |
| Winters | right rush | Hart |
| Furni | cover point | Mitchell |
| Fenton | goal | Nelson |

It is very probable the two teams will meet again soon for their third contest of the year. Arrangements have been made, whereby roller polo will be played at the Temple rink on Second avenue east this year, and the next game will probably be played there. The Temple rink is large enough for the game and the floor good, but there has been some doubt as to placing a crowd. Now, however, the gallery has been enlarged considerably and a crowd can be taken care of pretty well. It is expected several other teams will be organized soon and the Nemadjis of Superior will also get into the game, so that the sport will flourish during the fall months.

DULUTH TEAM IS DEFEATED

Bowlers Drop Three Straight Games on Superior Alley.

Last evening at the Banks alleys in Superior, the first three of a series of six games between Duluth and Superior teams for a side bet of $25 were played, resulting in three straight defeats for the Duluth five. Duluth didn't have a look all the way. Buckman of the Superior team took down the high score with 196 and high average with 121 2-3, while the high score of the Duluth crowd was 181 by S. Olson.

The scores were low, but not inordinately low for this time of the year, when the bowlers are just getting back to the alleys after a rest during the warm season. The Duluth team is capable of a much better showing than they made last night and they expect to show Superior up before the season is over.

The remaining three games of the series will be played here tomorrow night and the Duluth five hope to get back on an equal footing by taking three straight. Should they do so, an extra match of three games will be rolled to decide the winners.

Last night's scores are as follows:

| Superior— | 1 | 2 | 3 | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|

CENTRALS ARE LIGHT

Average Weight of High School Team is 144 Pounds.

Are Making Ready for Hard Geme at Superior Saturday.

Coach Colton put the Central high school squad through another hard practice last evening in preparation for the game at Superior next Saturday, when Duluth Central and Blaine will contest for Head of the Lakes honors.

The squad looks good to Colton now. Last Saturday the team handled itself much better than in the previous games this year, and Colton hopes to continue the improvement this week, so that Blaine will find itself up against a hard proposition next Saturday.

There has been considerable discussion as to the weight of the team. Yesterday the manager and coach decided to settle all discussion by weighing the men. The team which faced Minneapolis Central last Saturday and will face Blaine this coming Saturday, was weighed individually and the average weight was found to be 144 pounds stripped. The average is about normal for a high school team and Duluth certainly does not depend on weight for its victories.

There is a possibility that Ostergren will be back on the squad before the season ends. He suffered an injury to his wrist some days ago, and was out of the game last Saturday, but is coming around nicely and may be out again soon. Duncan, who is filling the place at end, is putting up a plucky game, but he is rather light and the heavy Minneapolis team swept him off his feet several times Saturday. Ostergren is a veteran and he would probably strengthen the team, provided his wrist regains its full strength. He will not be in the game next Saturday, however.

Reports from Superior indicate that Blaine will send a strong team on the field. Burr and Buchanan, the old high school men coaching the team, are whipping the squad into shape this week and are hopeful of its showing. Henry A. Schofield of Nelsonville, Wis., an old University of Wisconsin man, will act as one of the officials at the game and it is expected that Doane, the former Minnesota player, will be secured to act as the other. Preparations are being made at Superior to care for a crowd of from 1,500 to 2,000 people and as the game is the only big one at Superior this year, it is expected fully that number will be present.

INDOOR BALL GAME.

The Policemen and Naval Brigade Teams Will Meet.

The first indoor baseball game of the season in Duluth will be played tomorrow evening, at the Armory, when the policemen and the team of the second division of the Minnesota Naval brigade will meet. The cops have been practicing for some time, and they are no novices at the game. The marines haven't shown their skill previously, but they think they can take care of the guardians of the law.

The game will inaugurate a season of indoor baseball, which promises to be the most successful in years. The two militia companies have teams in the field, and they will be sent against each other in a week or so. With the four aggregations playing to keep the game alive, it should have little trouble holding its head above water this season.

WILL WRESTLE WITH BULL.

Athos Has Queer Stunt to Do at Metropolitan.

Athos, a French wrestler, with the Imperials company at the Metropolitan this week, will attempt to down a bull, as a side attraction to the regular performance Friday night.

Athos is a strong man and he adopts a peculiar manner of demonstrating the fact. Last week at St. Paul he tried the bull a couple of times and succeeded once. He picks an animal up in every city he visits and usually succeeds in getting a fall. The bull he is to tackle Friday night is one designed for a kosher meat market here and is described as a ferocious specimen of his kind.

Sweet Marie Loses.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Major Delmar defeated Sweet Marie in a match race for a purse of $2,500 at the Hudson river driving park yesterday, winning two out of three heats. The race was the three fastest heats ever trotted on the track.

ASHLAND IS PREPARING

Wisconsin Town Will be Enthusiastic Over Skiing Next Year.

Will Discourage Cash Prizes for All Its Tournaments.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 23.—It has been decided to conduct an interstate tournament at Ashland New Year's day, provided the Duluth club does not hold the national tournament on that day, and the national meeting will most likely take place early in February.

The Ashland club has authorized its new officers, Alex. Holter, president; Barney Jacobs, vice president; Arthur Stensland, secretary; Louis Sollie, treasurer; A. Stenshaug, captain, and Sam Angvick, second captain, to receive bids for rebuilding the trestle and grading the hill to the proper pitch, and the work will soon be started. The officers hope to make possible jumps of over 100 feet. In the tournament held at Ashland last year, the longest standing jump was ninety-two feet, but a few days later an Ashland man cleared 106 feet.

The Ashland club is to provide a club house for the members, and weekly tramps are to be enjoyed. The membership fee has been reduced to $1, and it is the intention of the officers to make the club the largest in the history of the country. Ashland has several fine riders among its members, among them Tolleff Hemmestvedt and Christ Wold. The latter participated in several tournaments last winter, doing exceptionally good work.

The question of prizes will again be up the coming winter. Some of the riders are still openly opposed to trophies. Last season at the tournament at which trophies were given the winners there were not as many of the best riders entered as at the meetings where cash prizes were offered. The officers of the association will do their best to discourage the giving of cash prizes, but it is doubtful if the practice will be entirely abandoned the coming winter. The question will soon be up to the Duluth club, which expects to make its tournament one of the biggest affairs of its kind ever held in this country. There are some clubs holding membership in the association that will not offer cash prizes the coming winter, and Ishpeming will likely be one of them. It is also expected that the Bovey, Minn., club will offer trophies for its annual tournament.

CANNOT RACE LONGBOAT.

Americans Ordered Not to Compete Against Indian.

New York, Oct. 23.—Secretary Dixon of the Amateur Athletic Union has forwarded a letter to the National Registration commission of the organization saying that it has been brought to his attention that several runners registered in the A. A. U. purpose taking part in long distance races in Canada, and that permits have been issued for registered American athletes to compete. He adds that Tom Longboat, the Indian, and Coley, both Canadian long distance men, have been suspended by the A. A. U. for running in the United States without permission, and warns American athletes that they must not run against them.

They Want Games.

The Jefferson Juniors, the football team of the Jefferson school, is looking for games with other midgets of the city. The boys scale about 90 pounds each, and they are willing to take on anything of their weight. They know the game, too, for they have defeated several other featherweight aggregations.

Munch is Coming.

Joseph N. Munch, champion roller skater of the Northwest, is coming to Duluth next week to go against all comers at the Temple rink. Munch is a fast man, but Duluth will probably send some skaters against him, who will force him to show his speed.

DeWitt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve is good for little burns and big burns, small scratches or bruises and big ones. Sold by all druggists.

SUNDAY SPORTS ARE CONDEMNED

Lay Delegates to Methodist Conference Score Such Things.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pool rooms, slot machines, blind pigs and Sunday desecration were emphatically condemned at the conference of lay delegates to the Methodist conference, which was held here at the Baptist church.

"Sunday desecration is one of the greatest evils in North Dakota," said Mr. Tasker of Carrio, one of the lay delegates. "Baseball games are held on Sunday in almost every city and village in the state. There seems to be no organized opposition to Sunday baseball. The lay members of the church need an awakening."

"What the people need is a little more backbone," said another delegate. "We have plenty of law which prohibits Sunday desecration. What we need is a body of citizens who will stand up and insist that the law be enforced."

"I think that we should go after the pool rooms," said another delegate. "Down in my town of Lakota, there are three pool rooms, and they are running day and night, seven days in the week. I believe that these institutions are a disgrace to our country."

S.S.S. A CERTAIN SAFE TREATMENT

S. S. S. is the only safe and reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It is purely vegetable, made entirely from healing, cleansing roots, herbs and barks, and in addition to curing this vile disorder, S. S. S. builds up every part of the system. Mercury and potash cannot cure the trouble; they can only mask it in the system for awhile, and when they are left off the disease returns, usually, in worse form than before, and the patient finds he has damaged his health with these strong minerals, which disease the delicate lining of the stomach, affect the bowels, produce chronic dyspepsia and often set up Mercurial Rheumatism. It will not do to trifle with a disease so powerful as Contagious Blood Poison, for every day it remains in the blood it is progressing toward a dangerous stage, and will in the end get beyond the control of any treatment. S. S. S. cures blood poison in the right way, it goes down into the circulation and removes every particle of the virus. No bad results are ever experienced from the use of S. S. S. It is gentle and pleasant in its action, and forty years of cures warrant the statement that S. S. S. is not only a safe but a certain treatment. Marion, Ohio, Oct. 23.—The westbound Erie passenger train No. 15, and the eastbound freight No. 36, collided late last night three miles west of this city, the result of a misunderstanding of orders. William Hoover, aged 65, of this city, an Erie machinist, was instantly killed. William Carpenter, a traveling man of Philadelphia, was injured internally, but may recover. Agnes Baker of Lima was cut by broken glass and suffered a dislocated shoulder.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

Of Missouri Will Defend Young of Minnesota in Contempt Proceedings.

Jefferson City, Mo., Oct. 23.—Herbert Hadley, attorney general of Missouri, was yesterday requested to defend the attorney general of Minnesota in a contempt proceeding before the supreme court of the United States. The request came in a personal letter from Edward T. Young, the attorney general of Minnesota, who has been adjudged guilty of contempt by the United States circuit court of that state in the prosecution of a rate case. He will apply to the United States supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus to test the power of the lower court. Attorney General Hadley has notified Mr. Young that he will defend him.

The Temple rink is large enough for the game and the floor good, but there has been some doubt as to placing a crowd. Now, however, the gallery has been enlarged considerably and a crowd can be taken care of pretty well. It is expected several other teams will be organized soon and the Nemadjis of Superior will also get into the game, so that the sport will flourish during the fall months.

DULUTH TEAM IS DEFEATED

Bowlers Drop Three Straight Games on Superior Alley.

Last evening at the Banks alleys in Superior, the first three of a series of six games between Duluth and Superior teams for a side bet of $25 were played, resulting in three straight defeats for the Duluth five. Duluth didn't have a look all the way. Buckman of the Superior team took down the high score with 196 and high average with 121 2-3, while the high score of the Duluth crowd was 181 by S. Olson.

The scores were low, but not inordinately low for this time of the year, when the bowlers are just getting back to the alleys after a rest during the warm season. The Duluth team is capable of a much better showing than they made last night and they expect to show Superior up before the season is over.

The remaining three games of the series will be played here tomorrow night and the Duluth five hope to get back on an equal footing by taking three straight. Should they do so, an extra match of three games will be rolled to decide the winners.

Last night's scores are as follows:

| Superior— | 1 | 2 | 3 | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| W. Hutchinson | 157 | 142 | 140 | 439 |
| E. Huber | 128 | 132 | 140 | 380 |
| W. Wiggins | 168 | 174 | 146 | 488 |
| E. Buckman | 182 | 159 | 146 | 488 |
| H. Trojnick | 147 | 189 | 199 | 526 |
| Duluth— | 1 | 2 | 3 | Total |

S.S.S. A CERTAIN SAFE TREATMENT

S. S. S. is the only safe and reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It is purely vegetable, made entirely from healing, cleansing roots, herbs and barks, and in addition to curing this vile disorder, S. S. S. builds up every part of the system. Mercury and potash cannot cure the trouble; they can only mask it in the system for awhile, and when they are left off the disease returns, usually, in worse form than before, and the patient finds he has damaged his health with these strong minerals, which disease the delicate lining of the stomach, affect the bowels, produce chronic dyspepsia and often set up Mercurial Rheumatism. It will not do to trifle with a disease so powerful as Contagious Blood Poison, for every day it remains in the blood it is progressing toward a dangerous stage, and will in the end get beyond the control of any treatment. S. S. S. cures blood poison in the right way, it goes down into the circulation and removes every particle of the virus. No bad results are ever experienced from the use of S. S. S. It is gentle and pleasant in its action, and forty years of cures warrant the statement that S. S. S. is not only a safe but a certain treatment. Home treatment book on this disease and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

CENTRALS ARE LIGHT

Average Weight of High School Team is 144 Pounds.

Are Making Ready for Hard Geme at Superior Saturday.

Coach Colton put the Central high school squad through another hard practice last evening in preparation for the game at Superior next Saturday, when Duluth Central and Blaine will contest for Head of the Lakes honors.

The squad looks good to Colton now. Last Saturday the team handled itself much better than in the previous games this year, and Colton hopes to continue the improvement this week, so that Blaine will find itself up against a hard proposition next Saturday.

There has been considerable discussion as to the weight of the team. Yesterday the manager and coach decided to settle all discussion by weighing the men. The team which faced Minneapolis Central last Saturday and will face Blaine this coming Saturday, was weighed individually and the average weight was found to be 144 pounds stripped. The average is about normal for a high school team and Duluth certainly does not depend on weight for its victories.

There is a possibility that Ostergren will be back on the squad before the season ends. He suffered an injury to his wrist some days ago, and was out of the game last Saturday, but is coming around nicely and may be out again soon. Duncan, who is filling the place at end, is putting up a plucky game, but he is rather light and the heavy Minneapolis team swept him off his feet several times Saturday. Ostergren is a veteran and he would probably strengthen the team, provided his wrist regains its full strength. He will not be in the game next Saturday, however.

Reports from Superior indicate that Blaine will send a strong team on the field. Burr and Buchanan, the old high school men coaching the team, are whipping the squad into shape this week and are hopeful of its showing. Henry A. Schofield of Nelsonville, Wis., an old University of Wisconsin man, will act as one of the officials at the game and it is expected that Doane, the former Minnesota player, will be secured to act as the other. Preparations are being made at Superior to care for a crowd of from 1,500 to 2,000 people and as the game is the only big one at Superior this year, it is expected fully that number will be present.

INDOOR BALL GAME.

The Policemen and Naval Brigade Teams Will Meet.

The first indoor baseball game of the season in Duluth will be played tomorrow evening, at the Armory, when the policemen and the team of the second division of the Minnesota Naval brigade will meet. The cops have been practicing for some time, and they are no novices at the game. The marines haven't shown their skill previously, but they think they can take care of the guardians of the law.

The game will inaugurate a season of indoor baseball, which promises to be the most successful in years. The two militia companies have teams in the field, and they will be sent against each other in a week or so. With the four aggregations playing to keep the game alive, it should have little trouble holding its head above water this season.

Athos Has Queer Stunt to Do at Metropolitan.

Athos, a French wrestler, with the Imperials company at the Metropolitan this week, will attempt to down a bull, as a side attraction to the regular performance Friday night.

Athos is a strong man and he adopts a peculiar manner of demonstrating the fact. Last week at St. Paul he tried the bull a couple of times and succeeded once. He picks an animal up in every city he visits and usually succeeds in getting a fall. The bull he is to tackle Friday night is one designed for a kosher meat market here and is described as a ferocious specimen of his kind.

Sweet Marie Loses.

Will Discourage Cash Prizes for All Its Tournaments.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 23.—It has been decided to conduct an interstate tournament at Ashland New Year's day, provided the Duluth club does not hold the national tournament on that day, and the national meeting will most likely take place early in February.

The Ashland club has authorized its new officers, Alex. Holter, president; Barney Jacobs, vice president; Arthur Stensland, secretary; Louis Sollie, treasurer; A. Stenshaug, captain, and Sam Augvick, second captain, to receive bids for rebuilding the trestle and grading the hill to the proper pitch, and the work will soon be started. The officers hope to make possible jumps of over 100 feet. In the tournament held at Ashland last year, the longest standing jump was ninety-two feet, but a few days later an Ashland man cleared 196 feet.

The Ashland club is to provide a club house for the members, and weekly tramps are to be enjoyed. The membership fee has been reduced to $1, and it is the intention of the officers to make the club the largest in the history of the country. Ashland has several fine riders among its members, among them Tolleff Hemmestvedt and Christ Wold. The latter participated in several tournaments last winter, doing exceptionally good work.

The question of prizes will again be up the coming winter. Some of the riders are still openly opposed to trophies. Last season at the tournament at which trophies were given the winners there were not as many of the best riders entered as at the meetings where cash prizes were offered. The officers of the association will do their best to discourage the giving of cash prizes, but it is doubtful if the practice will be entirely abandoned the coming winter. The question will soon be up to the Duluth club, which expects to make its tournament one of the biggest affairs of its kind ever held in this country. There are some clubs holding membership in the association that will not offer cash prizes the coming winter, and Ishpeming will likely be one of them. It is also expected that the Bovey, Minn., club will offer trophies for its annual tournament.

CANNOT RACE LONGBOAT.

Americans Ordered Not to Compete Against Indian.

New York, Oct. 23.—Secretary Dixon of the Amateur Athletic Union has forwarded a letter to the National Registration commission of the organization saying that it has been brought to his attention that several runners registered in the A. A. U. purpose taking part in long distance races in Canada, and that permits have been issued for registered American athletes to compete. He adds that Tom Longboat, the Indian, and Coley, both Canadian long distance men, have been suspended by the A. A. U. for running in the United States without permission, and warns American athletes that they must not run against them.

They Want Games.

The Jefferson Juniors, the football team of the Jefferson school, is looking for games with other midgets of the city. The boys scale about 90 pounds each, and they are willing to take on anything of their weight. They know the game, too, for they have defeated several other featherweight aggregations.

Munch is Coming.

Joseph N. Munch, champion roller skater of the Northwest, is coming to Duluth next week to go against all comers at the Temple rink. Munch is a fast man, but Duluth will probably send some skaters against him, who will force him to show his speed.

DeWitt's Carbolized Witch Hazel Salve is good for little burns and big burns, small scratches or bruises and big ones. Sold by all druggists.

Lay Delegates to Methodist Conference Score Such Things.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Pool rooms, slot machines, blind pigs and Sunday desecration were emphatically condemned at the conference of lay delegates to the Methodist conference, which was held here at the Baptist church.

"Sunday desecration is one of the greatest evils in North Dakota," said Mr. Tasker of Carpio, one of the lay delegates. "Baseball games are held on Sunday in almost every city and village in the state. There seems to be no organized opposition to Sunday baseball. The lay members of the church need an awakening."

"What the people need is a little more backbone," said another delegate. "We have plenty of law which prohibits Sunday desecration. What we need is a body of citizens who will stand up and insist that the law be enforced."

"I think that we should go after the pool rooms," said another delegate. "Down in my town of Lakota, there are three pool rooms, and they are running day and night, seven days in the week. I believe that these institutions are a disgrace to our country."

In Collision on Erie, Resulting From Misunderstanding of Orders.

Marion, Ohio, Oct. 23.—The westbound Erie passenger train No. 15, and the eastbound freight No. 36, collided late last night three miles west of this city, the result of a misunderstanding of orders. William Hoover, aged 65, of this city, an Erie machinist, was instantly killed. William Carpenter, a traveling man of Philadelphia, was injured internally, but may recover. Agnes Baker of Lima was cut by broken glass and suffered a dislocated shoulder.

Of Missouri Will Defend Young of Minnesota in Contempt Proceedings.

Jefferson City, Mo., Oct. 23.—Herbert Hadley, attorney general of Missouri, was yesterday requested to defend the attorney general of Minnesota in a contempt proceeding before the supreme court of the United States. The request came in a personal letter from Edward T. Young, the attorney general of Minnesota, who has been adjudged guilty of contempt by the United States circuit court of that state in the prosecution of a rate case. He will apply to the United States supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus to test the power of the lower court. Attorney General Hadley has notified Mr. Young that he will defend him.

WHEAT HAS GOOD TONE

Market Advances on Good Buying Demand From Abroad.

Flax is Quarter of a Point Up in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 23.—Wheat was higher in the American markets today and closed up, on a strong foreign demand and bullish news regarding the Russian crop.

American wheat was freely bought by the foreigners during the day. Overnight offers, made after yesterday's market, were accepted in large volume, which caused good buying here.

The foreign markets were a little easier at the close. Liverpool closed ½d to ¼d. lower; Berlin, 1½c lower, and Budapest, ¾c lower.

The December option closed 2¼c higher in Duluth, 2⅛c in Chicago, 2⅜c in Minneapolis, and ¾c in New York and Winnipeg. The May option closed 2⅛c higher in Duluth, 2¼c in Chicago, 1⅞c in Minneapolis, 2c in New York and ⅞c in Winnipeg.

December corn closed ¾-⅞c higher in Chicago and was ½d higher in Liverpool. December oats closed ½c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a quiet opening in wheat, although values were 1 to 1⅛ lower, being influenced by the weakness in American markets yesterday. During the morning some steadiness developed as a result of lighter offerings, and this caused shorts to cover, which advanced prices ⅛ to ¾d. On the advance, however, there was some selling by small speculators, due to the poor inquiry for both cargoes and parcels, and prices lost some of the early advance. The undertone at midday was steady.

"Corn was quiet and about ⅝ lower in sympatny with the weakness in America yesterday. Following the opening the market steadied some, regaining part of the early decline due to stronger feeling in wheat and scarcity of sellers."

Primary receipts of wheat were, 1,137,600 bus., last year, 887,000 bus. Shipments 381,000 bus., last year, 866,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 750,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 853,000 bus., last year, 671,000 bus. Shipments, 481,000 bus., last year, 656,000 bus. Clearances of corn were, 143,000 bus.

Good buying of wheat marked the session of the Duluth market. The trading was steady throughout. December wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.05¼, advanced to $1.07 during the first half hour, went off to $1.06½, rallied to $1.06⅝, went off to $1.06½, rallied to $1.07⅜, sagged to $1.06⅛, rallied to $1.06¼, went off to $1.06⅞ and rallied by the close to $1.07¾, a gain of 2¼c over yesterday. May wheat opened unchanged at $1.10⅝, advanced to $1.12, declined to $1.11⅞, reacted to $1.12⅝, declined to $1.11⅛, reacted to $1.12¾ and closed at that price, a gain of 2⅛c over yesterday.

Flax was irregular during the session and closed a little up. Trading was active. October flax opened ¼c lower at $1.21½, declined to $1.20, rallied to $1.21½, went off to $1.20¾, reacted to $1.22½, went off to $1.22, rallied to $1.24 and closed at $1.22, a gain of ¼c over yesterday. November flax opened unchanged at $1.22, declined to $1.20, went up to $1.21¾, slumped to $1.21 and ranged between that and $1.23¼ during the rest of the day, closing at $1.22¾, a gain of ¼c over yesterday.

December flax opened ¼c lower at $1.18¾, declined to $1.18, rallied to $1.22¼ and closed at $1.20, a gain of 1c over yesterday. May flax opened unchanged at $1.24½, declined to $1.23½, rallied to $1.27¼, declined to $1.24¾ and closed at $1.25, a gain of ¼c over yesterday.

Oats closed ½c lower, rye was 1c lower and barley 4c to 10c lower.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Fairly Steady With an Excellent General Demand.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—The wheat market today opened fairly steady, the first quotations being unchanged to ½c higher than last night's close. The financial situation was today, as yesterday, the dominant influence in the market. The general demand was excellent at the opening of the market and shorts seemed disposed to cover. December wheat opened unchanged to ¼c higher at 99⅜c to 99¾c, and sold up to 100⅛. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 609 cars against 618 cars last week and 535 cars one year ago.

The market rallied about an hour after the opening, wheat advancing 1c in about two minutes. After that the market held steady. The close was steady with December 1¼c higher, at $1.01½.

The corn market opened steady. Commission houses and cash interests were fair sellers, but all offerings were readily taken. December corn opened ⅛c lower, to ¼c higher at 57¼c to 57½c, and sold at 57⅜c. Local receipts were 192 cars with 54 of contract grade.

The oats market was weak at the opening chiefly because of a slack demand. December oats opened ½c to ⅝c lower, at 51¼c to 51¾c and sold off to 50⅞@51c. Local receipts were 205 cars.

Provisions opened weak. January pork was unchanged at $14.80. Ribs were 17½c@20c lower, at $7.50@7.52½. Lard was 5@10c lower, at $8.60 to $8.62½.

Close: Wheat, December, $1.01⅛; May, $1.08⅜. Corn, December, 58⅛@⅜c; May, 60¼c. Oats, December, 51¼c; May, 53⅜c. Pork, January, $14.47½; May, $14.85. Lard, January, $8.40; May, $8.55@8.57½. Ribs, January, $7.50@; May, $7.80. Rye, cash, 65c. Barley, cash, 58c@$1. Flax, clover and timothy, nothing doing. ### Grain Gossip.

Logan & Bryan: Wheat kept up its record today of covering a very wide range and showing very quick turns in prices. There is nothing remarkable about the opening which was at about Tuesday's close. There was support from the leading bulls early in view of the financial disturbances in the East. Local shorts began to take profits. Offerings were not heavy and prices responded very quickly, showing an advance of 2¼c to 2⅝c for the morning. Then came the Westinghouse financial trouble that badly demoralized stock market, and wheat prices had a setback almost as abrupt as the early advance. Late in the session there was a return of confidence, another sharp advance, helped by reports of over seventy boat loads for export.

Corn—Corn acted in sympathy with wheat all day. The market weakened under quite general selling and again turned strong at the close. The trade was less influenced by the adverse financial conditions today than for some time past.

Oats—At times there was good activity in the trade with strong people on both sides. Until there is a let up in liberal receipts oats is not likely to show any recovery.

Minneapolis Wheat.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

The tone of dairy product prices is easier today, and a drop of at least 1c is anticipated in butter tomorrow. Eggs rule about the same and the storage product is soon to be on the market, which will keep the prices down to where they are at present, according to the best information obtainable.

The following prices are quoted up to noon today, the same being furnished by the secretary of the exchange:

RABBIT SCALPS IN TRADE.

Kansas City Star: Did you ever hear of rabbit scalps being rated as an article of commerce or as a medium of exchange in the same manner as eggs and butter? Out in Trego county, Kan., the county seat of which is Wakeeney, the merchants pay 5 cents each for rabbit scalps no matter whether the unfortunate "bunny" was full grown or not. W. J. Williams, who is the proprietor of a grocery store in Wakeeney, bought 2,840 scalps during the months of March, April and May this year. John Keraus, another merchant of the same place, bought 2,760 scalps, while no merchant in the little town paid for less than 500 scalps.

The farmers and ranchmen bring rabbit scalps to the county stores along with eggs and butter. The grocer accepts and counts them with no more ado than if they were so many eggs.

A few years ago Trego county, in the hope of extreminating the troublesome jackrabbits, decided to pay a bounty of 5 cents for rabbit scalps, the money to be paid whenever the scalps were presented at the county treasurer's office. Soon after men who had never before been seen in Wakeeney came to the courthouse with big sacks of scalps. Finally the county commissioners grew suspicious, and it eventually developed that certain residents of neighboring counties were taking advantage of Trego's bounty law and were bringing scalps from as far as fifty miles.

To discourage this practice the county decided to allow payment for scalps not more often than every three months. Three months was a long time to wait. The hunters became impatient at the long delay. It remained for the merchants to solve the difficulty. Accordingly it was announced through the columns of the weekly papers that rabbit scalps would be taken at the grocery stores in exchange for merchandise, provided the owner of the scalps would give his word that they were taken from rabbits killed in Trego county.

The plan proved a success. Instead of the farmers making a weekly trip to the courthouse the merchants reported every three months at the commissioners' office and the bills were allowed.

During the months of March, April and May the total amount of bills allowed by the commissioners for rabbit scalps was $568. In othe words Trego county killed 13,360 rabbits during the three months.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Prices Had Late Rally, But the Close Was Unsettled.

New York, Oct. 23.—The opening of the stock market gave fresh evidence of demoralization, but the severe pressure converged on but a few stocks. The range of the decline in many of the active stocks was restricted to a point. Union Pacific ran off 5⅛, dropping a point between sales, with a subsequent rebound from 107¼ to 109. The first 600 shares of Delaware & Hudson sold at a decline of 9, which was extended to 11 points; Northern Pacific dropped 4, Atchison 2½, Brooklyn Transit 3, Great Northern preferred 2¾, Reading, Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville & Nashville, National Lead and Mackay companies 2, Southern Railway preferred 1¾, American Smelting 1½, United States Steel preferred 1⅜ and Amalgamated Copper 1¼. American Snuff sold at a decline of 25 points.

The rally which followed the opening carried Reading, Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting up to a parity to yesterday's closing. Delaware & Hudson recovered 5½ and the rest of the list 1 to 1½. Violent liquidation in some of the less active stocks started renewed selling all around and Reading, St. Paul and some other favorites sold lower than at the outset. The market showed evidence of support. Westinghouse Electric dropped 16⅜ to 60, New York Air Brake 15, General Electric, 8¼, Northwestern preferred, Republic Steel preferred, General Chemical prefered, Mackay Companies and United Cigar preferred, 5; Denver & Rio Grande preferred, 4; Distillers Securities, 3¼, and National Lead, American Car preferred and American Tobacco preferred, 3.

Reports of a financial embarrassment of the Westinghouse Electric company drove that stock to new low levels. It dropped by intervals of 1 to 4 points on sales of 100 share lots to 42. General Electric weakened in sympathy with a fall of 13½. The active stocks continued to make wide declines on small sales, but the general list was firmer and some banks renewed loans at 6 per cent. Several prominent stocks rose to a fraction over last night. Central and Southern American Telegraph dropped, 34; Homestake Mining, 16; United States Pipe preferred, 15; Republic Steel preferred, 7; International Pump, 8; Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha and American Tobacco preferred, 5; Atchison, 4; and New Haven, Manhattan, Twin City Rapid Transit, United Railways and Investment preferred, North American, National Lead preferred and Mackay companies, 5 to 6½. Bonds were very weak.

The support of the market was less effective after 12 o'clock, and a drive against Reading and Atchison, which carried them down 1½, coupled with a continuous liquidation of the electric stocks and other specialties, sent prices down again to about the lowest. Business was quiet again at 1 o'clock and the active stocks were up from 1 to 2 points from the lowest. General Electric rallied 4 and Westinghouse Electric 5. At the low point Westinghouse Electric was down 38%. General Electric 17¾, Twin City Rapid Transit 7, Pittsburg, C., C. & St. Louis 6, National Lead preferred 5, Great Northern Ore Certificates 4, North American 4¾, and Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie first preferred, Superior Pittsburg Coal preferred and United States Rubber first preferred 3 to 3½.

Prices improved materially between 1 and 2 o'clock, and a few of the standard railroad stocks returned to their best prices of the forenoon. Confidence was restored in a measure by the support to the electric stocks. General Electric rallied 9 and Westinghouse Electric 7. Delaware & Hudson also rallied 7, and the general market from 1 to 3 points. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Ste. Marie fell 10 and Norfolk & Western 4⅛.

The market closed greatly unsettled and irregular. Stocks rallied substantially late in the day, with a feeling of relief that disaster had been escaped and with hopes that conditions would show future improvement. A considerable showing of net gains was established even while inactive stocks were sold at wide declines. American Smelting rose 1½ over last night and Pennsylvania, New York Central and Missouri Pacific 1. Union Pacific preferred sold at an advance of 5, Lackawanna dropped 25, International Pump preferred 13, Pittsburg, C., C. & St. Louis preferred 12, United Cigar preferred 2½ and American Snuff preferred 7½. Westinghouse Electric slumped again to 34½ and reaction followed in the general list.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, New York, to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was generally lower today, caused by aggressive liquidation in Westinghouse, Air Brake and General Electric. Strength in call money, which ruled as high as 90 per cent, was a discouraging feature. The Pittsburg stock exchange was closed today on account of the unsettled conditions prevailing, which, in addition to numerous rumors regarding the stability of several prominent institutions, did much towards encouraging the bear element. There is a noticeable increase in the investment demand, but it is not of sufficient volume to stem the tide of bearish selling. From the action of the market we are inclined to think that the unfavorable developments and disclosures have been greatly discounted and that we are reaching a level where stocks should be purchased.

St. Paul Livestock.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 23.—Cattle: Receipts, 5,100; market 5@10c lower; veal steady at decline of yesterday. Hogs: Receipts, 6,000; market about 20c lower; range, $5.30@5.80; bulk, $5.60@5.70. Sheep: Receipts, 30,000. Feeder trade slow and little change in prices.

New York Money.

New York, Oct. 23.—Close: Money on call in strong demand 60@90 per cent; ruling rate, 70. Time loans very firm and nominal; 60 days, 6½ per cent; 90 days, 6½@7 per cent. Six months, 6 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 7@7½ per cent. Sterling exchange nominal with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85.05@4.85.10 for demand and at $4.81@4.81.05 for 60 day bills; commercial bills, $4.79¾. Bar silver, 61⅝c. Mexican dollars, 48½c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds very weak.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: By reason of the strained financial situation in New York less attention has been paid to the copper market.

The metal, however, is moving in considerable volume, and one of the leading selling interests this week turned down a bid for many millions of pounds at 12 cents. Some of the selling agencies are pretty well sold up, and the accumulation rests largely with the United Metals Selling company.

The demand for casting copper is fairly good, and casting brands are now selling at the same price as electrolytic, although as a rule they are quoted about ¼ cent per pound under electrolytic prices.

* * *

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: The situation in New York while even worse than yesterday was taken in hand today and a very bad possibility averted. Stocks were very weak and panicky all day with money rates as high as 100 per cent, but no very extreme declines occurred except in Westinghouse, which has broken 60 per cent and seems headed for a receivership. With the general public badly frightened and money rates so high as to make borrowing almost impossible it is, of course, certain that buyers of the enormous lines of stocks thrown on the market today and yesterday must have gone into very strong places. Locally the market held well, the coppers, including Amalgamated and Smelters, were strongest stocks anywhere. The liquidation came earlier than in the balance of the list and seems more nearly over.

Boston, to Paine, Webber & Co.: The big bankers in New York today used all their efforts to stop the panic which has been created among the depositors of the trust companies and banks. Morgan was to be supported in the market all around and loaning all his money at low rates to establish confidence. The Westinghouse failure was a great blow, however, and the market staggered all day and closed very nervous.

The trust company of America stood a run all day and paid its depositors in full. No one can say what tomorrow will develop, but it looks now as if the situation would be saved if nothing new turns up.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 23.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Market quiet, but few sales of volume reported. Retail trade continues fair, choice lot of heavy drafters during the day. Charles Richards, the railroad contractor, is down from his job in Canada, and paid the market a visit.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR PROBATE OF FOREIGN WILL—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis.
In Probate Court.
In the matter of the estate of Robert S. Bosher, Decedent.

Certain instruments purporting to be authenticated copies of the last will and testamentt of Robert S. Bosher and of the probate thereof in the Chancery Court in and for the City of Richmond, State of Virginia, having been presented to this court, and the petition of George L. Christian being filed herein, representing, among other things, that said decedent, then being a resident of the City of Richmond, State of Virginia, died testate in the City of Richmond, State of Virginia, on the 13th day of January, 1904, leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said instrument has been allowed and admitted to probate as his will in the Court above named, and praying that said will be allowed and admitted to probate in this state, and that letters testamentary be issued thereon to Mattie Bosher, George L. Christian and Thomas C. Williams, Jr.

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth in said County, on Monday, on the 11th day of Nov., 1907, at 10 o'clock a. m., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in the Duluth Evening Herald, according to law, and that a copy of this order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not later than ten days prior to said day of hearing.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., October 15th, 1907.

By the Court,

WELCOME TO REV. GRICE

Pastor of Asbury M. E. Church Returned for Third Year.

Satisfactory Progress in Church Work During Pastorate.

At Asbury M. E. church last evening Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Grice were given a hearty welcome on their return to the charge for the third successive year. Members of the church, other city pastors and friends of Rev. and Mrs. Grice, to the number of more than one hundred, gathered to welcome them to the charge again, and show the high regard in which they are held by their West Duluth friends.

The arrangements for the reception were in the hands of the Ladies' Aid society of the church. Thea uditorium was prettily decorated for the occasion and the program was one of informal talks and expressions of feeling. After the program, the gathering took on the nature of an informal soial reception, Rev. and Mrs. Grice being greeted by each of those present in turn.

I. G. Wollan was chairman of the gathering. J. Mallory made the principal address of welcome, assuring Rev. and Mrs. Grice of the satisfaction and pleasure with which their return to Asbury church was received by the members of their congregation. He reviewed briefly the satisfactory results they had obtained through two years' work in the field, and expressed confidence in them for the future.

Other short talks were made by Rev. J. A. Roberts, the new pastor of the city missions; Rev. J. R. Davis, pastor of Grace church, and David Sang, chairman of the board of trustees.

In his reply, Rev. Grice said his return was a source of pleasure to himself, as he might be able to continue his work in a congenial charge. He expressed satisfaction with the manner in which he was given the co-operation of the members, and gave some figures and facts, showing results obtained during the past conference year. The sum of $2,250 was raised in gross receipts throughout all departments of the church for the year, an entirely satisfactory showing considering the numerical strength of the charge. Thirty new members were added to the church, and the prospects for expansion within the next few years are excellent.

Miss Mabel Gilbert and Miss Hazel Crosby rendered musical numbers, and Miss Briggs gave two recitations. The meeting ended with the singing of several familiar songs by all present.

REPUBLICAN CLUB.

West Duluth Political Situation to be Discussed.

The executive committee of the West Duluth Commercial club has issued a call for a meeting to be held Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock for the consideration of candidates for aldermen from the Seventh and Eighth wards and the discussion of West Duluth political affairs in general. West Duluth people will probably make some recommendations at the mass meeting to be held in the city hall Saturday evening and the meeting Friday evening will be in the nature of a preliminary to the city gathering.

Alderman J. E. Foubister, who now represents the Eighth ward in the council, has announced that he will not stand for election again this year. If Mr. Foubister adheres to his decision, it will be necessary for the club to choose a candidate to make the run for his seat. The Eighth ward is a close one, and the Republicans will cast around for a strong candidate to run against any man the Democrats may trot forward.

In the Seventh ward the situation is rather uncertain. Alderman Haven is still non-committal, but his friends believe that he will again make the run for alderman, unless he should shift his position to allow the mayoralty nomination mantle to fall on his shoulders.

Royal League Dance.

The first of a series of social dances, to be given by the members of West Duluth council, No. 255, Royal League, during the winter months, drew a large crowd to Wade's hall last evening, and was one of the most enjoyable affairs of the kind in West Duluth for many months. The dances will be given monthly and the success of the first promises a successful series.

WOMAN WAS MISSING.

Police Arrest Man With Whom She Was Seen.

The whereabouts of a certain West Duluth woman yesterday was a source of considerable anxiety to her relatives and friends and on account of the disinclination of William Leitz to await the corroboration of his story relative to the woman in the case, Leitz found himself in jail and paid a fine of $10 and costs with ten days as the alternative.

It appears that the relatives of the woman in the case feared that she had been induced to leave the city by Leitz and they reported the matter to the police. Investigation developed that the pair had been registered at a local hotel for a few days, but that Leitz had accompanied the woman to her home yesterday and finished up his escapade by getting hilariously drunk.

The story told the police seemed a little fishy and they asked Leitz to stop at the station last evening until they could find out whether or not he was telling the truth about taking the woman home.

This he declined to do. It is stated he was drunk at the time, so that the police found it necessary to place him in a cell. It devloped that the young woman had returned to her home and Leitz was arraigned today on the charge of drunkenness as stated.

TWO BUILDINGS IN PROCTOR BURN

Eiler Bros.' General Store and Meat Market Wiped Out.

Proctor, Minn., Oct. 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Proctor fire department early last evening wrestled with one of the worst fires in the history of the village, which at one time threatened to wipe out a block in the business section of the town. The two buildings occupied by Eiler Brothers as a general store and a meat market were destroyed and the loss is roughly estimated at $25,000, partially insured.

It was about 10 minutes after 6 o'clock when some boys notified Carl J. Eiler, who ran a meat market in a frame building adjoining the brick structure in which his brother, A. H. Eiler, conducted a general store, that fire had broken out in the room in the rear of the butcher shop used for rendering fat. The proprietor of the meat market dashed upstairs where his family lived and hastened his wife and four small children into the street, the little ones being in bed at the time. Then he turned his attention to trying to save his furniture and some of his office books, but the fire gained so rapidly that little was saved. The frame market was soon destroyed and the general store building rapidly caught and burned fiercely, despite the efforts of the fire department. The firemen worked hard to save the office of Dr. Carson, the Missabe company doctor, next door to the store, and finally succeeded. The ringing of bells and blowing of whistles attracted the entire town and 2,000 or more people watched the blaze. Many people living nearby moved their goods into the street for fear of the worst. The building occupied by A. H. Eiler as a general store was worth about $4,500 and the contents about $15,000, insured partially. The meat market was worth about $2,500. Carl Eiler carried $500 on his household effects and $300 on his market fixtures.

Hard Times in Kansas.

The old days of grasshoppers and drouth are almost forgotten in the prosperous Kansas of today; although a citizen of Codell, Earl Shamburg, has not yet forgotten a hard time he encountered. He says: "I was worn out and discouraged by coughing night and day, and could find no relief till I tried Dr. King's New Discovery. It took less than one bottle to completely cure me." The safest and most reliable cough and cold cure and lung and throat healer ever discovered. Guaranteed by all drug stores 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

ATE A BUZZARD.

One Italian Is Dead and Three Others May Not Recover.

Corbin, Ky., Oct. 23.—An Italian section hand, employed here by the Louisville & Nashville railroad, killed a buzzard yesterday, and cooked the bird, serving it with dumplings. He invited three other Italians to partake of the meat. Immediately afterward all four became violently ill. An hour later the host died in great agony, and his three countrymen are not expected to recover. Physicians attending the men say their condition is due entirely to having eaten of the buzzard flesh.

FOUR MEN ARE KILLED IN EXPLOSION NEAR ASHLAND

Thirty-Five Hundred Pounds of Nitro-Glycerin Explode.

Three Men Are Seriously Injured and Others Slightly.

THE DEAD.

THE INJURED.

Oscar Wegstrom, Engwald Victor, Engwald Barnstron, cut by flying glass, the last named having a leg blown off. Several others slightly injured.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four dead and several injured, the complete destruction of Storehouse No. 2 and more or less damage to adjoining property, constitute the death and havoc wrought at Barksdale, six miles across the bay, early this morning by an explosion at the Atlantic Dynamite plant of the Dupont Powder company, the largest manufacturing plant of the powder trust in the Northwest.

Three thousand five hundred pounds of nitro-glycerine, stored in Storehouse No. 2 went off at 6:45 o'clock, just as the day shift was going to work. If the explosion had taken place a few minutes later the loss of life would have been appalling. The force of the explosion was sufficient to be felt over a large portion of Northern Wisconsin, especially here where some window glass was broken. The cause of the explosion is a mystery and, like many affairs of that sort, may never be known. About a year ago there was an explosion at the dynamite works, when several hundred pounds of dynamite went off and a foreman was killed, but the effects were not as severe as today's explosion.

Hans Wicks, Ole Wicks and Arnold Hustland, who were instantly killed, along with a fourth man, who has not yet been identified, were

SKYSCRAPERS IN NEW YORK

If Put Together Would Make Building 6,000 Stories High.

New York, Oct. 24.—If all the skyscrapers in New York were piled one on top of another a building of more than 6,000 stories would rear itself toward heaven.

The building department has just finished counting the lofty buildings in the city; 540 of them have been erected since 1890, when the Pulitzer building was the first of its class.

Including the Metropolitan Life building, which is not finished, the census of high buildings is:

One of forty-eight stories; one of forty-one; two of twenty-six; three of twenty-five; two of twenty-eight; four of twenty-two; nine of twenty; two of nineteen; nine of eighteen; two of seventeen; nineteen of sixteen; nineteen of fifteen; eighteen of fourteen; thirteen of thirteen; 169 of twelve; 101 of eleven; 164 of ten.

NOW CONVALESCING.

Physicians Announce That Francis Joseph is on Road to Recovery.

Vienna, Oct. 24.—The physicians in attendance on Emperor Francis Joseph this morning announced, for the first time since his majesty has been confined to Schoenbrunn palace, that the convalescent stage of his illness has begun. His sleep was absolutely undisturbed by coughing, and the catarrhal symptoms are improving. Preparations are going on to permit the emperor to take a walk in the gardens, in the event of his improvement and the weather being favorable.

HOUSE ROBBED

While Woman Stands in Line to Draw Money From Bank.

New York, Oct. 24.—Mrs. Theodore E. Schulz, wife of an automobile dealer, living in the Bronx, had a comfortable sum deposited at the Harlem branch of the Knickerbocker Trust company. Reading the accounts of the run on the institution and thinking that the doors would be reopened, she left her home early to withdraw her account. With other disappointed depositors she lingered around the closed bank until the afternoon.

When she returned home she found that burglars had ransacked the house. The thieves, evidently knowing she was away, took their time and removed everything of value they could carry away. The property was valued at $2,000.

A WYOMING JUDGE SHOT

Aged Citizen Fires Three Bullets Into Justice Brammell.

Turns Revolver on Himself and Ends His Existence.

Laramie, Wyo., Oct. 24.—William Lepper, for thirty years a resident of this city, yesterday shot Judge Charles W. Brammell three times, in the law office of the latter, then turning the revolver upon himself, blew out his own brains.

Judge Brammell is still alive, but has three bullet wounds in the head. He has a chance for recovery, but his advanced age is against him.

Lepper, who was an old man, has been in constant litigation for the past eight years over property in this city, which he lost title to by giving it as security on a deal in stocks. He had attempted to regain the title through the law, which refuses legal standing to a gambling debt.

Judge Brammell, when on the bench, several months ago, gave a decision favorable to Lepper, which was reversed in a higher court. Judge Brammell later acted as attorney for Lepper, and it appears that Lepper returned recently from California, and had been heard to threaten the lives of County Attorney Downey, Judge H. V. S. Groesbeck, District Judge Carpenter and several other attorneys, who at one time or other have been connected with the Lepper case.

He was in the office of Judge Groesbeck but a few minutes before the tragedy yesterday, it is now believed, with the object of shooting the jurist, but was ejected. He had been watched by the police for weeks. Judge Brammell is one of the leading Democratic politicians of the state, and has held many important offices.

LAUGHS SELF TO DEATH.

Joke Proves Fatal for Charles Ferguson of Des Moines.

Des Moines, Oct. 24.—Charles Ferguson laughed himself to death yesterday. While at the home of his brother-in-law, Henry Murray, the latter joked about the fact that Ferguson, being six feet tall, would have to sleep without sheets in any hotel, except in Texas. When the new Texas law was explained the man gave a tremendous laugh, fell to the floor and died.

"LITTLE ALTON" CASE

Against Standard Oil Company Will be Heard on Jan. 6.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—What is known as the "Little Alton" case against the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, was today set for trial on Jan. 6 by Judge S. H. Bethea of the United States district court. In this case the Standard Oil Company of Indiana is charged with the acceptance of rebates from the Chicago & Alton railway on shipments over the Alton from Whiting, Ind., to East St. Louis, Ill., and St. Louis, after the change in the division of the Northern (judicial) district of Illinois, which occurred March 3, 1906.

The indictment, which was returned last year, contains 134 counts and they are similar to the 1,462 counts of the indictment that resulted in the fine of $29,240,000 recently imposed by Judge Landis. Each offense, and there are 134 charged, is punishable by a maximum fine of $20,000. If the Standard Oil company is found guilty on all of the counts it will be subject to a fine of $2,680,000.

EARTHQUAKES DESTROY CATABRIA VILLAGES.

Rome, Oct. 24.—The earth shocks, which were felt throughout Calabria yesterday, caused considerable damage, destroying two villages, but, so far as heard only ten lives were lost. To add to the desolation, it was raining in torrents, which resulted in a good deal of suffering among the homeless people.

The cathedral at Towre di Gerace was thrown down, as was an ancient tower which had withstood all the Calabrian earthquakes for centuries past.

ST. PAUL BOY FALLS INTO PIT OF HOT WATER.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald)—Emil Zophelitto, a boy about 15 years of age, was badly burned yesterday afternoon at the Griffin wheel works, when, in a scuffle with another boy about his own age, he slipped and fell into a cooling pit, into which the workmen had just lowered a red hot wheel. His chest, hands and arms and his head and face are seriously burned, but his life is in little or no danger. Today he was resting easily, according to reports from Lutner hospital, where he was taken.

TO CLEAN INFECTED DISTRICT.

OSCAR ERBSLOEH,
Who Piloted the German Balloon, Pommern, to Victory.

AERO CONTEST A BIG SUCCESS

Aeronauts and Officials Leave St. Louis at Close of Program.

St. Louis, Oct. 24.—The international cup contest and the dirigible balloon races ended, the aeronauts and Aero club officials who have made St. Louis their headquarters, are leaving today.

Officers of the St. Louis Aero club have received many telegrams of congratulation over the success of aeronautic week, and it is said that the interest aroused here in ballooning will result in other contests in the near future.

There seems little doubt but that a determined effort will be made next year by American aeronauts to regain possession of the cup won this year by the Germans. The race next year goes to Germany.

Brig. Gen. James Allen, chief officer of the signal corps of the United States army, who witnessed all of the ascents, declared today that he would recommend in his next report to the secretary of war that several balloons of the dirigible type be brought or constructed for government experimental work.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The officials air line measurement of the flight of the two leading balloons in the international race from St. Louis, as computed at the geological survey today, follows:

St. Louis (Forest Park) to Asbury Park, 873.4 miles; St. Louis (Forest Park) to Herbertsville, N. J., 867.4. The Pommern landed at Asbury Park, the longest distance traveled by the competitors, and the Isle de France landed at Herbertsville, next in distance.

FAVORITISM IS CHARGED

Ex-Comptroller of the Currency Roast Department.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Delegates to the National Civic Federation convention today were eagerly discussing the remarks made at the meeting last night by Charles G. Dawes, ex-comptroller of the currency.

Mr. Dawes made a sharp attack upon the federal department of justice, virtually charging the office of the attorney general with making "gallery plays." He said in part:

"I cannot say that it is intentional on the part of the department of justice, but some of its actions look remarkably as if favoritism was being displayed in the selection of the combinations to be investigated, and in the manner of the attack.

"It is inevitable that the man who does things is in the public eye, and an attack upon him will always win publicity. It is remarkable that the cases handled by the department of justice always are tried in the newspapers before they get into the courts."

The speaker also criticised the magazine writers who, he said, made a practice of attacking the men who accomplished great things in the mercantile and financial world.

He then entered upon a defense of the financiers of New York, asserting that many of the men who have borne the lash during the last four years are doing a work for the good of the country, the value of which it is hard to estimate.

"They are seeking," he said, "to uphold the credit upon which property rests. They are seeking to save the opportunity for the profitable continuance of men who handle merchandise, of men in manufacturing enterprises, and in all other walks of life."

In conclusion, Mr. Dawes urged the amendment of the Sherman anti-trust law.

STEAMBOAT OWNERS

Will Ask for Legislation Affecting Island Waterways of United States.

Cincinnati, Oct. 24.—The initiative in a movement of steamboat owners for legislation affecting the inland waterways of the United States was taken in this city yesterday. It was voted to embody in a resolution two paragraphs calling for the severance of inspection laws governing the inland rivers of America from those governing the lakes and gulfs and that inland river transportation traffic be placed under the laws of the interstate commerce commission.

These two paragraphs will be embodied in letters to be sent to river men in all parts of the United States who will be asked to attend a national meeting in Washington, Dec. 3. A permanent organization of inland waterway interests will be formed.

THE FINANCIAL CLOUDS IN NEW YORK CLEAR AWAY

TWO NEW YORK SPECULATORS WHO HAVE BEEN FORCED OUT OF THE BANKING BUSINESS

CHARLES W. MORSE.

E. R. THOMAS.

The Banking Situation Shows a Decided Improvement.

More Money Deposited With Trust Company Than Drawn Out.

Suspension of Three Small Banks Does Not Affect Conditions.

New York, Oct. 24.—Developments in the financial situation this morning were more favorable than they had been at any time within the past week. Under the firm confidence established by the result of last night's conference and Secretary Cortelyou's encouraging statement, the stock market opened strong, with prices 1 to 3 points higher than last night. The Trust Company of America opened its doors for business at the usual hour. A short time before that Oakleigh Thorne, president of the institution, announced to the waiting depositors that the institution was entirely solven and prepared to meet all claims. Mr. Thorne said he was confident that the institution had seen the worst of its difficulties yesterday and he apprehended no further trouble.

The suspension of payment by three relatively small banks, situated in the outlying Harlem district were without any effect whatever on the general financial situation down town.

In the first half hour of business at the Trust Company of America this morning, more money was deposited than was withdrawn. The deposits up to 10:30 amounted to $900,000.

At 10:45, J. P. Morgan, in reply to a question as to the situation, said: "It is all right."

James Stillman, president of the National City bank, the largest bank in the United States, who was with Mr. Morgan, concurred, saying that the situation was satisfactory.

Secretary Cortelyou, at 11 o'clock, said: "Things look pretty good now. I have had word of the suspension of the two Harlem banks, but prefer to make no comment on it. I will remain here for some time longer—how long I cannot say. I would have had to be in New York tonight anyway. The rumor that we are short of small bills is unfounded. We have $10,000,000 in small denominations."

"There is absolutely no cause for alarm. The situation may be regarded as clear, and there is a decided improvement today. The banks and trust companies are perfectly solvent, and will meet any demands made upon them."

Mr. Sheldon made the above statement at the close of the conference with J. P. Morgan and other bankers.

New York, Oct. 24.—All the overnight developments in the financial situation were reassuring. The series of conferences last night, participated in by

THE STATE WILL BORROW MONEY

From the Banks Sufficient to Pay Outstanding Warrants.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a meeting of Governor Johnson, State Treasurer Dinehart and State Auditor Iverson late Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Dinehart was authorized to borrow from the banks sufficient money to pay outstanding warrants. This is in accordance with an act of the legislature passed at the last session.

This is the lean period in the state's finances, and the borrowing feature is necessary in order to meet obligations, until the regular revenue begins to come in. This will be about the first of the year. Last year, at this time, the state faced a deficiency of $200,000. There is about $775,000 in school warrants which should be paid, but they will be held up a while.

RECEIVERS ASKED FOR.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 24.—A long distance telephone message from Butte says two applications were made in court yesterday for the appointment of receivers for the State Savings bank, which closed its doors last week. State Bank Examiner Collins gave out a reassuring statement, which intimated that a movement is on foot looking to the reopening of the bank.

CONDITIONS ARE BETTER

Pittsburg Financiers Have the Situation Well in Hand.

The Stock Exchange May Remain Close Until Monday.

Pittsburg, Oct. 24.—As was expected the Pittsburg stock exchange remained closed today. Shortly before 10 o'clock the members were called together by Secretary Holman, who announced that the board of directors had decided to suspend trading for the day. In well informed circles, it is believed, the exchange will not resume business until next Monday.

The local financial situation is in good shape and is under perfect control, according to statements made to the Associated Press by prominent bankers this morning. Without exception all say that yesterday's flurry had passed and that the situation at present is being better than it has been for a week.

The suspension of the Iron City Trust company last night and the appointment of receivers by the United States court for the institution has had no apparent effect on the situation. At the headquarters of the company in the Westinghouse building in Penn avenue and Ninth street, there is no apearance of the failure. It is known that the Iron City Trust company was liquidating for the purpose of going out of business. When the embarrassment of the Westinghouse companies became public it was feared a run would be made on the trust company and it was decided to place the institution in the hands of a receiver. A man prominent in financial circles said this morning that he knew the trust company can pay $135 a share to stockholders.

President Wardrop of the People's National bank, a member of the Pittsburg Clearing House association said today that a meeting of the clearing house committee will be held each morning until after the trouble has been adjusted. At the meeting this morning Mr. Wardrop said there was absolutely no business to be looked after but it was the plan to continue the meetings to deal with eventualities.

Receivers were not appointed today for the Nernst Lamp company, the fourth Westinghouse concern embarrassed by the severe money market stringency. It was said that the papers have not been prepared as yet and it is expected it will be late today or tomorrow morning before the receivers are appointed.

Unrest among the thousands of employes of the Westinghouse interests in Pitsburg and vicinity was allayed today by a statement from T. H. Given, president of the Farmers' Deposit National bank, who was yesterday appointed one of the receivers for the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company. A report gained currency that the

BELIEVE WHITLOW IS SHIELDING MURDERER.

Iola, Kan., Oct. 24.—The preliminary hearing of Samuel F. Whitlow, the merchant and man of family, charged with the murder of Miss May Sapp at Moran, Sept. 27, by cutting her throat with a razor, was held here today. Whitlow has declared Miss Sapp committed suicide because he refused to elope with her, but the girl's father disbelieved the story and signed a warrant for his arrest. There is a general belief that Whitlow is shielding the real murderer. He bore a good reputation.

NEW YORK CENTRAL MEN WANT WAGE INCREASE.

New York, Oct. 24.—It is reported that the conductors, brakemen and other employes of the New York Central railroad have been holding secret meetings for several days, looking to a demand soon for increases in wages. It is further reported that if such demands are not granted, a strike will be ordered.

HIS CONTROL IS ABSOLUTE

Harriman's Unlimited Power Over Resources of Mutual Life.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 24.—The absolute control which E. H. Harriman has of the resources of the Mutual Life Insurance company was disclosed yesterday by Matthew C. Fleming, the insurance inquisitor, during his investigation of the new charges of incompetency brought against State Supt. of Insurance Otto Kelsey.

Mr. Fleming showed that the Mutual Life has loaned this year nearly ten million dollars to Harriman interests, the largest sum, $3,700,000, having been turned over to the Illinois Central railroad. Mr. Fleming showed further:

That Charles A. Peabody, president of the Mutual, is a director in some of the railroads to which the Mutual loaned large sums.

That the Mutual gave the Northern New York Development company for the Delaware & Hudson $1,600,000 on collateral security for which there is no market.

That the Equitable Life Assurance society holds nearly $1,000,000 of depreciated Interborough-Metropolitan securities.

That for the apparent purpose of evading the new insurance law, which compels life insurance companies to get rid of all their stock-holdings within five years, the Equitable sold on May 23 of this year $803,466 of the Fifth Avenue Trust company stock to the Mercantile Trust company which is practically owned by the Equitable.

That the Mutual sold $1,139,400 of Fifth Avenue Trust company stock to Thomas F. Ryan on May 17, of this year.

That Supt. Kelsey had little if any knowledge of these transactions.

Kelsey was in the witness chair for over six hours, while Investigator Fleming brought out, step by step, with the adroitness of his former leader in the Armstrong investigation, Charles E. Hughes, all the weak spots, in Kelsey's official fabric.

After two hours' grilling Kelsey was confronted with a statement containing the results of Mr. Fleming's personal investigation of the Equitable and Mutual Life companies. These loans were shown to have been made by the Mutual to the following Harriman interests this year:

To the Delaware & Hudson company, $2,400,000; Northern New York Development company, $1,000,000; Illinois Central, $3,700,000; Southern Pacific Railroad company, $2,000,000; total, $9,700,000.

"Did you ever inquire," asked Mr. Fleming, "as to who composed the financial committee of the Mutual Life and as to whether any of the members were directors of the companies which obtained loans?"

"I can't say that I did," replied Kelsey.

THINKS BROTHER WAS VICTIM OF FOUL PLAY

Garrett Meekins Believes That His Brother Was Murdered.

Says Coroner's Jury Made Only a Superficial Investigation.

Garrett Meekins of Baltimore, Md., a brother of Homer C. Meekins, whose body was found in a Greek candy store at Two Harbors, shortly after 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Oct. 17, claims that the latter did not commit suicide, as the coroner's jury reported, but was murdered. Mr. Meekins says he came up here to investigate the circumstances surrounding his brother's death and claims to be satisfied that somebody killed him. He declares that he will remain here until he ferrets out the supposed crime and lands in jail the person or persons whom he has reason to believe were concerned in his brother's death.

Homer C. Meekins, the dead man, was a deputy sheriff, employed at Two Harbors during the strike in the iron ore region last summer. Garrett Meekins, the brother, claims that the coroner's jury made only a superficial investigation of the affair and returned a verdict to the effect that Homer Meekins came to death by his own hand.

Garrett Meekins claims that he has evidence to show that his brother carried a 38-calibre revolver of a certain manufacture, that he was very careful about handling it, and never permitted another person to handle the weapon. He claims that the revolver found beside the body of the brother was a 32-calibre, that it did not belong to Homer Meekins.

The Baltimore brother also claims to have found witnesses who were talking with Homer Meekins five minutes before his dead body was found, and who say that he was laughing and chatting with no sign of despondency. Another witness, it is claimed, says Meekin's worked with him all the afternoon, up to the time of the shooting, and was in a cheerful mood.

Garrett Meekins says that he found a barber in Two Harbors, who was across the street from the candy store, and who saw two men come out of the store less than thirty seconds after the shot was fired. The brother of the dead man says the proprietor of the store told the coroner's jury that he was in the kitchen when the shot was fired; that he saw no men in the store. The brother claims to have evidence that the candy store man was behind the counter, in the front of his store, at the time the shot was fired.

Garrett Meekins says he has been unable to find that his brother had any enemies at Hwo Harbors. He is accompanied by a friend from Baltimore, who claims to have worked with the dead man for several years, and who will assist in the investigation now being made by the relatives of the decedent.

MISCHIEF WAS COSTLY

Boys Plugged Alarm Box With Nails in West End.

Delay in Calling Department Caused a Heavy Loss.

By plugging up a fire alarm box in the West end with nails, small boys caused a loss of $700 to a residence in that district this afternoon. No alarm could be turned in and the residence was an almost total loss before the fire department knew there was a fire.

The residence was owned by a man named Archambault and was located at 118 Twenty-fourth avenue west. The fire originated from the kitchen range and was caused by some defect in the stove or the chimney.

The flames were discovered by neighbors before they had made much headway and a quick run was made to the nearest fire alarm box. This was found to be plugged with nails and could not be operated.

In the meantime the flames were swiftly destroying the residence and after the department finally arrived it was too late to save the structure.

The loss will amount to at least $700, and there was no insurance.

That the loss was directly due to the fact that the fire alarm box was plugged up is said to be a fact by the firemen and others, who were on the scene. Much of the loss might have been saved if the fire department had been notified in time.

An investigation will be made by the police department and an attempt will be made to trace the miscreants who plugged the box.

SECOND CASE IS COMMENCED

W. J. S. Schumann Says His Claim is Not Swamp.

W. J. S. Schumann is the contestant in the second suit against the state in the series of swamp land cases being heard in Duluth land office. His case was begun this morning and will continue over tomorrow and possibly Saturday.

The claims of Schumann are practically the same as those made by Cavasin in the first contest which was finished and taken under advisement by the register last night. Schumann claims 160 acres of land in township 58, range 9, section 35, and the state says it is swamp.

According to the papers in the case Schumann settled upon the land July 20, 1905, and has lived upon it constantly ever since. When the town was opened he was allowed to file his entry papers subject to the swamp land claim of the state. The state afterwards served notice that Schumann would have to bring a contest for the land and he did so.

It is claimed by Schumann that he settled upon the land prior to the survey and that it is not swamp. The state denied the existence and validity and good faith of Schumann's settlement and declares the land is swamp.

Capt. Smallwood is conducting the case for Schumann, while W. E. Culkin is defending the state in the contest.

RAILROAD MEN

Will Hold Monthly Meeting at Commercial Club.

The regular monthly meeting of the Northern Railway club will be held Friday night in the rooms of the Commercial club. Joseph Beck of the Duluth & Iron Range railway, will read a paper on "Application of Electricity in the Operation of Shops and Docks," and an informal discussion of matters pertaining to railroading will be held after the reading of the paper.

Special trains will be run from Proctor and Two Harbors for some of the railway men.

IN FAVOR OF STEEL MESH PLAN

McGilvray Says Sheet Roof Might Cause an Accident.

Two strips of half-inch steel galvanized wire netting are being placed immediately below the upper trucks of the aerial bridge for the purpose of protecting passengers from any falling bolts, ice or any portions of the upper mechanism which might by accident work loose and falling, injure some one below.

City Engineer McGilvray emphatically opposed the placing of a sheet iron roof over the areaway of the bridge, and for, apparently, very good reasons. He gives as his opinion that the placing of such a roof would probably sooner or later result in a very serious accident.

The roof would furnish a good surface for the heavy winds frequent in the fall and spring of the year, and it would be no surprise to see a heavy gale suck under such a roof and tilt the bridge off its trucks. It would also delay the progress of the bridge in moving across on its trucks during a wind, the roof furnishing a surface to blow against, which would make it very hard to make headway.

The city engineer is of the opinion that the placing of wire mesh, as stated, will answer the purpose and will be a much better solution of the problem.

THREE HOLIDAYS FOR NEVADA

Governor Declares Them on Account of Financial Unrest.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 24.—Owing to the general feeling of unrest that pervades financial circles, Governor Sparks has declared today, Friday and Saturday legal holidays.

All the banks throughout the state are taking advantage of this respite to get their affairs in such shape as to make a failure impossible.

Goldfield, Nev., Oct. 24.—The State Bank & Trust company posted a notice on its doors saying that the suspension is on instructions from the Home bank at Carson City, and is due to a heavy drain on the assets the last few days following the labor troubles and inability to make collections. The notice further says that the resources are ample to pay all depositors in full. It is generally believed that the suspension of the Goldfield institution was due wholly to the difficulty that beset its sister bank in another city, controlled by the B. Ricker company, who is head of the Sullivan Trust company.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION

Against the Southern Steel Company is Filed at Birmingham.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 24.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the federal court this afternoon against the Southern Steel company. The creditors seeking the bankruptcy order are the Birmingham Coal & Iron company, the Sayre Mining & Manufacturing company, and the Cahaba Coal company. The Southern Steel company is capitalized at $25,000,000 and owns a big steel plant at Gadsden, steel, rod, wire and nail mills at Ensley, coal mines at Altoona and Virginia City, and ore mines throughout the Birmingham district as well as coke ovens and other properties.

DEPOSIT OF $10,000,000

Brokers Form Pool of $25,000,000 for Mutual Assistance.

New York, Oct. 24.—With all the great generals of finance, and the secretary of the United States treasury acting in accord to restore public confidence in the banking and trust company situation in this city, sentiment took on a much more cheerful tone in Wall street today, and distinct improvement was visible in all quarters of the financial districts. The day opened with optimistic statements from officials of the Trust Company of America, and up to 2 o'clock in the afternoon that institution was paying all checks presented as rapidly as possible. A welcome feature of that company's affairs today was that large deposits, amounting to considerably more than a million dollars, were made during the morning hours.

John D. Rockefeller deposited $10,000,000 with one of the city's oldest trust companies, to be used in extending aid to such trust companies as might require it.

The failure of three small uptown banks had some ill effect on the money situation.

The stock market opened buoyant under the improved tone. In the later dealings weakness developed, due to the fact that brokerage houses were reducing their lines of stock carried on margins, on account of the tightness in the money market. Call money was still in urgent demand today. It opened at 50 per cent, and advanced to 70 per cent.

The stock market turned very weak shortly after 2 o'clock, Union Pacific selling down to par, a decline of 8½. Reading sold down 8 points below last night. Northern Pacific declined 9 points, St. Paul 6, and Southern Pacific 4¼. There was no news to account for the decline except the scarcity of money supplies, and the advance in the money rate to 100 per cent.

It was announced in the stock exchange at 2:20 that a pool had been formed which would supply the brokers with all the money required to close their operations tonight.

There were violent feverish rallies in the stock market following the decline. Union Pacific rising in a few minutes to 165 and Reading to 75. Prices jumped a full point in some cases between sales. Northern Pacific rallied 4¾. Amalgamated Copper also rose 3¼ from the lowest.

At 2:25, following the announcement of a pool organized to satisfy money requirements on the stock exchange, call money was lending at 10 per cent.

The amount of the pool loans made in the stock exchange was about $25,000,000.

Among the bankers who conferred with J. P. Morgan during the day was Jacob H. Schiff, head of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. At the close of his talk Mr. Schiff said:

"The situation is well in hand. I look for no more trouble, and in fact have heard of none."

There was a meeting of about twenty presidents of trust companies today at the office of the Union Trust company. No announcement was made at the close of the meeting, but soon thereafter large supplies of currency were sent over to the Trust Company of America.

Former Governor Myron T. Herrick of Cleveland, Ohio, was among Secretary Cortelyou's callers today. After leaving the sub-treasury Mr. Herrick said he considers the situation to be all right.

"The county was never more prosperous," said he, "and there is absolutely no reason for alarm. It is not analogous to the trouble of 1893 at all, for at that time manufacturers and others engaged in industrial enterpaises had their plants under heavy mortgages. Today the situation is entirely different. Manufacturers own their plants and are discounting their bills. There is no fear of a depression throughout the United States and I am confident that the situation in New York will be soon cleared up."

Fay-Cananea Copper Company Selling Stock on Easy Terms

"Correct Dress for Women"

IT'S AN OLD SAYING THAT

"A WOMAN IS AS YOUNG AS SHE FEELS"

We consider this true, to a greater or less degree, and would add—"She feels as young as she dresses." One secret of keeping young is to dress young, and we candidly think the styles for the current season lend to the stylish woman more of that "vigor" and "freshness" of youth than the caprice of fashion has sanctioned for some time. The frankly short skirts, in their plaited fullness, the wide "fluffy ruffles" folds, the large hats and auto veils, all tend to youthfulness.

This week we have been receiving shipments of the "newly bought" garments. Such charming things! We could go on and talk a page full about them as easily as not, but you will get a much better idea if you "drop in" and try them on. The styles breathe distinctiveness, the materials are the best, and they're hand-worked at all the vital points and everything from the blind buttonhole to the trimming is perfect.

"The Greatest Family Medicine Ever Discovered Is Pe-ru-na"

SO SAYS

The Hon. Wm. G. Hunter, Ex-Member of the North Carolina Legislature.

WM. G. HUNTER.

"The greatest family medicine ever discovered, in my opinion, which comes from experience as well as observation, is Peruna. The most common affliction to humankind is a bad cold. Peruna drives it out of doors, wards off catarrh, invigorates and gives fresh strength to mind and body.

"I give Peruna my unqualified endorsement."—Wm. G. Hunter, Census Office Bldg., Washington, D. C.

October the Beautiful.

IN spite of the chilly evenings and cold nights of October, this month is the most beautiful month of the whole season.

There is one liability, however, which constantly hangs over the month of October—the liability to catch cold at night.

Clothing Too Thin.

People have been accustomed to warm nights during the summer. They go out for the evening without proper clothing. Before their return they find themselves chilled to the bone.

Sometimes people go to sleep without proper covering, only to awaken in the morning and find they have caught cold.

PE-RU-NA TABLETS can now be obtained by those who prefer solid medicines.

Catching Cold in October.

Any cold more or less undermines the system, and a great many colds lay the foundation for chronic catarrh, pneumonia, and other diseases of the winter season.

The watchword of October is to guard against cold, so as to make the most of this beautiful and healthful month.

Pe-ru-na a Convenient Remedy.

Peruna kept in the house is a convenient remedy against colds. At the appearance of the first symptoms of cold, a few doses of Peruna will often mitigate the attack entirely.

Peruna is the recognized family medicine in over a million homes, and its value cannot be overestimated when it is properly used.

GETS ANOTHER CHANCE.

William Mansfield Will Make Another Effort to Leave City.

William Mansfield will try to get away from Duluth again today on time as he promised the court yesterday. Judge Windom yesterday gave him until 3 o'clock to go back to the lumber camps, where he is a cook, and William claims he intended to make good. He met a few festive lumberjacks, however, who were so persuasive and fond of his company that he listened to the tempters' voice and it is stated that when he came out of it found himself being taken away from his resting place at the base of a post on the Bowery.

"What time does your train leave?" asked Judge Cutting.

"At 3:15, the same time it did yesterday," replied William.

The court in order to be certain that William met no more of his old friends held him over until this afternoon, and he will be allowed an opportunity to leave the city.

NEW SEWERS NEXT YEAR

West Duluth Has Had Many Vexatious Delays Recently.

Trunk Sewer on Forty-Ninth Avenue is Badly Needed.

West Duluth is looking for a busy season in municipal improvements next summer, and chief among them are the sewer improvements. Several sewer projects, planned for this year, went over, but the residents of the districts affected will be in line early next year with requests that the work be done.

Chief among the sewers wanted is that in the Raleigh street district, long regarded one of the most unsanitary districts in West Duluth. A sewer is planned for the ravine in the alley between Raleigh and Polk streets, and it was thought for a time that the work would be done this year. It was not, however, and West Duluth people will request its construction as soon as possible next spring.

Another sewer, which has been wanted and wanted for a long time, is the Forty-ninth avenue trunk sewer, to replace the unsanitary wooden structure, which now drains that district after a fashion. The people of the district, which would be drained by the Forty-ninth avenue sewer, made urgent requests last spring that the work be done, but was put off and will be one of the first works to be begun next spring.

In the extreme western part of West Duluth, in the district south of Polk street, considerable sewer work was done during the past summer, so that West Duluth has not been entirely neglected in that respect. Next year, however, the work will be more extensive and the need more urgent, and this portion of the city will command a great deal more attention from the city's sanitation officers and the board of public works.

TO CHOOSE CANDIDATES.

Number of Men for Eighth Ward Aldermanic Nomination.

Tonight, in the rooms of the West Duluth Commercial club, the meeting of the West Duluth Republican club, originally called for tomorrow evening, will be held. President A. T. Park yesterday issued the official call and urged all members of the club to be present.

The West Duluth political situation will be thoroughly canvassed this evening, and the club will probably decide on some recommendations to make to the mass meeting at the city hall Saturday night. There is talk of West Duluth putting a candidate forward for the nomination for mayor and some action to that end may be taken.

Several prominent West Duluth Republicans are being mentioned as candidates for Alderman Foubister's seat in the council, their respective merits will be talked over tonight and a man will probably be selected to be supported by the club.

DOHERTY IN TROUBLE.

Irate Brother-in-Law Charges Threats to Assault.

John Doherty, a longshoreman, is having all kinds of trouble in his family. This time his brother-in-law is after his scalp, he claims.

It's all in the family, and nobody seems to have any idea as to what the trouble is about, but Burke wants Doherty bound over to keep the peace. He says Doherty threatened to "put a head on him," and he doesn't want to take any chances. He evidently thinks Doherty is a bold, bad man, who must be held under the leash of the law, that he may be safe.

Doherty was arraigned last evening, before Justice Flack, and pleaded not guilty. The case was set for Friday evening of this week.

INTERESTING TALK.

Observer H. W. Richardson Talks to Ladies' Guild on the Weather.

Observer H. W. Richardson of the United States weather bureau told the members of the Ladies' Guild of Holy Apostles' Episcopal church about the weather yesterday. It wasn't a conventional talk on the beauties of Indian summer in Duluth. It was a practical, informal explanation of the weather from the scientific standpoint and the workings of the United States weather bureau.

The manner of forecasting the weather, the elaborate system of following the course of atmospheric disturbances, the reliance placed in the weather bureau by commercial and agricultural interests, and the part the weather man plays in the business life of the country, were all gone into in some detail, and the information was new and impressive. The members were given the privilege of asking questions, and many availed themselves of it to clear up cloudy points. Mr. Richardson's talk was greatly enjoyed.

The meeting, the first of a series of literary meetings to be held by the club, was held at the residence of Mrs. D. Seashore, and was well attended.

SUPERIOR NEWS

TAXES WILL BE HIGHER

In Superior Than They Were Last Year---Money Needed.

Taxes will undoubtedly be higher in Superior this year than were last, in view of the increase in the levy for city school purposes and the additional county expense, in the nature of road improvements and the creation of the office of county highway commissioner.

A number of improvements, calculated to increase taxes, are contemplated and the board of review may cut down the levies on elevators, coal docks and the interstate bridge, petitions for such a move having already been made.

The cuts in this direction will make a higher levy in other directions, in order to get the amount needed during the year in Superior, and Douglas county. The city tax rate is apt to be very close to 4 mils.

REMEMBERED BALL GAME.

Forgot Date, But It Was Day of 6 to 1 Score.

When James Whitaker, a witness in the action brought against John Mattson, saloonkeeper, on a charge of selling liquor to a habitual drunkard, was asked when the plaintiff's son had secured liquor at the Mattson place, the witness could not remember the date, but an inspiration came to him, and he said: "I don't just remember the date, but it was the day the Cubs beat the Tigers, 6 to 1."

Every one in the courtroom smiled a little smile, and finally the court officer said: "It was Friday, Oct. 11." And everybody murmured, "Yes, that's right," under their breaths.

The father of the habitual drunkard alleged that Mattson sold liquor to his son after he had been repeatedly warned not to do so, and that the young man had been under the influence of liquor a good deal of the time lately. The case will come up again Friday, at which time the defense will have an opportunity of introducing witnesses.

Company Withdraws Protest.

The Northwestern Coal & Dock company appeared yesterday before the board of review and withdrew the protest against the assessment of $10,000 for railroad coal. No reason was given for the withdrawal of the protest. The amount of $75,000 worth of railroad coal assessed against the M. A. Hanna company was reduced upon request to $73,000 by the board. An attorney for the Pittsburg Coal company protested against the assessment of $82,000 against that company. The coal companies claim that the railroad coal is in reality the property of the railroads.

To Open Quarters Soon.

Members of the newly-organized Y. M. C. A. of Superior have decided to go ahead with the arrangements to open up association quarters, and at a meeting of the directors, last night, a committee, composed of Messrs. Downing, Gilbert and Williamson, was named to be in charge of the preparations. The organization is now looking for a secretary, and expects to secure one before the quarters are opened. A week from Sunday a mass meeting of those interested in the association will be held.

Boys Get Into Trouble.

Harry Brownles, Edward Schuster and George Barue, ages ranging from 14 to 16 years, were arrested at Carlton yesterday and held for the Superior authorities, on the charge of burglary. The boys, all of whom reside in Old Superior, are said to have entered the residence of J. S. Kelly. There were four boys said to be implicated in the alleged burglary, the fourth now being at home, where the police can easily reach him.

Settler Goes on Rampage.

William Ingram, a settler at Blueberry, Wis., is being held at the Douglas county jail on the charge of attempting to commit murder. The warrant for his arrest was sworn to by Napoleon Gurow, a neighbor of the defendant. It is claimed that Ingram, while under the influence of liquor, went to Gurow's house to make trouble, and that when ordered away, he procured his rifle and attempted to "shoot up the place."

—WHY—

"Merode" (Hand Finisht) Underwear

Because fabrics of the finest combed cotton, lisle, silk and lisle, silk and cotton, merino, wool and silk and wool, are deftly woven into the most delightful weights, suitable for every variation of the climate, one of the most prominent features being the great variety of shapes.

In most other makes, after selecting the proper weight, you often find it impossible to get the exact shape you desire. Not so with "Merode" (hand-finisht) Underwear. Vests, Drawers, Tights, Union Suits and Corset Covers are made in both regular and out sizes, in all weights and every shape, suitable alike for slender, stout or medium forms.

It is this particular feature, not duplicated in any other line of underwear, which so strengthens the "Merode" (hand-finisht) Underwear in public opinion.

Thru long experience and most exact care in shaping and cutting of the garments, a state of proficiency has been reacht which is truly remarkable. Each garment in every shape, both in regular and out sizes, is absolutely perfect. This is especially noteworthy in the Union Suits, where true conformity to the lines of the body is necessary in order to provide a perfect fitting garment—one that will neither gape, pucker, chafe, bunch up nor cause distress in any way. You never have to complain of an ill-fitting or an uncomfortable "Merode" Union Suit.

STAPLES IS RECEPTIVE

Intimates He Won't Dodge Republican Nomination for Mayor.

He Will be Seriously Considered at Meeting Saturday.

"I feel that in justice to the people of my ward who have so kindly expressed their approval of my weak efforts in the council, that I should stand for re-election as alderman of the ward, but if I should receive the unsolicited endorsement of a meeting of representative Republicans, as I believe this meeting will be, and the committee appointed by that meeting after casting about for a candidate should select me, I would consider the question very carefully from every standpoint before I would accept or decline the honor. I think that this meeting should be very careful who they decide upon as their candidate, for there is no question but that the people are looking to the party to name a man that they can conscientiously support for the office."

SAMUEL F. STAPLES.

Alderman S. F. Staples is being considered very seriously by the Republicans as a mayoralty candidate and when questioned today as to his position in the matter, he made the above statement. The talk is quite general that he is the most likely to be selected at the mass meeting Saturday evening, although several others whose names have been mentioned in the press have been and are being considered.

The political situation in the several wards of the city so far as aldermen is concerned, is not materially changed since the resume of the same was published in The Herald some days ago. Alderman Foubister is having considerable trouble with his eyes, but if they improve he will probably make the run again. It is understood that Alderman Burgess is to have opposition in Thomas Trevillion and A. J. Lyle. Should Alderman Staples become a candidate for the mayoralty that will make a difference in the political situation in his ward, but at present the situation is practically unchanged and will be until after the meeting Saturday night when a better idea of the situation may be obtained.

SHIPPERS MUST KNOW

Exact Rates Before Offering Their Goods for Shipment.

Otherwise They Cannot Expect Roads to Make Correction.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota railway commission is in receipt of a ruling from the interstate commerce commission, which says in effect that shippers should thoroughly inform themselves as to rates before offering goods for shipment, otherwise if a mistake results the shipper will have difficulty in having a correction made. The law appears to be in effect that the railway companies cannot correct mistakes.

Benjamin Anderson of New London, Iowa, shipped a car of emigrants' movables from there to Mora, Minn. The rate on emigrants' movables from New London to the Minnesota Transfer is 29 cents per hundred pounds, with a minimum of 20,000 pounds, and from the Minnesota Transfer to Mora 8 cents per hundred, with a 24,000-pound minimum.

In a car of emigrants' movables the Western classification allows ten head of live stock to be shipped with emigrants' movables. At the time of the loading of Mr. Anderson's car, he was informed by the agent of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road that it would be all right to load six calves in addition to the stock allowed by the classification.

Mr. Anderson is a farmer and knows nothing about rates or classification, and, relying on the statement of the agent, he loaded the six calves in the car in addition to the ten head provided for in the classification.

The rate on the emigrants' movables, including ten head of live stock in the car, from the point of origin to destination would have been $20.20, the tariff rate on the six calves being $5.36. The fact that the calves were not allowable under the classification, was discovered at the Minnesota Transfer, and a total charge of $125.56 was collected on the car.

The Minnesota commission being unable to afford any relief took the case up with the interstate commerce commission at Washington, and have just received a letter from Commissioner Clark giving the decision of that commission, in which it is held, following a decision of the supreme court of the United States that no matter what rate is quoted by the agent the published tariff should prevail and that no refund can be made for mistakes of agents, regardless of what hardship the shipper suffers.

The interstate commerce commission holds that the interstate commerce act does not impose upon the carrier the obligation to inform the shipper as to the requirements necessary to secure a given rate, but the law, having for the convenience of the public made it the duty of the carrier to post their tariffs, expects the shipper to get his information therefrom.

BUTTER AND CHEESE

Makers Will Hold State Convention in St. Peter Next Week.

St. Peter, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota State Butter and Cheesemakers' convention will be held here Oct. 30 to Nov. 1, and a feature will be a test of skill on the part of judges of butter. Quite a number of prominent outside scorers will participate. They will be required to make two tests of the same samples with the marks changed. This is to prevent identification of the separate tubs. Twenty-five tubs of butter will be used in the test. Three prizes will be offered, the first one of $10.

DINEHART MAKES TOUCH.

State Treasurer to Draw State Money for October School Apportionment.

St. Paul, Oct. 24.—By Friday State Treasurer Dinehart will have drained every bank in the state of every dollar Minnesota has on deposit with it. In the three big cities the slate has been wiped clean, and notice was sent out to the country banks to get ready for the draft.

This big touch is to enable the payment of the October school apportionment which called for $1,000,000. The checks are now ready and will be sent to every district in the state Friday.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

Crookston—On Monday evening, Oct. 28, Maj. Eva of Duluth will inspect Company I, M. N. G., of this city. The company is in the best shape it has been for many years.

Aitkin—Information was received Tuesday morning of the death of Rev. S. D. Kemerer at the state soldiers' home at Minneapolis Monday night. Mr. Kemerer, who was 65 years old, had been suffering from locomotor ataxia for more than a year, and last winter went to the mill city in hopes of being benefited by treatment.

Moorhead—The railway company has met with gratifying success in the drilling of wells at Dilworth, and the matter of water supply seems to be well taken care of. At the hotel a 2-inch well with a good flow has been supplying water for the needs of that immediate vicinity, and at the section house another 3-inch well is in operation.

Long Prairie—The contract was let Monday for the digging of county ditch No. 19. The ditch is in Hartford and Ward and is a big one. O. F. Doyle of St. Cloud secured the contract for digging the main ditch, the estimated cost of which was $7,648.30, and his bid was 28 per cent above this.

Fairmont—The organization of an anti-chicken thief association in Martin county is being advocated. It is estimated that more than $1,000 worth of poultry has been stolen in that county this fall.

Warren—Fire completely destroyed the Lewis livery barn Tuesday night. Eighteen horses were saved and four burned. The loss is $3,500 and the insurance $2,500.

Hawley—Preparations are being made for the first market day here on Saturday next. A feature will be the auction sale, farmers being invited to bring in live stock which will be sold free of cost. Another feature will be a football game between Barnesville and Hawley.

St. Paul—Another record was broken at Union stock yards in South St. Paul on Monday, when a total of 6,651 cattle and 1,161 calves were received, compared with 16,459 cattle and 1,017 calves on Sept. 2, the highest previous record.

WIRELESS WILL BE INSTALLED

Station at Ashland to Work With Madeline Island.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Arrangements have practically been completed by a local company for the erection of a wireless telegraph sation in Ashland, to connect with a wireless station, to be erected on Madeline island, and it is expected to have the two stations in working order early next spring.

An attempt will be made by the local company to secure the use of a government weather signal display tower on the bay front for the Ashland end of the line, and a high telephone pole, with suitable wiring, will be erected for the LaPointe station. Of course, if the government display tower cannot be secured, a similar arrangement will be made here, as at the island. The company will only need two operators, as it is not the intention to do any night business, and the necessary work on the wires and batteries will also be done by these two men, so the running expenses after the first installation will be very light.

An agreement will also probably be made with the local telephone companies and the Western Union for the transmission of messages from the island to points beyond Ashland, if desired.

COL. WING'S WILL

Is Filed for Probate in Bayfield County Court at Washburn.

Washburn, Wis., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The will of the late Col. Isaac Wing, the wealthy Bayfield man, lifelong friend and political backer of Senator John C. Spooner, and one of the richest men in Northern Wisconsin, has been filed for probate in the Bayfield county court here before Judge William H. Irish. The court directed that Amos E. Jefferson of Hudson, Wis.; William P. Shea of Ashland, and Charles E. Ritterhouse of Jamestown, N. D., the executors named in the will, file a bond in the sum of $400,000 before letters testamentary be issued. The bond will be filed forthwith and the court will then appoint appraisers to value the estate. The will of Col. Wing, as previously stated in The Herald, disposes of the largest estate ever offered for probate in Bayfield county, amounting to almost $1,000,000.

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Ashland—Judge Burnell of Oshkosh has opened circuit court for the trial of the Jazdewski damage case. The plaintiff was injured in Barker & Stewart's mill years ago, a board being driven clear through his body, the projecting ends having to be sawed off before he could be moved. The case has been in the court for years. Other cases will be tried following this one.

Oshkosh—Mrs. F. F. MacNichol, a prominent woman in the women's club of this city, died Monday night at the age of 47 years. Her husband and one daughter survive her. She was the daughter of Amos Baum, a banker of Watertown, where she was born.

Green Bay—While giving his horse a morning cleaning two weeks ago, Jacob Gerl of Wabeno scratched his hand on the currycomb. Blood poison set in and he died in St. Vincent's hospital in this city. He was 55 years old.

Dodgeville—James Lloyd Jones, a member of the board of regents of the state university and a brother of Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, the Chicago divine, died at his home at Wyoming, this county, Tuesday morning from injuries received last Wednesday when assisting in removing the bodies of two men killed in a threshing accident near his farm.

Appleton—The Appleton Coated Paper company, the only plant in the state which manufactures white enamel book paper, commenced operations Tuesday. Charles S. Boyd of Kaukauna is president of the company.

Ashland—Mrs. John Cogswell of Two Harbors, Minn., arrived in the city Monday evening for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Wharton.

Milwaukee—Ex-Judge Gary, for whom a benefit lecture on "Fits and Misfits" will be given at the Pabst theater Friday night by Joseph G. Donnelly, has had wide experience in the eighty-seven years of his life. He has been a sailor, teacher, clerk, politician, editor, attorney and probate judge.

Marinette—An epidemic of diphtheria is prevalent at Peshtigo, in this county, and members of a dozen families have been stricken and three deaths have occurred during the last week. The epidemic has been confined wholly to the East side.

NO REDUCTION IN MINERS' PAY

False Report is Put in Circulation Around Calumet.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Somebody started a rumor Saturday afternoon to the effect that the local mining companies had given their employes notice of a cut of 10 per cent in wages. Now, as a matter of fact there was no such notice given, nor, as far as can be learned, will there be such an action. The managers of the mines in this district have always followed the plan of keeping the wage scale where they would be in a position to maintain it indefinitely, irrespective of the metal situation, and its somewhat temporary and spasmodic fluctuations.

Relative to the October pay day there is a difference of opinion existing. Local merchants report that an excellent trade resulted from the distribution of the monthly wages.

Of course the decline in the price of stocks has made it necessary for many to curtail expenditures until the situation becomes clearer. Many who depend on dividends for their support are necessarily up in the air regarding the amount which they will receive when the next disbursement is made. The majority of shareholders of dividend paying stocks are banking on a cut of 50 per cent at least, and are making their plans accordingly.

On the whole, business conditions are very satisfactory in Calumet.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—Norman Larson, aged 41, unmarried, a former resident of Calumet, was found dead in bed at Ricedale, near Houghton, Tuesday Larson went to bed in his usual spirits as he did not complain. When he did not appear at the breakfast table in the morning an investigation was made, Larson being discovered dead in bed.

Lake Linden—No employes of the Calumet & Hecla mills have been released in the past thirty days and with the large amount of construction work that has been laid out it will be some time before a reduction can be thought of.

Houghton—The result of the counting of the pieces of mail handled in the Houghton postoffice during the week from Oct. 13 to 19 inclusive, was that a larger number was expected was counted, the total being 26,750.

Calumet—The Huron Bay Lumber company, capital $400,000 has been organized by Grand Rapids capitalists holding 16,000 acres of mixed timber land in Baraga county and another 6,000 acres under option with a total estimated stumpage of 200,000,000 feet.

L'Anse—Henry Johnston and Thomas Johnston left L'Anse for Oregon, where they intend to locate. The young men have been life-long residents of this region.

Calumet—The program for the dedication of the new high school is practically completed. Principal Hall has been working on the details during the past few days, and has about made all arrangements. The dedication will be of a formal nature, and will take plce the evening of Nov. 22, in the Light Guard Armory.

Houghton—The shoot held at Calumet Sunday between the Calumet Engineers and Company G of Houghton, for the Stanton trophy, resulted in a victory for the Engineers by a margin of 16 points after one of the closest and most exciting contests of the season.

St. Ignace—A. B. Standish, formerly manager of the St. Ignace branch of Hammond, Standish & Co., who removed some years ago to the Soo, died suddenly at Mt. Clemens Saturday. The remains were taken through here to the Soo Tuesday morning.

Sault Ste. Marie—Death has claimed Ferdinando Calcrinello, 103 years old. His wife died last spring, aged 102. She was said to have been the oldest woman in the United States.

Marquette—It is stated that a favorable report upon the feasibility of the proposed electric line between Marquette, Negaunee and Ishpeming has been returned by Robers & Abbott, the Cleveland engineering concern that made an examination of the project.

Negaunee—Mrs. Andrew Moline and son Charles and wife are here from Alexandria, Minn., on a visit to the former's brother, Charles J. Thoren, whom she had not seen in eighteen years. Mrs. Moline was a resident of Ishpeming for some time prior to thirty-one years ago.

Ishpeming—The funeral of the late Thomas Henry Pascoe, who was killed at the Cleveland-Lake mine Saturday, was largely attended Tuesday afternoon, Trelawney lodge, Sons of St. George, was represented by a large delegation of its members, also the ladies of the Protective legion.

POKER GAME HAS A FATAL ENDING

Engineer McRae is Killed by Negro Named Hamilton.

Finley, N. D., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Following trouble over a poker game, Carl McRae was shot and killed early Tuesday by Fred Hamilton, a negro. The murderer made his escape but was captured at Tolna by Sheriff Sandlie of Nelson county, after an exciting chase.

Hamilton took a freight train from the scene of his crime and got off at Tolna. Sheriff Sandlie and Sheriff Belford of Devils Lake had been notified to look out for him and when he left the train it was soon known. He made no resistance.

Sheriff Sandlie turned Hamilton over to Sheriff Hanley of Steele county, who took the murderer to Hillsboro by train last night, and from there will go to Sherbrook via automobile today.

The murdered man was an engineer and 29 years old.

PLAN GREAT HOSPITAL.

Methodists May Build One at Minot for Three States.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—A hundred-room hospital for the accommodation of the residents of North and South Dakota, Montana and Southern Canada may be located in Minot by the Methodist church in the near future.

The matter was under consideration at the Methodist conference in this city, and the committee having the matter in charge, Rev. G. L. Powell of Minot, W. R. Morrison of Sheldon, and E. O. Eldridge of Wahpeton, reported favorably on locating the institution in this city.

Such a hospital will be of untold benefit to Minot and this section of the country. As Minot is in the center of the district to be benefited, that is the Dakotas, Montana and Saskatchewan, this city seems to be the logical point.

POLICE AND STRIKERS

Have Serious Clash and Exchange Shots at Minot.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 24.—The special police who are in charge of the Great Northern roundhouse, in charge of Charles Welch, had a lively encounter with a number of strikers who attempted to clean things up. They cut the wires leading into the building and exchanged shots with the force. Several engineers were delayed in getting their engines out, but the police soon quieted things down. Several of the strikers have left and things are quite peaceful.

SOO TRAINS COLLIDE.

Fireman Young, on His First Run, Is Instantly Killed.

Kensal, N. D., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—An east and a west bound freight train on the Soo road, one loaded with stock, came into collision here early yesterday, and Fireman Young of the west bound train, who lives at Enderlin, was on his first run, was instantly killed. There is no reason known for the wreck as it was bright and moonlight at the time and the train must have been visible. The west bound engine was badly wrecked and the fireman buried under the ruins of the tender. Several cars of stock on the west bound train were wrecked and much of the stock killed.

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Duluth Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Duluth. Follow the advice of a Duluth citizen and be cured yourself.

J. E. Watts, bricklayer, living at 911 Tenth avenue west, Duluth, Minn., says: "I have no reason to change the opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I expressed in a testimonial given in 1898. At that time it cured me of a bad attack of backache and lameness, which made me stop work. I was unable to stoop, and the pain was severe just over the kidneys and through the loins. Plasters and other remedies I used brought no radical benefit. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me so strongly that I decided to try them. I soon found that they were just the remedy for my case. In a few days the pain left me, and the cure has been permanent.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

BUSINESS MAN

Of Grand Forks Arrested on Charge of Being Insane.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. A. Rheinhart, proprietor of the big hardware store on De Mers avenue, and a pioneer resident of Grand Forks, has been arrested on a charge of insanity. The arrest of Rheinhart followed a series of startling stunts. For the past six weeks, following a visit of his wife for five or six weeks with friends in Iowa, he has been jealous and has frequently chased her out of the house and compelled her to seek protection with neighbors.

Tuesday morning Reinhart sold the stock in his hardware store to one of his sons, executing a bill of sale for the same and drew $4,000 from one of the banks. He flashed the money around town and handled it as one demented. He resigned as a director of the company owning the new Empire theater.

Following his arrest he sought the services of a lawyer and prepared for the hearing.

JACKRABBIT IS BLAMED FOR DEATH OF CHILD.

Maxbass, N. D., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—A jack rabbit was indirectly responsible for the death near here of the baby of Mrs. Henry Heald. While Mrs. Heald and the baby were out driving with Mrs. J. Rathbone, a rabbit jumped up from the side of the road. The horse was frightened and tipped the buggy over. The baby was injured internally and died before medical aid could be secured. The two women escaped with slight injuries.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Fargo, N. D.—Louis Stevens and John Ross, the young thugs who assaulted Benet Nagel on Lower Front street Sunday evening, were arrested Tuesday by Deputy Sheriff Max Richards, and are now in the county jail awaiting trial.

Casselton, N. D.—The second quarterly county teachers' examination will be held here Friday and Saturday. About sixty applicants for teachers' certificates are expected to take the examination.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The trainmaster's office of the Dakota division of the Great Northern moved some weeks ago to Larimore, has been ordered back to Grand Forks, and Trainmaster F. H. Eisenhart, with his chief clerk, James Gray, has taken up his headquarters here.

Fargo, N. D.—A meeting of the hotel men from over the state was held Tuesday afternoon at the Metropole, for the purpose of discussing matters of interest in the hotel ousiness.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Grand Forks will add another fraternity lodge to its long list next Thursday evening, when an order of the Brotherhood of Owls lodge will take place in the Normanden hall with District Organizer M. K. Hessian of Seattle, Wash., as chief operator.

MANY TELEGRAPHERS RETURN AT HELENA.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 24.—Ten operators were at work in the Western Union office today, having been reinstated following the resolution passed at a meeting of the local declaring the strike, off as far as this city is concerned. The Postal force was also reinstated yesterday.

The operators in Great Falls are affiliated with the Helena union, and it is understood all the operators there will return to work today.

Why Colds Are Dangerous.

Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Everyone knows that pneumonia and chronic catarrh have their origin in a common cold. Consumption is not caused by a cold, but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest way to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by all druggists.

PROCEEDINGS ARE COMMENCED

In Supreme Court to Review Case of Attorney General Young.

Washington, Oct. 24.—Thomas D. O'Brien, chief counsel for the state, and Assistant Attorney General T. Simpson of Minnesota, reached Washington yesterday and began habeas corpus proceedings, which if successful, will result in a review by the supreme court of the United States of the injunction and contempt order against Attorney General Young of that state, issued two days ago by United States District Attorney Judge Lochren. The brief for the attorney general has been put in the hands of the printer here and is expected to be ready for submission to the court Friday when formal application for habeas corpus will be made to the court by motion.

The grounds upon which the state expects to get a review by the supreme court are stated to be first, that the federal court in Minnesota had no jurisdiction of the action, because there was no diverse citizenship between the parties, and that no federal question was presented which would justify that court in issuing the injunction; that the suit, insofar as it is against the attorney general is in effect a suit against the state of Minnesota, and therefore prohibited by the eleventh amendment to the Constitution of the United States. It is also set up that in making the order the district court attempts to deprive the attorney general of the discretion vested in him in the particular instance by the legislature of the state. In conclusion the brief states that the temporary injunction was therefore void, that the order punishing the attorney general for contempt was equally void, and that as he is now restrained of his liberty under an order of the federal court of the United States, which is void, the supreme court of the United States has ample authority and justification for reviewing the action of the federal court.

BABY IS A SUICIDE.

Four-Year-Old Child Deliberately Takes His Own Life.

Leon, Iowa, Oct. 24.—The 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Owens committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. It seems the little fellow became angry because some children with whom he had been playing objected to something he had been doing. He ran into the house, after telling the children he was going to kill himself, and climbed upon the foot of the bed, placed the muzzle of a small target rifle against his nose at the corner of one eye and pulled the trigger. The shot brought his playmates to the house, and they immediately called a physician, but nothing could be done to save the child's life. How the child ever thought of such an act is a mystery.

CLOQUET SHOCKED

By the News of the Death of Michael Brennan.

Cloquet, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—News reached Cloquet yesterday afternoon to the effect that Michael Brennan, a well-known resident of this place, had died in Dulutn at St. Mary's hospital, about 4 o'clock. The report came as a great shock to Mr. Brennan's numerous friends in this city, for he was very popular among the young men about town, was 46 years of age, and came to Cloquet about fifteen years ago from his home in Ottawa, Canada. His burial will probably take place there, but as yet nothing definite is known.

Henry E. Jones of Tampa, Fla., writes: "I can thank God for my present health, due to Foley's Kidney Cure. I tried doctors and all kinds of kidney cures, but nothing done me much good till I took Foley's Kidney Cure. Four bottles cured me, and I have no more pain in my back and shoulders. I am 62 years old, and suffered long, but thanks to Foley's Kidney Cure I am well and can walk and enjoy myself. It is a pleasure to recommend it to those needing a kidney medicine." Sold by all druggists.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

A depth of thought and keen insight into human nature; a kindly, critical and encouraging attitude, was that of Mrs. Kate Upson Clark, yesterday afternoon, at the second in her series of three lectures which she is presenting in Duluth, under the auspices of the Twentieth Century club of this city. Her subject for the afternoon was, "The Effect of Women's Clubs Upon Domestic Life," and she brought well-balanced, carefully-thought out, and logical arguments in favor of this movement, which has been the subject of so much discussion.

"It is a brave person who will attempt to convert those opposed to clubs for women, because their aversion is founded usually on the firm rock of stubbornness," said Mrs. Clark in part. "Women are so wedded to habit, so firmly attached to custom, and have for so many years made gods of our things, that although it will be hard to make American women admit or believe it, our attitude to innovations is the same as the women of China. The woman who has always believed that her ice chest must be cleaned and scoured three times a week in order to maintain the health of her family, and the criterion of her housekeeping, cannot be brought to even consider that twice a week might answer. The homely details of daily work have been made a part of many of our lives by the early women of the country. They had little choice offered them in the way they might fill their days, and so they occupied their attention with a wealth of household tasks which have become tradition, and from which it is difficult to persuade some women, as it is to introduce an innovation into China.

"Through the broader outlook on life which the association with other women has made possible in club life, many women are given to see, almost for the first time, the possibilities in club life, may hold for them. The early women of the country lived their lives beautifully, and did their best with the conditions which surrounded them. The conditions for the modern women are different, and to live her life beautifully, she should meet them with an open mind.

"The husbands of the day are as much responsible for club life as any one. They are meeting people constantly of broad experience, and much interest, and they demand from their wives an intelligent companionship, which the wise woman will enable herself to offer. The club helps her. The children of the family look up to the mother for instruction and help and advice, and only by keeping in touch with the matters of today will she be able to offer it. Clubs have brought to families advantages of which they knew not, and have helped to make woman equal to the demands upon her.

"Women have learned that they may have an ideal, and follow it without at all being responsible for its acceptance by the whole world, but can trust for its continuance to the women who follow. The pioneers in the lines of women's independence have taught us that. For ideals can never be grasped. They are given us to work for and to light us on our way, to look up to and to follow. Like the stars in the blue vault of heaven, they speak to us, saying, 'We are still here.' They are always just so bright, just so steady. We perhaps never can reach nor grasp one ideal, nor will those who come after, but they will see it as we have, in all its brightness and beauty."

Mrs. Clark's points were cleverly made, with the bright comment that her audience has come to expect from her. The lecture was one of deep interest, and although of matter entirely differing from her first talk, was received with great pleasure by her auditors.

The last lecture of the course will be given Saturday morning, at 10:30 o'clock, when the subject will be "The Essentials and Non-Essentials of Life."

CHURCH RECEPTION.

Affair to Be Held in New Parsonage Tomorrow Evening.

The members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Lester Park Methodist church will entertain at a reception tomorrow evening at the new parsonage, 5415 East Superior street, in honor of Rev. and Mrs. James A. Geer. The affair will also be in the nature of a house warming, as it will be the first entertainment to be held in the new parsonage.

Autumn Assembly.

The first of a series of another year's Assemblies will be danced tomorrow evening at the Spalding. The affair has been anticipated with much pleasure and it is expected that it will be one of the most delightful in many months. The fears that have been expressed often that after this party the Assembly will be without a ball room for their functions, owing to the changes at the Spalding, have been allayed. The Christmas party will probably be given in the old ball room, as work there will not be begun until after Christmas, and at the end of the next two months the new dancing hall of the hotel will be in readiness. At least these are the plans.

LaBrosse's orchestra will play tomorrow evening and the executive committee has planned carefully for a most delightful evening.

Card Party.

Miss Millie McKee was hostess at cards yesterday afternoon at her home, 429 East Second street. The affair was planned in compliment to Miss Cora Letteau, who will leave next month to spend the winter in California. Five hundred was played at seven tables and the favors were won by Miss Edna Cargill and Miss Roella Lovett. The guest prize was presented Miss Letteau.

Hallowe'en Party.

Miss Sadie Stevens and Miss Gladys Elliott have issued invitation for a Halloween costume party to be given Thursday evening of next week at the home of Capt. and Mrs. D. E. Stevens of 2231 West Third street.

Personal Mention.

Miss Grace Sheridan has returned from a six weeks' visit with friends at Sioux Falls, S. D.

* * *

What Retail Markets Offer.

Apple cider, 40 cents a gallon.

Parsnips, 30 cents a peck.

Green peppers, 15 cents a dozen.

Cabbage, 2 cents a pound.

Pork tenderloin.

Pop corn, 8 cents a pound.

Pop corn and cider and apples!

The combination is an expensive one but so delicious that one temporarily forgets the lack of cash balance at the bank, the awful shapes of the autumn hats, the still more awful price one is compelled to pay for them, the lack of winter furs, the worry of just having to live, the need of a few more puff curls, which cost 50 cents each and all the other ills which life brings with it.

Apples and pop corn and cider!

The beautiful part of these three things separately or in conjunction is that they come ready prepared. There is no choosing of whether you shall eat them with sugar or with vinegar. You dive your hand into the dish pan of liberally buttered and plentifully salted corn and eat, while you gaze deep-eyed into a glowing grate or the place in the wall, where there might have been a grate, if the man who built the house had not been so penurious.

Cider, apples and pop corn!

ACCOUNT IN BAD TANGLE

W. A. Wagner's Final Account as Administrator is Corrected.

Court Finds He Owes Thomas Gaughan Estate $2,187.78.

Probate Judge Middelcoff has sustained the objections of the heirs of Thomas Gaughan, deceased, to the administrator's final account as filed by W. A. Wagner, a well known retail liquor dealer of this city, and has corrected the account by adding to it personal estate omitted from the inventory and in the possession of the administrator, to the amount of $2,187.78.

The records of the case, on file in the probate court, show that Thomas Gaughan of Superior died Sept. 20, 1904, leaving a widow, Mrs. Catherine Gaughan, and two daughters, Mrs. Kate Hauley and Mrs. Susan Egan.

While the estate was being administered it developed that Gaughan, during his lifetime, had possession of considerable money at times and made W. A. Wagner of this city his banker. When Gaughan died, Mr. Wagner was appointed an executor.

Mr. Wagner, in his final account, showed a statement in which the expenses and the cash in his possession belonging to the estate just balanced, and the heirs protested the account, claiming that Thomas Gaughan, when he died, had more money on deposit with the executor than the final account showed.

The probate court conducted a hearing in the matter and it developed that the system of accounts kept between Gaughan and Wagner was a very irregular one, that the account was, in fact, in a badly tangled up condition. Mr. Wagner produced a bunch of slips with Gaughan's name and various amounts penciled, but he was not able to say whether the memoranda represented money Gaughan had deposited with him or whether they represented money he had paid Gaughan.

Th court took into account all the information that could be gathered from the bad bookkeeping and found that the estate has still $2,187.78 more coming to the heirs, in cash, than the final account showed.

Receipts—Personal estate as described in the inventory and personal estate omitted from the inventory, but within the possession of the administrator, $2,187.78.

Disbursement—Expenses of administration, attorney's fees, etc., $93.94; cash paid Mrs. Gaughan, $15. Residue on hand for distributing, $2,078.84. Total credits, $2,187.78.

The roller skating craze has struck the stage. Several teams on the big vaudeville circuits are doing stunts on the rollers, and most of them are very entertaining specialties. The Adams Brothers, who do some skating stunts at the Metropolitan this week, have been playing in the big Eastern vaudeville houses all summer. Roller skating acts offer almost unlimited opportunity for comedy, and the Adams Brothers have no difficulty in getting laughs while they are on the stage.

FINDS BOMB IN AN AUTOMOBILE

Strange Looking Cylinder Immersed in Bucket of Water.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Dr. Hart J. Goslee tucked his friend, Dr. W. H. Taggart into the tonneau of his big touring car standing at the side of the Stewart building last night.

"What's this?" asked Dr. Taggart, picking up an iron tube about three inches long and one inch in diameter.

"Blessed if I know," replied Dr. Goslee. "Maybe its some kind of a foot-warming device that the family has put in the car."

"It's not warm, but I can hear it ticking," said Dr. Taggart.

Then Dr. Goslee started the machine and they rolled to the Edelweiss restaurant, where they were to dine with their families.

At the table, while the head walter, Ernest Messner, was taking the dinner order, Dr. Taggart picked up his find from the floor and asked the waiter to explain the mystery.

"It's a dynamite bomb, sir. It goes by clockwork and is liable to explode at any minute."

Dr. Goslee began to get nervous and finally left the table, beckoning Dr. Taggart to follow.

Without a word the two men climbed into the automobile and ran careful to the central detective bureau, where the situation was explained.

"But what made you bring it here?" asked Lieut. Larkin.

"Because we don't want it any more," replied Dr. Taggart.

Larkin got a bucket of water and the mysterious steel cylinder was immersed in it. Then the bucket, with its contents, was locked up in the big steel safe.

NEW HOLDUP GAME.

Footpads Seize Modiste's Messenger Boy and Take Beautiful Gowns.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—An entirely new departure of the holdup men of Chicago was successfully launched Saturday night, when two beautiful gowns of Mrs. Edson Keith, Jr., failed to reach her home.

George E. Newport, who acts as a special delivery boy for Mme. Whitney, the modiste, was sent from Mme. Whitney's shop with two handsome and expensive gowns to be delivered to Mrs. Keith. Newport was warned to make haste as Mrs. Keith was anxiously waiting for the gowns, one of which she was to wear to the theater.

Swinging one box in each hand Newport walked past the corner of Sixteenth street and Prairie avenue. Suddenly two men leaped upon him and while one of them throttled him, the other seized the precious packages. Then the highwaymen ran, leaving Newport in tears.

Mrs. Keith was greatly disappointed, but declined to describe the gowns or discuss her loss. The valuation of the two dresses was given to the police as $650.

OLD MAN FOUGHT HARD.

Whipped One Bandit, But Yielded When Reinforcements Came.

Lewistown, Mont., Oct. 24.—While driving a stage between Percail and Harlowton, Launce Ford, an old man, was held up by two men and robbed. Owing to peculiar circumstances the mail was saved.

The bandits, who were mounted, ordered the driver to stop, while one of them held the horses and the other proceeded to do the robbing, going through the driver first. Ford made such a fight, in spite of his age, that the second bandit left the horses to give assistance to his associate, who needed it. The horses then ran away, carrying the mail sacks out of danger.

The driver was badly beaten, and robbed of his money. He was able to give an excellent description of the bandits and their horses and they will probably be captured.

FIRE IN RESIDENCE.

Home of A. L. Polinsky is Scorched by the Flames.

The fire department had run last evening to the home of A. L. Polinsky at 1128 East Sixth street.

The blaze originated in the range, and had gained quite a little headway when the department arrived. It was but a few minutes' work to extinguish it, but the loss to the furniture and interior decorations of the house, will be quite heavy.

Died Suddenly.

M. J. Brennan, age 40 years, died at 108 West First street yesterday, supposedly of heart failure. A maid discovered his lifeless body in the afternoon, when she went to the room.

Coroner McCuen was notified and pronounced it heart failure. The remains were taken to the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan and relatives at Kelly Lake have been notified. Brennan formerly lived at Cloquet.

LOEB HAS GOOD LUCK.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 24. — Harry W. Child, who accompanied William Loeb, Jr., secretary to the president on a hunting trip near the Yellowstone National park, returned yesterday. He reported that the party had better luck than President Roosevelt had in the canebrakes of Louisiana. Secretary Loeb, who is still in camp will leave for Washington Friday.

THE KIDNEYS GET FEEBLE

Trouble Readily Relieved by Simple Home Mixture at Small Cost.

Less Kidney Trouble If Recipe to Make Home Remedy is Known.

Here is a prescription that anyone can mix at home. Any good prescription pharmacy can supply the ingredients named at little cost; being composed of vegetable extracts, it is harmless and inexpensive. Best of all it does its work well, relieving even the worst forms of bladder trouble, frequent urination, backache, kidney complaint, and by its action upon the eliminative tissue of the kidneys, makes these most vital organs rid the blood and system of waste matter and uric acid which causes rheumatism.

Here it is: Try it if you suffer. Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compond Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

A well known local druggist is authority for the statement that one week's use shows good results in nearly every instance, and such symptoms as lame back, frequent desire to urinate, pain in bladder and even chronic rheumatism are generally relieved within a few days, the pain and swelling diminishing with each dose.

FOUR MEN ARE KILLED.

blown to pieces along with the No. 2 mixing house, adjacent to the storehouse. They all lived in Washburn. Of the injured Oscar Wegstrom was cut about the hands and face by flying glass, Engwald Victor was also cut by flying glass. Engwald Barnstron, besides losing a leg, was also badly cut by glass and may die. The wounds of several others were of a lesser nature. Soon after the explosion occurred a special train was dispatched to the scene and the injured hurried to the hospital at Washburn.

Storehouse No. 2 which was wiped off the face of the earth by the explosion, was an iron building 20 by 40 feet. Like all the other buildings of the company it was built with a view of reducing the possibility of explosion to a minimum being surrounded by rubber covered walks and other devices familiar in powder plants. Built about the building was a wall of logs designed to reduce the force of the explosion. This worked admirably otherwise the explosion might have set off the explosives in other buildings and there might have been a repetition of the recent horror at Fontenat, Id., when the powder plant of the same company exploded with frightful loss of life.

E. J. Spink of Ashland, arrived in the city this morning on his way out West. He was at Ashland when the explosion at Barkdale occurred and says that the shock felt at Ashland was terrific. It took place shortly before 7 o'clock and many people were still in their beds. Many of these were thrown violently out of bed.

"Other people on the streets were knocked down and a few were injured," said Mr. Spink. "Windows were broken, dishes smashed and considerable damage was done by the shock of the explosion. The loss by owners of buildings from broken plate glass will be heavy."

When he left Ashland Mr. Spink says there were no definite reports received from the scene of the explosion. It was believed, however, that many lives had been lost as it was about the time most of the workmen were going to work.

"This is the third explosion since the plant was established a few years ago," continued Mr. Spink. There were two about a year ago, but none of them amounted to much compared to this one."

William Mackenroth Made Traveling Boiler Inspector on Great Northern.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 24.—William Mackenroth, who recently was promoted from the position of boilermaker to that of chief boilermaker in the Great Northern roundhouse at this point, received another promotion yesterday, when he was given the position of traveling boiler inspector. It is understood that his territory will be general and that he will travel all over the Great Northern system. Mr. Mackenroth has been employed in the Great Northern shops here for a number of years and has a host of friends that rejoice with him in his well earned promotion.

A Fortune Spent.

Indiana Woman Gives Thousands of Dollars to Aid Suffering Women.

In the past few years Mrs. Cora B. Miller has spent $125,000 in giving medicine to afflicted womaen.

Some time ago we announced that she would give to women who suffered from female diseases another $10,000 worth of her medicine. Having fulfilled this promise, and as she is still receiving requests from thousands of women from al parts of the world, who have not yet used her remedy, she has decided to give away $20,000 more to those who are suffering and unable to find relief. This is the simple mild treatment that has cured so many women in the privacy of their own homes after physicians and other remedies failed.

It is especially prepared for the speedy and permanent cure of leucorrhoea or whitish discharges, ulceration, displacements or falling of the womb, profuse, scanty or painful periods, uterine or ovarian tumors or growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness and piles from any cause or no matter of how long standing.

Every woman sufferer, unable to find relief, who will write Mrs. Miller now without delay will receive by mail free of charge a 50 cent box of her simple home remedy, also her book with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer and how they can easily cure themselves at home without the aid of a physician.

Don't suffer another day, but write at once to Mrs. Cora B. Miller, Box 9227 Kokomo, Ind.

ARRIVES ON FIRST TRIP

She Was Launched at Wyandotte Shipyards in September.

The new steamer Edward N. Ohl, owned by the Vesta Transit company of Cleveland, of which W. H. Becker is manager, reached the Head of the Lakes on her first trip yesterday. She weat to the Allouez dock and took on a cargo of ore and this morning cleared on the return trip down the lakes.

The new freighter was built at the Wyandotte yard of the American Shipbuilding company and was launched the latter part of September. Mrs. J. W. Wescott of Detroit, acted as sponsor. The Ohl is 440 feet long, 54 feet beam and 28 feet deep. She has triple-expansion engines and Scotch boilers. Her carrying capacity is 7,500 gross tons.

On the trip up the lakes several officials came as far as Detour on the new steamer. The boat is a fine looking one and is equipped with all the modern improvements.

The steamer Ohl is the first boat to be inspected after launching since the Cypress went down and it is said that the inspectors were unusually particular in their examination of her to see that she met all the requirements.

HELPS AMERICAN SHIPYARDS

Change in Law Abolishes Tax on Vessels Repaired Here.

Detroit, Oct. 24.—Repairs to Canadian hulls amounting in the aggregate to upward of $100,000 have been made this year at Detroit. It is recognized, of course, that there are few Canadian shipyards, and that the Canadian fleet on the Great Lakes is growing with rapid strides. But another factor which is turning work to the yards in the United States is furnished through a change in the Canadian law.

Through a change in Canadian customs rulings, there now is no duty or tax of any character on vessel repairs made on Canadian tonnage in United States shipyards. Knowledge of this ruling has not become general as yet, but its spread will probably bring an increasing amount of Canadian repairs to yards on this side of the line, at least until the time when Canadian shipbuilders are in better position to care for all the work of that kind which may be necessary among the Canadian fleet.

Four Canadian steamers have received repairs here this season, all of them at the Ecorse yard. They were all good-sized jobs with one exception. Repairs on the steamer Neepawah cost $21,000, those on the steamer Winona about $40,000, and those on the Strathcona $6,000. The steamer Edmonton has recently left the yard, and the job on her is known to have been a good-sized one. The three first named vessels are owned by R. O. and A. B. Mackay of Hamilton, Ont. The Edmonton is operated in the Mathews line of Toronto.

Capt. Thomas Donnelly of Kingston has looked after the repair work for the owners. He has been in the city a large part of the present season.

Will Accept Repair Work.

Cleveland, Oct. 24.—President J. C. Wallace of the American Shipbuilding company, announced yesterday that the South Chicago yard had been closed so far as new work is concerned and that arrangements had been made to move the machinery to other yards. The dry dock will continue to be operated and repair work will be done at the yard.

Might Go to Detroit.

Detroit, Oct. 24.—After putting a canvass patch on the steamer Case, the boat was pumped out yesterday and is now lying at a dock here with steam up. She probably will be taken to Detroit for repairs tomorrow.

Coal Boats Must Wait.

Cleveland, Oct. 24.—The freight situation is unchanged and chartering was light. Boats that went to coal docks today are still waiting for cargoes.

Secretary Cortelyou, J. P. Morgan, John A. Stewart, James Stillman and other representative bankers and men of affairs, disclosed an agreement in the opinion that the banking situation is well in hand, and that with the government deposits to be made by Secretary Cortelyon today, there will not only be enough cash on hand, but even more than might be needed to safely meet any emergency. The conferences were held throughout all of last evening, beginning early and continuing up to 1 o'clock in the morning, at which time Secretary Cortelyou gave out the following statement:

"I have said to the gentlemen who have called upon me today that any statement to the public regarding existing conditions here should be made with utmost frankness, so depositors and others interested in the banks might realize that entire reliance could be placed upon it. Those familiar with the facts have known that the situation was made serious, largely because of the circulation of unfounded rumors and the unreasoning anxiety of many who thought only for the moment. To pass safely through such a day as this, one of the most unnecessary excitement as it has been, is the best evidence of strength and support on the part of those who have undertaken the difficult task of re-establishing public confidence wherever there is weakness, and it has been in a comparatively few instances. Strong and able men are rendering aid, and in behalf of the treasury department, I may say that I believe it is my duty to do so, and I shall do, in the largest way possible, whatever may be necessary to afford relief. If the press of the city will continue its co-operation, and if the public on its part will reflect upon the real strength of our banking institutions, there will be a prompt return of the confidence which their condition warrants. As evidence of the treasury's position, I have directed deposits in this city to the extent of $25,000,000.

The run on the Trust Company of America was continued this morning. As early as 6 o'clock a little knot of persons had gathered in front of the company's main banking house in Wall street, and by 8 o'clock their number had been augmented until about 150 were in line. At the company's branch at Broadway and Ann street, formerly the Colonial Trust company, there were fifty or seventy-five persons in line at 8 o'clock.

As is always the case in time of financial excitement, New York bankers were at their desks early this morning waiting for the London quotations on American stocks.

The determination of the trust companies to aid the Trust Company of America, no matter what contingencies might arise today, through a committee formed under J. P. Morgan's direction, Mr. Morgan's pronounced part in staying the panic, and the calming statements by John D. Rockefeller, President James Stillman of the National City bank, and Vice President Frank A. Vanderlip of the same institution—these things, it is considered, cannot fail to help what in some respects is the most acute money crisis New York city has seen since the Grant-Ward failure in 1884.

At 9 o'clock this morning it was announced that the Hamilton bank, which has its place of busiess in One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth street, had decided to suspend payment, pending the complete restoration of public confidence.

A notice posted on the doors of the bank this morning announced that the bank was solvent, but in justice to depositors payment had been suspended until public confidence in banking institutions was restored.

E. R. Thomas, who was associated with F. A. Heinze and Charles W. Morse in several banks and financial ventures was formerly president of the Hamilton bank, but resigned after the berak in United Copper stock, which marked the beginning of the recent financial troubles in this city.

Orlando F. Thomas, brother of E. R. Thomas, also recently resigned as a director, and William R. Montgomery was elected as president. The bank has a capital stock of $200,000 and deposits of about $700,000. The bank has four branches in New York city.

At 9:30 there were about 1,500 persons in line in front of the Tust Company of America's main office in Wall street waiting for the opening of business.

The Empire City Savings bank, located at 231 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, posted a notice this morning announcing their suspension for thirty days, under the banking laws. The officials of the bank declare that the institution is entirely solvent, but that they decided to avail themselves of the thirty days' notice of withdrawal under the state law, because they feared a run, owing to the suspension of payment by the Hamilton and Twelfth Ward banks in the same neighborhood. The Empire City Savings bank, according to a recent statement, owed its depositors about $3,300,000.

The Empire City Savings bank is a comparatively minor organization, and does not rank among the great metropolitan institutions. Its suspension is without bearing on the general financial situation in New York.

The directors of the Trust Company of America went into session at 9:30 this morning. Those present were: Oakleigh Thorne, W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., John E. Bourne, W. A. Chesbrough, Maisden J. Perry and George R. Sheldon.

The directors had been in session but a few minutes when Mr. Thorne, president of the company, left the boardroom long enough to say to the crowd waiting to withdraw money that the Trust Company of America was prepared to meet all demands, and was entirely solvent.

Following the announcement of the suspension of the Hamilton bank came the news that the Twelfth Ward bank, located at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Lexington avenue, had suspended payment. The Twelfth Ward bank is a state institution, and a state bank examiner will be placed in charge of its affairs. According to a recent statement, the institution owed depositors about $3,000,000.

The run on the Dollar Savings bank in the Bronx, which began Tuesday, continued today. Nearly three hundred depositors, waiting for an opportunity to withdraw their savings, were lined up outside the building when daylight came. Many of them, a majority of whom were women, had stood all night in the line. A large percentage of the Dollar bank depositors are foreigners.

The Trust Company of America began payments to its depositors promptly at 10 o'clock this morning.

The subtreasury received $10,000,000 in cash from Washington this morning, consisting of bills of all denominations, largely lower denominations, in order to meet the demand for small bills. This permitted Secretary Cortelyou to deny reports that the supply of small bills was not sufficient to meet current needs. He says the amount received today amply meets present requirements.

After a conference with Secretary Cortelyou this morning George W. Perkins of J. P. Morgan & Co. said:

"The situation is working itself out satisfactorily. Confidence is being restored and I can say that the financial institutions of the city are perfectly solvent. Today is better than yesterday and tomorrow will be better than today."

At the office of the state bank examiners it was stated that up to 10:45 a. m. they had received the report of the suspension of only three suburban banks and it was believed by the examiners that other than these three minor institutions no suspensions would be recorded today. One of the examiners said that the Hamilton, Twelfth Ward and Empire City banks are perfectly solvent.

Weakness in the stock market apparently was due to forced liquidation. Buyers found that the difficulty of borrowing money on call made it impracticable to carry long lines of stocks on margins and much of the selling was done to reduce the declines to more wieldy proportions. The selling therefore represented to a considerable extent the closing out of stocks carried to speculative account on margins.

As was the case yesterday, large crowds gathered in Wall street today, many of those in the throngs being merely sightseers drawn to the field by curiosity. Extra police were sent in Wall street to keep order and keep the crowds in motion and a detail of mounted police was ordered to the scene to aid the patrolmen.

Bankers and brokers having in charge the placing of loans for John D. Rockefeller, were instructed this morning to make all loans at the rate of 6 per cent.

The attention of E. H. Harriman was called this morning to rumors current in financial circles that important developments were pending in the Union Pacific in the nature of a segregation of the investment assets of the Union Pacific from its transportation business. Mr. Harriman said:

"This is not the time to discuss matters not of immediate and imperative importance. The interest of the investment world is and must be taken up in other and more important directions.

"I will not deny that this matter has been discussed for some time, and there is no question that the Union Pacific is in a position to make a valuable distribution to its stockholders if it should prove desirable so to do at the proper time.

"You may rest assured that the whole matter will be settled on a proper basis when the time comes, but this is certainly not the time to discuss it."

The situation of the Trust Company of America at noon was appreciably better. President Thorne said to the Associated Press that they were getting on very well; that a good many deposits were being made, and that the withdrawals were by no means so heavy as they had had reason to expect from yesterday's experience; that the applicants at the paying tellers' windows had fallen off both at the parent bank and at the branches, and that he had no solicitude as to the future.

The National City bank placed $2,500,000 on the floor of the stock exchange to be loaned as yesterday, in $50,000 lots, at 6 per cent.

About 300 depositors of the Lincoln Trust company were waiting at the doors of that institution today when it opened for business. As the weather was cold, the depositors were becoming impatient, when Louis Stern, a leading dry goods merchant and a director, arrived followed by a string of cabs, carrying messengers with heavy loads of gold and currency, which was carried into the bank, in view of the depositors. Mr. Stern said the company would pay every depositor who wanted his money.

The United States sub-treasury today put into effect Secretary Cortelyou's promise to make further deposits, amounting in all to $25,000,000, to the New York banks. As fast as collateral was offered by the banks, the subtreasury deposited United States funds with them, the supply being maintained by heavy shipments of currency from the treasury at Washington.

The National City bank and the First National bank, two of the strongest banks in the city, were co-operating today with J. P. Morgan & Co. and other bankers, in an effort to relieve the stringency in the money market by furnishing heavy loans, at normal rates of interest, to other bankers and brokers whose needs were urgent.

New Fruit Cure for Constipation and Weak Nerves.

Remarkable Power in a Simple Tropical Fruit Remedy Which Any Constipated, Weak Man or Woman Can Mix At Home.

A remedy which not only permanently cures chronic constipation, but which actually and quickly builds up weak, shattered nerves and restores lost vigor, has been discovered in a simple prescription of tropical fruits.

For the benefit of our readers we give below the prescription of this new remedy which anyone can mix at home in a few moments' time. The results of this simple home remedy have been truly astonishing when regularly and persistently taken.

Weakness of the nerves is the cause of more disease and unhappiness than any other factor of life. Loss of nerve force, and loss of power in both men and women, nervous debility in some of its most aggravated forms, chronic constipation, weak back, kidney diseases, "brain-break," nervous prostration and other similar diseases disappear as rapidly as new nerve tissue is built up by this remedy.

Here is the prescription.

Mix one ounce of Obifrut Compound Extract with seven ounces of port wine or unfermented krape juice. Of this mixture, take a dessert spoonful three or four times a day before each meal and at bedtime.

There is absolutely nothing harmful in this remedy. It contains no narcotics, no alcohol, and no mineral or animal matter whatever.

Almost any disease will succumb before strong nerve power, and this is the remedy which will restore you to the joy of the full possession of your health and all your precious faculties.

The ingredients mentioned above can be obtained at almost any drugstore. Use it persistently and keep a supply of it constantly on hand for family use.

Advice to Rheumatics

[By Geo. Edmund Flood, M. D.]

If you would avoid Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder Troubles be moderate in the consumption of heavy, rich foods, substitue as far as possible soups, broths, fresh milk, and drink water—lots of water. Take plenty of time to eat, and don't eat afer you have had enough, even if it does taste good. If your work is confining take a moderate amount of exercise each day in the open air.

Of course, neither diet, water, rest, nor exercise will cure these afflictions. I advise them as preventives only. For the benefit of the readers of this article who are now afflicted with Rheumatism, Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Trouble, and desire to be cured quickly, I give below, complete in every detail, the famous prescription which has made me so successful in the treatment of these diseases. It is the most certain cure that I have ever used. It is pleasant to take, it is not expensive, can be filled by any druggist, and I believe it is the greatest prescription for Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder Troubles ever writen. If you are a sufferer, save this, take it to your druggist and have it filled, or better still, get the Ingredients yourself and mix them at home by shaking them up in a bottle:

Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic ½ ounce
Concentrated Barkola Compound 1 ounce
Aromatic Elixir ..... 4 ounces

Adult dose, take one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime; children, one-fourth to one-half teasponful after meals.

After you are cured follow the advice I have given you in regard to diet, exercise and water, and you will not need the service of a physician again for these ailments.

MAKE BEAUTIFUL GIFTS

Nothing makes so handsome a gift as a diamond, and nothing makes so valuable a one. It is an interesting fact that it is the only luxury that actually increases in intrinsic value year after year, and a diamond bought ten years ago is really worth one hundred per cent more at present than it originally cost. Of course there are diamonds and diamonds—some a little off color, others contain flaws. These are the kind we do not sell. Every diamond in our stock is perfect in color and cut, and absolutely flawless. You take no chances in buying here.

ADVANCES IN LONDON.

American Stocks Show Substantial Gains at Opening of the Exchange.

London, Oct. 24.—Trading on the stock exchange today opened with a cheerful tone on the more encouraging news regarding the financial situation in New York, and the prices of Americans started at 1 point above parity. Buying orders from New York and the covering of local bears steadily drove quotations upward and by noon Union Pacific and Canadian Pacific were 3 points over the New York equivalent while at over 1 point advance. The announcement that here would be no change in the Bank of England's rate of discount, which it was feared in some quarters might be raised as a result of the situation in New York, further improved the tone of the markets and caused a rise of ⅛ for consuls.

DR. RODWELL APPOINTED

ECZEMA ONLY SKIN DEEP

The old theory that skin disease was caused by bad blood, or a disordered internal system, has been proven a false one. It is now well known among up-to-date skin specialists that skin disease is caused by a germ in the skin, and that this germ must be killed by local treatment.

The Lyceum Pharmacy has in its possession hundreds of letters from persons formerly suffering from eczema, psoriasis, salt rheum, and other disease of the skin. They also have pictures of men, women and children, showing the skin diseased, cracked and bleeding, while a few months later it is clean, soft and smooth, with every trace of the disease wiped out. All these cures were made by a local external application of D. D. D. Prescription, a remedy that instantly stops all itch, and quickly kills the disease germ, effecting a permanent, positive cure.

Here is a simple letter from J. Dalton, Wilderness, Mo.: "I have used the bottle of medicine you sent me and am now a well man. Please accept my heartfelt thanks. Your remedy cannot be praised too much."

Every sufferer of skin disease can see such letters by calling at the Lyceum Drug store, and also secure, without charge, a book on the cause and cure of skin diseases.

PROF. McGUIRE URGES DAIRYING

Tells Farmers Around Biwabik That Field is Profitable One.

Biwabik, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The dairy business offers the best returns to farmers in this locality, according to Prof. A. J. McGuire, superintendent of the state experiment farm at Grand Rapids, and they should endeavor to embark in the business at once. Prof. McGuire who is looked upon as an authority on all matters pertaining to agriculture in Northern Minnesota emphasized the opportunity that is open to farmers in the dairy business in addressing the Farmers' institute here yesterday. Some of the farmers in attendance, and there were a surprisingly number on hand, questioned the correctness of the expert's opinion, contending there was more money to be made in raising celery and other garden truck. Prof. McGuire maintained, however, that the future agricultural possibilities of this section depended upon the cow and her products and proceeded to quote figures in support of his claim. L. B. Arnold, Mr. McLaren and others spoke along similar lines. Ernest Niemo, who has a farm near the Palo postoffice, criticised the lack of interest taken in the meeting by the people of Biwabik and proposed that future farmers' institutes be held in the essential farming districts. His suggestion met with favor and the next meetings will be held amid the farming lands along the St. Louis river. There were a large number of farmers present at the meeting, regardless of the little interest shown by the town's people, and the leaders in the institute movement felt repaid for their trouble. L. B. Arnold of the land department of the Iron Range road, who has been instrumental in having the institutes held, in discussing their success said:

"Our meetings have certainly been successful in this part of the country, and the attendance more than twice as many as was expected. We would have been pleased to have had a couple of dozen in attendance at the Embarrass meeting and fifty would certainly have been considered an excellent crowd at Biwabik. But the farmers have turned out in more than double this number and have besides shown a decided interest in the lectures. The outcome assures the future of these institutes as far as St. Louis county is concerned. It is really remarkable when it is known that many of the men attending the Biwabik meeting traveled fifteen miles over roads that have been barely opened."

DR. MORE WILL NOT MAKE RACE

He Declines to Go After the Mayoralty in Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. C. W. More has definitely announced that he will not be a candidate for mayor. The doctor has had the petition under consideration since Monday.

It is reported that Mike Shechy has decided to seek election as alderman from the First ward, against Aldermen Thibaut and E. H. Hatch. In the Second ward the situation remains the same, with Tony Azzo and C. R. Johnson the only candidates. In the Third ward, to date, the candidates are Joe Lini and E. Andrews. Matt Prettner has been talked of as a candiate, but has not declared himself. Frank Carlson, who was considered as an aldermanic candidate from this ward, has decidede to run at large. In the at-large field, the candidates are: Alderman Sax, M. J. Doyle, A. U. Peterson, formerly city clerk; Tim Shea and F. Calrson.

The candidates for municipal judge are taking a breathing spell, as Judge Prince had to go to Duluth on important legal business. City Attorney McGilvray is campaigning strenuously; Ed Skeel is not allowing his friends to forget that he is still active; Frank Matson is working quietly among his countrymen, while Louis Finn, is found in conversation, telling the willing listener that he may be the next judge.

The clerk will receive petitions up to 5 p. m. Saturday, after that hour no petitions will be received.

JOHN J. LARSON

Elected President of Two Harbors Woodmen Benefit Association.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two Harbors camp No. 2918, Modern Woodmen of America, has organized a sick benefit association, adopted bylaws and elected the following officers: President, John J. Larson; vice president, O. L. Carlson; secretary-treasurer, C. V. Johnson and John Omtvedt and Iver Jenson as members of the board of directors. Another member for the board of directors will be elected at a later date.

R. U. D. Evans, state deputy for the Woodmen, is here soliciting members for the organization, as well as to secure new members for the fraternal order. With a membership close to the 200 mark, the sick benefit branch will no doubt be a success from the start.

SPARTA ROAD.

County Commissioner Will Probably Build to New Location.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Sparta road petition that has been before the county commissioners may at last be acted upon. County Commissioner Neil McInnis and State Mine Inspector W. H. Harvey have gone into the territory where the new Sparta townsite is located, with a view to having a road built that will connect the new location with the St. Louis county road.

The petitioners are, in the main, homesteaders who live near the junction of the Embarrass and St. Louis rivers, and of Sparta business men. They will confer with Commissioner McInnis, who has been authorized by the board to act for it. It is believed that action that will legalize such a road will be taken this year so that a road can be built next spring.

HULL MINE BUSY.

Eight Shovels and Nine Drills Are Making Good Progress.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is much activity at the Hull mine these days. Eight shovels are at work—four in ore and four stripping. The stripping is being carried on at the east end of the pit, and rapid progress is being made. At the south side of the pit Drake & Stratton have one shovel, which is beginning the stripping of Mahoning No. 2. Six cottages have been put up for the accommodation of Drake & Stratton's employes.

There are nine drills working on the Hull forties, east of the pit toward town, and the Steel corporation is evidently attempting to determine the exact lay of the ore body, which is credited by the state tax commission with being the largest in Minnesota.

OBSERVE HALLOWEEN.

Several Affairs to be Held in Eveleth—Other Events.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 24. — (Special to The The Herald.)—Preparations are being made about town, to celebrate fittingly Halloween, Oct. 30. The first organization to announce anything of a festive nature are the Young People of the Presbyterian church, who are to have a Halloween social that night, together with a masquerade.

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church met yesterday with Mrs. John Gourd. A lunch was served from 4:30 to 6 p. m.

La Brosse's orchestra and not Flaaten's will furnish the music this evening at the dance given by Ivy Leaf hive, No. 88, L. O. T. M., in the Vail opera house.

Billy Sweetnam of the Eveleth pharmacy, was maried Tuesday in Duluth to Marie Tekela of Bessmer, Mich. Mr. and Mrs. Sweetman will reside at the Eveleth hotel for the present.

W. P. Chinn of Elba, a member of the school board for district 18, while in the city said that there will be a manual training department in the new school that is to be built, as wel as a domestic science department. The building will be located near the present Elba-McKinley school. Bids have been advertised for. The board is planning a school to accommodate pupils at the Gilbert, but plans are nebulous, so that nothing definite can be announced at present.

Miss Bertha Kuehn of this city, accompanied by Miss Thiel of Hibbing, made a trip to Duluth to attend the De Parchmann concert recently.

Matt Beason, the lad who was saved from drowning by Mike Maxwell is rapidly improving, though internally, he is, as yet, unwell.

President T. F. Cole of the Oliver company, was in town for a few minutes yesterday. He visited Supt. Hearding of the Spruce-Adams mine. He was showing a party of guests that included G. A. Tomlinson, the vessel owner, the local Steel corporation mines.

M. H. Kaplin of Duluth, has been in town for a few days in connection with his interest, as a creditor, in the co-operative store that was started by the strikers.

REMARKABLY EFFECTIVE

A Noted Doctor's Prescription Checks an Acute Cold in a Day and Cures Chronic Coughs.

The wonderfully healing powers of pine have been known for ages, but the comparatively new form of pine product which has the quality of being soluble, which is now being generally prescribed by doctors, is known to the profession as Concentrated oil of pine. A Philadelphia lung and throat specialist declares that the formula in which he now uses the Concentrated oil of pine has produced remarkable results, often entirely curing a severe cold in twenty-four hours. This formula is very simple and the ingredients can be obtained of any good prescription druggist and mixed at home. It is as follows: "Mix a half ounce Concentrated oil of pine with two ounces of glycerine and a half pint of good whiskey; shake it thoroughly each time, and use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours."

The boxes are air tight and thus retain the original ozone, as well as protecting the fluid from atmospheric changes. Care should be taken not to get any of the patent medicine imitations using similar name and package.

It is also said to be a splendid specific for rheumatism and lumbago. For this purpose it is taken raw on sugar, a few drops each night and morning. No family medicine chest should at any time be without this powerful remedy.

operations of the plants would be discontinued. Mr. Given assured them there was no truth in the report and announced the works will be operated as usual.

The court today authorized the receivers of the Westinghouse companies to pay the employes at Trafford City the sum of $25,000 for wages due from Oct. 1 to 23, and the employes at East Pittsburg the sum of $30,000 for wages due from Oct. 1 to 23. There are four hundred employes at Trafford City and 3,500 at East Pittsburg.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 24.—The Iron City Trust Company of Pittsburg, which has closed its doors had a state deposit of $75,000, which Cashier Measey of the state treasury says is protected by the very best security. Mr. Measey also says that the state will get its money in a few days without any cost for collection. He drew upon the Iron City Trust company yesterday for $25,000, and this morning the draft came back marked "unpaid."

New York, Oct. 24—Judge Ward in the United States circuit court, today appointed E. M. Herr, P. H. Given and Charles C. Burlingham, ancillary receivers of the Westinghouse companies and their assets and properties in the judicial district of New York. The receivers are required to file a joint bond of $20,000.

Paris, Oct. 24.—On account of the appointment of receivers for three Westinghouse companies of Pittsburg, the Societe Generale today ceased accepting subscriptions for the company's 5 per cent 1917 loan, and is returning the subscriptions already received.

American Occupation of Cuba.

Whether the occupation of Cuba by the United States forces will prove eventually a good thing or not, it is a very costly luxury. The actual cost for using a portion of our army as insular police is at least $5,000,000 a year besides other expenses which have to be met out of the Cuban treasury. Whether you have been a sufferer from ailments of the stomach, liver or bowels for years or only a short time, we believe that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will greatly benefit you. At least our past experience has proven beyond all doubt that it is a very superior medicine for such cases, and if a cure is possible the Bitters will make it. It is worth a trial at any rate. It cures indigestion, dyspepsia, costiveness, billousness, sleeplessness, chills, colds, female ills and malaria. Try it.

VIRGINIA EVENTS.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 24. — (Special to The Herald.)—Messrs. Driscoll and Grignon is a new firm that has opened a clothes cleaning establishment over the Bijou theater.

W. H. Shea, Jr., city attorney, has returned here after several months absence in the West. He will return West in a few days.

N. C. Beaudette has bought the barber shop formerly run by Thomas S. Morrison. He recently came here from Superior.

E. N. Braythen of Hayward, Wis., is in town with the intent of opening a furniture store if he can secure a location.

Deputy Sheriff Magie arrived here last evening with two prisoners who are charged with looting some freight cars, broken open in a recent wreck on the Great Northern road. They will be arraigned today in municipal court before Judge Nelson. They were captured in Duluth by the railroad company's detectives.

ACQUITTED OF SLANDER.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Morris Stein of Sparta, who was arrested charged with slandering Mrs. M. Greenberg, was acquitted before a jury in Sparta. N. B. Arnold was the attorney for the defense. T. P. Ferry represented the Greenbergs.

BOXES UNRELIABLE.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The false alarm situation is not any clearer, although the superintendent of the system and the chief have been giving the matter their personal attention.

The boxes that have been investigated are regarded as unreliable, so that false alarms are easily rung in. Monday morning the alarm came 5-1, which means 515, the Eveleth hotel box. On investigation, it was found that the box had not been called correctly.

POWER SCHEME SEEMS CERTAIN

To be Developed From Sturgeon and Little Fork Rivers.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—A plan to supply the Mesaba range with electric power from the Sturgeon and Little Fork rivers north of here, which has been under contemplation for several months, is about to be fulfilled. The promoter of the water power is Joseph E. Cummings, manager of the Chisholm electric light plant. Recently he purchased twenty acres of land lying along the Little Fork river in section 5, 62-21, from L. K. Snyder, a settler, paying therefor $50 per acre. The land is situated close to a large fall in the river. Mr. Cummings and the parties with whom he is associated have also purchased considerable land adjoining prospective water powers along the Sturgeon river.

Mr. Cummings has announced that improvement of the Little Fork river water power will be started this winter and continued until the plant is ready to supply electricity. It is proposed to begin by supplying current for lighting the cities of Hibbing and Chisholm and ultimately to supply all the current needed by the range towns. It is also hoped to generate enough current ultimately to operate a street railway between the range towns.

FISHING EXPENSIVE.

Fred Marr Fined One Hundred Dollars for Having Trout for Sale.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—August Taylor, the new deputy game warden, has scored again in the arrest and conviction of Fred Marr, aged 25, who was caught coming to town with 11 brook trout for sale. The warden has been on the lookout for Marr, who has been known for weeks as a fish poacher and pot hunter, living in a hut, about six miles northeast of the city, on Knife river.

When arraigned before Judge Andrews, Marr acknowledged the crime by pleading guilty. He was fined $100, and given the alternative of going to jail for sixty days if he did not settle. He is still in jail hoping some friend will do the good samaritan act.

EVELETH HIGH SCHOOL.

Program for Nov. 1 Entertainment and Other School Events.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The program that will be given in the Eveleth high school auditorium Friday evening, Nov. 1, is as follows: Piano solo, Mabel Johnson; recitation, Emma Engstrom; continued story, Ada Matson; debate, "Resolved, That Caesar Was a Better General Than Napoleon," affirmative, Harry Rabinovitz and Georgiana Powell, negative, Benjamin Skrainstadt and Cora Williams; quartet, Curtis Bent, Anthony Pryor, John Saari and Gordon Trengove; journal, Dale Cerveny and Irene Daveyrud; piano solo, Rosalie Viger.

A return game will be played between the newly organized city football team and the Biwabik team next Sunday on the local grounds. The Eveleth team will be strengthened by the addition of Hatch as left end. It is possible that A. L. Myers of Biwabik will come over to act as referee.

Next Saturday a game may be played between the second high school team and the second Virginia high school team. If played, the game will be called at 2:30 p. m. in the high school athletic park.

The first high school team has been practicing lately, but the practice is hampered by the absence of Hoskings, who played one of the back positions. His family has moved to Gilbert and it is, therefore, problematical whether he will be able to play on the team or not.

Opposite the high school building Chief Silver has been having the cart

GOLFER TREED BY BLACK BEAR

William Moffett Has An Exciting Experience With Bruin.

They have a partly tamed bear at the grounds of the Northland Country club.

The bear is not an invited guest at the club, but he occasionally drops in to look over the links, and apparently makes the country about the clubhouse his headquarters. He has been seen several times lately by the caretaker and some of the members of the club, and yesterday William Moffett, the professional instructor, had an exciting experience with the animal.

Mr. Moffett took his shotgun and started out after partridges yesterday afternoon. After walking a short distance he sat down on a log to light his pipe and enjoy the view. Hearing a movement in the bushes he turned and saw the bear about fifty feet away. Mr. Moffett didn't have much faith in a charge of bird shot for bear purposes, and he shinned up the nearest tree without losing any time about it. Bruin paid little attention to him, and after nosing about the bushes for a few minutes, ambled on his way.

The animal it is believed, is about as harmless as a calf, but if he persists in showing up around the links he is likely to find one of the members waiting for him one of these days, with something heavier than bird shot, and Mr. Bear will be turned into juicy steaks.

MORE G. N. CHANGES.

General Shifting About of Officials of Railroad Officers.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Following the appointment of J. M. Gruber as general manager of the Great Northern road, changes in the operating department took place today as follows: E. L. Brown, superintendent of the eastern district at St. Paul, succeeds F. S. Forest, resigned, as superintendent of the western district. W. D. Scott, superintendent of the Cascade divisions, succeeds Mr. Brown. G. S. Stewart, superintendent of the Breckenridge becomes superintendent of the Willmar division, suceeding L. W. Bowen, appointed superintendent of the Spokane divisions, succeeding C. L. Mayne, resigned. S. Ennes, assistant superintendent of the Willmar division, is advanced to superintendent. W. R. Smith, assistant superintendent of the Kalispell division, is made superintendent, vice J. H. O'Neill, appointed superintendent of the Cascade division.

ENTRANCED BY DePACHMANN

The Famous Russian Pianist Delights His Duluth Audience.

Seldom or never has a Duluth audience sat so intently through a piano recital as did that which gathered at the First Methodist church last evening to hear Vladimir DePachmann, the famous Russian pianist, who played a program that held his every hearer entranced from the first note to the last exquisit tone. His manner of communicating with his audience, his facial expressions, which were in reality a close interpretation of the music he was playing, were illuminating and only added to the pleasure of his recital, so individual and impulsive were they. At times one might think that DePachmann was playing with the attitude of him who holds his tongue in his cheek, so daring is his glance at the audience while he plays a tone of wonderful beauty and depth and delicacy. If it were not for his own radiant manner like that of a pleased child when he finishes.

Although the audience was not of the size to which DePachmann is accustomed, it was larger than Duluth is in the habit of providing, and it was thoroughly appreciative. The program was a delight, and the exquisite tones and the pianissimo passages of almost unbelievable delicacy and beauty are the things that will linger long in the memory of ever hearer. The group of Chopin etudes, preludes, nocturne, mazurka and "Grande Vale Brilliante," with which the program closed, were played in the incomparable manner which DePachmann has made famous, and the first part of the program was interpreted with a witchery and charm all his own.

THE SOLID NORTHWEST.

It isn't such a bad storm in New York as it promised to be; indeed, in view of the fact that certain interests had been piling up a lofty and insecure edifice of promotion and inflation, it is remarkably less violent than might have been expected. Coming at a time when the nation's money was struggling to move high-priced crops, nothing more than might have been expected has happened, and there has not been an incident in the last few days that even hinted at any fundamental unsoundness in the situation. Everything that happened could be blamed to "too much prosperity."

It has apparently all come at once, and now that it has been faced and successfully grappled with, finance should be on a far sounder basis than before, and infinitely better off than it would have been had the weak spots been permitted to exist unknown, breeding insecurity and ugly rumor, instead of being dragged to the light and eliminated.

But whatever happened in New York and Pittsburg, the centers of financial inflation, the Northwest is as sound and solid as a rock. There has never been a time when it was as well fitted to withstand the winds of adversity as it is now, and it is well to think of this even though no such hostile breezes threaten.

Though the crop yields of the Northwest are not record-breakers in point of quantity, the total yield in money bids fair to break all records. When this crop is marketed and the money received for it, the Northwest can smile at Wall street and lend it money if it is good.

James J. Hill said the other evening that no part of the United States today stands on as safe a basis as the Northwest, and he was exactly right. It is prosperous, and the prosperity is of such a fundamental and solid character that no gambler's panic can harm it in the least. Furthermore, its future is assured. Minnesota makes $30,000,000 a year from its million cows alone, and as Mr. Hill says, it is barely touching a surface that with scientific methods will yield immensely greater riches.

THE LAKES-TO-GULF SCHEME.

The Indianapolis News, discussing the Lakes-to-Gulf waterway with approval, points out the opposition to the scheme that is threatened from Missouri river towns because the improvement of that great waterway is not included. "There is nothing in this fatal to the project and nothing unusual," says the News. "Opposition is always to be expected to everything in a free government. The thing finally accomplished is generally the result of compromise."

All true enough. The Missouri river opposition will not be formidable, and if the Lakes-to-Gulf plan fails, it will not be because of that opposing interest.

But the Indianapolis News overlooks a still greater objection, which is not yet an objection, but merely a question. Before any move is made to deepen the Chicago drainage canal to make it navigable, it must be ascertained what effect this move will have upon the levels of the Great Lakes.

There are many that fear that the diversion of such a great quantity of water out of Lake Michigan would seriously endanger the channels connecting the Great Lakes, and thus injure if it does not destroy the greatest fresh water thoroughfare in the world.

If it should contain the possibility of such a result, the Lakes-to-Gulf scheme will never get beyond the substance of a dream. The Great Lakes waterway is too important to be imperilled. If the lake states other than Illinois cannot stop it, Canada can and will, for it must be remembered that the Lakes-to-Gulf canal would draw upon international waters.

Furthermore, the Great Lakes are already doing an enormous and profitable business, furnishing cheap transportation that benefits the people amazingly. It has not yet been proved, on the other hand, that the Lakes-to-Gulf improvement would be used to any such extent as to warrant its great expense.

As The Herald has heretofore pointed out, the Mississippi waterway already exists. There are boats plying upon it, and they are doing a certain amount of business. If there were more business there would be more boats adapted to such inadequate facilities as now exist. The small business now done by the river steamers shows that traffic is not going that way. Would it be more likely to go that way if millions were spent in improving the waterway? In other words, would any amount of improvement create a great transportation business where only a small one now exists?

If the river boats were occupied to their utmost limit, and if the river were crowded with boats suitable for present facilities, it would be clear that business for larger boats would be provided. But that is not the case.

Two things, therefore, must be settled before the Lakes-to-Gulf waterway can succeed:

First, whether it would endanger the channels of the Great Lakes; and Second, whether the improvement would pay.

PUBLIC REGULATION.

The argument against public regulation of public and quasi-public corporations is growing feebler and feebler, and it will presently cease altogether, for every day's events bring additional proof of the necessity of such public regulation. It is not the railroads alone, but the street railroads, the local public utility corporations, the trusts and monopolies of all kinds, that require strict public scrutiny and regulation.

Recent revelations of the close association between plunging promoters and the banks of New York have pointed out the need of stricter and broader public regulation of banking. The men who have been put out of the New York banking institutions in order to avert disaster growing out of their illegitimate industry should never be allowed to return, and none of their kind should be allowed to engage in banking again. By public regulation of a rigid and wholesome kind it is possible to separate the banks, the railroads and the public service corporations from the dangerous methods of high finance, and it is possible in no other way.

Of course this makes the government paternalistic in a way, and it goes against the theories of those who hold that the best government is that which governs least. But to follow out such theories as this leaves the public unprotected against greed and dishonest selfishness, except by individual integrity, and recent events have shown that selfishness is too powerful for individual honesty to cope with.

The people, through their government, have been altogether too tender of private interests, and have thus permitted them to encroach upon public interests. We have been too quickly abashed when those who profit by neglect of public supervision told us we had no right to meddle with their affairs. We have been too quick to take their word for it that these matters were private business, and not subject to public regulation.

Our timid attempts to regulate railroads have met with indignant repulses, and we have gone but a little way in that direction. We might take courage if we would think a little upon what Canada does with its railroads without either objection or trouble.

The Canadian railroad commission can do and does do the following things: Compel abolition of grade crossings or compel railroads to build subways or overhead crossings; compel changes in time tables and require the putting on of additional trains; regulate the distribution of freight cars if discrimination is charged; require switches or sidings for the accommodation of industries; arbitrarily fix passenger or freight rates without court review; determine what private property railroads may purchase without the owners' consent; assume jurisdiction over claims against railroad companies; approve or reject all plans for railroad extensions or new lines, no work being permitted without its approval; prevent discrimination between localities; authorize or prevent one railroad crossing another; prevent rebating; pass upon all leases, sales or amalgamation of railroads; assume jurisdiction over railroad telegraph and telephone lines.

And it works well there, too, benefiting both railroads and public.

FEW PRESIDENTIAL "LANDSLIDES."

The New England magazine, discussing national politics, points out the lack of meaning in such terms as "overwhelming majorities," "ground swells," "tidal waves," "avalanches," etc., as applied to national elections. This is correct, for as a matter of fact there has never been a really formidable "avalanche" in a presidential election, though there have been many in local elections.

Since the days when the legislatures elected the presidential candidates, there have been but few actual majorities. A majority means that the successful candidates had more than half of all the votes cast, and only half of the presidents elected since 1840 have achieved so much. Two presidents have been elected by electoral votes though they actually had a minority of the popular vote. In 1876 Tilden had a plurality of 250,807 over Hayes, yet Hayes was declared elected when the election was thrown into congress, after a fight that we do not like to talk very much about, so strongly does it smell of corruption. When Harrison was elected president in 1888, he had 95,534 votes less than Cleveland, but they were distributed so that Harrison got a majority of the electoral votes.

No president in any election since 1840 has had more than 56 per cent of the popular vote. Roosevelt's election in 1904 came as close to an "avalanche" or "tidal wave" as any presidential election, yet he only had 56 per cent of the total popular vote, though he had the unprecedented majority of 1,736,264.

The only actual majorities in this period were as follows: 1840, Harrison over Van Buren with 53 per cent of the vote; 1852, Pierce over Scott with 51 per cent of the vote; 1864, Lincoln over McClellan with 55 per cent of the vote; 1868, Grant over Seymour, with 53 per cent of the vote; 1872, Grant over Greeley, with 55 per cent of the vote; 1896, McKinley over Bryan with 51 per cent of the vote; 1900, McKinley over Bryan with 52 per cent of the vote; 1904, Roosevelt over Parker with 56 per cent of the vote.

Thus it appears that only one president, Roosevelt, has gained 56 per cent of the vote, and only two presidents, Lincoln and Grant, have had 55 per cent of the vote.

When Lincoln won over Douglas, Breckenridge and Bell in 1860, he had only 40 per cent of the total vote, which was thus divided between four candidates. In 1844 Polk won against Clay with 49 per cent; in 1848 Taylor won against Cass with 47 per cent; in 1856 Buchanan won against Fremont with 45 per cent of the vote, which was drawn upon to the extent of more than 800,000 by Fillmore, the Know Nothing candidate; in 1880 Garfield won against Hancock with 48 per cent of the vote; in 1884 Cleveland won against Blaine with 48 per cent and in 1892 Cleveland won against Harrison with 46 per cent.

Grant's two elections were looked upon as landslides, yet he had only 53 per cent of the vote in his first election and 55 per cent in his second. Lincoln's 1864 victory over McClellan was unusually decisive, yet Lincoln had but 55 per cent of the vote.

In the nation, then, the contests have not shown any vast changes in public sentiment, and none have been so positive as to be worthy the name of "landslide" when the percentage of the vote received by the successful candidate is considered.

ROOSEVELT IN THE SOUTH.

The president is back from his hunting trip, happy and vigorous and ready for work. He has had a good time, he got a bear, and he accumulated fresh energies to devote to his energetic conduct of his high office.

But the bear wasn't the most conspicuous feature of his trip. The feature that commands attention and challenges thought is the remarkable manner in which the Southland rose to greet him on his way home. No such reception has ever been given by the South to a northern public official. It is strongly reminiscent, indeed, of what might have happened to such a dearly beloved statesman as Henry Clay had he taken a similar trip.

It is significant. It is remarkable. It should make those who are disposing of the Republican presidential nomination off-hand pause and think. That reception means that Theodore Roosevelt is close to the hearts of these people. It means that the wave of enthusiasm that greeted him washed away barriers of sectionalism and partisanship. These were Southerners and Democrats, generally, but no northern audiences could have been more swayed by loyalty and affection.

It showed confidence not only in Theodore Roosevelt, but intense loyalty to the Union and whole-hearted approval of the movement for the equalization of opportunity and prosperity of which the president is one of the exemplars and leaders. It gives small hope to those who would like to see this "radical" president replaced by some safe, sane and tame Fairbanks or Cannon.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

J. H. Robinson, who is staying at the Lenox, was saying that traveling men encounter some funny experiences while on the road. The other day over at Deer River, Wis., the train was slow in getting under way. The passengers began to wonder what was the delay in starting. Water had been taken and there seemed no cause for stopping at the little station for more than a few moments.

Members of the train crew worked hard to ascertain the difficulty. Something was wrong inside the boiler, but just what it was the engineer and fireman were unable to ascertain. Work as hard as they might the engineer and his assistant failed to get sufficient pressure to start the already belated train.

Suddenly a savory odor rose on the air. Passengers, who had got off the train, during the protracted wait, began to sniff the air and remark on the smell of something boiling. The odor grew stronger. It began to take on a semblance of individuality. Suddenly its identity burst with a savory fragrance that was tempting to the appetite. It was fish—boiling fish that was scenting the atmosphere and giving an edge to growing hunger.

Now it seems that in some way a quantity of small fish had got into the river and in some manner the check valve had become loose and the fish, which were very small, had entered the tank through the pipes.

They had been transferred to the boilers of the engine, and after being immersed in the boiling water for a few moments began to boil in a manner that would have brought delight to the heart of an amateur cook.

It was necessary to empty the boiler of its finny contents and repair the check valve of the tank before the belated train could be started.

Mr. Robinson tells this story with a serious face. Everybody knows that there are plenty of fish in the streams about Deer River—but then—well, what's the use?

A lady from Fargo, who was at the St. Louis hotel the first part of the week, stepped out of the hotel to mail a package. Accompanying her was a lady whom she had met in Duluth. The lady from the North Dakota metropolis had come to Duluth to shop and when the conversation turned to the subject of patterns, pleated tucks, etc., everything was forgotten. Suddenly the lady dropped something into the package box. She was in the midst of a discussion of the new mode of wearing tailor-made jackets and her absorption in the subject was complete. Suddenly she gave a startled exclamation—she had dropped her purse into the package delivery.

For two long hours the lady stood in a drug store, where she could command a good view of the delivery box, and waited for the coming of the mail collector. She was to have gone to the matinee, but the matinee tickets were in the purse, as well as all her ready cash, and the only thing to do was to wait until some kind person arrived, who was clothed with Uncle Sam's authority to open the package box. Finally the tedious vigil of the lady was broken by the arrival of the man with the key, and her purse recovered. During the interval that elapsed between the time of the dropping of the purse and its recovery the lady and her companion had time in plenty to compare notes and thoroughly discuss patterns and all the details connected with the fall fashions.

The Government's Gamble.

Rochester Herald: An Irishman, wishing to take a "homestead" and not knowing just how to go about it, sought information from a friend.

"Mike," he said, "you've taken a homestead, an' I thought maybe ye could tell me th' law concerning how to go about it."

"Well, Dennis, I don't remember th' exact wordin' uv th' law, but I can give ye th' m'anin' uv it. Th' m'anin' uv it is this: Th' government is willin' t' bet yer 160 acres uv land agin $14 that ye can't live on it five years widout starvin' to death."

THE WEATHER.

And still no change for the worse in the weather. One day is as like unto another as two peas in the same pod; though it would be much more fitted to conditions if it were said that they were as like as two diamonds on the same necklace of brilliants is. Last night's lowest temperature was 37 degs. and yesterday's highest was 42 degs. The weather man expects the fine weather to continue, but thinks it will be colder, dropping to 30 degs. in Duluth and 20 degs. on the ranges tonight.

A year ago today a northeaster was in progress, ending in the evening.

The sun rose this morning at 6:39 and set tonight at 5:05, making 10 hours and 26 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Slight barometric depressions overlie Lake Superior, the Oregon coast and Western Mexico. During the past twenty-four hours these disturbances caused light rains over Arizona, New Mexico, Western Texas, Southern Louisiana, Southwestern Wisconsin, and Southern North Dakota, and milder weather in the Middle Missouri and Upper Mississippi valleys. Cooler temperatures attend high pressure areas central over the Ohio valley, North Atlantic states, Montana, Alberta and Saskatchewan. The easterly movement of the Western Canada high pressure favors generally fair and rather chilly weather in this locality tonight and Friday."

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Oct. 24.—Local forecasst for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m., Friday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermillion iron ranges: Partly cloudy and cooler weather tonight and Friday; lowest temperatures tonight will vary from 20 degs. on the iron ranges to about 30 degs at Duluth-Superior. Brisk northwest winds, becoming variable Friday.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Forecasts until 7 p. m.: Friday: Wisconsin—Partly cloudy with warmer and showers in east portion and cooler in west portion tonight; Friday fair and cooler.

Minnesota—Fair tonight and Friday; cooler tonight.

North and South Dakota—Fair tonight and Friday; slightly cooler tonight.

Upper Lakes—Fresh southerly winds shifting to northwesterly on Superior this afternoon, on Michigan to night and on Huron Friday; possibly showers tonight and on Huron Friday; fair elsewhere.

PLEASANTLY POINTED.

Chicago Tribune: Unsophisticated Visitor (trying to use the telephone)—Kitty, what do you say when you take this thing off the hook?

Little Girl—Papa always says, "Darn you, Central, you've given me the wrong number!"

Philadelphia Press: Customer—I like this piece of goods. How much?

Tailor—We'll make you a pair of pants from that for $5.

Customer (rather stiffly)—Pardon me, I don't wear "pants!" How much for a pair of trousers?

Tailor—We'll make you a pair of trousers for $8.50.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Is Weary Raggles in de hospital?"

"Yep."

"Wot's de matter wit' him?"

"De doctor says it's water on de brain."

"Wot's dat? Water on Weary's brain! Say, he must have left his hat off when 'twas rainin'—he never got it no odder way."

Town and Country: Lawyer—As your husband died intestate, you will, of course, get a third.

Widow—Oh, I hope to get my fourth. He was my third, you know.

Chicago News: Tom—I don't see how Fred ever mustered up sufficient courage to propose; he's so bashful, you know.

Jack—The girl's father helped him along, I believe.

Tom—Sort of paved the way, did he?

Jack—Well, he didn't exactly pave the way, but he furnished the rocks.

Chicago Tribune: "Wasn't it embarrassing to stand up and recite that piece before the company after overhearing that odious Miss Tartun say it always made her sick to hear you read?" asked the intimate friend.

"No, it was fun," answered the amateur elocutionist. "It was the keenest pleasure in the world to know I was making her sick."

The Woes of Willie.

The year had gloomily begun
For Willie Weeks, a poor man's Sun.

He was beset with bill and dun,
And he had very little Mon.

"This cash," said he, "won't pay dues,
I've nothing here but ones and Tues."

A bright thought struck him and he said,
"The rich Miss Goldrocks I will Wed."

But when he paid his court to her,
She lisped, but firmly said, "No, Thur."

"Alas!" said he, "then I must die,"
His soul went where they say souls Fri.

They found his gloves and coat and hat,
And the coroner then upon them Sat.

—P. H. LEONARD in Puck.

Marriage as a "Failure."

Mme. Sarah Grand in London Chronicle: There is more nonsense talked in the abstract about marriage as a failure than is talked about any other branch of the conduct of life. If a census on the subject could be taken I am sure it would be found that the majority of married people jog along very comfortably and are much happier in their united state than they possibly could have been had they remained unmarried. The number of divorces is usually quoted to prove that marriage is a failure, but what, after all, is the number of divorces in proportion to a population of many millions of married people?

A Slight Hindrance.

Youth's Companion: The numerous "help" who have "had good characters but lost them" are no worse off than the domestic whose search for employment was hindered by an untoward circumstance. Said the master of the house to an applicant:

"Can't you find any work at all?"

"Plenty, sir; but everybody wants references from me last employer."

"Can't you get them?"

"No, sir. He's been dead twenty-eight years."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

The Canadian propeller Ontario has been blown to pieces by the explosion of her boiler in North Channel, near the Bruce mines, and thirty-five people killed. The Ontario, which was owned by the Northwest Transportation Company of Ontario, first came to Duluth in the spring of 1874. She was in command of Capt. Lachlan Morrison this season.

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows held their first annual memorial meeting last evening. Capt. T. H. Pressnell told of the organization of the present lodge in Duluth. On Sept. 25, 1870, five members of the order, Ernest Kugler, Herman Oswald, N. G. Wilcox, J. R. Delaney and T. H. Pressnell, organized the lodge at a meeting held in a building, since destroyed by fire, which stood at the corner of Second avenue east and Superior street. Of this number, Messrs. Kugler and Pressnell are the only survivors today. The membership has now increased to 238.

Capt. and Mrs. John Armstrong are at the St. Louis. Capt. Armstrong is suffering from a severe cold contracted during one of his exploring trips in the woods.

J. C. Clark has returned from a visit to the Hematite Iron company's mine, of which he is general manager.

Judge I. E. West, a well known lawyer of Fargo, where he was for some time probate judge, is about to make Duluth his home and has entered into a business partnership with Charles Hopkins of the Exchange block.

Joseph Latishaw and Miss Cora B. Hosmer, two former residents of Duluth, were married yesterday at Lincoln, Neb. They will reside in Pennsylvania. Mr. Latishaw was formerly employed on the editorial staff of the Tribune, and the bride as stenographer on the same paper.

Godfrey Hanson to James D. Ray, lots 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, block 149, Portland division, $7,000.

A. Smith to C. M. Hordenbrough, lots 395, 398 and 400, St. Louis avenue, Lower Duluth, $900.

John J. Dodge to J. D. Ray, lots 1 and 2, block 9, Portland division, $4,000.

George Spencer to Robert C. Ray, lots 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, block 2, Portland division, $5,000.

N. D. Loot has assumed charge of the Minnesota and Wisconsin divisions of the St. Paul & Duluth road and all branches and his initials are signed to train orders.

Mayor Sutphin has been served with a writ of mandamus to compel the city council to levy a tax of 1 mill to pay the salary of the secretary of the bureau of industries and statistics for Duluth—in other words a scheme to make the people pay for the salary of the secretary of the chamber of commerce.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Albert Lea Standard: Trust busting goes on in active and steadfast fashion, and the people thank our brave and determined president for it, but also in persistent ways the trusts are all yet on deck. Not one has been put out of business and many thoughtful people believe the entire crusade is quite utterly in vain.

Floodwood Broadaxe: Better roads and more settlers should be the slogan of all Northern Minnesota.

Fergus Falls Wheelock's Weekly: When the people get dead in earnest about it they can do the trick at just two elections—the first to remove the legislative representatives of the trust-protected industries, the second to show the new brood of little statesmen that this time we are dead in earnest.

St. Cloud Times: "Czar" Harriman says there is no danger of a money panic. Certainly not among farmers with wheat in St. Cloud at $1.10; oats, 49c, barley, 74c, and corn 60 cents.

Virginia Virginian: The Chisholm Herald is advertising mining stock that promises to make all those who invest millionaires. At last opportunity knocks and such a splendid one for the newspaper boys. Toot! Toot! Watch the smoke from our auto.

Hibbing Tribune: Southern Minnesota is as complacent—and just about as correct—in its ignorance of the great empire of Northern Minnesota as the Islanders of England have from the beginning been of the United States. Most Englishmen think that Texas is a county in Rhode Island.

Hendrum Review: Now that fewer people are traveling on passes, the railroad men say that they don't get nearly so many complaints about the service as they did before.

Minneota Mascot: M. J. Dowling is receiving considerable mention in connection with the Republican nomination for governor this year. Mike is well known to the politicians of the state and has many friends who would be glad to help him along should his political ambition run in that direction. But whether he is the man to win that contest is quite an open question.

Willmar Journal: We are afraid to say anything about the lovely fall weather for fear it will snow before we go to press.

Marshall News-Messenger: As for Bryan, he cannot carry the states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois, every one of which states we sincerely believe Governor Johnson could carry against any man save Roosevelt. It goes without saying that he could carry his own state, and with it would go the Dakotas and Montana.

The Jonah Brother.

They're talkin' still 'bout Jonah bein' swallowed by the whale,
An' they're turnin' of the Bible upside down;
But I take it all for granted, an' my faith'll never fail
Till it lands me safe in Hallelula Town.

Skirmishin' aroun',
With the Bible upside down;
They'll find the difference at the gates
Of Hallelula Town!

They hedge a bit on Joshua commandin' of the sun;
At poor ol' Job's afflictions still they frown;
But I take 'em all fer granted, since I didn't have the run
Of the world when they wuz layin'
Gospel down!

Skirmishin' aroun',
With the Bible upside down;
They'll find the difference at the gates
Of Hallelula Town!

—FRANK L. STANTON in Atlanta Constitution.

London's American Colony.

London Times: A correspondent writes: The consular estimate of the number of citizens of the United States permanently resident in London, either for business, pleasure, profit or because generally they prefer to live outside the United States, is 5,000. Of these the names of 3,500 are known to be in the London Directory; about the remaining 1,500 there is more uncertainty, and the number itself is an approximate calculation.

The First Golf Links.

London Saturday Review: The orthodox number of eighteen holes, it seems was fixed by pure chance. There were originally twenty-two holes on St. Andrews links, and so it continued till 1764, when the first four holes were converted into two. Thenceforward every full course has been laid out to correspond with alma mater.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The nicest thing about most people is their obituaries.

The trouble with getting a degree from college is you can't spend it.

There's nobody so cross as the man who suspects the baby's hair is going to be red.

The recording angel must have to hire an extra bookkeeping force around election time.

A woman would rather be able to talk about having three bath tubs than for the children to be clean.

Mild Winter Coming.

Milwaukee Free Press: Reports from various sections of the country give promise of an open winter. They say that the squirrels are not laying in their usual store of nuts, and that the bees have made less honey than in other years, sure harbingers of a warm winter.

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Quentin in Minneapolis Tribune: "How is the weather up in Duluth?" was the query put to Conductor Sargent, who is better known than any other man between here and the Zenith City.

"Oh, fine," he answered with enthusiasm. "Duluth is a world beater when it comes to weather."

"How about it when the cold starts in?" was the mischievous question.

"Well, unabashed, 'as I said, Duluth is a world beater when it comes to weather."

Albert Lea Tribune: It was not necessary for the president to go on a fruitless chase into the canebrakes of Louisiana in quest of bear, as good shooting is reported in Duluth and the denizens of the Zenith City would have been pleased to have him go there and kill off a few of the bears that infest that place. Of course it is too late to rectify his mistake, but there is no need of a repetition of the error. The bears around Duluth are quite friendly and gather in the streets of the place so they can be the more easily shot.

Radishes and celery should certainly be the crop from Duluth, if they can equal some we have tasted in that city. The Ronan gods would have cast their nectar to the winds, could they have shared our pleasure at that time!

Deer River News: Duluth is getting better right along. A few days ago a wallet of "swag" belonging to a North Dakota farmer was found in a carload of grain in Duluth and the wallet, money and all was returned to the farmer. So far we have not heard the report that the farmer dropped dead.

Two Harbors Iron News: In this the day of the almighty dollar, it does one's heart good to hear of an act such as that of an unknown man who, when one of Duluth's oldest residents was about to be laid away in a pauper's grave, walked into an undertaker's establishment and made arrangements for a decent burial for the old man and footed the expense, his only stipulation being that his name should be kept secret.

Anoka Herald: Some people and some newspapers know a great many things, but often they know everything wrong. "The New York Sun," says The Duluth Herald, "a newspaper that has achieved a national reputation for being wrong in its judgment of political and economic tendencies and processes, is industriously trying to get up a war with Japan in the hope that by doing so it can scare President Roosevelt out of the field and destroy all chances of his being renominated by the Republican convention next year." Any time that the Sun or any other paper, person or thing can scare President Roosevelt, telegraph us at our expense. He isn't built along the scare lines and the Sun well knows it.

PROCTOR IS DISTRIBUTING GATEWAY FOR ALL IRON ORE MINES ON THE MESABA RANGE

Increased Real Estate Values and Population for 1907.

Proctor Has Elbow Room for All---Building Active.

By. J. A. MONGER.

Travel, like charity, should begin at home. There are thousands of Duluthians and tens of thousands of Minnesotans who spend a large portion of their time and money "looking up investments" (or new locations) and yet have never made the trip to Proctorknott, founded and named by Beriah Magoffin, in honor of J. Proctor Knott of Kentucky, who in a famous speech in congress soared on eagle wings to picture in sarcasm and irony the future greatness of the city of Duluth. All honor to the seer, the prophet for thus unfolding to our vision the "Zenith City of the Unsalted Seas," now re-named Proctor, for the sake of brevity. This is one of the most phenomenal towns in the state and the equal of any in St. Louis county. Its nearness to Duluth has overshadowed its importance as the distributing gateway for all the iron ore mined on the Mesaba range. To attempt a description of Proctor's many attractive features or present prosperity, would only tire and confuse the reader. At every turn of the head they meet the eye. This is a special case where "seeing is believing." Proctor being only nine miles from Duluth, has simply been overlooked since 1893, when it first sprang into existence. It was in August of that year, that the first iron ore shipments were made over the Proctor branch of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad to the Mesaba ore docks at Duluth. This was the beginning of the great tidal wave of prosperity destined to envelop the beautiful and attractive village of Proctorknott. Its future was made more secure by the building of the Duluth Belt Line railroad's cable system, which runs from Fifty-fifth avenue, West Duluth, climbing the bluffs to Bayview Heights, and then by omnibus to East Proctor, a distance of some two miles. Proctor today is an incorporated village of 1,500 population. The backbone of it's great prosperity is based almost entirely upon the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad shops, which give employment to thousands of men who keep in repair the rolling stock operated on its 300 miles of track, consisting of ninety-two locomotives and 4,700 steel ore cars, to say nothing of the unequaled passenger equipment. It is only necessary to mention that the average annual iron ore haul reaches 12,000,000 tons or 250,000 carloads, all of which are handled by trainmen who are on the company's Proctor payrolls. This ore is delivered to the Mesaba ore docks at the foot of Thirty-fourth avenue, West Duluth, the largest and finest equipped in the world, having a storage capacity of 325,000 tons. These docks were built in 1893 and in 1900 became the property of the United States Steel corporation.

Proctor is now on a high plane of prosperity, so much so, that one hundred of her people have lived all summer in tents, while 300 more live in West Duluth, being unable to find houses, rooms or board. It is figured that a thousand people who earn their bread and butter in Proctor are forced to live elsewhere. To relieve this congested condition the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company has let contracts for forty-five modern houses, costing from $700 to $2,500 each, on building sites of 50x145 feet, at East Proctor. All of these houses are for the employes of the company, who have purchased them under contract on the long time easy payment plan. There is need of two hundred more dwellings to fill the present demand.

The business and residence portions of Proctor are located on the east and west sides, the railroad tracks and the great shops of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern being the dividing line. On the west side are located the postoffice, D. M. & N. Ry. Y. M. C. A. building, the First M. E. church, public school, Duquesne hotel, Missabe bank, drug store and other business houses; while on the east side are the D. M. & N. general offices, passenger depot and shops, Telephone exchange, new $30,000 brick public school, St. Rose Catholic church, Merit club, railroad, Northern and Proctor hotels and many other business houses. There is a volunteer fire department fully equipped, the water supply being furnished by the D. M. & N. Ry. There has been a movement to organize a water, light and power company, to supply water for all purposes from the West Duluth reservoir, by means of a booster pump. With this water supply, will come an electric lighting plant. The present water supply for drinking and cooking purposes is furnished by dug or bored wells, where the purest of crystal spring water is tapped at a depth of ten to sixty feet. In business blocks and residences few towns of the size and location of Proctor will equal it from an architectural point of view. It is a model railroad town, so advantageously located as to make it an ideal spot to make one's home and accumulate wealth for the comforts of old age. Notwithstanding the present rapid growth in business and real estate values, there is still elbow room for all and great opportunities for progressive business and professional men; while there are fortunes to be made in real estate investments yet undreamed of, for every foot of Proctor's dirt is going to be in demand for railroad business and residence purposes during the next four years. It is now an open secret that the main line of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad has surveyed a line through Proctor and selected a site for a depot, machine shops and round houses, while all the ore hauling trains from the Mesaba iron mines will run through Proctor, supplying the iron ore for the ten million dollar steel mills now building at Spirit Lake. There are great things in store for Proctor, involving the expenditure of millions of dollars and those who get in on the ground floor cannot help but reap a rich harvest. Now is the time to establish a business and locate a home in Proctor, if you have the stamina to earn your bread by the sweat of your brow. There is no place in the beautiful Northland that offers so many advantages backed by so many millions of wealth.

DULUTH, MISSABE & NORTHERN RAILROAD.

This company has its general offices, depot, car shops and mechanical building located here. The depot and office building is a two-story structure with all modern conveniences, heated by steam and lighted by electricity from the company's plant, making it the equal of many depot buildings to be found in cities of 10,000 population. The car shops and mechanical buildings are built of white brick and occupy a ground space of 600 by 148 feet. It is a beehive of activity, as here is where all the rebuilding and repairs are done for the entire system of 300 miles of road, ninety-two locomotives, 4,700 steel or wood ore cars, and the passenger equipment, equal to the finest as to rolling stock and road bed in the United States. The average annual ore haul of this magnificently equipped railroad reaches 12,000,000 tons or 250,000 cars of ore, making the Duluth, Missabe & Northern the heaviest freigat traffic road in the world for its mileage. This ore is taken from the iron mines on the Mesaba range and delivered to the Missabe ore docks at the foot of Thirty-fourth avenue west, Duluth. These docks have a storage of 325,00 tons. They were originally built in 1893, but have since been greatly enlarged to meet the ever growing output of the Mesaba iron ore mines. In 1900 they became the property of the United States Steel corporation. The policy governing the Duluth, Missabe & Northern has been to develop local business, giving attention to the needs of the territory through which the road runs. As a result all the towns along its lines are enjoying full prosperity, making this company one of Minnesota's good corporations. The officers are: W. J. Olcott, president; W. A. McGonagle, vice president and general manager; Edward B. Ryan, jr., secretary; Edward S. Kempton, treasurer; Charles D. Fraser, assistant treasurer; C. E. Scheide, assistant secretary; with W. J. Olcott, W. A. McGonagle, E. S. Kempton, H. L. Dresser, J. B. Hanson, George D. Swift and A. B. Wolvin, directors.

STEAMING ORE.

One of the interesting features of the road equipment is the steaming plant for thawing out frozen ore in the cars. The plant has a capacity for steaming two trains of sixty cars each of frozen ore. Pipes into the center and sides of the ore. The process takes three to six hours to thaw the ore ready for dumping. The steam for thawing out the ore is furnished from the engines that pull the ore trains, by running steam into the center and sides of the ore cars. Steaming of ore is only required a few weeks each year before the closing of navigation.

SHOPMEN'S TRAIN.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern runs a shopmen's train for the accommodation of its workmen, who cannot be housed or boarded at Proctor. This train leaves daily (except Sunday) at 6:20 a. m. from Missabe Junction for Proctor and leaves Proctor at 6:10 p. m. This train has a patronage of 200 shopmen daily.

PROCTOR'S DAILY PASSENGER SERVICE.

There are four daily trains as follows: Leaves Proctor for Duluth at 10:00 a. m. Leaves Proctor for Duluth at 3:00 p. m. Leaves Proctor for Hibbing at 8:15 a. m. Leaves Proctor for Hibbing at 4:20 p. .m

In addition there are on an average of forty-seven or more daily ore carrying trains, averaging equal to sixty-five cars to each train, taking ore from the Missabe iron ore towns, carrying 75,000 to 80,000 tons daily except Sunday, while there are loaded at the mines 2,200 cars of ore daily to ship to the Missabe ore docks. This gives but a passing idea of the magnitude of the business handled in the ore carrying, freight and passenger department of the great trunk line of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad system.

Supt. J. W. Kreitter, with headquarters in Proctor, of this division of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern has filled this position for the past twelve years, and been with the road fourteen years, coming to it in 1893. He is a native of Indiana, and has climbed up from the bottom of the ladder, having proven his ability, as he soon was promoted. In the office with him, as chief clerk is Carl S. VanLueven, a young man of bright promise.

PROCTOR'S SCHOOL SYSTEM.

The first question asked, if you are selecting a new home town, is of the educational facilities, especially if you are the head of a family. It has two school buildings, one in the West side, a four room building, and on the East side, a new $30,000 two story brick structure with basement, nearing completion. It is an eight room building, heated with hot water and having all modern conveniences. All grades are taught up to the ninth. The efficient board of education comprises such loyal friends of the public schools system as F. J. Paulu, chairman; J. J. White, treasurer; Mrs. Helen Keating, clerk.

VILLAGE OFFICERS.

The men who are managing the official affairs of Proctor and pushing it ever to the front are certainly entitled to much praise, for 1907 has proven a record breaker as to the growth in population and general prosperity of the whole village. The officials, who are entitled to this recognition, are: H. J. Simkin, president; C. W. Ramshaw, recorder; H. H. Peyton, treasurer; P. J. Wilson, H. Coune and G. A. Peterson, trustees; Ervin Young and H. Gilderman, justices of the peace and J. P. Murry, marshal.

DULUTH BELT LINE RY. CO.

One of the forward steps in advancing Duluth's prosperity was the building of the Belt Line Aerial railroad from Fifty-fifth avenue, West Duluth to Bayview Heights, Proctor, operated by steel cables. This aerial road was built to give the people of Bayview and Proctor a short line route to the Zenith City, and has since placed a most important part in the development of Greater Duluth. The Duluth Belt line was built in October, 1889, and owes its existence principally to Myers Brothers, Duluth, real estate men, who built and financed it to extend Duluth's territory and give aid to the then new towns of Bayview and Proctor by placing them on the map with new life as the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad built a line through the village to reach the Missabe ore docks at the foot of Thirty-fourth avenue, West Duluth. The Duluth Belt line up to 1906 had not been a paying investment for two reasons; first, because it did not run into the heart of the business center of Proctor, and second because there was not enough population to sustain the financial outlay incidental to building, equipping and operating the road. All this has changed as Proctor today has 1,500 population and in another twelve months will doubtless not less than 3,000. This increase in population means that the Duluth Belt Line railroad will be a paying investment and that the road should be extended from Bayview Heights to the Duluth Missabe & Northern passenger depot at Proctor. This can be easily accomplished by organizing a new company to build and operate the new line or by consolidation with the Duluth Belt Line Railway company. There is considerable agitation being done and this line will doubtless take root and be built before the close of 1908. In the matter of shortness of route, for quick and safe transportation, there is no better means for reaching Proctor than by this steel cable line. Indeed this is the popular mode of street car transportation for climbing great heights in such metropolitan cities as Dubuque, Davenport, Kansas City, Cincinnati and many others.

Bayview Heights is one of the beauty spots of Duluth's suburbs, overlooking the surrounding country for miles around and destined to be one of the chief residence portions of the outlying district of the great $10,000,000 steel plant of the United States Steel corporation, as Proctor is the gateway, where all the iron ore mined on the Mesaba range is to be handled. This will necessitate the building of a thousand new residences to house the new army of workmen that will be necessary to handle the new industry. There are 750 acres of the choicest land that the sun ever shone upon for building sites, ready to be surveyed into lots. This land is represented by Myers Bros., who have offices at 205-206, the Lyceum, Duluth. Myers Bros., H. H. and B. F., have been actively engaged in the real estate business since July 1, 1885, and during all these years have done their share in boosting every material interest of Duluth and St. Louis county.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

This, one of the most important branches of Proctor's make-up, has been made possible by liberal cash appropriations on the part of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company. The building, furnishings and equipment has cost, to date, $25,000, which includes a $10,000 addition dedicated Sept. 1st. The building is a three story frame structure with basement, and is modernly equipped with hot water heating and electric lighting. There are twenty-one sleeping rooms and forty-two single beds. The basement has a cement floor, contains wash rooms, toilet, six bath rooms, three shower baths, thirty-three lockers and two bowling alleys. On the first floor are located the general secretary's and assistant's offices; the library, reading, writing and game rooms, gymnasium and auditorium, the seating capacity of which is 200. There are also on this floor the employe's sleeping rooms. The second floor contains the study or air brake room, sleeping and toilet apartments. The feature that most attracts our attention is the absolute cleanliness that pervades the entire building and the snow white bed linen and towels. There is a membership of 672 which speaks volumes for the management and the high standing the association has among the railroad men. This reflects the true prosperity of Proctor and the necessity for keeping up the membership to its present numerical strength and giving more freely to its financial support. The gymnasium is one of the best equipped in the Northwest, being fitted up for basket ball, indoor baseball, hand ball and all other up-to-date fittings for indoor games and gymnastic exercises. The gymnasium is open two afternoons each week to the wives of members and school teachers, which is proving a popular feature. The D. M. & N. has turned on the day current so that the school children may have the benefit of having studies illustrated by stereopticon views on the subjects under discussion.

Mr. E. W. Davis, the general secretary, is a splendidly equipped man for this position and has won success, where many others would have failed. He has just added a full set of stereoscopic views for illustrating the series of study lectures for the winter course, which will add much new interest to the Bible and educational topics under discussion. Mr. J. W. Filcvir, assistant secretary, we found to be the right man in the right place, courteous and painstaking. The officers and board of directors of the very praise worthy association are: P. J. Wilson, president; H. H. Peyton, treasurer; W. H. M. Stewart, secretary; F. J. Carlson, W. L. Cars, J. J. Whyte, M. D.; Brayden N. Downey, S. F. Surbeck and A. Kurtz, directors.

WHY NOT OWN YOUR HOME?

There is no more desirable location than Proctor for a suburban home. It is in the very heart of the most important center of the ore handling traffic extending from the mines on the Mesaba iron ore range to the Missabe ore docks and the new 10,000,000-dollar steel mills located at Spirit lake. There is a growing industrial importance at Proctor, made by the location of the great car and repair shops, round houses and switching yards of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, operating 300 miles of railroad and giving employment to upwards of a thousand shopmen, engineers, brakemen, switchmen and other employes. This progressive village was named after one of the most noted public men of his day, the Hon. J. Proctor Knott of Kentucky, who won added fame by his speech on the St. Croix and Superior land grant in the house of representatives on Jan. 21, 1871. Proctor Knott was so named by the original owner of the town site, Beriah Magoffin, also a Kentuckian and one of the earliest pioneers at the Head of the Lakes, coming here in 1857. The original town name has been changed to Proctor. The growth of the village has spread far beyond the original town site and to give additional building sites, Mr. Magoffin has platted a second addition to Proctor Knott on the west side of thirty acres. These lots are beautifully located in the choicest section of the resident portion of the village and are a splendid buy at $100, the selling price. These lots are sold on very liberal terms to actual home seekers. If two lots are purchased $200 is advanced in cash as a building fund and all that is required to be paid down is $25 and $10 monthly until the whole is paid. On this liberal plan every citizen of Proctor should own his own home and stop paying rent. This many are doing. The Missabe Bank of Proctor is handling this new addition for the owner, Mr. Magoffin of Kentucky, who is a guest of the McKay hotel, Duluth. In the upbuilding of Proctor, no man has done more to advance its growth than has Mr. Magoffin. He has donated two lots for a building site for St. Rose Catholic church; seven lots for the West side public school; three for R. R. Y. M. C. A., two for the M. E. church, besides extending other aids all of which have helped make Proctor what it is today, one of the best towns in St. Louis county.

MISSABE BANK OF PROCTOR.

This is one of the reliable banking houses of St. Louis county, doing a general banking, insurance and real estate business. At the head of this bank we find Hamilton H. Peyton, a name that stands high in financial and commercial circles, which gives the Missabe Bank of Proctor, a high cash rating, making it a safe and desirable one to do banking business with. Fred C. Mitchell presides at the window as assistant cashier. The business prosperity of all cities and towns are rated by their bank deposits and if Proctor were so rated it would stand first, as there is no town of Proctor's population that can show larger deposits than the Missabe Bank of Proctor.

PROCTOR'S BUSINESS HOUSES.

In making this write-up it would not be complete without making special mention of the live business men, who have done so much to promote the commercial growth and prosperity of Proctor.

ANTON B. EILER.

Mr. Eiler is one of the most successful business men of Proctor. He started in as a clerk for W. A. Riddle's general store, where he remained two years, then branched out for himself in 1901, later selling an interest to the Riddle-Eiler Co.; three months later he sold out his interests; in 1902 he established a new business under the firm name of Eiler & Anderson; in 1904 he purchased his partner's interest in the general merchandise business, where we found him doing a $5,000 a month business. Mr. Eiler owns his own business block 30x80 and warehouse, 30x34. The stock of goods carried covers all lines of dry goods, shoes, hardware, stoves and groceries, equal to many of the stocks carried by Duluth's merchants in these lines. Mr. Eiler is a native of Denmark, born there in 1873. He came to Duluth in 1887, where he started in business life as a grocery clerk. He followed this down to 1899, when he removed to Proctor. Anton B. Eiler's business success may be largely attributed to his indomitable industry and sterling integrity.

HERBERT I. SCHELL.

This gentlemen opened up the Proctor Drug Store last June, coming from Duluth, where he was manager for the Lenox Pharmacy. Mr. Schell is a splendidly equipped pharmacist, being registered in the states of Minnesota, Wisconsin and New York. There is no part of the drug business that he does not thoroughly understand and for this reason has built up a large and profitable business, making a specialty of physicians' prescriptions.

J. W. REHBEIN.

This is one of the live business men of Proctor, carrying a large and well selected stock of drygoods, shoes, groceries, notions, tobacco and smokers' goods, confectionery, hardware and stoves. The business was established in 1905, while the average monthly sales foot up to $2,000. Mr. Rehbein owns his store building, size 25 by 60 and warehouse, 20 by 30, both of which are constantly stocked with the best makes of goods which are sold at the lowest cost prices, making his store an attractive trade center.

T. J. COLLINS.

Practical watch maker and jeweler started in business in 1902 and has built up not only a large trade in high grade railroad watches, diamonds, gold and silver jewelry, clocks and silverware, but is also official watch inspector for the D. M. & N. Ry. Mr. Collins owns his store building and other property and is rated as one of the leading men of affairs.

CARL J. EILER,

Is proprietor of the Palace market, where all lines of fresh and salt meats, butter, eggs, poultry, oysters, live lobsters and fish are kept in stock. Mr. Eiler owns his own building 20x48, where are located his power sausage-making plant, smokehouse and other equipments that go to make up a first-class market. Mr. Eiler is a native of Denmark, born there in 1876 and came to Duluth in 1896. After his school days were over, he went to work in his brother's, Anton B. Eiler's, grocery and meat store on Lake avenue. After two years he went to Chicago, where he was engaged in the same business for eight years. When the Spanish-American war broke out he enlisted in Company F, United States Volunteers, and saw nine months' active service in Cuba, being in all the battles fought. On Feb. 14, 1899, he mustered out, having done his full share to free Cuba and uphold the glory of the flag of his adopted country.

BEAUCHAMP & RILEY.

One of the popular public places is conducted by the above gentlemen, who conduct a first-class ice cream, confectionery, cigar, tobacco, soft drinks and poolroom. The location is one of the best in Proctor, the first building west of the depot. They own the building, size 22x40, which is tastefully fitted up and stocked with only the best lines of goods. If you want the best in their line you will be sure to find it at Messrs. Beauchamp & Riley's.

P. McCABE.

Dealer in general merchandise, came here in 1905 from Duluth, where he lived and did business for twenty-four years. He is one of the very progressive business men, a leader in all public enterprises that tend to push Proctor to the front as a place to live and do business in. Mr. McCabe's stock of goods covers all lines of groceries, boots and shoes, furnishings, patent medicine, hay, flour and feed, all of which are sold at bottom prices. The stock of goods is well displayed in a 25x80 store building and warehouse 20x30. Mr. P. McCabe has many friends in Duluth and Superior who will read this notice of his latter day prosperity with much pleasure and genuine satisfaction.

ALFRED QUACKENBUSH.

This is one of Proctor's most enterprising young men, the owner of the Quackenbush block, size 50 by 90, two stores, where he conducts a general store, handling boots and shoes, gent's furnishings and builders' hardware. In this same building is the Royal Cafe, where meals are served at all hours and the Men's Club Rooms having accommodations for fifty men. The building is furnished throughout in Georgia pine, has plate glass windows, is steam heated and in all respects is a modern business block. Mr. Quackenbush is also in the retail lumber business and builders' supply line which is proving a strong trade builder.

MRS. L. E. WOOD,

In November, 1906, opened a dry goods and notion store, size 22 by 40. The stock of goods carried being well selected she soon built up a nice business, which has steadily grown from that day to this. Mrs. Wood not only owns her business block, but a residence on First street and other property, all of which proves her business ability as both father and mother of a family of young children.

E. M. McEWEN.

The East enders take a pardonable pride in the general merchandise store of E. M. McEwen, established in 1903, size 25 by 110 feet, stocked to its fullest capacity with the choicest lines of dry goods, ladies' and gents' furnishings, hats, caps, boots, shoes, staple and fancy groceries, hardware, flour and feed. It is an up-to-date stock, sold at bargain prices. Mr. McEwen is a native of Melrose, Wisconsin, born there in 1862. He was raised and educated near Ottawa, Can. He is one of the main pillars in the business and social life of Proctor, and when there any boosting to be done he is one of the first to be consulted, as what he says usually goes.

A. D. GRAVES,

Is one of the busy men of Proctor, being proprietor of the Cash restaurant, corner Main and Second streets, where the best of meals are served at popular prices, day or night. The service is the best, being presided over by Mr. Graves. The omnibus line that connects Proctor with Bayview Heights, making all trains of the Duluth Belt Line, is owned by Mr. Graves. He is also the proprietor of a livery stable and wagon shop and operates an extensive horseshoeing and blacksmithing business. The growth of Mr. Graves' business has necessitated the building of a modern workshop 20x40 and livery stable 40x80. It is only an aggressive man who could manage so many lines of business and make each one the success which has characterized all of Mr. Graves' undertakings during the past few years.

P. M. LACHANCE

Located in business on July 7, 1903, first in the general merchandise business, and four years later in his present business. He owns one of the attractive business blocks, size 26x42, and also residence property in West Duluth. Mr. Lacnance never keeps any but the finest goods and as a result his buffet has a wide reputation for the absolute purity of all goods sold over his bar, which is quite a trade puller.

There are other business men that deserve equal mention with those reviewed who are omitted for a lack of space or were not at home when making our rounds, otherwise they would have had proper mention.

MAKES CRIME UNPROFITABLE.

St. Petersburg Cor. New York Sun: The director of the trans-Caucasian railway, Col. Neigebauer, has issued the following curious order:

"In the course of six months of the current year thirty officials of the trans-Caucasian line have perished by violent death. Ten among them were of the highest ranks in the service and twenty in the lower ranks. Although it has now become customary to ascribe these appalling murders to revolutionary organization, there are grounds for suspecting a majority have been caused by a desire to see situations vacant.

"In order that such villainous proceedings may bring no profit to their authors I have found it necessary to order that all vacancies on the line which have resulted from officials having suffered violent death shall not be filled by candidates from among local officials, but by persons transferred from the railways in European Russia. I give this notice as a guide to future action."

WINTER TO BE HARD ONE

Signs of the Woods Point to Long Cold Season.

Muskrats Building Thick Houses—Squirrels Laying in Big Stores.

Signs and forecasts of the winter weather are many in the woods.

Any old trapper, who has spent much of his time in the heart of the wilderness, has his own ideas of the kind of winter which Minnesota will experience. The old Indian signs, which have been handed down from generation to generation, are followed strictly by the tribes in the woods, and are firmly believed in by them. The weather man may dig up the records of past years, and tell what may be expected in the way of weather, but it takes an Indian prophet, or a man who has spent his life in the woods to make a real genuine forecast. Nobody really knows how the Indians foretell the weather, but it is a fact that they often hit the mark.

This fall all signs point to a long, cold winter. There is liable to be plenty of snow, although probably not nearly as much as last year, when the last of the white covering did not entirely disappear in the woods until midsummer. Cold winds from the northwest will prevail, and the atmosphere will be clear and sharp, according to the signs of the trappers.

Out in the woods the hunters bring back reports that the partridges and quail are flying east this year, and are so scary that one cannot approach within several hundred feet of them. They fly up quickly and make for the tall timber, and cannot be driven out into the open. The Indians would say this meant a cold winter. If the birds spent most of the time on the ground it would mean mild weather, but the outlook at present is not in favor of the warm spell.

The Muskrats.

The muskrats, too, are making unusual preparations for a long, hard siege of cold weather, and building many houses along the rivers and creeks. It is said they are bringing an unusual supply of grasses and twigs to make their homes strong and secure, and their beds warm and comfortable. These little animals often times neglect to do this, but it is usually only when a mild winter follows. How the muskrats know what is to follow is not known, but the hunters depend upon them.

Another sign which originated with the Indians is one regarding the depths of the water in the creeks and rivers. The Indians say that if the water is unusually low in the creeks during the fall it means a hard winter with plenty of snow. They say, too, if the trees are falling rapidly before the autumn winds it is a sign that the "trees are taking time by the forelock," and prefer to die before the more severe storms of the cold winter.

White men, cruisers and woodsmen, put a good deal of stock in the theory that which ever way the wind is blowing at the time the sun "passes the line," that will be the prevailing direction for the rest of the year. Upon this theory one well known lumberman said this morning that he looked for a cold winter as the wind was blowing from the Northwest when the sun crossed the equator.

"Most of our cold weather comes from the country to the Northwest, and therefore if the prevailing winds are from that direction we are due to have a cold winter," saide he. "I do not look for much snow, nowever, not nearly as much as last season."

Geese Are Flying.

From Crookston in the western part of the state comes the report that the geese are already flying Southward from the Arctic regions in great numbers. It is said that is pretty early for the flight of geese and this means the birds know a cold winter is coming and wish to get to warmer regions before it sets in. Ducks too are said to have made early flight to the Southland.

Besides the muskrats and numerous other animals seem to have an insight into the future and accordingly are making unusual preparations for a long cold winter. Squirrels have already laid up a big supply of nuts and are preparing their nests in the trees for a long siege. Bears and wolves are said to have a heavier coat of fur than is usual at this time of the year and all the woodfolk seem to expect some rigid winter months.

It may be that these signs of the character of the coming winter do not count for much, but the Indians, and white men who are much in the forest, and many city people who are a bit superstitious, will take warning of the animals and will also prepare for the worst.

REMEDY IS DEMANDED

By the Newspapers From Exactions of the Paper Trust.

Herman Ridder Addresses the Trust Conference at Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—One of the features of today's session of the national conference on trusts and combinations was an address by Herman Ridder, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, who spoke on "Newspapers, Their Relation to the Paper Trust and the Labor Trust." Mr. Ridder said:

"The leading manufacturing industries of the United States in 1905 ranked as follows: First, slaughtering and meat packing; second, iron and steel; third, foundries and machine shops; fourth, flour and grist mills; fifth, clothing; sixth, lumber and timber; seventh, printing and publishing; eighth, cotton manufactures; ninth, woolen manufactures; tenth, boots and shoes.

"The printing and publishing interests then represented an annual product of one-half billion dollars, of which six cities contributed a quarter billion and New York city alone contributed almost one-quarter of the great total. There were two great divisions of this vast business—book and job printing constituting one class, newspapers and periodicals the other class—the latter contributing over three-fifths of the output.

"It is for the newspaper especially that I propose to speak. The newspapers and periodicals had a reported capital invested of $239,000,000, of which nearly $100,000,000 represented machinery, tools and implements. They paid salaries and wages amounting to $106,000,000 per annum to 160,000 workers. They paid $58,000,000 per annum for their principal article of use—white paper. They represented the intellectual growth of the country; they expressed its desires."

Discussing the labor question, Mr. Ridder said: "We find that the adoption of arbitration for the adjustment of labor disputes has tended to increase the stability of investment in newspaper property, and it has afforded a means for the settlement of minor contentions which formerly caused infinite trouble, often leading to destruction of property, enormous losses of wages and the engendering of passion. The payments they made for the maintenance of this arbitration arrangement and for the carrying out of the policies of consiliation were regarded by publishers as payments for industrial insurance, just as they paid for fire and accident insurance. It has been calculated that in New York city alone the newspapers pay $1,500,000 per annum as their tribute to the closed shop and to organized labor. Any attempt to estimate the aggregate paid by all the newspapers of the country would involve too many complexions to justify the effort. With each new concession to the unions, or each new award of arbitrators, the publishers ask how far this payment must be carried. There are limits beyond which they cannot go, even though they are well wishers of organized labor. They are approaching that limit where their necessities may force them to stop further concessions and allowances. They wish to emphasize the fact that they have no objections to unions. They believe that the unions, notwithstanding many faults, have accomplished excellent results for men who are not ambitious to rise above their employment. They believe the unions can do much that is useful in the future in the way of securing better terms for workers who deserve them. However, they have a right to complain of those unions which set up a selfish guild for individual profit and without regard for the rights of other labor. The unions have fallen into the habit of expecting more from a newspaper than any union could hope to obtain from any other employer. These unions are making demands upon the newspapers because of supposed friendliness of unions and because of supposed helplessness of employers in resisting such exactions. A newspaper, to exist, must run all the time. It cannot wait to contest sirikes or to resist demands.

"Serious as this labor trust may appear in some of its aspects, it does not compare in objectionable features with a paper combination, which is probably the most remarkable financial freak that we can find in a long list of combination monstrosities. The printing and publishing business as a whole turns over its capital in about ten months. Large department stores, that advertise energetically, will turn over their stocks about seven times a year, but the largest paper manufacturer in the world—the International Paper company—with a capital exceeding $50,000,000, does a gross annual business of only $21,000,000, thus requiring three years to turn over its capital. It has watered itself until it has no money to invest. It has borrowed upon everything it has. It cannot get any more money unless it can do more business, and it cannot do more business because it has not the money with which to do it. Instead of accepting its responsibilities and extending its business to keep pace with the growth of its customers, the International Paper company is producing less newsprint paper today than it turned out immediately after its organization. The available funds at its command, which should have been used for new paper machines, has gone toward the acquirement of 2,557 square miles of timber limits registered in one of the four land offices in the province of Quebec, Canada. To maintain that concern and its allied combinations, with their oppressive weight of over-capitalization, and to provide a pretext for protecting the labor of 15,000 paper mill employes, receiving less than $9,000,000 per annum, the publishing business has been subjected to a series of deliberately planned schemes of extortion.

"The first step was accomplished in the Dingley bill, so that publishers could not buy paper elsewhere. The next step was one that has just been consummated, whereby, through combinations made in defiance of the federal courts, the supply has been brought below the demand, the market has been starved, the surplus has been exhausted, and the price for the present year has been advanced $12 per ton upon a consumption of 900,000 tons, an addition of $10,000,000 within one year. Increased cost of manufacture does not justify such an advance. Aggravating that situation is a threat of another advance of $10 per ton next year, or $9,000,000 more, a total of $19,000,000 advance in two years by an industry that pays an aggregate of less than $9,000,000 a year to its labor, while clamoring to congress for a continuance of its opportunities to combine and oppress publishers.

"The newspapers insist that the paper manufacturers who induced congress to protect them against competition from abroad are under obligations to provide for the present and prospective demands of consumers in this country. To repress manufacture, or to starve the market so that the paper maker is in position to create a famine and to stop the supply to any publisher, should rank as a crime. Many newspaper proprietors are unable to obtain any quotations for paper next year and do not know where to obtain a supply. In all the history of crimes charged against combinations and trusts, such a situation is unprecedented. It demands immediate remedy."

TRIAL NOT FINISHED

Macomber Case Develops Into Long Drawn Legal Battle.

Matter Will Eventually Reach the State Supreme Court.

After a slight indisposition Judge Dibell resumed his seat on the district court bench this morning, and the trial of the Macomber case against O. D. Kinney and others, adjourned from Tuesday evening, is progressing. There still seems a considerable amount of testimony to be offered by both sides, in rebuttal, and the prospects are good that the suit will occupy the attention of the court for another day or two.

A large portion of the morning session of the court was consumed by the opposing attorneys in argument over the admissibility of certain evidence. Mr. Macomber sought to show that prior to 1892, the date at which it is claimed he had first noticed that his claim to the disputed land in 59-14 was in question, he told divers persons that he owned the land. By this testimony the plaintiff is understood to be attempting to offset the claim of the defendants that he made no claim to the property during the twenty-five or twenty-six years elapsing after his alleged exercise of homestead right and the alleged execution of a deed for the transfer of the property.

John G. Williams was called to testify for Mr. Macomber this morning. In the main Mr. Williams testimony showed that several years ago, while acting as attorney for somebody, who wanted to clear up a discrepancy in the title of the property in dispute, he went to Mr. Macomber with a quit claim deed for the latter's signature. This is claimed to have occurred prior to 1892.

The case is being hard fought by both sides and every obstacle possible in law is being thrown up by the opposing attorneys in their efforts to defeat the other side.

It is evident from the attitude of the parties to the action that the case will probably go to the supreme court, no matter what the outcome in the district court.

Only one jury is working. Judge Cant is hearing court cases and Judge Ensign has not yet finished holding court in Carlton county.

ACTUALLY GREW HAIR ON BALD SPOT

MR. E. BURNHAM, Chicago, Ill. Chicago, July 24, 1905.

Dear Sir—After having used your Hair Grower for about six months, I can truthfully say it is the most wonderful hair tonic that I know of. It has stopped the falling out and the bald spot is entirely covered with a thick, natural growth. I am more than pleased with the results. A physician friend who examined my head said hair could not be restored on the bald spot, and the enclosed photo shows that it can be and was restored by your hair grower. My hair measures 40 inches, and is still growing, has a rich, healthy color, and is admired by all who see it.

Am recommending your tonic to all my friends and acquaintances, and I sincerely wish you the success you and your wonderful discovery deserve. Yours truly,

SHOWED PRIMA FACIE EVIDENCE

Herman Martenson's Countenance Was Proof of Assault.

It was a decidedly disfigured countenance that Herman Martenson presented in municipal court this morning when he appeared to testify against John Peterson and William Nelson, arraigned on the charge of assaulting him.

The men engaged in a fracas in the Carlson saloon, 513 West Superior street, yesterday forenoon and it appears that Martenson was pretty roughly handled. His eye was a beautiful purple and closed tight, while marks on his face and head bore evidence of anything but love pats from his adversaries.

The court found the two men guilty of assault and taxed them a fine and cost amounting to $6.25 in each case.

A witness called for the defense furnished anything but convincing evidence, testifying to the fact that Martenson was the aggressor in the fight, but when Assistant City Attorney McKeon asked the time of day the alleged assault occurred, he stated that it was about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when in fact it occurred in the forenoon.

Evidence was introduced to show that Martenson was in a fighting mood and made offers to clean out the place before the fight occurred.

HE HATES "AMERICK"

Rude Piano Movers Shatter Nerves of De Pachmann.

"I am Perfectly Sick" He Says After the Concert.

"I hate Americk."

That was one of two perfectly lucid remarks that Vladimir De Pachmann gave utterance to last evening after his concert. The other was:

"I am perfectly sick," with an almost woeful and grieved accent that would appeal to a heart of stone.

The episode that upset the aplomb of the great pianist was enough to make a perfectly well-balanced business man tear his hair. During the last number that De Pachmann played at his recital at the Methodist church two draymen walked down the aisle, carrying the lumbering truck upon which the piano was later to be moved. Mute appeals to them by the auditors they passed were ignored, and restraining hands were brushed aside. Little recked they that melody such as they never had heard before was in the ambient air. They grandly ignored it. They noisily placed the truck just where they wanted it and then walked noisily out. Murder filled more than one heart, and only the restraining influences of civilization saved the offenders from being mobbed. De Pachmann began his exquisite Chopin valse over again and played it through, and then, with angry pantomime, appealed to the audience, and showed that the lumbering creatures who had interrupted him were simply lacking in the head.

Nobody who heard him say he hated America could blame him much. To come from a country where genius is appreciated to one where such a crime as he had been subjected to was allowed, without an instant execution, would upset anyone.

He talked German and made it clear that he hated America, he hated double thirds, he hated to play to less than 1,200 people, he hated changes in climate. He interjected in English that he was 59 years old, but didn't look it, and that he had had to take medicine between his numbers and that he was perfectly sick.

"Is my carriage waiting?" he sobbingly inquired, and as it was, and the sympathies of all around were with the genius whose nervous system had been so rudely shattered, he was allowed to depart with the fervent hope from those he left that sleep, which has been said to knit up the ravell'd sleeve of care, would help him out, and that ultimately he might have a less positive disinclination to "Americk."

BRONCHO RAN AWAY

And Robert Elwell is Arrested for Fast Driving.

Robert Elwell claimed that he offered his services as bareback rider on a bucking broncho yesterday and that the crazy actions of his mount were responsible for his being in jail. "I couldn't be very drunk and stay on that horse, not by a jugful," remarked Elwell earnestly.

The court decided that the ride and its accompanying exhilarating exercise was worth about $3, and placed the fine at that amount. Elwell, it is claimed was doing a John Gilpin stunt up the avenue when arrested.

SPORTS OF THE DAY

WILL ROOT FOR TEAM

Supporters of C. H. S. Will Go to Superior in Force.

Duluth Students Prepare to Hold Up Their End.

Not many students of the Central high school will miss the trip to Superior Saturday for the game between the Central Highs and Blaine of Superior. It is estimated that the crowd will be one of the largest that ever crossed the bay for an interscholastic athletic contest and the rooting of the game Saturday will rival that at the big college games in its intensity.

The Central school rooters are making great preparations for the game. They are determined not to be outdone by their Superior rivals, and several mass meetings will be held this week to work up the interest and practice yells for the encouragement of their team and the discomfiture of the Blaine players and rooters.

The special train for the game will leave the Union station promptly at 2:30 o'clock Saturday and it promises to be well crowded with enthusiastic high school students profusely bedecked with colors and effervescent with school spirit. A large number of high school alumni and other devotees of football will be on hand to accompany them and the Superior crowd will know when the Duluth contingent arrives at the park.

While the rooters are preparing to do their part toward gaining a victory Coach Colton and the boys on whom the responsibility for the result of the game will fall, are working hard. Every night this week, a good squad has been out and fast signal practice and fierce scrimmage work has been the rule. Not a moment has been lost, for the boys are counting on Blaine as a hard proposition and will be ready for any surprises. They will be prepared for a heavy charging team, or light, fleet backs and ends, and will seek to checkmate any style of play the wily Wisconsin crowd may spring.

Coach Colton is determined to get speed into the work and an improvement is noticeable. Caulkins is calling his signals more rapidly and getting the play off in better shape than he did early in the season and he will be instructed to keep things on the move all through the game Saturday. Caulkins is a great little quarterback on the defense and once he develops speed of thought and action, he will be great on offense also.

Reports from across the bay are decidedly meagre. Not a word is being given out in regard to the work of the team and the inference is that Blaine is working hard on the quiet and preparing to show Duluth their best Saturday. They will be shown a little good stuff in return.

Athos in Duluth.

Athos, the Greek wrestler, who is going to go on the wrestling mat at the Metropolitan tomorrow evening with a live bull, arrived in Dufuth today, accompanied by his arena, mats and other accessories. The arena will be set upon the "Met's" stage immediately after the performance tomorrow evening. There will be a wait of about five minutes, when the stage is put in readiness for the contest between man and beast.

Good Squad Out.

A squad of about a dozen players were out for basketball practice at the Y. M. C. A. and the outlook for a good team this year is encouraging. The boys are getting into form quickly and more of the veterans are coming out for the work. Just when the team will be ready for games has not yet been determined, but a good team will be picked soon to take on all comers.

Bowlers Are Hopeful.

The remaining three games of the series of six between two bowling teams, representing Duluth and Superior, will be played this evening and is creating considerable interest among the followers of the sport. The loss of three straight games at Superior Tuesday night has aroused the local men and they will go into the match tonight determined to retrieve the ground and force another series of three games to determine the result.

HARD LINES IN HOCKEY

Canadian Sport Wants Home, But None Will Adopt It.

Amateurs May Start the Season in an Open Rink.

There is a story coming from the Copper country to the effect that Duluth will have a hockey team this winter and will be entered in the International league.

The morning paper this morning published a statement that John McNamara of Houghton, had been dealing with a man named Arthur Winetle of Duluth, for a big rink here, and that there was a chance for its erection before winter arrived.

It is stated that the name does not appear in the directory, which is true, as that is not his correct name. Efforts have been made by the gentleman in question, and the sporting editor of The Herald, to raise the capital for such a rink, but in the present condition of the markets they were not very successful, and the plan for entering the International league is practically a dead issue at the present time.

But there is still hope of some developments along amateur lines. Duluth will see hockey of some kind this winter if not on a covered rink on an open one.

"We will have hockey next winter," said Ray Jones, manager of the Northern Hardware Hockey team yesterday. "If we can't secure a covered rink, we will start the season in an open rink, centrally located, and in that way keep the game alive. I believe that, if we should slip a year, all the ground we gained in introducing the game into Duluth last year, would be lost again and the suspension might be fatal to the sport entirely."

There will be at least two amateur hockey teams in Duluth next winter. The Northern Hardware company's team has already been organized and a sufficient number of other amateur players have made themselves known to form another team in Duluth. The Columbias of Superior will also probably be in the game and Two Harbors likewise.

Hockey has not yet taken hold on the range, but it may be introduced there this winter. Hibbing and Virginia are live towns and should be able to support skating rinks and skating rinks will naturally sprout hockey teams. It is not very likely that big covered rinks will be erected in the range towns, but open rinks are probable and open rinks will bring about the covered structures in the course of time.

On the whole, hockey is having a hard struggle to gain a footing at the Head of the Lakes, but those devoted to the game hope to see it firmly established this year.

Another for Packy.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 24.—Packy McFarland of Chicago got the decision over Kid Goodman of Boston at the end of the fast ten-round bout here last night.

SHORT WEIGHT BIGGEST FRAUD

State Food Commissioner Says the Evil is Increasing.

St. Paul, Oct. 24.—"Short weight packages are the biggest fraud on the public in the food line today," says E. K. Slater, state dairy and food commissioner. Mr. Slater is preparing a bulletin on short weights. He says:

"The trouble is that in the keen competition as to prices, manufacturers are cutting down the contents of packages. In this state the law does not require them to state the net weight on packages except in the case of spices, baking powder and extracts. The socalled five-pound jars of butter are not labeled five pounds, but the purchuser pays for five pounds, and the jar usually contains not over four and one-half pounds. If the price is 35 cents, they are really paying 40 cents for butter. Packages supposed to contain a pound of staple household articles rarely weigh a net pound.

"Adulteration is pretty well controlled now, and labels show whether you are buying a pure article or one adulterated. The purchaser knows what he is getting, but he is deceived right along as to weights, and the shortweight evil is getting worse. In North Dakota the law requires the net weight to be stated on all packages, and I believe that is the only sensible way to protect the public. The Minnesota law ought to be amended to read the same way."

JEFFERSON POLK DYING.

President of Des Moines City Railway Cannot Recover From Illness.

Des Moines, Oct. 24.—Jefferson S. Polk, president of the Des Moines City Railway company, for forty years and probably the best known Iowan in the state, is dying. For several months, Mr. Polk has been ill, and yesterday he suffered a relapse. His relatives were called to his bedside and his death is expected at any minute.

Mr. Polk has for years been a unique figure in Des Moines and Iowa. He was educated as a lawyer and practiced in Des Moines before the war. From this he gradually drifted into speculation, which resulted so advantageously that he is rated as second to F. M. Hubbell in Iowa financial circles and is accredited with being the second largest real estate holder in Des Moines.

GREAT MEN & BEER BREWING

The brewers of beer have always been encouraged and often even subsidized by state and colonial governments of this country in the endeavor to curtail the evil effects of real dissipation. The best men of their times were engaged in the business, such as Wm. Penn, who caused the first brewery to be erected in Pennsylvania. Samuel Adams, acknowledged father of the American Revolution, conducted his father's brewery in Boston, Patrick Henry was a jovial host at Williamsburg, in Virginia, the year before he made his famous declaration, "Give me liberty or give me death." Abraham Lincoln even, in his famous debate, turned the table on Douglas with his ready wit, that he had paid his government tax for the purpose of furnishing the flowing bowl to his illustrious opponent.

Surely the brewers and their friends have always been foremost in promoting the public welfare, but never before has such a healthful and enjoyable brew been given the American people as

A SCANDAL IN GERMANY

Filing of Libel Suit Creates a Sensation in High Life.

Believed Many Secrets of Imperial Court Will be Driven Out.

Berlin, Oct. 24.—Libel action brought by Gen. Count Kuno Von Moltke against Maximilian Harden, editor of Die Zukumf, a free lance political weekly and long an organ of the editor's extreme radical opinions, began here yesterday before Justice Kern.

The public awaited the trial with extraordinary interest, because it was believed many secrets of the imperial court would be drawn from the distinguished persons summoned to testify, some of whom are members of the imperial entourage.

Von Moltke is an intimate friend of Prince Philip Zu Eulenburg, the ex-German ambassador to Vienna, and a kinsman of the present chief of the general staff, Lieut. Gen. Count Helmuth Von Moltke, and of the governor of the province of East Prussia, Frederick Von Moltke.

Harden began last November to assert that Count Zu Eulenburg was the head of a group at court that sought to influence the emperor's political action by subtle, indirect suggestions. Count Eulenburg, Count Von Moltke and Lieut. Gen. Count William Von Hohenau, one of the emperor's adjutants, were mentioned by Harden as members of the so-called Camarilla, or round table, and it was alleged that they were specialists and of abnormal temperaments. According to reports, the crown prince, Frederick William, made an inquiry into the charges in May, and went to his father with the result of his investigation, which caused Count Eulenburg, Von Moltke and Lieut. Gen. Hohenau to resign.

Few of the many applicants for cards of admission to the court rooms were able to get them, and these largely were lawyers, witnesses and reporters.

Among those summoned to testify were Maj. Bleron Von Kurian, belonging to the guards; Count Edgar Von Blume, author of a life of the emperor; Frau Von Elbe, wife of Count Von Elbe, and many other prominent Germans.

Field Marshal Count Von Hulsen Haesler, chief of the emperor's military cabinet, could not be reached by subpoena, as he was traveling, and Prince Zu Eulenburg's physicians sent a certificate saying that he was too ill to attend the court and would willingly make a declaration if called upon to do so.

After the court had read all of Herr Harden's articles on the subject, the defendant arose and said:

"I have followed political aims alone in my articles, and in doing so have been compelled to mention Count Von Moltke's name. I did not say he had practiced disgraceful vices, but said that he was abnormal in temperament."

Harden said that he had never written a word more than was necessary.

Count Von Moltke said such a circle as the "Round Table" which, as the defendant alleged, had sought to influence Emperor William's political actions, often in a sense contrary to the views of his constitutional advisors, had never existed and could not exist in the entourage of the emperor. The count added that his old friendship with Prince Zu Eulenberg was "wholly without ulterior significance."

Herr Harden's counsel, Bostein, asked Von Moltke if he had not heard disgraceful reports about S. M. Lacomte, the ex-first secretary of the French embassy, who was transferred in June, and the Starnburger, a watering place in Upper Bavaria, and I saw him once or twice with Prince Zu Eulenburg."

Herr Harden questioned the plaintiff about the testimony presented at the time of his divorce from his wife, Frau Von Elbe, and said he had heard things about the plaintiff five years ago, which if he had told of them would have caused the count's uniform to be torn from him, but he had kept silent. Continuing Herr Harden declined to withdraw anything he had written, but admitted frankly that he had twice been imprisoned for insults to the sovereigns, each time for six months, and that he had also been fined several times for the same offense.

At the afternoon session of the court Harden said he did not accuse Von Moltke of criminal acts, but he regarded his friendship with Prince Zu Eulenburg as eratic in character, for the plaintiff, he said, had once pressed the prince's handkerchief to his lips and cried, "Phill, my Phill," and in writing him a letter and made use of the words "My soul" and "my beloved."

Frau Von Elbe, the divorced wife of Count Von Moltke, testified to the gross epithets that her former husband had applied to married life. She then described the handkerchief incident which she said she saw from an adjacent room. She declared also that Prince Zu Eulenburg once knelt to her and begged her to give up her husband. Referring to her divorce Frau Von Elbe said she had asked Von Moltke "what will his majesty say to our divorce?" To this Von Moltke replied: "His majesty only hears what I allow him to know."

These words created a great sensation in the court room. Continuing the witness testified that Von Moltke had once written a letter to her mother in which he said they had formed a circle about the emperor which nobody was able to break through. Answering a question from Harden, Frau Von Elbe said Von Moltke had once told her he had often had to make a daily report to Prince Zu Eulenberg of the happenings at court.

The handkerchief incident was confirmed by Lieut. Von Kruse, Frau Von Elbe's son by a previous marriage.

EDDIE AND TRIXIE PART.

Star of "Orchid" Couldn't Stand Leading Woman's Temper.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Eddie Foy and Trixie Friganza couldn't get on together in "The Orchid," though Eddie says both of them are of the same race. The result of their differences is that Trixie has severed her connection with that show. Eddie said that he didn't wish to criticise any woman, but that Trixie's temper was too much for him.

"It is true I am no longer a member of 'The Orchid' company," said Miss Friganza yesterday. "I am to enter vaudeville, however, and will appear for Klaw & Erlanger."

GERMANS WIN BALLOON RACE

Beachy Takes Prize in the Dirigible Airship Contest.

St. Louis, Oct. 24.—Proclaimed as the most remarkable ballooning contest in the history of the world areonautics, with every racing record broken, the second international cup competition, which started from here on Monday last, ended yesterday with Germany accorded the winning laurels. The finish of the race was the closest and most exciting the followers of the sport have ever known, the victorious German balloon, which landed at Asbury Park yesterday morning, having but slightly more than five miles the advantage of the French contestant, Isle De France, second in the race, which descended during the afternoon at Herbertsville, N. J., a few miles from the Atlantic coast and slightly northeast of Point Pleasant. Another German balloon, the Duseldorf, stands third in the race. American entries are fourth and fifth, a third German team is sixth, a French team seventh, American eighth and English ninth. The unofficial estimated airline flight of the Pommern is 880 miles and that of the Isle De France is 875. The Duseldorf, third, landed near Dover, Del., is estimated at 750 miles. The unofficial measurements will be computed at the geological survey of the United States at Washington. Only the proximity of the Atlantic ocean stopped the wonderful flight of the Pommern. The balloon could have remained in the air many hours longer and undoubtedly would have added several hundred miles to the record but for the expanse of water ahead.

Sailing to windward and returning over a course measuring one mile and a half from the start to finish, Lincoln Beachy of Toledo, Ohio, yesterday, won the dirigible balloon or airship race which marked the close of the St. Louis aeronatuic contest of 1907. The prize was $2,000. In his "Beachy," a cigar-shaped affair, propelled by a four-cylinder gasoline motor, the winner covered the distance in four minutes and forty seconds. Jack Dallas, in the Strobel airship, a sister craft to the Beachy, won second class with a time record of six minutes and ten seconds, while Capt. Thomas Baldwin of New York, in the "California Arrow," was third in seven minutes and five seconds.

NO WARRANT FOR ALARM

Is Opinion of Rockefeller Who Will Loan Banks Money.

New York, Oct. 24.—John D. Rockefeller has taken an active interest in the present financial situation and he has arranged to loan very large sums to a number of New York financial institutions.

"I think," said Mr. Rockefeller to a reporter last evening, "that the existing alarm among investors is not warranted and I hope the good common sense of the American people will control the situation.

"Personally, I have absolute faith in the future of the values of our securities and the soundness of underlying conditions.

"Instead of withdrawing any of my money from the banks, I am co-operating with others in helping to meet that which I firmly believe to be only a temporary crisis.

"Everyone having the good of his country at heart should lend assistance now to re-establish confidence and I propose to do my part to the full extent of my resources."

STANDARD IS BORING FOR OIL

Has Invaded Canadian Fields and Drilling Near Edmonton.

Edmonton, Alberta, Oct. 24.—Under the name of the American-Canadian Oil company, the Standard Oil company has invaded the Canadian fields and is now boring at Morinville, a short distance from this city. Natural gas was found at a depth of 300 feet; at a depth of 550 feet the pressure was 400 pounds to the inch. The company expects to strike oil at a depth of about 1,000 feet and government reports bear out these expectations.

The drilling is under the personal supervision of H. L. Williams, president and manager of the company, who is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific as an expert. At Summerlands, Cal., he drilled the first submarine oil wells in the history of the petroleum industry. Prof. Weems of the Iowa state college, has analyzed the Alberta asphaltum and found it to contain 21.17 parts of petroleum and 16.14 parts of asphaltum.

From all over the surrounding country are coming reports of discoveries of natural gas and oil seepages, leading everyone to believe that Northern Alberta is exceptionally rich in all kinds of minerals, particularly coal products. At the present rate of progress the company should strike oil within a month. Franchises to supply several adjacent towns with natural gas are being sought.

GOOD BLOOD

NATURE'S PROTECTION AGAINST DISEASE

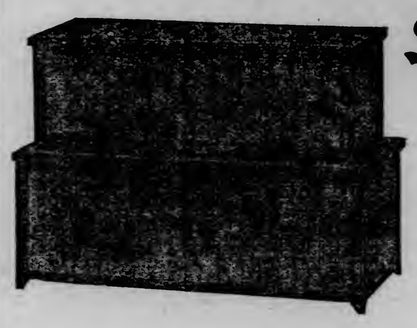

The preservation of health and prevention against disease is almost entirely dependent upon pure, healthy blood; every organ, tissue, nerve and sinew of the body draws on this vital fluid for nourishment and strength. Poisons, humors and germs from various sources often get into the blood, and then this great life-stream becomes a source of infection and disease, instead of a nourishing, health-sustaining fluid. Heredity is likewise an important factor, regulating the quality of the blood. Some persons are born with tainted blood from diseased ancestry, and Scrofula in one of its numerous forms is sure to crop out some time in life. Not only poisons in the blood are responsible for disease, but when the circulation is run down and becomes poor and weak in quality, then we see the effect in a general bad condition of health, such as weakness, sallow complexions, boils, and various skin eruptions. All blood troubles require a tonic and blood purifier, and none other equals S. S. S. It goes down to the very foundation of the trouble, and removes every particle of the poison or impurity from the blood. And not only does S. S. S. antidote the poisons, humors and germs, but it possesses health-giving, tonic properties, which build up and strengthen weak, impoverished blood, and fortifies the system against disease. S. S. S. permanently cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Eczema, Tetter, and all other skin diseases and disorders. Book on the blood and any medical advice free.

BEARS STILL HAMMER THE COPPER SHARES

New Low Marks Are Reached by Many Issues.

Market Shows Some Sign of Rally at the Close.

Copper stocks took more substantial dips today, many of the issues going lower than at any previous time in the present decline. The market acted a little better toward the close, however, and some of the shares were about unchanged from yesterday. But all of them were down, down, down, during some part of the day.

The high money rates and rumors of further trouble in the East had a most depressing effect on the market. In New York, call money was 50 per cent at the opening, went to 100 per cent, and then J. P. Morgan came out and offered some at 6 per cent. At the close, the rate was 50 per cent.

North Butte opened at $33, advanced to $34.25 and sold off steadily to $30. At the close, however, the price rallied to $31 bid and $32 asked. Thirty dollars is a new low price for North Butte during the present decline.

Amalgamated opened ex-dividend at $45.50, advanced to $46, declined to $43.62½, rallied to $44.37½, then went off to $42.50, a new low mark. The close was the same as yesterday, however, $45.50 bid.

Greene-Cananea opened at $5.62½, went off to $5.25, but rallied to $5.62½ later on and closed at $5.50 bid and $5.62½ asked.

Anaconda opened at $27, advanced to $28, slumped to $25.25 and closed about unchanged from yesterday at $27. Butte Coalition opened at $11.50, declined to $11.12½ and closed at $11.12½ bid and $11.37½ asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $90, declined to $89.50 and closed at $90.75 bid.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $7.87½, declined to $7.62½ and closed at $7.75 bid and $7.87½ asked.

Denn-Arizona sold at $3.12½ and $3.87½ and closed at $3 bid and $3.12½ asked, and Globe Consolidated sold at $4 and $3.87½ and closed at $3.87½ bid and $4 asked. Copper Queen of Idaho sold at 80 cents and closed at 75 cents bid and 85 cents asked.

Keweenaw closed at $4.50 bid and $4.75 asked, Hancock at $4.50 bid and $4.75 asked, Nipissing at $5.75 bid and $6 asked, Warren at $3.12½ bid and $3.50 asked, Carman at $2.25 bid and $2.50 asked, Calumet & Sonora at $5 bid and $5.25 asked, Cliff at $1 bid and $1.06 asked and Butte & Superior at $1.12½ bid and $1.25 asked.

Black Mountain sold at $4.62½ and $4.37½ and closed at $4.37½ bid and $4.50 asked.

CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

Samuel A. Phillips, Formerly of Duluth, Placed Under Arrest.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Samuel A. Phillips, the Northwest manager of the Hancock company, a Chicago brokerage and banking house, was placed under arrest in his office in the New York Life building today, on the charge of grand larceny in the first degree. Phillips was accused of pocketing the proceeds of Electric railway stock, which he was authorized to sell for the Hancock company. The complaint specifies the amount of his embezzlements at $1,539.50.

Phillips was brought before Judge Pinchout of the police court. His case was set for preliminary hearing on Oct. 31, at 2 p. m. He was then turned over to the charge of Sheriff Gerber, but it was announced that application for his release on bail would be made to the district court.

The complaint on which Phillips was arrested was sworn to by Charles W. Chase of Chicago, who has been in the city some days on behalf of the Hancock company, investigating the affair.

S. A. Phillips was formerly a resident of Duluth. He came here about twenty years ago and conducted the Sunday Sun, which was afterwards amalgamated with the Tribune, then owned by R. C. Mitchell. This partnership ended in a quarrel, and Phillips left for St. Paul. He later returned, and was associated with the Tribune under other management, and then went into the insurance business. A few years later he went East, where he resided until about a year ago.

BOLD ROBBERY.

Thieves Get Away With $110 of Frontenac Man's Money.

Red Wing, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two strangers drove up to the Frontenac Cash store, twelve miles south of this city, late yesterday afternoon, and after purchasing a quarter's worth of cigars, flashed a $20 bill on Mr. Santleman, the proprietor, in payment for the cigars. In order to get the change he had to go to his safe and pull out a $300 roll. One of the men standing over him as he was making the change, grabbed $110 of the money and both made their escape. The sheriff is now on the trail of the two men, and it is believed they will be captured.

TO PREVENT SKIDDING.

The ordinary small skid on a slippery road may be overcome by turning the steering wheels in the opposite direction to that which the real wheels are trying to follow, and then as the car straightens up and starts to skid the other way, swinging them back again, continuing this until the machine steadies itself.

Except the skids which sometimes occur in descending a steep hill on muddy roads those which most often happen occur on city streets after rain or the passage of a sprinkling cart when attempting to turn a corner or when the brakes are applied.

What the results will be cannot be foretold, says a writer in Suburban Life. It is usually advisable to take a chance in shaving close to other vehicles rather than to take the risk of applying the brakes hard on slippery roads.

The side slip happens so quickly that the operator scarcely knows it has started before the car is turned half way around, or is even headed in the opposite direction to that in which it was going. A car can be stopped without causing it to skid by applying the brakes quickly, releasing them and applying them again, overcoming each small skid with the steering wheel.

Often, where the service breaks are on the hubs, it is advisable to use the lower speed gears as a brake, as the action on the rear wheels will then be about the same. With hub brakes one may be set tighter than the other; and when these are applied the car will almost invariably skid to one side or the other.

The best method is to go straight ahead as far as possible, gradually slackening the speed of the car and avoiding sharp swerves right or left or turning any corners. Ordinarily the car will not skid, even at high speed, on a slippery road so long as a straight course is followed; but the moment a turn is attempted or the brakes are applied the trouble begins.

COLLEGE COWBOYS AT SEA.

Cattleboating to England is rapidly becoming the summer outing which, according to the Travel Magazine, nowadays finds favor with the collegian.

From early spring of the present year shipping agents along the Atlantic seaboard were deluged with applications from the colleges for positions as cattlemen.

Every craft which in June put out of Montreal, Boston, New York or Philadelphia, with a shifty cargo of steers for the British market, carried a delegation of highly educated youths to attend to the wants of the longhorns. Reservations in the forecastle became almost as common as in the first cabin area.

The romance in the idea of donning corduroys and playing master to wild Western bullocks may be cited as part of the motive for the appearance of numbers of collegians in the cattle pens 'tweendecks. Then, too, for many it was the beef route alone which made wanderings abroad possible.

$17,425 Given Away Absolutely Free

In opening our winter season, we propose to make same memorable by instituting a great educational word contest, in which we will give away prizes totaling $17,425.

We, of course, do not suppose for a moment that any intelligent person is going to presume that we are so generous that we are going to give away $17,425 without receiving something in return. This would be ridiculous and not at all in accord with our intentions.

Our Object in holding this contest is three fold. First, we wish to make you familiar with the greatest line of pianos, players and organs in the Northwest, which includes the celebrated Kimball, Wisner, Hobart M. Cable, Whitney, Hinze, Arion, Etc. Second, to enable us to place at least one hundred and fifty pianos in homes where a good instrument will be thoroughly appreciated, therefore, securing one hundred and fifty new friends. Third, to enable the public by a little extra work to secure a piano at a legitimate discount.

Remember there is no money involved and those who secure awards, will receive them without cost of any kind.

MORE TROUBLE FOR DePACHMANN

The Bill Posting Company Tried to Attach His Baggage.

Vladmir De Pachmann, Russian pianist, received most unceremonious treatment in Duluth.

On top of a small, if very enthusiastic audience, and the interruption of piano-movers last night, De Pachmann became involved in legal complications this morning which would make him throw up his hands in Russian horror.

De Pachmann's manager was the cause of all the trouble, evidently. Perhaps the manager was forgetful, or careless, but at any rate he left the city last night, leaving De Pachmann in the unpleasant predicament of being confronted with a bunch of bills he didn't know anything about, and certainly didn't want to pay.

The manager neglected to settle with the bill posting company, and this morning the company's attorney, C. E. Adams, secured a writ of attachment for the musician's baggage and sent it around to the hotel, but De Pachmann left the city on the Northern Pacific for St. Paul this afternoon, carrying only hand luggage, which the writ of attachment didn't cover. The manager has gone, De Pachmann has gone, and the bill still remains.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 24.—Depositors at the Union Trust company in this city began about noon today withdrawing their money. Before the close of banking hours large numbers had been paid.

Marsden J. Perry is president of the Union Trust company. Mr. Perry is also connected with the Trust Company of America, the New York institution, which for two days has withstood an unusually heavy drain.

New York, Oct. 24.—Marsden J. Perry, who has been devoting himself to the affairs of the Trust Company of America during the past two or three days, was seen at 3 o'clock by the Associated Press representative. He said that he had no particular solicitude as to the affairs of the Union Trust Company of Providence; that the organization was unquestionably solvent and able to pass through any crisis it was likely to meet. He said he would, however, take the matter in hand at once.

The Use of Money for Campaigns to Legitimate Purposes.

New York, Oct. 24.—Robert S. Hudspeth, chairman of the New Jersey Democratic state committee, has sent a letter to Chairman Franklin Murphy of the Republican state committee, which says in part:

"You and I certainly condemn the illegitimate use of money for political purposes. If there is anything which should be absolutely uninfluenced by money it is the suffrage of an American citizen. Therefore I invite you to join me in a promise upon our honor that we will not use or permit to be used, either directly or indirectly, any moneys for the purpose of improperly influencing a voter or for any illegitimate or unworthy purpose whatsoever in connection with the pending election. I suggest that we appoint a committee of three or five members of our respective committees to co-operate in such manner as may be necessary to insure an election."

At Republican headquarters at Newark it was announced that the Hudspeth proposition was being considered.

Gets Fifteen Days.

John Burns, who was arrested in "Little Jack's" saloon on Michigan street late last night, was sentenced to fifteen days in police court this afternoon.

The evidence showed that Burns attempted to "roll" a lumberman, named Jake Pipkin, who had considerable money in his clothes. The fact that Burns was evidently trying to make a touch was considered by the court in sentencing Burns, who was charged with drunkenness.

TRANSFER ASKED

Of One of the Rebate Cases Against Great Northern Railway.

Washington, Oct. 24.—A petition for a writ of certiorari for the transfer of one of the rebate cases of the United States against the Great Northern Railroad company was filed today in the supreme court of the United States. The case arose out of the alleged granting of rebates by the railroad to W. P. Dovereaux on fifteen shipments of goods from Minneapolis, Minn., to Seattle, Wash., and the district court of the United States for Minnesota found their railroad guilty on each of the counts and imposed a fine of $15,000. The circuit court of appeals affirmed that verdict and the company now asks the supreme court to review the entire case. This suit is one of many of a similar character pending in the United States courts throughout the country and much interest is felt in the court's action at reference to it. The railroad alleges that the portion of the Elkins law under which the fine was imposed was repealed by the Hepburn act which provided for imprisonment as well as fine. It contends that in changing the penalty the older law was effaced.

MAY BREAK THE RECORD

Business at Land Office During October is Very Heavy.

Total Receipts Are Expected to Reach $40,000 Mark.

October promises to eclipse all records during recent years in the amount of business done at the Duluth land office. The total receipts are expected to be greater than any other month for years. Officials at the land office are now predicting the receipts will amount to $40,000 or more before the end of the month.

The business so far at the land office has been enormous. The receiver has been continually busy raking in the receipts from the sale of public lands. Timber and stone claims in Northern Minnesota seem to be in greater demand than ever before, and the number of applicants for homesteads also seems to be increasing.

The year 1907 has been an unusually busy one. Every month the total receipts of the land office have averaged over $20,000, and during two or three months the totals amounted to nearly $30,000. Last March the receipts broke all records for a number of years, and amounted to something over $32,000. The month of May was also a busy one, and over $30,000 was received at the land office.

"Unless there is a big check in the amount of business done during the rest of the month I think we will break the record of last March," says Register Engle. "The month has been a busy one, and the total receipts will undoubtedly be in the neighborhood of $40,000. If the amount is as high as that the month will be a record-breaker, as the business in one month has not run as high as that for a number of years."

The fact that in a few years the lands of the public domain will be nearly all gone is probably the reason for the increase in the land office business. Everyone wants to get some of the land before it is all gone.

It has been a busy month in the contest room of the land office, as well as the entry department, and the register and receiver have been busy most of the time hearing some contest or another. At present the famous swamp land contests against the state are occupying the attention of the officials. It will be the middle of November before these have all been tried.

SAVANTS OF THE ROMAN CHURCH

Are to Make Boston a Center of Catholic Activity.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 24.—Mr. and Mrs. Bellamy Storer are preparing a campaign that will make Boston the center of Catholic activity in the country and at the same time emerge from the obscurity which has surrounded them since their controversy with President Roosevelt a year ago, with a social campaign that will astonish all Boston with its splendor.

For the past week Mr. and Mrs. Storer have had as their guest L'Abbe Felix Klein, professor of apologetics and literature in the Institute Catholique of Paris, who has lectured here on the political religious situation in France. various other Catholic notables have also accepted invitations to visit the Storers during the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Storer have rented a front pew at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross and follow the services there very closely. With the assistance of Archbishop William O'Connell, they are arranging a series of lectures to be given by noted churchmen under the auspices of the Catholic societies of the Eastern United States. They have also arranged with Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul to have some of the lecture courses continued in his diocese. The same arrangement has also been made with Bishop McQuade of Rochester, N. Y.

Mr. Storer, in an interview, said that he was afraid that his "little cottage will not permit entertainments on a large scale." The "little cottage" is four stories high and has forty rooms. For sumptuous grandeur the house has no superior in this city. Its furnishings represent the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Mrs. Storer is spending four or five hours each day in repousse copper modeling, which is her joy.

PAYS $100,000.

Envelope Company Settles With Government for Bad Supplies.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The Hartford Manufacturing Company of Hartford, Conn., which had the contract up to July 1 last, for manufacturing stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers, yesterday made a cash payment to Postmaster General Meyer of $100,000 as a settlement for all damage and injuries which the postoffice department may have sustained by reason of the company's failure to furnish paper up to the contract.

Chemical analysis of samples furnished by the company disclosed the fact that the composition of the envelopes paper had been below the requirement of the contract, and according to the comparisons of experts of the postoffice department, the company had benefited thereby.

MINING CONGRESS

To Hold Tenth Annual Session at Joplin on Nov. 11.

Joplin, Mo., Oct. 24.—The tenth annual session of the American Mining congress, to be held in this city Nov. 11, originated in the West, as the result of the hard times ten years ago, and the organization having gained several points, it now asks for a governmental department, believing that when the government is convinced that one-half of the tonnage hauled by the railroads is the direct result of mining, heed will be given to its suggestions, as the only national organization representing the mining interests in the United States.

All of its sessions, except that of 1900, which was held in Milwaukee, have been held in the West, and while Joplin, which fully apreciates the honor of entertaining the 700 delegates of this distinguished body of men, realizes that her guests will find here a mining camp unlike any other mining camp in the world. No other one is so accessible. No other one plays so improtant a part in the world's production of zinc—one-fourth of the supply produced here. The observer will find much of interest in both underground and top development, in the manner of producing ore, in pushing development. Here with mines at the very door for demonstration will be discussed every phase of mining of vital interest by eminent mining men, whose years of experience, as well as practical work, give their utterances weight that no mere theory can refute.

IRON INDUSTRIES

Are Prosperous, Although Prices May be Adjusted to Lessen Consumption.

New York, Oct. 24.—The Iron Age says: The suspension of the three of the group of Westinghouse interests is not reassuring, but it must be observed that the iron and metal industries have passed through a period of great prosperity and are stronger than at any time in the history of the country. Extensions and enlargements have been conservatively made with ample funds provided. In a few conspicuous instances new construction was suspended some time since.

Prices for finished iron and steel have been kept at a moderate level and while they will probably be adjusted to a lessened consumption, there is no prospect of any such performances as we have witnessed in copper and tin.

Pig iron makes are quiet.

M'MANUS FILES HIS ANSWER

Says F. B. Clark Went Into Stock Deal With Eyes Open.

In his answer to the $2,000 civil case brought in the district court by Fred B. Clark of this city, A. E. McManus, alleges that Mr. Clark got exactly what he bargained for, that he was not coaxed to buy stock in the Apache Mining company of New Mexico, but that, on the contrary, he asked the defendant for the stock, and was so persistent that Mr. McManus finally induced J. E. Pemberthy to part with 200 shares of his holdings.

Mr. McManus states in his answer that a number of men, including himself, had an option on the Apache property which they secured for about $10,000. He claims that they spent considerable money in prospecting the property, but that nothing developed that would warrant them in completing the purchase. It is alleged that the investors all lost the money they put into the deal.

In most cases consumption results from a neglected or improperly treated cold. Foley's Honey and Tar cures the most obstinate coughs and prevents serious results. It costs you no more than the unknown preparations and you should insist upon having the genuine in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

MAXIM IS SUED.

Winner in Lawsuit is Defendant in Three Civil Cases.

Alphonse Maxim, one of the Maxim heirs, who won a $5,000 suit against John H. Brigham on an ore land deal, a few days ago, has been made defendant in three suits brought against him by Charles L. and Thomas J. Sheridan, for money that they claim to have loaned him during the past ten years.

Two of the suits are brought by the Sheridan brothers jointly, and the third by Charles L. Sheridan. The aggregate amount claimed to be due the Sheridans from Maxim is $1.350.

Garnishment papers have been served on Mr. Brigham.

WHEAT HAS BIG BREAK

Flax Has Advance of a Point in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 24.—Wheat suffered a heavy decline in all the American markets today and it was the tightness of the money market that was largely responsible for the break.

With call money around 100 per cent in New York and money tight in all parts of the country, the wheat prices slumped. The opening was off and the depression continued until the close.

The general financial disturbances in the East were reflected in the grain markets. A lack of confidence was one of the noticeable things about the session.

The foreign markets held firm. Liverpool closed ½d lower to ½d higher, Berlin ⅜c higher and Budapest ¼c higher.

The December option closed 2¼c lower in Duluth, 2⅝-⅞c in Chicago, 2⅝-⅜c in Minneapolis, 1⅜c in New York and 1¾c in Winnipeg. The May option closed 2c lower in Duluth, 2⅜c in Chicago, 2⅛c in Minneapolis, 2¼c in New York and 1¾c in Winnipeg.

December corn closed 1¼-1½c lower in Chicago and was unchanged to ½d lower in Liverpool. December oats closed ⅞-1c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a steady opening in wheat with values ½d higher, being influenced by the firmness in America yesterday and the belief that Wall street has seen its worst period of depression. Shorts were nervous and covered rather freely, and there was also some support by outsiders. The general market, however, was extremely dull, but with light offerings further advanced ¼d to ⅝d during the morning. The advancing tendency, however, was checked by the heavy deliveries of English wheat.

"Corn was steady and ¼d higher at the opening, influenced by the firmness of American cables. The nearby month was extremely dull, while the distant option advanced an additional ¼d in sympathy with wheat."

Primary receipts of wheat were 551,000 bus, last year 1,021,000 bus. Shipments, 361,000 bus, last year, 575,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 232,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 554,000 bus, last year 413,000 bus. Shipments, 619,000 bus, last year, 595,00 bus. Clearances of corn were 58,000 bus.

Wheat was actively traded in during the session of the Duluth market. The tone was easier throughout the day. There were occasional rallies, but they were insignificant and prices never went over yesterday's close. The market was very soft at the close.

December wheat opened ½c lower at $1.07¼, declined to $1.06⅝, rallied to $1.06⅞, went off to $1.06, rallied to $1.06⅜, went off to $1.05⅞, rallied to $1.06, declined to $1.05¾ and closed at that price, a loss of 2½c from yesterday. May wheat opened ½c lower at $1.12¼, declined to $1.11, rallied to $1.11⅜, went off to $1.11, rallied to $1.11⅝, declined to $1.10⅜ and closed at that price, a loss of 2c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed 4½c lower and cash spring wheat was selling at the December price for No. 1 northern.

Flax was active and advanced during the latter part of the session, closing firmer. October flax opened unchanged at $1.22, advanced to $1.23, declined to $1.22, rallied to $1.23¼ and closed at that price, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday. November flax opened unchanged at $1.22¼, went up to $1.22½, declined to $1.22¼, rallied to $1.23¼, slumped to $1.22½ and closed at $1.23½, a gain of 1¼c over yesterday. December flax opened 1c higher at $1.21, declined $1.20½, rallied to $1.21, went off to $1.20¼ and closed at $1.21, a gain of 1c over yesterday. May flax opened unchanged at $1.25, advanced to $1.27½, declined to $1.25¼, rallied to $1.26 and closed at that price, a gain of 1c over yesterday.

Barley closed 5c to 12c lower today. The barley market has been weaker for several days than the closing quotations every day indicated. The farmers have been hurrying so much barley to market in order to take advantage of the high prices that big receipts have broken the market. Offerings of barley are now liberal.

Oats closed 2c lower and rye 1c off.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard on track, $1.09¾. To arrive, $1.05¾; No. 2 northern, $1.02¾. On track: No. 1 northern, $1.05¼; No. 2 northern, $1.02⅝; No. 1 northern in store, $1.03⅝; No. 2 northern in store, $1.01¾; December, $1.05⅛; May, $1.10⅜; durum on track, No. 1, 89¼c; No. 2, 87¼c; October durum, 89¼c; November durum, 89½c; December durum, 89½c; May durum, 91¼c. Flax to arrive, $1.22⅜; flax on track, $1.23⅜; October, $1.23¼; November, $1.23½; December, $1.21; May, $1.26. Oats to arrive, 39c; oats on track, 49c; rye, 77-82c; barley, 60-86c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens One Cent Below Wednesday's Close, With Light Trading.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—The wheat market today opened weak, prices breaking to nearly 1c below the close of yesterday. Trading was very light, the fear of possible complications in New York causing traders to be wary of new transactions. Cables were strong, and the good weather in the West is considered favorable for an increase in the movement. December wheat opened ½ to ⅞c lower at $1.06⅝ to $1.01 and sold at $1.00¼. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 576 cars against 584 cars last week, and 549 cars one year ago.

The market became very weak on the fresh break in stocks and December declined to 98⅝c. The close was weak with December off 2¾c at 98⅝@98¾c.

Trading was light in the corn pit, and prices were inclined to be weak. The break in wheat and excellent weather for the maturing of the new crop were the weakening factors. December opened 1⅛@1¼c lower to ¼@¾c higher, at 58@58⅜c and sold at 57⅝@57¾c. Local receipts were 348 cars with 101 of contract grade.

The low point for December was 56⅞c. The close was weak with December off 1⅛@1¼c at 57c.

Oats were dull and weak. December opened ¼c lower at 51c and sold at 50⅝c. Local receipts were 299 cars.

January pork was 2½c lower at $14.70. Lard was 15c lower at $8.55. Ribs were 2½c lower to 2½c higher, at $7.50@7.55.

Close: Wheat—December, 98⅝@98¾c; May, $1.05¾. Corn—December, 57c; May, 59½@59⅝c. Oats—December, 50@50⅛c; May, 52⅞c. Pork—January, $14.75; May, $15.05. Lard—January, $8.52½; May, $8.65@8.67½. Ribs—January, $7.07½@7.10; May, $7.92½. Rye—Cash, 82¾@84c. Barley—Cash, 70@75c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 99½c@$1.02; No. 3 red, 97½c@$1.01; No. 2 hard, 99½c@$1.03½; No. 3 hard, 97c@$1.01; No. 2 northern, $1.05@1.07; No. 3 spring, $1@1.07. Corn—No. 2, 60@61c; No. 3, 59¾@60c.

Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 24.—Flour: Market steady. The milling situation shows no material change. Shipments are liberal, buyers ordering out freely owing to moderate supplies. There is a fair demand reported and while restricted to some extent by the vagaries of the wheat market millers note that buyers are in close touch and come in at opportune moments. Fairly good sales were reported on yesterday's market. Shipments, 52,325 barrels. First patents, $5.70@5.80; second patents, $5.50@5.70; first clears, $4.50@4.60; second clears, $3.70@3.80.

Grain Gossip.

Argentine shipments of wheat this week are estimated at 880,000 bus. Shipments last week were 584,000 bus., and a year ago, 968,000 bus. The Argentine shipments of corn are estimated at 1,200,000 bus.

* * *

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—We are ready to look on the bright side of the present trade situation as soon as the facts will warrant it. Events transpiring in New York financial circles today are not of a kind to give any assurance of a speedy end of present troubles. While conditions here in the West are on a sound basis, there is little use in trying to stem the tide, and force values higher so long as the cloud hangs over the Eastern financial situation. Wheat receipts at both Northwest and Southwest points are moderate. Total primary movement is below last year. Argentine shipments promise smaller than a year ago. Nothing will put the market on a safe basis for buyers so long as the Eastern financial disturbance continues.

Corn: Showed fair support early, a group of strong commission houses were on the buying side. Prices scored very little advance, however, because of the weakness of wheat at the same time. Some poor husking reports coming in. All the bullish reports are offset by the disturbed financial outlook, and buyers may well hold off until the storm is over.

Oats: It was quite evident that considerable long oats came on the market from the lines of a couple of leading operators. This selling more than supplied the demand. Prices had to weaken with wheat, corn and stocks.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

THE TACTFUL MAN.

Chicago News: "They were married last month," said the youngest man with the prematurely bald forehead. "As a matter of fact, my wife and I put up the job on them. Bert was always a great chum of mine and Milly and the madam could cook on the same stove if it came to a showdown, I honestly believe. Dandy girl, Milly is. When my wife first proposed bringing 'em together I fell right in with it. It was disgusting to see Bert falling into old bachelor ways. Still, if I had been dead sure that they'd suit each other I'd have washed my hands of it."

"You were sure that they were made for each other, eh?" said his friend with the eyeglasses.

"Dead sure," replied the prematurely bald young man. "Of course, it was a great responsibility to assume. We've both of us felt it weighing on us quite a little, but about a week ago the load was lifted. I tell you, they're going to hit it off pretty nearly as well as Nell and I have done, and I couldn't possibly say any more than that."

"What was it lifted the load?" inquired the friend.

"Bert dashed into our place just as we were sitting down to dinner. Gasping. Collopsed into a chair and it was a minute or two before he got breath enough to speak.

"'Jeff,' he says, starting up again, 'hike upstairs for your life and bring me down your dress trousers. Don't stop to ask questions. Bring 'em quick and you and Nell both keep your mouths shut till I see you again.'

"Well, I ran upstairs and brought down the garment mentioned. He snatched 'em from me, stuffed 'em under his coat and rushed out. From the window we saw him pelting down the street top speed toward home. It's a wonder he wasn't arrested. We just thought he was crazy. He wasn't, though.

"The next day he came over on his way to the train with the trousers. It seemed that they had been due for a theater party that evening and Milly, to show her devotion, pressed his d ss trousers. Proud as could be of it, only she had pressed 'em with the creases down the side. Did Bert let on? Not on your life. Made an excuse to go to the drug store for shaving soap and ran fifteen blocks to our house and back. Smuggled in my trousers, sent his own to the tailor's next day. Milly in blissful ignorance. So, you see, I've pretty good reason for being sure of their happiness."

"It was certainly extrordinarily tactful of Bert," commented the man with the eyeglasses.

STOCKS ARE UNSETTLED

Opened Higher, But Declined Again Under Heavy Selling.

Violent Rebound Followed and the Close Generally Strong.

New York, Oct. 24.—Prices of stocks shot up buoyantly in the opening dealings as an expression of relief over the measures taken over night to fortify the financial position. Early advances in London heralded the recovery here. Westinghouse Electric rebounded 10 points from yesterday's closing and then reacted 5. American Tobacco preferred jumped 4¾; Baltimore & Ohio, 2¾; General Electric, 2½; Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Atchison, 2; Great Northern preferred, 1¾; St. Paul and American Smelting, 1½; American Ice, 1⅜; Amalgamated Copper, 1¼, and general range of advances running up to a point. A few stocks ran off contrary to the current of the market, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie falling 4½; Southern Pacific preferred, 2½; Interborough Metropolitan preferred, 1¼; and Missouri Pacific and Toledo, St. Louis and Western, 1. After the opening burst of activity the market became quieter and there was some reaction.

The advance did not hold long, hastily realizing and renewed liquidation in certain stocks speedily wiping out the initial advances. Federal Mining preferred dropped 20 points, International Pump preferred 6, Missouri Pacific and Manhattan 4½, Corn Products preferred 4½, Southern Pacific preferred 4, Baltimore & Ohio preferred 3⅝, Reading 3⅜, and Pennsylvania, Illinois Central, Norfolk & Western, Delaware & Hudson, the Hill and Harriman stocks, American Smelting, Sugar, Mackay companies and others 1½ to over 4 points. The whole market reacted decisively to below last night's level.

The renewal of liquidation caused some disorderly breaks in prices, but the market steadied and became quiet again before noon. The 50 per cent money rate indicated the continued stringency of the money market. Northern Pacific was carried down 5 points below last night, the other Hill and Harriman stocks, St. Paul, Illinois Central, American Smelting and Sugar between 3 and 4 points. New York Air Brake broke 11 points, American Express 7½, St. Louis Southwestern preferred 6¼, United States Pipe preferred 5, and Kansas & Texas American Locomotive, Brooklyn Transit, Republic Steel preferred, Distillers' Securities and Cotton Oil 2 to 2½. Rallies ran from 1 to 1⅝ in the most active of the weak stocks. The pressure of liquidation was very evident in the bond market where sharp declines were general.

Speculation was feverish. St. Paul, Atchison and the Hill stocks reacted to the lowest, but they were momentary, good rallies in other good leaders. New York Air Brake got down 14¾; United States Leather preferred, 11¾; American Smelter Securities preferred, 10; National Biscuit, 5½; Toledo, St. Louis & Western, 5¼; Delaware & Hudson, Mackay companies and Granby Mining, 5; Northwestern preferred, 4; Pullman, 3, and Railroad Steel Spring, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha dropped 5, but immediately recovered it.

The list hovered close to the low point of the day although offerings were scanty. Continued inroads were made on the prices of inactive stocks. American Smelters Securities preferred "B" extended its decline to 17; Pullman, 6; Chicago Great Western preferred "A," 5½; American Telephone and Telegraph, Virginia Iron and Texas Land Trust, 5; Illinois Central, 4¼; Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred, 4; National Biscuit preferred, 3½, and Consolidated Gas and Sloss Sheffield Steel, 3.

The market closed in much confusion but generally strong. Prices were declining rapidly, when there was a transformation worked by the news that $25,000,000 had been provided by bankers to lend on call. A sudden and violent rebound followed, after which the market fell into dullness and uncertainty. St. Paul, Union Pacific and Northern Pacific were carried near to par by the slump. Northern Pacific's decline reached 9½. Union Pacific 8½, Reading 8¾ and many others from 3 to 6 points. American Smelter Securities preferred "B" dropped 20 points, Pullman 9 and Republic Steel preferred 5¼. Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and Great Northern preferred 5 to 6, Amalgamated Copper 4, and others 1 to 3½. United States Steel rose 1½ over last night in the late dealings and the preferred 1.

Stock Gossip.

New York—Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The announcement of the closing of several banking institutions and numerous rumors regarding the stability of others did much towards aggravating a feeling of distrust.

Why Many People Suffer From Constipation.

A Sure and Safe Relief.

Constipation is most often caused by a torpid liver or failure of the stomach and bowels to perform their proper functions. The condition is commonly due at first to irregular habits of living and improper food, and if properly treated can be readily relieved. It is, however, too often aggravated and made chronic by the use, as medicine, of powerful and exhaustive drugs, which purge and, perhaps, give temporary relief, but are so drastic in effect as to damage the tender lining of the stomach and bowels, leaving a condition worse than at first. This can, however, be avoided, and the bowels gently and thoroughly opened by the use of Nature's own remedy—the famous Natural Mineral Laxative Water—HUNYADI JANOS—which has been relieving suffering mankind all over the world for nearly half a century. One dose, half a tumblerful, drunk on arising in the morning (slightly warmed for best results), will, within an hour, bring a delightful and refreshing relief. A whole bottle costs but a trifle, and it is best to keep one always on hand. Every druggist keeps it.

The strength of call money was a very discouraging feature. During the last hour the market rallied quickly on the announcement that large banking interests were offering call money more freely. The market closed in a very feverish and unsettled state.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis. The situation today was fully as acute as yesterday and the announcements of failures were still more numerous. Three banks closing their doors it was remarkable that prices did not still further shrink. At one time in New York prices simply melted away and Union Pacific broke par, but when it was announced that Morgan had sent $25,000,000 into the stock exchange to be loaned there was a quick revulsion and prices jumped.

Coal and coppers suffered, but only sentimentally. There seemed to be a market for them. The news on the metal was good and if the general situation will right itself they are in position to advance. A few days must pass without disaster, however before confidence is restored. This will occur, it is hoped. In the meantime sales of anything owned without any money borrowed on it, at these prices is absurd.

Boston, to Paine, Webber & Co.: The struggle continued today in New York and the banks are still holding their own. Several small concerns had to suspend today, but they were involved with Morse & Thomas and are regarded as unimportant. The financial situation is very bad but we feel sure that it will clear soon. Ready cash is the all important thing and everybody is looking out for themselves. The coppers acted splendidly and show how completely they have been liquidated. It is possible that the banks may issue clearinghouse certificates tomorrow and this will ease the situation tomorrow.

New York Money.

New York, Oct. 24.—Close: Money on call strong and higher; opened at 50 per cent; highest, 100; lowest, 6; last loan, 60; closing bid, 6; offered at 10. Time loans nominal. Prime mercantile paper, 7@7½ per cent. Sterling exchange nominal. Bar silver, 51⅜c. Mexican dollars, 48¼c. Government bonds weak; railroad bonds demoralized.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 24.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 3@6 points. The action of the government in relief of local banks seems to have made a favorable impression. Later the market became very weak and unsettled under December liquidation and bear pressure, with prices at midday about 15 to 27 points net lower, December showing the maximum loss. It was rumored that the December bull pool was liquidating as a result of the light money situation and in apprehension of increased southern offerings. Spot quiet; middling uplands, 11.25; middling gulf, 11.50.

Spot closed steady, 20 points lower; middling uplands, 11.10; middling gulf, 11.35; sales, 900 bales. Futures closed steady; closing bids: October, 10.31; November, 10.23; December, 10.45; January, 10.25; February, 10.28; March, 10.29; April, 10.31; May, 10.34; June, 10.32; July, 10.30; August, 10.23.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 24.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Market continues draggy, with the demand restricted to the local retail trade. Several coal companies filled small orders during the day. Very few carload buyers on the market. Express and delivery classes met with fair demand. W. E. Watson came in with a load of heavy drafters. Logginb trade is very backward.

STREET CARS.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point, and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.

The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passenger safely between points on the above mentioned lines.

This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has no better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and, therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.

RAILROADS

NEW RATE ANNOUNCED

South Shore Road Slashes Price of Tickets to East.

Action Will Probably Precipitate Rate War Between Roads.

Following the announcement in yesterday's Herald, of the likelihood of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic cutting its Duluth-New York rate of $22 to $18.50, to meet the contemplated cut of the Erie road from Chicago to New York, the officials of the D. S. S. & A. announce today that the new tariff has been filed and will go into effect Nov. 20.

Under the new passenger tariff, Duluth travelers can ride from here to Ottawa for $17.50; to Montreal for $17.50; to Portland, for $17.50; to Boston for $18.50, and to New York for $18.50. This fare applies on second class travel, first class tickets being two dollars higher.

With the announcement of the cut in the Eastern travel rates comes the statement from an authoritative source that a new tariff may be filed within the next few days making still further reduction. This is independent of any action that may be taken by the Erie or other lines that are competitors for the Eastern traffic.

The action of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic is believed to be the beginning of a rate war that will involve several of the Eastern lines. The possibility of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic making a voluntary reduction, following its first rate reduction, will be a move that cannot pass unchallenged by its competitors. A cut from $18.50 on the New York rate is bound to prove a stimulus for local travel to New York rather than by the way of Chicago. This will result in the St. Paul-Chicago lines losing some of the interchangeable passenger traffic.

CREDENTIAL TICKETS

Are Authorized by the Western Passenger Association.

The recommendation of the committee of the Western mileage bureau adopted by the Western Passenger association, at the meeting held yesterday in Chicago, calls for the sale of credential tickets for use in South Dakota and the upper peninsula of Michigan, and for interstate business, where the basis does not call for a 2-cent interstate rate. The continued sale of 1,000-mile individual tickets, on the same basis, the tickets to be handled through the Western Mileage bureau, was also authorized, the 1,000-mile tickets, for individual line use, in 2-cent states, and good in 3-cent states using three miles for two, and costing $20.

TO FACILITATE DESCRIPTIONS

Board of Public Works Will Offer Charter Amendment.

In response to a resolution passed by the council recently, calling upon the heads of the different departments of the city to furnish recommendations for changes in the charter, to be submitted to the charter commission at its next meeting, the board of public works will present one on the matter of recording descriptions of property in condemnation proceedings.

The present charter provides that a full and detailed description of property shall be furnished in condemnation proceedings for streets, alleys and other improvements, and the same is unsatisfactory because of the exhaustive detailed description required and work to prepare the same.

The board will ask that a plat of the property to be condemned be furnished, together with such written explanation as is necessary, thus doing away with much work and at the same time giving a better idea of the property itself.

Other departments of the city will undoubtedly offer some suggestions for the consideration of the charter commission, the most important noted up to date being that the health department be put under the same rules of operation as other departments of the city.

YOUNG HUNTER KILLED.

Hancock, Mich., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The victim of the first hunting fatality in Gogebic county this fall, Gustaf Sippola, a 17-year-old boy, is dead at Wakefield. The youth, while standing on a stump, his shotgun slipped from his grasp and was discharged. The shot made a gaping wound, which caused death within twenty minutes.

DESERTER SURRENDERS.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Haunted by the feeling that he was under constant surveillance, James Hayes, a deserter from Uncle Sam's army, surrendered himself to Chief of Police Frank of Ironwood, and has been turned over to the military authorities at Fort Snelling, Minn. Enlisting at Peoria, Ill., Sept. 22, 1905, and assigned to Troup C, Eighth cavalry, Hayes deserted at Jefferson barracks, Mo., Jan. 11, 1906.

HONEYMOON OF G. S. BEST RUDELY INTERRUPTED BY HIS ARREST FOR BIGAMY

Man Well Known in Duluth in Hands of Police.

Arrested in Frisco on Eve of Departure With Bride.

Says There is No Foundation for Charge or Arrest.

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—The honeymoon of George S. Best, an actor, formerly connected with the Kolb & Dill company, was rudely nipped in the bud yesterday afternoon by Detectives Ryan, O'Dea and Goff, who arrested him at the ferry depot while he was attending to the checking of his trunks to Chicago. He was taken into custody and locked up at the city prison pending the arrival of a warrant from Los Angeles charging him with bigamy. His bride of ten days, a daughter of C. W. Fleming, manager of the American Type Foundry in Los Angeles, departed in tears with her father on the afternoon train for the South, weeping and swearing undying constancy and devotion for her actor husband.

The chief of police received a telegram from Los Angeles to the effect that a warrant had been issued at the instance of another wife of Best, who resided in that city, charging him with bigamy and asking that Best be taken into custody pending the arrival of a constable with the warrant.

Detective Goff took charge of Best, while Mrs. Best, tearful and apprehensive, leading by a leash a pet fox terrier, followed her husband and the detectives.

C. W. Fleming, father of the bride,

SPLENDID LOT OF ATHLETES

Will Compete in Indoor Championship Tourney in New York.

New York, Oct. 25.—A splendid lot of athletes from all parts of the country will compete in the national indoor championship of the Amateur Athletic union at Madison Square Garden tonight and tomorrow night.

An interesting event of the meet is the 600-yard, run in which Melvin Sheppard, the phenomenal runner of the Irish-American Athletic club will meet Frank Sheehan of Boston, J. Bromilow, Charles Bacon, W. Mackay of Canada, and other well known middle distance runners. Sheehan won the junior half-mile championship at the Jamestown exposition and forced Sheppard to the utmost in the senior half mile the next day.

UTES SUBDUED.

Indian Police Avert Threatened Outbreak at Cheyenne River Reservation.

Pierre, S. D., Oct. 25.—Reports from the Cheyenne River Indian reservation say that the threatened outbreak of the Ute Indians was controlled before dark last night by the Indian police of the reservation. The Utes yesterday showed signs of starting serious trouble and they soon became so threatening that the officers in charge called for troops to control the uneasy redskins. These Utes are the ones who last year broke away from their reservation in Utah and traveled overland through Wyoming, causing uneasiness to the settlers and much worry to troops that were detailed to follow them. After a chase of several hundred miles the Utes agreed to settle down, if they were not sent back to Utah. The Indians were finally placed in the Cheyenne reservation and they have been peaceful until yesterday.

EVANGELIST MAY DEBATE.

"Skeptics" Accept Challenge to Discuss Existence of Creator.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Two challenges asking that he participate in a public debate upon the existence of God, heaven and hell were sent to Dr. R. A. Torrey, the evangelist. Both originated in the Independent Religious society. M. M. Mangassarian, head of the society, in response sent to advertisements in which Dr. Torrey asked all skeptics to "meet" him, requested a public discussion rather than a private interview. The second challenge, forwaded by H. H. Baker of the Independent society, mentioned several of the subjects which should be discussed.

PATRICK MALONEY

Has Been Appointed Postmaster at Alborn, St. Louis County.

Washington, Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following Minnesota postmasters have been appointed: Alborn, St. Louis county., Patrick Maloney, vice F. A. Trolander, resigned; Burtrum, Todd counay, Frank W. Wilson, vice C. H. Burchy, resigned.

IN CHARGE OF PLAGUE

Government Comes to the Assistance of Seattle.

State and City Will Supply Amply Funds and Men.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 25.—Surgeon General Wyman's wire to Governor Meade was received yesterday, notifying the governor that Dr. Cofer of the United States public health and marine hospital service would take charge of the bubonic plague situation on Puget Sound. Dr. Cofer has had experience with the disease in Honolulu. The surgeon general intimated that the department would supply all the professional service, but that the expense for labor and material would have to be borne by the local authorities. In reply, a telegram, signed by Governor Meade and William Hickman Moore, mayor of Seattle, was sent to Washington, saying:

"The state of Washington and the city of Seattle will supply the United States public health and marine hospital service with all the men, money and material necessary for the immediate suppression and eradication of bubonic plague within its boundaries."

The death of a white woman, Agnes Osborne, under circumstances that point to bubonic plague, is being investigated. Her brother, Ernest A. Osborne, was a city patrolman, in the Oriental district. He became ill Oct. 5, and died Oct. 13. Three days later a sister, Lydia M. Osborne, became ill, and the same day Charles O. Eddy, the undertakenr's assistant who laid out the brother, was also overcome. Eddy died on the 18th and the sister on the 19th. On Oct. 21 a second sister, Agnes, became ill and she died yesterday. The chain of fatalities came to the notice of the board of health yesterday afternoon, and laboratory tests point to bubonic plague as the cause of the death in the last instance, although the doctors give only a provisional diagnosis.

MANY PEOPLE MAY DIE OF EXPOSURE

Families Rendered Homeless by Earthquake, in Serious Straits.

Rome, Oct. 25.—Little additional news was received here this morning from the districts of Calabria, which were devastated by earth shocks during the evening of Oct. 23. The bad weather continues in the South, and it is feared that many persons are likely to lose their lives as the result of exposure, fear of a repetition of the earthquakes preventing them from returning to the villages. Many of the homeless people have erected tents, or are living under other temporary coverings. A few fresh shocks were experienced yesterday, but no further damage has been reported. The pope has sent supplies of money to the clergy of Calabria for the relief of their suffering parishioners, and has ordered that the churches be kept open day and night for the use of the homeless. In addition to the funds sent by the pontiff, the government has forwarded $20,000 to the Calabrian authorities for use in the relief work, and has taken every other step possible to help the sufferers.

WAS GIVEN SCARE.

Traveling Man Faints on Street and Can't Find Pocketbook.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Probably J. L. Treston, a traveling salesman, registered at the West hotel, was the most excited man in Minneapolis for a time yesterday. Treston fainted on Nicollet avenue at an early hour, and upon recovering found that a wallet, containing a railroad ticket and several hundred dollars in bills, and which he declared he had in an inside pocket before his fainting spell, was missing.

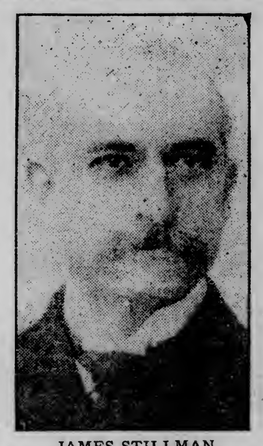

The matter was at once reported to the police and for a time the officers believed that a bold daylight robbery had occurred in the very heart of the downtown district. Two detectives accompanied Mr. Treston back to his apartments at the West and almost the first thing they sighted after entering the room was the missing wallet lying on the dresser. Mr. Treston then remembered that he had left it there before going onto the street.

DON'T BLAME PRESIDENT, BUT FINANCIERS---BRYAN.

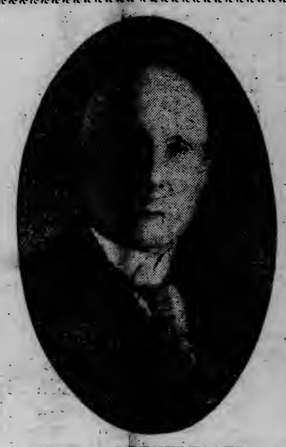

Binghamton, N. Y., Oct. 25.—W. J. Bryan stopped in this city on his way to Oswego. Speaking of the financial situation, Mr. Bryan said:

"I notice that one of the officers of a bank that closed its doors Wednesday attributes it to the president. That is not the reason. Don't blame the sheriff, but blame the horsethief. Don't blame the officials who make and enforce the laws, but blame the criminals who make the laws necessary. Blame the unscrupulous wealth that has exploited a whole nation."

THREE MEN WHOSE PROMPT ACTION RELIEVED FINANCIAL SITUATION

JAMES STILLMAN.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN.

The quick action of these prominent men in coming to the assistance of troubled concerns in New York had the effect of rapidly calming the situation and restoring confidence. Morgan threw the powerful influence of his great banking concern into the scale; Rockefeller deposited an even $10,000,000 where it would do the most good, and James Stillman, president of the National City bank, backed by the Standard Oil interests, used all his energies to unravel the monetary tangles.

SUCCESS OF THE RELIEF MEASURES ADOPTED IN NEW YORK IS APPARENT

A Much Calmer Tone Prevails Everywhere and No Further Trouble is Feared by Financial Interests.

A Few More Small Institutions Forced to Suspend, But They Have No Affect on General Situation.

New York, Oct. 25.—A much calmer tone was apparent in the business circles this morning. The success of the relief measures undertaken yesterday by J. P. Morgan, John D. Rockefeller and other financiers, together with the serenity with which the officials of the Trust Company of America met the run of depositors on that institution, gave great encouragement to bankers and business men generally that no further trouble was to be feared. The $25,000,000 made up by the pool, headed by Mr. Morgan, which was sent into the stock market yesterday afternoon, is believed to have given permanent relief to the brokers who were in need of funds with which to carry the stocks bought and held on margins for the customers.

Last night passed without any series of conferences of bankers with each other, and with Secretary Cortelyou, which were held until late hours on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, except for an informal meeting at Mr. Morgan's house. Secretary Cortelyou attended the dinner of the Graduate club, of which he is vice president, and made an address in which, after discussing at some length the objects of the club and its affairs, he made a brief reference to financial matters. The secretary said:

"We are having a trying experience, but with its embarrassment I find much faith in the general stability of business, strengthened by the examples I have seen of high courage and splendid devotion to the public welfare shown by many men of great influence in the commercial and industrial life of this city. Weak places have been fortified, but what is better, those of evil influence have been scourged from their positions and the determination to carry this work forward will have a far reaching influence in restoring public confidence."

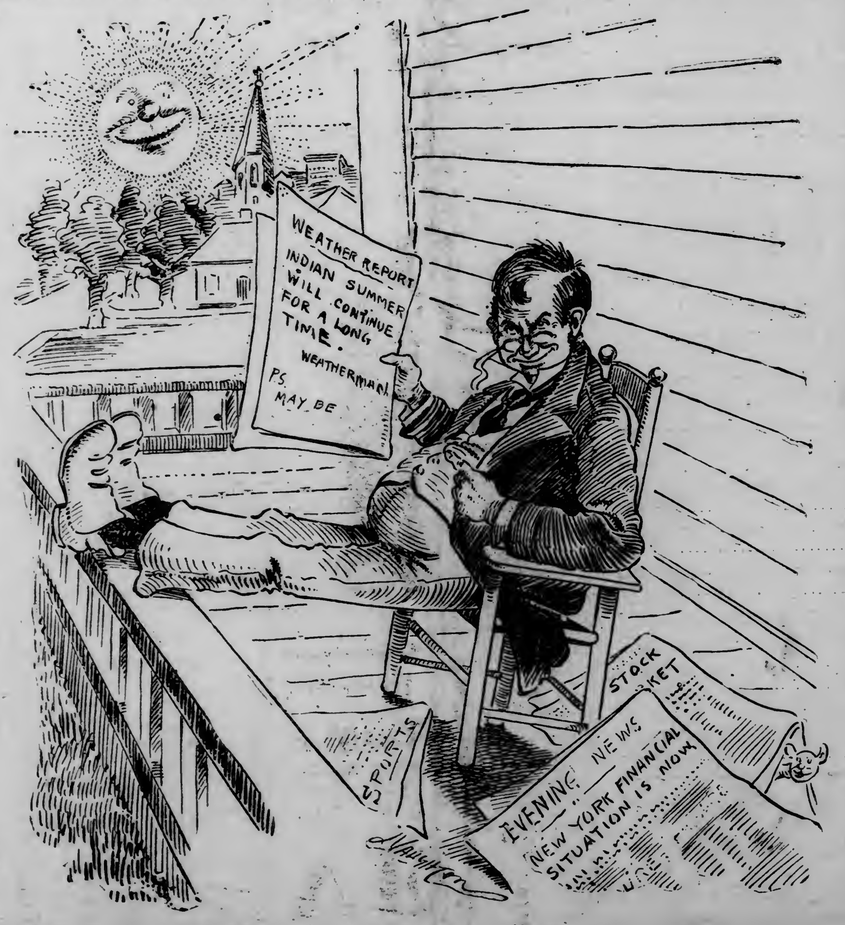

Announcement was made this morning that the United States Exchange, a small institution located in the Harlem district of the city, would not open for business today. The bank has only a little more than $500,000 on deposit, did an unconspicuous business and the announcement that it would not open for business was entirely without effect.

There were lines of depositors waiting this morning in front of the Trust Company of America, and at the banking office of the Lincoln Trust company up town. Some of those in line at the Trust Company of America had been there all night.

First advices from London today were

THIEVES GRAB $5,000 IN THE PHILADELPHIA SUB-TREASURY; ARE CAUGHT

The Money Was Being Paid Out to a Bank Teller.

Seized by Men, Who Made Quick Dash From Building.

Hotly Pursued, They Throw Funds Under a Street Car.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—Two men walked into the sub-treasury here this morning, grabbed $5,000 that was being paid out to a national bank teller, and started to run from the building. Clerks and others gave chase, and the two men were so hotly pursued that they threw their money under a street car. Both men were captured and are now in the city jail. One of them carried a revolver. The money was in notes and was all recovered.

ROAD CRUEL TO CATTLE

Government Brings Suit Against the Southern Pacific.

Would Recover $16,500 for Violations of Act of Congress.

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—Thirty-three suits against the Southern Pacific has been filed in the United States circuit court by United States District Attorney Devlin at the request of Attorney General Bonaparte. The suits were brought to recover $500 in each case, or a total of $16,500 for violating an act of congress to prevent cruelty to animals in transit on the cars. United States Marshal Elliott reported yesterday that the process in the suits had been served upon Manager Calvin, and the clerk of the circuit court then took off the seal of secrecy, which had been maintained since July 31, when the first action was taken in the matter, because of a peculiar rule imposed by Judge W. W. Morrow.

The complaints charge that on thirty-three different occasions the Southern Pacific company confined cattle in the cars thirty-six hours without rest for food or water. The law limits such confinement to twenty-eight hours at the most.

SUDDEN DEATH IN AITKIN HOTEL

Taly Tharlason, Minneapolis Business Man, Dies From Apoplexy.

Aitkin, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Taly Tharlson, a Minneapolis business man, was found dead in his room at the Willard hotel, here, last night. His home was at 2229 Lyndale avenue north, Minneapolis, and until very recently he had been in the commission business at Central market. Some time ago he bought a tract of land at Sandy lake, in Aitkin county, and had come up to look over the property. He was to have taken the steamer Irene up river, but went to his room at the hotel, and was not seen afterward until he was found dead. It was evidently a case of apoplexy. The coroner held an inquest today. Mr. Tharlson's brother-in-law from Minneapolis, is here to take charge of the remains.

MRS. SMALL SERIOUSLY ILL.

Relapse Alleged to be Result of Worry Over Husband's Suspension.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Sylvester J. Small, wife of the deposed president of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, is critically ill at the family residence, 6603 Evans avenue. She suffered an attack of heart disease Wednesday and was unconscious for two hours. At midnight she rallied. Mr. Small asserted the relapse occurred as a result of worry over his suspension from the presidency of the Telegraphers' union. He added that his enemies in the union had not only accomplished his downfall, but that they were "murdering my wife by slow degrees."

ONE HUNDRED MASONS GET THIRTY-THIRD DEGREE

Washington, Oct. 25.—Interest in yesterday's proceedings of the supreme council of Scottish rite masons, southern jurisdiction, centered in the election of members to the thirty-third degree and as knight commanders of the court of honor. One hundred masons were elected to the thirty-third degree, among whom were:

Iowa—Upton Delancey, Louis Block, Horatio Frederick, Charles Henry McNider, Sigmund Schmein.

Montana—Owen Lincoln Dillenback, Elmer Josiah Carter.

NINETEEN BRIDAL COUPLES ON STEAMER.

New York, Oct. 25.—Nineteen bridal couples returned from their honeymoon yesterday on the Bermudian, from Bermuda. This is a favorite trip to newlyweds, owing to the climate of the "Lilly Isle," and also the short time required to make the tour of the 365 little islands of the group. The Bermudian is known as the "bridal boat."

They came from all parts of the country, and included Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bratton of Milwaukee.

IS NOT GOOD DIPLOMACY

Says Japanese of Sending Fleet to the Pacific.

New York, Oct. 25.—Dr. Louis L. Seaman, ex-surgeon major, U. S. A., who was with the Japanese force, both naval and military during the Russo-Japanese war, has received a letter from Count Okuma, the Japanese progressive leader, in which Count Okuma said that the sending of the Atlantic fleet to the Pacific was not good diplomacy.

"Foreign newspapers," Count Okuma wrote, "are too pessimistic. The Japanese are convinced that there will be no war. Every case like the San Francisco incident is sure to have a bad effect. They think that the trouble is due to the state's sovereignty principle in the United States. The power of the states is too great. They are too independent. The sending of the Atlantic fleet to the Pacific is not good diplomacy."

WILL SURPASS THE LUSITANIA

New Cunarder, Mauretania, Expected to Excel Sister Ship.

Liverpool, Oct. 25.—The new Cunarder, Mauretania, now the finest and longest ship afloat (she is five feet longer than her sister ship, the Lusitnia) has arrived here, after having cruised around the coast of Scotland from Wallsend-on-Tyne, where she was built by Swan & Hunter. Her builders and officers expect that the Mauretania will surpass the "queen of the seas," the Lusitania, in speed.

The Mauretania's speed varied from nineteen to twenty-two knots for the 750 from the Tyne to the Mersey. Only three-fourths of the engine power was employed.

She went into drydock here for cleaning and repainting of the hull. Then she will go to the Clyde for her official speep trial.

Nothing has yet been decided as to when the Mauretania will sail on her maiden trip to New York, but probably she will start toward the end of November.

METHODS OF EXPRESSMEN

To be Investigated by Examiner for Commerce Commission.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 25.—Special Examiner G. N. Brown of the interstate commerce commission, is in Omaha preparing to take testimony in the investigation into the methods of the express companies, which begins in Omaha Monday.

The hearing is the outcome of a complaint filed with the interstate commerce commission by Secretary Branch of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association, alleging that the express companies engage in buying and selling fruit and other commodities in competition with fruit jobbers. The hearing will be the first one in the country at which testimony will have been taken.

Man Well Known in Duluth in Hands of Police.

Arrested in Frisco on Eve of Departure With Bride.

Says There is No Foundation for Charge or Arrest.

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—The honeymoon of George S. Best, an actor, formerly connected with the Kolb & Dill company, was rudely nipped in the bud yesterday afternoon by Detectives Ryan, O'Dea and Goff, who arrested him at the ferry depot while he was attending to the checking of his trunks to Chicago. He was taken into custody and locked up at the city prison pending the arrival of a warrant from Los Angeles charging him with bigamy. His bride of ten days, a daughter of C. W. Fleming, manager of the American Type Foundry in Los Angeles, departed in tears with her father on the afternoon train for the South, weeping and swearing undying constancy and devotion for her actor husband.

The chief of police received a telegram from Los Angeles to the effect that a warrant had been issued at the instance of another wife of Best, who resided in that city, charging him with bigamy and asking that Best be taken into custody pending the arrival of a constable with the warrant.

Detective Goff took charge of Best, while Mrs. Best, tearful and apprehensive, leading by a leash a pet fox terrier, followed her husband and the detectives.

SPLENDID LOT OF ATHLETES

Will Compete in Indoor Championship Tourney in New York.

New York, Oct. 25.—A splendid lot of athletes from all parts of the country will compete in the national indoor championship of the Amateur Athletic union at Madison Square Garden tonight and tomorrow night.

An interesting event of the meet is the 600-yard, run in which Melvin Sheppard, the phenomenal runner of the Irish-American Athletic club will meet Frank Sheehan of Boston. J. Bromilow, Charles Bacon, W. Mackay of Canada, and other well known middle distance runners. Sheehan won the junior half-mile championship at the Jamestown exposition and forced Sheppard to the utmost in the senior half mile the next day.

UTES SUBDUED.

Indian Police Avert Threatened Outbreak at Cheyenne River Reservation.

Pierre, S. D., Oct. 25.—Reports from the Cheyenne River Indian reservation say that the threatened outbreak of the Ute Indians was controlled before dark last night by the Indian police of the reservation. The Utes yesterday showed signs of starting serious trouble and they soon became so threatening that the officers in charge called for troops to control the uneasy redskins. These Utes are the ones who last year broke away from their reservation in Utah and traveled overland through Wyoming, causing uneasiness to the settlers and much worry to troops that were detailed to follow them. After a chase of several hundred miles the Utes agreed to settle down, if they were not sent back to Utah. The Indians were finally placed in the Cheyenne reservation and they have been peaceful until yesterday.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Two challenges asking that he participate in a public debate upon the existence of God, heaven and hell were sent to Dr. R. A. Torrey, the evangelist. Both originated in the Independent Religious society. M. M. Mangassarian, head of the society, in response sent to advertisements in which Dr. Torrey asked all skeptics to "meet" him, requested a public discussion rather than a private interview. The second challenge, forwaded by H. H. Baker of the Independent society, mentioned several of the subjects which should be discussed.

IN CHARGE OF PLAGUE

Government Comes to the Assistance of Seattle.

State and City Will Supply Amply Funds and Men.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 25.—Surgeon General Wyman's wire to Governor Meade was received yesterday, notifying the governor that Dr. Cofer of the United States public health and marine hospital service would take charge of the bubonic plague situation on Puget Sound. Dr. Cofer has had experience with the disease in Honolulu. The surgeon general intimated that the department would supply all the professional service, but that the expense for labor and material would have to be borne by the local authorities. In reply, a telegram, signed by Governor Meade and William Hickman Moore, mayor of Seattle, was sent to Washington, saying:

"The state of Washington and the city of Seattle will supply the United States public health and marine hospital service with all the men, money and material necessary for the immediate suppression and eradication of bubonic plague within its boundaries."

The death of a white woman, Agnes Osborne, under circumstances that point to bubonic plague, is being investigated. Her brother, Ernest A. Osborne, was a city patrolman, in the Oriental district. He became ill Oct. 5, and died Oct. 13. Three days later a sister, Lydia M. Osborne, became ill, and the same day Charles O. Eddy, the undertakenr's assistant who laid out the brother, was also overcome. Eddy died on the 18th and the sister on the 19th. On Oct. 21 a second sister, Agnes, became ill and she died yesterday. The chain of fatalities came to the notice of the board of health yesterday afternoon, and laboratory tests point to bubonic plague as the cause of the death in the last instance, although the doctors give only a provisional diagnosis.

MANY PEOPLE MAY DIE OF EXPOSURE

Families Rendered Homeless by Earthquake, in Serious Straits.

Rome, Oct. 25.—Little additional news was received here this morning from the districts of Calabria, which were devastated by earth shocks during the evening of Oct. 23. The bad weather continues in the South, and it is feared that many persons are likely to lose their lives as the result of exposure, fear of a repetition of the earthquakes preventing them from returning to the villages. Many of the homeless people have erected tents, or are living under other temporary coverings. A few fresh shocks were experienced yesterday, but no further damage has been reported. The pope has sent supplies of money to the clergy of Calabria for the relief of their suffering parishioners, and has ordered that the churches be kept open day and night for the use of the homeless. In addition to the funds sent by the pontiff, the government has forwarded $20,000 to the Calabrian authorities for use in the relief work, and has taken every other step possible to help the sufferers.

WAS GIVEN SCARE.

Traveling Man Faints on Street and Can't Find Pocketbook.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Probably J. L. Treston, a traveling salesman, registered at the West hotel, was the most excited man in Minneapolis for a time yesterday. Treston fainted on Nicollet avenue at an early hour, and upon recovering found that a wallet, containing a railroad ticket and several hundred dollars in bills, and which he declared he had in an inside pocket before his fainting spell, was missing.

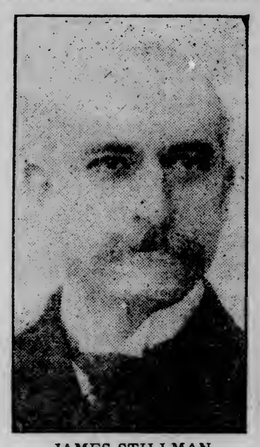

The matter was at once reported to the police and for a time the officers believed that a bold daylight robbery had occurred in the very heart of the downtown district. Two detectives, accompanied Mr. Treston back to his apartments at the West and almost the first thing they sighted after entering the room was the missing wallet lying on the dresser. Mr. Treston then remembered that he had left it there before going onto the street.

DON'T BLAME PRESIDENT, BUT FINANCIERS---BRYAN.

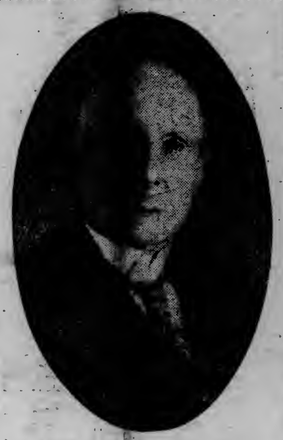

Binghamton, N. Y., Oct. 25.—W. J. Bryan stopped in this city on his way to Oswego. Speaking of the financial situation, Mr. Bryan said:

"I notice that one of the officers of a bank that closed its doors Wednesday attributes it to the president. That is not the reason. Don't blame the sheriff, but blame the horsethief. Don't blame the officials who make and enforce the laws, but blame the criminals who make the laws necessary. Blame the unscrupulous wealth that has exploited a whole nation."

THREE MEN WHOSE PROMPT ACTION RELIEVED FINANCIAL SITUATION

JAMES STILLMAN.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN.

The quick action of these prominent men in coming to the assistance of troubled concerns in New York had the effect of rapidly calming the situation and restoring confidence. Morgan threw the powerful influence of his great banking concern into the scale; Rockefeller deposited an even $15,000,000 where it would do the most good, and James Stillman, president of the National City bank, backed by the Standard Oil interests, used all his energies to unravel the monetary tangles.

SUCCESS OF THE RELIEF MEASURES ADOPTED IN NEW YORK IS APPARENT

A Few More Small Institutions Forced to Suspend, But They Have No Affect on General Situation.

New York, Oct. 25.—A much calmer tone was apparent in the business circles this morning. The success of the relief measures undertaken yesterday by J. P. Morgan, John D. Rockefeller and other financiers, together with the serenity with which the officials of the Trust Company of America met the run of depositors on that institution, gave great encouragement to bankers and business men generally that no further trouble was to be feared. The $25,000,000 made up by the pool, headed by Mr. Morgan, which was sent into the stock market yesterday afternoon, is believed to have given permanent relief to the brokers who were in need of funds with which to carry the stocks bought and held on margins for the customers.

Last night passed without any series of conferences of bankers with each other, and with Secretary Cortelyou, which were held until late hours on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, except for an informal meeting at Mr. Morgan's house. Secretary Cortelyou attended the dinner of the Graduate club, of which he is vice president, and made an address in which, after discussing at some length the objects of the club and its affairs, he made a brief reference to financial matters. The secretary said:

"We are having a trying experience, but with its embarrassment I find much faith in the general stability of business, strengthened by the examples I have seen of high courage and splendid devotion to the public welfare shown by many men of great influence in the commercial and industrial life of this city. Weak places have been fortified, but what is better, those of evil influence have been scourged from their positions and the determination to carry this work forward will have a far reaching influence in restoring public confidence."

Announcement was made this morning that the United States Exchange, a small institution located in the Harlem district of the city, would not open for business today. The bank has only a little more than $500,000 on deposit, did an unconspicuous business and the announcement that it would not open for business was entirely without effect.

There were lines of depositors waiting this morning in front of the Trust Company of America, and at the banking office of the Lincoln Trust company up town. Some of those in line at the Trust Company of America had been there all night.

THIEVES GRAB $5,000 IN THE PHILADELPHIA SUB-TREASURY; ARE CAUGHT

The Money Was Being Paid Out to a Bank Teller.

Seized by Men, Who Made Quick Dash From Building.

Hotly Pursued, They Throw Funds Under a Street Car.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—Two men walked into the sub-treasury here this morning, grabbed $5,000 that was being paid out to a national bank teller, and started to run from the building. Clerks and others gave chase, and the two men were so hotly pursued that they threw their money under a street car. Both men were captured and are now in the city jail. One of them carried a revolver. The money was in notes and was all recovered.

ROAD CRUEL TO CATTLE

Would Recover $16,500 for Violations of Act of Congress.

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—Thirty-three suits against the Southern Pacific has been filed in the United States circuit court by United States District Attorney Devlin at the request of Attorney General Bonaparte. The suits were brought to recover $500 in each case, or a total of $16,500 for violating an act of congress to prevent cruelty to animals in transit on the cars. United States Marshal Elliott reported yesterday that the process in the suits had been served upon Manager Calvin, and the clerk of the circuit court then took off the seal of secrecy, which had been maintained since July 31, when the first action was taken in the matter, because of a peculiar rule imposed by Judge W. W. Morrow.

The complaints charge that on thirty-three different occasions the Southern Pacific company confined cattle in the cars thirty-six hours without rest for food or water. The law limits such confinement to twenty-eight hours at the most.

Taly Tharlason, Minneapolis Business Man, Dies From Apoplexy.

Aitkin, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Taly Tharlson, a Minneapolis business man, was found dead in his room at the Willard hotel, here, last night. His home was at 2229 Lyndale avenue north, Minneapolis, and until very recently he had been in the commission business at Central market. Some time ago he bought a tract of land at Sandy lake, in Aitkin county, and had come up to look over the property. He was to have taken the steamer Irene up river, but went to his room at the hotel, and was not seen afterward until he was found dead. It was evidently a case of apoplexy. The coroner held an inquest today. Mr. Tharlson's brother-in-law from Minneapolis, is here to take charge of the remains.

MRS. SMALL SERIOUSLY ILL.

Relapse Alleged to be Result of Worry Over Husband's Suspension.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Sylvester J. Small, wife of the deposed president of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, is critically ill at the family residence, 6503 Evans avenue. She suffered an attack of heart disease Wednesday and was unconscious for two hours. At midnight she rallied. Mr. Small asserted the relapse occurred as a result of worry over his suspension from the presidency of the Telegraphers' union. He added that his enemies in the union had not only accomplished his downfall, but that they were "murdering my wife by slow degrees."

ONE HUNDRED MASONS GET THIRTY-THIRD DEGREE

Washington, Oct. 25.—Interest in yesterday's proceedings of the supreme council of Scottish rite masons, southern jurisdiction, centered in the election of members to the tairty-third degree and as knight commanders of the court of honor. One hundred masons were elected to the thirty-third degree, among whom were:

Iowa—Upton Delancey, Louis Block, Horatio Frederick, Charles Henry McNider, Sigmund Schmein.

Montana—Owen Lincoln Dillenback, Elmer Josiah Carter.

NINETEEN BRIDAL COUPLES ON STEAMER.

Would Recover $16,500 for Violations of Act of Congress.

San Francisco, Oct. 25.—Thirty-three suits against the Southern Pacific has been filed in the United States circuit court by United States District Attorney Devlin at the request of Attorney General Bonaparte. The suits were brought to recover $500 in each case, or a total of $16,500 for violating an act of congress to prevent cruelty to animals in transit on the cars. United States Marshal Elliott reported yesterday that the process in the suits had been served upon Manager Calvin, and the clerk of the circuit court then took off the seal of secrecy, which had been maintained since July 31, when the first action was taken in the matter, because of a peculiar rule imposed by Judge W. W. Morrow.

The complaints charge that on thirty-three different occasions the Southern Pacific company confined cattle in the cars thirty-six hours without rest for food or water. The law limits such confinement to twenty-eight hours at the most.

Taly Tharlason, Minneapolis Business Man, Dies From Apoplexy.

Aitkin, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Taly Tharlson, a Minneapolis business man, was found dead in his room at the Willard hotel, here, last night. His home was at 2229 Lyndale avenue north, Minneapolis, and until very recently he had been in the commission business at Central market. Some time ago he bought a tract of land at Sandy lake, in Aitkin county, and had come up to look over the property. He was to have taken the steamer Irene up river, but went to his room at the hotel, and was not seen afterward until he was found dead. It was evidently a case of apoplexy. The coroner held an inquest today. Mr. Tharlson's brother-in-law from Minneapolis, is here to take charge of the remains.

MRS. SMALL SERIOUSLY ILL.

Relapse Alleged to be Result of Worry Over Husband's Suspension.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Sylvester J. Small, wife of the deposed president of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, is critically ill at the family residence, 6503 Evans avenue. She suffered an attack of heart disease Wednesday and was unconscious for two hours. At midnight she rallied. Mr. Small asserted the relapse occurred as a result of worry over his suspension from the presidency of the Telegraphers' union. He added that his enemies in the union had not only accomplished his downfall, but that they were "murdering my wife by slow degrees."

ONE HUNDRED MASONS GET THIRTY-THIRD DEGREE

Washington, Oct. 25.—Interest in yesterday's proceedings of the supreme council of Scottish rite masons, southern jurisdiction, centered in the election of members to the thirty-third degree and as knight commanders of the court of honor. One hundred masons were elected to the thirty-third degree, among whom were:

Iowa—Upton Delancey, Louis Block, Horatio Frederick, Charles Henry McNider, Sigmund Schmein.

Montana—Owen Lincoln Dillenback, Elmer Josiah Carter.

NINETEEN BRIDAL COUPLES ON STEAMER.

New York, Oct. 25.—Nineteen bridal couples returned from their honeymoon yesterday on the Bermudian, from Bermuda. This is a favorite trip to newlyweds, owing to the climate of the "Lilly Isle," and also the short time required to make the tour of the 365 little islands of the group. The Bermudian is known as the "bridal boat."

They came from all parts of the country, and included Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bratton of Milwaukee.

IS NOT GOOD DIPLOMACY

Says Japanese of Sending Fleet to the Pacific.

New York, Oct. 25.—Dr. Louis L. Seaman, ex-surgeon major, U. S. A., who was with the Japanese force, both naval and military during the Russo-Japanese war, has received a letter from Count Okuma, the Japanese progressive leader, in which Count Okuma said that the sending of the Atlantic fleet to the Pacific was not good diplomacy.

"Foreign newspapers," Count Okuma wrote, "are too pessimistic. The Japanese are convinced that there will be no war. Every case like the San Francisco incident is sure to have a bad effect. They think that the trouble is due to the state's sovereignty principle in the United States. The power of the states is too great. They are too independent. The sending of the Atlantic fleet to the Pacific is not good diplomacy."

WILL SURPASS THE LUSITANIA

New Cunarder, Mauretania, Expected to Excel Sister Ship.

Liverpool, Oct. 25.—The new Cunarder, Mauretania, now the finest and longest ship afloat (she is five feet longer than her sister ship, the Lusitnia) has arrived here, after having cruised around the coast of Scotland from Wallsend-on-Tyne, where she was built by Swan & Hunter. Her builders and officers expect that the Mauretania will surpass the "queen of the seas," the Lusitania, in speed.

The Mauretania's speed varied from nineteen to twenty-two knots for the 750 from the Tyne to the Mersey. Only three-fourths of the engine power was employed.

She went into drydock here for cleaning and repainting of the hull. Then she will go to the Clyde for her official speed trial.

Nothing has yet been decided as to when the Mauretania will sail on her maiden trip to New York, but probably she will start toward the end of November.

METHODS OF EXPRESSMEN

To be Investigated by Examiner for Commerce Commission.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 25.—Special Examiner G. N. Brown of the interstate commerce commission, is in Omaha preparing to take testimony in the investigation into the methods of the express companies, which begins in Omaha Monday.

The hearing is the outcome of a complaint filed with the interstate commerce commission by Secretary Branch of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association, alleging that the express companies engage in buying and selling fruit and other commodities in competition with fruit jobbers. The hearing will be the first one in the country at which testimony will have been taken.

NO FURTHER BULLETINS.

IS URGED TO RUN AGAIN

Friends of Alderman Wilson Ask Him to Reconsider Decision.

Possible That He Will be Prevailed Upon to Do So.

The friends and constituents of Alderman Coryate S. Wilson do not propose to permit his retiring from active public life if a highly complimentary endorsement of his efficient work as a member of the city council, and a petition that he may again represent the First ward, will influence him to reconsider his decision to retire.

Ever since Mr. Wilson's announcement in The Herald to the effect that because of his business affairs, he would not again make the run for alderman, regrets have been freely expressed, and the alderman has been repeatedly importuned to reconsider his decision.

A petition was presented to him recently, signed by a number of the most influential men in the First ward, urging him to make the run for alderman again. The petition is a fine tribute to his efforts in the council, of which body he has been a faithful and efficient member for four years. The following extracts will give an idea of the earnestness of those framing the petition:

"Duluth is just entering upon a career which may be accelerated or retarded by the kind of municipal administration the city may have. The work of the common council is a very important branch of the municipal government. Your services during the past four years have, in our opinion, been of great public benefit, but we believe that the coming two years will offer opportunities for greater work.

"While there may be others in the ward who can, under other conditions, do the work that is to be done, we believe the ability and conscientious purpose which you have heretofore exhibited in the performance of your aldermanic duties, considered in connection with the fact that you are just completing four years of actual experience in the work, makes you the most competent man at this time to represent the ward."

Mr. Wilson is out of the city, and will not return until the first of next week, so that it was impossible to obtain a statement from him.

However, it is learned from those in close touch with the alderman, that he would like to shape his affairs so that he might again represent his ward in the council, and it is understood that he is seriously considering the matter at present.

An Old Settler's Opinion.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The following extract from a Mahnomen paper expresses my views on the subject of capital punishment, and I trust you will give it space in The Herald:

"An affecting scene took place in the district courtroom in Bemidji the other day. Two young men were led up before the venerable judge to have the sentence of death pronounced by the court. Under the weight of the awful responsibility imposed upon him by the law, the judge fell fainting from his seat. Restoratives were applied and after a time the judge resumed his seat, and spoke words to those young men that all who heard will not soon forget, and ending with 'when you will be taken out and hanged by the neck until you are dead, dead, dead; and may God have mercy on your soul.' Way back in the beginning of the old Book it is reported that God said 'Whosoever sheddeth man's blood, by man, shall his blood be shed.' We have never been able to believe that God ever said it. He has said: 'Thou shalt do no murder.' No one but God can give life, and we are profoundly convinced that no one but God should be permitted to take the life that He has given. A man of vicious tendencies should be separated from his fellows and placed where he can harm no one. After these young men have been killed by the violent hands of the law and their cold, mutilated bodies put away in the ground, what good has it all done? There are now four murders instead of two. We have gratified a murderous passion, we have wrecked our vengeance, we have bathed our hands in the blood of our brother, we have broken the law of God who said 'Thou shalt do no murder.' But have we accomplished any good thing? Have we made the world any better? Have we prevented any more crime, or lessened it in any degree? Deep down in our hearts we must answer no, No, NO. God hasten the time when human governments will no longer commit judicial murder." OLD SETTLER.

Two Bridge Builders Seriously Injured Near Valley City.

Valley City, N. D., Oct. 25.—What may prove to be a fatal double accident occurred here at the Northern Pacific bridge that is being constructed. Dan Wright and James Seldon were precipitated from the trestle work to the ground, seventy feet below, both injured considerably, the former perhaps fatally.

The men were working on a long steel girder which was being placed when a bolt supporting it broke and the men were thrown to the ground. It is considered miraculous that both of them were not instantly killed.

He owes wholesalers about $4,000, and the rest o his debts are with local men who have loaned him thousands of dollars.

DEBUTANTES TO BE SCARCE

Washington Society Will Have Few "Comings Out" of Note.

Washington, Oct. 25.—With Miss Ethel Roosevelt remaining in the school room under the tutelage of an English governess, the Baroness Elizabeth Rosen, daughter of the Russian ambassador, returning to Europe to make her debut at St. Petersburg, and Miss Helen Taft, only daughter of the secretary of war, going in for a college career in preference to a tour of the world and presentation to Washington society with all the eclat of a cabinet bud, the debutante ranks at the national capitol cease to be of national importance.

Mrs. Roosevelt never seriously contemplated introducing her young daughter until next season, when Ethel Roosevelt will be just in her 15th year, but Miss Ethel's name has gone abroad in the land and already many persons expect a repitition of the merry whirl that marked the entrance of the president's oldest daughter into society. In this expectation every one is bound to be disappointed. For the present Miss Roosevelt is totally unlike her brilliant and captivating half sister. Of a retiring disposition, extremely well educated, loving books, music and the arts, Miss Ethel cares little for society and does not make friends readily. She is, however, quite the beauty of the Roosevelt family and a charming girl, already greatly beloved by a small, well chosen circle of friends and schoolmates.

In returning to St. Petersburg to introduce their daughter, the Baron and Baroness Rosen are only following the traditions of their land, and, indeed, of most foreign lands. While the very marked fashion in which the Baroness Elizabeth has been guarded from all American influences and ideas has occasionally given offense to some well meaning American mothers who sought to include the little Russian in some juvenile company, most persons recognize and respect the right of the ambassador and his wife to bring up their daughter in their own way and have only the kindest feeling for this candidate for imperial favor, who will sail away for a year's absence Nov. 6 and will be formally presented at the czar's court in December.

Miss Taft's graduation from a fashionable school last June with the highest academic honors has inspired that very clever young woman with further ambition with the resuult that she is making a record at Bryn Mawr likely to equal that of her brother at Yale, where last year the secretary's eldest son carried of the honors of his class.

There will be debutantes, of course, twenty of them at least, several of them of more than local interest. Chief of the latter will be Miss Martha Bacon daughter of the assistant secretary of state, who is credited with having declined the post of ambassador to Berlin, because he and Mrs. Bacon had made all arrangements for presenting their daughter in Washington this winter. They have just taken a new house on Sixteenth street and will entertain extensively. Miss Bacon, through her family connection in New York and Boston, will also see something of the social life of those cities.

Miss Carol Newberry, daughter of the assistant secretary of the navy; Miss Constance Hoyt, daughter of the solicitor general, and Miss Eleanor Ridgely, daughter of the comptroller of the currency, are all candidates for social honors. Among the resident families there will be Miss Carrie Louise Munn, daughter of the late Charles A. Munn, formerly of Chicago, Miss Munn being perhaps the greatest heiress of this year's group of buds. Miss Youlee Noble, daughter of the late William B. Noble of this city, and granddaughter of the late Senator Youlee of Florida; Miss Elizabeth Parker, daughter of Representative Richard Wayne Parker, are two handsome buds likely to make good in the race for belleship.

Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana and his bride, who until last August was Miss Catherine Eddy of Chicago, have been passing a week in Washington on their way from New York to Indianapolis, the object of their stop being to secure a house for the coming winter. They left, however, without accomplishing this errand, because they refused absolutely to consider any residence not plentifully supplied open grates, the eloquent Indianian wanting literally a home and a fireside to complete his domestic happiness. Mrs. Beveridge looked particularly pretty, wore the smartest of Paris gowns and appeared quite as happy as her husband, who was radiant.

In returning to St. Petersburg to introduce their daughter, the Baron and Baroness Rosen are only following the traditions of their land, and, indeed, of most foreign lands. While the very marked fashion in which the Baroness Elizabeth has been guarded from all American influences and ideas has occasionally given offense to some well meaning American mothers who sought to include the little Russian in some juvenile coterie, most persons recognize and respect the right of the ambassador and his wife to bring up their daughter in their own way and have only the kindest feeling for this candidate for imperial favor, who will sail away for a year's absence Nov. 6 and will be formally presented at the czar's court in December.

Miss Taft's graduation from a fashionable school last June with the highest academic honors has inspired that very clever young woman with further ambition with the result that she is making a record at Bryn Mawr likely to equal that of her brother at Yale, where last year the secretary's oldest son carried of the honors of his class.

There will be debutantes, of course, twenty of them at least, several of them of more than local interest. Chief of the latter will be Miss Martha Bacon daughter of the assistant secretary of state, who is credited with having declined the post of ambassador to Berlin, because he and Mrs. Bacon had made all arrangements for presenting their daughter in Washington this winter. They have just taken a new house on Sixteenth street and will entertain extensively. Miss Bacon, through her family connection in New York and Boston, will also see something of the social life of those cities.

Miss Carol Newberry, daughter of the assistant secretary of the navy; Miss Constance Hoyt, daughter of the solicitor general, and Miss Eleanor Ridgely, daughter of the comptroller of the currency, are all candidates for social honors. Among the resident families there will be Miss Carrie Louise Munn, daughter of the late Charles A. Munn, formerly of Chicago, Miss Munn being perhaps the greatest heiress of this year's group of buds. Miss Youlee Noble, daughter of the late William B. Noble of this city, and granddaughter of the late Senator Youlee of Florida; Miss Elizabeth Parker, daughter of Representative Richard Wayne Parker, are two handsome buds likely to make good in the race for belleship.

Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana and his bride, who until last August was Miss Catherine Eddy of Chicago, have been passing a week in Washington on their way from New York to Indianapolis, the object of their stop being to secure a house for the coming winter. They left, however, without accomplishing this errand, because they refused absolutely to consider any residence not plentifully supplied open grates, the eloquent Indianian wanting literally a home and a fireside to complete his domestic happiness. Mrs. Beveridge looked particularly pretty, wore the smartest of Paris gowns and appeared quite as happy as her husband, who was radiant.

The long-wearing buttonholes in Cluett SHIRTS are constant reminders of unusual care and unusual quality in shirt construction. In white and exclusive color-fast fabrics. $1.50 and more.

MUST STAY SOBER.

Alf Cantie Dare Not Drink for Two Months.

Sixty days at the rock pile at hard labor will be the punishment meted out to Alf Cantie, should he take a drink and be caught at it. Judge Windom imposed a fine of $50 and costs, or sixty days on the hill today, and suspended sentence pending the good behavior of Cantie.

Cantie is a piano tuner by occupation, but for five weeks past he has been drinking heavily, until today he is in a pitiful condition physically, and his family in straightened circumstances because of his neglect, it is claimed by the police.

It is stated that for the past week Cantie has not shown up at home, and for a longer period neglected to furnish any support to the family.

HUNTER IS BIG ENOUGH

County Auditor Reluctant About Issuing Hunting Licenses to Minors.

Makes Exception in Case of a Local Youthful Giant.

What should be the minimum age of an applicant for a license in St. Louis county to hunt big game?

Deputy Auditor J. O. Walker says that, generally speaking, hunting licenses should not be issued to minors unless they intend to hunt with their parents or some other grown person, who will be responsible for their actions in handling a gun.

Mr. Walker's theory was given a hard jolt this morning, however, when R. B. Cameron of No. 17 Twentieth avenue west, applied for and secured a license.

Mr. Cameron is only 19 years old, but he is six feet tall and weighs 200 pounds.

Mr. Walker is forced to admit that he will have to make an exception to his ruling, in the case of Mr. Cameron, as he realizes the curious spectacle that would ensue if a minor six feet tall and weighing 200 pounds, should go out after a deer accompanied by an adult person to show him how to handle a gun.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Cameron feels himself perfectly competent to go hunting without the oversight of another person, and judging from his physique, the courthouse attaches are of the same opinion.

The total number of deer hunting licenses issued up to noon today was 690.

AGED WITNESS TESTIFIES

Another record was broken in the Macomber case, on trial in the district court, this morning, when Jacob Undine, an old resident of Duluth, was called as a witness by Warren Macomber, with a view of setting a certain date which the latter deems important in his efforts to establish his claim of lands in 59-41, and which is disputed by O. D. Kinney and others.

Mr. Undine is 86 years of age, and is the oldest witness by far that has ever been called in the district court in the present case, or any other, in the knowledge of the court officials.

A few days ago two witnesses for Mr. Macomber testified that they came to Duluth from Pike Lake, some time early in March, 1881; that they came in about the time Jacob Undine's house burned, Sunday, March 8, 1881.

It is understood that the plaintiff has several more witnesses to be called in rebuttal, and that a Mr. Smith from Ashland, who was a witness for the defendant several days ago, will be called as a rebuttal witness for the plaintiff, this afternoon. Indications today did not point to a speedy close of the trial.

BUSY WEEK IS REPORTED

Produce Dealers Enjoying Brisk Trade—Turkeys Coming In.

Butter a Trifle Lower—Eggs Unchanged in Price.

The week has been a snappy one in the produce market with a few material changes in prices and trade active in nearly every line of produce.

Butter took a drop the first of the week, prices being 1 cent lower in nearly all grades. Eggs ruled about the same as last week with the supply of fresh eggs dropping off and storage eggs appearing on the market.

Mutton is quoted a trifle lower this week, the shipments being heavy and quality good. Beef and pork show no changes over last week. Veal is a trifle easier and lard is quoted some higher.

The shipments of live poultry are very heavy and prices easy. Dressed poultry has been quoted a little off this week from last week's prices.

Turkeys will be on the market early next month and judging from the outlook every one can afford a Thanksgiving turkey. The supply will be plentiful and prices reasonable.

Some splendid specimens of York state apples are being shown this week at prices ranging from $5 to $5.50 per barrel. They will not be any lower this fall and the wise ones are laying in their winter supply now, as the supply is not equal to the demand.

The European crop of apples is a practical failure and the export trade will be large. Buyers representing European markets are now in New York picking up everything available for foreign shipment.

Nearly every boat arriving at this port brings shipments of New York apples and the commission men consider themselves fortunate in having placed their orders early. Baldwins, Greenings, Northern Spys and Pipins are the prevailing varieties now on the market.

Quinces and preserving pears have been quite plentiful, but their day is about over. A few crab apples made their appearance this week from the West and have sold at from $2.50 to $3 per box. The market was about cleaned out on crab apples, but these latter arrivals are exceptionally nice and found a ready market here.

Concord grapes from York state were never better than now. They are sold at from 30 to 35 cents a basket.

Last week a few fancy canteloupe were shipped in from California, but they are about over and the last shipments were very high in price.

Fall nuts are beginning to arrive. Hickory nuts, chestnuts and a few butternuts with bushels of popcorn, remind one of long winter evenings, a cheerful fire and these popular auxiliaries to spending such evenings pleasantly.

Hickory nuts are bringing $2.50 a bushel, while chestnuts are sold at 4½ cents per pound. Popcorn is quoted at 15 cents per pound.

New figs and dates are recent popular arrivals and are very nice this year. Prices show little change over last season and the stock is said to be exceptionally good.

Grape fruit from Florida furnishes a very appetizing breakfast fruit for those who can afford it.

Fall roots and vegetables were never better in quality in most varieties. Onions and cabbage will be scarce, the wet weather having interfered with the maturing of each and prices are high. Onions are quoted at from $1.75 to $2 per 10 pounds and cabbages are bringing $1 per 100 pounds.

Commission men realize that Halloween night is not far distant and that the boys and girls will want some pumpkins to make into "Jack o'lanterns." They have laid in a good supply and at reasonable prices, $1.50 a dozen. Pumpkins for cooking purposes are exceptionally sweet this year and the market well supplied.

Cranberries and sweet potatoes are more plentiful this week than last, with prices about the same. The shipments will be even heavier another week.

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup is a safe, sure and prompt remedy for coughs and colds. Sold by all druggists.

NO BREAK IS IN SIGHT

Delightful Indian Summer Weather is Still in Prospect.

Duluth has Been Getting Its Full Share This Year.

Forecaster Richardson of the Duluth weather bureau says that at present there is no sign of a break in the ideal Indian summer weather which Northern Minnesota is enjoying. There will be more of it tomorrow and probably still more the next day.

There are minor disturbance over the extreme Southwest and also the Northwest sections of the country, but these are not likely to have any bearing on the character of the Duluth weather.

For more than two weeks now, Duluth has been experiencing this wonderful run of Indian summer. Since Oct. 11 there has not been a cloudy day and during all this time the temperature has averaged between forty and fifty degrees. One day it went as high as seventy, and another day the mercury was as low as thirty-six degrees. The nights have been colder the temperature ranging around the freezing point.

The term "Indian summer" dates back to American colonial days when it was coined by the early settlers to denote the period when the Indians began to get in their supply of foods and fuel to last through the winter. The Indians failed to do this during the real summer, but after the first severe frost were prompted to do so during the warm, hazy weather which followed.

Indian summer is an indefinitable season as to its date and character and it often fails to come at all, but Duluth is certainly getting its fair share this year.

THE GREAT WHITE WAY

Made William Jones of South Dakota Too Happy.

When William Jones, hailing from South Dakota, strolled down Superior street last night, the bright lights looked strange and fascinating to him. He took aboard a few Bowery schooners, and the lights grew brighter and their dance merrier, until William opened his mouth, and "Only in the Way" bubbled forth with somewhat questionable harmony, and the A just a trifle flat.

"That's enough of that" remarked a blue coat, as William struck high C, "Come With Me," and today he woke up in the city bastile. One and costs, the court decided.

SHE SEEKS A DIVORCE

Mrs. B. J. Eide Wants Legal Separation From Her Husband.

Also Asks Title of Property Held by Mork Brothers.

Through a rather strange chain of circumstances, Mork brothers of this city have been made a party in an action for divorce brought by Hilda J. Eide against her husband Bernhard J. Eide.

The case was filed this morning in the district court, and is entitled Hilda J. Eide against Bernhard J. Eide and Mork Brothers.

Mrs. Eide is seeking a divorce from her husband on the grounds of adultery. She claims that the act was committed in the Merchants hotel, Wadena, on June 22, Mina Flaaten being named as the co-respondent. She claims that Eide is not a fit person to have the care of the two children, aged 12 and 9, and she asks their custody.

She also asks for the transference to her of certain lands held in trust by Mork brothers. She alleges that in 1903 she and the defendant Eide transferred to Mork Brothers, for a valuable consideration, a part interest in certain lands in townships 59-13 and 59-15, and that for the sake of convenience they also transferred their own share to Mork Brothers to be held in trust.

Mrs. Eide asks that their share be conveyed to her.

Mork brothers have filed an answer in the case, in which they admit the allegations of Mrs. Eide as far as the land is concerned, and express their willingness to turn over the Eides' share of the property to the person designated by the court. They simply desire to protect themselves in the matter, and are innocent parties in the suit.

SUCCESS OF THE RELIEF MEASURES.

very encouraging. American stocks there opening at prices from 1 to 4 points higher.

The Borough Bank of Brooklyn, a state institution with a capital stock of $200,000, and deposits of about $3,000,000 did not open for business today. Its business was not very large and no prominent financiers were connected with it. One of its principal connection was the Knickerbocker Trust company, which suspended payment on Tuesday.

The Trust Company of America opened for business as usual this morning. The line of depositors waiting to withdraw money was much smaller than at the same hour yesterday morning.

The Lincoln Trust company resumed payment to its depositors as usual this morning.

Secretary Cortelyou was at the subtreasury today. The secretary said:

"There is nothing to say on the situation now, except to reaffirm my former expressions of belief that matters are steadily improving. Later developments during the day may prompt a further statement."

Cash amounting to $4,300,000 was sent to the Trust Company of America this morning through the sub-treasury.

The International Trust company, one of the small and inconspicuous trust companies, closed its doors at 10:40. This trust company had a business connection with the Borough Bank of Brooklyn, which suspended payment today.

The Brooklyn bank, with a place of business at Fulton and Clinton streets, Brooklyn, did not open for business today. This bank has a capital stock of $300,099 and owes its depositors about $1,500,000.

The secrtary of the treasury is continuing to give financial assistance in a large way. The department is doing everything possible to allay apprehension. Another large supply of small bills is being rushed to New York from Washington. An associate of the secretary of the treasury said today that the secretary's refusal to make any formal statement this morning might be accepted as an indication of Mr. Cortelyou's belief that the situation generally is showing improvement. A statement issued by the sub-treasury today shows that local banks gained $22,705,000 from the sub-treasury during the week. This represents in large part the deposits of government funds made with the New York banks.

It developed this moruing that a considerable number of those in line at the Trust Company of America and at the Lincoln Trust company were not depositors, but were persons who had taken places in the line in the hope of selling favorable positions to depositors who would be willing to pay for a forward place. Wherever possible these persons were removed from the line by the police.

The run upon the Trust Company of America has about spents its force and the officers of the bank have now sufficient resources to meet any demand.

It is understood that the necessities of the stock exchange situation will be met today, as they were yesterday. J. P. Morgan & Co. were advised early as to the stock exchange position by President Thomas of the exchange. Loans made on the stock exchange today will carry over to next Monday.

It is understood that negotiations were begun today by international bankers looking to the importation of gold from London and Paris. It is expected that $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 will be engaged at those centers for import, if possible.

The large loans made by J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and their associates to stock brokers yesterday, when the brokers were demoralized, were renewed today at 20 per cent.

THE STABILITY

Of the Boston Trust Companies Demonstrated by Unexpected Examination.

Boston, Oct. 25.—The stability of Boston trust companies has been satisfactorily proved by an official test, made two days ago, according to the announcement made today. It is learned that on Wednesday, Pierre Jay, chairman of the board of sate bank commissioners and examiners, who is in charge of the trust companies in this city, made an unexpected call upon all the trust companies, and found the actual reserve fund 25.76 per cent, and the legal reserve 24.47 per cent. The latter figure was 1.47 per cent higher than the legal reserve on Oct. 21, 1906.

FEELING OF CONFIDENCE

Has Overspread the Entire Financial Situation at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Oct. 25.—The directors of the Pittsburg stock exchange at a meeting this morning decided to keep the exchange closed today. In view of the short session tomorrow it is believed trading will not be resumed before Monday morning.

Robert C. Hall, president of the Pittsburg stock exchange, expressed satisfaction with the local situation today. He said:

"I think conditions in Pittsburg are normal and with wise management will remain so. The flurry has accomplished a good point too. It has caused a closer affiliation between the stock exchange and the clearing house association banks. We were appealed to in a time of need and every member of the exchange suspended his business for the good of the community."

A feeling of confidence has overspread the entire situation in Pittsburg and a talk with prominent bankers this morning elicited the information that "affairs were progressing normally and conditions were in good shape."

SHARP RALLY

In American Securities on London Exchange on Optimistic Reports.

London, Oct. 25.—American securities rallied sharply on the stock exchange this morning, owing to the optimistic reports from New York, following the active intervention of prominent financiers in the financial situation for the purpose of stopping the decline in prices. Quotations at the opening today were 2 to 4 points over parity, and further advanced later on the shorts covering and the receipt of moderate buying orders from the continent. Union Pacific at noon showed a gain of 4⅝, Louisville & Nashville had risen 4 points, and Atchison and Canadian Pacific showed an advance of 3⅜ points above the New York equivalent. United States Steel was an exception to the general firmness, and ruled half a point below parity.

East Greenwich, R. I., Oct. 25.—The East Greenwich branch of the Union Trust company of Providence did not open its doors this morning. A notice was posted stating that the branch would open as soon as the officials found out how much money they had on hand to meet the demands of the depositors. A little later another notice was placed on the door, stating that the branch was being kept closed for the protection of depositors.

RECEIVER APPOINTED

For the Union Trust Company of Providence Which Fails to Open.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 25.—The Union Trust company, on which there was a run, did not open for business at 9 o'clock, the usual hour.

As early as 6 o'clock this morning depositors began to form a line outside the entrance to the bank, and half an hour before the opening time there were more than 150 persons in line. There also was a detail of police to keep order.

At 9 o'clock the doors of the trust company remained closed. A few minutes later the following notice was posted on the door of the bank:

"This bank will not open today, owing to the stringency of the money market."

C. A. Sweetland has been appointed temporary receiver of the Union Trust company by the superior court.

ON THE IRON RANGES

MATT PELTOMAA LOSES HIS LIFE

Run Over by Iron Range Train Near Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Matt Peltomaa, a Finnish laborer, was run over and killed by a train some time during Wednesday night on the Iron Range road about two miles from the city. He was a single man, aged 27, and his only relative in this country is a cousin living at Biwabik. The remains were brought to Mesberg's morgue and will be buried here.

IVY LEAF TENT HAS FINE BALL

Special Season at Eveleth is Given First Class Start.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last night in the Vail hall the Ivy Leaf tent, No. 88, L. O. T. M., gave their first dance of the season, which opened things socially for this winter in Eveleth.

The hall was elaborately decorated with the national colors, the windows and stage being heavily draped with bunting. Festoons hung from the center of the hall to the walls. Music was furnished by La Brosse's orchestra.

Among those present were Messrs and Mesdames Fred Wise, Theodore Williams, Louis Palmer, F. Boorman, Andrew Anderson, Joseph Patic, J. J. Thibant, W. T. Irwin, Richard Rowe, Guy Baker, John McWhorter, W. F. Shoop, John Beattie, Romer and Payne of Virginia, Misses Mary Sharpe, May King, Louise Hay, Pearl Sheehy, Anna Sharpe, Rebecca Johnson, Margaret Glendenning, Agnes Noel, Agnes Walla, Sadie Murphy, Nina Hughes, Hannah and Ella Peterson, Leonora Kimberly, Frances Curry, Louise Chapple, Annie Anderson, Madames Trengave, Mitchell, Hoy, Kimberly, Messrs. William Gordon, Charles Hoel, Leo Shapiro, Mert Trevarrow, William Eddy, Patrick Haney, Arthur Talboys, Allister Murray, William Sweetman, Irwin Augst, Harry Lyons, George Beattie, William Crocker, Samuel Trengave, Charles Cooper, Bert Springer, John McCarthy, Friske, Hill and Webb.

The officers of the Ivy Leaf tent are: Commander, Marie Baker; past commander, Jennie Maxwell; lieutenant commander, Abbie McWhorter; record keeper, May Payne; finance keeper, Antie Rowe; chaplain, Mary Sharpe; mistress of arms, Jennie Mulligan; sergeant, Sarah Sheehy; sentinel, Elizabeth Haney.

The next dance of importance to be given will be the firemen's ball that is to take place on Thanksgiving evening.

BODIES BURIED IN WRONG PLACE

Big Jumble Is Discovered in Affairs of Virginia Cemetery.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new set of officers recently elected by the Virginia Cemetery association have been delving into the records, and their investigations have revealed the fact that affairs connected with the cemetery are badly jumbled. Little attention has been paid to lot lines, with the result that many bodies are buried in the alleys and walks, while there have been scores of burials of which there is no record whatever.

E. G. Bush, who was recently chosen as secretary, has been active in carrying on the investigation and in straightening out the tangled records. New surveys have been made and corners established, so that there may be no mistakes in future.

The cemetery grounds have been greatly improved during the fall, a large amount of clearing has been done, and the burying ground presents a much more sightly appearance than formerly.

This cemetery is used by the people of Mount Iron and Eveleth as well as those of Virginia, and others come from as far away as Buhl to bury their dead there.

NEW SPARTA TO HAVE RAILROAD

Rival Town Will Not Have Any Such Facilities.

Sparta, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club held a very warm and interesting session at the village hall Thursday evening. The committee on by-laws reported and their report was accepted and the by-laws were ordered printed.

The townsite proposition was much talked of. Judge Hankie spoke to some length and told the club of a recent meeting he had with one of the Steel corporation officials. The official reiterated his former statements regarding Sparta moving, and stated positively that Sparta would be moved this fall and winter, and that before the ore season opens in spring every building must be moved and in place, as they figure on using the railroad tracks for moving the buildings on. The Duluth & Iron Range has a straight double track, and is said by experts in the moving line to be very logical. Mr. Hankie told the steel official that so many false and malicious statements had been published by a certain range paper regarding Sparta and its officials that outsiders were somewhat skeptical. Mr. Hankie stated that the official knew himself that part of the published statements were fabrications, and that the editor, who is a disgruntled politician who received two votes out of 100 in Sparta in an effort to land a high office, was simply paying us back. The official said that that was to be expected from Eveleth, as the promoters all reside there and own their own business and homes, and their business was to sell lots in Gilbert. He stated positively that Gilbert would get no railroad that was controlled with the Steel corporation.

Others spoke along somewhat the same lines. One of the prominent citizens stated that the Gilbert townsite promoters had grown very nervous and have imported, from Michigan, a man who is supposed to have purchased the townsite from the original promoters who is reputed to be able to spread the balmy salve in the right place at the right time to dispose of the lots, but it is a well known fact that he is working on commission and will leave for his home as soon as all have been supplied that are willing to take a chance.

It was stated that buildings could not be moved while the ore shipments were moving, but moving would be commenced immediately at the close of navigation. Sparta claims to have the advantage in every way over the Gilbert. First, the location being nearer the Gilbert, Pettit, Mariska, Hobart and Elba mines. Second, having the Duluth & Iron Range and Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway with a union depot. Third, that the Steel corporation has promised to put in water works, electric lights and sewers, grade streets and lay sidewalks. They point out that these improvements will cost the Gilbert townsite at least $100,000 which necessarily will have to be borne by the people, and fourth, that they have the backing and support of the Steel corporation in making a good town and that this company is not in the townsite business for money making and therefore will leave nothing undone to make a model town.

PURCHASED LAND FOR POWER SITE

Joseph Cummings of Duluth Buys It on Littlefork River.

Bear River, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—L. K. Snyder, located in section 5, 62-21, has sold to Joseph E. Cummings of Duluth, a twenty-acre tract lying along the Littlefork river. Negotiations have been pending on the deal since last spring, but were only definitely closed a few days ago.

Chisholm and Duluth parties with Joseph E. Cummings at their head have been hunting for a suitable site for an electric power plant along the Sturgeon and Littlefork rivers for the past two years. They have obtained title to land lying along the Sturgeon river in two different places, but nothing further has been done towards developing these sites. However, Mr. Cummins says that the machinery for the entire plant to be located on the land just purchased of Mr. Snyder will be hauled in this winter and the plant built as soon as practical.

It is planned to furnish electric current generated here to the range towns and cables for transmission will be put up to connect the plant with the range.

Once in running order a plant located at this point could generate power very economically and the current could be furnished on the range much cheaper than it now is. There is no question but that such a plant would be a good paying investment.

The consideration paid for the site was $1,000, or $50 an acre.

COMPANY KEEPS WORD.

Six Hundred Dockmen at Two Harbor to Get Raise in Pay.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth & Iron Range company has lived up to the promises it made the dockmen last summer to increase the wages of employes this fall. Six hundred men employed on the docks will receive an advance of 25 cents per day after Nov. 1.

The new scale is $2.50 per day for day work and $2.75 for night work, and overtime at the rate of 30 cents per hour. The Sunday scale is 35 cents per hour and overtime 37½ cents.

MAHONING STOPS

Shipping Its Ore Presumably for Only a Short Time.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Mahoning mine, which has been running full blast all the season and making heavy shipments, ceased shipping ore yesterday. There is a report that the company will ship no more ore this season but stockpile it. There is a contrary rumor that the shipments will be resumed as soon as the congestion in ore at the Allouez docks has been relieved. The Mahoning is about the largest open pit mine in the world, and it is hardly expected the company would stop shipping from it before the end of the season, as it is in a position to handle ore faster and to better advantage than any other mine on the range.

MERCHANTS KICKING

Over Delay in Laying Sidewalk---Other Items From Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Agitation has been started among the merchants on Grant avenue between Jones and Jackson because of the delay on the part of Frank Klink and M. Prettner in laying their sidewalks. Travel is obstructed on that side of the street, so that business is driven to the other side of the street. The merchants are to ask the city to lay the sidewalk and assess the cost against the party. The work may be done this fall.

W. H. Boorman has been in town visiting relatives. He returned to his homestead during the week.

Miss Anna Buckman, who is engaged to a son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Levant, has arrived to visit her prospective parents. The marriage is to take place in December in Eveleth. The groom is at present in business in Brainerd, Minn.

Misses Ella and Ada Mattson visited their father in Aurora recently.

Mrs. Jacob Kyllonen, age 35, died Sunday, Oct. 20, of a lingering illness of consumption. She left five small children and her husband. The burial was in Virginia. Mr. Kyllonen is an old resident of Eveleth, having been a carpenter here for twelve years.

Another party of duck hunters have left Eveleth. In this party were: Superintendent R. R. Trezona of the Fayal mine, his son, James; Master Mechanic R. C. Knight and Dan Ross. Their destination was the Rainy Lake country.

In the early part of the week, at a local house of ill-fame, there was a clash between a deputy sheriff and a policeman. The local officer had been called to arrest a drunken man, who was firing a revolver heedlessly. In attempting to arrest the man he was opposed by the deputy. The facts have gradually leaked out, but those who should know refuse to talk regarding the scrimmage.

Capt. and Mrs. Nelson of the local branch of the Salvation Army have returned from their Minneapolis sojourn.

LOOKING FOR CEMETERY.

Eveleth Business Men Not Favorable to Proposed Site.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. A. Peterson and George A. Perham, members of the Business Mens' association's cemetery committee, were out yesterday examining a tract of sixteen acres, on the Sparta road, which is considered suitable for cemetery use. The tract is owned by the Oliver Mining company. The acreage has been thoroughly tested for ore, the report was not favorable. The committee hoped that the steel company will help the city out of its predicament.

The better train service committee of the Business Mens' association has written letters to the neighboring cities, but nothing has been heard to date.

CLEANING THE STREETS.

Question Whether It is Duty of Citizens or Traction Company.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the traction franchise problem is to be settled at the Nov. 5th council meeting, a movement is on foot that has as its object the bringing to the council's attention, the desires of the citizens.

The general belief is that it is only fitting that the company be compelled to take proper care of the distance between the tracks and keep the street clear of snow. As the business men have done all in their power to have an electric system enter Eveleth, the council has not been slow in heeding their suggestions. The point at issue, is whether the city must take care of the streets single handed, or whether the company will stand a proportionate share of the burden.

The franchise is now being advertised for sale in the local papers. The next council session will consider the bids. The session will undoubtedly be postponed until a day after as Nov. 5 is election day.

SLAPS BLIND MAN.

Hibbing Judge Fines Offender Twenty-Five Dollars, After Trial.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—It cost Nick Radovick, proprietor of a boarding house on Pine street, $25 for slapping the face of Laza Kangerga, a blind man, after a long drawn out trial in Judge Brady's court yesterday afternoon. The defendant, who is an Austrian, had three fellow countrymen for witnesses, none of whom could speak English, and had to be examined through an interpreter, which added to the length of the trial.

A 15-year-old boy, who is the companion of the complaining witness, corroborated Kangerga's testimony about the defendant slapping him twice in the face. Judge Brady decided a case had been made out and find the accused $25. Radovick first thought he would appeal the case and left the court room to secure an appeal bond, but changed his mind and returning paid the fine.

ORE SORTING YARDS.

Needed Improvement Being Put In by Iron Range Road.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ore business continues at a maximum and the shipments for the month promise to reach well over the million mark. With the approach of freezing weather, it is likely the shipments will proceed more slowly after Nov. 1 to avoid steaming the ore from cars as much as possible.

Work was commenced this week on the new ore sorting yards to be installed by the Duluth & Iron Range parallel an deast of the Duluth siding tracks, near the ore yards. The new improvements are much needed and will consist of seventeen tracks, each having a capacity of forty-eight cars, adding much to the capacity of the local yards. It will be some time before the grading is completed.

INDOOR BASEBALL.

Virginia Will Probably Have Some Games This Winter.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Virginians are in a fair way to witness some indoor baseball games the present winter. Heretofore it has been impossible to play the game here because there was no suitable place, but the recent erection of a roller skating rink has provided a place with ample floor space, and Manager C. M. Godfrey of the Mesaba Telephone company, has taken the initiative in the matter of organizing a city league. His idea is to form a three-team league and he has drafted a set of rules to govern the sport. There are a number of good players in the city and undoubtedly others will soon be developed.

WORK IS PROGRESSING ON NUMBER SIX DOCK.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work on No. 6 ore dock is progressing favorably. One large crib for the foundation is completed and a second one is well under way. They are to be sunk into place, then pinned down with piling and then filled with rock, after which concrete abutments will be laid over them to carry the superstructure.

SMALLPOX WORSE.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The smallpox epidemic does not appear to be letting up, Harold, the 7-year-old son of Superintendent of Schools W. J. Marquis being one of the new cases, and the disease has now been carried to Highland, one of the school children from there, who attend the local schools, breaking out Thursday, and was confined to a baggage car and taken home on the afternoon train. The schools are still kept open.

HONEYMOON OF OF G. BEST

had taken the first train to this city after ascertaining that a warrant had been issued, and arrived at the hall of justice, by a strange coincidence, as the bride and groom were entering the corridor. A stormy scene followed, in which Fleming applied the epithets of "cur" and "scoundrel" to Best, who endeavored to pass off the rencontre with a jaunty air.

Fleming and his daughter, who was weeping, had an interview with Capt. Kelly. He said that his daughter, Cecile, who is 22 years of age, eloped and was married to Best ten days ago in Santa Ana. She was stage struck, he said, and fell an easy prey to the fascinating manners of Best. He had disapproved of the match, but his objections were futile. Fleming investigated Best's career and said he had found a woman in Los Angeles who was the fellow's wife. He prevailed upon her to have the warrant issued for Best's arrest for bigamy. Fleming asserts that Best has still another wife living, from whom he has not been legally separated.

Best, at the city prison, said: "This is a trumped-up charge. I will prove it to be so as soon as the matter comes up in the courts of Los Angeles. To be perfectly frank, I lived with a woman named Anita Thompson for three years, but never married her. She is in Los Angeles, I believe and I suppose that she has been approached to place these charges. I think that she married a man named Smith after I left her. I put her in the show business and she became a chorus girl. One time, to please her mother, I sent a marriage certificate to her, signed by a justice of the peace of an Eastern town, and I also sent her an affidavit attested by the same justice that the former document was not genuine. If she intends to produce this first paper I can easily prove that it is worthless. I really love my wife. She is a noble girl and has considerable histrionic talent. While in Los Angeles I started an Orpheum act in which she played a part. I took this off the boards, as I saw it was not going to prove profitable."

CONCERNING WOMAN.

It has come to the place where one feels positively immodest about appearing without at least $5 worth of purchased hair on one's head. Nature's own modicum of woman's crowning glory seems as hopelessly scant as a five-gored skirt in a season of eighteen-gored models, and the up-to-date maiden would blush as rosily at being caught in the morning without her puffs and curls pinned on, as the one of a decade or so ago was said to do if she was discovered in curl papers.

There are several kinds of curls. There are ringlets and puff curls in groups of three to five or seven, and other kinds, but, thank goodness, one never hears a word about the "spit" curl. There are new inventions to aid one in assuming that well coiffed air which takes a monstrously attractive woman to carry with a sense of perfect security.

There are pompadours, and there are transformers, which are just like a pompadour, only more so. There are janes. They all cost money. The pompadours are made of hair fastened to a strip of braid, and it may be worn inside or outside your own hair. The best taste prefers that it should be about the same color as your own, sharp contrasts being frowned upon by the most fastidious dressers. A transformer is a pompadour long enough to go around your head. A jane is worn strictly inside your own hair. It provides the place of that snarling of your own hair that used to pad the pompadour.

Puffs cost 50 cents each, and any young man contemplating matrimony would better find out if She intends to provide the puffs in her trousseau, or will he have to get a set out of his first month's salary. They count up, you had better believe.

The stylish person has really never heard of the Marcel wave. The hairdresser should say not. To be fashionable your hair must be scalloped. The reader is earnestly requested to note that the process is entirely different from scalloping tomatoes or potatoes, and one must go about it quite differently.

The new way of dressing the hair makes a tremendous hit with men. They will sit and gaze wide-eyed and admiringly at a head of fashionably dressed puffs and braids and things, and they don't care a cent if not a bit of it originally grew on the head that is wearing them. But, nevertheless, the person who has the strength of mind, and the Cleo de Merode cast of countenance to appear in a coiffure of "combined resignation," is going to attract attention.

There is one woman in this city who is wearing eighteen puffs. Now at 50 cents a puff, you can see yourself what that will come to. But 'tis fashion's decree, and who is woman that she should make her reply, or that she should question why, her's but to do, and then rest in the security of at least being in the fashion.

BETHEL RECORD

Speaks in Glowing Terms of Miss Anderson's Work.

In the last issue of the Bethel Record an appreciation of Miss Elizabeth M. Anderson's work for the Bethel is published. Miss Anderson has left the city to make her home in the East. She will be greatly missed in club circles, as she was one of the prominent members of the Twentieth Century club and her class of the city. The Record says:

"The Bethel society has sustained a great loss from its force of local workers through the removal of Miss Anderson from the city. Miss Anderson conducted the sewing school for a number of years, and to her all credit is due for the splendid success it has achieved, for she took the entire responsibility of the work, which consisted in conducting the school, securing competent teachers, raising the funds for its maintenance, planning the outings and entertainments, etc. Before leaving the city she secured Miss Duncan as her successor. Miss Duncan was associated with Miss Anderson in the work for some time, so she is well qualified for superintendent. Miss Anderson was a living illustration of the word that will stand for more than all other words combined at the judgment—the word 'faithful,' so our loss is the gain of some other community or organization. May God's richest blessing attend her wherever she casts her lot, is the prayer of the Bethel workers."

For Mrs. Clark.

Mrs. F. L. Burrows was hostess at luncheon at the Spalding today in compliment of Mrs. Kate Upson Clark, who is this week delivering a series of lectures before the Twentieth Century club of this city. Mrs. Barrows is president of the Twentieth Century club. The table decorations were in bridesmaid's roses and besides the hostess and guest of honor, covers were laid for:

Card Parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Turrish will entertain at bridge tomorrow evening at their home, 403 East Second street. Mrs. Turrish will be hostess again Tuesday afternoon of next week.

Saturday Club.

The regular meeting of the Saturday club will be held tomorrow afternoon at the club room of the library. Current events, with news from all the countries, will occupy the first half hour, with Mrs. C. C. Ames, leader. The regular lesson will be the study of the "History of Italy," with Florence as the special topic, and Miss Malthaner as leader. The outline is as follows:

"Location; Church Influences," Mrs. F. O. Sherwin.
"Government," Miss Mickelson.
"Private Life," Mrs. J. W. Harbison.
"Great Families," Mrs. Downs.

Dinner at Club.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Reis were hosts at a small dinner last evening at the Kitchi Gammi club. Covers were laid for the following guests:
Messrs. and Mesdames—
J. B. Adams, A. B. Wolvin,
A. M. Marshall.

Bridge Reception.

At the first of a series of card receptions Mrs. John Panton was hostess yesterday afternoon at her home on East Second street. Pink roses were used as an attractive decoration throughout the rooms and bridge was played at nine tables. The favors were won by Mrs. F. L. Barrows, Mrs. Katherine Van Loo and Mrs. C. J. Lesure. Mrs. Panton was hostess again this afternoon, and the last of the series will be given tomorrow.

Luncheon.

Mrs. M. J. Starkey entertained at luncheon yesterday at her home, 319 Ninth avenue west, in compliment to Mrs. F. H. Feetham of Rush City, and Miss Bennett of this city. Covers were laid for eight.

Y. W. C. A. Notes.

The members of the English classes of the Young Women's Christian association will entertain at an informal party this evening at the association rooms, in honor of Miss Harriet Raw, who has returned from South Dakota, and who has been supervisor of the work in the English class for three years. The affair is planned in honor of her return, after a several months' absence in Dakota.

* * *

The speaker at the Sunday afternoon devotional service of the association, will be Rev. Albert Parker, and the soloist for the afternoon, will be Miss Ida Bogan.

* * *

Mrs. Wesley Feetham, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. J. A. Watterworth, chairman of the building committee of the association, are expected home within the next two days from a tour of inspection to some of the leading association buildings in the interest of the new Duluth building.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. Z. D. Scott and Miss Alice Scott are visiting in Chicago.

* * *

Miss Harriet Raw, accompanied by her sister, Miss Raw, has returned from a several months' visit at Mott, S. D.

* * *

Mrs. J. D. Morrison returned this morning from the East. Bishop Morrison will not return for two weeks. Bishop and Mrs. Morrison spent the summer at heir home in the Adirondacks and during the last month have been attending the Episcopal convention at Richmond, Va.

ORIENTAL LIMITED

Strikes Engine in Moorhead Yards--- Three Coaches Derailed.

Moorhead, Minn., Oct. 25.—The Oriental Limited, the Great Northern coast train which left the Twin Cities Wednesday morning, was wrecked at this place at 6:30 Wednesday evening. The limited colided with a switch engine, which was standing on the main line. Three coaches were derailed. After a good deal of work a wrecking crew succeeded in getting one of the derailed coaches back on the track and the train proceeded without the two others. No one was injured in the wreck.

BRAINERD MACHINIST DEAD IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alexander McCarthy, a machinist in the Northern Pacific shops here, and one of the oldest residents of the city, coming here in the seventies as a child, died in Minneapolis yesterday at the home of a sister. He went there some weeks ago for medical treatment. The remains will be brought to Brainerd for interment. He leaves a wife and one child and a father and several brothers.

MORE STRIKEBREAKERS.

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is stated here that delegates to the boilermakers' district council will go to St. Paul for another conference with the railroad officials. There have been several special meetings of the boilermakers in the past couple of days, but so far as can be learned nothing definite has been accomplished. The Northern Pacific brought in another consignment of men said to number twenty-one yesterday to work in the boiler shops.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Wild rice, 20 cents a pound.

New York Concord grapes, 32 cents a basket.

Montana crab apples, 80 cents a peck.

Hot house tomatoes, 20 cents a pound.

Cucumbers, 12½ cents each.

Cranberries, 10 cents a quart.

Turkeys, 25 cents a pound.

Ducks, 20 cents a pound.

Ducks and wild rice, or turkey and cranberry sauce, are the possibilities that pampered plutocrats may consider for their Sunday dinner. As yet the market man has not begun his yearly wail that "Turkeys are scarce," but it has not yet come time when everyone with a stinted housekeeping allowance is trying to persuade themselves that an eight-pound turkey at 30 cents a pound is as cheap as anything else, but they will come to that decision to the accompaniment of the market man's "Turkeys are scarce." At any rate, the first of the season have arrived.

To those who pine for the delicacy, wild rice is in the market. It is difficul to secure and those who want it will buy while they may, although there is a possibility that wild rice may be had during the whole season.

The autumn fruits are in their prime.

SHIPMENTS ARE HEAVY

The Ore Trade Has Been Good During Month of October.

Shortage of Cars Effects Coal and Grain Trade.

Dispatch at the ore docks has been good all through the month of October, and the total shipments at the first of November will probably be unusually heavy for this time of the year: It is not likely that the figures will be as great as some of the summer months, but they will come up to expectations of the shippers.

The grain trade has taken a few of the large freighters from the ore trade, but there are plenty left to haul a big volume of ore to the lower lakes. Some vesselmen are still of the opinion that the total movement of ore this season will be up to the 40,000,000-mark.

The car supply will cut quite a figure in the coal and grain trades during the balance of the season. There has been a shortage of cars in the coal trade for some time, and receipts at the lower lake ports have been light. There is a good demand for coal at this end, but the shippers are unable to fill the orders, on account of the scarcity of cars. Big cargoes have been scarce for some time, and there has been considerable delay at the docks.

The shippers do not look for much improvement in the car situation during the balance of the season. Fortunately the coal movement was very heavy during the early part of the season, or there would be a shortage of fuel in the Northwest.

The shortage of cars is also being felt in the grain trade, according to reports from Buffalo. The work of unloading grain carriers will be slow after this week. Grain is coming into Duluth from the interior at a good rate and tonnage is in good demand. Many vessels have been chartered on the basis of 2½ cents on wheat to Buffalo.

NEW FREIGHTER ENROLLED.

Duluth is Made Home Port of Steamer H. P. Bope.

The home port of the new freighter H. P. Bope, which will go into commission in a couple of weeks, is Duluth. The enrollment papers were filed at the local customs office this morning. The official number of the new steamer is 204,994 and she is owned by the Standard Steamship company of this city. Capt. Frank C. Rae, who brings out all the new boats controlled by the Wolvin interests, will command the Bope on her first trip.

GLADIATOR IN COMMISSION.

Tug Purchased by Dredging Company Has Been Rebuilt.

Capt. Andrew Carrill brought out the tug Gladiator yesterday afternoon for the first trip since she has been rebuilt. The tug is owned by the Duluth-Superior Dredging company and will be used by that company in work about the harbor.

The Gladiator was formerly owned by one of the local lumber companies and was used in towing log rafts. She has powerful engines and will be a valuable addition to the dredging company's fleet. Since the Duluth-Superior company purchased her she has been cut down and her forward deck is no longer housed in. The tug has a gross tonnage of 207 and net 87 tons.

Steamboat Inspectors Monaghan and Chalk inspected the rejuvenated tug yesterday and found everything in good shape.

ELECTRIC FIRE BOATS.

Chicago Will Have Something New in Harbor Protection.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—The city of Chicago has ordered two electric fireboats, which will be something new in harbor fire fighting apparatus. The Manitowoc Drydock company has contracted with the General Electric company for the electrical equipment of these boats.

Each boat will be equipped with two 660-horse power Curtis steam turbines, which will be supplied with steam at a pressure of 160 pounds. A centrifugal pump of sufficient capacity to deliver 8,500 gallons of water per minute against a pressure of 150 pounds per square inch will be mounted on an extension of the bed plate of the turbine. A 200 kilowatt direct current generator will also be mounted upon the same bed plate and direct connected to each turbine.

The boats will be equipped with twin screws and each propeller shaft will be direct connected to a 250-horse power motor. A 25-kilowatt generator and an exciter of equal capacity will also be installed and will be driven by small turbines. The apparatus will be controlled from either the engine room or the pilot house.

This is the first equipment consisting of a generator and motor that has ever been installed for the operation of a ship's propeller. It is also the first electric fireboat.

The fact that the ship can be controlled from the pilot house is an innovation. Heretofore, the pilot has always signaled to the engineer. With these ships the pilot can manipulate the controlling switches with no more effort that formerly required to signal to the engineer, thus lessening the danger of errors in transmitting orders.

Want Deep Harbor.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 25.—The latest deep water way movement is on to make the Maumee river navigable all the way from Toledo to this point. Fort Wayne has a desire to become a lake port and a proposition looking to this end has been started in earnest here by a number of business men, and it is backed by resolutions adopted this week by the Fort Wayne Federation of Labor.

New Tug for Detroit.

Detroit, Oct. 25.—The tug A. C. Harding and lighter Reliance of the Great Lakes Towing company will be stationed in the Detroit river during the balance of the season. The Harding and Reliance will probably leave Buffalo tomorrow. The lighter Newman, for years stationed at Detroit, will go to Port Huron for the rest of the season. It has not been decided just what tug will be stationed there with the Newman. It is evident that the Great Lakes Towing company proposes to place itself in position to render "first aid to the injured" without delay in cases of collision or grounding in the Detroit or the St. Claire rivers.

Will Raise Steamer Moore.

Cleveland, Oct. 25.—Underwriters have given the contract for raising the sunken steamer John W. Moore, lying in the Detroit river below Mamajuda light, to the Reid Wrecking company of Port Huron. Capt. Reid expects to begin work early this week and certainly has no easy task before him. Bids for raising the boat were: Reid Wrecking company, $15,000; Capt. Baker, $15,000; Donnelly Brothers, Kingston, $19,500.

Newsboy Is Laid Up.

The popular excursion steamer Newsboy, owned by the Clow & Nicholson Transportation company, has been laid up for the winter at the shipyard at Twelfth avenue west. Before coming out next season she will be thoroughly overhauled and refitted.

Freight Situation.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Grain freights steady at 1¾ cents on corn to Buffalo. Charters: To Georgian Bay, George Stone, corn; To Buffalo, City of Rome, Wolf, corn.

Cleveland, Oct. 25.—The movement of ore is heavy and there is a good demand for tonnage, but the market in other lines is quiet. Coal cargoes are very scarce and many vessels are going up light.

Buffalo, Oct. 25.—Conditions in shipping circles continue more favorable and chartering today was freely active. Charters: London, Robert Mills, Chicago, 40 cents; A. D. Davidson, Duluth, 30 cents; Clyde, Fort William; Clement, Vance, Milwaukee.

Passed Detroit.

FATHER IS GUARDIAN

Grandfather Has No Claim on Fred Wirth's Children.

Minors Were Left $2,000 Insurance Money by Mother.

The father and not the grandfather is the proper person to care for the funds held in trust for the two small children of Fred Wirth, according to the decision of Judge Middlecoff, made this morning.

The money, $2,000 in all, was due the children from the Royal Neighbors, on the insurance policy carried by their mother. The story connected with the case is a strange one.

Mrs. Wirth, when a small child, was adopted by a family named Scott and did not know, until she reached womanhood that they were not her real parents. Several weeks ago, when she was on her deathbed, a man named Grace, from Minneapolis, appeared at the Wirth house and claimed to be Mrs. Wirth's father. He is said to have prevailed on her to make her insurance policy payable to the children. After the visit of Mr. Grace, Mrs. Wirth told her husband that she was not sure that the man was her father, but she seemed to think he was.

Shortly after Mrs. Wirth's death, her husband applied to the court to have her estate probated, but the Royal Neighbors had already notified the court that a letter had been received from Grace asking that the settlement be made through him.

It is understood that Grace has little, if any, claim on the children as he gave his consent to the adoption of his daughter.

Judge Middlecoff, after considering the case, gave his decision in favor of Mr. Wirth, and appointed him trustee of the funds. He furnished a satisfactory bond to the court.

SEEKS DAMAGES.

Traveling Man Wants $500 for Being Put Off N. P. Train.

Sauk Rapids, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.) — Thomas Brown, a traveling salesman, has brought suit in the district court of Benton county for $500 damages against the Northern Pacific Railway company. On the evening of July 1, Baron boarded a train at Crookston and paid a cash fare to Detroit, being given the usual receipt. At Lake Park, a station west of his destination he was forcibly ejected from the train, according to his allegation, notwithstanding the fact that he showed his receipt. The action will be tried at the December term of district court.

THRESHER AND HAY BURN.

Bagley, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—While threshing on the farm of Andrew Lindgren in Dudley Monday, a spark from the engine ignited one of the stacks, and with the strong wind that blew, all six stacks and the separator were ablaze in a minute. In attempting to get the engine over to the separator they had to cross a manure pile where it mired on them, leaving them completely helpless.

GOVERNOR'S PORTRAIT

Completed by Painter and Will Hang in Executive Gallery.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 25. — (Special to The Herald.) — A life size portrait of Governor Johnson will shortly be added to the collection of pictures that now adorns the executive chambers at the state capitol. Governor Johnson has been sitting for the picture the past week, and friends who have seen it say it is exceptionally good.

The artist is A. G. Brewer, late of this city, but now of New York. The last picture to be hung in the executive gallery was that of former Governor S. R. Van Sant.

CLUB ROOMS FOR GIRLS

St. Lukes Church to be Made Headquarters for Young Women.

Rector Has Plan to Enlarge Usefulness of Church.

Although plans are still in a formulative state, Rev. R. J. Mooney, the rector, with the assistance of several prominent local club women, is planning to start cooking and sewing classes for girls and young women, in the vestry rooms of the St. Luke's Episcopal church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street.

The plans not only include the classes and their regular sessions, but it is proposed to make the St. Luke's vestry rooms a sort of club house and resting place for the young women in the western part of the city.

Rev. Mr. Mooney and the club women who are interested in the matter, feel that there are great opportunities for a work of this kind in the West end. The success of the gymnasium classes at St. Luke's church demonstrated this.

Since the first class was organized, the gymnasium project has been a success. The first class grew so fast that another was immediately organized and the girls and young women are taking to physical culture very enthusiastically.

Encouraged by this, those interested will enlarge the scope of the work. The vestry rooms are to be made a gathering place for girls and young women, and many who have been without many advantages will be helped along those lines in which they lack proficiency.

As soon as arrangements can be made, the sewing, cooking and other classes will be organized. Many prominent people in the city have pledged their support to the movement and it seems bound to succeed.

HAVEN MIGHT ENTER RACE.

Seventh Ward Alderman May Become a Candidate Again.

Now that he has declared that he will not seek the Republican nomination for mayor, the Republicans of the Seventh ward are looking to Alderman R. D. Haven as a possible aldermanic candidate. They would like to see him seek re-election in the Seventh and feel that he could be induced to do so if his friends strongly urged him.

Although he has refuted the rumors of his entering the mayoralty race, Alderman Haven has remained silent concerning the proposition of seeking re-election as alderman from the Seventh. When asked regarding it, he has declared that he was unwilling at this time to make a statement concerning his plans.

Alderman Haven did not refer to his candidacy at the meeting of the West End Republican club held last evening in Sloan's hall. Most of the time at the session was taken up with a discussion of the mayoralty situation and although many names were discussed, the club did not place itself on record as particularly favoring any of them.

The members were urged to attend the Republican mass meeting to be held Saturday evening at the city hall. The West End club will likely have a large delegation on hand, and show its strength.

MAKES WINTER'S PLANS.

Epworth League Cabinet Discusses Entertainment for Season.

The cabinet of the Epworth League of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, which is composed of the officers of the organization, held a meeting this week to plan the entertainments for the coming season. The officers also discussed the ways and means of raising the $50 pledged by the league toward the new church fund.

Members of the cabinet are loath to make known the league's plans until they have been approved by the members in regular session.

It is probable that the plans for the literary evenings, every second Tuesday, will be different from those of last year. Last winter the league was divided up into two sides, and each side prepared a program at alternate meetings.

Judges were named to judge the merits of the different programs from every point of view, and then decide which was the better. The losing side was then to entertain the winners at a banquet.

Struck by Automobile.

While alighting from a Superior street car at Eighteenth avenue west yesterday afternoon, August Hagblom, a conductor in the employ of the Duluth Street Railway company, was struck by an automobile and knocked down. Hagblom sustained some painful but not serious injuries. His face was quite badly lacerated.

Hagblom did not see the auto coming when he got off the car, and the chauffeur could not stop the machine in time to prevent a collision.

The machine was numbered 103 and is owned by A. W. Hepworth.

West End Shortrails.

The S. and P. club of the West end is planning some amateur theatricals as a part of its entertainment for the coming season. At several of the club affairs last season little skits were given by the different members, and it is proposed this winter to put on something more elaborate. Many members of the club have displayed considerable talent.

Miss Thelma Peterson of 2617 West Fourth street will leave the West end next week for Ellsworth, Wis.

L. T. Peterson and E. C. Peterson have gone to Kenosha, Wis., on business.

Gust Lusey of 423 Twenty-fourth avenue west fell from a half-completed dwelling in the West end, on which he was working, and was painfully injured. He sustained some awkward hurts about the head and shoulders.

Miss Cox of 1713 West First street will entertain the Christian Endeavor Society of the Second Presbyterian church this evening.

Robert Blair and his lately acquired bride have returned from North Dakota. They will make their home at 1729 West First street.

The monthly social of St. Luke's Episcopal church will be held Saturday evening in the vestry rooms, under the auspices of the gymnasium classes.

The residence of R. F. Dieryck, 3019 West Second street, was entered by burglars one evening this week. The intruders awakened the servant girl, who gave the alarm. The burglars fled without securing any booty.

GROOM IS REJECTED.

Promised Bride Changes Her Mind, But Groom Has Wedding Feast.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, Oct. 25.—As a result of the bride changing her mind at the last moment, the invited guests to the Thompson-Schuetler wedding, which was to have taken place Wednesday night, partook of a supper prepared for the occasion, alone, with the rejected bridegroom as the guest of honor.

Henry Schuetler, a merchant of Madal, Sask., Canada, came to the city several days ago for the purpose of taking back as his wife, Miss Ella Thompson, residing with her parents on a farm a few miles out of this city. The plans for the event included a drive of the proposed bridegroom to the home of the bride, and then the ceremony in Fort Dodge to be followed by a banquet and the departure on a late train over the Minneapolis & St. Louis road for the Twin Cities, where the honeymoon would be spent.

It appears, however, that the parents of the young lady in question entertained strenuous objections to her marriage and prevailed upon her to reject her long-distance suitor. It furthermore appears that this was not the first time she had followed her parents' advice in matters matrimonial, and had on a previous occasion turned the same trick.

When Mr. Schuetler arrived at the home of the bride and suggested that the party start back to Fort Dodge in order that the plans might be carried out on time, he was informed that the bride had changed her mind and there would be no wedding. It was a bitter pill to swallow and Schuetler, finding his argument to have no influence and her answer final, drove back very much cast down. But being a good loser he decided to make the best of a bad deal and, accordingly, invited the guests who had assembled to join him in the repast prepared for the event. The guests, when the situation was explained, joined heartily in the spirit of the invitation and assisted the unfortunate man in making pleasant the hours before his train left, which carried him back to his place of business in the far North.

NEW CAPTAIN OF THE MAYFLOWER

President Chooses Lieut.-Commander Vogelgesang for Naval Protege.

Washington, Oct. 25.—"He is a good shipmate," is the opinion of the officers of the army regarding Lieut. Com. Carl T. Vogelesang, who has just been assigned to the command of the Mayflower, President Roosevelt's private yacht. He is not only one well liked in the service, but possesses a high order of ability and has had an eventful and successful career in the navy.

President Roosevelt's new protege was born in 1867 in California, and entered the naval academy September 6, 1886, and was graduated July 1, 1892. From that time the department made him lead a busy life. He did duty successively on the wooden cruiser Mohican, the supply ship Celtic and was in the bureau of navigation when the war with Spain began and he was ordered to the gunboat Bancroft which did blocade duty on the Cuban coast.

At the close of the Spanish war Lieut. Com. Vogelgesang made an expedition around the Isle of Pines, to gather information for the government. As a recognition for this service he was given a medal of honor. Then he went around Cape Horn, with Capt. Barker, and to the Philippines, where he was placed in command of one of the light draught launches and conducted a vigorous campaign against the hostile natives in the dangerous country on the north of Manila bay. It required a resourceful and courageous man for this duty. But he met the situation to the satisfaction of his superiors, and succeeded in clearing the region of this undesirable element, and brought about peace, which has never been broken.

In 1901 he returned to the United States and was assigned to the battleship Wisconsin, and was in command of the turret in which a gun crew broke the record for rapid and accurate gun practice. Later he was a government inspector of materials and his next assignment was to the first class battleship Kentucky, where he remained until transferred to duty at the bureau of navigation in the navy department.

When the battleship Louisiana went to Panama with President Roosevelt on board, Lieut. Commander Vogelgesang was the navigating officer, and it was then he first attracted the notice of President Roosevelt, who was so favorably impressed by the efficient manner in which the young officer performed his duty that he caused him to be placed in command of the Mayflower. The best officers of the navy are chosen for this duty.

Lieut. Commander Vogelgesang is an expert turret captain. After the disastrous explosion on the battleship Georgia, when several officers and men lost their lives, he was appointed on the special turret board to investigate the cause of the accident.

He, with the other officers of the board, visited the vessels of the fleet and questioned officers and men as to their knowledge of and experiences with flarebacks. His own experience was of value to the board, and as a result of the work of this board additional precautions have been taken to prevent similar accidents in the future.

Lieut. Commander Vogelgesang is an almost perfect specimen of physical manhood, being six feet tall, deep chested and unusually well proportioned. He has light curly hair and merry blue eyes. A man of frank speech, he desires as companions to be "on the level" with him.

His wife several years ago was Miss Shephard, the daughter of the late Rear Admiral E. M. Shephard.

BURGLAR IN LEADING ROLE

Realism Not Lacking in Serio-Comic Burglary in Evanston.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Within the sleeping room in the home of Levi H. Eliel, of Evanston, there was enacted early yesterday a serio-comic burglary.

A burglar, masked, carrying a lighted candle in one hand and a grim, black revolver in the other, was the main actor. Eliel, his wife and three children, shared the stage with him.

With the darkness of the chamber, lighted only by the spluttering candle within the prowler's hand, as a background, the characters played their parts thus:

Mrs. Eliel (tugging at her sleeping husband's elbow)—Levi, there's a burglar in the room. He has a revolver; don't stir, dear; I'm so frightened.

Eliel (shaking off his wife's grip on his arm)—Hello, there. Who are you? What do you want?

Burglar (stepping briskly to the bedside as Eliel sat up, and thrusting a revolver muzzle into Eliel's face.)—Don't get excited, old pal. I'm a burglar. I won't hurt you if you behave. But if either of you set up a noise I'll kill you both.

Eliel—How did you get in here? Did you come in through the window?

Burglar—Yes. That's a fine porch. You shouldn't leave those windows open.

At this juncture the burglar thrust his hand under Eliel's pillow and began searching there.

Eliel—Please don't take my watch. It's only a filled case—more valuable to me than to you.

Eliel—Please spare me that. It's a gift from an old friend.

Burglar—All right, old pal.

Burglar (walking back to bureau and ransacking drawer)—Ah, cigarettes; I'll take a smoke. If you don't mind.

Eliel—Smoke hearty, old man.

Burglar (lighting cigarette on his candle)—There doesn't seem to be much in this drawer worth taking.

Through all the conversation the burglar's revolver remained leveled toward Eliel, as he sat upright, and his wife, who crouched prostrate by his side.

The burglar then pulled out another of the drawers, one in which Mrs. Eliel's jewels and trinkets were kept, and carried the drawer to the bed, where he rested it at the frightened woman's feet.

Burglar—Ah, some diamond pins. I thought a rich man like you would have something worth while if I looked far enough.

Mrs. Eliel breaks into sobs as the burglar tinkles her jewelry into his side pocket.

Burglar—Say, old man, where's your vest?

Eliel—In the clothes closet there in the corner.

Burglar (backing into the closet, fumbling about and emerging, still carrying revolver)—I found a $5 bill and 18 cents in your pocket. I left the change.

Mrs. Eliel—Oh, please go away now. If my two boys up stairs hear a strange voice here or come in and see you with that revolver they'll be frightened to death.

Burglar—Good night; I'm going.

Eliel—Good night.

The burglar blew out his candle, left the room and slid out of the window.

Eliel arose and telephoned the police station. His wife took an inventory of the stolen goods and found that the weird visitor had profited some $300, despite his politeness.

PROMINENT MEN

Using Their Entire Finances to Protect Banks in Nevada.

Goldfield, Nev., Oct. 25.—George Winfield yesterday authorized the statement that he and Senator Nixon were using their entire finances for the protection of the banks in which they are interested. The banks are at Reno, Tonopah, Goldfield and Rhyolite. The Goldfield Consolidated was forced to lay off a large number of miners yesterday, by reason of the refusal of the sampling works to accept ore.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 25.—The wrecking steamer Salver yesterday came alongside the Empress of China, which sank at her mooring, at the Canadian Pacific wharf. Last night the China was rising at the rate of six inches an hour, and she should soon be clear of water.

The Empress of China is scheduled to sail for Jananese and Chinese ports next Thursday, but it is not likely that she will get away until later in the week. Engine room, holds, store rooms and state rooms were damaged by the water, and the whole interior of the liner will have to be overhauled before she will be in condition to sail.

CRIPPLE ROBS CRIPPLE.

Steals Horse and Buggy in Anoka in Broad Daylight.

Anoka, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the boldest robberies that has ever occurred here was committed Monday afternoon when a horse and buggy was stolen from the State bank corner.

The rig belonged to Charles Miller, who lives on the old Charles Gale farm, north of town. He had hitched the horse to the curb on the bank corner and then gone off to attend to business matters.

During his absence a cripple, who had been seen hobbling about town on crutches several times during the day, approached the corner, and untying the horse, climbed into the buggy and deliberately drove off.

Mr. Miller reported the robbery to the police. Officer Haley at once telephoned to Minneapolis, and Tuesday morning received word from the Minneapolis police that the horse and buggy had been found. Miller, who, by the way, is also crippled by only possessing one arm, went down to the city the same day to return with his property.

SERIOUS STREET FIGHT.

One Man Has Fractured Skull and Other is Held for Trial.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—A street fight Wednesday resulted in the probably fatal injury of Angus Wood, while M. McCarty is being held at the city hall by the police to await the outcome of Wood's condition. The injured man is confined at his home suffering from concussion of the brain, and the chances between death and life are about even.

McCarty had been in Grand Forks but a week, coming here from Crookston, where he had been engaged three or four weeks working on a nearby farm. His home is in San Francisco, where he has a wife and several children.

JUST CRAZY DRUNK.

Grand Forks Business Man Had Indulged Too Freely in Liquor.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles A. Reinhart, a well-known merchant, who was arrested on complaint of his wife on a charge of insanity, was discharged at a hearing. Mrs. Reinhart and her husband were witnesses. She admitted that over-indulgence in liquor was the probable cause of her husband's troubles, and suggested also that jealousy played a part in them. He had an idea, while under the influence of liquor, that she had an affinity, and quarrels followed a discussion of this affair.

Reinhart testified that on the day on which it was thought he was insane he drank a quart of whisky in four hours. The insanity board decided that that was enough to cause at least a small-sized brainstorm.

ONLY WOMAN ADMITTED.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

WORKING ON ARROW LINE

Good Progress on Electric Road to Head of Lakes.

Grade Soon Completed to Sunrise on St. Croix River.

North Branch, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rapid progress is being made on the new Twin City & Lake Superior Electric Arrow line, whose right-of-way runs just a few miles south and east of here, and it appears that the prediction of the officers of the company that the tracks would be ready for trains before snow falls will come true.

It will only be a short time until the grade is completed to Sunrise, on the west bank of the St. Croix river. Westerdahl & Carlson, with a $10,000 outfit, are now at work on the grading through the platted portion of Sunrise. The grade for a mile appears to be almost completed, and this work has been done within the past three weeks. A fifteen-foot fill had to be made at one end of this work, and about that much cut out of the other end. The work is being done with two trains of dump cars, and a surprising amount of dirt is handled in a day. These contractors have the grading contract between the Sunrise and St. Croix rivers, a distance of about four miles, and they are confident that as far as they are concerned, rails can be laid in time to haul the steel for the bridge across the St. Croix, which will be a massive structure, with three large spans. Frank Wright is nearing the completion of his contract, which is the two miles adjoining the west end of Westerdahl & Carlson's contract.

The practical way in which the work is being done impresses one who looks it over. No dirt is moved unnecessarily and whatever moved is used to make a fill somewhere on the grade. To do this it has been necessary to leave unfinished spots all along the grade, but the work has been greatly facilitated thereby. The crossing has been arranged at the St. Croix so that an island in the middle of the river can be made use of for support.

While this line will be a double track one when in use, the grade is now being made for only one, with side tracks at short distances. It is intended to do the grading for the second track by using trains running on the first track, which will be much cheaper than doing it with horses, as is necessary with the first track.

The new line will tap one of the richest sections of this part of the country, and will greatly relieve freight conditions.

ENGINE SPARKS START BAD FIRE

Nearly Ten Miles of Territory Near Moorhead Burned Over.

Moorhead, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sparks from the engine of a Great Northern train are blamed for a disastrous fire that began about three miles north of Averill in Flowing township yesterday. As the blaze sprang into life it started in a southwesterly direction through Flowing and on into Spring Prairie, covering in its course a distance of nearly ten miles. A hard fight was put up against it, and inside of several hours the fire was under control.

The path of the flames was a succession of burning hay stacks, eighty-five of which were consumed. In addition to this six big stacks of flax were destroyed, together with a large quantity of haying tools. It is estimated that over 1,000 tons of hay were destroyed, and as hay is worth $6 per ton, this aggregates a heavy loss.

In addition to this, the barns on Charley Rossman's place were destroyed, though by hard work the house was saved. The large vacant house on section 29 in Flowing was burned, and the loss on buildings is estimated at $3,000. Among the individual farmers who suffered is J. K. Brady, who lost five big stacks of hay. He was, however, fortunate in saving his buildings. No buildings were destroyed in Spring Prairie township.

It is estimated that the total loss on buildings, hay, haying tools and flax will run between $10,000 and $11,000.

WINONA LUMBER MILL

Is Partially Destroyed by Fire---Loss About $75,000.

Winona, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire which started at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, wiped out the lumber yards of the Schroth & Ahrens Milling company. A shift of the wind when the fire was at its height saved the mill proper from destruction, although all auxiliary buildings were burned. The loss is estimated at $75,000, with about 80 per cent insurance. The overturning of a fire truck while going to the fire caused serious injury to two firemen.

WANT MEN FOR HEAD OF LAKES

Idle Ones in North Dakota Being Shipped to Duluth.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The employment agents, who only a few weeks ago were scouring Duluth for men to be sent to the North Dakota harvest fields, railway agents are now making a thorough search over this district to secure men for railroad work at the Head of the Lakes. Wednesday evening between 100 and 150 harvesters were shipped out of Fargo to Duluth where they will at once be placed at work.

The threshing in North Dakota is about completed, there only being a few machines now in operation. Within a couple of weeks almost all of the annual visitors to North Dakota will have departed for other fields of labor and railroads will secure a large number of the laborers.

HUNTER'S RIFLE IS MONEY MAKER

Kills Two Wolves and Earns $65 in a Few Seconds.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Killing two of three big gray wolves before they had time to get from one to the other side of the railroad track across which they were running at top speed in pursuit of a deer, Matt Mattson, a railroad employe at Seney, Schoolcraft county, earned a month's pay within the short period of three seconds. Mattson, a rifleman of rare proficiency, who frowns upon the use of the shotgun, no matter what the game, had been hunting partridge.

Returning to the track where he had left his handcar, he discerned the three shaggy brutes in the act of crossing the right-of-way some distance away. Taking quick aim, he stopped the leader with a bullet. A second one of the trio was dropped in its tracks an instant later; and had there been a second's more time the survivor would doubtless have shared the same fate. As is was it barely managed to reach the shelter of the nearby brush.

With the bounties and the value of the pelts, Mattson's markmanship netted him $65.

RECORD POTATO YIELD.

Chippewa County Farmer Cleans Up 300 Bushels From One Acre.

St. Ignace, Mich., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Harvesting 300 bushels to the acre, James Carley, a Chippewa county farmer, claims the record in the way of big potato crops dug in the upper peninsula this fall. The tubers are large sound and mealy, the best grown to date on the Carley farm, and at that Mr. Carley has taken first prize for potatoes at the county fair for four years past. He has been engaged in farming in Chippewa county since 1872, and it is said of him that what he does not know of Chippewa county soil is not worth knowing. He grows bumper crops of other products of the soil, but he takes special pride in his tubers. Carley is undoubtedly the champion potato raiser in Upper Michigan.

CIRCUS SETTLES

Damage Suit Started for Injuries to Fargo Girl.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Minnie Steen, a little girl, was one of the persons injured last summer by the collapse of the seats during the afternoon performance of the Barnum & Bailey circus, sustaining injuries to her back. Suit was brought against the Barnum & Bailey show company and Thursday the attorney for the show made a settlement with the parents of the little girl, paying $475. There are a couple of other cases to be considered in the Clay county district court.

HOTEL MEN DISCUSS

Question of Raising Prices in North Dakota Soon.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—While no decisive action was taken by the hotel men of North Dakota, who met here this week, in regard to raising prices, the subject was favorably considered and will be decided at the adjourned meeting to be held here Nov. 7, when it is expected a larger representation of hotel men of the state will be present. The hotel men feel that in view of the general increase in hotel supplies they will have to raise rates to make anything.

Those who attended the conference were: W. S. Lycan, Hotel Crookston, Crookston, Minn.; Clarence E. aPrker, Hotel Leland, Minot; E. G. Patterson, Northwestern hotel, and Henry Tatley, Grand Pacific hotel, Bismarck; J. D. Bell, Hotel Dakota; J. S. Bartholoomey, Antlers, and E. W. Hough, Northern hotel, Grand Forks; Frank Whitman, Hotel Sevilla, Devils Lake, and C. A. Klaus, Gladstone hotel, Jamestown.

MONEY FOR SCARE.

Hancock Woman Wants Damages for Fright Given by Police.

Hancock, Mich., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Contending that police who visited the First National bank building in the dead of night so badly frightened her that she has since been ill and unable to perform her duties as masseuse, which is her means of livelihood, Mrs. Maria Kylonen has filed a unique claim for damages against the city of Hancock. She is moderate in her demand in that she asks only $75. Mrs. Kylonen lives in the bank building. The police visited the structure in search of burglars it was suspected were operating therein on the night in question.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Fargo, N. D.—At a meeting of the company, President Pierce filed his resignation to take effect on Nov. 1, and following his recommendation, Vice President Hollister was elected to fill the vacancy.

Dickinson, N. D.—A reward of $500 has been offered for the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who set fire to and burned 140 tons of hay located on Wallace & Davis' place, two miles south of Dickinson.

Fargo, N. D.—The man found dead in bed at Thompson's hotel and restaurant on Lower Front street Monday afternoon was identified by several old acquaintances as Rasmus Isdale. He had resided in the city for a number of years.

Grand Forks, N. D.—State's Attorney J. B. Wineman has received notice from Attorney Engerud of Fargo, that the Flaherty case could be carried to the supreme court of the United States. The case arises from the law requiring the publication of liquor licenses from the government.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—After a trial lasting about two days a jury in the United States court in this city has returned a verdict awarding damages in the sum of $8,000 to Herbert E. Murphy of Sioux Falls, against the Rock Island Railroad company for personal injury.

Bismarck, N. D.—Owing to the illness of Judge Fisk of Grand Forks, the state supreme court will hear no arguments until Nov. 18. The justices will work on their cases, but no hearings will be held.

Fargo, N. D.—O. E. Wood, the local manager of the Great Northern Express company, has resigned his position and announces his intention of going into some other business. His successor has not yet been appointed.

Minot, N. D.—Word has been received that Stewart, the colored jockey who and had there been a second's more rode last summer for C. H. Parker, was accidentally drowned in a lake near Helena, Mont., a few days ago. Stewart was hunting when the boat overturned. His companions were unable to rescue him, and the lad was drowned.

Sherbrooke, N. D.—Self-defense was the plea of Fred Hamilton, the negro who murdered Carl McRae during a card game at Finley, N. D., at an early hour Tuesday morning, when he was arraigned for trial before Judge C. A. Pollock.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Calumet—About twenty members of the Calumet lodge, F. & A. M., will make the trip to Ishpeming Saturday to visit the lodge in the latter city. An invitation has been extended for some time to make this trip, but until now it has seemed impossible to accept it.

Laurium—Theasurer Matt Sailer of this village, has more village taxes collected at this time than he had on Oct. 22 in 1906. A smaller delinquent list probably will be returned this year.

Calumet—The Women's Library association of Houghton will have a number of new books ready for use Saturday. These include the best of the new novels, and increase the number of books available to those desiring good reading from a public library, to well above the 2,000 mark.

Houghton—Mrs. Bertha Thomas, wife of David Thomas, died at her home in West Houghton Monday evening from tuberculosis. Mrs. Thomas was born in Baraga in 1883 and for many years made that her home there, where her parents still reside. Her maiden name was Bertha Querbeck.

Ontonagon—Prof. Davis of the University of Michigan, who visited the Ontonagan schools last week, expressed himself as being pleased over some of the changes which have been made in the course of study and suggested the substitution of general history for ancient and modern history.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

Five carloads of stock were shipped from here Thursday. They have been bought up the last couple days by a buyer from Wisconsin.

New York Mills—J. W. Lahll, the editor of the Finnish newspaper, received a very handsome gold ring from Finland last week, it being in memory of his fiftieth birthday, a token from friends in his fatherland.

Little Falls—Messrs. Leavitt and Ringdahl of the state board of control arrived Tuesday to inspect sites for an inebriates' hospital offered by Little Falls and Royalton.

Minneapolis—F. E. Resche, probation officer of Duluth, spent Wednesday in Minneapolis. He was accompanied by Mrs. Resche and they were guests of Police Matron Sarah Schaeffer.

St. Paul—Edward Thomas, a St. Paul barber, who eloped with Genevieve Vegal, from St. Paul, Aug. 27, has been arrested at Marble Rock, Iowa, and brought back to St. Paul. Thomas boarded at the home of the girl, who is but 14 years of age.

Rochester—An old landmark in the city of Rochester is about to be torn down, the building located on Main street and known as the old Easton building. It was built in 1856.

Sauk Rapids — The rig occupied by Charles Peterson and Nick Wiedest was struck by a passenger train two miles this side of River Wednesday night. Peterson was hurled fifty feet in the air, one arm and several ribs being broken in the fall, besides internal injuries.

Winona—The steamer built for former Governor S. R. Van Sant at Wabasha is to be called the Keokuk. It is officially measured as 138 feet long with a thirty-foot beam and a depth of four feet, and is furnished with all modern appointments.

Morris—County ditch No. 3 has been ordered by the commissioners of Stevens county, and work will be commenced early in the spring. The ditch reclaims land in the townships of Scott and Baker and will cost approximately $12,000.

Rochester — Conductor Walter Flanders, of the Great Western railroad, was seriously injured by the accidental discharge of a shotgun yesterday. He pulled the weapon from a buggy, muzzle first. The hammer caught on the end board, and the gun was discharged, blowing his right arm to shreds. He is in the hospital, and will lose his arm as far as the elbow.

St. Paul—Governor Johnson has referred the request of the guards and employes at the Stillwater prison for an increase in their monthly wages to the state board of control.

TREATMENT FOR BRIGHT'S DISEASE

(Honolulu Evening Bulletin).

It is a curious but satisfactory fact that chronic Bright's Disease, which, according to medical authorities, is an incurable and fatal disease, is now actually being cured. We have not attached importance to the statements of recoveries we have seen in the papers from the States, but that they are not all rumors is now evident from several recoveries here.

A. H. Otis, of the Honolulu Drug Co., tells us of two interesting cases. One was swollen with dropsy due to advanced Bright's Disease, and both the patient and his physician had given up hope. Otis kept urging a trial of the new treatment until the patient finally consented. Recovery was complete, the patient leaving a few months later for California, where he now resides.

Another case was that of an officer on one of the Island steamers. He was in a hospital and considered hopeless when put on the treatment. He has now been back at his post for some time.

Otis says there are very few failures, but that it requires patience—Honolulu Bulletin.

We heard about this and sent for it in the interest of patients here. It will be pleased to give any one calling full information.

THE HORSE IS NOT HURT

Boom in Motor Cars Has Boosted Prices in England.

Few Now Imported From America—Work Animals Average $250.

London, Oct. 25.—Horses are dearer. The boom in motor cars instead of lowering the price of horses has had precisely the opposite effect. Mr. P. Hearn, one of the largest horse buyers in England, whose stock consists of about 2,000 animals of every grade, explained the cause of the rise in price this week. Incidentally, Mr. Hearn, who runs both horse and motor omnibuses, made a strong indictment against the motor omnibus, for which he declares there is no future.

"Those people who prophesied that motor cars would make horses three a penny," said Mr. Hearn, "were very much out. There are not enough horses to go around today. Many causes have conbined to send up the price of horseflesh. First of all farmers were frightened when motor cars were first introduced and breeding fell off enormously. They were afraid of being ruined, for at that time it was said that the motor vehicles would oust the horse.

"The chief cause of the scarcity is that we have depleted America and Canada of their horses. Until ten years ago the American continent had not been looked to for horses; freights were dear, and the English buyers had not discovered its possibilities.

"When they did it was a new market and American horses were shipped to England at the rate of 20,000 a year. I am speaking, of course, of the practical working horse—the 'machine' horse as they call it in America. In ten years the market had run dry, and now we import about ten American horses a month into England.

"The South African war did more to deplete the supply of horses than anything of late years, and now America wants all the horses she has for herself, while the same thing applies to Canada. Ten years ago a good horse, suitable for omnibus and heavy work, cost $75 in America, which, with the $50 freight, brought the price up to $125. Today the American horse costs exactly twice as much. One of the finest horses I have ever had is an American which cost $420.

"It is used on state occasions by the city corporation today, and I would be willing to pay almost any price for another if I could match it. After the American market gave way, the buyers tried Denmark, and in a very few months that supply was exhausted also. Now we have to rely solely on the British isles.

"The demand for trade horses in England is enormous. Ten years ago the average price was $200. Today it is $250. Next year it will be higher still. As for motor omnibuses, I have tried them, and under the present conditions they are impossible. I do not see how their prospect can ever be improved. Motor omnibuses were a mistake from the first. If the horse omnibus had to go, it was the tube and the tram which might have done it, not the motor omnibus. We were forced into handling what we have in order to protect the horse omnibuses we run. But now we cannot keep the motor vehicles on the street to pay expenses. Motor omnibuses do not make both ends meet. At a rough estimate I should say that $10,000,000 has been lost in motor omnibus ventures.

"Meanwhile it is the old vehicle that is booming. The receipts have gone up 10 per cent over all our routes, while the motor omnibus receipts are down at least 15 per cent. The public have got over the novelty, and are going back to the reliable horse omnibus. You see people standing on the curb letting motor omnibuses go by and deliberately choosing a horse drawn vehicle."

YOUTH INJURED BY STREET CAR

Foot Crushed by Wheels; Amputation is Found Neccessary.

Francis Jackson, the 10-year-old son of Mrs. Henrietta Jackson, 18 Third avenue west, met with a painful accident last evening at about 8:30 o'clock, the results of which will make the little fellow a cripple the remainder of his life.

Little Francis was playing tag with some companions on the hill. A Third street car coming down Third avenue, at the corner of West Second street, struck the lad as he darted across the track in play, and he was hurled to one side by the fender, the wheels catching one limb and crushing the bones of the leg below the ankle, so that amputation was necessary.

The boy was knocked insensible, and received severe cuts about the face and head. A passing auto picked him up and he was hurriedly taken to St. Mary's hospital, where a physician found it necessary to amputate his limb below the knee, just above the ankle. The lad is doing nicely today, and barring complications, will recover.

GERMAN SINGERS ANGRY.

Artists of Royal Opera Would Stop Invasion of Yankee Competitors.

Berlin, Oct. 25.—Bitter resentment bordering upon open mutiny is rampant in the Berlin royal opera over the increasing incursion of American singers. The presentation of Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" with practically an American cast has angered Intendant Von Hulsen's staff of German prima donnas, basos and tenors beyond measure. The "boxers," as the American singers good naturedly dub their jealous German confreres, threaten to resort to extremes if the Yankee invasion is not promptly checked.

Mme. Destinn, the leading prima donna of the opera, has put herself at the head of the movement, her particular grievance being the awarding of Butterfly, the title role, to Geraldine Farrar instead of to herself. Five Americans are now members of the Berlin royal opera ensemble—Geraldine Farrar, Harriet Rose, Putnam Griswold, Francis MacLennan and Edna Darcn.

Six years ago "No American Need Apply" was the forbidding sign which greeted ambitious aspirants to stellar honors on the kaiser's operatic stage. Since then the door has been opened wide to them, with the result that native artists foresee the time when transAtlantic competition will become intolerable. Francis MacLennan, who is making a hit as Lieut. Linkerton in "Madame Butterfly," has been engaged for the Berlin opera for five years, his debut performance in "Cavalleria Rusticana" having been a pronounced and instantaneous success.

No less than thirty-three young American men and women are now singing on various German grand operatic stages. Each of them was engaged after severe trial performances and, except in minor cases, all have become prime favorites with their local publics.

OPEN TO ATTACK.

Neglect of even an ordinary cough or cold is apt to leave the lungs sore, and especially susceptible to bronchial affections. To break up a cold quickly and cure any cough that is curable there is nothing more effective than a mixture of one-half ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine, with two ounces of glycerine and a half pint of good whisky. Take a teaspoonful every four hours. Five ounces of tincture Cinchona compound can be used instead of whisky with the same result.

The ingredients for the mixture are not expensive and can be purchased at any good drug store. It will always be found more satisfactory, however, to purchase each separately and mix them at home. Virgin Oil of Pine is a pure compound, guaranteed by the manufacturers under the Food and Drugs Act, Serial No. 451, and is prepared only in the laboratories of the Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, O., being put up, for dispensing, only in half-ounce vials, each vial securely sealed in a round wooden case.

DIVISION OF SCHOOL FUNDS

County Auditor Completes Appointment for School Districts.

The total amount of the school fund to be divided among the schools of St. Louis county, in the apportionment just completed by the county auditor, is $58,159.79. Of this amount the state furnishes $51, 882.50, and the county $6,277.29.

The independent district of Duluth will receive $28,367.50 from the state and $3,432.23 from the county.

There are sixty-two districts in the county, with 20,753 pupils. Next to Duluth, Hibbing has the largest number of pupils in its schools, with Virginia a close third. The Hibbing district will get $43,480 from the state and $421.05 from the county, while the Virginia district will get $3,470 from the state and $419.84 from the county.

BABY TORTURED BY ITCHING RASH

Face and Feet Covered—Rest Broken and Would Cry Until Tired Out—"Cradle Cap" Added to Baby's Torture—Tries Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment.

IMMEDIATE RELIEF AND SPEEDY CURE

"My baby was about nine months old when she had rash on her face and feet. Her feet seemed to irritate her most, especially nights. They would cause her to be broken of her rest, and sometimes she would cry until she was tired out. I had always used Cuticura Soap myself, and had heard of so many cures by the Cuticura Remedies that I thought I would give them a trial. The improvement was noticeable in a few hours, and before I had used one box of the Cuticura Ointment her feet were well and have never troubled her since. I also used it to remove what is known as "cradle cap" from her head, and it worked like a charm as it cleansed and healed the scalp at the same time. Now I keep Cuticura Ointment on hand in case of any little rash or insect bites, as it takes out the inflammation at once. Perhaps this may be the means of helping other suffering babies. Mrs. Hattie Currier, Thomaston, Me., June 9, 1906."

How to Choose A Heater.

In selecting a Heating Stove the average buyer notes only the general outward appearance of the stove, and the way it is trimmed, and many people are fooled into buying a stove which, while gaudy in its appearance while on the dealer's floor, soon looks shabby and becomes loose in the joints and a fuel eater instead of a fuel saver. There are a few simple points in the matter of selecting a heating stove which every buyer should know. When posted on these points the buyer is as well able to judge of the true worth of a stove when he goes into the dealer's store, as the dealer or salesman who explains the stove to him.

The two things which are absolutely essential to economy are, first: AN AIR-TIGHT CONSTRUCTION, and second, A LARGE, POSITIVE RADIATING SURFACE. AN AIR-TIGHT CONSTRUCTION IS ESSENTIAL, as when there are leaky joints to draw in air and furnish the chimney with suction, you have no control over the drafts, and no matter how you regulate them, with such a stove, the fire continues to burn, and the valuable gasses in the fuel, and much of the heat generated are allowed to escape up the chimney. With such a stove the fire is usually out in the morning, making it necessary to get up in the cold and kindle a new fire every day. If, on the other hand, a stove is absolutely air-tight, having no leaky joints to supply the chimney with draft, the fire is always under perfect control, the rooms are kept at a uniform temperature, and you need only open the drafts in the morning to have a hot, cheery fire in a few minutes' time.

A LARGE RADIATING SURFACE IS ESSENTIAL, as the true principle of heating is to keep as MANY SQUARE INCHES OF RADIATING SURFACE AS POSSIBLE UNIFORMLY HOT AND EXPOSED TO THE AIR OF THE ROOM. Every square inch of heated surface will draw in touch with it just so many cubic feet of the colder air in the room, heat it, and throw it off as warm air. This process of pulling cold air into the stove until it comes in contact with the surface, when it is heated and thrown off as heated air, higher up in the room, is constantly going on day and night as long as there is a fire in the stove, and it will readily be seen that the larger and more sensitive the heating surface of the stove and the better control you have over the fire, the more heat and greater economy you will get.

IMPERIAL UNIVERSAL

A stove which is absolutely air-tight, giving perfect control over drafts and thus over the fire, and which has a large sensitive radiating surface is the ideal thing, and will save the user many times its original cost in fuel before it is worn out, as such a stove can be kept uniformly hot for hours at a time, thus giving you approximately the same result you would get with a steam or hot water radiator.

It is the fuel that is expensive in the long run, and not the first cost of the stove, and every stove buyer should look a stove over very carefully and determine its true worth before making a purchase.

THE IMPERIAL UNIVERSAL BASE BURNER—our new model hard coal base burner for 1907—has these very essential features—positively air-tight—and having more than 300 square inches more radiating surface than any other 3-flue heater—and 500 more square inches than any other stove on the market. If you would have the most perfectly constructed heater on the market—a heater that will give you more heat and use less fuel than any made—by all means let your choice be a UNIVERSAL.

OUR TERMS:

$1.00 DOWN AND $1.00 A WEEK.
$5.00 DOWN AND $5.00 A MONTH.
Your old stove as part or first payment—and the balance $1.00 a week or $5.00 a month—these terms apply to any Universal in our store.

VETERAN EDITOR CALLED BY DEATH

Andrew L. Himlie Passes Away at Ashby, Minnesota.

A former citizen of Duluth and a well known country editor and attorney, Andrew L. Himlie, is dead at Ashby, Minn., after an illness of several months. The funeral was held this morning at Decorah, Minn.

While in Duluth Mr. Himlie was connected with the firm of Knudson & Ferguson, wholesale fruit dealers. Preceding his residence in Duluth he had been connected with the Appleton Press, of which paper he had been editor and part owner.

Mr. Himlie had been in the newspaper business for twenty years in Minnesota, the Dakotas and Wisconsin, and had edited and controlled many papers.

He is survived by a daughter and two sons at Ashby, and four brothers.

CLOQUET GIRL WEDS.

Miss Bernice Rich Becomes Wife of William Giberson of Deer River.

Clouqet, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Bernice Rich, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Rich of this city, and Mr. William Raymond Giberson of Deer River, were married Wednesday evening at 6:30, at the home of the bride, Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh officiating. The attending couple were Miss Elizabeth Rich, sister of the bride, and Bernice Foster Giberson, brother of the groom.

The bride wore white silk and carried bride's roses, while the bridesmaid wore light blue cashmere and carried white carnations. After the ceremony a very dainty wedding supper was served, in which many guests partook. The house was decorated very prettily with autumn leaves and carnations. The couple left on the evening train for Deer River, where they will be at nome on Nov. 1. The wedding presents given by their numerous friends, were many and costly.

TEN FISHERMEN ARE PROBABLY DROWNED.

Boston, Oct. 25.—The fishing schooner, Clara G. Silva, which arrived here last night, reported that twelve of her crew had strayed away during a storm and that probably ten of them had perished. The twelve were out in dories on Monday when a squall, accompanied by thick mist, struck the schooner and almost capsized her. Four dories belonging to the Silva and all bottom up, were afterwards sighted. Each of the dories had been manned by two fishermen. Another fishing schooner picked up two men in a fifth dory, but no trace of the other ten was found.

THE PRINT PAPER TRUST.

The inefficacy of anti-trust prosecutions so long as a tariff wall shuts out competition from outside the country is nowhere more clearly shown than in the case of the paper trust, which is one of the most shameless and grasping monopolies in existence.

There were, once, two paper trusts, one in the East and one in the West. The one in the West became so reckless in its greed that it was descended upon by the government and abolished. The one in the East was more cautious, and it still exists. It not only exists, but it has gathered the members of the former western trust into a tacit "gentleman's agreement" whereby each member charges the same increasing prices for paper.

The continuance of this condition is largely due to the fact that there is a tariff on pulpwood and pulp, which prevents the publishers of the United States from inviting competition from the Canadian pulpwood forests. Government effort, going to the length of abolishing one of the paper trusts, has proved ineffectual; the condition has not improved but instead is growing worse.

Government effort extended toward removing that tariff on wood and pulp would do far more, because it would encourage the entrance of outside competition.

Herman Ridder, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, gave the national conference on trusts at Chicago yesterday afternoon some interesting facts about the paper trust. He showed that the International Paper company,—the Eastern trust,—with a capital exceeding $60,000,000, is now doing a business of $21,000,000 a year, so that where up-to-date advertising department stores turn their capital over six or seven times a year, the paper trust is so watered that it can only turn its capital over in three years. It is compelling the newspapers to pay dividends on that capitalization, because the paper companies not owned by it do not compete with it, but follow its advancing scale of prices. "The supply has been brought below the demand," to quote Mr. Ridder; "the market has been starved, the surplus has been exhausted, and the price for the present year has been advanced $12 per ton on a consumption of 900,000 tons, an increase of $10,000,000 in a year."

Furthermore, there is a threat of a further advance of $10 next year, or $9,000,000 more, a total advance of $19,000,000 in two years in an industry that pays its labor only $9,000,000 a year.

The paper industry combines in defiance of the anti-trust law, and in defiance of a judgment of the court dissolving its western branch. The only relief in sight is through the removal of the tariff on wood and pulp, and that cannot come until congress revises the tariff.

This is not alone the affair of the publishers. The public is interested in a free press, widely distributed at small cost, in order that all of the people may be informed of their affairs and kept posted on the progress of events. Further pressure by the paper trusts inevitably means higher-priced newspapers.

TELLING THE DIFFERENCE.

William Hazlitt. talking about humor, said once upon a time: "Man is the only animal that laughs and weeps, for he is the only animal that is struck with the difference between what things are and what they ought to be."

This seems to strike the keynote of man's impulse toward progress, of man's responsibility and duty, and of man's right to dominion over the affairs of earth.

It would be a lot more comfortable, of course, if man did not have the faculty of seeing the difference between what is and what ought to be.

Just imagine, for instance, what a difference there would be in your life if you could accept what is as the best that could be expected and feel no worry about making it any better, because you had no perception of what it ought to be.

If you found yourself living in a cave, getting your food by scouring the woods for nuts and fruit and by killing game with a stone or a club, you would accept that condition as your natural state, and without being bothered by an ambition for better things, you would live all your life in that cave and get your living in the same uncertain manner.

But, being a man instead of a brute, you would see that things could be improved, and you would progress. You would build yourself a shelter of stones or tree trunks or bark, you would design traps and snares to make your living come easier, and by and by, slowly but surely, you would achieve what man has already achieved: handsome, warm and even luxurious houses and a complicated social system wherein the means of livelihood are so subdivided that living is easier to procure and infinitely better.

But suppose, having gone this far, man should lose his faculty of seeing the difference between things as they are and things as they ought to be.

Progress would cease and reversion to barbarism would begin immediately.

Man would strive no more for democracy and for equal opportunity. His battles that have overthrown the rule of tyrants of force and heritage would be lost; his battle to throw off the rule of plutocracy would cease. There would be no more improvements in anything; no more growth toward real social equality, no more betterment of the common lot, no more resistence to greed and the tyranny of selfishness.

Fortunately, man in the abstract still has that faculty which breeds progress. Man in the concrete sometimes lacks it. There are men so indolent that they accept what is as the best that can be, and lend to progress no personal effort of assistance.

There are two classes of men, therefore: those who see the difference between things as they are and things as they ought to be, and who try to make things as they ought to be; and those who either do not see the difference or lack sufficient public spirit to try to change things from what they are to what they ought to be.

How would you classify yourself, after thinking over the part you have taken in public affairs?

FINANCING THE CAMPAIGN.

The Wall Street Journal wants to know how the next presidential campaign is going to be financed.

We wonder. It is not too early to begin wondering, though it is altogether too early to find out. One thing, however, that seems pretty clearly established now, is that it won't be financed the way previous presidential campaigns have been. Nobody expects that Harriman will get out and run his legs off getting campaign money, unless perchance there is a candidate in the field who loves Harriman and his methods, and that is altogether improbable.

If, as the situation at present indicates as probable, both parties nominate men of progressive ideas and actions, the big financial interests that have heretofore furnished most of the money for both parties will not be likely to contribute largely, if at all. Wall street has always been a liberal giver, particularly to the Republican campaign fund, but if Roosevelt or a Rooseveltian statesman is the Republican candidate next year it may be confidently expected to freeze up and keep its spare change.

But will there be any great harm done if there is no financing except such as the people and the candidates themselves provide?

Will not the politics of the country be the cleaner and sweeter, and the government therefore the purer, if the campaign can be carried on upon a basis of "plain living and high thinking?"

Unquestionably too much campaign money is a danger, particularly if it comes, as most of it has come in the past, from great selfish interests whose profit means the people's injury. The less money available for campaign purposes, the purer the campaign will be. A certain amount is legitimate and necessary, for halls must be hired, bands must be paid, and the traveling expenses of spellbinders must be met—or at least these things are deemed necessary for the operation of a conventional campaign. But there is no need of more than this, and a campaign fund going beyond these fundamental campaign needs is too likely to be turned to improper uses.

Indeed, with the newspapers circulating so widely, there is little need even of these expenses on a large scale. A candidate for president can reach more people by addressing an audience of reporters than he can by swinging around the circle speaking directly to as many people as he can reach. The newspaper reports of speeches and arguments, and the newspaper championship of candidates, can be counted upon to spread broadcast all the information needed, and to stir up as much enthusiasm as the candidates and their policies merit, without its costing anybody a cent.

It may be a profitable and an agreeable change if campaign funds are low next year, and it may be that the experiment of going back to the simple campaigns of the olden days will be necessary.

"TAINTED MONEY" AGAIN.

The question of "tainted money" has come up again in a new and curious form.

The Foreign Missionary society of the Christian church recently decided that the money of John D. Rockefeller is "tainted," and that it wants no more of it.

At the same meeting, however, it refused to return to Mr. Rockefeller a gift of $25,000 which he had already made to it.

This is, of course, absurdly inconsistent, and comes of the silly policy of regarding some money as "tainted" and other money as pure.

If the money of Mr. Rockefeller is tainted and ought not to be accepted by churches or other institutions that are working for the uplift of humanity, it is all tainted. The $25,000 already received by this missionary society is as unwholesome as the rest of Mr. Rockefeller's money. If the society can keep the $25,000 and do good with it, it can take any money Rockefeller wants to give it and do good with that, too.

As a matter of fact, there isn't any tainted money. If Mr. Rockefeller's riches, as most of us believe, were improperly gained, that reflects upon Mr. Rockefeller himself, and not upon his money. If it has been improperly acquired, it belongs to somebody else, and the best thing that can be done with it, unless its proper owners can be found and the money restored to them, is to put it to good uses.

If it were a fact that the Rockefeller money is tainted, it is still a fact that it will buy just as much as any other money. Therefore it were a Christian thing to do, it seems, to accept all of it that is offered for good purposes, and by devoting it to noble uses to redeem it from taint and make it pure.

Those who are seeking to better the world, and who find that money is useful in doing this work, should accept money from whatever sources it is offered. How it was gained will make no difference in its purchasing power. The money gained by iniquity will do just as much good in the world as the money made in the most honest pursuit imaginable.

To accept the gifts of the iniquitous is by no means to approve evil-doing. A missionary society that accepts a gift from Mr. Rockefeller does not place itself on record as approving of rebating and merciless crushing of competition. It merely puts itself into better condition financially to do the work that is before it, and that is work that cannot be accomplished without money.

The most reasonable theory on which "tainted money" is refused is that it is given in order to conceal the odium that attaches to the manner in which it was acquired, or in order to purchase freedom from criticism. That may possibly be the reason why it is given, but if it is the reason, the money is wasted. A thief who steals money is none the less a thief because he gives part of his pelf for a useful public purpose, and criticism of his dishonesty will be none the less severe. Yet if his money can be thus diverted from evil to useful purposes, the world is so much the gainer.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Five tourists who had been some time at a Michigan summer retreat—stragglers that were advancing before the nip of first harbingers of approaching winter—were at the St. Louis hotel yesterday for a short time. They deposited on the floor before the desk a collection of golf sticks, blankets, bright and flaring, and a pile of luggage that would go well over the excess baggage figure.

Complacently viewing his surroundings from among this pile of grips, traveling bags and outing paraphernalia, was a white bull dog with eyes that fairly shone with suppressed interest; eyes that did not fail to take in every detail of the surroundings, and which looked with wistful longing at the busy crowd that seemed to be intent upon hurrying to and fro.

Suddenly the house cat hove in sight. It advanced slowly, with assured pose, for hotel cats are used to flattery, not abuse, and the hotel feline usually loses that acute sense of impending danger, that intuition that her country and backwoods cousin possesses in such a superlative degree, the sixth sense that arches the back and sends the fur of the rounded spine straight into the air as a danger signal to the enemy.

However, this is digressing. All unawares, pussy walked on to eager fido. There was an intense, low emission of dog-like gratification as the white bull sprang to the fray. Dormant instincts were aroused in pussy. The back arched, her fur stood on end, and the eyes that looked so complacently on a friendly world dilated and assumed the expression of crafty fear. Flight was obviously the discreet plan.

"They're off," shouted an interested traveling man, as the chase began. Pussy made a flying leap at the desk and cleared that obstruction as the man behind dodged to give the flying animals leeway. Fido was not far behind. Low, eager yelps emerged from his gaping mouth and added to the excitement of the chase. The little Japanese bellboys, excited by the spectacle, joined in the scramble, and the workmen who are repairing the lobby paused, with tools in hand, to watch the chase.

If there was any place that the cat did not spy in her frenzied flight, it has not been discovered. Under Settees, over writing tables, between the legs of the bellboys, over the unfinished partition of the new desk, out into the unfinished cafe, back again and then the stage setting was changed to the parlor floor.

Just how pussy escaped from the jaws of the white bull pup may never be known. That she did escape, however, is certain. The air of chagrin and defeat was heavy upon the pup as he slowly descended the stairs. He made no effort to resist capture by one of the bell boys. He unresistingly allowed a collar and chain to be placed upon him and did not complain when he was tied under the office desk for safe-keeping. The little "fronts" returned to their bench, the owner of the disturbing canine profusely apologized for the racket and excitement; the workmen resumed their labors; traveling men regretted the ending of the chase; and presently the hotel resumed the even orderly quiet that travelled before the entrance of the tourists and the dog.

W. H. Shea, a traveling man who was at the Lenox yesterday, was telling of a peculiar duel between a white duck and a pickerel. A farmer near Madison, Wis., had a flock of twenty ducks. One morning he missed one. A search of the farm failed to disclose the presence of the missing duck and then the farmer started along the bank of the stream that wends its way through his property.

Suddenly the white back of the duck stood out against the surface of the water. Its head was submerged. Approaching the object of his search the farmer discovered that a huge pickerel had swallowed the head of the duck. Both the fish and the duck were dead. The fish, of course, like most of the fish that get away—for this fish was not caught, only found—was a monster. While the farmer mourned the untimely ending of the duck, still he rejoiced in the discovery of a phase of nature study that would bring light to the eyes of Dr. Long, of nature faking propensities, and that would probably bring a strenuous denial, punctuated with J's from a man down in the White House. Mr. Shea vouches for the truth of the struggle of the fish and the duck, however.

THE WEATHER.

This is the thirteenth day of unblemished weather, a solid two weeks of delightful and joyous conditions. Not a drop of rain, not a minute of unpleasantly cold weather, nothing but a procession of charming days and splendid and glorious nights. The weather man sees no threat of worse conditions. He expects tonight and tomorrow to be fair, though partly cloudy, and tomorrow will be warmer. Last night's lowest temperature was 27 degs. and yesterday's highest was 59 degs.

A year ago today is was cloudy and unsettled after a northeaster, but the outlook was for warmer and drier weather.

The sun rose this morning at 6:41, and set tonight at 5:03, making 10 hours and 22 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The Saskatchewan high pressure has moved its center to the Dakotas and has caused decidedly cooler weather in those states, Manitoba, Minnesota, Western Wisconsin, Western Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado and New Mexico, the lowest temperatures varying from 12 degs. to 20 degs. above zero in Manitoba, the Eastern Dakotas and Northern Minnesota. Disturbances central over Alberta and off the California coast caused light rains during the past twenty-four hours in Pacific coast and Southwestern states. The easterly movement of the Alberta low pressure area favors generally fair weather in this locality tonight and Saturday."

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Oct. 25.—Local forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m., Saturday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesabe and Vermilion iron ranges: Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday. Warmer Saturday. Lowest temperatures tonight, 15 degs. to 20 degs. on the iron ranges, 25 degs. to 30 degs. at Duluth, Superior and Two Harbors. Fresh north to northeasterly winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Forecasts until 7 p. m., Saturday: Wisconsin: Fair tonight and Saturday. Cooler tonight.

Minnesota: Fair tonight with warmer in west portion. Saturday increasing cloudiness and warmer.

North and South Dakota: Fair tonight followed by increasing cloudiness Saturday. Rising temperature.

Upper Lakes: Light to fresh northwest to north winds, probably becoming variable Saturday. Fair weather.

Pointers by Pease.

Anoka Union: "Bust the trusts," but they don't stay busted.

One Bill Bryan seems to be always in the way.

Too much law and too little relief for the people.

Minnesota is now the bread and butter state. Add potatoes and you have a trinity worth while.

No sooner is a man mentioned for governor than a multitude cry out with a loud voice: "He won't do."

Issue Squarely Joined.

Pittsburg Dispatch: One phase of the states rights controversy will be brought squarely before the United States supreme court by the action of Judge Lochren in fining Attorney General Young of Minnesota for contempt. The offense of Attorney Young was to bring an action to enforce the recently enacted Minnesota commodity freight rates in defiance of the injunction issued by Judge Lochren in the United States court. The Minnesota attorney general brought his suit for the purpose of making an issue, and Judge Lochren, imposing the mild fine of $100, appears to accept it in an amicable spirit.

Attorney General Young's appeal carries to the supreme court directly the question whether the federal courts have the right to enjoin the enforcement of a state law, before steps have been taken for such enforcement. His contention will be that the state law is the business of the state and may not be questioned by federal courts except in the regular course of appeal from the supreme tribunal of the state against alleged injury imposed by such law, sustained by the state courts. This is the same theory that Alabama attempted to maintain by enactment penalizing appeal to a federal court before the question should be tried out in the courts of the state. A decision so directly presented will be of the utmost importance.

Taken in connection with the various appeals pending from North Carolina, Virginia and Alabama, the question of state rights is now quite comprehensively covered. In the ordinary course of events we may expect to have the controversy passed upon before the campaign of next year has reached an acute stage. The consummation is greatly to be desired, as the campaign will be benefited by not having this question injected as a political issue.

Some "Stuff" That Didn't Get In.

Winifield, Iowa, Beacon: We think the Beacon last week contained more mistakes than usual, if such a thing were possible. If we could take a scoop shovel and throw an ad together when copy comes in late we wouldn't need to get rattled and tear our shirt to get out on time, and then not make it. In our haste last week to get to press we overlooked a galley of local stuff we had up, containing some pay matter for which we had to do a certain amount of explaining. We will see that that galley of matter gets in this week if we have to use a maul to do it.

Mrs. Stoskopf on the Job.

Decorah, Iowa, Republican: Mrs. Will Stoskopf has been very busy for the last four or five weeks. She has made four baseball suits, four dresses, and besides her own family she has two boarders. She has hatched a chicken with four legs and three wings. All legs were natural and the feet all had toes, all turned the same way. The first legs were in the proper places, but the other two came out under the breast. If the chicken had lived it would have been quite a curiosity. Mrs. Stoskopf has it preserved in alcohol.

The Unfortunate Mr. Tech.

Oxford, Iowa, Mirror: Having tired of my business, my meat market and slaughter house are for sale. People have used me rough, and I want to leave Oxford Junction; therefore, my business is for sale. Also please call and settle for the meat you have already eaten and haven't paid for. Come and pay your acounts, and if you want to buy the business come at once. August Tech.

Affectionate.

Chicago News: To a lover there are but two places in the world—one where his sweetheart is and the other where she isn't.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1887.

At the chamber of commerce meeting yesterday, Secretary Phelps presented a plan for the erection of buildings suitably located and constructed for the jobbing trade. He proposed the formation of a syndicate to purchase five lots on the harbor front on which to erect five four-story brick buildings at $10,000 each, the total estimated cost of lots and buildings being $90,000. The rental of the buildings at 7 per cent net for five years would be $1,260 per year each. He proposed that the members of the syndicate pay in $35,000 cash and raise the balance on mortgage. The matter was referred to a committee. The discrimination in freight rates against Duluth, now practiced by certain railroads between here and Chicago, was made a special order for the next meeting.

The reported sinking of the propeller Ontario, with the loss of many lives, is now denied. The boat will reach Duluth early next week.

Richard Cullen has given a lot to the Catholic church to be raffled for.

Duluth was the warmest place in the Northwest yesterday morning. The thermometer registered 20 degs. above zero at 9 a. m. It was 10 degs. below at Fort Custer and much lower at all Northwestern cities than at Duluth.

Deputy Postmaster Henry says he and his associates are overworked men. The same force is now handling double the amount of business that it did a year ago.

At an early hour yesterday morning the body of Alexander McLennan was found floating in the canal. He was about 50 years of age and was a brother to William L. McLennan. He was well known in the city, having been at one time keeper of the poor farm, and also was poundmaster for the old village of Duluth.

Postmaster John Flynn has gone to Enliton, Pa., being called there by a telegram announcing the serious illness of his brother, Joseph Flynn.

J. H. Isham, the jeweler, left yesterday on a two months' visit to his old home in Pennsylvania.

B. G. Segog, George Hathaway and Dr. Davis returned yesterday from the Brule river, where they were hunting for several days.

Mr. McMahon expects to issue the first number of the West Duluth Chronicle, weekly, about Nov. 15. He has secured the promise of about 200 business men to support it for one year by their patronage.

According to the West Superior Inter-Ocean, the city across the bay is to have 200,000 people within the next few months.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Hibbing Tribune: If you don't like Jadam's jokes for a representation in congress you're a sorehead. If you do like them, you are a postmaster.

Minneota Mascot: It is little wonder that the Society of Equity is going in for politics, for with the present price of farm products the society will either have to go out of business or else seek new fields of activity. The way the bulls are boosting thinks skyward just at present it would be a shame to ask for more.

Willmar Journal: It is being hinted in some quarters that the postmasters of the country have assurances that their trust will stand and that each postmaster will become a lifelong monarch. Anyway that would do away with several petty little postoffice scraps in these United States.

St. Peter Free Press: While no intelligent person believes that a two dollar tariff on lumber is responsible for a ten dollar raise in price it remains a fact that the lumber trust absolutely refuses to consent to the repeal of the two dollar protection. Queer, isn't it?

Long Prairie Democrat: Uncle Joe Cannon is paying the expense of sixteen of the prettiest girls of Danville to push his boom for president. Uncle Joe's new method will put Fairbanks and Knox and the other conservative candidates on their mettle, but if he thinks that he can with a bevy of maidens beat a bear hunt to stir the popular pulse, he is sorely mistaken.

Pine City Pine Poker: The farmers have the same right to form trusts in order to advance their sole interests as do others who wish to corner supply and demand, and knock out the principles of political economy.

Crookston Times: Governor Johnson has not impaired his popularity with the people of this state by his outspoken declaration of his opposition to capital punishment and his repugnance to set the dates for the executions of the Beltrami county murderers.

Badger Herald-Rustler: Mr. Bryan says that if he receives the Democratic nomination for president he will not accept of campaign contributions from corporations. That is well, and it will be wise for no candidate or party to accept such aid. Trusts and monopolies do not stand well in popular estimation at present and it is no wonder. The revelation of monopolistic political help shows that invariably it has been nothing but a stupendous bribe.

Grand Marais Herald: There is too much lost energy in the world. If the force expended by college students in rushes, class fights and football games were harnessed and properly applied, it would serve to light and heat the college buildings.

Anoka Herald: The deer hunting season is approaching and with it the usual long list of fatalities. There is one fine thing about it, though, and the fact is that the football season will be nearly over then.

Mankato Free Press: Mrs. Phoebe W. Couzens has declared woman's suffrage a failure. She says women are out of place in politics. This great temperance advocate also declares that the army canteen should be restored.

FOLLY!

New York World: A vice president of that great trust company with more than $60,000,000 of deposits which has been ruined by its own officials, blames for its downfall "one man." The man he means is the president, not of the wrecked and mishandled trust company, but of the nation—Mr. Roosevelt.

It is time for such folly to cease. The people are in no mood to listen to it with patience; and let us once more remind these gentry of high finance that upon the patience of the people, upon their thrift, upon their confidence, rests the structure of business credit. These are its base; the apex is relatively unimportant.

What is the situation? The country is prosperous. The West overflows with optimism. The railroads cannot handle their business. Foreign exchange is turning heavily in our favor. And a few men have been caught gambling with other people's money and properly disciplined therefor, the innocent as usual suffering with the guilty.

To trip the policeman and let the thief escape is not the prudent part. To reerect the shaken structure of public confidence, less shrieking at executives is needed and more obedience to law. There is high railroad authority for the statement that rate regulation, that the fining of rebaters, that the cutting off of free-pass and private-car graft, that the restoration of competitive conditions, are not alone justice to the consumer but favorable to sound finance. The same will be true of energetic reforms within the state.

Let there be no dodging of the issue. Frenzied finance is the culprit at the bar. He is no patriot, and but little of a financier, who rails at honest measures to cure admitted ills instead of manfully upholding them, whether they be the salutary acts of clearing-house committees or the efforts of public officials to enforce the law.

Explanation Desired.

Say, hasn't someone all the months together shuffled so
That not until September did the April breezes blow?
And didn't gusty March this year trade places with July,
And won't the perfect days of June now soon be coming by?
And won't October, February, or else August be,
And won't the merry Maytime come when that shall twenty-three?
And will December be our spring, or January? Say,
Unless the months are shuffled, what has gone wrong, any way?

"I made the holes in the cheese."

Philadelphia Ledger: "You are accused," said the court severely to the automobilist, "of having run this man down."

"Sure I did, your honor," responded the prisoner, "but I'd heard him run down my make of machine."

Naturally, this circumstance was taken into consideration.

A Good Retort.

Pittsburg Leader: "The late Robert Pinkerton of the great detective agency," said a Chicago detective, "was a religious man.

"Once," he said, "he heard a famous evangelist preach in San Francisco. The evangelist told his hearers that his grandmother had been a good and moral woman, but she had never professed religion, and therefore he was confident that at that moment the aged lady was suffering eternal torment.

"A young man arose at this, and with a look of disgust started for the door.

"'There is a young man,' cried the evangelist, 'who is also on the downward path.'

"The young man turned. His face was very red. But he smiled pleasantly, and said, in a loud, pleasant voice:

"'Is there any message I can take to your grandmother, sir?'"

"BIG" GAMES, YET SMALL

Ohio State Meets Michigan, and Illinois is at Madison.

Both Games Are Liable to Show Surprising Features.

But two football games of any consequence are on in the West tomorrow, Minnesota and Chicago, the two teams, which now hold the supremacy of the West between them, are both idle and the Michigan-Ohio State at Ann Arbor and Wisconsin-Illinois game at Madison have little bearing on the general situation.

Coach Yost regards the Ohio State game as on of Michigan's "big" games this year. When one considers that Michigan is out of the conference and that Pennsylvania is the only top-notch team the Wolverines will meet, Yost's claim that Ohio State and Vanderbilt will furnish "big" games is only natural.

At the same time, the Ohio State game is a big one for Michigan. It means a good deal to the maize and blue people. Yost's once mighty band had trouble last year in winning from the little Buckeye school by a 6 to 0 score. Herrenstein, one of the most famous of the coaches Yost has given to the football world, is a worthy emulator of his teacher. He makes the best of the material at hand and has brought the football teams of Ohio State from a position of insignificance to one of considerable prominence. Any team, which can hold a Yost machine to one touchdown is not to be held lightly.

Yost has been working hard for the game with Herrenstein's men. He does not intend to be caught unawares and defeated or held to a point where victory is little better than defeat. In the meantime, Herrenstein has whipped a perfectly good team into shape and the battle at Ann Arbor tomorrw will be greater than the difference in the standing of the institutions would lead one to expect.

At Madison, Wisconsin's standing will be determined. The once mighty member of the West's Big Four has fallen sadly. The wearers of the cardinal are no longer held as dangerous opponents of Minnesota and Chicago as they once were. The Badgers are doing the best they can, but under faculty regulations and conference rules, the game has fallen from its former prominence in the Wisconsin institution.

Wisconsin defeated the orange and black last year by a very narrow margin. This year, Wisconsin is determined to prove superiority beyond question. A defeat by Illinois would make the fall of the Badgers from the "Big Four" complete, for Illinois cannot be classed with Chicago, Minnesota and Michigan. Last year, Iowa outplayed the Badgers in the first half of their game, although Wisconsin won by a decisive score. The Badgers cannot afford to be outplayed by Illinois tomorrow and to that end will battle desperately.

So, though both battles are insignificant from the standpoint of the general situation, they mean much to the participants and to Western football, exclusive of championship honors.

COPS ARE DEFEATED.

Naval Militia Nine Wins First Indoor Baseball Game.

The first indoor baseball game of the season in Duluth was played last evening, when the teams representing the naval militia and the city police force met on the floor at the Third Regiment armory. The game was characterized by poor work on both sides, but it was to be expected in the first game of the season, and the crowd thoroughly enjoyed the game.

At the finish the score stood 14 to 6 in favor of the marines. Neither team had much practice before the game, and to some of them the use of the indoor baseball was too sudden a change from the outdoor game. They did fairly well, however, and the material on both teams looks good. The game was, at least, given a start in Duluth, and several other contests are on the cards for the near future.

Skater vs. Runner.

Tonight, at the Lincoln park roller rink, one of the most novel athletic contests in Duluth in years will be held, when John St. Antoine, a sprinter, will run against Francis Le Beau, a roller skater. Le Beau is to skate five and three-quarter laps while St. Antoine runs four times around the rink. Both men have excellent records in their particular lines of speed competition, and the race promises to be an interesting one.

Win Three Straight.

The picked team of Duluth bowlers, which lost three straight games to a Superior team at Superior Tuesday night, retrieved its loss last night by taking three straight games from the Superior bowlers. The result forms a tie on the series of six games, and it will be necessary to roll another match of three games to decide the winners of the contest and the $25 side bet.

SULLIVAN IS COMING

The Great Ted Has Upper Peninsula League Scheme.

Duluth Doesn't Want Place in the New Circuit.

Duluth will soon have the pleasure of entertaining Ted Sullivan, baseball authority and special emissary of Charles Comiskey in scouting times, according to press advices to the Copper country. Such Duluth people as he meets will be entertained with a choice line of stuff, in the handling of which there are few better than the same Theodore. Incidentally, Ted will seek to show the owners of the Duluth Baseball club the error of their ways in using the knife on the bonds which united them to the Copper country.

Ted has conceived a beautiful visionary scheme for an Upper Peninsula league to replace the Northern-Copper Country circuit in the baseball world. He would choose a league of six clubs from Houghton, Calumet, Marquette, Ishpeming, Crystal Falls, Iron Mountain, Escanaba and Menominee, Mich., Green Bay, Appleton and Ashland, Wis., and Duluth, Minn., the latter to furnish a goodly portion of the attendance. Soon Ted will begin a swing around his proposed circuit to paint in glowing words the beauties of his scheme and the roseate prospects for success.

Ted's Upper Peninsula league plan may be all right, if he makes the salary limit about $800 and plays about three games a week. But he wants to count Duluth out first. With the exception of Houghton and Calumet, it is doubtful if any of the towns mentioned could support daily baseball, and the two Copper country towns cannot do so without winning teams in both. Calumet fans, especially, will not pay to see anything but winning ball on the part of their own team. The Copper country papers say Duluth is anxious to get a place in the new league. Here's the expression of one of the Duluth owners on the subject:

"Ted may as well spare himself the trip to Duluth, unless he wants to come just to see the people and learn just how live a town Duluth is. We are in an even worse position than the gentleman from the state made famous by Folk. We don't even want to be shown. No arguments that Ted Sullivan, or anybody else, could put forward, would induce us to go into the Upper Peninsula league. We have tried it.

"I believe that Houghton and Calumet are good baseball towns yet, I think, with good men behind their teams and good aggregations, they would both support pretty fast ball, and in a league such as Sullivan proposes they will both be strong members. But we are not considering any project to go in with Marquette, Iron Mountain, Crystal Falls or any other of those towns. They can't support the kind of baseball we want."

The plans for the revival of the Northern league are going along swimmingly. The latest applicants for membership are Fort William and Port Arthur, Ont. Through Winnipeg parties they have asked that they be considered for membership, when the new league is formed, promising that baseball shall have a lively growth there. Both towns are rather out of the way and would make a disconnected circuit, so it is not likely they can be accommodated.

The disturbances in the American association makes the situation in St. Paul and Minneapolis unsettled. If the association should enter Chicago and take the St. Paul franchise away, St. Paul would make a valuable member of the Northern-Copper Country league, and President Lennon of the St. Paul association club would probably be glad to place a team in the Northern league. If the association retains its present standing under the national agreement, the Northern league will probably get into the Twin Cities anyway. Baseball interest is being aroused in the other towns proposed for the circuit, and there is little doubt of the formation of the league with a six or eight-club corcuit.

The reserve list of the National Baseball association was received here Wednesday, showing the players who have been reserved in the minor leagues. It shows that Duluth has a claim on Al Cummings, George Krick, John Helding, R. L. Munroe, Jim Haney, J. H. McCormick, A. Williams, Frank Summers, L. L. Livingston, James Leighty, Harry Tracey and Sam Menelee.

READY FOR HARD GAME

Duluth is Anxious to Gain Victory From Blaine.

Large Crowd of Rooters Will Cross Bay for Game.

Not weak with over-confidence, but strong in the belief that they have a little better than an even chance to win, the Duluth Central high school football team will go to Superior tomorrow to meet the Blaine high school team on the driving park field. Every game played thus far this season has been fought for the pure love of victory. Tomorrow's game will be fought for love of victory over Superior. There is no team Duluth would rather win from than Superior and Superior would hold victory over Duluth sweeter than any they could gain.

With such a feeling prevailing the game cannot fail to be hard fought. Both teams will be on their mettle. They will go in with the determination to win or to go down in honorable defeat, fighting gamely for every inch of ground. For weeks past, the coaches of the two teams and the members of the squads have been working strenuously and the results of their work will be shown on the field tomorrow. The teams they send against each other will be the best that they could develop from the material of their schools and the team that wins must do so on its merits.

Arrangements for transporting the Duluth crowd to Superior were incomplete early today. It was certain that the special train, if one is arranged for, will not run direct to the grounds. There is no block signal system on the Northern Pacific tracks running to the park and fear of accidents will prevent the running of the train. If coaches can be provided, the train will be run from the union depot here to the Central station at Superior and the street car system used from there to the park. The game will start at 3:30, which should give Duluth people plenty of time to get to the grounds, although they will necessarily get an early start.

Coach Colton last evening gave the Centrals the last hard practice before the game. He put the boys through stiff scrimmage work and fast signal practice and they all stood it well. Every man is in good condition and the team will go into tomorrow's game ready for a hard battle. This week's work has worked a number of important improvements in the team and the eleven, which will face Blaine on the kick-off tomorrow, will be stronger than any, which has started a Duluth game this year.

Blaine has also been working hard. The coaches and members of the team saw the Duluth-Minneapolis Central game at Athletic park last Saturday and they have been working with a view to combating Duluth's style of play. Coach Colton has been developing new plays and formations during the past week and Superior is likely to find itself up against some surprises. Speed will be largely depended upon by Duluth tomorrow. Caulkins has been reading signals quickly and getting his team away in whirlwind fashion during the practice this week and he will keep Blaine on the jump all through tomorrow's game.

The teams will line up as follows:

| Duluth— | | Superior— |
|---|---|---|
| Coventry | center | A. Smith |
| Pare | R. guard | St. Pierre |
| Crawford | R. tackle | Nord |
| McFadden | R. end | J. Smith |

COMPANY STRENGTHENED.

Representatives of Steel Corporation Added to Allis-Chalmers Directorate.

Milwaukee, Oct. 25.—At the annual meeting of the Allis-Chalmers company in Jersey City yesterday, the executive and financial committees, which have heretofore been the potent factors in the management, have been abolished. Rumors were abroad that the Allis interests would withdraw from active participation in the business, but both Charles and William Allis are of the directors. W. H. Whiteside is given fuller powers and the additions of important representatives of the United States Steel corporation to the directory are accepted here as an earnest of stability and permanency in both financial and commercial policy.

This feeling is given strength by the addition of Herman W. Falk of this city to the directory. He is the president of the Falk Manufacturing company and a director of the Wisconsin National bank, and his acceptance of the place upon the directory of the Allis-Chalmers company is looked upon as evidence that the future of the concern is assured.

KILLED BY SHOCK

From Blasting Near Her House Was East Liverpool Woman.

East Liverpool, Ohio, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Harry Farrell is dead, the victim, it is said, of nervous shock, due to blasting operations in a gravel bank near her house. Repeated requests had been made to the police to have the blasting stopped, in accordance with the terms of a city ordinance, but they went unheeded. City officials own the gravel bank.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Sylvester Harrison is missing from Wichita, Kan., and charges have been filed against him in the Sedgwick county court by Mrs. Kate Cathers in which she alleges that he has with him $10,000 of her money secured from her in what she claims was a real estate swindle.

A big prairie fire has been sweeping everything before it for the past three days on the Sioux Indian reservation in Nebraska. It started near Beeck Creek and has been burning in a southeasterly direction. It has already done a great deal of damage and as the dead grass is heavy, it is likely there will be much damage.

The operating force of the Western Union and Postal telegraph offices at Butte, Mont., resumed services Thursday, and, it is said, the local union will officially declare the strike off.

William J. Bryan addressed a large audience in Troy, N. Y., Thursday night, speaking on "The Old World and Its Ways."

Hugo E. Vokecks, charged with blackmailing by Raymond Hitchcock, the actor, waived examination in police court in New York, Thursday, and was bound over to await the action of the grand jury. His bail was increased from $1,000 to $2,500.

A jury in the criminal branch of the supreme court in New York found Dr. Walter R. Gillette, former vice president of the Mutual Insurance company, guilty of perjury in the third degree. The verdict was accompanied with a recommendation for mercy. The maximum penalty for this degree of perjury is ten years' imprisonment.

RHEUMATISM CAN NOT BE RUBBED AWAY

Rubbing with liniments, blistering the affected parts, the application of plasters, and other means of external treatment, are usually helpful in relieving the pains and aches of Rheumatism, but such remedies do not reach the CAUSE of the disease, and are therefore in no sense curative. Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid in the blood, brought about by indigestion, poor bowel action, weak kidneys, and a general sluggish condition of the system. The circulation deposits this irritating poison in the different muscles, nerves, tissues and joints of the body, and soon the painful symptoms of Rheumatism are produced. The pains at first may be wandering and slight; but as the blood becomes more fully saturated with the uric acid poison, the disease grows worse and after awhile gets to be chronic. The slight, wandering pains now become sharp and cutting at the least exposure to dampness or night air, or any constitutional irregularity, the bones ache, the muscles are not as free in action as before, and where the acid poison is allowed to remain in the blood the joints often become so clogged with corrosive substances that they are left permanently stiff and useless. Rheumatism can never be rubbed away, nor can it be conquered and driven from the system until the acid-laden blood has been cleansed and purified. No other medicine does this so effectually as S. S. S. It dissolves and removes the impurities and sends a stream of rich, strong blood to the affected parts, which soothes the irritated nerves, inflamed muscles and flesh, and the sufferer obtains relief that is permanent because the real cause of the disease has been removed. Special book on Rheumatism and any medical advice desired free.

FAMILY IS DESTITUTE

Fire Wiped Out Home and Belongings of C. Archambault.

Savings Secreted in Dresser Burned---Baby's Narrow Escape.

Bad luck seems to follow the destinies of Cyril Archambault and family, whose little home at 118 Twenty-fourth avenue west, was completely destroyed by fire yesterday and the clothing, furniture and household belongings of the family consumed by the flames. A sum of about $40 which had been saved for the purpose of fitting out the children so that they might be able to go to school, was secreted in a dresser drawer and this also was lost in the fire. About the only things saved were the clothes, the members of the unfortunate family had on their backs at the time of the fire, and a watch belonging to Mrs. Archambault.

It appears from the further detail of the fire that an infant child which was lying on the bed at the time of the fire, was snatched from the burning building just in the nick of time by the mother who had been out to the wood pile for wood, and turning discovered the small building in flames.

She dashed back to the house and snatching up her sleeping babe made her way through a cloud of smoke to the fresh air, sinking in an almost exhausted heap at the feet of neighbors, who had arrived by this time, anxious to do anything they could to check the flames.

The husband was absent at the time of the fire which wiped out his little home and all of his savings for the winter. He is employed at Fifteenth avenue west by a contractor, and is said to be a hard working, industrious man.

The family consists of the parents and six children, the oldest being 10 years of age, and the husband had just completed fixing up his little home comfortably for the winter. He had furnished the means for clothing those of his family old enough to go to school and prosperity seemed to bid fair to remain with him when the fire came.

They are said to be absolutely in want now, and friends have volunteered to give the family temporary shelter for a time and aid them as much as possible. They are located at flat 6, Green block, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Superior street.

The mother was confined in a local hospital some three years ago, and the husband toiled hard to keep his little family comfortable, and pay the expenses of his wife's sickness. This last disaster has been a severe blow to him and it is feared may affect the mind of the mother, who is of a nervous temperament and far from strong.

NATURE PROVIDES FOR SICK WOMEN

a more potent remedy in the roots and herbs of the field than was ever produced from drugs.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers few drugs were used in medicines and Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., in her study of roots and herbs and their power over disease discovered and gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

is an honest, tried and true remedy of unquestionable therapeutic value.

During its record of more than thirty years, its long list of actual cures of those serious ills peculiar to women, entitles Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to the respect and confidence of every fair minded person and every thinking woman.

When women are troubled with irregular or painful functions, weakness, displacements, ulceration or inflammation, backache, flatulency, general debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

No other remedy in the country has such a record of cures of female ills, and thousands of women residing in every part of the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable compound and what it has done for them.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. For twenty-five years she has been advising sick women free of charge. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and as her assistant for years before her decease advised under her immediate direction. Address, Lynn, Mass.

CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

A. O. U. W. Will Observe Its Thirty-Ninth Anniversary.

Will Hold Services at Methodist Church Sunday Afternoon.

Next Sunday occurs the thirty-ninth anniversary of the Ancient Order of United Workmen fraternal organization, and the several Duluth lodges will observe the same with union services in the First Methodist church, beginning at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. There are four lodges of the A. O. U. W. in Duluth. The West Duluth and the West end lodges will meet at the West end hall at 1:30 p. m. Sunday and march to Mesaba avenue, where they will be met by the two uptown lodges and the line of march will be observed to the church.

The program will be in charge of T. J. St. Germain, chairman, and Rev. E. C. Clemans will deliver the address.

Music for the march will be furnished by Flaaten's Third Regiment band.

An exceptionally fine program has been arranged for the services at the church, and it is expected that the attendance there will be very large.

Hard Times in Kansas.

The old days of grasshoppers and drouth are almost forgotten in the prosperous Kansas of today; although a citizen of Cedell, Earl Shamburg, has not yet forgotten a hard time he encountered. He says: "I was worn out and discouraged by coughing night and day, and could find no relief till I tried Dr. King's New Discovery. It took less than one bottle to completely cure me." The safest and most reliable cough and cold cure and lung and throat healer ever discovered. Guaranteed by all drug stores 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

TO PUT DOWN ANARCHISTS.

Life of a London Inspector is Endangered in Barcelona.

Barcelona, Oct. 25.—Inspector Arrow, who left Scotland Yard to organize here a body of police similar to that known in London as the special service branch, is being subjected to bitter attacks. Mr. Arrow has hardly begun his work yet, but his appointment has been subjected to much discussion at the city council. In spite of much organized rowdyism by an opposition party in the council, a vote of confidence in the mayor and others forming the committee controlling the new criminal investigation department was passed by 19 votes to 8.

Mr. Arrow has the hearty support of all the best classes in the city, who are thoroughly tired of the bomb-throwing practices which have given Barcelona a most unsavory reputation. Mr. Arrow is satisfied with his progress in the preliminaries necessary before his force actually begins its work. The anarchist press, and particularly El Progresso, appears to believe that Mr. Arrow is a disciple of the American Pinkerton school, and a professional strike-breaker. El Progresso refers to him as "a most bloodthirsty tyrant, who has killed many poor working men." The same paper has on different occasions made the following references to him:

"A meeting took place at the Contal theater last month to protest against the new form of police spying. Many of inspector Arrow's spies went in to create a disturbance. Some villain fired a revolver and shot an unfortunate Republican youth who was present. His blood will stain the new police. His death should end the official life of Mr. Arrow and his satellites. Arrow represents in our city a page of political perfidy, which will be read with horror by generations to come. There is something about him which arouses wrath against him, shameless hypocrite as he is."

MORMONISM IS INCREASING.

Church Has About 700 Members in London Alone.

London, Oct. 25.—Without attracting much general attention, the church of the Mormons is making considerable headway in England. The Latter-Day Saints, as they prefer to be called, claim a membership in London alone of between 600 and 700.

The chief centers of Mormonism in London are Finsbury Town hall, the Red House, Tottenham, the Imperial hall, East Dulwich and 97 Farleigh road, Stoke Newington. There are also a number of meeting places in Stratford, as well as in Enfield, where a domestic quarrel between the Anglican wife of a Mormon "saint" and her husband has brought some notoriety to the sect this week.

Elder Shorten, a youth from Salt Lake City who has been trying to convert Stoke Newington to Mormonism for the past eighteen months, described the method adopted by the church in its propaganda, which extends to every civilized country.

"There are thirty-three of us in London alone," he said. "During the seventy-six years that we have been established in this country, it is estimated that 150,000 of our converts have gone to Utah.

"Here at Stoke Newington we have a mutual improvement meeting on Tuesday, a cottage meeting, so called, because our place is not a hall but a private room, on Thursday, and Sunday services. On other nights we go out in the streets, where we often meet with a rough reception. People sometimes accuse of trying to tempt people away from their homes. We do not give them any assistance or encouragement. They go out because they hope to get better living in Utah."

STATESMEN MAKE LIMERICKS

One Takes Pride in Check for $200 Won in Contest.

London, Oct. 25.—The attack made by Mr. Byles, M.P., on limerick competitions should not lead to the inference, which is erroneous, that members of parliament are unaffected by the Limerick craze. At least one minister, the earl of Portsmouth, has confessed that a large fraction of his leisure hours is devoted to limericks, a recreation which, he thinks, relieves his mind from the strain and worry of what Lord Beaconsfield used to term "affairs."

A few weeks before the close of the last session, a well known member of the house of commons exhibited with pride a check for $200, which he had received as the winner in a limerick competition, in which he had engaged to relieve the tedium of a long and wearisome railway journey.

Fat Defeating Extraordinary.

Margaret Knolly

SLENDER Margaret Knolly, now, if you please. The fascinating leading lady of the Bijou, now more fascinating than ever, astonished all her friends on Broadway the other day by presenting to their admiring gaze a svelt and willowy form in place of the plump, not to say fat, outlines with which she gaily sailed away to new triumphs and foreign shores last January. After a good deal of diplomatic cross-examination from interested fat acquaintances the secret was cautiously whispered to a few dear friends, with the result that everybody knows it now. It was not exercise, nor fasting, nor sea air, nor worry about her new venture that had brought about this wonderful willowy change in the charming Margaret; no, none of these; nothing but a simple mixture which all good druggists are familiar with and can supply at small cost, to-wit: One-half ounce Marmola, one-half ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and three and one-half ounces of Syrup Simplex. "Grown folks need a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime," explained the now slender Margaret. "It is simply wonderful. It takes off the fat quickly, as much as a pound a day, and keeps it off. You can eat what you like, too. In that respect it is unlike anything of the kind I ever heard of, and besides it has another splendid feature—it is entirely harmless, and will not cause wrinkles. I think it is about as essential a toilet article for the woman who is fat and wants to get thinner as face powder. In order to get the best results, however, you should buy Marmola in the original package and mix it with the other two ingredients after you get home."

Food Poisons

90 Per Cent of All Diseases the Result of Undigested Putrefying Foods.

Men of affairs, women of society and children with active brains are too often sedentary in their habits, giving little time to exercise. To this evil is added that of high and irregular living—as a result, the stomach cannot stand the demands upon it. The abused and overtaxed stomach does not properly do the work of digestion, food taken in ferments and the poison permeates the whole system. The body loses in weight and becomes a prey for the attack of whatever disease it may encounter.

Did it ever occur to you how busy that stomach of your is? It only holds three pints, but in one year you force it to take in 2,400 pounds of material, digest it and prepare it for assimilation into the blood. No wonder it rebels when overworked. We crowd it with steaks and pastry, irritate its juices with spices and acids, and expect the stomach to do its work. It can't do it.

All over the inner layer of the stomach are glands which secrete the juices necessary to digestion. The entrance of food into the stomach is the signal for these glands to do their work. The more the food, and the more indigestible, the greater the demand upon them and upon the muscles of the wall adjoining.

Think of the tons of high-seasoned game, sweetmeats and appetizers crammed into this little four-ounce mill, and then wonder, if you will, why you are dizzy or nauseated or constipated. Don't blame your stomach or curse your fate that you should be born so unfortunate. Blame yourself and apply the remedy.

First, get a small package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, taking one after each meal and at bedtime. They are not a medicine, but a digestive. Your stomach is worn out and needs help, not medicine. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do the work that the stomach fails to do. There's enough power in one grain of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to digest 3,000 grains of ordinary food, so you needn't fear that anything you eat will remain in your stomach undigested.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will rout the poison because they remove the cause—food fermentation. They are nature's own cure for dyspepsia. The host of troubles dyspepsia is father of cannot be numbered, for a healthy stomach is the source of all health.

Seize your opportunity before worse conditions confront you. Send today for a free trial package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They will bring your stomach relief. F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

WONDERFUL ARE FINDS

By Young Norwegian Boy Who Has Sixth Sense.

Locates a Lost Child's Body and Traces Wounded Elk.

London, Oct. 25.—Extremely interesting facts regarding Johann Floettum, a boy clairvoyant of whom all Norway is talking, are narrated by Sir Henry Seton-Karr, who has returned to London from that country. Sir Henry has an elk forest near Sing-Sass, the native place of this boy with a "sixth sense," and so interested was he by the well authenticated stories told him by Norwegians of all classes, that he invited the lad to his shooting lodge.

"Let me first relate some of the 'cases' reported to me on the spot," said Sir Henry. "Last season many farmers complained of mysterious losses of sheep. So series did these disappearances become that it was finally decided to consult young Floettum. The boy at once stated that the sheep had been shot and eaten by Norwegian 'ryper' shooters, who needed a change of diet.

"The 'ryper' is the ordinary red grouse, and there is a certain class of shooters who live on what they can bring down. It is an extraordinary fact that after the boy's statement was noised abroad no more sheep were missed.

"Another case is that of a little girl who was lost in the woods two years ago near Aalesund. It was suggested that she had been carried away by an eagle or had been starved to death. Floettum was consulted, and, with his eyes closed, described very minutely a 'soeter,' or mountain farm, with a broken fence, where a man lived with his three children.

"He went on to 'see' one of the children who was picking berries wander away through the woods, lose her way, and finally fall into a river. The body, he said, lay under a certain waterfall, and there, sure enough, it was found, two years after the accident.

"Floettum was equally successful in tracing the body of a mentally afflicted man which was found in a deep pool. In a very recent case he described the exact spot in the snow where a man had lost his watch, and the article was promptly recovered. At present 200 men are searching, with the aid of the clues given them by Floettum, for a girl who was taken by tramps from Christiania to the coast. The boy described a cave in the mountains near Storen, and stated that the girl was alive, but very emaciated. When I left Norway the cave had been discovered, but not properly explored.

"To come to my own experiences with Floettum, I may say that they came about through elk hunting, and a certain amount of 'chaff' in regard to a big bull elk which I wounded four years ago in my forest, but could not trace, and whose head I much desired to find. There was snow on the ground at the time, but although I followed the trail of blood for a whole day, I never found the beast, and I often wondered at its immense staying power. The rain which followed completely spoilt the trail for the dogs.

"I invited young Floettum to take coffee with me and discuss that big bull elk. He is an intelligent type of the Norwegian boy, about 14 years of age, with sharp features and a rather long nose. There is not affectation about him and when he is asked a question he puts his elbows on the table, covers his eyes with his hands, and describes minutely what he 'sees.' I talk Norwegian, and I explained to him where I had started from. Then I drew a rough map for him, and asked him to describe the trail of the elk. This he did with his eyes closed.

It was an amazingly circuitous trail, ending at a pool where, he said, the elk's head and leg bones now lie. I next asked him to draw a straight line from the spot where I shot the elk to the pool. This was the most amazing part of his performance. Without a moment's hesitation he drew a straight line from one spot to the other, with his eyes closed, marking off with his pencil intervals of a hundred yards. He informed me that the spot where the head lies is exactly 1,800 yards, as the crow flies, from the spot where I shot the animal.

"One of the 'intervals' was a trifle shorter than the others. When I asked him to reason for this he explained that he was taking into account a sharp dip in the ground at this spot. This particular dip I knew well, and I was more impressed by this little detail in the boy's drawing than by anything else. Of course, I am having the spot explored, and in a few days I shall hear if the elk head is where the boy 'saw' it. I should certainly not be surprised if it were."

Hundreds of letters from all parts of the world reach the boy every week, and quite recently he received a very tempting offer to display his powers in London.

WANTED APPOINTMENT.

Papal Aspirant for Mustard Maker Loses $400 Through Clever Girl.

Paris, Oct. 25.—Paula Martini, an Italian girl, was engaged recently as a servant by a suburban grocer. As soon as she had assured him that she was first cousin to the manufacturer of mustard in ordinary to the pope, his trust in her became unbounded. Moreover, the mustard-maker was a cousin of his august customer, so that she was also related to his holiness.

The grocer was fired with ambition. If Paula Martini would only get for him the same appointment as her cousin, his fortune would be made. No rival grocer could compete with the pope's mustard-maker. So highly connected a lady naturally had the run of the shop, and she ran off with $400 from the till, and her young man, who was the grocer boy. They spent several happy weeks together in her native Venice, then came back to Paris, where they were caught.

The prosecuting grocer seemed surprised because the court smiled when he told how cleverly he had been taken in. The girl got ten months, and the grocer's boy eight.

HARDLY A PAUPER.

Supposed Indigent Left Twelve Hundred Dollars in Bank.

Waukesha, Wis., Oct. 25.—While looking over the effects of Andrew Sorenson, a pauper, who died at the poor farm a few days ago, it was discovered that he had $1,200 on deposit at the Waukesha National bank. A list of certificates of deposit show that he has been accumulating money for years. It is thought that he has no relatives and the county may put in a claim for the money to reimburse it for the expense Sorenson has been to it.

VERY HARD SENTENCE

Condemned to Drink Only Water During His Natural Life.

Dire Sentence That is Yearly Pronounced in Germany.

Berlin, Oct. 25.—To condemn a man to drink nothing but water for the rest of his natural life seems a hard sentence indeed. Yet it is one which in Germany is yearly pronounced. The occasion is at the end of the vintage season on the Rhine at the old castle of Marksburg.

Great stirs have been made in England in the last year or two regarding the gorgeous pageants that have been given there in some of the old towns, depicting the incidents of their history from the time of the early Britons down to almost the present day. Mark Twain on his recent visit was enchanted with such a pageant given at the University of Oxford. And there is talk now of pageants in some of the American cities. In fact, a new word has humorously been added to the Anglo-Saxon language in the verb "to pag."

Germany smiles complacently when such pageants are read and marveled about in England or America, for a gorgeous and historical pageant has been given on the castle-crowned slopes of the Rhine for just 526 years.

France, too, could take a lesson from Germany in this pageant. The recent troubles in the wine-growing districts of France were brought about by the adulteration of the wine. The sins of the adulterators were taken seriously, and Marcellin Albert, as readers will remember, almost led the vineyard owners and workers into bloody strife. In Germany the wine growers do not go on strike, but dress themselves up in fantastic garb and laugh and grow merry at the expense of the man who dare put profane water into the sacred wine of the Rhine region.

The little village of Branberg on the Rhine nestles at the foot of a slope covered with vineyards. At the top, crowning the heights, stands the ruined castle of Marksburg. Its moat and drawbridge, its great courtyard, its baronial hall and many battlements and towers still stand, well preserved and well kept.

In this castle 526 years ago there lived the margrave of Marksburg. He was a prince who ruled the whole region. His vassals tilled the soil and grew the vines that surrounded the castle and lived in the village of Branberg. The margrave's wine was famous. For many years he amassed great wealth from its sale. But in his old age he became miserly, and, although as much a millionaire as any man in those ancient days, he craved for yet more riches and a quicker way of getting them. So, in 1331, when the wine was all made and stored in the huge tuns that filled the princely wine cellars, the old margrave had water fetched secretly from the river and added it to each tun and hogshead and barrel.

His work was not secret enough, however. The villagers, the wine growers and wine makers discovered it. In their rage they forgot they were but the vassals of the mighty river baron. They summoned the warriors of the Pankgrafschaft to help them punish the old rascal.

When the soldiers came the margrave rang his alarm bell in vain. No sturdy villagers, no faithful vassals came to his aid. The soldiers stormed the fortress and captured it. They caught the margrave and hung him with chains. In the great courtyard where he for years had held court they tried and sentenced him to die. He was to be shot, but a wag among the soldiers suggested that a quick death was too good for a rascal who would water wine, and that he should be imprisoned for life and condemned to drink nothing but water for the rest of his days.

This suggestion, hailed with delight, was carried out. Margrave lived some years in a dungeon loaded with chains and had to subsist on black bread and water, and river water at that.

For many years the villagers made the day of his capture a fete day. They would visit the castle and re-enact the scenes of its storming, and finally the affair became an annual pageant.

Not a year has been missed. There is now a society in Branberg which takes charge of the pageant, and a similar society in Berlin. Special trains are run from this city and also from all the surrounding wine districts of the Rhine, to Branberg. The day is the greatest one in the year for the wine grower. The society has developed until now it is general, and all who favor pure wine belong to it. It teaches yearly the lesson that wine must not be adulterated. A royal prince is invited annually as the guest of honor, and a regiment of soldiers, 1,000 strong, is drafted into the district to keep order among the crowds.

The villagers alone take part. The various historical characters are allotted amongst them. Men, women and children become actors for that one day. Many of the women enact the part of pages. The village is a busy one, and as there are 200 parts to be taken, the whole populace has to dress up, and the appearance of various fat and lean women and men in garb of the middle ages adds to the enjoyment of the sightseers.

The toper of the village is selected as the margrave and is placed in the castle. Then, led by a band, the villagers troop up the slope and make an attack on the castle. The alarm bell is rung wildly, but the villagers, garbed as soldiers of the fourteenth century, rush across the drawbridge and seize the castle. Then the poor wretch who represents the margrave is seized, loaded with chains, and dragged out into the great courtyard where the trial is held.

The president of the court delivers a homily on the wickedness of adulterating Rhine wine, and others also make speeches showing the awful consequences of putting water into good wine. Then the village toper is sentenced to drink water only in the future, and the pageant proper ends.

It is a hard day for the poor toper, though, for everyone offers him brimming goblets of wine, which he dare not touch. Should he be caught drinking anything but water, dire penalties are visited on him, including a bath in the Rhine.

The fete is always held at the close of the wine season, and is just over. This year Prince Joachim Albert, the warrior prince, who lately returned from the little German war in the Cameroons, was president, and presided at the fete and heard the sentence proclaimed.

MORGAN SAVIOR OF WALL STREET

He Brought Order Out of the Financial Chaos.

New York, Oct. 25.—After remaining in the financial background for more than a year J. P. Morgan suddenly has emerged into the limelight as the ready money man of Wall street and today they are dubbing him "Ready Money" Morgan. While the great financiers were suffering from a bad case of the rattles, Mr. Morgan got busy and within an hour he had, unaided, brought something like order out of financial chaos.

His office was the pivotal point of the Wall street situation. It was like the center of a cyclone which is always calm. In the great financial storm that swept throughout the money district, banks and trust companies were bending under the pressure of disturbed public confidence and it seemed as though some must go under.

On the corner of Wall and Broad streets in the dingy old office building "Ready Money" Morgan sat cool and unruffled, continually puffing on the big black cigar for which he is famous, and while the stress of financial unrest swirled about him he gave directions that saved the day.

Men who count their wealth by millions and who have often posed as generals of finance hurried into his offices and then hastened back to their own great banking houses to carry out the suggestions of the man who had voluntarily assumed command of the situation.

Across the street in the sub-treasury building Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou watched the trend of affairs closely and conferred frequently with Mr. Morgan.

Wall street awoke to the fact that J. P. Morgan has assumed the mantle of Russell Sage and that he now has at his command the greatest amount of ready cash of any man in the United States.

SINCLAIRS IN SANITARIUM?

Both Author of "Jungle" and Wife Said to be Inmates.

Point Pleasant, N. J., Oct. 25.—There is some speculation here as to the whereabouts of Mrs. Upton B. Sinclair, wife of the Socialist and novelist, author of "The Jungle" and exposure of Packingtown secrets. Her continued absence from the Sinclair cottage at West Point Pleasant has given rise to rumors, one of which is that she may never return here.

Mr. Sinclair's home on the shores of the Manasquan river is in charge of his secretary, Miss Edith Summers, who also looks after the novelist's 5-year-old son, David. When Mr. Sinclair is away, Mrs. Sinclair's aunt, Mrs. Man, has a cottage near that of Sinclair, but has not taken any position of authority at the Sinclair home during the absence of Mrs. Sinclair.

A man who lives at Belmar, N. J., and who visited the Sinclair cottage yesterday, inquired where Mr. Sinclair was sojourning and was told he was in a sanitarium, somewhere out West, having been taken there, it was explained, on account of an attack of appendicitis.

It is also stated that Mrs. Sinclair is an inmate of a sanitarium at Battle Creek. She had suffered a nervous break down, the secretary said, at the time of the destruction by fire, on March 16 last, of Helicon hall, the home of the Socialistic colony at Englewood, N. J., founded by Sinclair. Miss Summers said she did not know when Mrs. Sinclair would return.

VOICE OF WIRELESS MAN,

Stilled by an Electric Shock, is Restored by Another.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 25.—Robert L. Mortimer, chief electrician in charge of the wireless station at the Charlestown navy yard, can talk again. Mortimer lost the power of articulation through a shock received a week ago last Sunday at the station. Dr. Belknap, of the receiving ship Wabash, had several prominent specialists confer on the case, and a scientific effort was made to cause the return of the power of speech.

Mortimer personally believed that counter-shock would produce the desired result. The doctors agreed that it would, but believed it would have to be an unexpected or accidental one to produce the results. Yesterday they were experimenting, and Mortimer received a shock most unexpectedly. It was so powerful that it floored him, almost knocking him senseless. When he was fully revived his power of speech had returned.

Now he is about the navy yard as happy as a lark and most voluble in his efforts to return all the good wishes and congratulations showered upon him and to prove that he can talk as well as ever. He says that it seems "funny," however, after seven days' rest from speaking.

FOUR INDICTMENTS

Are Returned by Grand Jury in Clay County.

Moorhead, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand jury in session here has reported four indictments as follows: Two against August Ackerman, charging robbery in the first degree; one against Ed. Brown for forgery in the second degree, and one against Frank Nelson for grand larceny in the second degree.

The grand jury returned no bill against Charles Fairchild, the Monmouth, Ill., man who committed a series of forgeries here and at other points, it being established to their satisfaction that Fairchild is of unsound mind, being now out on parole from the Illinois institution for the insane. His family has paid up all of his shortages, and he will be returned to Illinois.

No bill was returned against Charley Corfit, the young lad who was charged with breaking into beer cars.

August Ackerman, who was indicted twice, is charged with assaulting and robbing Rev. Briedablik some time ago.

DEER AND BULLDOG

Battle on Railroad Track and Canine is Stamped to Death.

Cleveland, Ohio, October 25. — A bulldog and deer fought for an hour or more on the tracks of the Cleveland & Pittsburg railway, at the Bessemer-avenue crossing. It resulted in the death of the dog under the hoofs of the bleeding and almost spent deer.

When the deer, which had escaped from the zoo, ran upon the tracks in the early afternoon the dog was at its heels, and is believed to have pursued the animal for miles. At bay, the deer turned on its tormentor, and, with lowered antlers, charged time and again at the bulldog, which, with characteristic tenacity, returned as often to the attack. It was not until more than an hour after the battle was first noticed by employes of the National Refining company that the dog finally was ground under the heels of the deer, which had just jumped from the track at the approach of a freight train.

Woman's Watchword Is Modesty.

Whatever threatens woman's delicate sense of modesty, frightens her. For this reason many a woman permits disease of the delicate womanly organs to become aggravated because she cannot bring herself to submit to the ordeal of unpleasant questionings, offensive examinations, and obnoxious local treatments, which most physicians think necessary. Doubtless thousands of the women who have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter have been led to do so by the escape thus offered from a treatment repugnant to modesty.

Any sick woman may write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., in perfect confidence; all letters of consultation being treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential, and all answers being sent in plain envelopes with no advertising or other printing upon them. Such consultation costs you nothing whether you take treatment from Dr. Pierce or not.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been long hailed as a "God-send to women." It makes weak women strong and sick women well. It enables women suffering from "female weakness," prolapsus uteri, retroversion, anteversion, and other displacements of the organs distinctly feminine, to cure themselves right in the privacy of their homes. Pelvic catarrhal drains, painful or irregular periods, backache, frequent headaches, weak nerves, dragging-down pain or distress in the lower abdominal, or pelvic, region, gnawing sensation in stomach, dizziness, or faint spells, and kindred conditions and symptoms are cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is not a secret or patent medicine, against the use of which most people of intelligence naturally object, but is, in fact, the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated and experienced physician in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments and who is not afraid to publish all its ingredients, as he does, on its bottle-wrapper, attesting the correctness of the same under oath.

"Favorite Prescription" is the one medicine for woman's delicate ailments which contains neither alcohol nor harmful, habit-forming drugs, being a pure glyceric extract of curative principles found in our most valuable native, medicinal roots, as attested by many of the most eminent medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," run-down, debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this PROVEN REMEDY OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

"The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are effected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

CHIEF GERONIMO AS AN ORATOR

Education and Christianity Best, He Tells Assembled Indians.

Collinsville, I. T., Oct. 25.—More than half a century ago a small band of Apache Indians went from Arizona down into Sonora, Old Mexico, with their families to trade in the Mexican town, and while their camp was practically unguarded, Mexican troops made an attack, killed all the guards and nearly all the woman and children of the absent Apache warriors. Among the slain, whose bodies were never recovered, were the aged mother, the young wife and the three young children of a young Apache warrior called Go-tah-yah.

On that night he made the savage vows of vengeance, and for twenty-five years he and his red friends dealt out death to Mexicans. This long and bloody series of wars won for him the title of war chief of all Apache Indians, and the Mexican name of Geronimo.

When his tribal chief, Mangus Colorado, was slain by our own soldiers in a Western fort, he undertook to avenge what he considered his wrong, an dthousands of lives were lost in the bloody wars he waged in Arizona. His name became a synonym for Indian depredations and bloody revenge.

But his wars are over. For more than twenty years he has been a prisoner of war and he has learned the lessons of peace—how well is indicated by his address, delivered at the pow wow recently in progress here, of which the following is a literal translation:

"Here are many people, red and white, men, women and children. I kindly greet you one and all.

"Because you are so numerous, and the many amusements must await my conclusion, I shall not speak long. Over all this country the white men have built schools, and to these he sends his children to learn life's wisdom. Among these schools stand many churches that point the ways of the Christian life. This is well.

"Everywhere the white men prosper. This is because of his education and his Christianity. God watches over all, red and white. He designs all men to be wise and happy and I hope that my people will follow in the white man's way in these two things, educate the children and follow the Christian religion.

"This is my council.

"I have spoken."

In personal poise and dignity, the older Indians are unsurpassed. Geronimo met O-le-co-wal-la of the Osages here for the first time and the two were formally introduced. They shook hands sedately, and after a brief pause, Geronimo said:

"I am glad to meet you. I have heard of you and your people. I am glad to know you and all the Osages. I am able this one time to come among these red men and white men free, and again to mingle unmolested among the people.

"My past life is over and I am trying to live right in the sight of God, and man. It is good that this day is appointed that we whose customs are fading away may meet again in brotherhood with each other and enjoy these festivities which white men have provided for our entertainment. I have spoken."

Then O-le-co-wal-la spoke as follows:

"I am glad to know you. I have often heard of you and our boys have all desired to meet you. All Indians are one blood and therefore brothers. It is good that we have met and extended greetings to each other. As our lives become more circumscribed by the laws and customs of the white men, we think more and more of our old ways, and of each other.

"I am glad to see and know you, and should be pleased to know your people. It is good for us to mingle with each other and with these white people, who are our neighbors.

"I repeat, I am glad, doubly glad, to know you. I have finished."

The conversation was translated into English from the Apache by David Kazah, an Apache Indian scout, and interpreter, and from the Osage by Harry Kopoh.

PART OF SENTENCE REMITTED.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The unexpired portion of the sentence suspending from duty Capt. William Swift, who was in command of the battleship Connecticut, when it went aground on Culebra island, was yesterday remitted. The court of inquiry sentenced Capt. Swift to one year suspension from duty which later was remitted to nine months. He had served six months of the time. He will be assigned to duty other than commanding a ship.

So, in 1381, when the wine was all made and stored in the huge tuns that filled the princely wine cellars, the old margrave had water fetched secretly from the river and added it to each tun and hogshead and barrel.

His work was not secret enough, however. The villagers, the wine growers and wine makers discovered it. In their rage they forgot they were but the vassals of the mighty river baron. They summoned the warriors of the Pankgrafschaft to help them punish the old rascal.

When the soldiers came the margrave rang his alarm bell in vain. No sturdy villagers, no faithful vassals came to his aid. The soldiers stormed the fortress and captured it. They caught the margrave and hung him with chains. In the great courtyard where he for years had held court they tried and sentenced him to die. He was to be shot, but a wag among the soldiers suggested that a quick death was too good for a rascal who would water wine, and that he should be imprisoned for life and condemned to drink nothing but water for the rest of his days.

This suggestion, hailed with delight, was carried out. Margrave lived some years in a dungeon loaded with chains and had to subsist on black bread and water, and river water at that.

For many years the villagers made the day of his capture a fete day. They would visit the castle and re-enact the scenes of its storming, and finally the affair became an annual pageant.

Not a year has been missed. There is now a society in Branberg which takes charge of the pageant, and a similar society in Berlin. Special trains are run from this city and also from all the surrounding wine districts of the Rhine, to Branberg. The day is the greatest one in the year for the wine grower. The society has developed until now it is general, and all who favor pure wine belong to it. It teaches yearly the lesson that wine must not be adulterated. A royal prince is invited annually as the guest of honor, and a regiment of soldiers, 1,000 strong, is drafted into the district to keep order among the crowds.

The villagers alone take part. The various historical characters are allotted amongst them. Men, women and children become actors for that one day. Many of the women enact the part of pages. The village is a tiny one, and as there are 200 parts to be taken, the whole populace has to dress up, and the appearance of various fat and lean women and men in garb of the middle ages adds to the enjoyment of the sightseers.

The toper of the village is selected as the margrave and is placed in the castle. Then, led by a band, the villagers troop up the slope and make an attack on the castle. The alarm bell is rung wildly, but the villagers, garbed as soldiers of the fourteenth century, rush across the drawbridge and seize the castle. Then the poor wretch who represents the margrave is seized, loaded with chains, and dragged out into the great courtyard where the trial is held.

The president of the court delivers a homily on the wickedness of adulterating Rhine wine, and others also make speeches showing the awful consequences of putting water into good wine. Then the village toper is sentenced to drink water only in the future, and the pageant proper ends.

It is a hard day for the poor toper, though, for everyone offers him brimming goblets of wine, which he dare not touch. Should he be caught drinking anything but water, dire penalties are visited on him, including a bath in the Rhine.

The fete is always held at the close of the wine season, and is just over. This year Prince Joachim Albert, the warrior prince, who lately returned from the little German war in the Cameroons, was president, and presided at the fete and heard the sentence proclaimed.

MORGAN SAVIOR OF WALL STREET

He Brought Order Out of the Financial Chaos.

New York, Oct. 25.—After remaining in the financial background for more than a year J. P. Morgan suddenly has emerged into the limelight as the ready money man of Wall street and today they are dubbing him "Ready Money Morgan." While the great financiers were suffering from a bad case of the rattles, Mr. Morgan got busy and within an hour he had, unaided, brought something like order out of financial chaos.

His office was the pivotal point of the Wall street situation. It was like the center of a cyclone which is always calm. In the great financial storm that swept throughout the money district, banks and trust companies were bending under the pressure of disturbed public confidence and it seemed as though some must go under.

On the corner of Wall and Broad streets in the dingy old office building "Ready Money" Morgan sat cool and unruffled, continually puffing on the big black cigar for which he is famous, and while the stress of financial unrest swirled about him he gave directions that saved the day.

Men who count their wealth by millions and who have often posed as generals of finance hurried into his offices and then hastened back to their own great banking houses to carry out the suggestions of the man who had voluntarily assumed command of the situation.

Across the street in the sub-treasury building Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou watched the trend of affairs closely and conferred frequently with Mr. Morgan.

Wall street awoke to the fact that J. P. Morgan has assumed the mantle of Russell Sage and that he now has at his command the greatest amount of ready cash of any man in the United States.

SINCLAIRS IN SANITARIUM?

Both Author of "Jungle" and Wife Said to be Inmates.

Point Pleasant, N. J., Oct. 25.—There is some speculation here as to the whereabouts of Mrs. Upton B. Sinclair, wife of the Socialist and novelist, author of "The Jungle" and exposure of Packingtown secrets. Her continued absence from the Sinclair cottage at West Point Pleasant has given rise to rumors, one of which is that she may never return here.

Mr. Sinclair's home on the shores of the Manasquan river is in charge of his secretary, Miss Edith Summers, who also looks after the novelist's 5-year-old son, David. When Mr. Sinclair is away, Mrs. Sinclair's aunt, Mrs. Man, has a cottage near that of Sinclair, but has not taken any position of authority at the Sinclair home during the absence of Mrs. Sinclair.

A man who lives at Belmar, N. J., and who visited the Sinclair cottage yesterday, inquired where Mr. Sinclair was sojourning and was told he was in a sanitarium, somewhere out West, having been taken there. It was explained, on account of an attack of appendicitis.

It is also stated that Mrs. Sinclair is an inmate of a sanitarium at Battle Creek. She had suffered a nervous break down, the secretary said, at the time of the destruction by fire, on March 16 last, of Helicon hall, the home of the Socialistic colony at Englewood, N. J., founded by Sinclair. Miss Summers said she did not know when Mrs. Sinclair would return.

VOICE OF WIRELESS MAN,

Stilled by an Electric Shock, is Restored by Another.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 25.—Robert L. Mortimer, chief electrician in charge of the wireless station at the Charlestown navy yard, can talk again. Mortimer lost the power of articulation through a shock received a week ago last Sunday at the station. Dr. Belknap, of the receiving ship Wabash, had several prominent specialists confer on the case, and a scientific effort was made to cause the return of the power of speech.

Mortimer personally believed that counter-shock would produce the desired result. The doctors agreed that it would, but believed it would have to be an unexpected or accidental one to produce the results. Yesterday they were experimenting, and Mortimer received a shock most unexpectedly. It was so powerful that it floored him, almost knocking him senseless. When he was fully revived his power of speech had returned.

Now he is about the navy yard as happy as a lark and most voluble in his efforts to return all the good wishes and congratulations showered upon him and to prove that he can talk as well as ever. He says that it seems "funny," however, after seven days' rest from speaking.

FOUR INDICTMENTS

Are Returned by Grand Jury in Clay County.

Moorhead, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand jury in session here has reported four indictments as follows: Two against August Ackerman, charging robbery in the first degree; one against Ed. Brown for forgery in the second degree, and one against Frank Nelson for grand larceny in the second degree.

The grand jury returned no bill against Charles Fairchild, the Monmouth, Ill., man who committed a series of forgeries here and at other points, it being established to their satisfaction that Fairchild is of unsound mind, being now out on parole from the Illinois institution for the insane. His family has paid up all of his shortages, and he will be returned to Illinois.

No bill was returned against Charley Corfit, the young lad who was charged with breaking into beer cars.

August Ackerman, who was indicted twice, is charged with assaulting and robbing Rev. Briedablik some time ago.

DEER AND BULLDOG

Battle on Railroad Track and Canine is Stamped to Death.

Cleveland, Ohio, October 25. — A bulldog and deer fought for an hour or more on the tracks of the Cleveland & Pittsburg railway, at the Bessemer-avenue crossing. It resulted in the death of the dog under the hoofs of the bleeding and almost spent deer.

When the deer, which had escaped from the zoo, ran upon the tracks in the early afternoon the dog was at its heels, and is believed to have pursued the animal for miles. At bay, the deer turned on its tormentor, and, with lowered antlers, charged time and again at the bulldog, which, with characteristic tenacity, returned as often to the attack. It was not until more than an hour after the battle was first noticed by employes of the National Refining company that the dog finally was ground under the heels of the deer, which had just jumped from the track at the approach of a freight train.

Woman's Watchword Is Modesty.

Whatever threatens woman's delicate sense of modesty, frightens her. For this reason many a woman permits disease of the delicate womanly organs to become aggravated because she cannot bring herself to submit to the ordeal of unpleasant questionings, offensive examinations, and obnoxious local treatments, which most physicians think necessary. Doubtless thousands of the women who have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter have been led to do so by the escape thus offered from a treatment repugnant to modesty.

Any sick woman may write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., in perfect confidence; all letters of consultation being treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential, and all answers being sent in plain envelopes with no advertising or other printing upon them. Such consultation costs you nothing whether you take treatment from Dr. Pierce or not.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been long hailed as a "God-send to women." It makes weak women strong and sick women well. It enables women suffering from "female weakness," prolapsus uteri, retroversion, anteversion, and other displacements of the organs distinctly feminine, to cure themselves right in the privacy of their homes. Pelvic catarrhal drains, painful or irregular periods, backache, frequent headaches, weak nerves, dragging-down pain or distress in the lower abdominal, or pelvic, region, gnawing sensation in stomach, dizziness, or faint spells, and kindred conditions and symptoms are cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is not a secret or patent medicine, against the use of which most people of intelligence naturally object, but is, in fact, the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated and experienced physician in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments and who is not afraid to publish all its ingredients, as he does, on its bottle-wrapper, attesting the correctness of the same under oath.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for woman's delicate ailments which contains neither alcohol nor harmful, habit-forming drugs, being a pure glyceric extract of curative principles found in our most valuable native, medicinal roots, as attested by many of the most eminent medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

"The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are effected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

Education and Christianity Best, He Tells Assembled Indians.

Collinsville, I. T., Oct. 25.—More than half a century ago a small band of Apache Indians went from Arizona down into Sonora, Old Mexico, with their families to trade in the Mexican town, and while their camp was practically unguarded, Mexican troops made an attack, killed all the guards and nearly all the woman and children of the absent Apache warriors. Among the slain, whose bodies were never recovered, were the aged mother, the young wife and the three young children of a young Apache warrior called Go-tah-yah.

On that night he made the savage vows of vengeance, and for twenty-five years he and his red friends dealt out death to Mexicans. This long and bloody series of wars won for him the title of war chief of all Apache Indians, and the Mexican name of Geronimo.

When his tribal chief, Mangus Colorado, was slain by our own soldiers in a Western fort, he undertook to avenge what he considered his wrong, an dthousands of lives were lost in the bloody wars he waged in Arizona. His name became a synonym for Indian depredations and bloody revenge.

But his wars are over. For more than twenty years he has been a prisoner of war and he has learned the lessons of peace—how well is indicated by his address, delivered at the pow wow recently in progress here, of which the following is a literal translation:

"Here are many people, red and white, men, women and children. I kindly greet you one and all.

"Because you are so numerous, and the many amusements must await my conclusion, I shall not speak long. Over all this country the white men have built schools, and to these he sends his children to learn life's wisdom. Among these schools stand many churches that point the ways of the Christian life. This is well.

"Everywhere the white men prosper. This is because of his education and his Christianity. God watches over all, red and white. He designs all men to be wise and happy and I hope that my people will follow in the white man's way in these two things, educate the children and follow the Christian religion.

"This is my council.

"I have spoken."

In personal poise and dignity, the older Indians are unsurpassed. Geronimo met O-le-co-wal-la of the Osages here for the first time and the two were formally introduced. They shook hands sedately, and after a brief pause, Geronimo said:

"I am glad to meet you. I have heard of you and your people. I am glad to know you and all the Osages. I am able this one time to come among these red men and white men free, and again to mingle unmolested among the people.

"My past life is over and I am trying to live right in the sight of God, and man. It is good that this day is appointed that we whose customs are fading away may meet again in brotherhood with each other and enjoy these festivities which white men have provided for our entertainment. I have spoken."

Then O-le-co-wal-la spoke as follows:

"I am glad to know you. I have often heard of you and our boys have all desired to meet you. All Indians are one blood and therefore brothers. It is good that we have met and extended greetings to each other. As our lives become more circumscribed by the laws and customs of the white men, we think more and more of our old ways, and of each other.

"I am glad to see and know you, and should be pleased to know your people. It is good for us to mingle with each other and with these white people, who are our neighbors.

"I repeat, I am glad, doubly glad, to know you. I have finished."

The conversation was translated into English from the Apache by David Kazah, an Apache Indian scout, and interpreter, and from the Osage by Harry Kopoh.

BOARD MUST ACT FIRST

Initiative in Courthouse Matter Lies With County Board.

Adequate Building Cannot be Erected for Amount Appropriated.

Ever since the public meeting in the Commercial club, several days ago, when the taxpayers met to discuss the plans for the new courthouse, and express their sentiment for or against the grouping plan for the public buildings, suggested by D. H. Burnham & Co., the architects, there has been more or less inquiry among the people as to what is going to be done about the matter. They are wondering if the courthouse site and the grouping plan is to be dropped where it is, and whether the courthouse commission or the county board has taken, or will take, any action in the matter.

The initiative in the matter lies with the board of county commissioners. That is the body of men who will say whether the county will choose a different site than that already selected; whether the county will buy more ground and provide from the public revenues the money necessary to make the improvement.

Under the law the courthouse commission will approve or disapprove of any action the county board might take in the matter of changing the site or the purchase of more ground, but when it comes to the financial end of the business, it is up to the county board alone to fix the amount of money that will be spent for grounds and for the building. The courthouse commission will have the spending of the funds provided by the county board.

Next Meeting Important.

As near as can be gathered from the sentiment of the courthouse commissioners, the commission does not intend in any way to use its influence with the county board in the matter of a change of site, or for the grouping plan. If the taxpayers want the grouping plan adopted, if they want a different site for the new courthouse than that already selected by the county board, it is up to them to get their wishes before the county board, and that, too, at the meeting to be held the first week of the coming month.

There is a general sentiment among the local taxpayers, at least, that the Commercial club of this city should, as an organization, make some expression as to the choice of a building plan for a courthouse; whether it should be erected on the site already chosen, or whether there should be the acquisition of other ground, with a view of following out the grouping scheme.

That the county board cannot build a courthouse, adequate for the transaction of its business for the $700,000 appropriated by the county board seems to have been generally accepted by the people as a fact. The architects have gone into the matter carefully, and they claim that a building which will meet the demands of the county will cost at least $1,250,000, and there seems to be a strong sentiment among the taxpayers in favor of an appropriation in that amount. The courthouse commissioners have been attempting to reconcile the county's demands with the appropriation, and, it is understood, have completely failed to make the "pile fit the wants." One taxpayer has suggested, facetiously, that the county might build a courthouse out of corrugated iron, instead of brick and stone. The architects say that is about the sort of construction that would have to be adopted to get the proposed courthouse within the appropriation.

Saving by Delay.

Another important thing that is being considered in connection with the delay of the construction work is that the county is probably saving money by the delay. Burnham & Co., who are planning buildings and supervising contract work all over the country, state positively that building operations will be a great deal cheaper next season than this. One of the architects recently made the statement that in the cost of a building, figured on the basis of $110,000 this year, the same building can be erected next year for about $100,000.

The architects have argued this prediction of reduced cost on the courthouse commission every opportunity they have had, and it has, coming from the source it does, carried a great deal of weight.

TO SUCCEED NICHOLAS

Prince George Yourievski Mentioned as Next Ruler of Russia

He is a Descendant of the Famous House of Dolgorouki.

London, Oct. 25.—Prince George Yourievski, a natural son of Emperor Alexander II of Russia, has been mentioned as a candidate for the throne in the place of the Romanoff dynasty, by those who are always bent upon making trouble in Russia. His half brother, the later Alexander III, although credited with being dull witted, was always afraid of something of the kind happening, and for this reason, more than any other, banished Princess Yourievski and her children from Russia within a few days after the murder of his father. The princess has never been allowed to return to Russia since, and is ignored by the Russian embassy in France, although some of the grand dukes have dined with her at Paris and at her villa, in the South of France, as if to show their independence of the emperor.

The late czar, when asked to permit his half-brother to fufill those military duties which are encumbent upon every Russian citizen, declined to give him the customary commission in the army, but assigned him to the navy, where the discipline is more strict, where the lad would have less opportunity of being made much of and where it was possible to keep him at conveniently remote stations. But when Nicholas II came to the throne he changed all this, and gave his young kinsman a commission in one of the crack regiments of the guards, and it was not long before the prince became a conspicuous personage, the more so as he possessed vast wealth, his father having a year before his death invested many millions of dollars abroad for the benefit of his second wife and of his children by her.

Prince George Yourievski, besides being a tall, handsome man, with his father's winning manners and with all the outward appearance, brilliancy and dash calculated to render him popular, has the advantage in the eyes of many of his countrymen, of being infinitely more Russian than any of the legitimate members of the reigning family. For whereas the grand dukes and grand duchesses have had German mothers, grandmothers and great-grandmothers, Prince George has a mother who is a member of the essentially Muscovite house of Dolgorouki, the name of which figures on almost every page of Russian history, and which in point of ancestral luster ranks that of Romanoff. In fact, the Dolgoroukis claim descent not only from Rurik, the founder of the house of Romanoff, but also from St. Vladimir, the patron saint of Russia.

The name Dolgorouki means "Long Hand," or, rather, "Long Arm," and was borne for the first time in the twelfth century by George, the eighth son of Vladimir Monomas, a descendant of St. Vladimir. The Dolgoroukis were princes before the Romanoffs became czars. The first Romanoff emperor, Czar Michael, married a Princess Dolgorouki, and Peter II died in 1730 on the very morning of the day appointed for his wedding to another Princess Dolgorouki. Her brother, Ivan, was not only banished to Siberia by Empress Anne, but also subsequently put to the sword with nearly all the members of his family.

Among the most celebrated members of the house have been James Dolgorouki, who was chief of the first embassy every dispatched by Russia to France, and who, as one of the principal advisers of Peter the Great, distinguished himself by the frankness and the independence with which he resisted the despotic commands of the emperor whenever they did not meet with his views.

It is to Prince Vasil Dolgorouki, the celebrated general and lover of Catharine the Great, that Russia is indebted for the conquest of Crimea, and Prince Ivan Dolgorouki was one of the most famous of all Russia's poets. Throughout the nineteenth century the Dolgoroukis figured conspicuously at the court of St. Petersburg, in government affairs, in the army and diplomacy, and for the last ten years of his life Alexander II was completely subject to the domination of Princess Catherine Dolgorouki, who had made her debut at court as a maid of honor of Empress Marie. For her sake Alexander II neglected his czarina in the most shameful manner, living openly with Catherine, who bore him three children, a boy, now known as Prince George Yourievski, and two girls, in the lifetime of the empress. The closing years of the later's existence were cruelly embittered by her husband's neglect and by the favor which he publicly bestowed upon her maid of honor; and barely six weeks after the czarina's lonely death in the South of France, he married morganatically at St. Petersburg, her rival. Catherine Dolgorouki, who was created shortly afterward Princess Yourievski, with the understanding that this name, together with the princely title, should be borne by her three children.

There is no doubt that she exercised a very powerful influence upon Alexander II. Gen. Loris Melikoff, who possessed all the intuition and cleverness of the Armenian race, to which he belonged, was the first to realize this, and formed with her a species of alliance. It was he who urged Alexander II to legalize his relations with her by marriage, a fact which Alexander III, who was devoted to his mother, never forgot or forgave. In return, the princess induced the emperor to invest Melikoff with the powers of a dictator and to confer upon him the title of count, together Loris Melikoff and Princess Yourievski drew up and elaborated that national constitution which the ill-fated czar was to have signed on the very evening of the day on which he was blown to fragments by the bombs of the nihilists. Had it not been for this successful atempt on his life the ukase endowing Russia with a national constitution and a parliamentary form of government would have been promulgated on the following day, and Catherine would have eventually been raised to the rank of czarina. Alexander III was too horified by the shocking death of his father to fulfill the latter's intentions with regard to the grant of a constitution, holding hat it would be construed as a concession to his father's assassins, wrung from himself by fear.

His Dear Old Mother.

"My dear old mother, who is now eighty three years old, thrives on Electric Bitters," writes W. B. Brunson, of Dublin, Ga. "She has taken them for about two years and enjoys an excellent appetite, feels strong and sleeps well." # MISS GOULD IS HIGHLY HONORED

She Reviews 20,000 Regular Soldiers at Fort Leavenworth.

Fort Leavenworth, Kan., Oct. 25.—An honor accorded only to queens in Europe, and unprecedented in the United States, was vouchsafed Miss Helen Miller Gould when, seated on horseback in the center of the parade ground, she reviewed 2,000 marching United States regular troops.

The salute was given her by the parading troops as though she had been the president or the commandant of the department of the West. The extraordinary spectacle almost overcome the philanthropic lady, whose eyes filled with tears as the gorgeous pageant swept past.

It was in recognition of Miss Gould's munificence in providing a $50,000 Young Men's Christian association building for the soldiers of the reservation that every man from Brig. Gen. Hall down to the greenest, awkward squadder donned his finest trappings and deployed, fired volleys, double-quicked, then marched on again to the strains of a dozen bands under the colors.

Then when Miss Gould had reviewed them they tramped into the beautiful building she had given them and listened to her praises declaimed at its dedication by Governor Hoch, Gen. Hall and J. M. Miller, the international secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

At night there was held a great reception for Miss Gould, at which she shook hands with all the soldiers.

YIDDISH PLAY IN LONDON.

Jewish Playhouse in the Ghetto on a Permanent Basis.

London, Oct. 25.—Since a Jewish playhouse was opened on a permanent basis at the Pavilion theater, Mile End road, E., on Aug. 22, the performances of the Yiddish players have been receiving recognition from all parts of London, until now many people who frequent the stalls and boxes of the West End theaters are to be found making their way to Whitechapel to learn for themselves something of this playhouse where English is never spoken.

Mr. Sigmund Feinmen, the director of the Yiddish theater, its leading actor in tragic roles, an able stage manager and the author of thirty plays, is a Russian Jew, who for twenty years has been connected with the Yiddish theaters of New York.

"I have been in the habit of visiting London from time to time, he said the other day, "and eventually I decided this year to remain permanently and combine with others to establish a theater here for our own people. We have spent much money and labor in reconstructing the Pavilion theater. Since the opening night last August we have received most enthusiastic support from our own people. They began by thinking that a theater for themselves was a good thing; now they regard it as a necessity.

"Our people here are poor, and therefore we want patrons from other parts of London. We are getting many of them and we are very proud to see them. Great ladies of title visit our theater now. We have had an English prince and princess. We recognize that the West End is beginning to send us patrons and some of them—ladies and gentlemen of high rank—have written to say how pleased they were with our efforts and that they will come again."

SWINDLES IN CLERICAL GARB

Stranger With Bridal Couple Gets Signatures to "Certificates."

Kittanning, Pa., Oct. 25.—Men wearing ministerial garbs had better keep away from the farmers of Indiana county. About twenty wealthy residents of the county have been swindled on a game which is new and original in this section, if not in the country.

A man wearing ministerial clothes, and who says grace at the table and invites the family to join in evening prayer, has been going about among the farmers, and, being overtaken at night, has usually been invited to remain with the family. He has always selected the men who are known to have money.

Next morning, as the alleged preacher is ready to depart, a young man and woman ride up in a buggy and hurriedly ask where they can find a minister, as they are anxious to get married. The young man usually displays a roll of bills, and the visiting parson, trying to earn an honest dollar, offers to marry them.

After the ceremony the visiting minister asks the farmer if he will witness the marriage certificate, which the farmers have been doing. Later they are told that a promissory note is in the neighboring bank, and they are called to pay up.

W. B. Templeton, of Adrian, Indiana county, a wealthy farmer, has made a complaint to the Indiana authorities, to the effect that in this manner he was victimized out of $300, which he had to pay on what he thought was a marriage certificate, which proved to be a promissory note.

THINK LIVING TOO HIGH.

The Cost at Constantinople Increases 40 Per Cent.

Constantinople, Oct. 25.—Turkish newspapers publish a communication, which may be regarded as semi-official, to the effect that a commission which has been appointed to inquire into the best means for putting an end to the distress caused by the high price of bread and other necessaries of life, has recommended the temporary prohibition of the export of wheat and the suspension of the import duties on grain, and that these measures have been sanctioned by the Imperial Trade. They have not yet been put into effect—indeed, it is doubtful whether the export of wheat could be restored without the consent of the foreign missions whose nationals are engaged in the grain trade—but the fact that such exceptional measures are contemplated shows what concern has been excited by the present scarcity of provisions.

For some time past the cost of living has been steadily rising in Constantinople, and now it is nearly 40 per cent more than it was three years ago. The rise is particularly noticeable in the case of bread, which forms almost the sole food of the poorer classes, and fuel, which equally is one of the necessaries of life, especially in winter.

The failure of this year's crop in many parts of Turkey is likely to cause something like famine, and the peasants are reported already to be selling their cattle, partly to buy food, and partly to save the expense of keeping them during the winter. Anxiety is expressed in some quarters lest the anticipated distress should lead to serious disorders. A few weeks ago the people at Erzerum mobbed and killed two merchants, one an Armenian and one a Mussulman, who were suspected of making a corner in grain, and it is feared that outrages of this kind will become common if the price of bread and fuel should rise much higher.

It makes no difference how severe the case may be, "5-DROPS," if used as directed, will give quick relief. Rheumatism is caused by an acid poison which accumulates in the system, settling in the joints, nerves or muscles, and causing the most intense pain. It is a blood disease and can only be cured by cleansing the blood of its impurities. No liniment can ever cure rheumatism, although if the right kind be used it will stop the pains for the time being. Swanson's "5-DROPS" is both an internal and external remedy. Applied externally it will prevent those horrible pains with which a rheumatic victim suffers. # BOARD MUST ACT FIRST

Initiative in Courthouse Matter Lies With County Board.

Adequate Building Cannot be Erected for Amount Appropriated.

Ever since the public meeting in the Commercial club, several days ago, when the taxpayers met to discuss the plans for the new courthouse, and express their sentiment for or against the grouping plan for the public buildings, suggested by D. H. Burnham & Co., the architects, there has been more or less inquiry among the people as to what is going to be done about the matter. They are wondering if the courthouse site and the grouping plan is to be dropped where it is, and whether the courthouse commission or the county board has taken, or will take, any action in the matter.

The initiative in the matter lies with the board of county commissioners. That is the body of men who will say whether the county will choose a different site than that already selected; whether the county will buy more ground and provide from the public revenues the money necessary to make the improvement.

Under the law the courthouse commission will approve or disapprove of any action the county board might take in the matter of changing the site or the purchase of more ground, but when it comes to the financial end of the business, it is up to the county board alone to fix the amount of money that will be spent for grounds and for the building. The courthouse commission will have the spending of the funds provided by the county board.

Next Meeting Important.

As near as can be gathered from the sentiment of the courthouse commissioners, the commission does not intend in any way to use its influence with the county board in the matter of a change of site, or for the grouping plan. If the taxpayers want the grouping plan adopted, if they want a different site for the new courthouse than that already selected by the county board, it is up to them to get their wishes before the county board, and that, too, at the meeting to be held the first week of the coming month.

There is a general sentiment among the local taxpayers, at least, that the Commercial club of this city should, as an organization, make some expression as to the choice of a building plan for a courthouse; whether it should be erected on the site already chosen, or whether there should be the acquisition of other ground, with a view of following out the grouping scheme.

That the county board cannot build a courthouse, adequate for the transaction of its business for the $700,000 appropriated by the county board seems to have been generally accepted by the people as a fact. The architects have gone into the matter carefully, and they claim that a building which will meet the demands of the county will cost at least $1,250,000, and there seems to be a strong sentiment among the taxpayers in favor of an appropriation in that amount. The courthouse commissioners have been attempting to reconcile the county's demands with the appropriation, and, it is understood, have completely failed to make the "pile fit the wants." One taxpayer has suggested, facetiously, that the county might build a courthouse out of corrugated iron, instead of brick and stone. The architects say that is about the sort of construction that would have to be adopted to get the proposed courthouse within the appropriation.

Saving by Delay.

Another important thing that is being considered in connection with the delay of the construction work is that the county is probably saving money by the delay. Burnham & Co., who are planning buildings and supervising contract work all over the country, state positively that building operations will be a great deal cheaper next season than this. One of the architects recently made the statement that in the cost of a building, figured on the basis of $110,000 this year, the same building can be erected next year for about $100,000.

The architects have argued this prediction of reduced cost on the courthouse commission every opportunity they have had, and it has, coming from the source it does, carried a great deal of weight.

TO SUCCEED NICHOLAS

Prince George Yourievski Mentioned as Next Ruler of Russia

He is a Descendant of the Famous House of Dolgorouki.

London, Oct. 25.—Prince George Yourievski, a natural son of Emperor Alexander II of Russia, has been mentioned as a candidate for the throne in the place of the Romanoff dynasty, by those who are always bent upon making trouble in Russia. His half brother, the later Alexander III, although credited with being dull witted, was always afraid of something of the kind happening, and for this reason, more than any other, banished Princess Yourievski and her children from Russia within a few days after the murder of his father. The princess has never been allowed to return to Russia since, and is ignored by the Russian embassy in France, although some of the grand dukes have dined with her at Paris and at her villa, in the South of France, as if to show their independence of the emperor.

The late czar, when asked to permit his half-brother to fufill those military duties which are encumbent upon every Russian citizen, declined to give him the customary commission in the army, but assigned him to the navy, where the discipline is more strict, where the lad would have less opportunity of being made much of and where it was possible to keep him at conveniently remote stations. But when Nicholas II came to the throne he changed all this, and gave his young kinsman a commission in one of the crack regiments of the guards, and it was not long before the prince became a conspicuous personage, the more so as he possessed vast wealth, his father having a year before his death invested many millions of dollars abroad for the benefit of his second wife and of his children by her.

Prince George Yourievski, besides being a tall, handsome man, with his father's winning manners and with all the outward appearance, brilliancy and dash calculated to render him popular, has the advantage in the eyes of many of his countrymen, of being infinitely more Russian than any of the legitimate members of the reigning family. For whereas the grand dukes and grand duchesses have had German mothers, grandmothers and great-grandmothers, Prince George has a mother who is a member of the essentially Muscovite house of Dolgorouki, the name of which figures on almost every page of Russian history, and which in point of ancestral luster ranks that of Romanoff. In fact, the Dolgoroukis claim descent not only from Rurik, the founder of the house of Romanoff, but also from St. Vladimir, the patron saint of Russia.

The name Dolgorouki means "Long Hand," or, rather, "Long Arm," and was borne for the first time in the twelfth century by George, the eighth son of Vladimir Monomas, a descendant of St. Vladimir. The Dolgoroukis were princes before the Romanoffs became czars. The first Romanoff emperor, Czar Michael, married a Princess Dolgorouki, and Peter II died in 1730 on the very morning of the day appointed for his wedding to another Princess Dolgorouki. Her brother, Ivan, was not only banished to Siberia by Empress Anne, but also subsequently put to the sword with nearly all the members of his family.

Among the most celebrated members of the house have been James Dolgorouki, who was chief of the first embassy every dispatched by Russia to France, and who, as one of the principal advisers of Peter the Great, distinguished himself by the frankness and the independence with which he resisted the despotic commands of the emperor whenever they did not meet with his views.

It is to Prince Vasil Dolgorouki, the celebrated general and lover of Catharine the Great, that Russia is indebted for the conquest of Crimea, and Prince Ivan Dolgorouki was one of the most famous of all Russia's poets. Throughout the nineteenth century the Dolgoroukis figured conspicuously at the court of St. Petersburg, in government affairs, in the army and diplomacy, and for the last ten years of his life Alexander II was completely subject to the domination of Princess Catherine Dolgorouki, who had made her debut at court as a maid of honor of Empress Marie. For her sake Alexander II neglected his czarina in the most shameful manner, living openly with Catherine, who bore him three children, a boy, now known as Prince George Yourievski, and two girls, in the lifetime of the empress. The closing years of the later's existence were cruelly embittered by her husband's neglect and by the favor which he publicly bestowed upon her maid of honor; and barely six weeks after the czarina's lonely death in the South of France, he married morganatically at St. Petersburg, her rival. Catherine Dolgorouki, who was created shortly afterward Princess Yourievski, with the understanding that this name, together with the princely title, should be borne by her three children.

There is no doubt that she exercised a very powerful influence upon Alexander II. Gen. Loris Melikoff, who possessed all the intuition and cleverness of the Armenian race, to which he belonged, was the first to realize this, and formed with her a species of alliance. It was he who urged Alexander II to legalize his relations with her by marriage, a fact which Alexander III, who was devoted to his mother, never forgot or forgave. In return, the princess induced the emperor to invest Melikoff with the powers of a dictator and to confer upon him the title of count, together Loris Melikoff and Princess Yourievski drew up and elaborated that national constitution which the ill-fated czar was to have signed on the very evening of the day on which he was blown to fragments by the bombs of the nihilists. Had it not been for this successful atempt on his life the ukase endowing Russia with a national constitution and a parliamentary form of government would have been promulgated on the following day, and Catherine would have eventually been raised to the rank of czarina. Alexander III was too horified by the shocking death of his father to fulfill the latter's intentions with regard to the grant of a constitution, holding that it would be construed as a concession to his father's assassins, wrung from himself by fear.

MISS GOULD IS HIGHLY HONORED

She Reviews 20,000 Regular Soldiers at Fort Leavenworth.

Fort Leavenworth, Kan., Oct. 25.—An honor accorded only to queens in Europe, and unprecedented in the United States, was vouchsafed Miss Helen Miller Gould when, seated on horseback in the center of the parade ground, she reviewed 2,000 marching United States regular troops.

The salute was given her by the parading troops as though she had been the president or the commandant of the department of the West. The extraordinary spectacle almost overcome the philanthropic lady, whose eyes filled with tears as the gorgeous pageant swept past.

It was in recognition of Miss Gould's munificence in providing a $50,000 Young Men's Christian association building for the soldiers of the reservation that every man from Brig. Gen. Hall down to the greenest, awkward squadder donned his finest trappings and deployed, fired volleys, double-quicked, then marched on again to the strains of a dozen bands under the colors.

Then when Miss Gould had reviewed them they tramped into the beautiful building she had given them and listened to her praises declaimed at its dedication by Governor Hoch, Gen. Hall and J. M. Miller, the International secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

At night there was held a great reception for Miss Gould, at which she shook hands with all the soldiers.

YIDDISH PLAY IN LONDON.

Jewish Playhouse in the Ghetto on a Permanent Basis.

London, Oct. 25.—Since a Jewish playhouse was opened on a permanent basis at the Pavilion theater, Mile End road, E., on Aug. 22, the performances of the Yiddish players have been receiving recognition from all parts of London, until now many people who frequent the stalls and boxes of the West End theaters are to be found making their way to Whitechapel to learn for themselves something of this playhouse where English is never spoken.

Mr. Sigmund Fehmen, the director of the Yiddish theater, its leading actor in tragic roles, an able stage manager and the author of thirty plays, is a Russian Jew, who for twenty years has been connected with the Yiddish theaters of New York.

"I have been in the habit of visiting London from time to time, he said the other day, "and eventually I decided this year to remain permanently and combine with others to establish a theater here for our own people. We have spent much money and labor in reconstructing the Pavilion theater. Since the opening night last August we have received most entauslastic support from our own people. They began by thinking that a theater for themselves was a good thing; now they regard it as a necessity.

RAILROADS

SLASHING IS GENERAL

Reports received here today indicate a general cutting of the St. Paul-Chicago through rate of $24. With the regular fare from St. Paul to Chicago at $8, and the new rate of the Erie from Chicago to New York $10, making a combination of rates to the Eastern metropolis of $18, it is incumbent upon the St. Paul-Chicago lines to meet this reduction in their through-travel tariff.

The present rate from Duluth, via Chicago to New York, is $24, and should the cut in the St. Paul-New York fare take place, Duluth will receive the direct benefit of this reduction.

It only requires a notice of one day for lines employing a through rate higher than a combination of local rates, to reduce their tariff to the figure set by the combination fare, so it is expected that the Chicago lines will announce the reduction of the St. Paul-New York through fare tomorrow or Monday.

The present rate war was started by the Erie, because of the employment of commissioned ticket sellers by the Grand Trunk and the Nickel Plate. The employment of these men, who sell tickets upon a basis of a commission, had the effect of securing some of the Eastern business, formerly handled by the Erie, so the latter road made a reduction of $6 on the Chicago-New York rate that will have to be met by the Grand Trunk and the Nickel Plate.

Should a cut from St. Paul to New York go into effect, it will be possible to travel from this city to Gotham, either by way of Chicago, or over the line of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, at a fare approximately $5 less than was paid heretofore.

The interstate commerce commission, while not directly ruling on the question of a through fare higher than a combination of local fares, reaching the same destination, looks upon this phase of the traffic question as illogical, and it is to avoid the commission establishing a ruling on this subject that the Chicago lines are expected to get busy with a rate war reduction.

Sante Fe Meeting.

Topeka, Oct. 25.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway was held in Topeka yesterday. Victor Morawetz, T. P. Fowler and H. R. Duval of New York city, and C. S. Gleed of Kansas City, were elected directors for four years. The Pierce Watrous company of New York were selected as independent auditors of the company.

PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Carey of Bow Bells, N. D., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bronson of 420 West Second street. Mrs. Carey is Mr. Bronson's sister.

Otto Schmidt of the Otto Schmidt Wine company of Chicago is in Duluth on business.

Thomas Ring, son of C. L. Ring of the Merrill & Ring Lumber company was in Duluth today after an extended sojourn on the Pacific coast. Mr. Ring went to the coast in the interests of his father's firm. He is at the Spalding.

George Ressin of Hibbing is at the McKay.

D. J. Hayes, B. F. McLean and F. A. Berry of Two Harbors are at the St. Louis.

F. H. Lawrence and wife of Coleraine are at the St Louis.

M. E. Van Beigh of Ely is at the Lenox.

Charles Nelson of Eveleth is at the Lenox.

W. L. Hitchcock of Scanlon is at the Lenox.

Back to Superior.

George Logan drew his money from his employer in Superior and came to Duluth to pay a bill, so he says. George pleaded for mercy, and was ready to swear that henceforth his path will be marked by sobriety and decency.

"It'll never happen again if you'll let me go, judge, honest, it won't," pleaded George. That sounded familiar to Judge Windom, but he gave the prisoner the option of $10 and costs or ten days, and suspend sentence until noon today. George allowed he could make Superior before noon, and he departed with joy in his heart. He is warned not to appear in this city within six months, or it will be "over the hill to the rock pile" for him.

Concluding Lecture.
"Essentials and Non-Essentials of Life" is the subject of the concluding address in a series of three which are being given by Mrs. Kate Upson Clark at Steinway hall under the auspices of the Twentieth Century club. The lecture will be given tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Ashamed of Himself.
John Tarney, aged 62 years, bent his gray head and looked decidedly ashamed of himself when his name was called in municipal court this morning. "My first drink this summer, judge. I can't stand it any more and a little knocks me over," he told the court. Judge Windom suspended sentence in his case.

Funeral Next Sunday.
The funeral of the late Hans Lakke, 812 East Seventh street, who died Oct. 24, will be held Sunday from the residence, at 2 o'clock, and from the First Norwegian church, First avenue west and Third street, at 2:30. Deceased is survived by the widow and five children. He was prominently identified with church work during his life here, and leaves a wide circle of friends to mourn his death. He was a carpenter by trade and had been a resident of Duluth for many years at the time of his death.

Remains Shipped Today.
The remains of the late Mrs. Christine Lager, who passed away at St. Luke's hospital today, will be shipped to Two Harbors, her former home, this evening for interment. She was 47 years of age at the time of her death, and is survived by several immediate relatives living at Two Harbors.

Court Grants Divorce.
Judge Dibell has granted Thomas R. Millington a divorce from Marinda Mae Millington on statutory grounds. The couple were married in Duluth Nov. 27, 1904. They have no children.

Logger Sues Timber Company.
Mitchell Vincent has started suit against the Zenith Cedar company to recover judgment for $2,784.56 which he alleges is due him on a log and timber contract entered into in December, 1905. In his complaint Mr. Vincent has some fifteen causes for action, most of them claims based on saw logs, ties, poles or pulpwood which he claims to have furnished the defendant company from lands in 51-12 and 51-13.

Altman Wants His Money.
Joseph Altman, assignee of the claim of Joe Silver, formerly a driver in the employ of Morris Harley, has started suit in the district court to recover judgment for $50 against Theodore Naubaum, Sam Karon and Morris Harley. In his complaint Altman says he was to have received $12.50 per week from July 8 to Sept. 9, 1907. He claims that Naubaum and Karon are in possession of the personal property with which Harley did a bottling business in the McKay hotel block last summer, and that he believes they intend to sell the goods with the intent to defraud him on his claim. Altman asks that he have judgment and that it be made a specific lien on the property.

Sues for Services Rendered.
Carlstian Toreson has instituted suit against Isaac and Kristine Nilson to recover judgment for $1,350 which is claimed to be due the plaintiff for services rendered from Sept. 15, 1899, to May 9, 1905. The complaint has been filed by John Jenswold, Jr.

Boyle Gets His Money.
A satisfaction of the judgment of $8,431.51 in favor of Martin Boyle against the Virginia Lumber company was filed with the clerk of the district court today. Boyle sued the company for personal injuries. The case was a hard fought one and was in litigation for a long time.

International Reply Coupons.
A supply of the certificates or international reply coupons, which when sent enclosed in an envelope to foreign countries will be good for six cents in stamps, have been received at the Duluth postoffice and are now on sale. The rule making it possible to exchange these certificates for stamps in foreign countries went into effect Oct. 1, but none of the coupons were received here until this week.

Enlists Three Men.
Lieut. H. D. South, in charge of the recruiting offices in Minnesota, was in the city this morning and enlisted four recruits for the marine corps. Lieut. South came in from Fargo, where he enlisted a number of recruits and returned to his headquarters at St. Paul today.

Trades Assembly Meeting.
The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Duluth Federated Trades assembly will be held this evening at the labor headquarters in the Kalamazoo block. Many matters of importance will be considered and a large number of the delegates will be in attendance. The delegates from the printers' union will probably bring up the matter of one of Duluth's fraternal organizations patronizing a non-union printing establishment.

Tax Examiner Completes Work.

S. H. Haynes, who has been in this county for some time past compiling records for the state tax commission, has completed his work. He has examined every deed recorded in the county for the past ten years, the object of the tax commission being to gain some knowledge of the valuation placed on real estate. The results of the research will not be made public at this time. Mr. Haynes speaks very highly of the system of keeping the records in the register of deeds office and compliments Deputy Register of Deeds Clark on the operating facilities of the office.

Sues for Indemnity Lands.

Another suit over certain of the Northern Pacific indemnity lands has been begun in the federal court. Papers were filed in the clerk's office yesterday by John Patton against John A. Humbird, Frederick Weyerhauser, Northern Lumber company, and the Northern Pacific railroad. Mr. Patton seeks to recover about forty-three acres of land in section 13, township 54, range 12 west. He claims the land as homestead while the government granted the tract to the Northern Pacific to indemnify it for other lands.

One Alien Rejected.

Adam Wichowski, an Austrian Pole, who came in on the steamer America of the Booth line this morning, was not allowed to land by the United States inspector, William H. Dean. When examined by a physician Wichowski was found to have trachoma. The foreigner was 29 years of age and landed in New York, April 10, 1902. Since then he went to Canada and as he had never become a citizen of the United States he was not allowe dto return to this country.

Given Small Damages.

The jury in the action brought by Charles Mattson against the Duluth Street Railway company et al, was out some time yesterday afternoon before arriving at a verdict. They found for the plaintiff against Stevens and Jacobs, and awarded damages in the sum of $25. The street railway company got out from under the suit earlier in the action, the court holding they were in no way responsible for the act of the ferry boat employe.

Wife Alleges Cruelty.

Mrs. Josephine Gritzmaker, who has started divorce proceedings in the district court against William Gritzmaker, tells a harrowing tale of alleged abuse to which she was submitted during her twelve years of married life. Mrs. Gritzmaker claims that her husband has beaten her with clubs and with his fists. She says that he threw her on the bed at their home in Colusset, gave her a cruel beating and compelled her to lie there in torment until driven off by the police, whom the neighbors had called. It is alleged that he carried a revolver and threatened to kill his wife and that he was confined in the county jail for fifteen days for carrying concealed weapons. The couple have four children, all under 11 years of age.

Boy Plays a Prank.

A youngster with a police whistle and a good pair of lungs led the police a wild chase last evening, and until the young man and his whistle were discovered on the corner of First avenue and Michigan street the alert cops were seeking in vain for the cause of the trouble which the alarm signal intimated must have occurred.

Conductor Johnson was standing in the rear of the station when he heard the distress call. Closely followed by Sergts. Fritz and Gillon, he made for the sound and discovered a small boy busily engaged in exercising his lungs on the whistle. The lad was sent home after having his whistle taken away from him and being given a sound scolding.

BRAKEMAN BEHEADED.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—It was in a horrible manner that John Lenz, a South Shore railroad brakeman, came to his death in the yards at Negaunee. In the act of tightening a brake, his brake stick broke and he fell forward under the wheels of the moving train. A car passed over his neck and his head was severed. He was 25 and the son of Matt Lenz of Duluth.

AN ADVANCE IN COPPERS

The Market Shows Some Signs of Returning Strength.

Copper stocks had a stronger tone during all of the session today, and at the close they experienced the best advance the market has seen in several exciting days. Leading issues advanced 4 and 5 points over the low prices of the day, and closed at the high level.

The money of the country's richest men has been pouring into the Eastern money and stock markets, and a feeling of confidence seemed to have returned during the session today.

North Butte opened at $32, declined to $31.75, rallied to $36 and closed at $35 bid and $36 asked.

Amalgamated opened at $45, went as low as $44.25, reacted to $47 and closed at $47 bid. Anaconda opened at $28, advanced to $30.25 and closed at $30 bid.

Butte Coalition opened at $11.50, declined to $11.12½ and closed at $11.37½ bid and $11.50 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $91, advanced to $94 and closed at $93 bid and $94 asked.

Greene-Cananea opened at $6, declined to $5.62½, rallied to $6 and closed at $5.87½ bid and $6 asked.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $7.87½ and $8 and closed at $7.87½ bid and $8 asked. Globe Consolidated sold at $4 and $4.25 and closed at $4.12½ bid and $4.25 asked. Denn-Arizona was traded in at $3.12½ and closed at $3.12½ bid and $3.75 asked.

Carman sold at $2.37½ and $2.25 and closed at $2 bid and $2.50 asked, and Calumet & Sonora at $5 and closed at $4.75 bid and $5 asked.

Hancock was $4.50 bid and $4.75 asked; Warren $3 bid and $3.50 asked; Butte & Superior $1.25 bid and $1.37½ asked; Copper Queen of Idaho, 80 cents bid and $1 asked, and Cliff 85 cents bid and $1 asked.

Black Mountain sold at $4.50 and closed at $4.12½ bid and $4.50 asked.

OBJECT TO FINAL ASSESSMENT

Robinson Street Owners Say Pavement is a Botch.

"It is the opinion of the undersigned that no such excuse for a macadam roadway has ever heretofore been constructed within the limits of the city of Duluth and is a shame and disgrace to any community which employs an engineering force to see that its engineering contracts are properly fulfilled.

"We refuse to pay the final assessment for the improvement of said street, and will continue to withhold payment thereof until said street has been improved according to the specifications."

The above is the closing paragraph of a very emphatic protest filed with the board of public works by property owners on Robinson street, Lakeside, from Forty-first to Forty-sixth avenues east against paying the final assessment for the paving done there. The final assessment of 20 per cent calls for about $3,000, and the property owners emphatically state that they will not pay it.

Their protest cites twelve separate and what they claim are valid reasons why they should not pay the assessment.

They claim that the surface of the paving is not of macadam as the specifications called for, that the paving was not properly rolled at the time it was put down, and that the roadway is soft and incapable of supporting traffic. They claim the gutters are poorly constructed and the water stands on the road after a storm and that instead of the street being paved sixty-six feet wide as specified, the paving is but sixty-three feet wide in some places.

A hearing was held in the office of the board of public works today and the matter gone into carefully. Mr. Wilson of the city engineer's office, was called in to throw light on the subject. He stated that at the time of the paving operations he was employed at other work and not out to the scene of the work. A superintendent was employed to look after the job and was supposed to see to it that the work was performed according to contract. The board took no action on the matter today.

Mr. O. L. Raymond,

Inventor and manufacturer of the Raymond log loader and the Raymond decker machine, of Marinette, Wis., was in the city today. He reports a large and growing demand for these machines, having just shipped a carload lot to the Interstate Lumber company, Columbus, Miss., and another to the John O'Brien Lumber company, Somers, Mont. The manager of the John O'Brien Lumber company, W. E. Wells, had previously used ten of these machines at Wells, Mich., and the fact that he has now taken a carload order speaks for itself. Mr. Raymond is on his way to Deer River, Minn., and will stop in this city on his return about Tuesday of next week. He will be at the St. Louis hotel.

SPECIAL TRAIN TO SUPERIOR

Late this afternoon, arrangements were made by the management of the Central high school football team for a special train over the Great Northern railway to Superior tomorrow for the game with the Blaine high school.

The train will leave the Union depot at 2:45 tomorrow afternoon, and will run to a point within one block of the park. After the game, the train will be waiting to take the rooters back to Duluth.

It is expected that a large number of rooters will make the trip to Sunperior, and the securing of the special train will do much to increase the crowd. The transportation by street car is long and tedious, and the train will insure a speedy return to Duluth as soon as the game is over.

WANTS DAMAGES FROM RAILROAD

Claiming that she has sustained severe injuries through the negligence of the Duluth & Northeastern Railroad company, Alice Campbell has started a damage suit for $2,000. The papers in the case were filed today by John Jenswold, Jr. The plaintiff claims that she was a passenger on the defendant company's train from Rush Lake, Minn., to Cloquet, Jan. 28, 1907, when there was a collision and she was thrown from her seat to the floor. She claims to have been injured in the knees and spine and to have sustained a severe mental shock.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Charles Caswell Dead.

Charles Caswell, aged about 35 years, died yesterday at his home, 1810 Third street, Superior, after a short illness. The man's parents live at Coldwater, Ont., and the remains will be sent there for burial.

Boys Are Arraigned.

Charged with burglary, Harry Brownlee, Edward Schuster and George Braue, the youthful trio, captured in Carlton, Minn., a few days ago, were arraigned in the municipal court yesterday. Brownlee, who is 16 years old, entered a plea of not guilty and was released on $100 bail, pending trial. Braue and Schuster, who are younger, were taken before the juvenile court. Braue was permitted to return to his home and Schuster was locked up pending a hearing Saturday morning. In the arrest of the boys the police believe they have rounded up a youthful gang of burglars that has been operating quite extensively during the past year.

Everybody Wins.

Both principals secured a verdict in the case of J. D. Drinkwine vs. Ell Callison in superior court yesterday. Drinkwine sued for the value of 25,000 feet of logs, which he had sawed at Callison's mill. The latter claimed there was a lien of $96 on the logs. The jury decided that Drinkwine had $384 coming on the logs, but would have to pay the lien of $96.

Rankin is a Sprinter.

Officer Rankin of the Superior police department demonstrated his sprinting ability last evening when he overtook an alleged sneak thief, who had three blocks start, after running seven blocks. John Hovanda, the accused, is claimed to have stolen a coat from O. E. Konsta. When Officer Rankin overtook him Hovanda is said to have been in the act of passing the coat to another man. The latter was also arrested.

Take Examinations.

Twenty candidates for places on the police and fire departments were examined yesterday under the civil service rule. Eight want to be policemen, and the other twelve firemen and they were compelled to show what they knew, before they can be considered for appointment. In the morning, they were given simple tests in writing, reading, etc. In the afternoon, they were put through physical tests and their standings will be computed in a few days.

Is Out on Bonds.

William Ingram was arraigned in municipal court yesterday charged with attempting to kill Napoleon Gurow. He demanded an examination, which was set for next Wednesday, and was released when friends came forward and put up $1,000 bonds for his appearance. Gurow and Ingram both reside near Blueberry. Ingram is about 50 years old, and lives alone. It is charged that while under the influences of liquor, he fired at Gurow and the bullet struck the latter's door.

Land Case Begun---Schumann Case Still on Trial.

The allowance of the final proof of the timber and stone filing made by Charles M. Pardoe of Minneapolis, was protested against this afternoon in the contest room of the Duluth land office by George B. Hudnall of Superior. The claim is located in section 30, township 57, range 9. The case was only started this afternoon and was postponed until tomorrow afternoon.

The Schumann contest case, which was begun yesterday is still on trial. It is a case over the possession of fourforties in the Beaver Bay district, which the state claims to be swamp. The case will probably be finished some time tomorrow.

AN ADVANCE IN COPPERS

The Market Shows Some Signs of Returning Strength.

Copper stocks had a stronger tone during all of the session today, and at the close they experienced the best advance the market has seen in several exciting days. Leading issues advanced 4 and 5 points over the low prices of the day, and closed at the high level.

The money of the country's richest men has been pouring into the Eastern money and stock markets, and a feeling of confidence seemed to have returned during the session today.

North Butte opened at $32, declined to $31.75, rallied to $36 and closed at $35 bid and $36 asked.

Amalgamated opened at $45, went as low as $44.25, reacted to $47 and closed at $47 bid. Anaconda opened at $28, advanced to $30.25 and closed at $30 bid.

Butte Coalition opened at $11.50, declined to $11.12½ and closed at $11.37½ bid and $11.50 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $91, advanced to $94 and closed at $93 bid and $94 asked.

Greene-Cananea opened at $6, declined to $5.62½, rallied to $6 and closed at $5.87½ bid and $6 asked.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $7.87½ and $8 and closed at $7.87½ bid and $8 asked. Globe Consolidated sold at $4 and $4.25 and closed at $4.12½ bid and $4.25 asked. Denn-Arizona was traded in at $3.12½ and closed at $3.12½ bid and $3.75 asked.

Carman sold at $2.37½ and $2.25 and closed at $2 bid and $2.50 asked, and Calumet & Sonora at $5 and closed at $4.75 bid and $5 asked.

Hancock was $4.50 bid and $4.75 asked; Warren $3 bid and $3.50 asked; Butte & Superior $1.25 bid and $1.37½ asked; Copper Queen of Idaho, 80 cents bid and $1 asked, and Cliff 85 cents bid and $1 asked.

Black Mountain sold at $4.50 and closed at $4.12½ bid and $4.50 asked.

Robinson Street Owners Say Pavement is a Botch.

"It is the opinion of the undersigned that no such excuse for a macadam roadway has ever heretofore been constructed within the limits of the city of Duluth and is a shame and disgrace to any community which employs an engineering force to see that its engineering contracts are properly fulfilled.

"We refuse to pay the final assessment for the improvement of said street, and will continue to withhold payment thereof until said street has been improved according to the specifications."

The above is the closing paragraph of a very emphatic protest filed with the board of public works by property owners on Robinson street, Lakeside, from Forty-first to Forty-sixth avenues east against paying the final assessment for the paving done there. The final assessment of 20 per cent calls for about $3,000, and the property owners emphatically state that they will not pay it.

Their protest cites twelve separate and what they claim are valid reasons why they should not pay the assessment.

They claim that the surface of the paving is not of macadam as the specifications called for, that the paving was not properly rolled at the time it was put down, and that the roadway is soft and incapable of supporting traffic. They claim the gutters are poorly constructed and the water stands on the road after a storm and that instead of the street being paved sixty-six feet wide as specified, the paving is but sixty-three feet wide in some places.

A hearing was held in the office of the board of public works today and the matter gone into carefully. Mr. Wilson of the city engineer's office, was called in to throw light on the subject. He stated that at the time of the paving operations he was employed at other work and got out to the scene of the work. A superintendent was employed to look after the job and was supposed to see to it that the work was performed according to contract. The board took no action on the matter today.

Mr. O. L. Raymond,

Inventor and manufacturer of the Raymond log loader, and the Raymond decker machine, of Marinette, Wis., was in the city today. He reports a large and growing demand for these machines, having just shipped a carload lot to the Interstate Lumber company, Columbus, Miss., and another to the John O'Brien Lumber company, Somers, Mont. The manager of the John O'Brien Lumber company, W. E. Wells, had previously used ten of these machines at Wells, Mich., and the fact that he has now taken a carload order speaks for itself. Mr. Raymond is on his way to Deer River, Minn., and will stop in this city on his return about Tuesday of next week. He will be at the St. Louis hotel.

SPECIAL TRAIN TO SUPERIOR

Late this afternoon, arrangements were made by the management of the Central high school football team for a special train over the Great Northern railway to Superior tomorrow for the game with the Blaine high school.

The train will leave the Union depot at 2:45 tomorrow afternoon, and will run to a point within one block of the park. After the game, the train will be waiting to take the rooters back to Duluth.

It is expected that a large number of rooters will make the trip to Sunperior, and the securing of the special train will do much to increase the crowd. The transportation by street car is long and tedious, and the train will insure a speedy return to Duluth as soon as the game is over.

WANTS DAMAGES FROM RAILROAD

Claiming that she has sustained severe injuries through the negligence of the Duluth & Northeastern Railroad company, Alice Campbell has started a damage suit for $12,000. The papers in the case were filed today by John Jenswold, Jr. The plaintiff claims that she was a passenger on the defendant company's train from Rush Lake, Minn., to Cloquet, Jan. 28, 1907, when there was a collision and she was thrown from her seat to the floor. She claims to have been injured in the knees and spine, and to have sustained a severe mental shock.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Charles Caswell Dead.

Charles Caswell, aged about 35 years, died yesterday at his home, 1810 Third street, Superior, after a short illness. The man's parents live at Coldwater, Ont., and the remains will be sent there for burial.

Boys Are Arraigned.

Charged with burglary, Harry Brownlee, Edward Schuster and George Braue, the youthful trio, captured in Carlton, Minn., a few days ago, were arraigned in the municipal court yesterday. Brownlee, who is 16 years old, entered a plea of not guilty and was released on $100 bail, pending trial. Braue and Schuster, who are younger, were taken before the juvenile court. Braue was permitted to return to his home and Schuster was locked up pending a hearing Saturday morning. In the arrest of the boys the police believe they have rounded up a youthful gang of burglars that has been operating quite extensively during the past year.

Everybody Wins.

Both principals secured a verdict in the case of J. D. Drinkwine vs. Ell Callison in superior court yesterday. Drinkwine sued for the value of 25,000 feet of logs, which he had sawed at Callison's mill. The latter claimed there was a lien of $96 on the logs. The jury decided that Drinkwine had $584 coming on the logs, but would have to pay the lien of $96.

Rankin is a Sprinter.

Officer Rankin of the Superior police department demonstrated his sprinting ability last evening when he overtook an alleged sneak thief, who had three blocks start, after running seven blocks. John Hovanda, the accused, is claimed to have stolen a coat from O. E. Konsta. When Officer Rankin overtook him Hovanda is said to have been in the act of passing the coat to another man. The latter was also arrested.

Take Examinations.

Twenty candidates for places on the police and fire departments were examined yesterday under the civil service rule. Eight want to be policemen, and the other twelve firemen and they were compelled to show what they knew, before they can be considered for appointment. In the morning, they were given simple tests in writing, reading, etc. In the afternoon, they were put through physical tests and their standings will be computed in a few days.

Is Out on Bonds.

William Ingram was arraigned in municipal court yesterday charged with attempting to kill Napoleon Gurow. He demanded an examination, which was set for next Wednesday, and was released when friends came forward and put up $1,000 bonds for his appearance. Gurow and Ingram both reside near Blueberry. Ingram is about 50 years old, and lives alone. It is charged that while under the influences of liquor, he fired at Gurow and the bullet struck the latter's door.

It has the flavor and "schmeckt," as the Germans say, different from other coffee. Everyone who has used it says so. Of course it is made better than any other coffee, but for still another reason,

LEGISLATION IS REQUIRED

To Meet Changed Conditions in Trusts and Combinations.

Civic Federation Passes Resolutions Advocating Justice to All.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Today's session of the National Civic Federation was given over to five-minute talks by business men, who discussed the various topics introduced by the various speakers during the last three years. The committee on resolutions presented its report as follows:

After twenty years of federal legislation, as interpreted by the courts, directed against the evils of trusts and combinations, and against railroad rebates, beginning with the interstate commerce act of 1887 and the anti-trust act of 1890, a general and just conviction exists that the experience gained in enforcing these federal acts and others succeeding them demonstrates the necessity of legislation which shall render more secure the benefits already gained and better meet the changed conditions which have arisen during the long period of active progress, both in the enforcement of railroads and corporations. These changes now demanded are:

First—Immediate legislation is required, following the recommendation of President Roosevelt and the interstate commerce commission permitting agreements between railroad corporations on reasonable freight and passenger rates, subject in all respects to the approval, supervision and action of the interstate commerce commission.

Second—The enforcement of the Sherman act during the administrations of Presidents Harrison, Cleveland, McKinley and Roosevelt, has accomplished great national results in awakening the moral sense of the American people and in asserting the supremacy and majesty of the law, thus effectually refuting the impression that great wealth and large corporations were too powerful for the impartial execution of law. This great advance has rendered more secure all property rights, resting as they must, under a popular government, on universal respect for, and obedience to law. But now that this work is accomplished it has revealed the necessity for legislation which shall maintain all that the Sherman act was intended to secure and safeguard interests it was never expected to affect.

As the next step in executing the determination of the American people to secure in all industrial and commercial relations justice and equality of opportunity for all, with full sympathy and loyal support for every effort to enforce the laws in the past, we urge upon congress without delay to pass legislation providing for a non-partisan commission in which the interests of capital, of labor, and of the general public shall be represented. This commission, like a similar commission which proved most successful in Germany in 1870, shall consider the entire subject of business and industrial combinations, and report such proposals as to the formation, capitalization, management and regulation of corporations (so far as the same may be subject to federal jurisdiction) as shall preserve individual initiative, competition, and the free exercise of a free contract in all business and industrial relations. Any proposed legislation should also include modification of the prohibition now existing upon combinations on the following subjects:

1—National and local organizations of labor and their trade agreements with employers relating to wages, hours of labor and conditions of employment.

2—Associations made up of farmers, intended to secure a stable and equitable market for the products of the soil, free from fluctuations due to speculation.

3—Business and industrial agreements or combinations whose objects are in the public interest as distinguished from objects determined to be contrary to the public interest.

4—Such commission should make a thorough inquiry into the advisability of inaugurating a system of federal license, or incorporation, as a condition for the entrance of certain classes of corporations upon interstate commerce, and also into the relation to the public interest of the purchase by one corporation of the franchises or corporate stock of another.

On no one of these subjects must what has been gained be sacrificed until something better appears for enactment.

On each of these the conference recognizes the differences between good men. On all it asks a national, non-partisan commission to be appointed next winter to consider the question and report at the second session of the approaching congress for such action as the national legislature, in the light of this full investigation, may enact.

Third—The examination, inspection and supervision of great producing and manufacturing corporations, already begun by the department of commerce and labor and accepted by these corporations, should be enlarged by legislation requiring, through the appropriate bureaus of the department of commerce and labor, complete publicity in the capitalization, accounts, operations, transportation charges paid, and selling prices of all such producing and manufacturing corporations, whose operations are large enough to have a monopolistic influence. This should be determined and decided by some rule and classification to be devised by the commission already proposed.

Fourth—The conflicts between the state and federal authorities raised in many states over railroad rates, being now under adjudication and under way to a final and ultimate decision by the federal supreme court, this conference deems the expression of any opinion on these issued unfitting, and confidently leaves this great issue to a tribunal which for 118 years has successfully preserved the balance between an indissoluble union and indestructible states, defining the supreme and national powers of the one and protecting the sovereign and individual powers of the other.

The resolutions were adopted as read.

Immediately after the adoption of the report of the committee on the resolutions, the convention adjourned sine die.

Sealshipt Oysters

Pure Food

The only absolutely fresh, wholesome, appetizing oysters ever sold in bulk. They are practically shell oysters as they are merely slipped from their own shells into a porcelain-lined case, which is SEALED, thus forming a shell on a large scale.

This case is imbedded in ice in a Patent Sealshipt Carrier, not opened till it reaches the dealer.

All the piquant "half-shell" flavor, the delicate tang given by the salt-water, the smooth firmness, the nourishing quality, the natural color, are fully retained. No preservatives are ever used.

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM — Mack-Leone players in "Prince Karl."
METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

Repeat "Prince Karl."

The Mack-Leone players duplicated their success of a week or so ago last evening, when they gave Richard Mansfield's earlier success, "Prince Karl." This charming comedy made such a hit with Mack-Leone adherents when given before, that it was decided to repeat the piece Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Willard Mack is delightfully whimsical as the Prince. Of course, being a Mansfield piece, the play is one for a star. The big part stands out and the other characters are merely necessary, but comparatively unimportant accessories.

Mr. Mack manages a delightful German dialect and looks his best. Will Chapman as the rascally schemer, Spotts, and Franz Bernard as Cool Dragon, the Chicago lawyer, furnish good characterizations, barring a very bad wig which Gernhard uses. Frank Joyner, who is always good when cast as an old man, makes the squeeky-voiced hotel proprietor stand out.

Beatrice Meade as the young widow is pleasing. She always seems at ease on the stage and her enunciation is clear and convincing. Marie Bonsall, although badly made up last evening, makes the older widow sufficiently funny and unattractive and Dorothy Davis is the mathematical girl.

Will Wrestle Bull.

Athos, the Greek athlete, will attempt to throw a live bull on the stage of the Metropolitan, in connection with the regular performance there this evening. The bull has already been engaged and Mr. Athos has arrived in the city, ready to make the attempt. He tried it at St. Paul last week, with two different bulls, and lost one out of the two contests. The Imperial Burlesquers will give another bargain matinee tomorrow and will conclude their engagement there tomorrow evening.

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

Closes Higher in All the American Markets Except New York.

Flax is Firm at the Close of the Market in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 25.—Wheat closed higher in all the American markets except New York today, on bullish news from all sides.

The reports from Argentina were bullish and so was the weekly letter of the Modern Miller. Foreigners were lower in the American markets, taking nearly all offerings. Car receipts were lower in the Northwest. Liverpool closed ¾d to 1¼d higher and Berlin ½c lower.

The Modern Miller says: "High prices for wheat have increased acreage seeded in winter wheat. Reductions in area sown are reported in the Southeast and extreme Southwest. Tennessee department of agriculture estimates acreage in that state the smallest in years, because of several crop failures and more land being devoted to fodder crops. Moisture is lacking in many parts of the winter wheat belt, but the crop is not suffering."

The December option closed 1¼c higher in Duluth, ⅞-1c higher in Chicago, 1-⅞c in Minneapolis, ⅞c lower in New York and 1c higher in Winnipeg. The May option closed ⅞c higher in Duluth, ½c in Chicago, 1c in Minneapolis, ½c lower in New York and 1¼c higher in Winnipeg.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a firmness at the opening in wheat and values were ¾d higher. Offerings were light covering of short interests made the curb there ¾c higher. Following the opening there was a further sharp advance, prices gaining ½d to ⅝d with good bull support and unfavorable crop advices from Australia. On the advance there was some selling in the way of profit-taking and prices lost ⅜d at the extreme, but again at mid-day the market showed a full recovery and was ¾d to ⅞d higher than the previous close. The undertone was firm with sellers few.

"Corn was firm and unchanged to ¼d lower at the opening. During the morning an advance of ¼d occurred in sympathy with the strength in wheat."

Car receipts at Duluth were 196 against 328 last year, and at Minneapolis 281 against 236 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 487 against 564 last year. Chicago received 53 against 46 last year. Winnipeg received 341 against 307 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,003,000 bus., last year, 953,000 bus. Shipments, 926,000 bus., last year, 400,000. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 276,000 bus.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 513,000 bus., against 584,000 bus. last week, and 968,000 bus, a year ago.

Primary receipts of corn were 607,000 bus., last year, 365,000 bus. Shipments, 488,000 bus., last year, 329,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 4,478 bus.

Argentine shipments of corn were 1,252,000 bus. against 1,411,000 bus. last week and 2,950,000 bus. a year ago.

Wheat was active and the tone higher during the session in the Duluth market. December wheat opened 1⅝c higher at $1.06⅝, advanced to $1.07⅝, declined to $1.07¼, reacted to $1.07⅝, went off to $1.06⅝, rallied to $1.06⅞, declined to $1.06¼-⅜ and closed at $1.06⅝, a gain of 1⅝c over yesterday. May wheat opened 1¼c higher at $1.12, advanced to $1.13, declined to $1.11⅝, rallied to $1.12 and closed at $1.11⅝, a gain of ⅞c over yesterday.

Flax was active during the session and closed firm. Argentine shipments of flax were 744,000 bus. October flax opened ¾c higher at $1.24, declined to $1.23¾, rallied to $1.23½ and closed at $1.23¼, unchanged from yesterday. November flax opened ½c higher at $1.23½, advanced to $1.24, declined to $1.23½, rallied to $1.23⅝, went off to $1.23, rallied to $1.24¼ and closed at $1.24, a gain of ½c over yesterday.

December flax opened ½c higher at $1.21½, advanced to $1.21¾, declined to $1.21¼, rallied to $1.22 and closed at that price, a gain of 1c over yesterday. May flax opened ½c higher at $1.26⅝, advanced to $1.26¾, declined to $1.26¼, rallied to $1.27¼ and closed at $1.27, a gain of 1c over yesterday.

Rye closed 2c to 4c lower, and barley 5c lower.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Strong With Prices Higher and Shorts Eager Bidders.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—The wheat market today opened strong, with prices up 2c compared with yesterday's closing quotations. Shorts were eager bidders owing to an advance of 1d at Liverpool. Several leading longs sold freely, but offerings were readily taken. December opened 1⅛@1⅜c to 2¼@2⅜c higher at $1 @1.01 and sold at 99¾. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 541 cars against 779 cars last week and 666 cars a year ago.

The early strength was of short duration, the market becoming very weak on general selling brought out by additional bank failures in the East. Nearly all of the initial gains were lost. For December the low point of the day reached 98¾c. The market closed weak with December up ⅜@½c at 99¾c.

Corn opened strong, but trade was not so active as in the wheat pit. Higher prices at Liverpool induced moderate demand by shorts. Weather conditions were favorable to the maturing of the new crop, and this had a tendency to check buyers. December opened ½c to ⅝@¾c higher at 57½c to 57⅝@⅝c and sold off to 57⅜@½c. Receipts were 277 cars, with 85 of contract grade.

The break in wheat affected corn. December sold off to 57c. There was a little rally late in the day, owing to covering by shorts, and the market closing firm with December up ⅜c at 57⅜c.

Oats were firm because of the strength of wheat and corn. There was only a moderate volume of trade. December opened 1⅛@¼c to ⅝@½c higher at 50⅜c to 50¾c and sold at 50¾c.

January pork was up 20c at $14.55. Lard was up 12½ at $8.65. Ribs were 2½c to 5c higher at $7.72½ to $7.75.

Closing: Wheat—December, 99¼c; May, $1.06¼. Corn—December, 57⅜c; May, 59¼c. Oats—December, 50¼c; May, 58¼c. Pork—January, $14.70; May, $15.05. Lard—January, $8.56; May, $7.65. Ribs—January, $7.07½; May, $7.92½. Rye—Cash, 75@90c. Timothy—October, $4.55. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1@1.02; No. 3 red, 98c@$1; No. 2 hard, $1@1.04; No. 3 hard, 98c@1.01. No. 3 spring, $1@1.07. ### Copper Gossip.

Boston to Walter W. Carr: An official of the Calumet & Hecla company in an interview said: "The report we have sold copper during the last few days at 12 cents is absolutely without foundation, and furthermore, we shall not sell any at that price. We believe the bottom has been reached, and from now on we look for improved conditons."

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: After 2 o'clock today it was seen there was to be no squeeze in money, and confidence grew rapidly. We are not out of the woods yet, but the close was strong and active, and this will do much to restore the spirits of investors and depositors. Gold imports seem likely and the sub-treasury will furnish additional aid if necessary. The local coppers had a good jump at the close and are very hard to buy as offerings around these prices are scarce. We advise against putting in market orders and advise purchases only on weak spots.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 25.—Cotton futures opened barely steady at an advance of 9 to 18 points in response to higher cables and a bull construction of the census report. The market eased off soon after the opening under a renewal of liquidation.

During the middle of the morning the market became very weak and excited with January down to 10.12, or 13 points net lower on rumors that a trust company of Providence had suspended, and December, which had been relatively firm, sold o ffat 10.40 or 5 points net lower.

Spot closed steady, 15 points lower. Middling uplands, 10.95; middling gulf, 11.20; sales, 100 bales. Futures closed firm. Closing bids: October, 10.20; November, 10.21; December, 10.43; January, 10.18; February, 10.24; March, 10.24; April, 10.27; May, 10.31; July, 10.30; August, 10.23.

STOCKS ARE UNSETTLED

But General Selling Not Active and Declines Recovered.

Closing Prices Were Near Top Level of the Session.

New York, Oct. 25.—Opening prices of stocks showed many wide advances, but in the international issues they fell far short, as a rule, of the London parity established before the local stock market opened. Some declines were mixed with the gains, St. Paul particularly running off 1¾ and United States Steel preferred 1½. Other stocks reacted after the opening from the first advances. Southern Railway preferred jumped 5¼ on the first sale, American Smelting rose 2⅝; Union Pacific, 2; Canadian Pacific and Norfolk & Western, 1¾; Delaware & Hudson, 1⅜; Baltimore & Ohio and American Smelting preferred, 1½; Great Northern preferred, 1¼, and several others a point. An immediate reaction wiped out these gains within ten minutes, the average level of the market relapsing to below last night.

At the reaction Illinois Central ruled 2½ below last night, Denver & Rio Grande, 3; American Sugar and American Tobacco preferred, 2; Northern Pacific, 1½; Reading, 1¼ and Atchison, Louisville & Nashville and Consolidated Gas, 1. Renewed buying which began in the United States Steel stocks listed the market from 1 to ½ and trading became quiet. Considerable feverishness attended the dealings. Granby Mining gained 10 points.

Northern Pacific and Reading weakened, 3¼; Illinois Central and Atlantic Coast Line, 3½; Consolidated Gas, 3; American Locomotive, 1¾ and Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Great Northern preferred and American Smelting, 1. There were some slight recoveries at noon. Bonds were weak.

Fresh rallies in a few stocks was lacked in the general list, speculation becoming dull and steady as soon as the liquidation in Consolidated Gas began. Consolidated Gas fell 6; United States Rubber preferred, 3½; Common Rubber, 5; American Locomotive, 2⅝; Manhattan, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Corn Products preferred and Great Northern Ore Certificates, 2.

Prices improved slowly on light buying; Union Pacific recovering to $1.07⅝; the opening figures. Atchison gained 1¼. The market reacted from 1 to 2 points at 2 o'clock. United States Rubber first preferred yielded 5½.

The market closed strong and active. The appearance of supplies of money in the loan crowd, although the call loan late reflected continued stringency, had a strengthening effect on stocks. Prices rose to the best of the day all around. General Electric advance 6⅜; International Pump, 3; Union Pacific, 4⅜; St. Paul, 1½; Norfolk & Western, 2½; Great Northern preferred, and Amalgamated Copper, 2¼; Reading, 2⅜; and Missouri Pacific, Anaconda and Sugar, 2.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, New York, to Paine, Webber & Co.: Support was in evidence in the New York stock market today, but the situation is still disquieting and call money difficult to borrow. Considerable liquidation was noticed in several high priced issues, but taking it as a whole the list seemed to have been sold to a standstill and any favorable news should cause a substantial rally. The New York banking situation is still in an unsatisfactory state and unless steps are taken to relieve the monetary situation it is not unlikely that the market will seek a lower level.

• • •

New York to Gay & Sturgis: Better feeling here this morning. It is reported that money will again be offered on the exchange today by the same interests. London shows advances all along the line and as soon as the public confidence returns and they take the currency from their strong boxes and put it where it belongs, the sooner will we have normal times.

New York Money.

New York, Oct. 25.—Close: Money on call strong, 50@75 per cent; ruling rate, 50; closing bid, 50; offered at 50. Time loans nominal. Prime mercantile paper, 7@7½ per cent. Sterling exchange nominal; no rates quoted. Bar silver, 61c; Mexican dollars, 48¾. Government bonds easy; railroad bonds weak.

Cotton Ginned to Oct. 18.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The census bureau today made public the result of the reports of its special agents on the quantity of cotton of this year's crop which had been ginned up to the 18th inst., showing 4,089,338 bales, as compared with 4,931,621 bales ginned to the same time last year. In these figures sixty-nine counties are unrepresented and these counties last year gave a total of 320,123 bales.

Chicago Livestock.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Cattle—Receipts, about 3,000; market weak; beeves, $3.60@7.25; cows, $1.20@5; Texans, $3.50@4.40; calves, $5@7.50; westerners, $3.20@5.75; stockers and feeders, $2.40@4.50. Hogs—Receipts, about 13,000; market 5c lower; light, $5.50@6; mixed, $5.40@6.10; heavy, $5.20@5.95; rough, $5.20@5.35; pigs, $5@5.30; bulk of sales, $5.50@5.90. Sheep—Receipts, about 4,000; market weak; native, $2.70@5.50; western, $2.70@5.50; yearlings, $5.25@6; lambs, $4.50@7.25; western, $4.50@7.20.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 25.—Barrett & Zimmerman's report: The market continues to rule weak. The demand is narrow and confined to the city retail trade largely. One load of heavy loggers were sold for western shipment during the day. John Dale, Wheaton, Minn.; Ben Betts, Keokuk, Iowa, and P. E. Johnson, Minot, N. D., were visitors on the market during the day.

WAR TALK IS CRIMINAL

Bede Says the Japanese Agitators Are Dangerous Demagogues.

Johnson's Fame Spreading—Religious Revival About Due.

"The prediction of war with Japan that is being indulged in by certain members of congress, who in speeches and through interviews in the press, predict a clash of arms between the United States and Japan, is nothing less than criminal, as such irresponsible agitation may lead to results grave beyond the imagination of man, and fraught with a terrible menace to our prosperity," said J. Adam Bede, in a statement at the St. Louis hotel this morning.

While not believing that there is anything in the Oriental question that will lead to war, Mr. Bede deplores that prediction of a war with Japan is being indulged in by certain members of congress. Who these members of the lower house are, Mr. Bede refused to disclose. But he expressed a contempt for their actions as unstatesmanlike, irresponsible and criminal to the interests of the country.

Foolish and Criminal.

"Statesmen in Japan understand the local application of the San Francisco Japanese question," said Mr. Bede. They understand that in no way does this country desire or intend to be drawn into an argument over the question that is perplexing thinking public men. The talk of war is dangerous; more, it is foolhardy and criminal."

Picks Taft as Winner.

In discussing politics Mr. Bede inclines to the belief that William H. Taft will receive the support of voters in a large section of the country. Mr. Bede has recently taken a trip that extended as far East as New York, and as far to the Southwest as Texas. In this range of states of varying political complexion he found a fairly unanimous sentiment for the secretary of war.

Johnson, though, he says, is exciting the attention of people throughout the country. In Texas he met people who were anxious to learn of the Minnesota governor. In Missouri, New York and throughout the West generally, the people are exhibiting a curiosity regarding the dark horse of the Democratic party.

"William J. Bryan is more popular today than ever," was Mr. Bede's assertion. "This is not saying that he is more popular as a possible nominee of the Democratic party. Of that there exists a great deal of doubt. But as a man—entirely separating his personality from politics—you will find the Nebraskan thought more kindly of by the masses today than at any period since his meteoric career as a national figure began in 1896.

Religious Revival Due.

"The people lean to religious revivals in times of financial stress. In times of bounteous prosperity they decide that they can get along without the help of the Almighty," is the view of the congressman on the present financial situation. "I believe that a revival is about due up around here," he added.

"Drum corps methods of unearthing corporation dishonesty and blatant publicity in giving the people the result of these discoveries," says Mr. Bede, are responsible for much of the financial agitation and resultant fluctuations in the world of finance.

"The country banks are prosperous; in fact they are loaning money to the larger banking institutions. The farmer has money, but the big corporations and the railroads are finding it mighty difficult to realize money on securities. The railroad situation, to my mind, is serious. The prosperity of the country depends upon their expansion, their carrying capacity. They are behind the progress of the country today. Suppose they fall farther behind, general prosperity will suffer, the farmer will find it difficult to market his crop, and trade in general will experience a reaction.

Inland Waterways.

"I am in favor of opening all possible inland waterways. Congress, I believe, looks with decided approbation on the policy of developing our rivers and inland waterways. It is a provision for the future; a safeguarding of our common-carrying facilities, and let me tell you, this problem of carrying the goods of the American manufacturer, the great crops of our farms, the products of our mines, is one that looms with serious menace to the general prosperity of our country. Our financial welfare depends, in a great measure, upon the ability of the railroads to market our products. Our prosperity and theirs goes hand in hand."

Mr. Bede spoke last evening at the Swedish Methodist church.

WILL WORK ON FIGURES

Commercial Club Has Data on New Courthouse Plans.

Want Awnings on Central Avenue Raised to Legal Height.

At the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club tonight, the courthouse plans and the schemes for grouping public buildings at Fifth avenue west, will again come up for consideration and it is expected the club will adopt some resolutions expressive of the feelings of West Duluth citizens in the matter.

At the meeting last Friday night, the question was discussed quite thoroughly, but the club was under something of a handicap on account of the lack of figures showing the entire cost of the building and site under the different plans and the distribution of the cost among the city, county and government. A committee was accordingly appointed to investigate the different plans and bring figures before the club tonight, giving the desired information.

The committee has completed its work and will appear before the club tonight with loads of figures, showing the cost of the plans and the distribution of the expense. The members of the club are deeply interested in the matter, and it is expected there will be a good attendance tonight and that the resolutions, which will probably be adopted, will be representative of the wishes of West Duluth's citizens as a whole.

The club will also probably be asked tonight to request the enforcement of the city ordinance prescribing the height of awnings and signs extending over the sidewalk. The height named in the ordinance is seven feet and nearly every awning on Central avenue drops below that height. The awnings are unsightly, to say the least, and a man above medium height is in constant danger of having his hat knocked off, when walking under them.

West Duluth is in a beautifying period and the people interested in it think that in the beautifying of Central avenue, the awnings should play a prominent part. They are of all colors and shades and hang at every possible height and angle, without any show of regularity of conformity to the city ordinances. The matter has been brought up several times in the past, but nobody has ever seen fit to make a direct request to the mayor and police that the ordinance be enforced, so that the awnings have gone on in their own sweet way, detracting from the appearance of the main business street of West Duluth.

HAVE NO CANDIDATES.

Republican Club to Send Delegation to Mass Meeting.

The West Duluth Republican club held an enthusiastic meeting at the rooms of the Commercial club last evening and appointed a committee of seven members to represent the club at the mass meeting of citizens to be held in the city hall Saturday night for the consideration of the political outlook for the city as a whole, from a Republican standpoint.

The meeting last night took no action toward the recommendation of candidates for the different offices. Alderman J. E. Foubister was present, and he said that he is firm in his resolve not to make the run for the seat in the council again, ill health and business cares preventing. There appears to be a feeling among some of the voters of the Eighth ward that a man from the extreme western end of the city should be chosen, and several residents of New Duluth and Smithville have been mentioned as probable candidates. William Arbor of Smithville was mentioned last night, as was A. H. Merriman of West Duluth, but no action of any kind was taken, other than the appointment of the committee.

West Duluth Republicans are chary of opinions on the question of of the mayoralty nomination. West Duluth Republicans evidently have no choice, unless there should be a probability of securing the nomination for L. A. Barnes, who has been repeatedly mentioned in connection with the place. Whether or not Mr. Barnes would stand for the nomination is a question, which he has not yet answered.

WILL HONOR VISITOR.

Grand Commander of K. O. T. M. to Visit West Duluth Tent.

Dr. E. H. Haas of St. Paul, grand commander of the K. O. T. M. of the state of Minnesota, will be a guest of honor at the meeting of West Duluth tent, No. 2, next Monday evening, at Great Eastern hall.

Since Dr. Haas' acceptance of the invitation of the lodge to visit them, the members have been preparing for his reception, and it is expected the meeting Monday night will be one of the biggest in the history of the tent. The regular business meeting of the tent will first be held and the grand commander and Past Grand Commander Mallory of West Duluth will address the gathering on subjects pertaining to the lodge work.

After the business meeting there will be a program of musical numbers, and other entertainment features will be provided. Refreshments will also be served.

Social of the Seasons.

The Young Ladies' Guid of Holy Apostles' Episcopal church will entertain in a novel manner tonight at the rectory, 634 North Fifty-eighth avenue west. The affair will take the form of a "Social of the Seasons," four rooms in the house being decorated to conform to the four seasons, and the programs and forms of amusement to be provided in each to be a part of the general plan. The young ladies were busy all day yesterday and today decorating the rectory, and it will present a pretty scene to the visitors this evening.

Some customers complain that our new Fall Shirts are all so attractive that it's hard to decide which one to select.

Stiff or plaited bosoms. Lay your summer shirts aside now until next spring. A stiff bosom shirt keeps the cold wind out and looks and feels better worn with your new Fall Suit, while you can still walk about without overcoat.

The new Columbia showing of shirts will appeal to you. The patterns are neat, the colorings are bright and materials are the finest.

Most of our shirts are made in coat style with cuffs attached or separate. Prices of Dress Shirts from $1.00 to $3.50.

PAROLED PRISONER ENDS LIFE BY BLOWING OUT HIS BRAINS AFTER RE-ARREST

Had Quit Job as Bookkeeper, Thus Violating His Pledge.

Was Being Taken Back to St. Cloud Reformatory.

OAKLEIGH THORNE, President of the Trust Company of America, Who Has Pulled His Institution Through the Financial Trouble.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Blackwell, aged 26 years, a paroled prisoner from the state reformatory at St. Cloud, placed a thirty-eight caliber revolver to his right temple and blew out his brains at the door of the central police station at 10 o'clock this morning.

For the past four months Blackwell had been working as bookkeeper. A few days ago he suddenly quit his position, and by so doing violated his parole.

He was located in St. Paul today by State Agent Bancroft. Bancroft placed him under arrest, and decided to take him to the central station until 10:30, when his train left for St. Cloud.

Just as he was entering the door of the police station, Blackwell drew a revolver from his hip pocket, and before Chief of Police O'Connor, who was standing just inside the door, could prevent him, he had placed the weapon to his right temple and pulled the trigger, and he fell at the threshold of the station, dead.

MEN CAPTURED WITH $14,000

May be the Bandits Who Held Up Oriental Limited.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 26.—With $14,000 in national bank notes concealed on their persons, at the point of drawn revolvers, surrounded by a squad of detectives, two rough-looking men believed to be the bandits who held up the Great Northern Oriental Limited train near Rondo Siding, Mont., on Sept. 12, and secured $40,000 in greenbacks, threw up their hands and were arrested in a Great Northern dining car as it entered this city last night. When searched at the police station the $14,000 was taken from their clothing. The descriptions of the bandits exactly fit them. On the paper wrappers around the currency was the stamp of the Commercial National Bank of Chicago. The suspects gave their names as G. E. McDonald, 43 years old, and Ed Smith, 33 years old. They said they were miners. They fell under suspicion at Bonner's Ferry, where they squandered $500 in dance halls and saloons.

TWO INDICTMENTS

Returned Against the Former Cashier of Waynesburg, Pa., Bank.

Pittsburg, Oct. 26.—Two indictments were returned by the grand jury against J. B. F. Rinehart, former cashier of the Farmers' and Drovers' National Bank at Waynesburg, Pa. One indictment contains ninety counts, seventy of which are upon alleged false entries in the books of the bank and in the reports to the comptroller of the currency. Fifteen counts charge abstractions, amounting to $110,146, and four allege misapplications, amounting to $50,487. The other indictment contains nineteen counts, eight of which are for alleged false entries and eleven for alleged abstractions, amounting to $74,609.

BISHOP OF LONDON TELLS OF GOOD TIME.

London, Oct. 26.—Dr. Ingram, bishop of London, since his return from America, has been kept busy telling his friends of the delights of his visit, and has been saying nice things about Americans.

"I really had the time of my life," said Dr. Ingram. "The attention paid to me by President Roosevelt and the respect extended by the American people generally, coupled with their delightful hospitality, has made a deep impression on me."

FINANCIAL FLURRY HAS NO EFFECT ON IMPORTS.

New York, Oct. 26.—Statements given out at the New York custom house, and reports received from Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans and San Francisco show that the unsettled conditions now prevailing in financial circles have had no unfavorable influence on the importing business of the country. Henry C. Stuart, acting collector of the port, said that the entry of foreign goods had not been curtailed. On the contrary, the average daily receipts of merchandise this week was considerably more than for the corresponding week of a year ago.

CARNEGIE OPTIMISTIC

Well Pleased With Financial Situation on Return From Europe.

Says That Investors Will Only Have to Hold On.

New York, Oct. 26.—Andrew Carnegie, upon his return from Europe today after a long vacation abroad, expressed himself in a most optimistic way concerning the financial situation. "I was delighted to read the good news this morning," he said. "I am surprised that the fall in stocks has been so small. This proves that the situation is not alarming and that the country is all right. Investors have only to hold on. The financial authorities have acted boldly but wisely and the flurry will soon blow over. It is quite right that savings banks should require notice.

"It should not be forgotten, however, that we have had the greatest expansion of modern times, and sure as fate reaction must come and has already begun, but it will be healthful. We may have a season of less activity in trade, but that will be followed in due time by another period of expansion. Nothing can prevent the rapid progress of the republic. She is all right and bound to distance all competitors in the race. Speculation will be less to the front for a time, but genuine business will not suffer seriously.

"It lies in the nature of things that the attempt to attribute the recent and spasmodic fall in prices to the wise and truest sense the truly conservative resolve of the president and his cabinet to enforce the salutary laws against the abuse of their powers by certain trusts, is only a device to serve political intrigue."

GOOD UNDERTONE

Manifested in the London Market, Although Dealings Were Quiet.

London, Oct. 26.—Money in the market today continued in good demand, with rates firm. Discounts were firm. Much caution was exercised pending a settlement of the financial troubles in New York.

The stock exchange finished an exciting week with the tone calm and prices steady. The volume of business transacted in first class securities was not so large as usual owing to the approach of the settlement, and, although consols eased on the prospects of the shipment of gold from here to the United States, and the dearer rates charged for money, the undertone was decidedly good.

Americans were comparatively quiet, the dealings being confined principally to Union Pacific, Atchison and Missouri Pacific. Prices opened well above par, hardened during the session and closed firm at near the best quotations of the day.

Copper shares were notably strong. Rio Tinto gained a point, and Amalgamated gained 2 points. Foreigners were quiet. Japanese were weak.

The Bank of England today sold $50,000 in French gold.

UNIVERSALITS IN SESSION.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Mayor Reyburn made an address of welcome at today's session of the general convention of the Universalist church. Frank P. Bennett of Massachusets, president of the convention, responded. The session of the convention today was devoted largely to the consideration of the report of the board of trustees, the appointment of committees, and addresses of fraternal greeting.

TO DEPART ON DEC. 16

Date Definitely Fixed for Sailing of Fleet to Pacific.

Decided Upon at a Conference Held at the White House.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Secretary Metcalf today announced that it was definitely settled that the Atlantic fleet would leave Hampton Roads on Dec. 16 for its cruise to the Pacific coast. This announcement followed a conference held at the White House, to which the president summoned Secretary Metcalf, Rear Admiral Evans, who will command the Atlantic fleet on its cruise to the Pacific, and Rear Admiral Brownson, chief of the bureau of navigation of the navy department. The conference was called to continue more in detail the cabinet meeting discussion of naval affairs yesterday. The discussion related particularly to details of the Atlantic fleet's cruise to the Pacific coast.

WOMAN PASSED FORGED CHECKS

San Francisco Female is Under Arrest at Rochester, Minn.

Rochester, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Aimie Lloyd of San Francisco, a former Rochester girl, known as Miss Aimee Sickel, is in the county jail charged with passing forged checks. The checks were for various amounts from $35 to $100. They were signed with the name of her sister, Mrs. D. S. Sterns of Chicago. Four or five business firms and two banks cashed the checks, which amounted in all to about $400. Mrs. Lloyd brought before City Justice Schlacht yesterday, pleaded not guilty and asked for an adjournment of the case to await the arrival of her husband. She was given until Oct. 30.

Mrs. Lloyd was formerly Aimee Sickel and was related to D. S. Stern, at one time a prominent clothier here.

TAFT IN FIRST ACCIDENT ON NEW MANILA RAILWAY.

Manila, Oct. 26.—Secretary Taft made an inspection of the partially completed extention of the Manila-Dagupan railway Friday. He rode twenty-five miles on the first passenger train run over the line, and incidentally was a participant in the first accident on the road. Near the terminus a flat car in front of Mr. Taft's car was derailed and nearly took his with it. The Taft car ran completely on top of the flat car.

MAN SAWS OFF BOARD SITTING ON WRONG END

Pittsburg, Oct. 26.—Sitting on a piece of lumber on a thirty-foot trestle today, John Hughes, a carpenter for the American Bridge company, sawed the board through and fell with the piece he had sawed off. He had been sitting on the wrong end of the board. His right thigh was broken and he sustained severe scalp wounds.

A PURELY NEGRO COMMONWEALTH

May Be Considered at Meeting of the Colored Race.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 26.—Lieut. Col. Allensworth, U. S. A., retired, one of the most prominent negroes of the West, has addressed a communication to the members of the colored race in the United States, asking for expressions regarding the holding of a national convention, looking to the solution of the race problem in the Southern states and the desirability in particular of establishing a purely negro commonwealth in some part of the United States. Col. Allensworth is a Baptist minister of Bowling Green, Ky. His address says in part:

"If we expect to hold the friends we now have and win the respect of the world, we must improve our condition by a concentrated movement of our moral and intellectual influences in some organized form. Therefore, I invite all whom it may concern to state their opinion of time and place for a national meeting, to discover if the negro is a disturbing element in the intellectual and industrial circles in any part of the country and how the disenfranchised negro can maintain his dignity."

KILLS FIRST PASSENGER

The Metropolitan Underground Railroad Has Initial Fatality.

Three Persons Killed and Dozen Injured in Collision.

London, Oct. 26.—Three persons were killed and a dozen injured this morning in a rear-end collision at the West Hampstead station of the Metropolitan underground railroad. The rear train, it appears, ran past the signals in a fog and crashed into a train standing at the station.

This is the first accident of the kind since the London lines were electrified, when a system of electric signaling was installed, which the company claimed would absolutely preclude the possibility of such a catastrophe.

The Metropolitan has had a remarkable record of immunity from fatalities. This is said to be the first accident resulting in the death of a passenger, although 300,000,000,000 people have been carried since the opening of the road.

RUSSIAN IS ACQUITTED

Of Murder of Prof. Hertzenstein, Former Member of Parliament.

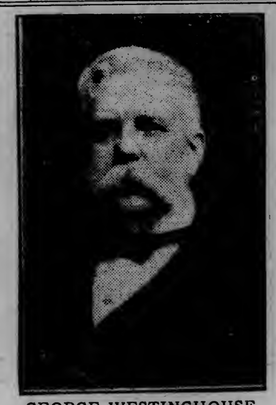

St. Petersburg, Oct. 26.—The trial at Terioki, Finland, of Topoleff, a member of the League of the Russian People, accused of the murder of Prof. Hertzenstein, the member of the lower house o fthe first Russian parliament, who was killed at his country home near Terioki, July 31, 1906, has ended in the discharge of the prisoner on the ground of insufficient evidence. Lavaoff, a man who testified against Topoleff, was sentenced to five months' imprisonment for failing to give evidence earlier.

Two additional members of the military organization of the Social Revolutionists, have been arrested here on the charge of having taken part in the plot to murder Lieut. Gen. Rudiger, minister of war, which was discovered in July last.

LABOR UNREST AT HAVANA.

Havana, Oct. 26.—In labor circles, where great unrest has prevailed for some weeks, the statement is made that plans have been made to inaugurate a general strike on Monday next. The railroad strike shows little change. The officials complain of the police protection and declare that loyal employes are being openly intimidated.

CERTIFICATES WILL BE ISSUED BY N. Y. CLEARING HOUSE TO SUPPLY FUNDS

GEORGE WESTINGHOUSE, Famous Inventor, Whose Companies Bearing His Name, Were Caught in the Financial Flurry. It is Said Mr. Westinghouse's Private Interests Were Not Affected.

To Tide Over the Present Scarcity of Ready Money.

Tension Will Also be Relieved by Imports of Gold.

Public Confidence Has Been Largely Restored in City.

New York, Oct. 26.—The stock exchange and the banks closed at noon today without any further failures of importance, with considerable improvement in the stock market, and with several important remedial measures taken, or agreed upon, to strengthen the financial situation. The only reverse of the day was the suspension of the Terminal bank, Brooklyn, a new and small institution, without any importance in the general financial world. There is now a breathing spell until Monday morning, and there is a distinct sense of relief apparent everywhere. Already arrangements for the importation of gold are well under way, and it is hoped these will furnish the relief needed. It is understood that the treasury department will, as heretofore, advance the gold for immediate use, so as to save the time occupied in transit from Europe.

Meanwhile, as a precautionary measure, although not regarded vitally essential, the clearing house today authorized the issuance of loan certificates. This means that the clearing house banks are to present a united front in this emergency, and that the aggregate resources of all of them are to be pledged for the maintenance of each.

The runs upon the Trust Company of America and the Lincoln Trust company continued in very much abated form, but both institutions met all demands.

The drafts of country banks on their New York reserves were heavy, but not alarming, since at this period of the year such drafts are to be expected for the purpose of moving the crops.

The imposition of the ninety-days' rule in Rhode Island stopped runs there, and matters assumed a normal phase.

The stock market opened at an advance over yesterday and showed little symptoms of serious agitation. London and other foreign points also gave reassuring advices. The rate of exchange was such as to facilitate gold imports, and confidence abroad was evidenced by the improved tone of all foreign bourses, the only weakness apparently being the result of a failure in Constantinople and the financial crisis in Chili. On the whole the power of resistance of the banks in New York

BREWER IS SURPRISED

Has Entertained No Intention of Running for Mayor.

Compares Teachers' Salaries Here and in Portland, Or.

Frank A. Brewer, who has just returned from an extended tour through the West, seemed much surprised when asked, by a reporter for The Herald, today, if he were going to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor.

"I had not given the matter a single thought and did not know that anyone else had," said Mr. Brewer.

"Would you accept the nomination if it were tendered you?" was asked.

"I can't say that I would," was the reply. "This entire matter is so new to me, that I am unprepared to say what I would do. I have not thought of running for mayor, and I am surprised to learn that my name has even been mentioned in connection with the nomination."

Dismissing the subject of politics, Mr. Brewer, who is vice president of the board of education, referred to the question of teachers' wages, which has been agitating so many good people in Duluth during the past year.

"I took the trouble to look into the basis of teachers' salaries in some of the larger Western cities. In Portland, I made particular inquiries. There, the minimum wage for teachers is $50 while the minimum in Duluth is $45, although most of the teachers are getting much more than that. In Portland, they pay a little more than we do for some special teachers, but eliminating the minimum and the special teachers, I should say that there was very little difference between the wages paid teachers in Duluth and Portland, while the cost of living in Portland is fully 10 per cent more than it is here.

"I understand that notwithstanding the fact that it was necessary in order to care for the boosts in the wages of the teachers, there has been some criticism of the board for increasing the tax levy. That seems absurd. Very likely it is those people who pay very little taxes or none at all who are kicking about the school tax."

ROGAN WINS TROPHY AT JAMESTOWN SHOOT.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 26.—The trophy in the Jamestown national clay target tournament at the Jamestown exposition yesterday for the amateur making the highest score in 200 targets, was won by M. J. Rogan of the Colgate club of Baltimore, who broke 175. The Winchester-Dupont squad of experts made some fine scores. W. R. Crosby, the world's champion, was the high man with J. R. Taylor a close second. L. S. Gorman and J. M. Hakins tied at 19 teach; L. R. Barkley, 187; W. H. Heer, 189, and H. G. Taylor, 184.

WILL REOPEN MONDAY.

Pittsburg, Oct. 26.—The Pittsburg stock exchange, which was closed last Wednesday morning upon the request of the Clearing House association, to prevent an unnecessary sacrifice of values, did not resume operations today. It was said, unofficially, however, that trading would probably begin again Monday morning.

A meeting of the Pittsburg Clearing House association will be held at 1 o'clock for the purpose of considering the advisability of issuing certificates. Should such a course be taken, it is said the stock exchange will open on Monday. The week end pay day brought a great number of persons to the banks today. The payroll, it is estimated, takes from $7,000,000 to $8,000,000 to satisfy.

Financial circles remain optimistic and the situation here is believed to have been successfully dealt with.

MORE BATTLES ON GRIDIRON

Wisconsin and Illinois Engaged in Contest at Madison.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 26.—The football season of the University of Wisconsin will be ushered in this afternoon, when the Wisconsin eleven meet the University of Illinois. Both coaches express the opinion that the contest will be a hard-fought one, and that the result will be decided pretty much by endurance of the teams. The elevens are looked upon as being quite evenly matched.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—The University of Pennsylvania and Carlisle Indians will meet this afternoon in their annual football contest, on Franklin field. Ideal weather prevails, and as today's game is one of Pennsylvania's biggest at home, a large crowd is expected. Pennsylvania will have her strongest team, and endeavor to wipe out the 24-6 defeat of last year. All of the men are in fine fettle, and are confident of victory. The Indians will include all of the famous players who triumphed last year, including Mount Pleasant, Gardner, Exendine and Hendricks. There are several men on the team, all of them good players. Coach Warner is also confident of victory. The game will begin at 2:30 o'clock, and full halves will be played.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 26.—At Yale field today, the Yale football team will try conclusions with Villa Nova, which latter eleven scored against Princeton early in the season. The Yale team, which a week ago was unable to score on West Point, has been given hard practice since that time, and it is the opinion of its friends that the team is the best the university has had in several years.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 26.—The Nebraska-Colorado football game will be played on Nebraska field this afternoon, under cloudy skies. The Colorado team arrived Friday, and did considerable secret practice work at the state farm. The visiting team is somewhat crippled by the absence of Capt. Farnsworth and Weimar, who are out of the game temporarily because of injuries.

TWO INDICTMENTS

Returned Against the Former Cashier of Waynesburg, Pa., Bank.

Pittsburg, Oct. 26.—Two indictments were returned by the grand jury against J. B. F. Rinehart, former cashier of the Farmers' and Drovers' National Bank at Waynesburg, Pa. One indictment contains ninety counts, seventy of which are upon alleged false entries in the books of the bank and in the reports to the comptroller of the currency. Fifteen counts charge abstractions, amounting to $110,146, and four allege misapplications, amounting to $50,487. The other indictment contains nineteen counts, eight of which are for alleged false entries and eleven for alleged abstractions, amounting to $74,609.

BISHOP OF LONDON TELLS OF GOOD TIME.

London, Oct. 26.—Dr. Ingram, bishop of London, since his return from America, has been kept busy telling his friends of the delights of his visit, and has been saying nice things about Americans.

"I really had the time of my life," said Dr. Ingram. "The attention paid to me by President Roosevelt and the respect extended by the American people generally, coupled with their delightful hospitality, has made a deep impression on me."

FINANCIAL FLURRY HAS NO EFFECT ON IMPORTS.

New York, Oct. 26.—Statements given out at the New York custom house, and reports received from Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans and San Francisco show that the unsettled conditions now prevailing in financial circles have had no unfavorable influence on the importing business of the country. Henry C. Stuart, acting collector of the port, said that the entry of foreign goods had not been curtailed. On the contrary, the average daily receipts of merchandise this week was considerably more than for the corresponding week of a year ago.

TO DEPART ON DEC. 16

Date Definitely Fixed for Sailing of Fleet to Pacific.

Decided Upon at a Conference Held at the White House.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Secretary Metcalf today announced that it was definitely settled that the Atlantic fleet would leave Hampton Roads on Dec. 16 for its cruise to the Pacific coast. This announcement followed a conference held at the White House, to which the president summoned Secretary Metcalf, Rear Admiral Evans, who will command the Atlantic fleet on its cruise to the Pacific, and Rear Admiral Brownson, chief of the bureau of navigation of the navy department. The conference was called to continue more in detail the cabinet meeting discussion of naval affairs yesterday. The discussion related particularly to details of the Atlantic fleet's cruise to the Pacific coast.

San Francisco Female is Under Arrest at Rochester, Minn.

Rochester, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Aimie Lloyd of San Francisco, a former Rochester girl, known as Miss Aimee Sickel, is in the county jail charged with passing forged checks. The checks were for various amounts from $35 to $100. They were signed with the name of her sister, Mrs. D. S. Sterns of Chicago. Four or five business firms and two banks cashed the checks, which amounted in all to about $400. Mrs. Lloyd was brought before City Justice Schlacht yesterday, pleaded not guilty and asked for an adjournment of the case to await the arrival of her husband. She was given until Oct. 30.

Mrs. Lloyd was formerly Aimee Sickel and was related to D. S. Stern, at one time a prominent clothier here.

TAFT IN FIRST ACCIDENT ON NEW MANILA RAILWAY.

Manila, Oct. 26.—Secretary Taft made an inspection of the partially completed extention of the Manila-Dagupan railway Friday. He rode twenty-five miles on the first passenger train run over the line, and incidentally was a participant in the first accident on the road. Near the terminus a flat car in front of Mr. Taft's car was derailed and nearly took his with it. The Taft car ran completely on top of the flat car.

MAN SAWS OFF BOARD SITTING ON WRONG END

Pittsburg, Oct. 26.—Sitting on a piece of lumber on a thirty-foot trestle today, John Hughes, a carpenter for the American Bridge company, sawed the board through and fell with the piece he had sawed off. He had been sitting on the wrong end of the board. His right thigh was broken and he sustained severe scalp wounds.

A PURELY NEGRO COMMONWEALTH

May Be Considered at Meeting of the Colored Race.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 26.—Lieut. Col. Allensworth, U. S. A., retired, one of the most prominent negroes of the West, has addressed a communication to the members of the colored race in the United States, asking for expressions regarding the holding of a national convention, looking to the solution of the race problem in the Southern states and the desirability in particular of establishing a purely negro commonwealth in some part of the United States. Col. Allensworth is a Baptist minister of Bowling Green, Ky. His address says in part:

"If we expect to hold the friends we now have and win the respect of the world, we must improve our condition by a concentrated movement of our moral and intellectual influences in some organized form. Therefore, I invite all whom it may concern to state their opinion of time and place for a national meeting, to discover if the negro is a disturbing element in the intellectual and industrial circles in any part of the country and how the disenfranchised negro can maintain his dignity."

KILLS FIRST PASSENGER

The Metropolitan Underground Railroad Has Initial Fatality.

Three Persons Killed and Dozen Injured in Collision.

London, Oct. 26.—Three persons were killed and a dozen injured this morning in a rear-end collision at the West Hampstead station of the Metropolitan underground railroad. The rear train, it appears, ran past the signals in a fog and crashed into a train standing at the station.

This is the first accident of the kind since the London lines were electrified, when a system of electric signaling was installed, which the company claimed would absolutely preclude the possibility of such a catastrophe.

The Metropolitan has had a remarkable record of immunity from fatalities. This is said to be the first accident resulting in the death of a passenger, although 300,000,000,000 people have been carried since the opening of the road.

RUSSIAN IS ACQUITTED

Of Murder of Prof. Hertzenstein, Former Member of Parliament.

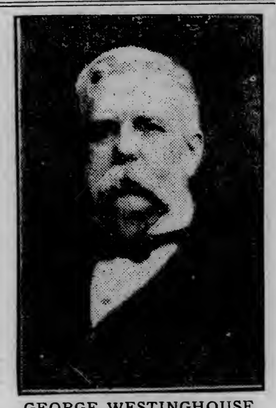

St. Petersburg, Oct. 26.—The trial at Terioki, Finland, of Topoleff, a member of the League of the Russian People, accused of the murder of Prof. Hertzenstein, the member of the lower house o fthe first Russian parliament, who was killed at his country home near Terioki, July 31, 1906, has ended in the discharge of the prisoner on the ground of insufficient evidence. Lavaoff, a man who testified against Topoleff, was sentenced to five months' imprisonment for failing to give evidence earlier.

Two additional members of the military organization of the Social Revolutionists, have been arrested here on the charge of having taken part in the plot to murder Lieut. Gen. Rudiger, minister of war, which was discovered in July last.

LABOR UNREST AT HAVANA.

Havana, Oct. 26.—In labor circles, where great unrest has prevailed for some weeks, the statement is made that plans have been made to inaugurate a general strike on Monday next. The railroad strike shows little change. The officials complain of the police protection and declare that loyal employes are being openly intimidated.

CERTIFICATES WILL BE ISSUED BY N. Y. CLEARING HOUSE TO SUPPLY FUNDS

GEORGE WESTINGHOUSE,
Famous Inventor, Whose Companies Bearing His Name, Were Caught in the Financial Flurry. It is Said Mr. Westinghouse's Private Interests Were Not Affected.

To Tide Over the Present Scarcity of Ready Money.

Tension Will Also be Relieved by Imports of Gold.

Public Confidence Has Been Largely Restored in City.

New York, Oct. 26.—The stock exchange and the banks closed at noon today without any further failures of importance, with considerable improvement in the stock market, and with several important remedial measures taken, or agreed upon, to strengthen the financial situation. The only reverse of the day was the suspension of the Terminal bank, Brooklyn, a new and small institution, without any importance in the general financial world. There is now a breathing spell until Monday morning, and there is a distinct sense of relief apparent everywhere. Already arrangements for the importation of gold are well under way, and it is hoped these will furnish the relief needed. It is understood that the treasury department will, as heretofore, advance the gold for immediate use, so as to save the time occupied in transit from Europe.

Meanwhile, as a precautionary measure, although not regarded vitally essential, the clearing house today authorized the issuance of loan certificates. This means that the clearing house banks are to present a united front in this emergency, and that the aggregate resources of all of them are to be pledged for the maintenance of each.

The runs upon the Trust Company of America and the Lincoln Trust company continued in very much abated form, but both institutions met all demands.

The drafts of country banks on their New York reserves were heavy, but not alarming, since at this period of the year such drafts are to be expected for the purpose of moving the crops.

The imposition of the ninety-days' rule in Rhode Island stopped runs there, and matters assumed a normal phase.

The stock market opened at an advance over yesterday and showed little symptoms of serious agitation. London and other foreign points also gave reassuring advices. The rate of exchange was such as to facilitate gold imports, and confidence abroad was evidenced by the improved tone of all foreign bourses, the only weakness apparently being the result of a failure in Constantinople and the financial crisis in Chili. On the whole the power of resistance of the banks in New York

Has Entertained No Intention of Running for Mayor.

Compares Teachers' Salaries Here and in Portland, Or.

Frank A. Brewer, who has just returned from an extended tour through the West, seemed much surprised when asked, by a reporter for The Herald, today, if he were going to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor.

"I had not given the matter a single thought and did not know that anyone else had," said Mr. Brewer.

"Would you accept the nomination if it were tendered you?" was asked.

"I can't say that I would," was the reply. "This entire matter is so new to me, that I am unprepared to say what I would do. I have not thought of running for mayor, and I am surprised to learn that my name has even been mentioned in connection with the nomination."

Dismissing the subject of politics, Mr. Brewer, who is vice president of the board of education, referred to the question of teachers' wages, which has been agitating so many good people in Duluth during the past year.

"I took the trouble to look into the basis of teachers' salaries in some of the larger Western cities. In Portland, I made particular inquiries. There, the minimum wage for teachers is $50 while the minimum in Duluth is $45, although most of the teachers are getting much more than that. In Portland, they pay a little more than we do for some special teachers, but eliminating the minimum and the special teachers, I should say that there was very little difference between the wages paid teachers in Duluth and Portland, while the cost of living in Portland is fully 10 per cent more than it is here.

"I understand that notwithstanding the fact that it was necessary in order to care for the boosts in the wages of the teachers, there has been some criticism of the board for increasing the tax levy. That seems absurd. Very likely it is those people who pay very little taxes or none at all who are kicking about the school tax."

ROGAN WINS TROPHY AT JAMESTOWN SHOOT.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 26.—The trophy in the Jamestown national clay target tournament at the Jamestown exposition yesterday for the amateur making the highest score in 200 targets, was won by M. J. Rogan of the Colgate club of Baltimore, who broke 175. The Winchester-Dupont squad of experts made some fine scores. W. R. Crosby, the world's champion, was the high man with J. R. Taylor a close second. L. S. Gorman and J. M. Hakins tied at 19 teach; L. R. Barkley, 187; W. H. Heer, 189, and H. G. Taylor, 184.

WILL REOPEN MONDAY.

Pittsburg, Oct. 26.—The Pittsburg stock exchange, which was closed last Wednesday morning upon the request of the Clearing House association, to prevent an unnecessary sacrifice of values, did not resume operations today. It was said, unofficially, however, that trading would probably begin again Monday morning.

A meeting of the Pittsburg Clearing House association will be held at 1 o'clock for the purpose of considering the advisability of issuing certificates. Should such a course be taken, it is said the stock exchange will open on Monday. The week end pay day brought a great number of persons to the banks today. The payroll, it is estimated, takes from $7,000,000 to $8,000,000 to satisfy.

Financial circles remain optimistic and the situation here is believed to have been successfully dealt with.

Wisconsin and Illinois Engaged in Contest at Madison.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 26.—The football season of the University of Wisconsin will be ushered in this afternoon, when the Wisconsin eleven meet the University of Illinois. Both coaches express the opinion that the contest will be a hard-fought one, and that the result will be decided pretty much by endurance of the teams. The elevens are looked upon as being quite evenly matched.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—The University of Pennsylvania and Carlisle Indians will meet this afternoon in their annual football contest, on Franklin field. Ideal weather prevails, and as today's game is one of Pennsylvania's biggest at home, a large crowd is expected. Pennsylvania will have her strongest team, and endeavor to wipe out the 24.6 defeat of last year. All of the men are in fine fettle, and are confident of victory. The Indians will include all of the famous players who triumphed last year, including Mount Pleasant, Gardner, Exendine and Hendricks. There are several men on the team, all of them good players. Coach Warner is also confident of victory. The game will begin at 2:30 o'clock, and full halves will be played.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 26.—At Yale field today, the Yale football team will try conclusions with Villa Nova, which latter eleven scored against Princeton early in the season. The Yale team, which a week ago was unable to score on West Point, has been given hard practice since that time, and it is the opinion of its friends that the team is the best the university has had in several years.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 26.—The Nebraska-Colorado football game will be played on Nebraska field this afternoon, under cloudy skies. The Colorado team arrived Friday, and did considerable secret practice work at the state farm. The visiting team is somewhat crippled by the absence of Capt. Farnsworth and Weimar, who are out of the game temporarily because of injuries.

GOOD UNDERTONE

Manifested in the London Market, Although Dealings Were Quiet.

London, Oct. 26.—Money in the market today continued in good demand, with rates firm. Discounts were firm. Much caution was exercised pending a settlement of the financial troubles in New York.

The stock exchange finished an exciting week with the tone calm and prices steady. The volume of business transacted in first class securities was not so large as usual owing to the approach of the settlement, and, although consols eased on the prospects of the shipment of gold from here to the United States, and the dearer rates charged for money, the undertone was decidedly good.

Americans were comparatively quiet, the dealings being confined principally to Union Pacific, Atchison and Missouri Pacific. Prices opened well above par, hardened during the session and closed firm at near the best quotations of the day.

Copper shares were notably strong. Rio Tinto gained a point, and Amalgamated gained 2 points. Foreigners were quiet. Japanese were weak.

The Bank of England today sold $50,000 in French gold.

UNIVERSALITS IN SESSION.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Mayor Reyburn made an address of welcome at today's session of the general convention of the Universalist church. Frank P. Bennett of Massachusets, president of the convention, responded. The session of the convention today was devoted largely to the consideration of the report of the board of trustees, the appointment of committees, and addresses of fraternal greeting.

CARNEGIE OPTIMISTIC

Well Pleased With Financial Situation on Return From Europe.

Says That Investors Will Only Have to Hold On.

New York, Oct. 26.—Andrew Carnegie, upon his return from Europe today after a long vacation abroad, expressed himself in a most optimistic way concerning the financial situation. "I was delighted to read the good news this morning," he said. "I am surprised that the fall in stocks has been so small. This proves that the situation is not alarming and that the country is all right. Investors have only to hold on. The financial authorities have acted boldly but wisely and the flurry will soon blow over. It is quite right that savings banks should require notice.

"It should not be forgotten, however, that we have had the greatest expansion of modern times, and sure as fate reaction must come and has already begun, but it will be healthful. We may have a season of less activity in trade, but that will be followed in due time by another period of expansion. Nothing can prevent the rapid progress of the republic. She is all right and bound to distance all competitors in the race. Speculation will be less to the front for a time, but genuine business will not suffer seriously.

"It lies in the nature of things that the attempt to attribute the recent and spasmodic fall in prices to the wise and truest sense the truly conservative resolve of the president and his cabinet to enforce the salutary laws against the abuse of their powers by certain trusts, is only a device to serve political intrigue."

Endions Defeated.

The Central Business college football team claims to have won the championship of the city this morning by defeating the Endion team, 11 to 6, in a well played game at Athletic park. The score at the end of the first half stood 6 to 6. The commercial students scored early in the second half, and held the Endions to no score in that period.

Middle row—Arthur Pier, George Larson, Walter Mathison.
Bottom row—Niel Mathison, Markas Skomers.

The Gopher club, which is an organization having for its object the promotion of the social life and good fellowship of the members, was originally formed about eight years ago. At that time the members were mostly boys who were going to school, but since then some older boys have been taken in.

It is said to be one of the oldest clubs of its kind in the city, and a few of the members who assisted in the organization of the club are still on the list. Alfred Swanstrom is one of these and he is still active in the management of the club. Most of the original members of the club have dropped out, however, and their places taken by younger boys. Fifteen has usually been the limit of the membership of the club.

Seventy-five different social events have been given by the club during the eight years since it was organized and every one has been a success in every way.

This year four new members have been accepted into the club to take the places of these who dropped out last spring. They are Grover Kieren, Earl Tetu, Henry Anderson and Arthur Soderlund.

Officers of the club are: Leo Marlow, president; Henry Anderson, vice president; Alfred Swanstrom, treasurer; Arthur Soderlund, secretary.

THE STOCKS ARE HIGHER

Coppers Show Great Improvement During the Short Session.

Outlook is Considered Much More Favorable Than It Was.

Copper stocks had a good advance during the short session of the market today, and closed at better prices. The entire list acted and looked better than it has for quite a while.

The feeling about the financial situation is more cheerful and the metal market outlook is improved. It was reported today that Europe has been a good buyer of copper metal for several days and that large sales of the electrolytic have been made at an advance of ¼c to ⅜c over the prevailing price.

Trading was steady during the day. The opening was strong, and while the shares went off from those during the middle of the day, they rallied well and closed firm.

North Butte opened at $36, advanced to $37, declined to $35.50 and closed at $35.75 bid and $36 asked. Amalgamated opened at $48.25, advanced to $49.25, declined to $48.25 and closed at $49.12½ bid.

Greene-Cananea opened at $5.87½, advanced to $6.25, declined to $5.87½ and closed at $5.87½ bid and $6.12½ asked.

Butte Coalition opened at $12.25, advanced to $12.50 and closed at $12.25 bid and $12.75 asked. Anaconda opened at $31, declined to $30, rallied to $31 and closed at $31 bid. Calumet & Arizona opened at $94, advanced to $95 and closed at $94.75 bid and $95 asked.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $8, advanced to $8.25 and closed at $8.25 bid and $8.50 asked. Denn-Arizona sold at $3.12½ and $3.25 and closed at $3.25 bid and $3.37½ asked. Globe Consolidated sold at $4.37½ and $4.50 and closed at $4.37½ bid and $4.62½ asked.

Keweenaw was inactive and closed at $4.62½ bid and $4.87½ asked, Hancock $4.62½ bid and $4.87½ asked, Nipissing $6.25 bid and $6.37½ asked, Warren $3 bid and $3.50 asked, Carman $2.25 bid and $2.50 asked, Calumet & Sonora $5 bid and $5.25 asked and Cliff at $1 bid and $1.12½ asked.

Butte & Superior sold at $1.37½ and $1.25 and closed at $1.25 bid and $1.37½ asked and Copper Queen of Idaho at 85 cents and closed at $5 cents bid and $1 asked.

Black Mountain closed at $4.50 bid and $4.75 asked.

AND NOW DULUTH HAS A "WIDOW"

Duluth Woman Writes to Fargo for a Husband.

Is there a scarcity of men in the matrimonial market in Duluth?

Annie T. Harvey, a young widow, said to reside in this city, has written a letter to "The Matrimonial Department of the City of Fargo, N. D.," setting forth her wants along the matrimonial line.

As Police Judge Ryan of Fargo is said to have a reputation as a match-maker as well as a match-breaker, the city officials decided to turn the Duluth widow's letter over to him. The judge, it is said, will endeavor to find a man who is well broken and who will treat Mrs. Harvey as nicely as she promises to treat her husband.

Following is the letter said to have been written by "Mrs. Harvey:"

"Dear Sir—I am a young widow woman living near Duluth, Minn., on a dairy farm. I have a little money and if I had a strong, earnest man to help me I could start a farm of my own, as I know all about the business and also have a 160-acre homestead, very fine land. I would like to get married, but the people up here are mostly Finns, and not nice at all. I read somewhere once that there were a great many young bachelors in Dakota. Maybe one of them would like to marry me. I am only 29 years old and said to be good looking. I want a man who don't drink, and that is another good reason I choose Dakota. No liquor can be sold in the state and therefore the young bachelors will not have formed wild and costly habits.

"I would treat a man very nice if he was the right kind. None other need apply. Please see if you can find me a strong, healtay young man who does not drink or chew. I don't care if he swears or smokes. And please, please don't think me bad for writing this letter.

ANTICIPATING SOME TROUBLE

"My man is getting crazier every minute. Start for Austria tomorrow."

The foregoing brief message was received by Immigration Inspector Dean this morning from Sherman A. Paddock, the special deputy in charge of the insane alien who is being deported to Austria.

The message was written on a postal card mailed at Bremen on Oct. 14. Mr. Paddock had just landed with his man, and evidently anticipated trouble with him before the trip across country to the interior of Austria was completed.

TO VISIT INDIANS.

Capt. Johnson Starts for South Dakota to Quell the Utes.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Capt. Carter P. Johnson, Second cavalry, stationed at Fort Robinson, Neb., has started for the Cheyenne river reservation in South Dakota to use his influence with the troublesome Ute Indians with a view to suppressing the outbreak. He was with the department of cavalry, which accompanied the Utes when they settled on the South Dakota reservation more than a year ago, and after the wandering Indians had refused to return to their own reservation in Utah, Capt. Johnson conducted the negotiations resulting in their settling on the Cheyenne river reservation. He has considerable influence with the Indians and was assigned to the present task at the urgent request of the Indian office.

HAD DESIGNS ON EDWARD.

Newmarket, Eng., Oct. 26.—The police here today arrested a man suspected of having designs on the life of King Edward, or the prince of Wales. The prisoner, who was a member of the Bechuanaland (South African) police, named J. H. Pearse, was found wandering in Chippenham Park, where the king had been shooting this week, and in which the prince is going to shoot on Monday.

Officials Do Not Believe That Milwaukee Express Safe Was Robbed.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 26.—Further investigation into robbery of the United States Express company of money packages amounting to $24,000 reveals the fact that bags containing $60,000 remained in the safe untouched and were easily accessible to any one who could open the safe. This seems to negative theories that the safe had been rifled, and makes it more probable that the money was taken while in transit to the depot office. The local police were today called to the assistance of the company's detectives, and a minute inspection of doors, windows, safe, etc., was made. Supt. McDonald today admitted that he was still without definite information as to how the robbery was accomplished.

ASSESSMENT MADE.

Superior's real and personal property has been assessed at $18,303,368.

The work of the board of review was completed this afternoon, and the above figures are the valuation decided upon. The figures show an increase of $2,690,931 over last year.

ST. PETERSBURG

Will Come to the Assistance of the Russian Westinghouse Company.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 26.—Owing to the embarrassment of two of the American Westinghouse companies and the cessation of financial support from them, the municipality of St. Petersburg has come to the assistance of the Russian Westinghouse company and has given assurance to General Manager Smith that payments on the electric street railroad contract will be hastened, so as to prevent a stoppage of the work. The situation for a time was critical, as instead of a remittance of $125,000 expected from America this week, the Westinghouse people advised Mr. Smith that the Russian company would have to depend entirely on its own resources. A stoppage of work at the big Moscow factory might have precipitated grave labor troubles. There are funds enough in sight now to meet the obligations.

Hakman Wants New Trial.

Arguments were heard by Judge Dibell this morning on the motion of John Hakman, by his attorney, John Jenswold, Jr., for a new trial of the damage suit he lost against the Oliver Iron Mining company. The court took the matter under advisement. Haknian attempted to open a can of powder with a rock and a railroad spike. He lived, but will always carry the marks. Hakman sued the mining company for $50,000, but the jury returned a verdict in the latter's favor.

Injured in Runaway.

Charles Vander, a driver in the employ of J. Edwards, a decorator at 12 Second avenue west, was badly bruised this morning, when the horse he was driving bolted and dragged him about half a block on the pavement on Superior street. The horse was frightened by a wheel breaking from the wagon. The driver pluckily clung to the reins and suffered several bumps and kicks. Vander lives at 422 East Seventh street.

"SUBJECT TO DELAY" NO MORE

As far as Duluth is concerned at least, it looks as if the striking telegraphers have been beaten, for the telegraph companies now announce that they are accepting business just as before the strike.

The "subject to delay" condition upon which messages have been accepted since the operators walked out, has been done away with. The messages are supposed to go straight through to their destinations once more, as the company now agrees to accept them under such conditions.

Charles A. Crane, manager of the local Western Union office, stated today that his company had done away with the "subject to delay" condition and that business was normal once more.

TWO ARE INDICTED.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 26.—The Marion county grand jury today returned indictments against Henry Marshall of LaFayette, president of the Western Construction company, and former speaker of the Indiana house of representatives. George W. Baxter, cashier of the company, was indicted also. The company has contracts with the city of Indianapolis for repairing asphalt streets.

Charcoal Kills Bad Breath.

Bad Odor of Indigestion, Smoking, Drinking or Eating Can Be Instantly Stopped.

Sample Package Mailed Free.

Other people notice your bad breath where you would not notice it at all. It is nauseating to other people to stand before them and while you are talking, give them a whiff or two of your bad breath. It usually comes from food fermenting on your stomach. Sometimes you have it in the morning, —that awful sour, bilious, bad breath. You can stop that at once by swallowing one or two Stuart Charcoal Lozenges, the most powerful gas and odor absorbers ever prepared.

Sometimes your meals will reveal themselves in your breath to those who talk with you. "You've had onions," or "You've been eating cabbage," and all of a sudden you belch in the face of your friend. Charcoal is a wonderful absorber of odors, as every one knows. That is why Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are so quick to stop all gases and odors of odorous foods, or gas from indigestion.

Don't use breath perfumes. They never conceal the odor, and never absorb the gas that causes the order. Besides, the very fact of using them reveals the reason for their use. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges in the first place stop for good all sour brash and belching of gas, and make your breath pure, fresh and sweet, just after you've eaten. Then no one will turn his face away from you when you breathe or talk; your breath will be pure and fresh, and besides your food will taste so much better to you at your next meal. Just try it.

Charcoal does other wonderful things, too. It carries away from your stomach and intestines, all the impurities there massed together and which causes the bad breath. Charcoal is a purifier as well as an absorber.

Charcoal is now by far the best, most easy and mild laxative known. A whole boxful will do no harm; in fact, the more you take the better. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made of pure willow charcoal and mixed with just a faint flavor of honey to make them palatable for you, but not too sweet. You just chew them like candy. They are absolutely harmless.

Get a new, pure, sweet breath, freshen your stomach for your next meal, and keep the intestines in good working order. These two things are the secret of good health and long life. You can get all the charcoal necessary to do these wonderful but simple things by getting Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. We want you to test these little wonder workers yourself before you buy them. So send us your full name and address for a free sample of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. Then after you have tried the sample, and been convinced, go to your druggist and get a 25c box of them. You'll feel better all over, more comfortable, and "cleaner" inside.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

WARNINGS DISPLAYED

Weather Man Expects Brisk Southwest Gale on Upper Lake.

Small Boats Should Not Venture Out of the Harbor.

Storm warnings are displayed at all the weather stations on the upper lakes today. The wind this morning was blowing from the southwest at the rate of about twenty-four miles an hour. To substantiate the storm warnings the gale must reach a velocity of forty miles an hour before it subsides.

The forecaster says showers are probable this afternoon and tonight with warmer temperature tonight. Sunday will be partly cloudy and cooler with continued brisk southwest winds.

The center of the storm disturbance today is somewhat west and north of Duluth about over Winnipeg and coming in this direction. Vessemen are warned that there will be a heavy sea in all probability on the lake and small boats should not venture out.

ACCIDENT IN CANAL.

Steamer Wahcondah Hits Wall in Welland Passageway.

Toronto, Oct. 26.—The steamer Wahcondah, of the Merchants' line, bound from Fort William to Montreal with a cargo of wheat, met with a mishap in the Welland canal.

The canal takes a very sharp bend at lock 2, and as the steamer approached the lock, the wind was blowing a heavy gale, and she was unable to make the turn. She struck against the wing wall of the lock. Her stem was stove in, and before they could get out of the lock her fore peak was full of water, and she was soon drawing fifteen feet forward, the canal being only about fourteen feet deep. With difficulty the steamer made her way to lock one, where the government divers examined her, and found the plates on her stem were stove in. Capt. Hollingshead at once notified the underwriters.

It is thought that the Wahcondah's cargo was not damaged, and it is expected she will be able to proceed down the lake tomorrow.

CAPT. BURNS ROBBED.

Port Huron Thugs Sandbag Him and Take Coin.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 26.—Claiming that he was sandbagged, robbed and thrown into the river by two unknown men, Capt. John Burns, a well known marine man of Chicago, was found with head and body partly submerged in St. Clair river, near the water works, Wednesday. Burns, when revived by the employes of the institution, said that he had been kicked into insensibility by the men and robbed of $72 in money, besides some valuable papers and mortgages.

"I had just returned from Sarnia when I was met by a stranger who told me that I was wanted at a dredge near the water works. I was on my way to the Messinger house, where I stop, but consented to accompany the man. When we reached the water works another man joined us, but I thought him to be one of the crew of the dredge and felt perfectly safe. A minute later I felt a stinging blow on the head and that is all I remember until I revived this morning. It was after midnight when we arrived at the park."

The police believe the sandbagging was done by local characters who probably had seen the vesselman flash his money about the hotel. A thorough investigation is being made.

Fishing Tug Missing.

Erie, Pa., Oct. 26.—The fishing tug Ida, owned by the A. Walker Fish company here, has been missing since Thursday. Capt. Arthur Wilson and three men are aboard. An all day hunt has given absolutely no trace of the whereabouts of the sloop.

Had Broken Air Pump.

Soo, Oct. 26.—The steamer Nottingham has returned to port with a broken air pump. Repairs will take twenty-four hours.

Blew Out Cylinder Head.

A joint in the cylinder head on the tug Sinclair was blown out yesterday while she was pulling the L. C. Hanna out of the Great Northern elevator slip yesterday. Repairs were made and then the same accident took place again this morning. She was in working order again this afternoon.

Comes to Standstill.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—The grain trade has come to a complete standstill and no grain is being offered for shipment. The car shortage at Buffalo is largely accountable for the slackening of shipments, but money conditions also have something to do with it. Vessels are being turned to iron ore as fast as unloaded.

Cleveland, Oct. 26.—There is some inquiry for grain tonnage at Duluth for next week's loading at 2½ cents on wheat to Buffalo. Ore boats are in fair demand, but the coal trade is very dull.

Buffalo, Oct. 26. — Shippers declared yesterday that there were two boats to every cargo. The Eastern demand is drawing heavily upon the mines and the car shortage is also a factor in the light supply for shipment. Charters: C. W. Elphicke, Brazil, Mauchchunk, McLouth, Merley, Chicago, 40 cents; Bridgeon, Houghton, Canadian, Fort William.

and the stability reported from all outside points brought the week to a close with a feeling that the general position was greatly improved.

New York, Oct. 26.—The captains of finance, who with the secretary of the national treasury have been battling night and day to preserve order in the banking world, held no conference last night, but went to bed early, confident in the belief that a threatened situation had been successfully combatted and that from now on the restoration of public confidence and tranquility would be speedily accomplished. The principal difficulty throughout the week's excitement has been lack of currency. There was not enough actual money in the city to stand the tremendous drain without cutting down loans. The small banking institutions that closed this week have good supplies of gilt-edged securities in their vaults, but they could neither sell them nor borrow money on them this week simply because of the scarcity of actual paper, gold and silver money.

No apprehension was felt this morning as to the result of today's financial transactions. The stock exchange and the banks will be open for business for only two hours, and the stock exchange will not be troubled by the money situation, as all the loans made yesterday carry over until Monday under the ordinary rules of the exchange.

There were small lines of depositors in front of the Trust Company of America, and the Lincoln Trust company, but their number was not so great as at the same hour yesterday.

A natural result of the banking situation this week has been the increase of visitors to the Wall street district. The main points of interest are the stock exchange and the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. The demand for tickets to the exchange is enormous.

The pools which J. P. Morgan placed at the disposal of the stock exchange has brought him in the light and a great crowd gathered there Friday about the time Mr. Morgan was expected to leave the bank for his home. When he appeared several older men in the crowd removed their hats, while a young woman called for cheers for the financier, to which a number of persons responded.

Mr. Morgan wore a handkerchief about his neck and it was learned later that he was suffering from a slight cold, resulting from exposure to the night air. In the last week Mr. Morgan has attended many night conferences dealing with the banking situation.

In order to reach nearly all of the cosmopolitan population of Greater New York with brief statements by J. P. Morgan, J. D. Rockefeller and E. H. Harriman on the banking situation, the World today prints them in five languages, English, German, Hebrew, French and Italian. The statements declare the situation is sound and urge the people to calm their fears.

The direction in which remedial efforts will take has been the subject of earnest consideration and some difference of opinion even among the most important bankers of the city. The difficulties are admittedly in a large measure local. It is felt that the sudden lack of confidence is not very widespread throughout the country. The situation at Pittsburg and Providence is expected to right itself. Under these circumstances it was first suggested that an effort be made to relieve the tension in New York by gold imports, and something in that line is being done. Whether the rate of exchange and the price of American securities will reach a level to enable gold imports on a sufficiently large scale to be effective remains to be seen. It is felt, as Jacob Schiff put it yesterday, that any effort to press the matter is likely to meet with obstructive measures in London.

As an alternative means of relief the clearing house loan certificates have been discussed in a tentative way. Naturally every one is loath to adopt this expedient, and it is felt that it is by no means necessary to resort to it. A meeting of the clearing house association will probably be held today to pass upon the question.

Members of the clearing house committee went into session at 10 o'clock this morning.

The sub-treasury received $10,000,000 in small bills from Washington.

The Trust Company of America opened its doors as usual at 10 o'clock today. There were less than 100 depositors in line, and the company's officials declare that the run is over.

Leading bankers declared today that conditions were such that they would probably be able to import gold from London on Monday to the extent of about $10,000,000.

The bankers' pool, which has been supporting stock exchange houses, gave further assurances today that money would be provided for call loans when needed.

The Terminal Bank of Brooklyn, a small state institution with a capital of $100,000 and deposits of about $240,000, suspended payment today.

The clearing house committee adjourned after being in session more than half an hour. No decision was reached as to whether or not the clearing house certificates should be issued. It was understood that such a plan was opposed by some of the most influential bankers.

State Superintendent of Banks Clark Williams, said this morning: "Things look a little better. There is a general tone of encouragement all along the line."

Directors of the Lincoln Trust company announced that the bank is in a position to meet every demand, that it is stronger than any previous day this week, and that the withdrawal of funds is decreasing.

Announcement was made today that negotiations have practically been completed for importation for a large amount of gold from Europe.

Money on call was loaned on the stock exchange today at 50 per cent.

The closing of the Terminal Bank of Brooklyn was due to the fact that its repository, the Williamsburg Trust company, suspended payment yesterday. The vice president of the Williamsburg Trust company, Willard T. Reid, was president of the Terminal bank.

The executive committee of the clearing house association this morning issued a call for a meeting of the full association to be held at 12 o'clock to decide whether or not to issue clearing house certificates.

James T. Woodward, chairman of the clearing house committee, said that the situation today depended largely upon developments among the Brooklyn banks.

Soon after arriving at the subtreasury this morning, Secretary Cortelyou had a conference with George W. Perkins of J. P. Morgan & Co. Mr. Perkins subsequently said: "The atmosphere is fast clearing up, as anyone can see."

Mr. Perkins was asked if he thought this would be the last day of the financial difficulty. He replied: "I think it is."

James Stillman said this morning, after the conference at the clearing house: "The situation has been saved by the heroic action of the secretary of the treasury, who has been so ably assisted by the whole hearted co-operation of Mr. Morgan."

The National City bank today announced the engagement of $3,500,000 gold in London. This engagement was made on the bank's own resources and without government aid. It has no connection with the South African gold, which will arrive in London on Monday.

The clearing house association today authorized the issuance of clearing house certificates.

The drain on the national banks was considerably relieved today by the decision of the savings bank to require advance notices of large withdrawals. This put a stop to heavy disbursements by the savings banks, which would have been compelled to draw this money from the national banks. A few of the smaller savings banks applied this rule rigorously when any considerable number of their depositors lined up at the paying teller's window. These banks told their depositors they would pay out only in small amounts and to satisfy urgent needs.

The First National bank today notified stock exchange houses to which it had made loans on Friday at 50 per cent, that the loans would be continued over to Monday at 30 per cent.

There were about 200 depositors in line at the Lincoln Trust company today, awaiting an opportunity to withdraw money. Many of them had stood in the line all night. A bank messenger, who headed the line, refused an offer of $500 for his place. Payments to depositors were continued throughout the forenoon.

George F. Baker, president of the First National bank, said that no formal statement regarding the plans to issue clearing house certificates will be made. He said the plan will go into effect today and that no amount has been specified. The method of issuance will be the same as that followed in 1893.

About $5,000,000 in South African gold, which will arrive in London Monday is believed to be open to engagements.

NINETY DAYS' NOTICE

Required of Savings Depositors of Industrial Trust Company of Providence.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 26.—The Industrial Trust company posted a notice in the savings and participation departments, just before the opening hour today, declaring that the rule requiring ninety days' notice of withdrawals of deposit had been put into operation. Checking accounts will not be affected by the action.

Only a few persons were in line before the doors of the Industrial Trust company early today, and it was generally believed that the worst of the financial panic had passed. A committee from the Providence clearing house had charge of the financial situation today, prepared to render assistance to banks if called upon. The committee recommended that in the payment and certification of checks such checks shall be made payable only through the clearing house. This is the customary method of procedure in times of currency stringency, and its object is to prevent the withdrawal of money from circulation.

Pure ingredients are what count. That is the reason of the superiority of Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder and Extracts. Everything used to make it, is pure.

BOARD OF EDUCATION PREPARES STATEMENT

Explains Why Tax Levy is Higher This Year.

Goes Into the Details of the Present Situation.

The board of education has been the recipient of so much criticism and the center of such an agitation, first, because it had not raised the salaries of the school teachers high enough to suit some people, and second, because it had to make the tax levy high enough to take care of wage increases that were granted, that the members decided to prepare a statement, explaining the situation, in their own words, for publication in The Herald.

The statement, signed by D. E. Stevens, chairman of the committee on administration and finance, J. J. Le Tourneau, treasurer, and Charles A. Bronson, clerk of the board of education, is given herewith:

"It has been suggested that some brief statement of the school district levy should be published.

"The board of education fixes the amount of its tax levy at its regular meeting on the first Friday in October of each year, and certifies the same to the county auditor. The county auditor has no power to substitute his judgment for that of the board, nor to review the levy.

"The board makes its levy in three funds, general, building and sinking. The building fund is used for permanent improvements and new buildings, the sinking fund to pay the principal and interest of bonds; all other expenditures for the maintenance of the schools are paid out of the general fund. This latter fund, so far as raised by local levy, is limited to 8 mills on the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the district, which for the coming year is estimated at $34,500,000. This limit is due to a law which affects certain other cities as well as Duluth.

"The limit as to the building fund is far above any probable requirement and need not concern us. There is no fixed limit for the sinking fund, but it is the duty of the board to provide for the prompt payment of the indebtedness of the district. The board is also authorized to levy sufficient taxes so that, allowing for lapses in payment, the required amount will be received. If the board, by mistake, levies an amount in excess of the amount permitted by law, it does not invalidate the levy, but in that case the auditor corrects the same to the limit authorized by law.

"The outstanding bonded indebtedness of the district, the rate of interest thereon and the maturity thereof is as follows:

| Indebtedness. | Interest. | Maturity. |
|---|---|---|
| $12,000 | 5 per cent | May 1, 1909. |
| 50,000 | 5 per cent | Nov. 1, 1913. |
| 150,000 | 4½ per cent | Jan. 1, 1921. |
| 200,000 | 5 per cent | Aug. 1, 1921. |
| 100,000 | 5 per cent | Sept. 1, 1922. |
| 200,000 | 5 per cent | May 1, 1923. |
| 150,000 | 4 per cent | June 1, 1924. |
| 125,000 | 4 per cent | Oct. 1, 1924-1934. |

"Total bonded indebtedness, $987,000.

"The board has paid off in recent years the following bonds:

| | |
|---|---|
| May 1, 1903 | $20,000 |
| Jan. 15, 1904 | 20,000 |
| July 1, 1905 | 15,000 |
| July 1, 1906 | 15,000 |
| Sept. 1, 1907 | 45,000 |
| Total | $115,000 |

Funds Exhausted.

"There is an exhaustion at the present time of the building and sinking funds. Nothing was levied last year in the building fund. It is estimated that in normal conditions 90 per cent may be expected to be realized of the amount levied, hence that the levy of 1 mill on the dollar will produce in round numbers $31,000.

"The estimated value of the school property of the district is $2,065,500.

"The board had on nand Aug. 1, 1906 in the:

| | |
|---|---|
| General fund | $31,883.56 |
| Building fund | 44,086.63 |
| Sinking fund | 55.88 |
| | $76,624.17 |

"It received during the year from all sources, including the sale of $25,000 of bonds of the issue of 1904 not theretofore sold, $396,050, making a total of $472,674.17. Its total disbursements during the year were $440,679.19, leaving a balance on hand July 31, 1907, at the end of the fiscal year of $31,994.98.

The above disbursements were from the several funds as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| General fund | $301,517.31 |
| Building fund | 89,277.44 |
| Sinking fund | 49,884.44 |

The balance of $31,994.98 on hand Aug. 1, 1907 was in the several funds as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| General fund | $11,862.31 |
| Sinking fund | 7,051.33 |

"The estimates of the county auditor's office, prepared by Mr. Marvin, as to the amount the board will receive from levies, certified in other years up to Aug. 1, 1908, including state and county apportionment, local mill tax and all other funds, amount to $145,000; $127,000 of which, will be in the general fund and $18,000 in the sinking fund. Mr. Marvin's estimates heretofore made have been generally verified and we may take this one as fairly certain.

"A careful estimate is always made each year in advance by the business office of the board upon a comprehensive classification of requirements for the ensuing year. An examination of these estimates and a comparison thereof with the actual expenditures year by year, which may be had in the office of the board, will show how nearly accurate the estimates are.

Expenses Estimated.

"The following table covers the estimates and expenditures for the years, 1906-1907 in columns 1 and 2, and the estimates for the year 1907-1908, in column 3.

| | $397,700.00 | $440,679.19 | $526,040.00 |

"The expenditure for teachers during the coming year cannot be estimated as closely as last year for the reason that with the readjustment to follow after the holidays and the restoration of the Franklin and Madison buildings and the enlargement of the teaching force, made necessary by the opening of the Nettleton and Ely buildings, the amount required cannot be estimated with the same accuracy as last year, when the expenditures exceeded the estimate by only $246.53.

"It is believed that owing to the substantial increase in the wages of the teachers which was made last spring at the time of the annual election, and the employment of new teachers as above mentioned, that the estimate of $215,000 for that item during the current school year will fall snort of the requirement.

Gets Local Mill Tax.

The board receives, in addition to the money accruing from the special school tax levy which it makes itself, moneys from what is known as the local 1 mill tax, being 1 mill on the assessed valuation required to be levied by the county, which last year amounted to $26,473.83; also what is known as the county apportionment, which accrues from the apportionment of certain fines, licenses, etc., which last year amounted to $5,953.61. It also receives funds accruing from the state appointment, being a distribution from the state of the state school fund, which last year amounted to $38,516.47. There is also a small amount received, known as the high school fund.

"The amounts which precumably will be received from these funds the coming year will be mentioned below.

"With these explanations we may summarize as follows:

"Estimated disbursement for the year are as follows: General fund, $317,240; building fund, $127,000; sinking fund, $81,800; total, $526,040.

"Necessary disbursements during months of August, September, October and November, 1908: General fund, $80,000; sinking fund, $16,000; total, $96,000.

"The total disbursements up to Jan. 1909 are therefore $622,040.

"On hand Aug. 1, $11,862.31, in the general fund; $12,081.34 in the building fund, and $7,051.33 in the sinking fund.

"It is estimated that we will receive from past levies and all other sources up to Aug. 1, 1908, $127,000 in the general fund, and $18,000 in the sinking fund.

"The balance of the June apportionment received Aug. 7, 1907, not included in the above estimate of the auditor is as follows: $27,547.21, general; $508.42, building; $41,280.56, sinking.

"We receive from the sale of the Glen Avon school and Franklin fire, $19,000 for the building fund, making a grand total of $166,409.52 in the general fund; $32,589.76 in the building fund; $99,331.89 in the sinking fund.

"Out of the sinking fund was paid $45,000 on maturing bonds, leaving a net balance of $21,331.89.

"The balance necessary to provide for by current levy is therefore as follows: $230,830.48 for general fund; $94,410.24 for building; $76,468.11 for sinking fund.

The levy made by the board and the amount estimated that the same will produce up to and including the November settlement, 1908, and the amount of the levy in mills is as follows:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| General fund | $276,000 | $248,400 | 8 mills |
| Building fund | 105,500 | 93,159 | 3 mills |
| Sinking fund | 85,000 | 77,625 | 2½ mills |

"The requirements for the sinking fund for the coming year includes a levy of one mill to provide for future payment of bonds.

"The requirements upon the building fund covered by the estimate includes the competion of contracts and improvements in

| | |
|---|---|
| Franklin school | $ 28,369.00 |
| Madison school | 36,265.00 |
| Nettleton school | 8,725.00 |
| Ely school | 1,423.58 |
| To be accumulated for site and construction of new building | 52,000.00 |
| Making a total included in the estimate of | $126,781.58 |

Not in Favor of Bonds.

"The levy in this fund is for $103,500. The only item included in the estimate not now under contract is the matter of the construction of a new building. It is the belief of the present board of education that we should avoid in the future the issuance of bonds; that with the growth of the city and the demand for new buildings, that expenditure should be met by an assessment in the building fund, and that the growth in assessed valuation should keep pace with the increased taxation necessary for the construction of new buildings. If the city grows and prospers, it may be expected that a new building, such as we now construct, may have to be built at least every two years. The school buildings of the district are crowded, and after a careful examination the committee on the maintenance of buildings and grounds reported to the board the imperative necessity, in their judgment, for providing for a fund for the construction of a new building in the near future.

Will Take Up Bonds.

"The board for some years past has pursued the policy of levying no certain sum annually to be accredited to the sinking fund for the purpose of taking up bonds at their maturity, for the reason that groups of bonds were maturing in small sums, so that one levy the year before the maturity of the bonds could be made, and a sufficient sum obtained thereby for the liquidation of the bonds, or at least that two years' levy could be accumulated and meet the requirements, and bonds have been taken up, as herein-before stated, by that means. Now, however, a different condition obtains, and we approach a period, as seen by the table, when large sums mature, and we must, under the law, prepare to meet them. A levy of 1 mill each year hereafter for such purpose will not by any means accomplish this, but it will go so far toward it that we may be enabled by that time to issue a series of refunding bonds, set so far ahead as to enable us to meet the same by the continuation of such moderate annual levy. All of the outstanding bonds of the district mature on or before Oct. 1, 1924, except the issue of $125,000, made in 1904, which mature Oct. 1, 1934, but which it is optional with the board to pay at any time after Oct. 1, 1924. The receipts for taxation in the several funds have for a number of years invariably been slower or behind the demand upon such funds. The board has endeavored to manage the finances of the district as closely as possible, even subjecting itself to criticism in this regard.

"The increase in the levy as made is explained in the foregoing figures. Any more detailed information desired may be had upon inquiry at the business office of the board, or will be furnished upon any reasonable request.

"Yours respectfully,
"D. E. STEVENS,
"Chairman of Committee on Administration and Finance.

AGENT RAISED HALF MILLION

By Manipulating Loans in Negotiable Life Insurance Policies.

New York, Oct. 26.—Compelled to act because of a gigantic swindle in Houston, Texas, the officials of the New York Life Insurance company in New York have begun an investigation which will reach its officers in every city and will probably result in a radical change of the relations of agents to the company.

That an investigation has been ordered by Vice President Thomas A. Buckner to see how far the New York Life is affected by the alleged swindling of Houston people by John A. McCormick, Jr., a former agent, is admitted by the company, through its recorder, Harry S. Ford.

McCormick, through holding up of premiums, manipulation of loans and other transactions made possible by his connection with the New York Life as agent, is alleged to have raised large sums. He wrote a great deal of business and arranged loans on policies. Finally, he was dropped by the company on some technical charge, but as to this there is a mystery, for McCormick exhibited letters showing that he had been exonerated, and continued to solicit business and make his loans.

In this manner he managed to make so many loans in Houston that when he left that city the amount of money standing against him is placed at nearly $500,000.

Creditors and dupes scattered far and wide are clamoring, and their recital of the facts made it necessary to apply the probe from the New York office. As Recorder Ford said:

"We do not know just how we are connected, therefore we are investigating to find out."

The most serious phase of McCormick's business methods while he was agent in Houston is that, through other offices of the company, he was kept informed of the movements of Vice President Buckner and Hamilton Cook, the general agent in St. Louis, whose name was signed to the letter received by McCormick which absolved him of the charges against him, and ended with saying:

"I am with you totally."

This letter is pronounced by Cook, according to Mr. Ford, to be a forgery.

Recorder Ford, speaking for Vice President Buckner, said that before the New York Life could make a general statement it would be necessary to go over the whole ground. This will require some time, as McCormick, after concluding his brokerage operations in negotiable policies in Houston, solicited business in Humble, Texas, was seen in St. Louis with several cashiers of the company from Texas cities and then disappeared.

Just what the investigation by the New York Life will result in is speculative, but it is not likey that there will be any more operations such as are classed by the duped Texans as a species of graft.

CORLISS HAD NO RIGHT

To Enter Grand Jury Room, Says Supreme Court of North Dakota.

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 26.—The supreme court has handed down a decision in the application of Judge Guy C. H. Corliss for a writ of habeas corpus. The court denied the writ.

Judge Corliss was adjudged guilty of contempt of court for willfully violating an order excluding him from visiting the grand jury room at Bismarck while the grand jury was in session last summer, during the famous anti-Patterson scrape in the capital city.

In its decision the supreme court holds that neither Judge Corliss' appointment as assistant state's attorney or his employment by the board of county commissioners vested in him any right to visit such grand jury sessions.

DAIRYMEN TO HAVE IMPORTANT MEETING.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—On Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 6 and 7, the Red River Valley Dairymen's association will meet in Crookston, and the gathering will be one of the most important ever held in the Northwest for the furtherance of the dairy industry in this section. A splendid program has been prepared for the two days, and already assurances have been received of a large attendance on the part of those interested in the dairy business. The officers of the association are: President, James A. Wilson, menomonie, Wis.; first vice president, William Robertson, Crookston; second vice president, Henry Flagel, McIntosh; secretary and treasurer, Joel C. Winkjer, Crokston.

DEATH ENDS SUFFERING

Andrew Gowan Succumbs to Cancer of the Throat.

Was One of Duluth's Most Respected Business Men.

Shortly after midnight death ended the sufferings of Andrew Gowan.

Mr. Gowan, who was president of the Gowan-Peyton-Twohy company, was one of the best known business men in Duluth, and had a host of friends here. For months past he has been suffering from a cancer of the throat. Every effort was made to combat the growth, and several operations were performed, but they only served to delay the end.

The deepest sympathy is felt for the members of the family by their many friends in Duluth. Less than six years ago the mother succumbed to the same disease, and it was but a little while after her death that the father became afflicted and another hopeless battle against the dread disease was begun. There are six children surviving Mr. Gowan at the home at 1014 East Second street. They are Mary, Lillian, Henry, Claudia, Andrew and George. Two brothers also survive him, one living in Virginia and the other in Duluth, and there are two married sisters, one living in Minneapolis and the other in Stilwater.

Mr. Gowan was always looked upon as one of the most substantial and conservative business men of the city. As the senior member of the firm of Gowan-Peyton-Twohy he was largely instrumental in building up this big mercantile establishment. He was held in the highest esteem, and respect by all of his business associates, and had a host of warm personal friends in the city.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

DIES IN ASYLUM.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 26.—Special to The Herald.)—John Unger, a young man from Melrose, died at the insane hospital Thursday. He was the young man who was taken at Osakis, but escaped and returned to Melrose not long ago. He was taken again, however, and returned to the hospital. His death was due to some trouble with his throat, which it is believed was brought on by some drug which he took when the officers went after him the second time.

KILLED AT MINOT.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 26.—Fred Condrey, 26 years of age, employed as freight driver for the Minot Grocery company, was killed instantly in the Great Northern yards Thursday.

Condrey and his brother Marvin had started to load a car, which was too far under a viaduct. A switch engine pushed it back. The horses became frightened, and turning, threw Condrey off. A wheel passed over his chest. His body was sent to Villard, Minn., where his parents reside.

De PACHMANN'S LUCK STILL BAD

Russian Pianist's Ill-Fortune Follows Him to St. Paul.

Vladimir de Pachmann's troubles did not end when he boarded the train which took him from Duluth. Bad luck was at the train to meet him when he arrived in St. Paul, and bids fair to stick around the ill-starred pianist gor quite a spell.

At the concert given in St. Paul, the receipts were considerably lower than was anticipated. G. W. Walker, who undertook the management of the recitals planned for Duluth and the Twin Cities, was disheartened over the entire business, and he fled, not stopping to say goodbye.

Although the St. Paul Auditorium rent was supposed to be $350, the manager, in view of the circumstances, took $250, and De Pachmann got the rest of the receipts, above other expenses. The gross receipts were about $400. De Pachmann's manager had expected to get $1,000 for the concert, of which the pianist was to get $600.

The concert at St. Paul was too much for De Pachmunn. He did not play at Minneapolis, disappointing the undersized audience which was on hand to greet him. It was announced that he was "indisposed in St. Paul," and the concert was canceled.

WAS NOT CONSULTED.

Roosevelt May Make Statement Regarding Hearst-Parsons Combination.

Washington, Oct. 26.—President Roosevelt may conclude to make a statement regarding the alliance or fusion between William R. Hearst and the Republican county organization of New York city. The president was much surprised to hear of the deal, and wants it understood that he does not stand for it.

He wants it understood that he was not consulted in the matter by Mr. Parsons, the chairman of the Republican organization, and that he had no knowledge of it. He was confronted with newspaper articles on the subject, some of which intimated that he had sanctioned the movement. The president, however, did not fully appreciate the importance of the Hearst-Parsons agreement, politically speaking, until his arrival in Washington. It was then that he determined to let the people know his attitude concerning it.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 26—A special from Lavina, Mont., says that during a carousal among the empolyes on the coast extension of the St. Paul railroad, William Smith, a cook, was shot and instantly killed. Smith was not involved in the trouble, but was witnessing the row from a distance, only to be struck by a stray bullet. No arrests have been made, the officials being unable to determine who fired the shot. This is the third crime of its kind recently in the St. Paul grading camps.

DEATH ENDS SUFFERING

Was One of Duluth's Most Respected Business Men.

Mr. Gowan, who was president of the Gowan-Peyton-Twohy company, was one of the best known business men in Duluth, and had a host of friends here. For months past he has been suffering from a cancer of the throat. Every effort was made to combat the growth, and several operations were performed, but they only served to delay the end.

The deepest sympathy is felt for the members of the family by their many friends in Duluth. Less than six years ago the mother succumbed to the same disease, and it was but a little while after her death that the father became afflicted and another hopeless battle against the dread disease was begun. There are six children surviving Mr. Gowan at the home at 1014 East Second street. They are Mary, Lillian, Henry, Claudia, Andrew and George. Two brothers also survive him, one living in Virginia and the other in Duluth, and there are two married sisters, one living in Minneapolis and the other in Stillwater.

Mr. Gowan was always looked upon as one of the most substantial and conservative business men of the city. As the senior member of the firm of Gowan-Peyton-Twohy he was largely instrumental in building up this big mercantile establishment. He was held in the highest esteem and respect by all of his business associates, and had a host of warm personal friends in the city.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

DIES IN ASYLUM.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 26.—Special to The Herald.)—John Unger, a young man from Melrose, died at the insane hospital Thursday. He was the young man who was taken at Osakis, but escaped and returned to Melrose not long ago. He was taken again, however, and returned to the hospital. His death was due to some trouble with his throat, which it is believed was brought on by some drug which he took when the officers went after him the second time.

KILLED AT MINOT.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 26.—Fred Condrey, 29 years of age, employed as freight driver for the Minot Grocery company, was killed instantly in the Great Northern yards Thursday.

Condrey and his brother Marvin had started to load a car, which was too far under a viaduct. A switch engine pushed it back. The horses became frightened, and turning, threw Condrey off. A wheel passed over his chest. His body was sent to Villard, Minn., where his parents reside.

BOARD OF EDUCATION PREPARES STATEMENT

Explains Why Tax Levy is Higher This Year.

Goes Into the Details of the Present Situation.

The board of education has been the recipient of so much criticism and the center of such an agitation, first, because it had not raised the salaries of the school teachers high enough to suit some people, and second, because it had to make the tax levy high enough to take care of wage increases that were granted, that the members decided to prepare a statement, explaining the situation, in their own words, for publication in The Herald.

The statement, signed by D. E. Stevens, chairman of the committee on administration and finance, J. J. Le Tourneau, treasurer, and Charles A. Bronson, clerk of the board of education, is given herewith:

"It has been suggested that some brief statement of the school district levy should be published.

"The board of education fixes the amount of its tax levy at its regular meeting on the first Friday in October of each year, and certifies the same to the county auditor. The county auditor has no power to substitute his judgment for that of the board, nor to review the levy.

"The board makes its levy in three funds, general, building and sinking. The building fund is used for permanent improvements and new buildings, the sinking fund to pay the principal and interest of bonds; all other expenditures for the maintenance of the schools are paid out of the general fund. This latter fund, so far as raised by local levy, is limited to 8 mills on the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the district, which for the coming year is estimated at $34,500,000. This limit is due to a law which affects certain other cities as well as Duluth.

"The limit as to the building fund is far above any probable requirement and need not concern us. There is no fixed limit for the sinking fund, but it is the duty of the board to provide for the prompt payment of the indebtedness of the district. The board is also authorized to levy sufficient taxes so that, allowing for lapses in payment, the required amount will be received. If the board, by mistake, levies an amount in excess of the amount permitted by law, it does not invalidate the levy, but in that case the auditor corrects the same to the limit authorized by law.

"The outstanding bonded indebtedness of the district, the rate of interest thereon and the maturity thereof is as follows:

| Indebtedness. | Interest. | Maturity. |
|---|---|---|
| $12,000 | 6 per cent | May 1, 1909. |
| 50,000 | 6 per cent | Nov. 1, 1913. |
| 150,000 | 4½ per cent | Jan. 1, 1921. |
| 200,000 | 5 per cent | Aug. 1, 1921. |
| 100,000 | 5 per cent | Sept. 1, 1922. |
| 200,000 | 5 per cent | May 1, 1923. |
| 150,000 | 5 per cent | June 1, 1924. |
| 125,000 | 4 per cent | Oct. 1, 1924-1934. |

"Total bonded indebtedness, $987,000.

"The board has paid off in recent years the following bonds:

| | |
|---|---|
| May 1, 1903 | $20,000 |
| Jan. 15, 1904 | 20,000 |
| July 1, 1905 | 15,000 |
| July 1, 1906 | 15,000 |
| Sept. 1, 1907 | 45,000 |
| Total | $115,000 |

Funds Exhausted.

"There is an exhaustion at the present time of the building and sinking funds. Nothing was levied last year in the building fund. It is estimated that in normal conditions 90 per cent may be expected to be realized of the amount levied, hence that the levy of 1 mill on the dollar will produce in round numbers $31,000.

"The estimated value of the school property of the district is $2,065,500.

"The board had on hand Aug. 1, 1906 in the:

| | |
|---|---|
| General fund | $31,383.95 |
| Building fund | 44,686.63 |
| Sinking fund | 65.88 |
| | $76,624.17 |

"It received during the year from all sources, including the sale of $25,000 of bonds of the issue of 1904 not theretofore sold, $396,050, making a total of $472,674.17.

Its total disbursements during the year were $440,679.19, leaving a balance on hand July 31, 1907, at the end of the fiscal year of $31,994.98.

| | |
|---|---|
| General fund | $301,517.31 |
| Building fund | 89,277.44 |
| Sinking fund | 49,884.44 |

| | |
|---|---|
| General fund | $11,862.31 |
| Sinking fund | 7,951.33 |

"The estimates of the county auditor's office, prepared by Mr. Marvin, as to the amount the board will receive from levies, certified in other years up to Aug. 1, 1908, including state and county apportionment, local mill tax and all other funds, amount to $145,000; $127,000 of which, will be in the general fund and $18,000 in the sinking fund. Mr. Marvin's estimates heretofore made have been generally verified and we may take this one as fairly certain.

"A careful estimate is always made each year in advance by the business office of the board upon a comprehensive classification of requirements for the ensuing year. An examination of these estimates and a comparison thereof with the actual expenditures year by year, which may be had in the office of the board, will show how nearly accurate the estimates are.

Expenses Estimated.

"The following table covers the estimates and expenditures for the years, 1906-1907 in columns 1 and 2, and the estimates for the year 1907-1908, in column 3.

| | $397,700.00 | $440,679.19 | $525,040.00 |

"The expenditure for teachers during the coming year cannot be estimated as closely as last year for the reason that with the readjustment to follow after the holidays and the restoration of the Franklin and Madison buildings and the enlargement of the teaching force, made necessary by the opening of the Nettleton and Ely buildings, the amount required cannot be estimated with the same accuracy as last year, when the expenditures exceeded the estimate by only $246.53.

"It is believed that owing to the substantial increase in the wages of the teachers which was made last spring at the time of the annual election, and the employment of new teachers as above mentioned, that the estimate of $215,000 for that item during the current school year will fall snort of the requirement.

Gets Local Mill Tax.

The board receives, in addition to the money accruing from the special school tax levy which it makes itself, moneys from what is known as the local 1 mill tax, being 1 mill on the assessed valuation required to be levied by the county, which last year amounted to $26,473.83; also what is known as the county apportionment, which accrues from the apportionment of certain fines, licenses, etc., which last year amounted to $5,953.61. It also receives funds accruing from the state appointment, being a distribution from the state of the state school fund, which last year amounted to $38,516.47. There is also a small amount received, known as the high school fund.

"The amounts which precumably will be received from these funds the coming year will be mentioned below.

"With these explanations we may summarize as follows:

"Estimated disbursement for the year are as follows: General fund, $317,240; building fund, $127,000; sinking fund, $81,-300; total, $526,040.

"Necessary disbursements during months of August, September, October and November, 1908: General fund, $80,-600; sinking fund, $16,000; total, $96,000.

"The total disbursements up to Jan. 1909 are therefore $622,040.

"On hand Aug. 1, $11,862.31, in the general fund; $12,983.34 in the building fund, and $7,951.33 in the sinking fund.

"It is estimated that we will receive from past levies and all other sources up to Aug. 1, 1908, $127,000 in the general fund, and $18,000 in the sinking fund.

"The balance of the June apportionment received Aug. 7, 1907, not included in the above estimate of the auditor is as follows: $27,547.21, general; $508.42, building; $41,280.56, sinking.

"We receive from the sale of the Glen Avon school and Franklin fire, $19,000 for the building fund, making a grand total of $166,400.52 in the general fund; $32,-589.76 in the building fund; $66,331.89 in the sinking fund.

"Out of the sinking fund was paid $45,000 on maturing bonds, leaving a net balance of $21,331.89.

"The balance necessary to provide for by current levy is therefore as follows: $30,890.48 for general fund; $94,410.24 for building; $75,468.11 for sinking fund.

"The levy made by the board and the amount estimated that the same will produce up to and including the November settlement, 1908, and the amount of the levy in mills is as follows:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| General fund | $278,000 | $248,400 | 8 mills |

"The requirements for the sinking fund for the coming year includes a levy of one mill to provide for future payment of bonds.

"The requirements upon the building fund covered by the estimate includes the competion of contracts and improvements in

| | |
|---|---|
| Franklin school | $ 28,369.06 |
| Madison school | 36,265.00 |
| Nettleton school | 8,725.00 |
| Ely school | 1,423.58 |
| To be accumulated for site and construction of new building | 52,000.00 |

"The levy in this fund is for $103,500. The only item included in the estimate not now under contract is the matter of the construction of a new building. It is the belief of the present board of education that we should avoid in the future the issuance of bonds; that with the growth of the city and the demand for new buildings, that expenditure should be met by an assessment in the building fund, and that the growth in assessed valuation should keep pace with the increased taxation necessary for the construction of new buildings. If the city grows and prospers, it may be expected that a new building, such as we now construct, may have to be built at least every two years. The school buildings of the district are crowded, and after a careful examination the committee on the maintenance of buildings and grounds reported to the board the imperative necessity, in their judgment, for providing for a fund for the construction of a new building in the near future.

Will Take Up Bonds.

"The board for some years past has pursued the policy of levying no certain sum annually to be accredited to the sinking fund for the purpose of taking up bonds at their maturity, for the reason that groups of bonds were maturing in small sums, so that one levy the year before the maturity of the bonds could be made, and a sufficient sum obtained thereby for the liquidation of the bonds, or at least that two years' levy could be accumulated and meet the requirements, and bonds have been taken up, as hereinbefore stated, by that means. Now, however, a different condition obtains, and we approach a period, as seen by the table, when large sums mature, and we must, under the law, prepare to meet them. A levy of 1 mill each year hereafter for such purpose will not by any means accomplish this, but it will go so far toward it that we may be enabled by that time to issue a series of refunding bonds, set so far ahead as to enable us to meet the same by the continuation of such moderate annual levy. All of the outstanding bonds of the district mature on or before Oct. 1, 1924, except the issue of $125,000, made in 1904, which mature Oct. 1, 1934, but which it is optional with the board to pay at any time after Oct. 1, 1924. The receipts for taxation in the several funds have for a number of years invariably been slower or behind the demand upon such funds. The board has endeavored to manage the finances of the district as closely as possible, even subjecting itself to criticism in this regard.

"The increase in the levy as made is explained in the foregoing figures. Any more detailed information desired may be had upon inquiry at the business office of the board, or will be furnished upon any reasonable request.

"Yours respectfully,
"D. E. STEVENS,
"Chairman of Committee on Administration and Finance.

AGENT RAISED HALF MILLION

By Manipulating Loans in Negotiable Life Insurance Policies.

New York, Oct. 26.—Compelled to act because of a gigantic swindle in Houston, Texas, the officials of the New York Life Insurance company in New York have begun an investigation which will reach its officers in every city and will probably result in a radical change of the relations of agents to the company.

That an investigation has been ordered by Vice President Thomas A. Buckner to see how far the New York Life is affected by the alleged swindling of Houston people by John A. McCormick, Jr., a former agent, is admitted by the company, through its recorder, Harry S. Ford.

McCormick, through holding up of premiums, manipulation of loans and other transactions made possible by his connection with the New York Life as agent, is alleged to have raised large sums. He wrote a great deal of business and arranged loans on policies. Finally, he was dropped by the company on some technical charge, but as to this there is a mystery, for McCormick exhibited letters showing that he had been exonerated, and continued to solicit business and make his loans.

In this manner he managed to make so many loans in Houston that when he left that city the amount of money standing against him is placed at nearly $500,000.

Creditors and dupes scattered far and wide are clamoring, and their recital of the facts made it necessary to apply the probe from the New York office. As Recorder Ford said:

"We do not know just how we are connected, therefore we are investigating to find out."

The most serious phase of McCormick's business methods while he was agent in Houston is that, through other offices of the company, he was kept informed of the movements of Vice President Buckner and Hamilton Cook, the general agent in St. Louis, whose name was signed to the letter received by McCormick which absolved him of the charges against him, and ended with saying:

This letter is pronounced by Cook, according to Mr. Ford, to be a forgery.

Recorder Ford, speaking for Vice President Buckner, said that before the New York Life could make a general statement it would be necessary to go over the whole ground. This will require some time, as McCormick, after concluding his brokerage operations in negotiable policies in Houston, solicited business in Humble, Texas, was seen in St. Louis with several cashiers of the company from Texas cities and then disappeared.

Just what the investigation by the New York Life will result in is speculative, but it is not likey that there will be any more operations such as are classed by the duped Texans as a species of graft.

CORLISS HAD NO RIGHT

To Enter Grand Jury Room, Says Supreme Court of North Dakota.

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 26.—The supreme court has handed down a decision in the application of Judge Guy C. H. Corliss for a writ of habeas corpus. The court denied the writ.

Judge Corliss was adjudged guilty of contempt of court for willfully violating an order excluding him from visiting the grand jury room at Bismarck while the grand jury was in session last summer, during the famous anti-Patterson scrape in the capital city.

In its decision the supreme court holds that neither Judge Corliss' appointment as assistant state's attorney or his employment by the board of county commissioners vested in him any right to visit such grand jury sessions.

DAIRYMEN TO HAVE IMPORTANT MEETING.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—On Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 6 and 7, the Red River Valley Dairymen's association will meet in Crookston, and the gathering will be one of the most important ever held in the Northwest for the furtherance of the dairy industry in this section. # De PACHMANN'S LUCK STILL BAD

Russian Pianist's Ill-Fortune Follows Him to St. Paul.

Vladimir de Pachmann's troubles did not end when he boarded the train which took him from Duluth. Bad luck was at the train to meet him when he arrived in St. Paul, and bids fair to stick around the ill-starred pianist gor quite a spell.

At the concert given in St. Paul, the receipts were considerably lower than was anticipated. G. W. Walker, who undertook the management of the recitals planned for Duluth and the Twin Cities, was disheartened over the entire business, and he fled, not stopping to say goodbye.

Although the St. Paul Auditorium rent was supposed to be $250, the manager, in view of the circumstances, took $250, and De Pachmann got the rest of the receipts, above other expenses. The gross receipts were about $400. De Pachmann's manager had expected to get $1,000 for the concert, of which the pianist was to get $600.

The concert at St. Paul was too much for De Pachmann. He did not play at Minneapolis, disappointing the undersized audience which was on hand to greet him. It was announced that he was "indisposed in St. Paul," and the concert was canceled.

WAS NOT CONSULTED.

Roosevelt May Make Statement Regarding Hearst-Parsons Combination.

Washington, Oct. 26. —P resident Roosevelt may conclude to make a statement regarding the alliance or fusion between William R. Hearst and the Republican county organization of New York city. The president was much surprised to hear of the deal, and wants it understood that he does not stand for it.

He wants it understood that he was not consulted in the matter by Mr. Parsons, the chairman of the Republican organization, and that he had no knowledge of it. He was confronted with newspaper articles on the subject, some of which intimated that he had sanctioned the movement. The president, however, did not fully appreciate the importance of the Hearst-Parsons agreement, politically speaking, until his arrival in Washington. It was then that he determined to let the people know his attitude concerning it.

STRAY BULLET KILLS COOK.

Witnessing Free-for-All Fight When He Was Instantly Killed.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 26—A special from Lavina, Mont., says that during a carousal among the empolyes on the coast extension of the St. Paul railroad, William Smith, a cook, was shot and instantly killed. Smith was not involved in the trouble, but was witnessing the row from a distance, only to be struck by a stray bullet. No arrests have been made, the officials being unable to determine who fired the shot. This is the third crime of its kind recently in the St. Paul grading camps.

Newspaper Men See the New Road.

A party of St. Paul newspaper men, among them a representative of the Pioneer Press, took an auto ride for the purpose of inspecting the grade of the Twin City & Lake Superior Railway company, now building to Duluth. From different points a completed roadbed thirty-one feet wide and level and straight as far as the eye could see was found to exist for some twenty-four miles; this having been accomplished since July 1. Arrangements for operating the road to Sunrise, on the St. Croix, this winter, have been made and being pushed to rapid completion. The local manager of the Western Surety & Adjustment Company had the party in charge, and gave ample proof that St. Paul will soon have the means of rapid and direct transit to the Head of the Lakes.

Business men of the Twin Cities are giving support to this new electric road, and consider its stock a profitable investment. It is our opinion that such a road will be of vast benefit to, and materially aid the growth of, the general business of the cities at both ends of the line, and therefore merits support of business men.

HOW YOU CAN BUY STOCK NOW.

We are offering the full paid, non-assessable $100 par value stock of the Twin City & Lake Superior Railway Company on the following easy terms:

FORGER GETS HIS SENTENCE

Frank Morgan Sent to Penitentiary for a Short Term.

Frank Morgan, who was held to the grand jury on the charge of forgery in the second degree entered a plea of guilty, on information this morning, and was sentenced to a term of one year and six months in the state penitentiary, by Judge Dibell. Morgan was arrested Sept. 25, while attempting to pass forged checks in this city.

A petition is being prepared by the friends of Edward Williams, now held at the county jail for assault, asking the court to suspend sentence in event Williams pleads guilty to the charge. The accused was a member of the Fourteenth Minnesota during the late war and served through the Spanish-American war with credit. He was employed as a deputy on the range this past summer and, according to his story was advised by the doctors to drink gin to get relief from rheumatism. Williams claims to have been stupefied with drink and does not remember what happened. While he was in an intoxicated condition he fired a shot in a street brawl and the bullet scratched a man on the cheek.

Foley's Kidney Cure will cure any case of kidney trouble that is not beyond medical aid. Sold by all druggists.

BAD FIRE IN SUPERIOR

Plant of Strothman Iron Company is Visited by Flames.

Firemen, by Good Work, Save the Surrounding Buildings.

Fire about 2 o'clock this morning, of unknown origin, practically destroyed the foundry and machine shop of the Strothman Iron company, with their contents, and badly damaged the blacksmith shop of the works. The loss is estimated at from $10,000 to $15,000, the exact amount not yet being determined.

The fire was discovered by a policeman, who turned in the alarm. The fire department made a quick run to the scene, the corner of Tower avenue and Second street, but by the time they had arrived, the flames had gained good headway and the fireman saw that work on the foundry or machine shop would be futile. They, accordingly, turned their attention to the surrounding buildings, but despite their efforts, the blacksmith shop was quite badly damaged and the side wall of the Superior Manufacturing company nearby was badly scorched.

The buildings damaged by the flames were brick structures erected several years ago. Some of the machinery was modern and valuable and is rendered wholly useless by the fire. The company expects to continue work in a temporary way in a few days and will immediately set about replacing the burned buildings and machinery.

Tony Molonski Discharged.

The case of the state against Tony Molonesk, charged with stabbing George Novak in a fight following a dance at Sapho Park, south side, several nights ago, was dismissed yesterday for insufficiency of evidence. The stories of the participants in the battle were so conflicting that the district attorney threw up the case.

Lenroot Appointed Examiner.

Judge Sanborn of the federal court has appointed Irvine L. Lenroot special examiner to take the testimony in the suit brought by the Globe Elevator company against the Wisconsin warehouse and grain commission. The first hearing will occur in Superior, Nov. 4. The elevator company seeks to restrain the commission from interfering with its agents in the handling of grain consigned to the elevators.

Mayor Counsels Modeartion.

Mayor Linley, at the English Lutheran bazaar last evening, made a speech in which he sounded a note of warning in the reform movement that has been inaugurated. He says that reforms, no matter how commendable, may easily be discounted and overthrown by over-zealousness of citizens who desire to push things to the extreme. Mayor Linley says credit should be given to the great majority who have observed the law faithfully, instead of seeking out technical violators when there are no real offenders.

Sustains the Assessor.

The board of review of the city of Superior has sustained the assessements returned by the city assessor, in spite of the protest of several of the large corporations that sought to have certain assessments stricken from the rolls. Property valued for assessment purposes in the sum of about a quarter of a million dollars was involved in the controversy. Among the properties affected were elevators and grain in stock and coal docks. City Attorney McIntosh held that the assessments made would stand and the board of review did not cut down the assessor's figures.

CLAIMS HE WAS ASSAULTED

Aged Citizen Says Andrews Held Him Up for $60.

Claiming that Loyd Andrews, a dock worker, followed him home from Tifer's saloon on lower Lake avenue, assaulted him after they had crossed the canal, and robbed him of $60, George Danielson today swore out a warrant for his arrest.

Danielson claims he was drinking with Andrews in the saloon in question, and that Andrews offered to accompany him home. It is claimed that after he had crossed the canal Andrews attacked him and robbed him of $60.

Mr. Danielson is well known in the city, having at one time been poundmaster. He is about 75 years old.

Andrews was identified at the police station, by Mr. Danielson, this afternoon.

RAILROADS

GRUBER IS IN DULUTH

New Manager of Great Northern Inspecting Terminals Here.

City is Attracting Notice of the Big Railroad Men.

J. M. Gruber, general manager of the Great Northern railway, who was recently brought from the service of the Burlington to assume the supervision of the operation of the Great Northern, was at the Head of the Lakes today, inspecting the yards and property of the road.

Mr. Gruber's visit to Duluth and Superior was only for the purpose of familiarizing himself with the Head of the Lakes terminals. This is his first visit here since assuming the duties of his new position, and his trip here is only one of the trips of inspection that he is making over the lines of the Great Northern.

The visit of Mr. Gruber today, that of Mr. Stickney yesterday, and the visit of James J. Hill Monday, denote the growing importance of Duluth and Superior as railroad centers. Mr. Stickney's visit here, while in the nature of a trip of inspection, was for the real object of becoming more familiar with conditions at the Head of the Lakes, as applying to the business done by the Chicago Great Western, through the agency of connecting lines.

The traffic and freight business of the Great Western has shown a heavy increase the past year, and it was with the idea of becoming better acquainted with conditions here that President Stickney made an inspection of conditions here and on the range.

The heavy construction operations of the Soo and Wisconsin Central, and the opening of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg is making Duluth one of the most important shipping centers in the Northwest. Great Northern officials are watching the growth of the Head of the Lakes with an eye to future operating improvements, made necessary by the competition that will come with the entrance of the Soo and Wisconsin Central lines.

INCREASED EARNINGS.

Business Taxes Carrying Capacity of the Railroads.

Reports received from the statistical bureau of the American Railway association indicate that the gross earnings of the railroads of the country up to the present date are 6.8 per cent over the earnings of last October.

This report is taken to indicate that the roads are doing a business that is taxing the carrying capacity to the very limit. Last year at a corresponding period the roads were not threatened with such a car shortage as seems apparent today.

In the report of the gross earnings comes the statement that general railroad business is exceedingly heavy. The roads are at the present time handling all the freight that they can possibly carry and should the movement grow apace with the advancing season shippers will find that cars are not to be had.

NICKEL PLATE ALSO

Will Meet Reduction in Rates to New York.

C. A. Esterlin, representing the Nickel Plate road, was in Duluth yesterday. Trough Mr. Esterlin comes the announcement that his road, as well as all the perferential roads running East from Chicago will make a reduction in the $16 rate from Chicago to New York to meet the cut of $6 recently made by the Erie.

Mr. Esterlin says that all sales of tickets on the commission will be done away with under the new rate, the roads selling directly. This will also include the sale of steamship tickets on the lines run in connection with some of the roads.

The Grand Trunk, Michigan Central, Wabash, Nickel Plate and in fact all of the lines running East of Chicago will come into the new rate reduction.

STICKNEY IN DULUTH.

Says Conditions Are Not as Bad as Painted.

President A. B. Stickney of the Chicago Great Western road, was in Duluth yesterday, and in speaking of conditions of today in the railroad world, expressed the opinion that they were not so bad as they were pictured, either in the great financial centers or among the railroads.

When asked what were the indications at the present as to the activity of railroads in building in 1908, Mr. Stickney professed to be somewhat skeptical. "Money is hard to get," he said. "The railroads are up against this stringency in the money market and will be consequently hampered in building additional mileage and in building additional rolling stock and motive power."

Mr. Stickney visited Proctor and the docks and returned to St. Paul last evening.

Inspect New Lines.

St. Paul, Oct. 26.—The Big Falls & International extension of the Minnesota & International Railway company is about completed and will be ready for operation on Nov. 11. The railroad and warehouse commission will leave St. Paul in the evening of Nov. 7 to make an official inspection of the new line, which is required, in the case of new lines before they can be put into operation. The Duluth Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road will also be completed to International Falls within a short time so that the new bustling town at the Canadian border will soon be in direct communication by two lines with the rest of the state. The new extension on the International is about thirty miles long. This line runs from Bemidji while the Duluth & Rainy Lake road connects with the Iron Range road at Virginia for Duluth.

Walter Hill Here.

Walter Hill, son of James J. Hill, president of the board of directors of the Great Northern railroad, was in Duluth yesterday. Mr. Hill and Mr. Philbin were looking over the property of the Great Northern on the range and also spent some time inspecting the Great Northern's yards at Superior.

Railway Club.

At the meeting of the Northern Railway club last night it was decided to hold the annual ball in the parlors of the Spalding hotel, Nov. 22. The club has heretofore held a banquet each year, but this year this function will be dispensed with, the ball to be given in its place.

Car Overturned.

As a Northern Pacific switch engine was pulling a freight car out into the main yards after a load of shingles had been unloaded from it at the freight shed on dock No. 4 at Seventh avenue west, the car overturned as it was rounding the curve and at noon was lying partly on its side, blocking Railroad street. Teams were compelled to go around and cross on the tracks until the car was righted and removed.

THIRD SWAMP LAND CASE.

John E. C. Schumann is Fighting for His Homestead.

W. F. J. Schumann's contest case at the land office was concluded last night, and Register Engle has taken it under advisement. The next case in the list of swamp land contests is that of John E. C. Schumann against the state.

He settled on four forties in section 35, township 58 and range 9. A year ago he filed entry papers for these subject to the swamp land claim of the state. The state claims that three of the forties are swamp.

Schumann alleges settlement July 20, 1905, prior to the survey, and says that he knew nothing of the swamp land claim. He says he has resided on the land ever since. The state denies the validity and good faith of the settlement claim and furthermore claims that the land is swamp.

Capt. Smallwood is Schumann's attorney, and W. E. Culkin is defending the state. These two attorneys have conducted all of the swamp land cases so far this week.

AFTER PULPWOOD CUTTERS.

Big Demand for Men to Go Into the Woods.

Representatives of pulpwood firms have been in Duluth the past week, securing men for the sawing of pulpwood, which is to supply the crying demand for the big paper houses. In keeping with the demand for men, the wage for sawyers has advanced from $1 a cord to $1.50.

It is estimated that a much greater quantity of pulp will be cut this year than was taken out last year. The increasing demand for pulp is being felt. More men are to be employed to go into the pulp woods, and it is estimated that over 33 per cent more wood will be taken from the Rainy River district than was cut out last year.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 26.—Maj. Don G. Lowell dropped dead of heart disease last night while attending a board meeting at the First Church of Christ, Scientist. He was past commander of the department of Washington and Alaska, G. A. R., and a prominent member of the Loyal Legion. Maj. Lovell was 66 years of age, and was born at Ionia, Mich., serving through the Civil war with the Michigan troops, and after the war with Custer. He came to Tacoma in 1883.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 26.—Hanson Penn Dills, aged 50, novelist and journalist, died yesterday of an accidental overdose of chloroform, taken to relieve pain. He was author of "Duchess Undine, "Dunleath Abbey," "Hollow Bracken" and other fiction, and "Sands of Silver Poems."

PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY

Will be Celebrated as Usual, by Visit of Hungarian Club.

Washington, Oct. 26. — President Roosevelt will be 49 years old tomorrow. Besides a quiet family rejoicing at the White House, the president will receive the congratulations of the members of the Hungarian club of New York. The reception will take place in the East room, during the afternoon, thus continuing a custom instituted by the members of the club several years ago in presenting themselves to the president of the United States on the anniversary of his birth, wherever he may be.

AND HE GOT MAD.

How Austin, Patron of a Catalogue House Got Fooled.

Austin, Minn., Oct. 26:—The Register says: A good and true story is told of a farmer, who does not reside more than a few miles from Austin, Minn. He buckled on to the notion that he could accumulate more property by purchasing most of his stuff from Chicago catalogue houses. When his wife wanted a gasoline stove, he sent to Row, Sawbuck & Co., and got a catalogue. Selecting a gas stove from the fine illustrations, a stove that suited his better half, he ordered it sent C. O. D. When it arrived he paid his money, and took the stove home, supposing that it was like the glittering description in the catalogue. The next day the farmer, with blood in his eye, drove up to the station with the stove, which he deposited on the platform. He next made a demand for his money, saying that the stove was no good, and that the tank leaked already. He was informed that his coin had been sent to Sawbuck & Co. as per request, and that he would have to go to the Windy City if he wanted his money back. He left the stove just the same, and went away saying things that the government does not allow us to print.

There are many other people in the vicinity of Austin who have told similar experience in sending for goods from outside merchants, not only gasoline stoves, but as well worthless furniture, dry goods, groceries and other kinds of merchandise have been received.

Patronize home merchants and you will be spared much annoying experiences.

YOU MAY NOT NEED IT NOW

Put It in Some Safe Place for It May Come Handy.

Here is a simple home-made mixture as given by an eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night; painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe. Try it:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

A well known local druggist is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire Kidney and Urinary structure, and often overcome the worst forms of Rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure the Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and foul, decomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. Try it if you aren't well. Save the prescription.

WAGES INCREASING.

Contractors Are Now Bidding $2.60 for Common Laborers.

The wage for common labor was $2.60 today with few men responding to the advertisements of the employment agents. This is an advance from $2.25 and $2.50 paid for common labor a week ago. The urgent need of labor has imbued the men with a spirit of independence and few of the highest paid classes of work are being filled.

Three cars of men left Grand Forks and Fargo last night for Duluth. Reports received today by the National Employment agency state that the threshing crews are beginning to break up, and that many of the men are leaving for the Twin Cities and Duluth. It is expected that some of the men will reach Duluth tonight and Sunday.

Until the arrival here of several hundred men, operations in the woods, work on the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake, the Wisconsin Central and the Soo will be materially impeded. Lumbering contractors are seeking for men, with but little success, while all of the roads doing construction work are badly in need of men.

The $3 scale paid a few days ago was for a special gang of fifty men.

$17,425
Given Away Absolutely Free

In opening our winter season, we propose to make same memorable by instituting a great educational word contest, in which we will give away prizes totaling $17,425.

We, of course, do not suppose for a moment that any intelligent person is going to presume that we are so generous that we are going to give away $17,425 without receiving something in return. This would be ridiculous and not at all in accord with our intentions.

Our Object in holding this contest is three fold. First, we wish to make you familiar with the greatest line of pianos, players and organs in the Northwest, which includes the celebrated Kimball, Wisner, Hobart M. Cable, Whitney, Hinze, Arion, Etc. Second, to enable us to place at least one hundred and fifty pianos in homes where a good instrument will be thoroughly appreciated, therefore, securing one hundred and fifty new friends. Third, to enable the public by a little extra work to secure a piano at a legitimate discount.

Remember there is no money involved and those who secure awards, will receive them without cost of any kind.

How Many Words Can You Form from the letters contained in the two words

KIMBALL PIANO.

FIRST PRIZE—$325.00 KIMBALL PIANO.
Second Prize—$125.00 Kimball Organ—

To the next ten nearest answers, credit bill of $85.00 each, and following this in groups of five, each of the competitors sending us the five largest lists will be given credit bills for $1.00 less than the preceding prize, until the entire $17,425 shall have been distributed. The above prizes will be awarded strictly in accordance with the rules and regulations of the contest.

The Smallest Credit Bill Will be $50.00

There will be just 190 credit bills distributed, no more, no less. The point is this: they are worth working for.

Rules and Conditions of Contest

All answers must be in our store, 201 East Superior street, Duluth, Minn., not later than 6 p. m., Monday, November 11th.

Only such words are to be used as are found in Webster's International Dictionary. No proper names, foreign words, names of persons, towns or places are to be used.

Do not use a letter more times than it appears in the two words "KIMBALL PIANO." Words spelled the same, but having a different meaning can be used but once.

All credit bills up to and including $85 may be applied on any new piano in our stock. Fifteen per cent of a credit bill may be applied on any new organ.

Easy payments will be granted to those wishing to be accommodated by applying their credit bills and paying the balance in monthly payments.

No more than one credit bill will be accepted on the same instrument.

Each list must be signed by person compiling same.

In the event of list not being signed by person compiling same, the Company reserves the right to reject all such lists.

All words must be arranged in alphabetical order; A's under A's, etc.

No credit bill can be applied on any purchase made prior to opening day of contest.

No persons connected with the piano business in any way will be allowed to compete.

These credit bills will bear no cash surrender value, but can only be used to apply on the purchase of a new instrument.

SPECIAL INVITATION.

We issue a special invitation to all who are interested in this great contest, to call at any time, examine our magnificent stock, compare our prices, that they may be assured of the genuineness of our offer.

Contest Closes Monday Eve., Nov. 11th.

COUPON

Cut, fill out, attach to list of words and mail to Korby Piano Co., 201 East Superior Street, Duluth, Minn.

I hereby certify that I compiled the accompanying list of words without assistance, and that I agree to accept the decision of the judges of awards as final.

CRIMINAL STATISTICS

Finds Duluth is Well Patroled and Crime in Restraint.

Henry Sanford, representing the bureau of the census, Washington, D. C., is in the city upon an important mission and will remain for several days.

Mr. Sanford is one of several special field workers sent out by the government to the leading cities of the United States to collect criminal statistics, and the result of their work will eventually be compiled into a volume which will show the conditions of crime in the United States, the number of arrests upon serious charges and convictions therefore, time of sentence and other important statistics, which will be of great value to the department and of interest to the public in general.

This is an innovation upon the part of the government, and is made for the purpose of discovering whether or not the country is growing more law-abiding, whether offenses are being punished, and what localities of the United States show the greatest increase in the arrest and punishment of crime.

Mr. Sanford is an old time Wisconsin editor, and a man well versed in the political history of the Badger state. He is not at liberty to divulge the results of his findings thus far, but he is at liberty to talk politics and enjoys a resume of the political history of Wisconsin. He was at one time editor of a leading Republican publication in Manitowoc, Wis.

In reply to the question, "Do you find Duluth, a very wicked city?" he replied that he was not at liberty to give out any figures, but that this city is evidently well patroled and crime kept in restraint to a marked degree.

He will visit Superior after he concludes his work here and thence go to St. Paul and other cities. Each field representative of the department has a territory, and it will require some time to make all of the larger cities of the country.

American Occupation of Cuba.

Whether the occupation of Cuba by the United States forces will prove eventually a good thing or not, it is a very costly luxury. The actual cost for using a portion of our army as insular police is at least $5,000,000 a year besides other expenses which have to be met out of the Cuban treasury. Whether you have been a sufferer from ailments of the stomach, liver or bowels for years or only a short time, we believe that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will greatly benefit you. At least our past experience has proven beyond all doubt that it is a very superior medicine for such cases, and if a cure is possible the Bitters will make it. It is worth a trial at any rate. It cures indigestion, dyspepsia, costiveness, biliousness, sleeplessness, chills, colds, female ills and malaria. Try it.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Flurry in Wall Street Has But Little Effect on Business.

New York, Oct. 26.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Money pressure culminated this week in the closing of several banking institutions, but a panic was avoided by the prompt action of Mr. Morgan, who assumed the leadership of a concerted movement to strengthen the situation while the formation of a trust company similar to the clearing house committee did much to restore confidence.

Trade reports are irregular. The events of the week at this city tend to cause conservatism in preparations for the future, but current retail trade is active throughout the nation, and the leading industries maintain active machinery at most plants. An encouraging sign is the absence of liquidation. Transporters are unable to handle promptly all the freight offered, and railway earnings in October thus far surpass last year's by 6.8 per cent.

It is most encouraging to note in dispatches from Pittsburg and othe. leading centers of the iron and steel industry that no cancellations have been received and that specifications on old contracts maintain activity at most mills and furnaces. New business is light at such a time, but orders are fairly abundant in plate mills, which have shut down about 50 per cent of their capital. Many plate and structural steel mills have contracts covering output up to the end of the year. The only important decline in the week occurred in light ralls in order to meet the competition of re-rolled goods.

Cotton mills have orders so far ahead that current events produce little effect, but there is an evident indisposition on the part of the buyer to operate further into the future, while the producer is more anxious to do business.

New England footwear manufacture is quiet and conditions unchanged. Wholesalers throughout the country are doing a good business, but are conservative regarding the anticipation of future wants. Leather is dull, especially in the East, but a steady volume is noted at the West and South. Heavy sole leather continues scarce, but light weights are accumulating and large orders could be placed at concessions in price.

M'PHEE FOR MAYOR.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—John D. McPhee was nominated for mayor by both the Republican and Citizens' city conventions last evening. M. R. Brown's friends gave him a complimentary vote. The other Republican nominees were as follows:

Alderman at large, O. O. Christianson; clerk, A. M. Childs; assessor, E. M. Lancaster; city justices, G. C. Wilde, John McLean; treasurer, Virgil McGregor.

The Citizens' convention nominated the same men with the exception of naming Allan McKinnon as alderman at large.

ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS

Instantly Relieved and Permanently Cured

A NOTED physician offers to prove that Asthma and Bronchitis are curable, not only to sufferers in Duluth, but to every man, woman or child in America who is suffering from either of these complaints, who will send him their name and address at once. He will do so by sending them a free trial treatment of his remedy.

He believes that an actual personal test will be the most convincing, and, in fact, the only way to overcome the natural prejudice of thousands of Asthmatics who have heretofore sought relief in vain.

Although most every druggist in the United States, not only in the large cities, but in the small villages as well, now has his remedy, which is sold under the name of in stock, still there are a number of persons who have not yet heard of it, and it is with a view of reaching these that he offers to send his free trial treatment. Dr. Schiffmann claims that in every case of true Asthma his remedy will instantly relieve the most violent attack, usually within 15 seconds—always within as many minutes. Positively thousands of cases which were considered incurable have been permanently cured by his remedy, as many voluntary testimonials abundantly prove. But why rely upon the testimony of others when you yourself are thus afforded such a liberal opportunity of making a personal test of it? You are positively under no obligations or expense in sending for the free trial treatment he offers, whether it does or does not help you. The sufferer who gets a sample can tell in a very few minutes whether it is as represented, and it does not cost him a cent. That is fair, isn't it?

Just write your name and address plainly on a postal—nothing else is necessary—just your name and address, and mail today to Dr. R. Schiffmann, 220 W. Sixth Street, St. Paul, Minn., and he will understand that you want a sample package and will send it by return mail, absolutely free of charge. Write at once, as no free samples will be sent after Nov. 15th.

Guarantee Offer

Any sufferer who might prefer to start immediate treatment, instead of waiting to send for and receive the free trial treatment, is made this guarantee: Go to your druggist and buy a 50c or $1 package of Dr. R. Schiffmann's Asthma Cure. Use it according to directions. After using, say one-fourth of the package, if it does not benefit you and do exactly as represented, return the balance of the package to Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn., by mail, write him at the same time, telling him the name and address of the druggist where you bought it, and he will promptly and cheerfully refund your money. Sufferers in the country or small towns can get the remedy from their druggist or dealer just as well as those in the cities, as almost all of them in the United States now keep it in stock.

This is not a catch-penny scheme, but a legitimate guarantee offer to skeptical sufferers, and the management of this paper know that Dr. Schiffmann is responsible, and are certain that he intends to fulfill the above proposition up to the very letter.

SOCIALISM AND EMPLOYMENT

Labor saving machinery constitutes one of the most serious economic problems of our day. The introduction of these machines has completely revolutionized industry, and is rapidly substituting machinery for men in every field of production today. This fact is generally recognized by most intelligent people, although now and then we hear some one say that machinery gives employment to more labor than it displaces. This statement is an heirloom of the early days of the factory system. That men should expose their ignorance by putting it forth today shows that they have not watched the rapid changes upon the industrial field. The average man thinks little on the question of employment until he is in need of a job. Little does he know that in this country of ours that only 50.2 per cent of the workers have a job the year around, while 49.8 per cent work only part time. If he happens to belong to the 50 per cent class he will think that there is a job for every man who wants work, and if unable to find it, it is because he has turned his back to the opportunity when it favored him.

In 1890, 85 per cent of the workers were employed all the year, while only 15 per cent were employed part time, and in 1900, 78 per cent were employed all the year, while only 22 per cent were employed part time. And again, in 1903, 50.2 per cent were employed all the year, while the number of unemployed reached the enormous figure of 49.8 per cent. We find upon a study of this question that there must be a cause for such conditions of non-employment. We may find cause in the fact that in 1890 our national wealth was $65,000,000,000, while in 1903, it had far reached the $100,000,000,000 mark. We see that the increase of our national wealth had only grown about 50 per cent, while the non-employment had grown 100 per cent. And at the time that our national wealth would reach $150,000,000,000 it would seem that there would be very few who would be employed all the year. We find a total of 29,073,233 persons over 10 years of age, who are employed under the head of gainful occupations; that 20,393,137 are a class known as the producers or proletarians, which means that they as workers do not own the tools with which they work, while again we find that their total wealth is only $4,000,000,000 of our national wealth, while they are the producers of all of it. Again we find another class which is known as the middle class whose number is 8,429,845 and their total wealth reaches $24,000,000,000; and then another class whose number is only 250,251 and whose wealth is $67,000,000,000, or the bulk of our national wealth. We have 28,295,196 women and girls over 10 years of age. Of this number 5,329,807 are working for wages and 1,315,890 work in factories. In other words we find that nearly one girl or woman out of every five is working for her own maintenance.

The real cause of non-employment we find to be in the ownership of the wealth and machinery. As the class in whose control lies the direction of the use of these tools with which we as workers must work in order to gain our support, we find to be controlled by a class who demand that from their use must flow a stream of profits. We cannot expect that the owning class will employ us for any humanitarian motive, while there are no profits coming in. Labor today is socially performed. We do not work individually; we work collectively together, and why should we not receive the full product of our toil?

In order that we may all find work at our different vocations we must own collectively together the mines, mills, railroads and factories, and operate them for the purpose of producing goods for use and not for sale.

The Socialist party is the only party which will or can give to the workers steady employment and all that their labors will produce, and it would seem that the interests of all workers would be with the party of their class.

Excessive Drinking

Orrine Destroys the Craving for Drink Sold Under Positive Guarantee.

Excessive or continued use of alcoholic beverages always results in a diseased condition of the nervous system.

The drinking man is often heard to say, "I can stop of my own free will and when I wish," but the poor fellow is now devoid of the power to act at the proper time and in the right way—it's too late, the craving has secured a firm hold and because of the diseased nervous system he has not the ability for sustained effort. The result we all know.

Drunkenness is no longer considered a crime; eminent scientists and physicians have agreed that it is a disease and must be treated as such.

The home treatment that has been used for a number of years, and is highly successful, is Orrine. It is sold under a positive guarantee that if it does not effect a cure your money will be refunded.

Orrine is in two forms. When desiring to give secretly, purchase Orrine No. 1, and if the patient will voluntarily take the treatment, Orrine No. 2 should be given. The guarantee is the same in either case. Orrine costs but $1.00 per box. Mailed in plain sealed wrapper on receipt of price. ## BRYAN'S DECISION

As to His Presidential Candidacy Will Not Depend on Republican.

Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 26.—W. J. Bryan declared yesterday that his decision whether to announce himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president will not depend upon the choice of the Republicans. While passing through Kingston on his way to Port Jervis, where he was scheduled to speak last night, Mr. Bryan authorized the following statement:

"Mr. Bryan's decision as to being a candidate will not depend on who the Republican candidate is. The question will be decided entirely from the standpoint of Democratic principles and Democratic advancement."

Why Colds Are Dangerous.

Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Everycne knows that pneumonia and chronic catarrh have their origin in a common cold. Consumption is not caused by a cold, but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest way to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by all druggists.

NEW RULING

Regarding Payment for Stamped Envelopes Ordered by Business Houses.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Postmaster General Meyer issued an order yesterday respecting the purchase by business men of stamped envelopes that will mean much to business communities and to large users of the government envelopes. It provides, that when an order is placed with a postmaster for any number of stamped envelopes only the cost of the envelopes and printing thereon shall be deposited with the order, instead of the entire cost of the envelopes, printing and stamps, as at present. The government is often five or six weeks in making a delivery of stamped envelopes. As about four million envelopes are turned out every day by the government and the orders for them are approximately three thousand a day, the amount of money tied up under the present practice is enormous. Under the order of the postmaster general, the stamp value of the envelopes will remain in the hands of the purchaser and be available for such uses as he may care to make of it while the order is being filled. When the postmaster delivers the envelopes ordered, he will turn in to the treasury immediately the money received, thus making it available for government purposes.

IMPORTANT DECISION

By the United States Supreme Court Expected in March.

Washington, Oct. 26.—What is expected to be a most important decision by the United States supreme court will be handed down by that high tribunal soon after March 4th next. It will decide the validity or the constitutionality of the so-called railway employes' law, which was approved by President Roosevelt ten minutes before noon on the 4th of last March, just as the Fifty-ninth congress was about to go out of business.

The bill had been under discussion for several weeks and was the special order at the opening of congress last December, but as originally introduced by Senator La Follette, it was changed and amended so as hardly to be recognizable.

The main purport of the act limits the hours of labor, not only of all trainmen and crews, but of dispatchers and telegraph operators, who are employed in connection with railroads. Under the provisions of the act the interstate commerce commission is directed to enforce the statute, which, by the way, does not take effect until March 4 next.

The Neglect of Private Diseases

A Stitch in Time Saves Nine.

Many men have been made miserable by the unfortunate contracting of some poisonous special disease which, through neglect or improper treatment, has completely undermined and shattered the physical strength and mental faculties. No greater mistake can be made than to consider lightly the first evidence of the introduction of any private disease into your system, or to neglect the first symptoms of Nervous Debility, caused by improper and unnatural habits, excesses, dissipation, etc.

Such indifferences and neglect of the first symptoms are responsible for thousands of human wrecks, failures in life and business. Men! why take such desperate chances? The manifestations of the first symptoms of any disease or weakness should be a warning for you to take prompt steps to safeguard your future life and happiness. You should carefully avoid all uncertain, experimental, dangerous or half-way treatment, for upon the first treatment depends whether you will be promptly restored to health again, with all taint of the poisonous disease removed from your system, or whether your disease will be allowed to become chronic and subject you to future recurrences of the disease, with the various resulting complications, etc.

One consultation with us may change your whole life. Delays are dangerous.

If we could but see and treat all men when the first symptoms show themselves there would soon be little need for specialists in chronic diseases, and there would be few men seeking a rejuvenating of their physical, mental and sexual powers, and there would be none marked with the indellible stamp of constitutional Syphilis; and the sufferers from Prostatitis, Varicocele, Gleet, Kidney and Bladder Diseases, would be reduced to a minimum.

The Progressive Medical Association offers every afflicted man the care and attention of a skilled specialist in men's diseases, and a sure cure. Consultation free and confidential. Office hours 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Sundays 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. If you cannot call write Dept. A.

NORMAL NOTES

The seniors entertained the faculty Friday evening at an "old-fashioned party." The guests came dressed as their grandparents would have dressed. The rooms were prettily decorated with old-fashioned flowers and pumpkins, and the refreshments were also old-fashioned. The entertainment was opened with a short play entitled "Six Cups of Chocolate," which has for its theme the love affairs of college girls. Those who took part were Eunice Brotherton, Emily Ray, Melinda Lavalle, Ruby Harris and Neil Loranger. The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games.

* * *

Friday afternoon the members of the junior class took a tramp to Woodland. The girls left the school about 3 o'clock and walked out to Hunter's Park, where they had lunch.

* * *

The freshmen held a class meeting Wednesday. At this meeting they decided on their class colors, their class yell and the pins. Maroon and gold were chosen as class colors.

* * *

Friday morning the students gave a musical program. Miss Van Stone, the music instructor, gave a delightful talk on "Mendelssohn." A selection from Mendelssohn's ortario "Elijah," entitled "Lift Thine Eyes," was sung by a number of the students.

* * *

WOMAN RAN A BLIND PIG

Mrs. Abbie French Contributes $100 to School Fund.

It cost Mrs. Abbie French $100 to run a blind pig in section 23, 60-21. The fine was imposed by Judge Dibell yesterday afternoon after Mrs. French had pleaded guilty to the information filed by County Attorney Norton. The fine was paid and Mrs. French left for her home.

This is the second time that a fine has been paid for selling liquor without a license at the French place. The first time the woman's husband was fined. His conviction resulted in the county board taking action to shut saloons out of the district mentioned as there are a great many men employed in logging camps and these, when inflamed with liquor have made things disagreeable for the settlers.

French is now running a saloon across the line in Itasca county, about three miles from his former stand.

The Leading Languages.

To the Editor of The Herald:

To satisfy a few curious citizens of this community and to settle an argument, will you kindly insert in your paper the seven most recognized languages of the world?

A SUBSCRIBER.

Chisholm, Minn., Oct. 25.

If the inquirer means by this European languages, which are probably the most widely recognized, the leading seven are as follows: English spoken by about 130,000,000 people; German, spoken by about 100,000,000; Russian, 70,000,000; French, 45,000,000; Spanish, 40,000,000; Italian, 30,000,000; Portuguese, 13,000,000. However, there are about 3,000 languages spoken in the world, and in India, with its 300,000,000 population, in China, with its 432,000,000, and in Japan with its 50,000,000, there are languages spoken by millions of people.

NEWS OF THE WEEK AT CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL

Public Speaking Club is Holding Some Spirited Debates.

"Freshies" Organize for Year Amid Wildest Enthusiasm.

Monday morning the boys were allowed to "root" in chapel for the first time this year. The team put up such a fine game on Saturday that as a special concession Prof. Smith decreed this privilege, to the immense delight of the irrespressible ones.

Prof. Heston was welcomed when he returned to school on Monday, after his severe illness. He was specially needed just at this time to aid in repairing damages inflicted during the Minneapolis game, and the boys will be in fine shape to meet the "Giants" across the bay on Saturday.

* * *

At the weekly meeting of the Public Speaking club, a general discussion was held by the members on the question, "Resolved, that the federal government should subsidize the Southern states to educate the negro." The discussion was heated and brought forth many good arguments, but was finally won by the side favoring the plan. A series of debates, one to take place at every meeting, has been planned by Prof. Lambert, who is chairman of the program committee.

Directly following this series, the winning teams will compete for the honor of defending the "Central High" in the league debates.

* * *

During the latter part of the week the members of the Public Speaking club have been distributing the tickets for Mr. Tripp's lecture, which is to take place on Monday afternoon. It was with some difficulty that the club secured Prof. Tripp for this lecture, and it is hoped that every pupil of the high school will be present at the reading, with as many outsiders as possible. The subject of the lecture will be Shakespeare's "Henry IV."

After Mr. Tripp gives his reading the Dramatic and Public Speaking clubs will tender him a reception. It is hoped that many outside of the student body will take advantage of this opportunity of meeting the noted lecturer.

* * *

George Suffel, one of the high school alumni, was enthusiastically received by the musical society before, which he sang in a delightful program on Tuesday.

* * *

One Wednesday afternoon the "Freshies" organized as the class of "1911" amid the wildest excitement and enthusiasm. Every member of the class was present and interest was sustained and prolonged. Rivalry was very strong and not less than five candidates were nominated for each office. The following were elected: Robert Mars, president; Alva Pettingill, vice president; Mary Whipple, secretary; Even Spencer, treasurer. A football captain for the coming sophomore-freshman game will not be selected till later in the season, when the contestants have had an opportunity to show their strength and endurance. The sophomores are losing no time, as they cannot afford to take chances.

On Thursday afternoon Capt. Feetham called all the candidates of the sophomore class together to discuss the prospects for a winning team. On Friday night was held the first practice, a most exciting contest, while the "Freshies" stood around, three deep, held their breaths and looked wise.

The freshmen also left the office of editor-in-chief of their section of the Zenith open till later in the year, when it is hoped that some one with literary talent may be discovered among the 300 aspirants.

* * *

The first report cards have been handed out, and the anxiety of last week is abated. Everyone is working hard—burning midnight oil, as usual, some to achieve higher marks, some to keep up the present standard, and all to win the A and B marks.

* * *

The senior students were initiated into the mysteries of chlorine this week, and many of them went around with bleary eyes and singing heads, caused by a too near approach to the bottle.

* * *

Miss Carey's art room is the center of attraction of late, owing to the fact that the "Freshies" are allowed to use the new easels. Wonderful effects are being executed.

* * *

Saturday afternoon will see the Superior football field crowded to its capacity with frenzied supporters of the "red and white." Duluth has not beaten Superior since the season of 1903-4, when Duluth won by a score of 22 to 0.

* * *

Miss Louise Noyes left for her new home on Thursday afternoon and a large student body went to the depot to bid her farewell. Many of the pupils attended the different functions given in her honor during the last week, and the school has a warm spot in its heart for the former teacher and friend of all the pupils.

* * *

Mrs. Kate Upson Clark spoke to the students in chapel Friday morning, giving a helpful talk to literary aspirants on the beginning of her own career as a writer and encouraging any in possession of real or imagined literary ability to start upon their career at once, and in the attainment of success not to waver in allegiance to their country and its traditions. The students were very enthusiastic over Mrs. Clark's address, and gave her a very warm reception as she left the stage.

POOR WHEAT FOR FODDER

A. H. Smith Says Canadians Find Good Market for It.

Talks on Conditions in Provinces of Western Canada.

A. H. Smith of the Duluth Board of Trade has just returned from an extended trip through the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Northern Alberta.

Mr. Smith says that while Saskatchewan and Northern Alberta and parts of Manitoba got a bad blow caused by the frosts in the early part of August that there will be no very bad effects result therefrom. Manitoba has a very fair crop and the quality is fair, about 65 per cent of it being 1 and 2 northern, and the balance from No. 3 down to the poorest feed. The average yield for Manitoba will be from fourteen to twenty-one bushels per acre as against seventeen bushels last year.

In Saskatchwan the crop is not nearly as good either in quality or quantity. At least 70 per cent of the wheat is badly frosted and is useful for nothing but feel, but the yield of this poor wheat is running in some places as high as twenty-five bushels to the acre and from that down to about eight bushels. The present high prices are a good thing as the farmers in Saskatchewan are getting about as much at the present for their poor wheat as they got for their good No. 1 northern a year ago at this time. This very poor wheat was bringing about 50c to 53c a bushel in the country and about 75c to 80c in Winnipeg, and there was an enormus demand for this class of wheat for shipment to Ontario for feed and also for export for feeding purposes. It is estimated that there will be fully 25,000,000 of bushels of this poor frosted wheat in Western Canada out of a total crop of probably 70,000,000 against a crop of about 94,000,000 last year.

Crop Is Ruined

In Northern Alberta in the neighborhood of Edmonton the crop was practically ruined by frosts and there will be but little if any good milling wheat in that section. The millers at Edmonton are down in Saskatchewan buying wheat there to ship to their mills at Edmonton.

"The best crop in Saskatchewan, says Mr. Smith, "is in the neighborhood of Saskatoon, which is a wonderful town for its age. It has a population of about 7,000. It has in course of erection very nearly completed two hotels which cost $80,000 each. The Canadian Bank of Commerce building just being completed cost $75,000. There are three railroads, the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk Pacific, which have just arrived there, and also the Canadian Northern railway. Each company will have its own depot and the Canadian Pacific railway is building a depot of stone which will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000.

"The town is situated between the north and south branches of the big Saskatchewan river, and is on the bank of the south branch. Five years ago the population was only 150. The distance from Winnipeg is 500 miles, and will without doubt be the great distributing point for all that Northern and Western country. The soil is of the medium light kind and is the most productive in that country and a peculiar fact is that the wheat seventy-five miles south and east of Saskatoon is badly frosted while around this place the damage by frost is very light comparatively and some very fine wheat has already been shipped out from this crop. The best territory tributary to Saskatoon is called the Goose river country and is a stretch of land about thirty miles each way and is said to be the best and most valuable land in that country. The crop in that section will average this year about twenty-three bushels of wheat and oats from fifty to sixty bushels. It is a grand country and any one visiting it will be astounded at its growth.

"The class of farming done all over Western Canada is far ahead of the average farming done on this side of the line. There is very little fall or spring plowing done, and more summer fallow. The farmers summer fallow at least one-third of their acreage each year. Another third they sow on the stubble field after burning off the previous year's stubble in the spring, and the other third they summer fallow that summer so they have always one-third of their land ready for the next year's crop. Our farmers on this side would be surprised at the cleanliness of the land. After breaking a new piece of land this summer, it will be seeded next spring and the following spring sown on the stubble as above mentioned so the land really raises two crops on the one plowing.

Winnipeg Quieter.

"A great deal of building is going on in Winnepig, but business there in real estate is very much quieter than it was on account of the stringency of the money market which is felt there quite badly, and the banks all over Canada are very conservative in loaning money as they are on this side. But from the general appearance of the cities and the country one could hardly imagine that their crop had suffered a severe loss of from 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 of bushels caused by the frosts, and it is not expected that even this fact will retard the large immigration next spring.

"An enormous amount of railroad building has been going on all summer mostly by the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is now about thirty miles west of Saskatoon on their way to the coast, and this road will open up a great country all along."

TROUBLE FROM COFFEE.

People Beginning to Learn About the Drug.

"Coffee treated me so badly that I want to tell people about it, and if you can use my letter, I will be glad.

"I am 45 years old and have drank coffee all my life. I have felt bad for years and did not know what ailed me. Some times I would have to press my hand against my heart, I would be in such pain and I got so I could hardly do my work. My head would feel heavy and dizzy, and many a time I got so blind I just had to drop down or else I would have fallen.

"I felt bad all over. My feet would swell and hurt me. A friend of mine asked me to try Postum and stop drinking coffee. I tried the Postum, but it was some days before I got hold of the right way to make it. My heart disease and dropsy disappeared and I got entirely well.

"There is much in making it. It has to be boiled longer than ordinary coffee, but when I got it made good, it was fine, and now I wouldn't have coffee in my house at all. I am sure that Postum saved my life, and I am now perfectly well. I send you the names of about twenty people that have been helped by leaving off coffee and using Postum Food Coffee."

It's worth while to read "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs.

Remarkable Psychic Astrologer Tells Past and Future with Amazing Accuracy to All Who Write Absolutely Free.

Men and Women from All Parts of the World Seek His Advice About Love Affairs, Business, Health, Journeys, Marriages, Legacies, Changes, Speculation, Etc.

From the great city of New York, where scientists and investigators are eagerly watching the progress of inventions and spending millions of dollars in the perfection of methods by which the masses may be benefited, comes the startling announcement that Prof. Albert Postel, the great Astrologer, has perfected a system by which he can foretell the principal events of a life, forewarn people of danger, point out the road to success and explain the cause of failure in so many lives.

The Professor says that he can explain who your enemies are, tell you whose persons in whom you can place confidence and from whom you may expect favors, name your lucky days, tell you what pitfalls to avoid, what opportunities to grasp, advise you about condition physically, financially and socially. His method is unlike that of any other astrologer, and from the expressions of gratitude contained in the many thankful letters from his patrons, it is evident that much good is being accomplished by his work. The following are samples of the letters received by Professor Postel, and go far toward showing that his Life Horoscopes are not only accurate, but are prepared with a view to guiding and benefiting those who apply to him for counsel.

Effa M. Tryon writes: "You are certainly the most wonderful astrologer living. Every one of your predictions came true."

Mr. Broad, real estate agent of Brandon, Can., in a recent letter to Mr. Postel, says: My horoscope is the best instrument of guidance that I have ever had put in my hands. I would not take a hundred dollars for the information you have given me."

Another letter, from Miss Bergliot Horne, reads as follows: "I followed your advice and succeeded in securing a position at a much higher salary than I anticipated. I consider the horoscope worth hundreds of dollars to me."

Charts and dials of strange design surround the Professor in his daily work of answering the correspondents and sending out readings to people in all parts of the world. From a glance at the features of Professor Postel, 'tis clear to be seen that he is a man who has a kindly feeling toward humanity, and his manner and conversation tend to prove that he is sincere in his desire to be of real benefit to his clients.

Readers of this paper can obtain a reading free of charge by addressing a letter to Professor Albert Postel, Dept 723, No. 126 West 34th street, New York, N. Y. Simply say you wish a reading of your life, and be sure to state your birth date, sex and whether married or single. Please inclose 10 cents (silver or stamps) to pay postage and clerical work, and the reading, also a copy of Prof. Postel's interesting book "Your Destiny Foretold," will be promptly sent. Tell your friends to send for a reading also.

BUY A HOME.

This seems to be a good time to repeat what The Herald has persistently advocated for several years: that the citizens of Duluth should invest in a great and growing and prosperous enterprise by owning their own homes in Duluth.

At the very least, every man that can do so should buy a lot, with a view to erecting a home upon it when he is able to do so.

Lots in Duluth will never be cheaper than they are today. Growth must necessarily increase the values of desirable lots, and growth is certain to come. The new steel plant to be erected here by the United States Steel corporation means an addition of 25,000 people to the population. Many of them will live near the plant, but many more will live down town, for by that time there will be transportation facilities right through.

But that one big plant means other big plants, and each will bring its addition to the population. As a speaker at a recent public meeting in Duluth pointed out, the growth of steel manufacturing means "man labor"; not girls and women and children, but men, who will support families.

If you have the ready money at hand, put it into a Duluth lot. If you haven't enough, go in debt for it. Going in debt is a bad thing when you are in debt for your living expenses and luxuries, but it is often a good thing when it ties you up to something that will mean real, tangible wealth when it is paid for. When your lot is paid for, you can build your home upon it, paying for it if you can, or going in debt for that, too, if you find it necessary.

Investment in real estate is safe, permanent, certain, when you use judgment and buy it in a growing town with an opening future like Duluth.

You talk much of "dividends" when you buy stocks, but you will reap certain dividends if you put your money into a home. First you get the dividend of contentment in the possession of your own home, of something substantial and valuable that belongs to you and to you alone; then you have become a solid citizen, with a direct personal interest in public affairs, and if you respond to that feeling by taking an active part in all matters tending to the uplift and betterment of Duluth you will reap another dividend of satisfaction.

But there are more tangible dividends than that. The money you would have paid for rent, less what you will pay for taxes, insurance and repair, is a monthly dividend that is more certain than the dividend of any industrial, railroad or other stock.

Own your own home. Don't say you can't; just sit down and figure how much of a home you could have built with the rent you have paid in the last ten years. If you already own your home, there is still the investment side of Duluth real estate. Buy a lot and build a house on it to rent, and you will have still more dividends coming in. Furthermore, you will be your own president, general manager, board of directors and sole stockholder. You will be a solider and better and more self-respecting citizen than you ever can be living from hand to mouth and paying out money for rent that ought to go toward making you a home.

THE ANTI-TRUST CONFERENCE.

The most important feature of the meeting of the National Civic Federation in Chicago for the discussion of the trust problem is its decision, reported in the resolutions adopted by the conference and published in The Herald last evening, that the Sherman anti-trust law requires amendment.

As it stands the law has done good work and it will do more. The conference declares that its enforcement "has accomplished great national results in awakening the moral sense of the American people and in asserting the supremacy and majesty of the law, thus affectually refuting the impression that great wealth and large corporations were too powerful for the impartial execution of law." This is eminently true. Indeed, we now find great wealth and large corporations protesting bitterly that they are being singled out by the government for prosecution, or persecution, as they call it. That is a sudden and violent change from the day when they seemed secure behind their bulwarks of great wealth and power, and when the plain people were complaining that such criminals seemed to escape attention merely because their crimes were great and their riches enormous.

But the conference thinks the law needs changing so that it "shall maintain all that it was intended to secure and safeguard interests that it was never expected to effect." At present the law flatly prohibits all forms of business combination. The conference believes that this prohibition should be modified as to labor organizations and their trade agreements with employers; as to associations of farmers, intended to secure a stable and equitable market for the products of the soil free from fluctuation due to speculation; and as to "business and industrial agreements or combinations whose objects are in the public interest as distinguished from objects determined to be contrary to the public interests."

If it shall be deemed the duty of the government to forbid all forms of combination and centralization of business, no matter how much theoretical benefit they accomplish, the law should stand as it is. If it shall be determined that combination shall be permitted to a reasonable extent under strict government regulation to secure to the public its share of the benefits of combination, it must be amended.

But in any event, its amendment should be begun thoughtfully and prayerfully, and the people should watch the process closely. Even granting that certain changes would be publicly beneficial, unless the amending process is closely scrutinized it would be a simple matter for some enemy of the people to slip in a phrase or a word that would emasculate the law and deprive government and people of one of their most potent weapons against oppression and exploitation.

"ROOSEVELT DID IT."

The vice president of the Knickerbocker Trust company who intimated as the doors of that institution were being closed that "President Roosevelt did it" probably spoke in the heat of the moment, and with no idea that anybody would believe him. Yet there are people who look at things from his viewpoint, and who really believe that the effort to eliminate bad methods from business causes disturbances, when as a matter of fact the bad methods themselves are the cause.

When William J. Bryan heard of the silly remark of the New York trust company official, he said:

> Don't blame the sheriff, but blame the horsethief. Don't blame the officials who make and enforce the laws, but blame the criminals who make the laws necessary. Blame the unscrupulous financiers who have piled up predatory wealth that has exploited a whole nation.

"If you push reform," says the magnate, "you will kill prosperity."

If prosperity is built up of deceit, treachery and oppression, it should be killed. Nothing that comes from such sources is worth keeping.

But prosperity is not built of such flimsy material. It comes from the abiding strength of the nation's natural riches, and the industry and intelligence that is developing them.

Upon that prosperity, however, has been built up a fictitious superstructure of exploitation. The recent troubles have been all in the superstructure, and not in the edifice itself.

The New York financial troubles were inevitable results of some of the methods that had been used there. If these results had been postponed they would have been much worse. There were certain banking and trust companies that were little but promoters' banks. They invited the public's deposits, and then used the money in exploitation of desperate schemes. Public knowledge of this condition bred insecurity. The legitimate bankers took hold of the situation, and with the help of the federal treasury and the financial leaders threw out the objectionable methods and the objectionable men, and wherever possible put the banks on their feet again. One or two were too badly weakened by the tricksters to be saved, and they had to go. In their fall they carried a few innocent institutions that had business connections with them, so the innocent suffered in a measure with the guilty.

These weak spots discovered and eliminated, the situation should be stronger than before, and it cannot fail to be when the temporary effect of fright is worn off. But the evil, all of it, can be traced not to President Roosevelt or to the law, but to the men who abused public confidence and made dishonest use of money entrusted to them.

No condition of prosperity could be permanent with such methods in vogue, and now that they have been discovered and stopped, the financial condition is on a more stable and permanent basis. Money is scarce, but the big crops are already turning the balance toward this country, and it must be plentiful in a few short time. As to the men who think as the vice president of the Knickerbocker Trust company talks,

> No man e'er felt the halter draw,
> With good opinion of the law.

PARTY SPIRIT.

> De Tocqueville: For a generation which is manifestly called upon to witness the stern and terrible changes of the constitutions of the empires of the earth, the deadliest sin is thoughtlessness, the most noxious food is prejudice, and the most fatal disease is party spirit.

This was said of the generation that witnessed the birth of the two great republics, France and the United States, but the caution contained in it is just as valuable and just as necessary today as it was then.

There are few economic and social ills in this country that cannot be traced to thoughtlessness, prejudice and party spirit. There are few, too, that cannot be cured by thoughtfulness, fairness and the substitution of patriotism for partisanship.

And party spirit, when you come down to it, covers both thoughtlessness and prejudice, so the real, fundamental evil is partisanship. That evil prevails today less than it has at any period in the history of the republic. If its partial disappearance will drive away thoughtlessness and prejudice, and permit the citizenship to approach its duties thoughtfully and with open mind, a settlement cannot be far away.

Criticism of party spirit does not mean that there should be no parties. There must always be parties in a popular government so long as men are of different minds. There was partisanship in the formative days of the republic, and the government was a compromise between two opposing schools of thought. It is a far better government than it would have been had either school been completely successful.

These opposing tendencies were represented by Hamilton and Jefferson. Had the Hamiltonians had their way, the government would have been little better than a monarchy, and the people had just flown from the oppression of a monarchy. Had the Jeffersonians had their way the government would have been a formless, feeble, and ineffective coalition of jealous states which would have fallen of its own weight years ago.

As a result of the compromise a strong and abiding government, which has withstood the storms of civil war, was formed, and we still live under it.

Party spirit is good because it brings compromises between the too fast and the too slow, so that our steps ahead are taken with plenty of time in which to look where we are going.

But party spirit is all wrong where it puts party success above the country's good, and the nation has suffered from this evil.

In times like these the ties of partisanship rest but lightly upon patriotic citizens, whose desire is not that any party shall achieve undeserved success, but that the country shall forge forward and that the greatest good for the greatest number shall be brought about, by whatever party or candidate that seems best qualified to accomplish it.

WHAT COUNTS.

It's a much safer rule to judge character by its accomplishments than by its promises, but it is not altogether adequate, either.

It is not what you have, but what you are, that counts.

It is not even what you do so much as what you try to do and how you try to do it.

This is no excuse for failure; there can be no excuse for failure that comes from not trying hard enough.

If in your judgment of character you hew hard and fast to the line of accomplishment, you will do injustice to many a noble soul that has striven hard as best it could and yet has fallen short of accomplishing all it set out to do. In fact few ever do accomplish all they try to do, which is a good reason for setting your aim high enough. Even if you set it too high, your striving to reach it will bring you higher up the hillside than you would have gone if you had placed your aim at a more comfortable but less ambitious height.

You can't judge a man by his accomplishments alone or by his aims alone; but you can come nearer judging him by the way in which he tries to do that which he has set out to do.

The world judges largely by accomplishments, and often values too highly accomplishments that are merely sordid. Accumulation of riches is an accomplishment, but it is one of the poorest and least noble of all human endeavors. Perhaps that is not a very practical view, but after you have analyzed the comparative happiness of the man that has gained merely wealth, and that of the man who has gained the achievements of greater things that have given pleasure and happiness to others, you may come to the conclusion that after all it is not so impractical as it might seem at first thought.

There is nothing noble about the mere ambition to make money. That means that you want to get more than your share of this world's goods, which in turn means that you must, by your superior craft and cunning, get part of what would belong to other people if there were an equality of division; which there never could be unless there were an equality of thrift and greed. But there is nothing uplifting or broadening in such an ambition; rather is there much corroding and narrowing.

Applause based merely on the achievement of money-getting is therefore ill-judged. The man that aims high, tries his level best, and accomplishes something, even if he falls short of his aim, is to be approved for his aim and his endeavor no less than for his achievement. Even if he fails altogether, through misfortune, he is still deserving of credit for his aim and his attempt, though if his failure comes from weakness of endeavor his aim alone does him little credit.

SENTIMENT AND DISILLUSION.

French marriages and American marriages are examples of two opposite types. The French marriage is unsentimental in the extreme; there is no thrilling courtship, no lovers' quarrels to be made up, no romance whatever. It is arranged by the parents, often on a purely financial basis, and very often there is little more than a bare acquaintance between the contracting parties before marriage. If there is courtship it must come after marriage instead of before; if the parties are sweethearts, they must find it out after they are married instead of while they are single.

On the other hand, sentiment rules supreme in this land. We frown upon marriage of convenience, and we deny the right of parents to make selections for their children. If they try it, likely as not the young people will run off and marry in secret those to whom their fancy leans, letting the old folks get accustomed to it as best they may after the event is over. There is such a thing in this country as marrying for money and position, but it is not popular, and such things as letting parents arrange marriages and fix upon the amounts that are to be settled by the bride upon her husband or vice versa are utterly abhorred.

Both methods have their disadvantages. The French marriage without sentiment often creates a listless and unhappy union, from which the parties turn with disgust to unlawful relations with others to whom sentiment attracts them.

On the other hand, the marriage based purely on sentiment, unsupported by sound judgment, is as likely to turn out unhappily as the marriage of convenience. Runaway marriages uncountenanced by parents are delightfully romantic, but dreadfully hazardous. Sentiment alone is a transient thing, and forms but a slight foundation for a lifelong partnership.

It seems altogether probable that some common-sense compromise between the two extremes would be more likely than either to produce real and abiding happiness and contentment.

An English woman, writing in the London Chronicle, has a good word to say for the Frech marriage. As a result of more than a quarter of a century of very close acquaintance with French family life, she says that the unsentimental marriage seems to her eminently satisfactory. "Indeed, no happier or more comfortable unions have I ever known in our own beloved country," she says, "where love admittedly and almost universally reigns lord of all. In the first place under the French system, human beings, imperfect at best, are saved the bitterness of disillusion. Whenever French marriages are based upon romantic sentiment—witness poor Balzac's—disillusion follows. There is no doubt that in the logical, matter-of-fact, unsentimental French character lies the best guaranty of fireside stability and comfort."

This will be unpleasant doctrine to the romantic and the sentimental, but there is much worth thought in that word 'disillusion," which seems to associate itself so fatally as an aftermath of sentiment.

"Optimism is lack of experience," says the New York Press. Pessimism is lack of breadth.

Next year Washington's birthday, Memorial day and the Fourth of July all fall on Saturdays, making three double holidays. Something to look forward to.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

As an aid in the apprehending of criminals and as a means of identification, the Bertillion system has been of great service to the police of both Europe and the United States. By the means of measurements a minute and almost perfect description of the identification marks and peculiarities of a criminal, which are placed on the back of a photograph, the capture of a man wanted by the police is rendered comparatively simple in many cases.

W. A. Allen was telling a story at the Lenox yesterday of the zealousness of the sheriff of Eureka, Mo. He was serving his first term in office and was exceedingly anxious to accomplish something that would place his name on the tongue of every man, woman and child in the community. He subscribed to police magazines (including the Police Gazette, which he didn't show to his wife), and endeavored in every way to become familiar with the ways of desperate criminals. He anticipated a great capture, or something of this sort, and resolved to be up in the ways of the elusive lawbreakers.

Finally the opportunity he had been waiting for arrived. A desperate criminal had escaped from the Kansas City authorities. Pictures of the man were sent broadcast throughout the state. Five pictures of the man were sent to the sheriff of Eureka. They represented five different views of the criminal—profile, full view, etc.—and, together with the Bertillion measurements, made a description that was almost perfect.

The sheriff immediately got busy. The five different views of the escaped convict had not been in his possession a week before he wired to the chief of police of Kansas City:

"Have captured four of the suspects and am hot on the trail of the fifth."

W. H. Cootes, who is at the Spalding, says that American dressmakers are oh, so fickle. Now Mr. Cootes travels for a corset house of Saginaw, and bases his opinion on actual experience in dealing with the purveyors of fashions. Mr. Cootes declares that it is hard to please the average dressmaker. Corset houses are continually sniffing with the veering wind of fickle fashion, so that a model that is new today, is tomorrow replaced by a more up-to-date model. They are turning out a whalebone corset that encases the form shell-like and moulds the figure to the lines of an old-fashioned hour glass. It is the latest style in the American production and is intended to keep the fastidious world of fashion satisfied until the prolific inventive faculties of the corset designer can suggest a newer model.

R. A. Devereaux, who is from Seattle, was telling of the progress achieved by that city in the past few years. Mr. Devereaux is stopping at the St. Louis and is willing to tell any one of the attractions offered by the city whose citizens are endeavoring to make it the first city in the West.

"We raised over $600,000 out there in less than five hours," said Mr. Devereaux, in telling of the hustling qualities of the citizens of Seattle. "The money was subscribed to the Yukon exhibition fund and while a committee was appointed to raise the desired amount its labors merely consisted in telling the business men what they wanted, how much good it would do the city to have the exhibition, and presto, business was suspended while the necessary fund was subscribed.

"We are building one of the finest hotels in the entire country. Some of the new buildings that are planned for the near future will compare favorably with some of the New York buildings, and in every possible indication one sees the advance of Seattle from the small city of five years ago to a hustling, bustling, booming city that is rapidly taking the place formerly occupied by San Francisco. I believe that Seattle is destined to outgrow the California metropolis within a few years and rank as the largest city of the West."

THE WEATHER.

Though the weather was still pleasant this morning, it was a little more dubious than before. After a brilliant sunrise it clouded over, partially, and it was cooler than it had been. The weather man expects showers tonight and clearing tomorrow, with cooler weather tomorrow. Last night's lowest was 28 degs. and yesterday's highest was 41 degs.

A year ago today a warm summery rain started the day, and it was showery later.

The sun rose this morning at 6:42 and set tonight at 5:02, making 10 hours and 20 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The Alberta disturbance has shifted its center to Manitoba, attended by warmer weather throughout that province and the Dakotas. Light rains fell during Friday or last night in Missouri, Southern Illinois, Western Tennessee, Kansas, Oklahoma, Pacific coast states and the Red river valley, due mainly to low pressures over the latter district and the Gulf of California. The Dakota high pressure has advanced to the eastern lake region and has caused cooler temperatures over most of that section and the central valleys. The easterly movement of the Manitoba depression will cause showers in this locality during this afternoon or tonight, followed by clearing weather Sunday, with strong westerly winds."

Following were last night's lowest temperature as recorded by the weather bureau:

SMILING REMARKS.

Chicago Tribune: "Have you such a book as the 'Naughtybiography of Mark Twain?'" inquired Mrs. Gaswell at the book store. "A literary friend of mine recommended it to me the other day."

Philadelphia Press: "I heard a specimen of fine language this morning," said Luschman, "that affected me very much."

"Indeed!" replied Ascum. "What was that?"

"'Ten dollars or ten days.'"

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Why is Pickleby rushing about in that excited fashion?"

"Haven't you heard? Why, he is organizing the 'Order of the Sons of the Colonial Tax Dodgers.'"

Baltimore American: "Why does that man over there lie flat on his back staring upward?"

"That man? Oh, he imagines he is enjoying an automobile ride on a country road."

Philadelphia Press: "I've worked for the party faithfully for the last twenty years," began the officeseeker, "and I can say with truth that I never once asked for an office—"

"Great record!" put in the party leader. "I wouldn't think of urging you to break it. Keep it up."

Washington Herald: "Rameses didn't really do anything great, it seems. Just carved his name on everything in sight."

"Well, his name is pretty well known, isn't it? It pays to advertise."

Philadelphia Press: "You said the house was only five minutes' walk from the station," complained the victim. "To say the least, I'm disappointed in you."

"And I'm disappointed in you," replied the agent. "I thought you were a very rapid walker."

Washington Star: "You have used this phrase several times before," said the secretary.

"I know it," answered Senator Sorghum; "I'm going to keep hammering away at it until people learn it by heart. Then it'll be considered an epigram."

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

A Straight Talk to Students.

By this time the hosts of young persons in school and college have settled down to the steady pull of another year's work. The process of matriculation is over, grades have been determined; lessons assigned, and from now until next May or June it is for the young persons themselves to say what they will do with their great opportunities.

"What do you go to school or college for?" That is the first question I would fling at every member of the student company. That you may become proficient in this or that science or art; that you may become veritable walking encyclopedias of information; that you may take on a certain veneer of culture? No that is not the primary purpose of an education. A keen college professor once complained because all the preachers who came to the college, invariably prayed for "this and other institutions of learning." "Institutions of learning," said the professor vehemently. "The ministers ought to pray rather that the schools of the land become insitutions of power." And this is the proper ideal for the individual as well as the school. You are where you are to find out what is in you, and to develop those capacities to their utmost; you are to acquire in these brief, beautiful years not merely knowledge, but character. How can this be done?

First of all is the main thoroughfare of student life along which at definite intervals, you find the routine duties; attendance upon this or that exercise; the getting of this or that lesson; the taking down and mastering of this or that lecture; the subjecting of yourself to reviews, tests, examinations, quizzes. The student's first duty lies in this field. Inattention, neglect of superficiality here means, in the long run, failure and disaster.

But along with these commonplace, but very necessary duties, it is possible in one's student days, to explore to advantage certain by-paths. Do not be so absorbed in the routine work as to overlook these parallel avenues of development.

One is that which leads to familiarity with and appreciation of books. The traditional mark of a student is a book. If you do not acquire a fondness for books in your student days, you never will. If a library stored the treasures of the century, makes no appeal to you in that plastic period, it certainly will not when you are in the thick of your business or professional career. Learn now to love books, the poets, the essayists, the historians, the great writers of fiction. Even if you only give fifteen minutes a day to general literature, if you select your books wisely, you will at the end of the year have done an amazing amount of reading, and you will be greatly enriched intellectually thereby.

Another alluring by-path leads one to the riches of human friendship. School or college fails to yield its sweetest satisfactions to a youth who makes no friends. He needs the give and take of hearty friendship to bring out what is best in him, to rub off the corners and round out the character. Many a man in middle life will testify that the friendships formed in student days have been of incalculable value to him. Such ties are now being knitted in hundreds of institutions over the land, and a glorious thing it is to put your life up against another's life so that what is best in you will pass into him and what is best in him will pass into you. But remember that, as Emerson said, "The only way to have a friend is to be one."

And still another by-path carries the students to the secrets of his own personality. And the name of that by-path is solitude. Do not stay always with the crowd. Get away by yourself now and then. Dare to say as Whittier said:

Sit still my soul in the silent dark
Let me question thee,
Alone in thes hadows drear and stark,
With God and me.
What, my soul, was thy errand here?
Was it mirth or ease
Or heaping up gold from year to year?
Nay, none of these.

Books, friendship, solitude—these influences, joined to those which proceed from the curriculum and atmosphere of the school, will fill your student days with joy and your lives with power.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1887.

Miss Minnie Maddern appeared at the Grand Opera house last night, presenting "Caprice" to a large and fashionable audience. The engagement will close tonight with "In Spite of All."

At one time yesterday there were at the Duluth docks sixteen of the largest carriers that sail the lakes, representing a freight capacity of about 1,000,000,000 bushels of wheat and a pecuniary value of nearly $2,000,000.

Herman E. Long to Anna M. Long, half of the west half of lot 38, West Second street, First division, subject to $2,125 mortgage, $5,000.

F. W. McKinney to George T. Dugal, lot 413, block 120, Second division, $1,000.

N. Sherrick to W. P. Lardner, north fifty feet of lot 98, block 26, Third division, $2,050.

Henry F. Thompson to Frederick Erickson, lots 8 and 9, block 19, Endion division, $3,200.

J. R. Myers to Ellen Ryan, lot 11, block 70, Second division, $500.

The alleged public spirit of Duluth has failed to materialize and it must be given out to the world that Duluth cannot support a ball club. Sufficient money was not raised for next season and Duluth has forfeited her franchise in the Northwestern league.

R. W. Petre is back from California to look after his iron interests here. He says that the question of a railroad from Grand Marais to Gunflint lake, where it will probably connect with the Canadian Pacific to Port Arthur, is no longer a matter of doubt and that the money is ready to begin the construction of the road as soon as the surveys are completed.

The printers of Duluth have a boat club to which printers and bookbinders alone are eligible. The fleet is composed of the sloop Idlewild, the sloop Maid of the Mist, the double catboat Viking and several smaller boats and canoes. The officers and stockholders are: John Nelson, commodore; Charles Hopewell, vice commodore; Gus Seipel and Charles Burnett, first and second captains; John P. Barkdoll, secretary and treasurer; Robert Rutherford and William Whitney, first and second mates, and Henry Dworschak.

P. B. Weare of Chicago has been admitted as a member of the Duluth board of trade.

Mannheim & Olmstead have sold 15,000,000 feet of standing pine for Matthias Haug to George C. Swallow of Milwaukee, mostly in township 51-21, for $32,000 cash.

Fergus & King will open a carriage repository at 625 West Superior street on Nov. 10.

"A-COMIN' AN' A-GWINE"

By SAVOYARD.

(Copyright, 1907, by E. W. Newman).

When I set out writing this syndicate stuff during the Schley court-martial, some six years ago, I made this resolve, that has been adhered to—that whatever of thought there was in it should be the uninterrupted product of my own mind; that whatever sentiment it gave voice to should be the genuine forgings of my own heart. I have kept the faith I plighted with my conscience and with the public, and shall to the end.

Many was the time I deliberately, and with malice prepense, writ a paragraph that I knew would shut the stuff out of this paper, or that—this paper and that—and yet it was with grim satisfaction that I penned it, simply because "Savoyard" owns everything between the bottom of the soles of his shoes and below the top of the crown of his hat. No man ever bought a line of it, and I am only in the bounds of absolute truth when I say that I would not have to grind out writings daily for my daily bread had I been willing to be bought—and this I say, so help me God.

I am now about to write some stuff that many of my clientele will reject, and I will be the poorer thereby.

* * *

William Jennings Bryan occupies a position unique in American public life. He is the absolute master of a party that has always had more of the mind and conscience of the American people than any other party, and that never was in the minority a single day of its existence. And yet, autocrat that he is, and despotic as is his rule, this same Mr. Bryan is a general with a rope around his neck, like the military commanders of heroic and revolutionary France in her mighty and victorious struggle against the world in arms.

Mr. Bryan will be utterly undone if he shall be the nominee of his party in 1908 and defeated. He will be even more hopelessly ruined if another Democrat shall be nominated and elected. How do Mr. Bryan's friends propose to meet the thing? Why, simply and bluntly and brazenly that Mr. Bryan shall be a dominicker and not a gamecock—that he shall be the nominee if there is a chance for victory, but that he shall retire to the bomb proof if the fight is hopeless. And yet Mr. Bryan is the successor of Maj. Gen. Andy Jackson as the leader of the Democratic party!

* * *

Philip Sidney was not too precious to go to meet danger. But Mr. Bryan, like some worthless and infamous Bourbon king, is not to be allowed to head a squadron until victory shall become a chartered libertine, mute and obedient to his command. That is not the Bryan of 1896. Then he had the intrepidity of his convictions. He was of the stuff of which Montrose was made:

As Alexander I will reign—
And I will reign alone.
My soul did evermore disdain
A rival on my throne.
He either fears his fate too much
Or his desert is small;
Who dares not put it to the touch
And win or lose it all.

But here are his friends putting him under a glass case to keep the lightning of danger from harming him.

* * *

While I think Mr. Bryan a very shallow man in an intellectual way, a man incapable of logical combat, I do believe that he has to much sagacity to permit his friends to make a doll of him. But Mr. Bryan must declare himself. If he is a candidate, of course, all competition will flee from him. But he must not be dog in the manger and turn ox if he should get an abnormal appetite for hay. Some of his friends, utterly unconcerned for the infamy of the proposal, declare Mr. Bryan shall not be allowed to run if there is a chance of defeat, but that he shall run if there is a chance of victory. Nobody but a dominicker would suffer himself to be used after that fashion.

Mr. Bryan turned the Democratic party into the Populist camp. A Democrat, the leader and the head and the nominee of the Democratic party, he accepted without shame, and wore without apology, the nomination of a Pop convention that insulted him and his party by repudiating the nomination of Mr. Sewall, who was his guest, and entitled to a little bit of politeness from him and his party. Some 2,000,000 Democrats refused to vote for Mr. Bryan in 1896, because they saw no Democracy in the man. Like the late Senator Morgan of Alabama, I never was able to find a spark of Democracy in all his preachments.

* * *

We have had before us the mighty question of buttermilk and cocktail. The Methodist church has sat in council on it and determined that it is the right of a president of the United States to consume all the booze he cares to chamber, but that it is the duty of a vice president of the United States to keep the cup from his chief's lips. And thereby I shall hang a tale after this fashion, viz.:

Some half a century ago there lived in Barren county, Ky., a fine old gentleman, a Mr. Rush, a successful merchant, a prosperous farmer, a beloved preacher of the Baptist faith, and an honest man. The year 1855 was a season of fat abundance—Ceres, Pomona, and Sylvia all yielded exuberant plenty like unto Goshen. It was then that the Green River region was first invaded by the Norway rat, and farmers were in dread lest the strange new pest, after driving out the comparatively respectable blue rat, should consume their sustenance stored in barns, and they fell to work constructing new cribs in which to garner grain and strove to make them rat-proof.

Our excellent old friend Rush had builded a new granary, which the contractor assured him was rat-proof; but one morning the old gentleman went out to admire it, and found a gray squirrel established in possession, and it was manifest that if the crib was not tight enough to keep out a squirrel it could not be depended on to keep out a rat. In a great rage Parson Rush chased the squirrel out, and in pursuing it, and striking at it with his cane, he stumbled over a piece of timber, fell and skinned his shins. Preacher that he was, and sincere and pious Christian, Father Rush was yet a choleric Kentuckian, and when angered words poured volcanic from his throat, and on this occasion he exclaimed, "G——d d——n the squirrel!"

Getting on his pins and turning round he saw his eldest born, a young man of 20, a domineering fellow, the real head of the family, before whom father, mother, brothers, sisters and slaves all stood in more or less awe. In a contrite and insulting tone, Mr. Rush proposed this: "Jonathan, if you promise not to report to the brethern at Antioch, next Sabbath, that I was guilty of the sin of profanity, I'll take you down to Glasgow and buy you the finest suit of broaddoth Shuttleworth can make."

Then, turning to a younger son, a boy of 17 he roared. "Robert, if you tell on me, I'll whip you like h—l and d—n."

Roosevelt is Jonathan and Fairbanks Robert, so far as relates to cocktails and things.

* * *

That reminds me of the executive-made tariff our good and great president is preparing for us. Surely men who think as I do have no objection to any assault that may be perpetrated on a protective tariff, that is abomination of all abominations—a thing infamous because it is the child of privilege. It seems that Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Reynolds is in France fixing up some sort of agreement or other in regard to cotton stockings. He is at Limoges.

The Roman commonwealth from Lu-Lucius Dentatus to Caius Marius was the grandest of peoples, but it was no braver than the France that is embalmed in history between Du Guesclin and Dunois and Ney and Lannes.

O for a blast of that dread horn,
On Fontarabian echoes borne,
That to King Charles did come,
When Rowland brave, and Olivier,
And every paladin and peer
On Roncesvalles died!

* * *

But France is as frugal as she is valiant, and her motto is like this: "If you will not buy of me, you shall not sell to me." I think John A. Kasson a great big man. Some ten years ago he negotiated a treaty with France that would have made us an additional market for $20,000,000 cotton seed oil. It is possibly immoral that France should sell our cotton seed oil for olive oil, but France is not as strong on morals as we, and we can cringe to gain with the very best of them in the deck.

The United States senate, in order to "protect" a cotton stocking town in my friend Bill Chandler's little old state, defeated the Kasson treaty. In order that Manchester, N. H., might retain a chartered trade of $100,000, the South lost a trade of $20,000,000.

* * *

It has been some forty and odd years since I read "Georgia Scenes"—I believe it was "Georgia Scenes"—and my recollection is that Miss Temp Ann Pierce was at a dance in the piney woods. After sundry cotillions, indulged on the puncheon floor, the fair young lady was overtaken with a slight attack of lassitude, something after a couple o'clock in the morn, and leaned back rather far in a rocking chair, when her rival, Miss Beede Bullington, admonished her in words like this: "Tempy Ann, set up and tie your sock!"

* * *

Miss Tempy immediately "set up," raised her dainty skirts, displaying a glorious, a robust, and a shapely rotundity of leg that scorned the aid of garter to hold the stocking in lace, and, behold the stocking came far above the knee.

It was made in Limoges. Where is the American fit for baseball or other thing that calls for red blood who will oppose free trade with Limoges?

Let the degenerate stand forth, that all our girls may scorn him!

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A large automobile containing four passengers and the chauffeur, while going at a rapid rate along Barnum avenue in Bridgeport, Conn., Friday night, struck and instantly killed Mrs. Ann Leavy, aged 50, who was crossing the street with her husband.

Justice Riddle Friday imposed a fine of $25,000 on the Michigan Central railway for the explosion of a car of dynamite at Essex Center on Aug. 9, which resulted in the killing of two men and in serious injury to about forty others. The dynamite was shipped as powder.

All of the laborers on the river front at New Orleans, numbering about 10,000 men, walked out Friday morning for the second time in the past few weeks, again returned to work in the afternoon pending a settlement of their difficulties.

Fire Friday destroyed the Iowa Central car shops, paint shops, coaches and other cars at Marshalltown, Iowa, entailing a loss of $300,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Ten persons, nine children and a soldier were injured at Columbus, Ohio when a Mount Vernon avenue street car struck a wagon from the United States army post carrying children from school to their homes on the government reservation late Friday afternoon. One of the children, Freda Ellberg, aged 12, daughter of the post quartermaster, suffered internal injuries and may die.

Samuel F. Whitlow was held in $10,000 bail Friday for trial for the murder of Miss May Sapp, who was cut to death with a razor in her father's yard at Moran, Kan., Sept. 27, and, who, Whitlow says, committed suicide because of her infatuation for him.

The appellate division of the New York supreme court has confirmed the decision by Supreme Court Justice McCall, who had ordered certain passages stricken from the complaint of Mrs. Catelrine Clemmons Gould in the action brought against her huusband, Edward Gould, for separation.

Fire Friday night practically destroyed the Boston store, one of the biggest stores in Evansville, Ind. The loss is estimated at $300,000, with partial insurance. Fireman Henry Coffith was seriously hurt by a falling wall. The fire originated in the basement, and is supposed to have been started from the explosion of a lamp.

Stepping from her upstairs apartments in Bellevue, Pa., Friday, to investigate a noise in the rooms of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Adams below, Mrs. W. Rogers was seized by a burglar, bound to a chair, gagged and slashed with a razor, after which the robber ransacked the Adams place with $125 and other valuables.

"Arethusa," By F. Marion Crawford—"Three Weeks," By Elinor Glyn—"The Daughters of the Little Grey House," by Marion Ames Taggart—"The Suburban Whirl," by Mary Stewart Cutting.

ARETHUSA. By F. Marion Crawford. New York: The Macmillan company. $1.50.

Marion Crawford's latest novel, "Arethusa," is more in the style of his earlier stories than in that of some of his later books, in which he has turned his attention to psychological analysis. It is pure story and nothing but story, with no pretense beyond that of showing us a group of entertaining characters in the meshes of a plot that carries them without halt from incident to incident up to a dramatic climax. Constantinople in the fourteenth century is the scene, and the story plays about the efforts of a little band, half patriot and half mercenary, to expel the usurper, Andronicus, from the throne and restore his father, Johannes. The principal actor in the plot is, as it happens, one Carlo Zeno, "gentleman of Venice, ex-clerk, ex-gambler, ex-soldier of fortune, ex-lay prebendary of Patras, ex-duellist and ex-Greek general, being about 29 years of age, and having in his tough body the scars of half a dozen wounds that would have killed an ordinary man." But it also happens that the plot comes to involve Arethusa, supposedly a Greek slave, who had come into the possession of Messer Zeno, but actually, as the story shows, a person of very different standing and quality from the ordinary slave. This is only the barest outline of the story, which is as full of the color and romance of the time and place as it is of the exciting incidents prior to a real story. It gives us Crawford in his most genial vein, spinning a yarn for the pleasure of his hearers, and obviously delighted in the attention which his story commands. Indeed, the key to the character of this spirited tale is supplied in the dedication, which reads simply: "The story-teller of the bazaar dedicates this tale of Constantinople to his dear daughter, Eleanor." The book contains some very effective illustrations, by Gertrude Demaine Hammond.

THREE WEEKS. By Elinor Glyn. New York: Duffield & Co. $1.50.

This book is already among the "six best sellers" in England, where it has aroused much adverse criticism on account of its defiance of the conventions. Indeed, Mrs. Glyn has written a special preface to the American edition in which she says the book was misrepresented and misunderstood in England, and she analyses her own motives in writing it. The plot is simple and the main theme is the regenerating power and essential holiness of true love, on which there will be conflicting opinions in this country as well as in England. A young Englishman, 23 years of age, goes to Switzerland to overcome a fancy for his cousin, as his parents disapprove. It is May, and there are few tourists; but the boy sees a lady in whom he is immediately interested. She is perhaps 35, a queen, traveling incognito, very beautiful, distinguished, passionate. Paul falls deeply in love with her, which is not surprising. But she falls in love with him, which is surprising, until one reads Mrs. Glyn's explanation. She says that the lady perceived his soul sleeping and desired to awaken it. But this is less clear in the story itself. Paul is a good-looking, stolid, stupid English boy, and from his conversation as recorded in the story, his soul was very sound asleep indeed. However, they spent three weeks of deepest joy and passion in the Swiss mountains. The lady was unfortunately married to a brutal, vicious husband, who kept his throne because of the goodness and power of his wife. But in the youth and love of Paul the lady received inspiration and great happiness, and gave him in return spiritual uplift and eyes to see the fine in everything. Suddenly the end comes to this love dream. The lady leaves and Paul is almost wild with grief and anxiety. But finally he returns to England, and hears nothing more of the lady until news comes of the birth of their son. In joyful anticipation Paul prepares to see his lady again. But suddenly her husband kills her, and is himself slain by a faithful servant. Paul staggers under this blow, and only after years of despondency and apathy, does he realize that death can not sever their spirits; that the child, who is now the baby king, is only the outward sign of their love and that the soul of the lady is with him and will never cease to be a constant and living inspiration.

THE DAUGHTERS OF THE LITTLE GREY HOUSE. By Marion Ames Taggart. New York: The McClure Company. $1.50.

It would be a splendid thing if the young girls of the land could be provided with more such whole-souled and wholesome literature as this story affords. It takes up the history of a family treated in a former story for girls, "The Little Grey House," beginning when the daughters of the house are standing "with reluctant feet, where the brook and river meet," and carries them through their girl romances to a nice, pleasant story about nice, pleasant people with sane, sensible ideas and motives that are refreshing. It is the sort of a novel that the girls ought to be reading instead of the latest "best seller" with its doubtful influences. That does not mean that girls will not like it, because they will; they can't help it.

THE SUBURBAN WHIRL. By Mary Stewart Cutting. New York: The McClure Company. $1.25.

The reason we all enjoy Mary Stewart Cutting's stories is because she writes about us. That is, she writes about things that we all know about and understand—plain, wholesome, everyday matters that are commonplace enough when they happen in our own lives, but that make excellent stories when this writer takes them up. The present volume contains more of the "Married Life" stories, with their tender sentiments and sound common sense, to which is added a touch of reality that bring them home to everybody, implanting their morals—they usually have morals, not too obvious but still there—deeply. The principal story in the book gives the volume its name. It relates the experiences of a suburban couple that seek to keep up with the social whirl of the suburb regardless of expense, until they are caught by a realization of where they are tending just in time to avoid trouble.

They are good, readable, interesting, wholesome stories.

THEORIES OF STYLE; with especial reference to prose composition. By Lane Cooper, Ph.D. New York: The Macmillan company. $1.50.

This appears to be an admirable work for students and teachers of prose composition. Its main idea is to present a series of models to illustrate the teaching and study of composition, but in doing so it takes the unusual and logical method of adapting its prose selections from essays on style by Plato, Aristotle, Buffon, Voltaire, Gothe, Thoreau, Spencer, Stevenson, Pater and other masters of literary style. In short, the editor not only furnishes useful prose models, valuable to the student, but in them are given the ideas of great authorities, who exemplify in their own literary style, no less than through their reasoning, the lessons that students require and that teachers should seek to give them. As a supplement to work in any good English text book, it is an ingenious and well-conceived idea, admirably carried out. As the editor says in his preface: "In addition to its use in the classroom, the scheme may likewise serve as a work of outside reference, since, although it makes no pretense to inclusiveness, it aims to bring together a considerable number of historic utterances on style, not all of which are very accessible elsewhere." This is putting it modestly. The value of some of the extracts as models naturally depends somewhat upon the style of their translator, who in this case is Dr. Cooper himself. He brings to this work a ready sympathy and a lucid style, that adds another virtue to the excellences of this book.

THE POWERS AND MAXINE. By C. N. and A. M. Williamson. New York: The Empire Book Company. 65 cents.

Those who seek only amusement and diversion from their novels can always rely upon getting their money's worth when they pick up a story by the Williamsons. Usually the story involves an automobile; in this case it does not; but always the thread of the tale is hung with exciting incident, and this story is no exception. Maxine, the heroine, is a brilliant and beautiful young actress who thrills Paris with her art while at the same time she is a secret service agent for the British government. A situation like that involves mystery and aventure and excitement in plenty, and this story furnishes it. The heroine is bewitchingly charming and unusual, and in her career love and daring and international politics produce a fascinating play of emotions and events.

TOILERS AND IDLERS. By John R. McMahon. New York: The Wilshire Book Company. $1.25.

This is a social study novel, very ingeniously contrived and carried out in an earnest and fairly satisfactory manner. The hero is a young and blase owner of inherited riches. He becomes bored with life, and following a freak of inclination, goes into an iron foundry as a laborer, finding out later that it is his own property. He toils nine hours a day, gets muscle-sore and weary, but sleeps soundly, finds his muscles growing firmer, his eye clearer, his ideas broadening, his health growing more vigorous; and better still, he finds a new interest in life by becoming interested in his fellows. He sees the disadvantages and burdens under which the laboring classes suffer. He hears what his fellow-employes think of him as an employer. Naturally he becomes imbued with a desire to make things better, and thereby hangs a very human and very interesting and very helpful tale. It is a serious, carefully-wrought work that will appeal to the mass as well as to the cultured few, for there are elemental qualities and a tone of sincerity that should seize the heart.

Literary Gossip.

"Comrade John," the new novel by Samuel Merwin and H. K. Webster, is the first book they have published since the appearance of "Calumet K" some years ago. As in their earlier books, it is impossible in "Comrade John" to find the line that separates the individual work of each author. Many guesses were made as to just what part each of them had in the writing of "Calumet K," but the secret was well kept and it does not seem likely that it will be discovered from a reading of their new book.

* * *

It is of interest to know that Hamlin Garland, whose novels of rural Western characters have involved such starkly realistic description of rough living—with the exception, perhaps, of "Money Magic," just issued by Harpers in book form, which treats of the half-conventional city life in the Far West—is opposed by every instinct to even the milder of the questionable habits among men. He does not use tobacco in any form, abstains from alcoholic beverages, and, according to the word of his associates, has an utter abhorrence of profanity.

* * *

Hilton-Simpson's "Algiers and Beyond," issued in America by the Appletons, follows hard upon an international incident that has largely stimulated world-interest in the motley collection of fanatics and marauders once known as the Barbary states. The author gives interesting descriptions of the little known Algerian hinterland, talks of the sport that he enjoyed, the scenery, facts that came under his observation, and the habits and customs of the people with whom he came in contact. The book should prove attractive to reader and traveler alike.

* * *

"Walled In," a new novel by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, will appeal to those who like their stories with a little bit of tragic accident, a good deal of quiet heroism, and a happy issue out of all complication. The story, when the Harpers first published it as a serial, impressed a great may readers with its pure, tender sentiment, and the absorbing features of its plot. A young college professor is the victim of an automobile accident, and is forced to spend several months within the space of four walls. His pretty wife, an egotist, incapable of devotion, resorts to outside diversions, with the inevitable result—the man's love is destroyed by her selfishness, and room made in his heart for a better woman. In spite of disaster, the end is the best for all three. Mrs. Phelps, in this book, has made the point, recently neglected among novelists, that a man who is married and loves another woman may love her worthily—and that he may still be faithful to his wife.

It will be good news to many of Marion Crawford's admirers that he has returned to America for the inspiration for his next story. "The Little City of Hope," which is to be published next month, is an American tale with its scene laid in Connecticut, and all the characters are said to be American.

Pliny Berthier Seymour, author of "Woodhull," one of the leading works of fiction published this fall by the C. M. Clark Publishing company, Boston, comes of an old Quaker family in New York state, his father and grandfather, and generations back of them, having been of that religion. His father, contrary to the usually accepted idea of Quakers, was a soldier, and fought through the Civil war. Mr. Seymour has a delightful country home in the Adirondack mountains, in the best deer hunting section of that region. Recently a fine buck, weighing 200 pounds, with magnificent eight-pronged antlers, was shot on Mount Seymour, the site of his home, by the author of "Woodhull."

"A Book of Nursery Songs and Rhymes" has been collected and edited by the Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould and was brought out by A. C. McClurg & Co. on Oct. 5. The editor's great age and extended literary knowledge have enabled him to rescue many jingles which were lapsing into oblivion, and more particularly to set down a number of interesting song games, many of them very old. Nothing more complete or more authentic has ever been done in this direction, and no gift could be more welcome for young children and their parents.

George E. Woodberry, whose new book, "The Appreciation of Literature," has just been published with The Baker & Taylor company's imprint, issued his first book twenty-four years ago. A graduate of Harvard, he was professor of English at the University of Wisconsin, but later he become professor of comparative literature at Columbia university. Mr. Woodberry is the author of eleven works and editor of the complete works of Shelley and Edgar Allan Poe (with Edward C. Stedman). Professor Woodberry is now living in Beverly, Mass., engaged in editorial and literary work.

Swami Abhedananda, of the Vedanta Publication society, has just returned from England, where he has been establishing a branch of the society in London. He reports that his mission was entirely successful.

A review of "A Man of Sark," John Oxenham's latest novel, suggests that a far better title would have been the Memoirs of Philip Carre. The publishers report that they have had orders for the book under the title of The Man-Shark and The Man of Snark. Evidently not many people are aware that Sark or Sercq is the smallest of the Channel Isles "and the home of a brave and romantic people."

Among the Magazines.

The semi-centennial number of the Atlantic Monthly is to be published on Nov. 1. The Atlantic has had, all told, seven editors-in-chief. James Russell Lowell brought out the first number in November, 1857. Mr. Fields assumed 'the seat of the scorner" for the ten years beginning 1861. "The preliminary bows and courtesies," as a journal of the day planned it, were now over, and the venture was an established institution. On Mr. Field's retirement in '71, William Dean Howells, who had been his assistant since 1866, succeeded him. Mr. Aldrich, who died last spring, followed in '81 for another ten years' reign in the Atlantic office. On his leaving in 1890, the magazine passed into the hands of Horace E. Scudder, who conducted it until 1897, being followed for a period of two years by Walter H. Page. In 1899, Bliss Perry, the present editor, took charge of the famous periodical. Among the contributors to the first number fifty years ago were Emerson, Lowell, Whittier, Holmes and Longfellow.

The October Arena is a brilliant number. Some of the papers will doubtless occasion much comment, as, for example, the bold and unsparing story of Simon Guggenheim's political career, given by Ellis Meredith in a paper on "The Senatorial Election in Colorado." Two other political papers are worthy of special notice. One is entitled "Will Public Ownership Increase or Diminish Political Corruption?" and is prepared by Clarence A. Royce. The other, "The City the Storm-Center in the Battle for Good Government," is from the pen of the editor of "The Arena." These two papers make valuable contributions to the rapidly increasing literature dealing with municipal ownership of public utilities. Prof. Frank Parsons, Ph.D., discusses "The National Civic Federation and Its New Municipal Ownership Report" in an authoritative manner. Prof. Parsons having been one of the leading workers connected with the public ownership investigation, is well fitted to write on this phase of the federation's work.

Critics say the Lyceumite and Talent is the finest class magazine published in America. The October number teems with interesting features, especially to the platform speaker, his manager, the lecture course committees, as well as to the general public. An interesting and timely article on the late John Brewer De Motte, one of the most prominent lecturers of his decade, vice president of De Pauw university, will be read with deep interest. Edmund Vance Cook contributes a very readable article on Edward Ammerst Ott, the new president of the International Lyceum association, which he calls "An Appreciation." It gives you a picture of the man as he really is. Articles of especial interest to members of I. L. A. may be found in the papers on "Publicity in the Lyceum," by Sylvester A. Long and Louis J. Alber, the annual address of President Bingham, and an article describing the doings of the Joliet convention held in September.

Immigrants have been pouring into the United States this year at a greater rate than ever, taxing the ability of the most strenuous officials appointed to care for them at the chief ports of landing. The current issue of Leslie's Weekly contains a double page of the latest and most striking photographs taken of scenes at Ellis Island, New York harbor, attending the arrival of thousands of aliens daily at that most important immigration station in the world. An article by Harriet Quimby describes the excellent methods employed at the island in effecting the admission and watching over the interests of the multitudes from beyond the sea.

A diversified and timely list of contents is presented in the October 26 issue of Harper's Weekly. Capt. A. T. Mahan's remarkably interesting reminiscences of his early days of service in the navy are continued in an article, written in this author's familiarly charming vein, describing the minor trials of blockade duty in the first years of the Civil war. There are two pieces of fiction of an unusual nature—the first, one of the humorous stories of army life by Capt. M. B. Stewart, United States army, which have attracted so much attention; the other, a delightfully fantastic satire on certain popular stories of the "mystery" type, written by William Inglis. It is called "The Erasure of Jean," and is furnished with admirable illustrasions by Strothmann. Some engrossing recollections of Lincoln, hitherto unrelated, are contributed by Commissioner Draper of the New York state board of education.

BACK GIVES OUT

Plenty of Duluth Readers Have This Experience.

You tax the kidneys—overwork them—
They can't keep up the continual strain.
The back gives out—it aches and pains;
Urinary troubles set it.
Don't wait longer—take Doan's Kidney Pills.

Duluth people tell you how they act.

Ernest Grotke of 926 Fourth avenue east, Duluth, Minn., mason, says: "I speak from experience when I say Doan's Kidney Pills are a reliable and valuable remedy. I first heard of their merits from a friend who had received gratifying results in his own case, and I was then suffering from severe dull pains in the small of my back and loins and had become so bad that I was almost compelled to give up work. I procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. Although other remedies had failed to help me I soon noticed the benefit and kept on using Doan's Kidney Pills until the pain and other symptoms gradually but surely disappeared until I was entirely free from the trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Brooklyn Eagle: The Methodist ministers in Illinois have now decided not to marry divorced persons and to join the movement for uniform divorce laws. The area in which divorced persons have to content themselves with a justice of the peace when they remarry is increasing.

Leslie's Weekly: Formerly well known in the West as a prizefighter, Kid Wedge now writes "Rev." before his name, and has been appointed pastor of a Presbyterian church at Barnston, Neb. In a published letter Mr. Wedge speaks a good word for prizefighters, intimating that they are not the "human brutes" that most ministers and reformers are in the habit of representing them to be.

Springfield Republican: The cash basis of the Protestant Episcopal church is highly impressive. Just for a "thank offering," in recognition of the planting of the Anglican church in the American colonies, $1,000,000 was subscribed within a short time at the general convention in Richmond the other day, and no one at the moment professed to know for what purpose the money would be used. The psychology of the performance was simply ecstacy over an event that took place two or three centuries ago, but there was a shrewd directing mind among the bishops that took care to have the ecstacy manifest itself in dollars and cents.

Baltimore American: The conviction in New Jersey of a couple of faith curists, who allowed their young child to die without medical attendance, is exceptionally interesting, as the feeling is strong on both sides. They pleaded that they have an undoubted right to their own belief in prayer. But, on the other hand, the fact that the belief has sacrificed a life, and the life of a human being unable to speak or decide for himself, puts a different complexion on the matter. How far parents and others have a right to take risks for children and wards, as well as for themselves, is a matter for the law protecting life to determine. The results in such cases seem to take them out of the sphere of individual rights to peculiar beliefs.

ON THE IRON RANGES

WELL-TO-DO, BUT LEAVES NO HEIRS

Sam Connors, Aged Colored Man, Found Dead in Bed.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sam Connors, an aged colored man who has been employed for several years as fireman by the Virginia Light & Water company, was found dead in his house, where he lived alone, Thursday morning.

Although he worked all day Wednesday, he had been suffering from rheumatism of late, and the disease finally caused heart failure. His age was not definitely known, but it is supposed that he was between 70 and 75 years old. He had acquired considerable property. He was early left an orphan, and was adopted by a family now residing at Austin, Minn. He was a member of a Masonic lodge in St. Paul, and it is claimed that he has a sister living in this state.

The remains will probably be buried here.

Connors was well known to nearly all the residents of Virginia, and was highly regarded by his acquaintances. He was a faithful worker, and labored hard all day Wednesday. A few days ago he asked for a vacation that he might go to Duluth to make his will. The request was granted. He owned three lots in the Southside addition, where he lived, a farm in Wisconsin, some mining stock and other securities. Unless a relative can be found his property will probably revert to the state.

"DETECTIVES" ARRESTED.

Sleuths Hired by Two Harbors Mayor, in More Trouble.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The aftermath of the recent raid on the poker games here promises amusement for some time to come, and to be of as much interest as the original affair.

The mayor or the local Law and Order league secured evidence through two Minneapolis detectives whose names are T. P. Brandt and L. Koani, who were appointed by the mayor as special deputies. Their bill for the week presented to the city was $52 or forty-two days time at $3 per day each. This the city council refused to pay on the ground that the men were employed in violation of the city charter, in that they were not citizens of the city, that they had not taken the oath of office and that the authority of the mayor extended only to the employment of such deputies for one week without permission of the council.

The mayor then asked for a contingent fund of $300 for securing evidence against gambling and other violations of the law and requested the council to go on record as to such.

The latest development was last evening when the two detectives named were arrested as they were about to take the train for Duluth on the charge of impersonating an officer and for carrying concealed weapons. Sheriff Nelson and deputy taking the men into custody.

LEAVES HIS FAMILY.

Herman Myers Alleged to Have Departed From Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Herman Myers, a bartender, is alleged to have deserted his wife and three babies, and left for parts unknown last week. It is claimed that for some time past Myers has neglected to provide for his family, spending his earnings in saloons and other places that brought no comforts to the home. The wife, afflicted with disease, was, by kindness and generosity of friends, sent to a hospital, where she will be given medical treatment. The little children were taken in charge by the Duluth Humane society and will be cared for until the misused mother recovers.

VETERAN CAMP COOK

Stricken With Paralysis and Brought Here for Treatment.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Uncle" George Corcoran, as he was known, a veteran camp cook of Northern Minnesota, was stricken with paralysis Wednesday morning, and yesterday noon was taken to St. Mary's hospital, Duluth for treatment. The affliction settled in Mr. Corcoran's left side, and it is thought that the stroke is not a severe one. He was cooking at the Hannon hotel, in this city, when stricken. "Uncle" George is known by nearly every person from Biwabik to Cass Lake.

ORE RECEIPTS HEAVY.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ore receipts continue strong from 1,600 to 1,800 carloads being received every twenty-four hours. The receipts for the month will run considerably over the million mark. The season's shipments are still about 100,000 tons under last year's record for the same period. The strike being the cause of the difference.

Thomas Sullivan has purchased lot 11, block 36 on Sixth avenue and has moved his residence thereon and is making repairs.

MUSICAL VESPERS.

Elaborate Program to be Rendered in Virginia Sunday Evening.

HAD TOUGH TIME.

Launch Party on Lake Near Bovey Long Time Returning.

Bovey, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—A launch party, consisting of Dr. May, his brother, E. G. Ingalls and Misses Jones, Boer and McDonald, that went out on the lake night before last for an evening ride, expecting to be back by 10 o'clock, did not return until 3 a. m. the next day, and their long absence created considerable worry. Rescue parties started out, and when they reached the lake shore, the launch was just coming in sight. It appears that a storm came up and delayed the return of the launch party, and they were buffeted about by the waves, all being thoroughly chilled by their unpleasant experience.

IGNORED WHISTLE.

Tim Sullivan Walking on Track is Run Down and Killed.

Biwabik, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Timothy Sullivan, aged about 40, a bachelor, who formerly was pumpman at the Elba mine, but of late has been doing very little, a sort of a character on the range, was run down by a Missabe locomotive Friday and instantly killed. Sullivan was walking on the track, near the Gilbert mine, and paid no attention to frequent blasts on the locomotive whistle, which Engineer Cratter sounded as soon as he saw the man's danger. The engineer reversed his engine, but it was too late. The train crew ran to Sullivan's side, but he was dead. Coroner Seeley, after looking into the case, decided it was clearly an accidental death, and dispensed with an inquest. Sullivan was known among his friends by the nickname of "Tim, the Bear." Little is known respecting his family connections.

WEEK IN TOWER.

Happenings of Past Few Days in Vermilion Range Town.

Tower, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. William Doyle and children left Monday for Portland, Or., where they will visit relatives until they are joined by Mr. Doyle, who will retain his position with the Tower Lumber company until the mill closes.

The local lodge, Modern Maccabees, gave a dancing party Thursday evening at the opera house. A large crowd attended and a good time is reported by all. Besides a social success, it also proved a financial success, as a neat sum was realized for the lodge treasury.

A roller rink is the latest attraction here, one having been opened in the City opera house. It has proved very popular during the week, but a number of complaints are being made by the dancers for the skating is ruining the floor, which is the only one in the city where dancers can enjoy themselves. Steps will undoubtedly be taken to prevent its being used as a rink.

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church met Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. Turner at the parsonage and spent the afternoon in sewing. Preparations are being made for the annual bazaar to be held next month.

Ed Peltier has returned from Duluth and again resumed his duties at the Tower Lumber company's mill. Mr. Peltier went to Duluth to work in a West end mill, but found things unsatisfactory so returned here to work until this mill closes.

O. Halden, county auditor, and J. P. Johnson, clerk of court, passed through the city Thursday on their return to Duluth after a few days' hunting trip in the north country.

F. A. Wildes, Jr., state inspector of mines, was here Thursday on his way to section 36-63-15, where the state owns lands on which a Ball drill is working.

Rev. James F. Buh of Ely, and Rev. Schulwen of Biwabik, accompanied Bishop McGolrick of Duluth when he came here Tuesday to confirm a class of between sixty and seventy children of St. Martin's Catholic church. The ceremonies were very impressive and were largely attended, the church being packed to its utmost capacity.

Mrs. Charles Heise and children left Friday for Chicago, where they will join Mr. Heise. Most of their household goods here have been disposed of. A farewell party was tendered Mrs. Heise yesterday at the home of Mrs. Jasper Williams at Lakeside. About thirty ladies were present, and Mrs. Heise was the receipient of a beautiful piece of silver, presented by the ladies.

Fred Helm, yardmaster at Tower Junction has been joined here by his wife, who came up from Two Harbors Saturday. The couple are housekeeping in the Gruben house on North Second street. Merritt Helen spent part of the week here with his parents before leaving for Minneapolis, where he is to attend school.

Mesdames William Wiseman and D. Graham returned Thursday after a two months' visit at their old home in Canada. William Wiseman went to Duluth Wednesday to meet them, and accompanied them home.

STOPPED BY WATER.

Sinking in White Iron Lake Property Has Been Temporarily Suspended.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the White Iron Lake property sinking has ceased in the shaft. The pumps were not able to handle the water, and Capt. Franklin is in St. Paul purchasing new machinery that will keep the shaft dry, and enable the company to sink at a much more rapid rate. Considerable interest is manifested here in the exploratory work done on this property, and the development work has shown up some promising strata at that place.

DROPS TO DEATH.

Finnish Miner Knocked From Ladder Falling Fifty Feet.

Bovey, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—While descending the ladder in shaft No. 9 of the Canistee mine, here, early yesterday, Jacob Hyoonon, a Finnish miner, was hit by a piece of falling timber as he was within fifty feet of the bottom, and hurled to the bottom of the shaft, receiving fatal injuries. He was taken to the Coleraine hospital, where he died in about two hours. He was married, and it is understood his family is in Finland.

BUSY WITH SEWERS.

Ely Council Has Difficult Problem on Its Hands.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council is very busy at present over the improvement of the sewer in the westaern part of the city. It seems that the improvement could not be made as at first contemplated. The city engineer advises putting in a separate conduit for the sewage, and large enough to carry the sewage for all time. The council is making an effort to secure right-of-way from property owners to carry out the engineer's ideas.

RANGE CHAMPIONSHIP.

It Will be Fought for Between Virginia and Grand Rapids.

Virginia, Minn. Oct., 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Grand Rapids and Virginia high school football teams will meet on the local gridiron next Friday afternon, Nov. 1, and contest for the championship of the range. The Grand Rapids team won the championsip last year, easily defeating Virginia, but the boosters for the Roosevelt highs look for a different result this year.

TWO WITHDRAW.

M. T. Savage and Joseph Cassady Out of Virginia Aldermanic Race.

Virginia, Minn. Oct., 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Owing to pressure brought to bear upon them by their employers, both M. T. Savage and Joseph Cassady, independent candidates for aldermen in the First and Third wards, respectively, have withdrawn from the race. No new nomination will be made in the Third ward, but John L. Owens, present alderman, has been induced to run on the independent ticket in the First ward. A petition has been circulatel in his behalf and his name will appear on the ballot in place of that of Mr. Savage. There are already two independent candidates in the Third ward, and the voters who do not care to vote for the Republican candidate can make their choice between James Polglase and James Sullivan.

CARLSON IN RACE.

Said to Have Been Urged to Run by Certain Interests.

Eveleth, Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the entrance of Frank Carlson in the race for alderman-at-large, a new feature of the local campaign is shown. Mr. Carlson had intended to be a candidate from his own ward, but a clique, said to be seeking control of the council, persuaded him to make the change, presumably to damage the chances of A. N. Peterson, who is opposed to the clique.

Those who induced Mr. Carlson to make the change were after a Mr. Peterson before they succeeded in inducing Frank Carlson to make the run. Mr. Peterson refused to injure A. N. Peterlooked for a man who was popular with the Scandinavians. The remaining candidates realize that the addition of Carlson to the list endanges the chances of each man in a place like Eveleth, where so few votes are cast, comparatively.

HALL DEDICATION.

Eveleth, Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The elaborate plans of the Monitor society for the dedication of their hall culminated in a grand parade at 2:30 p. m., and in the evening a banquet at which Lieutenant Governor Eberhart has been invited to make the didicatory address. Other speechess will be made by S. M. Anderson, who will talk on the order's history; P. E. Dowling, A. W. Peterson, of the order's grand lodge, and Rev. M. Martinson. Music will be furnished by Duluth Svea and Duluth Glee clubs, and solo by Edward Strand. A banquet will be served after the banquet in the Monitor hal.

THE HOBART'S BIG PUMP.

Eveleth, Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. C. H. Mathews of the Hobart mine has been in town on business. Mr. Mathews is in charge of the installation of a pump at the Hobart that will have a capacity of 3,500 gallons per minute. The superintendent reports that he is not having any trouble with the labor problem, and is, therefore, looking forward for a prosperous season.

SHEA ACQUIRES LAND.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. H. Shea has been given possession by the government of the land in dispute at Ely Lake with R. L. Rabb. The case was opened in the Duluth land office February, 1906. The prior decision of the Duluth land office was evenly divided between Shea, supported by William Culkin, and Rabb, whose position was enforced by Smith. The case was taken to Washington. The decision of the general office was in favor of Shea. The ground in dispute is supposed to be very valuable because of the ore that underlies it.

TAKE THEM OUT

Or Feed Them Food They Can Study On.

When a student begins to break down from lack of the right kind of food, there are only two things to do; either take him out of school or feed him properly on food that will rebuild the brain and nerve cells. That food is Grape-Nuts.

A boy writes from Jamestown, N. Y., saying: "A short time ago I got into a bad condition from overstudy, but mother having heard about Grape-Nuts food began to feed me on it. It satisfied my hunger better than any other food, and the results were marvelous. I got fleshy like a good fellow. My usual morning headaches disappeared, and I found I could study for a long period without feeling the effects of it.

"My face was pale and thin, but is now round and has considerable color. After I had been using Grape-Nuts for about two months I felt like a new boy altogether. I have gained greatly in strength as well as flesh, and it is a pleasure to study now that I am not bothered with my head. I passed all of my examinations with a reasonably good percentage, extra good in some of them, and it is Grape-Nuts that has saved me from a year's delay in entering college.

"Father and mother have both been improved by the use of Grape-Nuts. Mother was troubled with sleepless nights, and got very thin, and looked care worn. She has gained her normal strength and looks, and sleeps well nights." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs.

"BAR FLIES."

Police Claim Woodsman Was Victim of One of Them.

"Bar Flies" hang about the saloon at 516 West Superior street, according to the statement made by Lieut. Fiskett of the police department, in the municipal court this morning, when Fred Martinson was arraigned on the charge of assaulting Hjalmer Swenson.

The police lieutenant claimed that there is a gang of loafers in the saloon, who wait for somebody to buy a drink, and then try to work him for "drinks for the house."

Swenson went into the saloon yesterday, and after buying a drink, claimed that he had lost his watch, and accused Martinson's companion of taking it. Martinson, it is claimed, then assaulted Swenson. He was found guilty this morning and fined $40 and costs by the court.

GETS STIFF FINE.

Charged with assaulting his brother's wife, and scratching and bruising her face, John Harrison, a marine engineer, was arraigned in the municipal court this morning.

The woman appeared and showed a countenance that bore out the testimony of herself and her husband. Harrison boards with his brother, and the dispute is said to have arisen over a board bill.

He was given $75 and costs or sixty days.

Mothers, Don't Let Your Boys Catch Cold—

If your boy is subject to "colds" caused by exposure to sudden weather changes, rain storms, snows, etc., he should by all means wear

THE "BEST-EVER" SUIT
SPITZ-SCHOENBERG

The "BEST-EVER" Suit will keep him warm and dry in all sorts of wind and weather, for it is RAIN-PROOF, and is made to fit snugly, always insuring warmth and comfort.

But health properties aren't the only good things about the "BEST-EVER" Suit. It's a labor saver too. You will have less mending to do if your boy is fortified against the wear and tear of trees, fences and barn roofs by means of the double seat and knees, the taped seams (double stitched) and the patent elastic waistband of the "BEST-EVER" Trousers.

And the "BEST-EVER" Coat is just as strongly made, with an "indestructible" lining and padded shoulders which hold their shape, and silk-tacked pockets that are ready for all the rocks and nails your boy can stuff into them.

Come and see the "BEST-EVER" Suit. You are sure to like it. So will that boy!

Suits the Kidneys

Simple Home Recipe for Kidney, Bladder and Rheumatic Troubles That Beats All the Patent Medicines.

Go to your druggist and ask for:
Concentrated Barkola Compound..1 ounce
Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic..½ ounce
Aromatic Elixir .....4 ounces

Mix them up and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. As soon as the backache, bowel pain, headache and tired feeling have left you, do not throw away any of the remedy that may be left in the bottle, but reduce the dose to two teaspoonfuls daily and continue until it is all gone. By following this suggestion you will help to strengthen your Kidneys and Bladder, a wise thing to do, for these organs are so delicate that they really should be given a few days invigorating treatment even after every symptom of special disease has disappeared.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Brooklyn Eagle: The Methodist ministers in Illinois have now decided not to marry divorced persons and to join the movement for uniform divorce laws. The area in which divorced persons have to content themselves with a justice of the peace when they remarry is increasing.

Leslie's Weekly: Formerly well known in the West as a prizefighter, Kid Wedge now writes "Rev." before his name, and has been appointed pastor of a Presbyterian church at Barnston, Neb. In a published letter Mr. Wedge speaks a good word for prizefighters, intimating that they are not the "human brutes" that most ministers and reformers are in the habit of representing them to be.

Springfield Republican: The cash basis of the Protestant Episcopal church is highly impressive. Just for a "thank offering," in recognition of the planting of the Anglican church in the American colonies, $1,000,000 was subscribed within a short time at the general convention in Richmond the other day, and no one at the moment professed to know for what purpose the money would be used. The psychology of the performance was simply estacy over an event that took place two or three centuries ago, but there was a shrewd directing mind among the bishops that took care to have the estacy manifest itself in dollars and cents.

Baltimore American: The conviction in New Jersey of a couple of faith curists, who allowed their young child to die without medical attendance, is exceptionally interesting, as the feeling is strong on both sides. They pleaded that they have an undoubted right to their own belief in prayer. But, on the other hand, the fact that the belief has sacrificed a life, and the life of a human being unable to speak or decide for himself, puts a different complexion on the matter. How far parents and others have a right to take risks for children and wards, as well as for themselves, is a matter for the law protecting life to determine. The results in such cases seem to take them out of the sphere of individual rights to peculiar beliefs.

ON THE IRON RANGES

Sam Connors, Aged Colored Man, Found Dead in Bed.

Virginia, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sam Connors, an aged colored man who has been employed for several years as fireman by the Virginia Light & Water company, was found dead in his house, where he lived alone, Thursday morning.

Although he worked all day Wednesday, he had been suffering from rheumatism of late, and the disease finally caused heart failure. His age was not definitely known, but it is supposed that he was between 70 and 75 years old. He had acquired considerable property. He was early left an orphan, and was adopted by a family now residing at Austin, Minn. He was a member of a Masonic lodge in St. Paul, and it is claimed that he has a sister living in this state.

The remains will probably be buried here.

Connors was well known to nearly all the residents of Virginia, and was highly regarded by his acquaintances. He was a faithful worker, and labored hard all day Wednesday. A few days ago he asked for a vacation that he might go to Duluth to make his will. The request was granted. He owned three lots in the Southside addition, where he lived, a farm in Wisconsin, some mining stock and other securities. Unless a relative can be found his property will probably revert to the state.

"DETECTIVES" ARRESTED.

Sleuths Hired by Two Harbors Mayor, in More Trouble.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The aftermath of the recent raid on the poker games here promises amusement for some time to come, and to be of as much interest as the original affair.

The mayor or the local Law and Order league secured evidence through two Minneapolis detectives whose names are T. P. Brandt and L. Koam, who were appointed by the mayor as special deputies. Their bill for the week presented to the city was 252 or forty-two days time at $3 per day each. This the city council refused to pay on the grounds that the men were employed in violation of the city charter, in that they were not citizens of the city, that they had not taken the oath of office and that the authority of the mayor extended only to the employment of such deputies for one week without permission of the council.

The mayor then asked for a contingent fund of $300 for securing evidence against gambling and other violations of the law and requested the council to go on record as to such.

The latest development was last evening when the two detectives named were arrested as they were about to take the train for Duluth on the charge of impersonating an officer and for carrying concealed weapons. Sheriff Nelson and deputy taking the men into custody.

LEAVES HIS FAMILY.

Herman Myers Alleged to Have Departed From Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Herman Myers, a bartender, is alleged to have deserted his wife and three babies, and left for parts unknown last week. It is claimed that for some time past Myers has neglected to provide for his family, spending his earnings in saloons and other places that brought no comforts to the home. The wife, afflicted with disease, was, by kindness and generosity of friends, sent to a hospital, where she will be given medical treatment. The little children were taken in charge by the Duluth Humane society and will be cared for until the misused mother recovers.

VETERAN CAMP COOK

Stricken With Paralysis and Brought Here for Treatment.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Uncle" George Corcoran, as he was known, a veteran camp cook of Northern Minnesota, was stricken with paralysis Wednesday morning, and yesterday noon was taken to St. Mary's hospital, Duluth for treatment. The affliction settled in Mr. Corcoran's left side, and it is thought that the stroke is not a severe one. He was cooking at the Hannon hotel, in this city, when stricken. "Uncle" George is known by nearly every person from Biwabik to Cass Lake.

ORE RECEIPTS HEAVY.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ore receipts continue strong from 1,000 to 1,800 carloads being received every twenty-four hours. The receipts for the month will run considerably over the million mark. The season's shipments are still about 100,000 tons under last year's record for the same period. The strike being the cause of the difference.

Thomas Sullivan has purchased lot 11, block 36 on Sixth avenue and has moved his residence thereon and is making repairs.

HAD TOUGH TIME.

Launch Party on Lake Near Bovey Long Time Returning.

Bovey, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—A launch party, consisting of Dr. May, his brother, E. G. Ingalls and Misses Jones, Boer and McDonald, that went out on the lake night before last for an evening ride, expecting to be back by 10 o'clock, did not return until 3 a. m. the next day, and their long absence created considerable worry. Rescue parties started out, and when they reached the lake shore, the launch was just coming in sight. It appears that a storm came up and delayed the return of the launch party, and they were buffeted about by the waves, all being thoroughly chilled by their unpleasant experience.

IGNORED WHISTLE.

Tim Sullivan Walking on Track Is Run Down and Killed.

Biwabik, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Timothy Sullivan, aged about 40, a bachelor, who formerly was pumpman at the Elba mine, but of late has been doing very little, a sort of a character on the range, was run down by a Missabe locomotive Friday and instantly killed. Sullivan was walking on the track, near the Gilbert mine, and paid no attention to frequent blasts on the locomotive whistle, which Engineer Cratter sounded as soon as he saw the man's danger. The engineer reversed his engine, but it was too late. The train crew ran to Sullivan's side, but he was dead. Coroner Seeley, after looking into the case, decided it was clearly an accidental death, and dispensed with an inquest. Sullivan was known among his friends by the nickname of "Tim, the Bear." Little is known respecting his family connections.

WEEK IN TOWER.

Happenings of Past Few Days in Vermilion Range Town.

Tower, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. William Doyle and children left Monday for Portland, Or., where they will visit relatives until they are joined by Mr. Doyle, who will retain his position with the Tower Lumber company until the mill closes.

The local lodge, Modern Maccabees, gave a dancing party Thursday evening at the opera house. A large crowd attended and a good time is reported by all. Besides a social success, it also proved a financial success, as a neat sum was realized for the lodge treasury.

A roller rink is the latest attraction here, one having been opened in the City opera house. It has proved very popular during the week, but a number of complaints are being made by the dancers for the skating is ruining the floor, which is the only one in the city where dancers can enjoy themselves. Steps will undoubtedly be taken to prevent its being used as a rink.

The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church met Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. Turner at the parsonage and spent the afternoon in sewing. Preparations are being made for the annual bazaar to be held next month.

Ed Peltier has returned from Duluth and again resumed his duties at the Tower Lumber company's mill. Mr. Peltier went to Duluth to work in a West end mill, but found things unsatisfactory so returned here to work until this mill closes.

O. Halden, county auditor, and J. P. Johnson, clerk of court, passed through the city Thursday on their return to Duluth after a few days' hunting trip in the north country.

F. A. Wildes, Jr., state inspector of mines, was here Thursday on his way to section 36-63-15, where the state owns lands on which a Ball drill is working.

Rev. James F. Buh of Ely, and Rev. Schulwen of Biwabik, accompanied Bishop McGolrick of Duluth when he came here Tuesday to confirm a class of between sixty and seventy children of St. Martin's Catholic church. The ceremonies were very impressive and were largely attended, the church being packed to its utmost capacity.

Mrs. Charles Heise and children left Friday for Chicago, where they will join Mr. Heise. Most of their household goods here have been disposed of. A farewell party was tendered Mrs. Heise yesterday at the home of Mrs. Jasper Williams at Lakeside. About thirty ladies were present, and Mrs. Heise was the recelpient of a beautiful piece of silver, presented by the ladies.

Fred Helm, yardmaster at Tower Junction has been joined here by his wife, who came up from Two Harbors Saturday. The couple are housekeeping in the Gruben house on North Second street. Merritt Helen spent part of the week here with his parents before leaving for Minneapolis, where he is to attend school.

Mesdames William Wiseman and D. Graham returned Thursday after a two months' visit at their old home in Canada. William Wiseman went to Duluth Wednesday to meet them, and accompanied them home.

STOPPED BY WATER.

Sinking in White Iron Lake Property Has Been Temporarily Suspended.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the White Iron Lake property sinking has ceased in the shaft. The pumps were not able to handle the water, and Capt. Franklin is in St. Paul purchasing new machinery that will keep the shaft dry, and enable the company to sink at a much more rapid rate. Considerable interest is manifested here in the exploratory work done on this property, and the development work has shown up some promising strata at that place.

DROPS TO DEATH.

Finnish Miner Knocked From Ladder Falling Fifty Feet.

Bovey, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—While descending the ladder in shaft No. 3 of the Canistee mine, here, early yesterday, Jacob Hyoonen, a Finnish miner, was hit by a piece of falling timber as he was within fifty feet of the bottom, and hurled to the bottom of the shaft, receiving fatal injuries. He was taken to the Coleraine hospital, where he died in about two hours. He was married, and it is understood his family is in Finland.

BUSY WITH SEWERS.

Ely Council Has Difficult Problem on Its Hands.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council is very busy at present over the improvement of the sewer in the westaern part of the city. It seems that the improvement could not be made as at first contemplated. The city engineer advises putting in a separate conduit for the sewage, and large enough to carry the sewage for all time. The council is making an effort to secure right-of-way from property owners to carry out the engineer's ideas.

RANGE CHAMPIONSHIP.

It Will be Fought for Between Virginia and Grand Rapids.

Virginia, Minn. Oct., 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Grand Rapids and Virginia high school football teams will meet on the local gridiron next Friday afternon, Nov. 1, and contest for the championship of the range. The Grand Rapids team won the championship last year, easily defeating Virginia, but the boosters for the Roosevelt highs look for a different result this year.

TWO WITHDRAW.

M. T. Savage and Joseph Cassady Out of Virginia Aldermanic Race.

Virginia, Minn. Oct., 26.—(Special to The Herald.) — Owing to pressure brought to bear upon them by their employers, both M. T. Savage and Joseph Cassady, independent candidates for aldermen in the First and Third wards, respectively, have withdrawn from the race. No new nomination will be made in the Third ward, but John L. Owens, present alderman, has been induced to run on the independent ticket in the First ward. A petition has been circulatel in his behalf and his name will appear on the ballot in place of that of Mr. Savage. There are already two independent candidates in the Third ward, and the voters who do not care to vote for the Republican candidate can make their choice between James Polglase and James Sullivan.

CARLSON IN RACE.

Said to Have Been Urged to Run by Certain Interests.

Eveleth, Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the entrance of Frank Carlson in the race for alderman-at-large, a new feature of the local campaign is shown. Mr. Carlson had intended to be a candidate from his own ward, but a clique, said to be seeking control of the council, persuaded him to make a change, presumably to damage the chances of A. N. Peterson, who is opposed to the clique.

Those who induced Mr. Carlson to make the change were after A. Mr. Peterson before they succeeded in inducing Frank Carlson to make the run. Mr. Peterson refused to injure A. N. Peterlooked for a man who was popular with the Scandinavians. The remaining candidates realize that the addition of Carlson to the list endanges the chances of each man in a place like Eveleth, where so few votes are cast, comparatively.

HALL DEDICATION.

Eveleth, Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The elaborate plans of the Monitor society for the dedication of their hall culminated in a grand parade at 2:30 p. m., and in the evening a banquet at which Lieutenant Governor Eberhart has been invited to make the didicatory address. Other speechess will be made by S. M. Anderson, who will talk on the order's history; P. E. Dowling, A. W. Peterson, of the order's grand lodge, and Rev. M. Martinson. Music will be furnished by Duluth Svea and Duluth Glee clubs, and solo by Edward Strand. A banquet will be served after the banquet in the Monitor hal.

THE HOBART'S BIG PUMP.

Eveleth, Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. C. H. Mathews of the Hobart mine has been in town on business. Mr. Mathews is in charge of the installation of a pump at the Hobart that will have a capacity of 3,500 gallons per minute. The superintendent reports that he is not having any trouble with the labor problem, and is, therefore, looking forward for a prosperous season.

SHEA ACQUIRES LAND.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. H. Shea has been given possession by the government of the land in dispute at Ely Lake with R. L. Rabb. The case was opened in the Duluth land office February, 1906. The prior decision of the Duluth land office was evenly divided between Shea, supported by William Cuilkin, and Rabb, whose position was enforced by Smith. The case was taken to Washington. The decision of the general office was in favor of Shea. The ground in dispute is supposed to be very valuable because of the ore that underlies it.

Or Feed Them Food They Can Study On.

When a student begins to break down from lack of the right kind of food, there are only two things to do; either take him out of school or feed him properly on food that will rebuild the brain and nerve cells. That food is Grape-Nuts.

A boy writes from Jamestown, N. Y., saying: "A short time ago I got into a bad condition from overstudy, but mother having heard about Grape-Nuts food began to feed me on it. It satisfied my hunger better than any other food, and the results were marvelous. I got fleshy like a good fellow. My usual morning headaches disappeared, and I found I could study for a long period without feeling the effects of it.

"My face was pale and thin, but is now round and has considerable color. After I had been using Grape-Nuts for about two months I felt like a new boy altogether. I have gained greatly in strength as well as flesh, and it is a pleasure to study now that I am not bothered with my head. I passed all of my examinations with a reasonably good percentage, extra good in some of them, and it is Grape-Nuts that has saved me from a year's delay in entering college.

"Father and mother have both been improved by the use of Grape-Nuts. Mother was troubled with sleepless nights, and got very thin, and looked care worn. She has gained her normal strength and looks, and sleeps well nights." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs.

Jacob Gerzin of this city, and Miss Carolino Kovach of Chisholm, will be married at the latter place this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greenwood Jewett returned Sunday from a short visit at Minneapolis.

EVELETH IN BRIEF.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—An eleven-pound daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fitzgerald of the Fayal, Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Jerry Sullivan of the Adams location has been very ill during the past two weeks. She is now reported as improving.

The master barbers held a meeting in R. S. Howes' barber shop and agreed upon a schedule of prices that shall be charged for tonsorial work in Eveleth. It was also proposed that all shops close at 11 p. m. Saturdays. The next meeting will be held in J. J. Farley's shop. Charles Bundy was chosen secretary of the association.

Mrs. Hugh Fox returned from Sacred Heart, Minn., where she has been spending a month with her parents. She was accompanied back by a friend, Miss A. Thorsted, who will visit Mrs. Fox for a few days.

The next meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church will be held at Mrs. Batt's home, Thrusday afternoon, Oct. 31.

A large surprise party was held Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Levant, in honor of Miss Annie Brockman, a prospective daughter-in-law of their.

"BAR FLIES."

Police Claim Woodsman Was Victim of One of Them.

"Bar Flies" hang about the saloon at 516 West Superior street, according to the statement made by Lieut. Fiskett of the police department, in the municipal court this morning, when Fred Martinson was arraigned on the charge of assaulting Hjalmer Swenson.

The police lieutenant claimed that there is a gang of loafers in the saloon, who wait for somebody to buy a drink, and then try to work him for "drinks for the house."

Swenson went into the saloon yesterday, and after buying a drink, claimed that he had lost his watch, and accused Martinson's companion of taking it. Martinson, it is claimed, then assaulted Swenson. He was found guilty this morning and fined $40 and costs by the court.

GETS STIFF FINE.

Charged with assaulting his brother's wife, and scratching and bruising her face, John Harrison, a marine engineer, was arraigned in the municipal court this morning.

The woman appeared and showed a countenance that bore out the testimony of herself and her husband. Harrison boards with his brother, and the dispute is said to have arisen over a board bill.

He was given $75 and costs or sixty days.

WERE BUSY DURING FIRE

Flames Starting From Cigar Stub Cause Heavy Loss.

Time—8:30 p. m.

Origin — Unknown, supposed to have been lighted from lighted cigar or cigarette.

Loss—From $10,000 to $12,000.

Insurance—On building, $25,000; on furniture, $5,500.

During the excitement incident to the fire in the Tremont hotel on Lake avenue, last night, some unknown person or persons took advantage of the opportunity to plunder the rooms, and Mr. Rick, proprietor, and some of the guests are this morning complaining of the loss of watches and other valuables left in their rooms.

It is believed that some person simply made a hurried tour of the rooms and gathered up what he could lay his hands on.

The fire which for a time threatened the complete destruction of the hotel was discovered at about 8:30 last evening, and before the department had it under control, it caused a loss estimated at $10,000.

The building carried insurance to the amount of $25,000, and is owned by Eastern parties.

It will require considerable rebuilding, the upper story being badly gutted by the flames and the rooms damaged by smoke and water. William Rick, one of the proprietors, estimates the loss to the furniture at $7,000, with $5,500 insurance on the same. The hotel had recently been newly furnished and carpeted throughout.

Cause of the Fire.

The fire originated in room 31, it is thought, and may have been from a lighted cigarette or cigar butt thrown carelessly aside. It was discovered by two young men, Henry Basley and Joe DeMars, who were about to retire in room 38, when they noticed smoke appearing over the transom. They dressed and hurried into the hall, but found the smoke too dense and returned to their room, where they hastily gathered up their belongings and dropped them out the window. The young men then made their way to safety by the fire escape.

But few of the guests had retired at the early hour of the fire and there was little excitement marking the usual hotel fire.

Crowds thronged the streets and the police were kept busy keeping them back. There were but few guests on the floor where the fire originated, and those below had no difficulty in making their escape in plenty of time.

The department was at the scene of the fire promptly and soon had heavy streams of water on the flames.

Woman Gives Alarm.

Mrs. McFall, who has the lease on the hotel, ran to the fourth floor from the kitchen, where she was at the time the fire started and alarmed the guests on that floor in plenty of time to permit all to escape.

Several made efforts to remove their trunks, but the smoke and water which filled the rooms compelled them to give up the task. Many of the guests had their belongings ruined by the water and smoke and find themselves today with but the wearing apparel they had on at the time of the fire.

It was reported that a man lay helpless in room 39 and the firemen made their way to the room through thick clouds of smoke, only to find that the bed had not been touched and the room unoccupied.

Many of the guests who were driven from the main part of the hotel by the fire, were accommodated in the annex, and others found refuge in nearby lodging houses. The department had the fire under control within three-quarters of an hour from the time the alarm was turned in.

It is stated today that the hotel will be repaired at once and that the same will be ready for occupancy again within a short time as the damage is confined to the upper floor and roof, although many of the second floor rooms are damaged considerable by water soaking through from above. Guests were busy today taking an inventory of their belongings and removing water-soaked trunks of clothing from the building.

A party of seven electricians occupied several rooms on the top floor. They lost everything but the clothing they wore.

KING ALFONSO HAS CONSUMPTION.

Madrid, Oct. 26.—The alarming reports circulated earlier in the month regarding the health of King Alfonso appear to be confirmed. It is understood the king, who will travel under the strictest incognito as duke of Toledo during his coming visit to London, will submit to the examination of a specialist in tuberculosis, of which his father died. The king's open air life has thus far kept the disease in abeyance and an operation was performed on him recently in the hope of curing the growing symptoms of consumption.

UNION LABOR NEWS

TO ASSIST STRIKERS

Fund for Telegraphers Will be Raised by the Unions.

Delegate Says Strikers Have Virtually Won the Struggle.

From the sentiment displayed at the meeting of the Duluth Trades assembly last evening, members of labor organizations in Duluth do not mean to let the Commercial Telegraphers' union of Duluth die out for lack of funds to carry out their struggle against the telegraph companies. A fund will be immediately raised for their benefit.

Delegate Brierton, of the telegraphers, who took his seat in the assembly for the first time last night, explained the situation as it is at present. He declared that the telegraphers' strike had been won three weeks ago when the operators had shown that they could remain out of the employ of the telegraph companies for six weeks. He said that the reports from different parts of the country that the operators were flocking back to work were all wrong. In Duluth he said only one man had gone back to work while the rest were as determined a lot as they were when the strike was first called. Most of the members of the local union have secured other work for the present and are not in hard circumstances.

W. W. BEATTIE,
Succeeding President Small of Telegraphers Union.

Four or five, however, are still out of work and to support these few the telegraphers are in need of funds, and Mr. Brierton asked the members of the trades assembly and organized labor in general to come to their aid.

"We are not thinking of giving up the fight," said Mr. Brierton. "We will 'stick' to the finish or until the Western Union goes out of existence. But we do need the support of organized labor. If each delegate will go back to his local union and explain the conditions to the members I think they will be willing to contribute. If each union man in Duluth were assessed 5 to 10 cents a week, it would help us out wonderfully."

Delegate Peters moved that a committee of five be appointed to visit the different unions at their meetings and solicit funds, but other members were of the opinion that that plan would take too long a time.

"We need assistance right away if we are going to get it at all," said Mr. Brierton. "Not that any of the boys are getting weak-kneed at all, but we must have funds."

A motion was made and passed that each delegate should do his best to lay the matter before his local union and secure the necessary contribution or assessment upon the members.

REPORT IS DEMANDED.

Trades Assembly Wants to Hear From Labor Day Committee.

When the reports of committees were being heard at the meeting of the trades assembly last night one of the delegates wanted to know why there was no report of the Labor day committee. President Hunt of the committee stated that there was no report to make.

"Well, it seems to me that is a funny way of doing business," said Secretary Peters. "I think we ought to get some kind of a report from this committee."

A motion was passed calling upon the Labor day committee to submit a report at he next meeting of the assembly.

Trades Assembly for Proctor.

W. E. McEwen, secretary of the State Federation of Labor, sent in a communication to the Trades' assembly last evening in reply to the one referring the Proctor organization matter to him, and stated that he will do all possible to secure the organization of a central body or trades' assembly at the town up on the hill.

Three New Delegates.

The credentials of three new delegates to the assembly were received at the meeting last evening, and the new members were obligated. Thomas Yould, printing pressmen; W. J. Brierton, commercial telegraphers, and James Cochren, carpenters, are the new delegates.

PAVILION IS PROFITABLE

Union Labor Hall Has Had Very Good Patronage.

One of Prizes Awarded Last January is Still Unclaimed.

Duluth's union labor pavilion, which is situated at Fairmount park, has proved a profitable institution for the labor organizations which operated it during the past season. The pavilion is paid for and there is a surplus on hand in the treasury of the pavilion association, which is in charge of the pavilion.

Besides being used for the Labor day celebration, which was wholly under the management of the trades' unions, the labor pavilion is used during the summer by other organizations which lease it for certain evenings or afternoons. From this source the pavilion association has reaped quite a harvest. Fairmount park is getting to be more and more a favorite picnic ground, and the popularity of the pavilion increases likewise.

All of the receipts from the Labor day celebration, as far as the picnic at the park was concerned, went into the hands of the pavilion association, putting that organization in good circumstances. It was able to pay back the money borrowed from the Trades' assembly and Structural alliance and still has a surplus. There is, of course, some money due on the two lots purchased, but the payments are not yet due.

The Duluth labor unions first decided to establish a pavilion at Fairmount park more than a year ago, and had the temporary structure ready for the Labor day celebration that year. The pavilion was not formally opened, however, until the following January, when, on New Year's day, a grand ball was given. In speaking of the opening celebration last night, President Kielley of the pavilion association, stated that the winner of the second prize at the New Year's party had not yet come forward to claim it.

"We gave away two prizes at that time," said Mr. Kielley, "one a piano and one a watch. The holder of the ticket for the piano came forward and claimed his prize, but the watch has never been claimed."

ACTIVE AT SUPERIOR.

Secretary Peters Reports on Trip Across the Bay.

Ernest Peters, secretary of the Duluth Trades assembly and fraternal delegate to the Superior assembly, reported that he had attended the meeting across the bay on Tuesday night of this week and found that the labor movement over there is as active as ever.

Mr. Peters says that the attendance is better, if anything, at the Superior meetings of the assembly than the meetings of the Duluth assembly.

The president of the Superior assembly, Mr. Swanstrom, resigned at the meeting Tuesday and in honor of his long and faithful service was given a handsome present.

REPORT ON SHIPYARD.

Prospect of Settling Ship Carpenters' Dispute is Good.

The committee appointed to visit R. B. Knox of the Duluth-Superior Dredging company, who is said to control the Grignon shipyard at Sixth avenue west and try to effect a settlement between the ship and dock carpenters and the owners of the yard, reported at the meeting of the trades assembly.

It was stated that Mr. Knox seemed willing to unionize the shop, but wished to follow the rules adopted in other shipyards along the Great Lakes. The question seems to be whether or not the ship carpenters should do the caulking or "horsing" or whether they should have helpers.

The committee was continued over and was instructed to get information regarding the question from the other shipyards along the lakes.

ELECT NEW PRESIDENT.

W. W. Beattie Succeeds Small as Telegraphers' Chief Executive.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 26.—The convention of the Commercial Telegraphers' union adjourned sine die last night after electing W. W. Beattie of Washington, D. C., president; H. J. Horn, Cincinnati, first vice president, and A. S. Ewing, St. Louis, third vice president. Orville A. Glenn retains his office as second vice president. Frank Likes of Chicago and C. M. P. Smith of Salt Lake were added to the executive board.

The first official act of President Beattie was to appoint two committees of former Western Union and Postal Telegraph operators to open negotiations with a view to bringing about a settlement of the strike. Another committee consisting of five members was appointed to go to St. Louis to meet officials of the order of Railway Telegraphers relative to the proposition of amalgamation with that order.

New Labor Editor.

A. R. McDonald, who will take charge of the Labor World during Editor McEwen's term in the office of state oil inspector, was given the privilege of the floor at the meeting last evening. He said that in his early days he had been a member of a labor organization, and it seemed like home to him to be attending one again.

Further Cause of Printers.

Delegate Barron of the typographical union distributed a number of little booklets among the members of the assembly, which he asked them to use for the furtherance of the cause of the printers in their fight against the typothetae. The book contains slips with a place for the bearer's name, and on the opposite side a list of the union printing shops in Duluth. Unionists are to sign their names to these slips and distribute them among the merchants with whom they do business, at the same time asking them to patronize the union shops.

RATTLESNAKE AT LARGE.

Escapes From Box in St. Paul Depot and Creates Excitement.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large rattlesnake, tired of being kept in a box with half a dozen others, in the office of the Wells-Fargo Express company in the union depot, escaped early Thursday and raised havoc with the nervous systems of passengers for early trains. A brakeman from a Great Northern train finally picked up the rattler, which had become well chilled and offered no resistance, and returned him to the box. The snakes were shipped to E. J. Erickson of Hamline from Brownsville, Texas, and he refused to accept them, so they have been kept in the depot since Sept. 7.

MUNZ RE-ELECTED.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 26.—Dr. Frederic Munz of Cincinnati was re-elected president of the National German Epworth league here today. The next biennial session of the league will be somewhere east of the Mississippi river. The place will be selected by the national executive committee.

DULUTH REAL ESTATE IS HOLDING ITS OWN

Depreciation in Stock Values Does Not Affect Realty Values and Those Who Put Their Profits of Stocks Into Real Estate Are Congratulating Themselves—T. W. Wahl Says the Attention of the East is on Duluth's Future Progress.

Duluth real estate is holding its own During these days of depreciation in the value of stocks the price of Duluth realty has not been affected in the least. Prices seem to have been established on rock-base values, and it will take more than a weak stock market to bring about any lower values of dirt. It is true that the realty market is rather quiet at the present time so far as sales are concerned, but so are other lines of business. The financial world has been shaken up a little during the past several days, and investors seem to be holding back, waiting for the clouds to clear away. There seems to be no lack of confidence in real estate values, however, and many new inquiries have been made locally with a view of future investment. Some of the local people who were fortunate in stock deals early in the year, who sold out at the top prices and put all or part of their profits in Duluth realty are now congratulating themselves. They feel that they have made investments that will stand, some that will not depreciate in value, but which have every prospect for increased value within a limited period of years, depending on the rapidity of the industrial development planned for this city. Money rates are a little stiffer locally. Loans running formerly from 5 to 5½ per cent, are now made on the basis of 6 to 6 per cent. It is claimed that there is not so much money available for large loans, but that there seems to be no lack of small loans, at the going rate. Real estate brokers are confident that the present lull is only temporary and they are getting their lists in good shape for a lively business during the remainder of the fall and the winter.

* * *

Thomas W. Wahl, a well known real estate man of this city who has been in the East, making an investigation of the realty situation in New York, Boston and other Eastern cities, and feeling the pulse of the investing public there in regards to their feeling toward Duluth, gives some interesting sidelights on the result of his observations, in the following characteristic interview for The Herald:

"During the past three weeks I have visited ten of the largest cities between Duluth and Boston, investigating realty conditions. Everywhere I find that the public is leaning toward real estate investments.

"The average investor is beginning to realize that, after all, real estate well bought, is one of the best investments that can be made. That does not mean realty bought during boom times, but that bought for a reasonable figure.

"There never was a time in the history of Duluth when realty offered so sure and safe returns as it does today. Nowhere else in the country, so far as I have been able to find, is there another city where so many millions of dollars of improvements are going on as compared with the population. Everywhere I go I hear the most encouraging remarks about Duluth. Where a few years ago people in the East merely spoke kindly of Duluth, now they term it the 'Pittsburg of the West,' 'the coming city of the Northwest.'

"One of the officials of the largest trust companies in New York made the remark that there is not another city in the country that has the prospects of Duluth and that if he were a young man he would locate in that city.

"In a conversation the other day with one of the prominent bankers on Wall street, I was informed that the United States Steel corporation will spend $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 at the Head of the Lakes in the furtherance of its plans for a steel plant, instead of $10,000,000. That should wake Duluth people up to the fact that now is the time to buy real estate in their own city. Will they wake up to it? I venture the guess that they will by the time the city has reached a population of 250,000.

"Another official connected with one of the largest financial corporations in the world, recently remarked that the undertaking of the United States Steel corporation in Duluth will go right ahead, that the company's finances are in such condition that there will be no delay in the plans, even if weaker concerns throughout the country must stop improvements on account of inability to place their bonds.

"What I have learned on this trip convinces me that by the time the steel company has its plant well under way investors will be flocking to Duluth. As compared with other cities, real estate in Duluth is ridiculously low in price. Some of it may, possibly, be high enough for the present, but nowhere else have I found conditions for so great an increase in prices in certain localities as there are in Duluth today.

"As a matter of fact, Duluth investors have not paid much attention to real estate during the past few years. It has been a very much neglected source of investment or speculation. Only a few have taken advantage of the opportunities offered and which have really been kicking around at their feet. The increase in population, which will follow the steel plant, cannot help but have an immense influence on values of land about the city and investments in realty, no matter how large or small, will be perfectly secure.

"If anybody wants a good object lesson, let them go to Gary, Ill., and investigate the conditions there.

"In Boston, New York and Chicago people are turning their attention to real estate. Many large sales have been made and the brokers are looking for the general public to begin investing all along the line.

"One has to go away from his home city to really find out what is happening there and how those in the financial world regard it."

* * *

Local building contractors are getting their fall contracts pretty well cleaned up. It is claimed that in another ten days or two weeks about all the contracts for completion before winter will be out of the way. The contractors predict little building in Duluth this winter. The contractors are also predicting that building in Duluth can be done at lower prices next season than this. In support of their prediction, they point out the fact that the building material concerns are sending out their agents in large numbers to take orders for next season's delivery, and there has been some price-cutting. This season the contractors are said to have had more or less trouble in getting their material, because the demand was so great that the material men were behind in their orders. It is believed that a quiet period in building will remedy matters a great deal, so far as the cost to builders is concerned, and the fact that the material men are already able to meet the demands, is taken to mean that lower prices will prevail the coming season. If such turns out to be the case, the building movement in Duluth will be greatly stimulated next year, for there are said to be a number of people who have been holding up proposed improvements because the cost of building was too high.

The deed was recorded this week, transferring from the Johnston Realty company to the Shogomoc company, a G. G. Hartley concern, the 25-foot property on the upper side of Superior street, between First and Second avenues east, described as the west half of lot 21. The sale of the property was mentioned some time ago. The consideration was $17,500.

* * *

J. C. Campbell has purchased from an Eastern concern the 50-foot property adjoining the southwest corner of Seventeenth avenue west and Superior street, the consideration being $7,000. The property is described as lot 276, block 34, Second division.

* * *

Stephen A. Bruen has purchased from Henry W. Reau, a residence property on the lower side of London road, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth avenues. The consideration was $2,600. The property comprises the house and a 25-foot lot.

* * *

F. L. Schoening has sold Charles Anderson, for $2,800, a fifty-foot lot on the lower side of Sixth street, just east of the city reservoir on Fifteenth avenue east.

* * *

E. C. Peterson has purchased from A. R. Allen, a store property on the lower side of First street, between Twentieth and Twenty-first avenues west, for $2,000.

* * *

Louis Simon has purchased from J. A. Walker, for $3,600, a residence property on the lower side of Fourth street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues east. The property is known as the east half of lot 74, East Fourth street.

* * *

Sumner Wallace has sold William Harney and Olin B. Paine, a fifty-foot property on the northeast corner of Superior street and Twenty-eighth avenue west, for $2,100.

* * *

Susan MacKenzie has purchased from Albert J. Miller, a residence property, comprising 100 feet on Oxford street, between Princeton and Roslyn avenues, Hunter's Park. The consideration was $3,500.

* * *

Axel F. Anderson has sold Mannie Morton and John D. Mahon, a 25-foot residence lot on Fifth street, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth avenues east. The consideration was $2,600.

* * *

John C. and Clyde F. Green have purchased a fifty-foot property on Fourth street, between Second and Third avenues west, for $1,500.

* * *

Bray & Nystrom, the architects, are taking figures for a handsome studio to be erected on the present site of the tennis court on the upper side of Superior street, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues east, for W. L. Smith of Saginaw. Mr. Smith is a prominent Michigan photographer, and has recently decided to come to Duluth. The establishment of a studio in the East end residence district will be something of a new thing for this city. The same architects are preparing plans for a $5,000 residence for Nels Olander of Hibbing. They have awarded the contract for the $25,000 grade school at Eveleth, to J. A. Roberts of this city. The work is to be started at once and the building will be completed for the fall term of school in 1908. The contract for H. F. Williamson's new $3,500 barn has been awarded by the architects to Berquist Bros. of this city. Plans are being prepared for a bungalow style home for L. N. Case, to be built at Lakeside.

* * *

A. Terryberry, the architect, is taking figures on a brick building containing four flats and three stores, 60 by 70 feet in ground dimensions and two stories high, to be erected on Superior street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues east. The improvement is planned for Eastern parties, Whitney Wall, agent. The same architect has awarded the contract for L. Ratkovich's two-flat building on Third avenue west, between Third and Fourth streets, to Nick Miller. The improvement will cost about $6,000, and work has been started. Plans are being prepared for a residence for C. H. Merritt on Woodland avenue, near the Normal school.

HOW TO BUILD "HOUSE OF LIFE"

Kate Upson Clark Tells How It Should be Constructed.

The concluding address in a series of three, which has been given during the week by Kate Upson Clark of Brooklyn, was delivered this morning at Steinway hall before an audience that completely filled the room.

"Essentials and Non-Essentials of Life" was the subject of this morning's talk.

"Life is at no time a finished thing," said Mrs. Clark, in part. "There are constantly changes and differences of opinion and what seemed the absolute necessity of last year fades into insignificance this year, and the things we now deem most important will seem very trifling a few years hence. Different people gave me different answers in reply to my question of what they considered the essentials of life. A clergyman said a broad charity; another said pluck; another, sincerity; another, friendship. Friendship is a wonderful thing and I hope we are coming to the time when women's friendships may be great enough to become immortalized like that of Damon and Pythias, David and Jonathan, and others. With the increased ease with which things are being done each day, the time will soon be here when women may have time for the greater things of life, and friendship among them will bloom out.

"Others answer to my question, said cheerfulness, gratitude, bread, water and religion. A cynical woman said good looks and good clothes; another, said perfect honesty under contentment; another, money and health; and another, unselfishness.

"In building my house of life from the essentials I should say that the foundation should be a strong, healthy body, the walls to be built of moral convictions, the windows of hope, the beds of industry, the people fed with the food of love, heated with enthusiasm and the roof, the highest and loftiest thing of the house, that which is nearest God, to be of religion."

WILL PROTECT THEIR PROPERTY

Real Estate Men Will Guard Against Halloween Pranks.

Measures to protect property against the devastations which usually accompany Halloween pranks of thoughtless boys, will be adopted by the members of the Duluth real estate exchange. Individual members of the exchange will adopt precautions, protecting the property in their care, while the exchange as a body issues a warning to all defacers of property, stating that anyone caught destroying or defacing property will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The police have been requested to observe the utmost vigilance in the protection of property against wayward boys. In the past, say members of the exchange, property amounting to hundreds of dollars, has been defaced and damaged by persons engaging in the moredn spirit of Haloween. It is with the intention of putting a stop to all such practices that the exchange has requested the co-operation of the police.

LAKESIDERS AROUSE ANGER OF CITY ENGINEER

Claims Pavement Chosen Was Only Fit for Back Alley.

President Sang Says They Got All They Paid For.

"The paving on the thoroughfare, between Forty-first and Forty-sixth avenues east is in perfectly good shape now. It only requires time to settle, and the price paid, 70 cents per yard, would not warrant better paving. I consider it bad faith on the part of the property owners in stating that the street was not graded sixty-six feet wide, for the balance of two lots was left at the request of the property owners themselves.

"The roller used in the work was all that is necessary on any block, and the softness of the surface of the paving is due to the compulsion to construct the work during wet weather.

"No payment has been made to the contractor for any work not completed, and there is much more crushed rock on the street than the contract called for. The coaming is to be finished before the final payment is made. Such an improvement is fit only for a suburban back alley, or a country road. It was the cheapest improvement possible with an 18-foot roadway and 3-foot stone gutters.

"I consider that the taxpayers who want to get out of paying for the improvement assessment on a flimsy pretext, a disgrace to the city, and their remedy is the law, if they have a just cause for remedy. Their language, intimating that this department was derelict in its duty is wholly unjustified. No one can say but that this city has the best streets for the least money of any city in the United States."—Thomas F. McGilvray, City Engineer.

"The board of public works visited the scene of the Robinson street paving yesterday afternoon, and investigated the conditions. We feel that the paving, considering the circumstances under which it was put down, and the cost of the same, as good as the property owners could expect. There are some soft spots, to be sure, but we believe that with the 5 per cent held in reserve for the purposes of remedying any defects, the street can be placed in first-class condition, as good as the property owners could expect, considering the cost and the fact that the paving was hurried through during wet weather at the urgent call of some property owners on the street. We can see no other way but that the assessment must be collected, and will defer our action until we have consulted with the city attorney."—David Sang, President Board of Public Works.

The above statements from President Sang of the board of public works, and City Engineer McGilvray are self-explanatory, and refer to the recent petition from property owners on Robinson street in which they declined to pay the final assessment for the street paving, there on the grounds that the job was a poor one. The reasons given for their refusal to pay were published in The Herald last evening.

President Sang and other members of the board visited the scene of the paving yesterday afternoon and they feel that the property owners are expecting altogether too much for their money. Some of them seem to have anticipated that the paving was to be of Telford macadam which would cost at least $2.00 per yard when the specification only called for a much cheaper grade of paving.

It seems to be the opinion of the board that the street can be placed in good shape with the 5 per cent reserve held back on all contracts, and that the city will defend itself against paying the final assessment.

City Attorney Fesler is out of the city and could not be reached to obtain the legal points in the controversy. Upon his return he will meet the board and will furnish an opinion upon the question.

INSTITUTE A SUCCESS

McGuire Says County Will Get More Meetings Next Year.

Farmers All Over County Have Shown Great Interest.

Prof. A. J. McGuire of the state experiment farm, who has been conducting the farmers' institute at various points in the county the past week, says that next fall the State Farmers' Institute will provide meetings for this county, extending over a period of two weeks. Prof. McGuire claims that the meetings held in this county for the first time have been very satisfactory and he is much pleased at the attendance and the interest manifested by the farmers of the county.

Yesterday afternoon the institute was held at Alborn and this morning it was expected to hold one at Adolph, the institute party returning to Duluth late this afternoon.

The meetings, which have been held at the various points in the county, have borne out the predictions of Assistant Land Commissioner L. B. Arnold of the Iron Range Railway company, that the proper places to hold them is right out in the country, where the farmers are located. The meetings held in the larger towns and cities have shown that the farmers will not attend as well as they do in the country, and it is the farmers that the institute aims to reach.

At Two Harbors last Monday there was a light attendance and most of those were townspeople.

At the country town of Embarrass there were 140 at the meeting in the morning and seventy-five in the afternoon. The farmers claimed that there would have been more were it not for a church meeting and a funeral occurring the same day as the institute.

There were 100 present at the morning session at Biwabik and 150 in the afternoon. At Ashawa there were 100 farmers present and at Kelsey there were sixty-three farmers in attendance. At Kelsey the ladies provided a fine lunch for those attending the institute.

Mr. Arnold, who has been active in the matter of bringing the State Farmers' Institute to this county, and who made the trip about the county with the institute party, returned to Duluth yesterday.

He is very enthusiastic over the meetings and believes that they will be productive of good results, for the reason that the experts on agriculture and dairying have reached the farmers, the very people that they wanted to reach, to give them the benefit of their experience and training.

FOURTH STREET IMPROVEMENT

Will be Discussed at Meeting Next Friday Morning.

Next Friday, at 11 o'clock, the board of public works will be at home to property owners on Fourth street, and especially those having property between Sixth avenue east and Twenty-sixth avenue east, on Fourth street, for the purpose of receiving suggestions and ideas upon the proposed paving of that street, a petition for which was authorized by the council at its session last week.

The street, from Sixth to Fifteenth avenues, is now about eighty-six feet in width. The remainder of the street, which is to be paved, is the usual width, sixty-six feet to Twenty-sixth avenue east.

Twenty feet of the street at the wide part is covered with a grass plot, or boulevard, and the board is anxious to know what the residents desire as to the disposition of this boulevard, whether or not it is to be retained as a grass plot, or used in the roadway when the paving is undertaken.

They also desire to get the sentiment as to the grade of the street, one side at present being at a considerable elevation over the lower side. The work will not be undertaken until another year, but the board is anxious to get at the sentiment of property owners before the petition is circulated.

HOUSEWARMING.

Reception for Rev. and Mrs. Geer at New Parsonage.

A house warming was given last evening at the new parsonage of the Lester Park M. E. church, and not only the members of the congregation and their friends were present but there was a large number of other residents of the suburb in attendance.

It was in the nature of a two-fold function, a house warming and a welcome to Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Geer, who have been returned to the charge for another term. Short talks were given and refreshments were served.

The members of the ladies' aid society were in charge of the affair.

HARRIMAN CANNOT BE CRIMINALLY PROSECUTED.

Washington, Oct. 26.—After three months of patient investigation, Attorney General Bonaparte has decided E. H. Harriman cannot be criminally prosecuted for his manipulations of railroad securities. He has determined, however, the government has good grounds for instituting a civil suit against the Harriman properties for their separation into independent competing lines.

In the judgment of the attorney general there has been suppression of competition through the control of the Southern Pacific by the Union Pacific. It is said he is also satisfied there has been community of interests between the Union Pacific and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe.

THE MARKET IS BULLISH

Wheat Has a Good Bulge —Northwest is Strongest.

Flax Has Advance During the Session in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, Oct. 26.—Many things contributed to the strength of the wheat market today. The tone was improved from the opening and the closing prices were up in America and Liverpool, although the continental markets were off.

The improved financial conditions in this country were a bullish factor and induced buying. Reports from Argentina continue to record unfavorable weather for the crops there, and the news from Russia is still bullish.

The inspection at Winnipeg is showing up much low grade wheat, an evidence of the poor crop in the Canadian Northwest. This caused a big bulge at Winnipeg and worked for higher prices in the Northwestern markets.

Liverpool closed ⅝d to ½d higher, Berlin ⅝c lower and Budapest 1½c lower.

Broomhall estimates the world's shipments of wheat this week at 10,800,000 bus.

The December option closed 1¼c higher in Duluth, 1c in Chicago and New York, 1⅛c higher in Minneapolis and 2¼c in Winnipeg. The May option closed 1⅝c higher in Duluth and Minneapolis, 1⅜c in Chicago, ⅞c in New York and 2¼c in Winnipeg.

December corn closed ⅝c higher in Chicago and was unchanged from yesterday in Liverpool. December oats closed ⅝c higher in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a steady opening in wheat, with values ⅝d higher. The weakness in American cables and the official Indian report of light rains in Bombay was offset by the reports of too much rain in Argentina, and as a result offerings were light, and the leading bull interests gave good support to the market. There was some little selling during the session in the way of realizing profits by small professional traders, but at the close prices made a full recovery and more too, and were unchanged to ¼d up from the opening, with sellers few.

"Corn was steady in tone, with prices unchanged. The market for this cereal was entirely neglected."

Car receipts at Duluth were 270 against 213 last year, and at Minneapolis 275 against 287 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 545 against 500 last year. Chicago received 72 against 51 last year. Winnipeg received 327 against 400 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 881,000 bus, last year 975,000 bus. Shipments 966,000 bus, last year 872,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 416,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 578,000 bus, last year 456,000 bus. Shipments 478,000 bus, last year 369,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 45,000 bus.

Wheat was active during all of the session in the Duluth market. Wild trading marked the opening, with prices steadily advancing. The closing prices were at the high level of the day. ## THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Higher Under London Influences, But Soon Eases Off.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Higher prices at Liverpool caused a firm opening today in the local wheat market but prices after a short time eased off. December wheat opened ⅝c to ¾c higher, at 90½c to 97⅜c, sold at 90¼c and then advanced to 90½c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 617 cars against 626 cars last week and 548 one year ago.

The market was strong all day. The high point for December was $1.00⅝@½. The close was strong, with December up 1c at $1.00½.

The corn market was dull and prices were firm because of wet weather throughout the corn belt. December corn opened ¼@⅝c to ⅝c higher, at 57⅝@⅝c to 57⅝c and sold at 57½c. Local receipts were 320 cars with 95 of contract grade.

The high point for December was 58¼c. The close was strong, with December up ⅝c at 58c.

The oats market was dull and the prices were firm at the opening, in sympathy with other grains. Later the market eased off on realizing sales. December oats opened ¼c higher at 50¾c and sold at 50¼c. Local receipts were 287 cars.

The provisions market was steady because of a 5c advance in the price of live hogs. The market eased off somewhat at the end of the first hour. January pork opened 7½c higher at $14.77½ and sold at $14.67½. Lard was unchanged to 2½c higher, at $8.50 to $8.52½. Ribs were 2½c higher at $7.70.

Close: Wheat, December,, $1.00½; May, $1.07⅜. Corn, December, 58c; May, 59⅞c. Oats, December, 51¼c; May, 53¾c. Pork, January, $14.90; May, $15.20. Lard, January, $8.60; May, $8.77½. ### Minneapolis Flour.

Minneapolis, Oct. 26.—The flour market holds firm. There is a good domestic demand and a foreign trade in promising proportions. Buyers are constrained by the money market. They are carrying only moderate supplies and this keeps them in the market from day to day. The general impression is that the outlook for a good active conservative market is excellent. Shipments, 46,407 barrels. First patents, $5.70@5.80; second patents, $5.50@5.70; first clears, $4.50@4.60; second clears, $3.70@3.80.

Grain Gossip.

Chicago wheat letter: The market closed strong. At no time did the prices go lower than the closing figures of yesterday. It was an unsettled and nervous market with the best strength show after the New York stock market closed for the week. The results of the bank failures and tight money will no doubt be felt in commercial and trading circles all over the country for weeks, if not months to come. The fact that the bull leader could market the greater portion of his line of wheat during depressing financial period and have the offerings fairly well taken, together with the heavy foreign buying of wheat at the decline, gave reasons for the support which the market had today. Another feature was the strength at Minneapolis and Winnipeg early in the day. The grading of wheat at the Canadian city is showing less favorable and as the wheat begins to arrive from the frosted sections this may become an important factor with foreign as well as domestic buyers of wheat. Buyers should take great care to get in only on good breaks and then protect all trades against serious loss. It will take a liberal exchange of foreign gold for wheat and other commodities from this side to overcome existing financial conditions.

THREE ARE LEFT IN THE RACE

Coroner McCuen is "Dark Horse" in Mayoralty Race.

There is considerable interest in the Republican mass meeting to be held at the council chamber this evening and speculation is rife as to who will be selected to lead the party in the mayoralty battle soon to be launched.

The number of "eligibles" being considered has simmered down to three and it is now stated that it lies between Alderman Haven, Coroner McCuen and Alderman Staples.

Mr. McCuen has been touted as a "dark horse" in the game for some time and a recent interview with a Herald representative lent considerable color to the statement that he has reconsidered his determination to allow his name to be mentioned and may accept the honor. Alderman Haven has made a statement as well as Alderman Staples and the others who have been previously mentioned have given out that they will not be considered in the running.

Ex-mayor Hugo has been quite prominently mentioned, but a statement from him has not been obtainable, owing to his absence from the city.

The meeting tonight will be called at 8:30 o'clock by J. A. Hanks, chairman of the Republican city committee, and representatives from the different Republican clubs of the city will be present.

Some tenants are as bad as fire. Herald want advertise for the sort who have consciences.

STOCKS ARE STRONGER

Market Opened Firm and Higher and Closed Irregularly Strong.

Considerable Selling Followed the Early Advances in Prices.

New York, Oct. 26.—The stock market opened rather quiet and at higher prices than last night. Some of the gains were sharp, but as a rule the advances did not carry prices up to the early London quotations. There was a sprinkling of small losses. Louisville & Nashville rose 2¾; Amalgamated Copper, 2¼; Atlantic Coast Line, North American and General Electric, 2; Federal Mining preferred and American Locomotive, 1½; Consolidated Gas, 1¼; Union Pacific, St. Paul, Chicago Great Western preferred "A" and Anaconda, 1; Southern Railway, Atchison, Brooklyn Rapid Transit and American Smelting, large fractions.

The improvement in prices afforded opportunity to close out some accounts, and there was considerable selling which converged on the Hill stocks. Later on Reading and New York Central weakened, and in time the entire list became heavy with most stocks ruling below yesterday's closing. Great Northern preferred and Delaware & Hudson were quoted 2½ below last night; Northern Pacific, 2; American Sugar and Great Northern Ore Certificates, 1½; New York Central, 1⅜; Reading and Missouri Pacific, 1. Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg preferred sold 30 points below the previous sale in January. United States Realty advanced 3; Norfolk & Western, 2½; National Lead, 1.

The market closed irregularly strong. Prices fluctuated rather feverisnly after a rally on the showing of a small deficit in the bank statement, but selling pressure was not heavy and the market steadied again. There were wide changes in some inactive issues. American Smelting Securities preferred "B" rose 15; Mackay companies, 6; General Chemical preferred, 4; Westinghouse preferred and National Lead preferred, 2; Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis, 1¾; Pressed Steel Car, 1½; Chesapeake & Ohio and Kansas & Texas preferred, 1. United States Rubber second preferred declined 9½. New York Dock declined 5; Federal Mining preferred, 1½; American Car preferred, 3½; Colorado & Southern first preferred and Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred, 2½.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, New York, to Paine, Webber & Co.: The feeling in regard to the New York banking situation is somewhat improved, but the New York stocks were irregular. The bank statement was a very poor exhibit on account of the large reduction in surplus reserve and although the loss in cash holdings was apparently large, to our mind it is somewhat better than should be expected after the tremendous withdrawals of the past few days. The stock market is likely to continue nervous until the situation clarifies, but the tremendous short interest should be reckoned as somewhat of a sustaining influence at this level.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: The principal happening today was the announcement after the market closed of the determination of the New York clearing house to issue certificates. This measure has in past, notably in 1893, marked the beginning of the end of panics, but it must be realized it is an extreme and drastic measure and only resorted to as an extremity. The big bankers are also making strenuous efforts to get gold from abroad and as this country needs it worse just now than any other, foreign bankers seem willing to let it go, which will help. A rally ought to occur on the announcement of clearing house receipts, as it will make money obtainable at a price. If it is of any considerable extent, sales of speculative stocks should be made with the idea of buying back later.

At the same time the market offers a rare and unique opportunity for the investor, as prices and values even with a business reaction under way, are wider apart than ever before.

Copper affairs seem to be on the mend. The metal is at last finding a market and the local market gave a very good account of itself today.

* * *

Boston to Walter Carr: The market for Boston coppers opened firmer, apparently due to reports from Eastern producers to the effect that heavy sales of copper were made in Europe. One large selling agency today disposed of 6,000,000 pounds of copper compared with 4,500,000 pounds yesterday. Sales were made on a basis of 12¼c a pound for electrolytic, which is an advance of from ¼c to ⅝c per pound.

The market held quite steady through the early part of the session, later developed a further weakness, but without sensational features. Conditions generally are considered to be good and no trouble is anticipated. One concern reports sales of something like 40,000,000 pounds since the first of the month.

* * *

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was very satisfactory. We had no fireworks, but the general tone was strong and hopeful. We will have more money squeezes and erratic fluctuations next week, but the worst seems to be over. The coppers are completely liquidated and the only selling comes from profit taking and the investment buying is very large. Don't buy stocks on the rallies, but every time they decline can be safely bought. Copper Range, Shannon, Atlantic, are the best to buy. We advise exchanging Quincy for Osceola at the same price.

* * *

Hayden-Stone to Martin Rosendahl: Copper stocks strong and active, showing the sold-out condition of our market, and that the steady cash buying is telling. Activity is in North Butte, Butte Coalition, Utah, Copper Range and United States Smelting stocks. The metal market is better, in that sales are being made at 12¼c, and sentiment is more cheerful towards coppers.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 26.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: General demand for horses shows no improvement from the unusual dullness of the previous week. The active market of the fall of 1906 has given place to a most inactive condition this fall. The lumbering trade is very backward and while a number of logging horses will be needed, lumbermen show considerable hesitancy about selecting their horses. Retail trade has been of fair proportions. Barrett & Zimmerman have 150 head of big, young logging horses for sale at Spokane, Wash., and are located at the fair grounds there. Following low values rule:

The Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 26.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 7@13 points and sold off to a net loss of 12@16 points. The decline was checked by heavy demand for January, presumably for short accounts, and the market during the middle of the morning was nervous and irregular, but 2 or 3 points up from the lowest. The leading English authority estimates requirements of American cotton for the season at 12,500,000 bales.

Futures closed steady. Closing bids: October, 10.13; November, 10.11; December, 10.31; January, 10.10; February, 10.15; March, 10.17; April, 10.19; May, 10.21; June, 10.21; July, 10.21; August, 10.14. Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 10.55; middling gulf, 11.20. Sales none.

Bank Statement.

New York, Oct. 26.—The statements of clearing house banks for the week shows that the banks hold $1,222,500 less than the legal reserve required. This is a decrease of $12,415,950 as compared with last week. The statement follows: Loans $1,067,111,000, increase $10,864,700; deposits $1,022,772,000, decrease $1,939,400; circulation $51,398,300, decrease $214,100; legal tenders, $58,283,700, decrease $3,973,500; specie $196,426,000, decrease $5,527,300; reserve $254,709,700, decrease $12,960,800; reserve required $255,943,000, decrease $1,484,850; deficit, $1,222,300, decrease $12,415,950; surplus ex United States deposits $10,782,600, decrease $9,012,575.

New York Money.

New York Oct. 26.—Close: Money on call nominal. Time loans nominal; 60 days, 6½@7 per cent bid; 90 days, 7 per cent bid; six months, 6 per cent bid. Prime mercantile paper, 7@7½ per cent. Sterling exchange nominal with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.81.75@4.82.25 for demand and $4.75@4.78 for 60-day bills; commercial bills, $4.74@4.76. Bar silver, 65½c. Mexican dollars, 47½c. Government bonds very weak. Railroad bonds irregular.

Chicago Livestock.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Cattle, receipts about 300; market weak; beeves, $3.80@7.25; cows $1.20@5.00; calves, $5.00@7.50; Texans, $3.50@4.40; westerners, $3.20@7.25; stockers and feeders, $2.40@4.50. Hogs, receipts about 7,000; market 5c higher; light, $5.55@6.10; mixed, $5.50@6.25; heavy, $5.25@6.10; rough $5.25@6.40; pigs, $4.25@6.50; bulk of sales, $5.50@5.85. Sheep, receipts about 2,000; market weak; native, $2.70@5.50; western, $2.80@5.50; yearlings, $5.25@6.00; lambs, $4.50@7.25; western, $4.50@7.20.

The Berlin Bourse.

Berlin, Oct. 26.—Prices on the bourse today were depressed an dthere was little speculation. Domestic shares were slightly lower. The adverse conditions were attributed to the financial troubles in New York and at Santiago, Chile, where the gold premium has reached 70 per cent, the highest rate known there.

FACE BEATEN TO PULP.

Old Woodsman Given Rough Treatment by Hotel Clerk.

With his face beaten to a pulp, Joe Swanton, an old woodsman, appeared in the municipal court this morning to testify against George Koning, clerk of the Rising Sun hotel, who was charged with assaulting him.

According to the evidence in the case, Swanton has boarded at the hotel for years, and the proprietor himself stated that he has always been a quiet and orderly guest. Yesterday, however, he was a little the worse for liquor, and went to the hotel with a friend for supper. When they came from the dining room the clerk asked him for the price of the friend's

STREET CARS.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point, and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.

The fare for a continuous ride in one direction between any two points on either one of these lines is 5c.

The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passenger safely between points on the above mentioned lines.

This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has no better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and, therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.

The Petition of Peter Paripovich, having been filed in this court, representing among other things, that Peter Uselatz, then being a resident of the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, died intestate, in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of May 1907; leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said petitioner is a friend of said decedent, and praying that letters of administration of the estate of said decedent be granted to Pava Uselatz, brother-in-law of deceased.
IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth in said County on Monday the 18th day of November, 1907, at ten o'clock A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.
ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald according to law, and that a copy of this order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.
Dated at Duluth, Minn., October 25th, 1907.
By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.
(Seal Probate Court, St. Louis Co., Minn.)

REV. MOONEY TO MAKE ADDRESS

Clergyman Will be Speaker at St. Paul Elks' Service.

Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, rector of St. Luke's and Holy Apostles' Episcopal churches in Duluth, has been invited to make the principal address at the annual memorial services of the Elks' lodge of St. Paul, which will be held at the beautiful St. Paul auditorium on the first Sunday in December. Mr. Mooney has accepted.

The St. Paul lodge is the largest B. P. O. E. body in the state and the auditorium will doubtless be crowded.

Sunday, Dec. 1, is the day upon which all the Elks' lodges in the world conduct the annual memorial services for their dead, and they are invariably beautiful tributes.

Duluth lodge, No. 133, will hold its services at the Lyceum, at 2:30 in the afternoon of the date mentioned. The memorial address will be delivered by James B. Fisher of Jamestown, N. Y., past grand exalted ruler of the order and a speaker of ability. The committee in charge of the local services comprises John Cox, chairman, H. W. Andrige and Charles Goodrich.

As the Duluth lodge now has such a large number of members, the total enrollment being something like 725 names, it is proposed to have admission only by ticket, issued by the members.

RANGE COURT OPENS MONDAY

District Court Will Sit at Hibbing for First Time.

Next Monday the first term of the district court ever held on the range will open in the municipal court room at Hibbing, with Judge Cant presiding. The other court officials will be Clerk of Court J. P. Johnson and Sheriff W. J. Bates.

There are several cases for trial by the court, and it is expected that about a week will be required for the disposal of all the cases noted for trial.

The next term of range court will be held at Virginia next month.

UNITY CLUB MEETING.

Criminology and Penology Will be the Topic.

"Criminology and Penology" will be the subject discussed at the next meeting of the Unity club on Monday night, Oct. 28.

The leaders in the discussion will be Hon. W. A. Cant and Kerby S. Miller, each of whom have papers on the subject, which insures an able and brisk treatment of this interesting question. Members of the club will afterwards participate in the discussion.

These meetings are held at the Unity church, First street and Eighth avenue east, and are open to the general public.

PUT LID ON THE STORES

Commercial Club Objects to Trading on Sunday.

Move to Establish Branch Y. M. C. A. in West Duluth.

The West Duluth Commercial club, at its regular weekly meeting last night, passed a resolution calling upon the mayor and chief of police to clamp the lid on clothing stores in West Duluth, postponed action defining the club's position on the courthouse plans, discussed the possibility of securing a branch Y. M. C. A. for West Duluth, and talked over the widening of Jenswold street, without taking any action on it.

The principal discussion of the evening was over the clothing store "lid." The sentiment among those present was undoubtedly for the closing of the stores on Sunday, but a question arose as to whether the club should take action, or leave it to the merchants who close their stores on Sunday and want the smaller dealers to close also. In defense of their position, the dealers who keep open have repeatedly said that many people come to West Duluth on Sunday who canont possibly do so during the week, and they open their doors for the accommodation of those visitors.

A resolution was prepared and offered, calling upon the mayor and chief of police to take the necessary action. There was considerable discussion, after which a standing vote was taken, the motion being carried by one vote. Several members did not vote.

The committee appointed last week to secure figures on the different plans for grouping the public buildings, reported that it was not ready for a report, and action was postponed for another week.

The position of West Duluth's young men was defined by one of the members present. He said they have no place to spend their leisure hours, except in their homes or in a saloon. He said some such institution as a branch Y. M. C. A. should be provided for them. It was brought out that some time ago a lot was deeded to the Y. M. C. A. with the condition that the association provide West Duluth with a branch. Thus far, nothing has been done in the matter. No action was taken last night, but it is probable that before long some provision will be made, either for the erection of a new building, or the securing of other quarters for a branch of the association.

The widening of Jenswold street was discussed in a general way. J. J. Frey suggested that the Wisconsin Central Railway company would probably be willing to remove the necessary earth, on condition that they be allowed to use it for some of the fills between West Duluth and Duluth. Others thought that the earth should be used in filling some of the ravines on Oneota street to do away with the old wooden bridges. The hour grew late and the meeting adjourned, without any action being taken.

SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR.

"Social of Seasons" Proves a Popular Entertainment.

The first of a series of social affairs, to be given during the winter months by the young ladies of St. Mary's Guild of Holy Apostles' Episcopal church, was held last evening at the rectory, 634 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, and was a brilliant event. Socially, it was probably the most successful affair of its kind ever held in West Duluth. There was a large crowd present, the best of good feeling prevailed, and the young ladies proved themselves entertaining hostesses.

The social was a "Social of the Seasons," with four rooms fitted out and decorated to represent the respective seasons. The guests were led through the respective seasons, living "a year in a night," though the time fled all too swiftly. In each room different forms of entertainment were provided. An arc light over the main entrance of the rectory added brilliance to the scene, as viewed from without, and the lights were shaded to give a sunset effect. Pumpkins and other harbingers of the autumn season were spread around the room and among them. Miss Cora Campbell acted as hostess.

In the second room, Miss Edith Campbell presided over a winter scene. The parlor walls were hung in balsam boughs, with simulated snow shining with tinsel. A decorated Christmas tree made the scene more realistic, and the usual line of stockings was hung before the grate. Chocolate and wafers were served to the visitors.

Green potted plants were used in decorating the third room, for spring. Miss Ethel Wright had charge of the fish pond, and Miss Hilda A. Johnson held forth in another corner of the room with a summer kitchen.

Myriads of flowers gave the fourth room a summery appearance. Miss Flossie Ohlke served ice cream, Miss Bessie Smith was an original gypsy fortune teller. Miss Adele McClaran gave a reading, and Miss Ethelyn Abbott acceptably rendered several vocal selections.

The second affair of the series will be arranged soon.

MOVING OLD BUILDING.

Merrill & Ring Barns Will Serve as Warehouse.

The old barn, which for many years quartered the horses of the Merrill & Ring company near the mill at the eastern extremity of Main street, has been torn from its site and is being dragged along Fifty-fourth avenue to a new site, where it will do duty other than sheltering stock.

The building is owned by Dr. David Graham, and it will be placed on lots on the west side of Fifty-fourth avenue, just north of Ramsey street. It was rumored this morning that the frame of the building would be utilized in the construction of a modern apartment house, but Dr. Graham quieted the rumor by saying the building would be used for storage purposes for some time to come, at least.

The building is 90x50 feet, and moving several blocks is no light task. For the time being, it completely blocks Fifty-fourth avenue, as the roadway is only fifty feet in width and the barn extends across the entire street. It is rapidly nearing its new site, however, and will be placed there next week.

Doherty Dismissed.

John Doherty was arraigned before Justice J. B. Flack last evening in complaint of James Burke, his brother-in-law, who wanted him bound over to keep the peace. Burke claimed that Doherty threatened to do him bodily harm and "put a head on him." Justice Flack couldn't see evidence enough to warrant taking the action desired and he dismissed the case. Harry W. Lanners appeared for Doherty.

Sentence Suspended.

Lawrence Cunningham of Fifty-fourth avenue west and Ramsey street celebrated his release from the county jail yesterday. Cunningham was arrested a few days on a common drunk charge and took three days on the hill. When he was released he immediately proceeded to get on another load. He arrived home last night and got into an altercation with his wife. The woman was coming out second best, so she went to the police station and had the man arrested. He was arraigned before Justice Flack this morning on a drunk and disorderly charge and was found guilty. The judge assessed a fine of $2 and costs, but Cunningham pleaded hard for a suspended sentence, promising to reform, and the judge relented. Sentence was suspended and the pair left the courtroom.

Child Passes Away.

Lillian May, the 5 months old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. S. S. Shannon of 405 North Fifty-seventh avenue west, died yesterday after a short illness. The funeral will be held this afternoon with services at the home at 2 o'clock, by Rev. S. G. Briggs, pastor of Merritt Memorial M. E. church and interment in Oneota cemetery.

Benn-McNiel Marriage.

Perley McNiel and Miss Ida Benn, both of West Duluth, were united in marriage Thursday evening at the home of Rev. S. G. Brigs, 4227 Grand avenue. The ceremony was performed about 9 p. m. by Rev. Briggs in the presence of only the legal number of witnesses. The bride resided at Thirty-ninth avenue west and Magellan street, and both are well known in West Duluth.

In West Duluth Churches.

The pastor will preach at both services tomorrow at Asbury M. E. church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street. At the morning service at 10:30, the sermon topic will be "The Gap in the Line," and at the night service at 8:00, the topic will be "The Greatest Thing in the World." There will be a solo by Mr. Ray Abbott, entitled "Crossing the Bar." Sunday school meets at 11:45 a. m., and Epworth League at 7:00 p. m.

* * *

At Holy Apostles' Episcopal church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Elinor street, Sunday schol will meet at 11:30 a. m., William E. Cowden, superintendent. There will be evening prayer and sermon at 7:45 p. m., subject of sermon: "All Saints' Day—A Lesson." The music will be as follows:

Processional—"Onward, Christian Soldiers" .....
Gloria ..... Mendelssohn
Magnificat ..... Smart
Nunc Dimitis ..... Gregorian
Hymn—"Nearer My God to Thee"
Solo—"Rest All Souls".....Schubert
Orison—"The Day is Gently Sinking" .....
Miss Ethelyn Abbott, choir leader.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Excellent Progress on Property of American Tungsten Company---New Style of Placer Machinery Tried at Rapid City.

Hill City, S. D., Oct. 26.—President John Truax of the American Tungsten Mining company reports excellent progress on his property, which is situated about five miles east of Hill City. During the last few years the American Tungsten company has made some interesting experiments with tungsten, for which there is a growing field. There is a finely equipped mill on the property which is capable of treating fifty tons a day. A shaft has been sunk over 100 feet, from which level a drift was run and a body of tungsten encountered. Further development of this vein is indicating the presence of a considerable quantity. Tungsten is used in the hardening of steel, and the market demands more than can be supplied.

Keyston, S. D., Oct. 26.—If the operation of a new style of placer mining machinery just installed here by the Downie-Wright company of Rapid City proves as successful as anticipated, placer mining in this section of the country at least will be revolutionized. The new device consists of four sluice boxes, ten feet long and three and one-half feet wide, arranged one above the other and each tilted at opposite ends to allow fall enough for the gravel to wash easily from the box to the next. The length of boxes resembles, in cattlemen's parlance, a lazy W. Above the top sluice box is a funnel shaped box into which is thrown the dirt, and below this is a grizzly to separate the large rocks from the boxes. Power is furnished by a four-horse gasoline engine, which keeps the three top boxes shaking constantly like a concentrating table. A screen, the meshes of which can be changed in size, separates the large pebbles from the valueless sand is washed out of this by the water leaving the plate. The machine is unusually light in weight, is built in sections and can be readily moved, it is inexpensive and requires little power.

It is the intention of the company to save the black sand, which, if it proves of value, will be run over concentrating tables. The machine is equipped for an all winter run, and when severe weather sets in it will be housed. Seventy-five men will be employed to keep the machine supplied with dirt from the extensive placer holdings the company has secured on Battle Creek, three miles below town. The creek bed is full of tailings from the early day workings of the Holy Terror mine, which produced some of the highest grade stuffed the Hills has ever had. For years men with simple sluice devices have worked the creek bed and made good wages, and it is believed that with the new machine large profits can be obtained from the coarse tailings that years ago could not be handled and were allowed to run to waste. This winter the company will tunnel into the hill near the creek and take dirt from near the bedrock. Next summer it will allow the tunnel to cave in and then wash all the gravel through the mill.

Deadwod, S. D., Oct. 26.—The Reliance Gold Mining company has taken up some active development work on its other properties located in Pennington and Custer counties in the central and southern hills, and these now bid fair to prove as valuable as the ground in Bald mountain. On one group of claims, situated two miles south of Oreville, near where the Clara Belle property has found some good ore in the past, the Reliance has opened up a gold ledge that asays about $4 per ton. Further south, on another group located eight miles west of Custer, tin has been struck in connection with the gold ore. The Reliance company found the tin in a drift off a fifty-foot shaft.

TO PASS NOVEMBER DIVIDEND

So Says President of Snowstorm Mining Company---Laying in Winter Supplies and Needed Improvements Take Much Money.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 26.—Thomas L. Greenough of Missoula, Mont., president of the Snowstorm Mining company, operating in the Coeur d'Alen district, east of Spokane, has given out this statement:

"It is probable that the Snowstorm dividend of $45,000 for November will be passed the same as was that for October. This is the season of the year when supplies for the winter must be laid in at the camp. Aside from supplies we have spent $50,000 in making improvements at the mine.

"The present prices of copper will have no effect on the Snowstorm mine unless all smelters in the vicinity are forced to curtail their output and later close down. The mine then necessarily will have to be closed because of not having a market for its ores. There is enough ore blocked out at the mine to keep the mill and mine running for the next three years, producing ore averaging 5 per cent. The supply is almost inexhaustible and there is no probability of the mine working out.

"Prices at which copper is now selling can not prevail long. It is evident that at 26 cents copper was selling too high, and is now taking the reaction, and the market price is entirely too low. With the metal selling at 18 or 20 cents, both producer and consumer would be satisfied. If the present prices prevail for any length of time the producers will begin to seriously curtail their output, when the brunt will be borne by the consumer, placing the shoe on the other foot.

"Extensive improvements in the way of office buildings, bunk houses and mine machinery, which have been added to the equipment of the Snowstorm mine, during the summer season, have necessarily taken a large amount of money, a part of which comes out of the monthly dividend. Mines of the quality and size of the Enowstorm should have a surplus on hand, but as yet we have not accumulated that."

BODY OF RICH ORE IS STRUCK

On West End of Daisy Grand---Great Strike on Cyclone Group at Fairview---Ely Mines Reducing Forces.

Goldfield, Nev., Oct. 26.—A body of rich ore has been encountered in the lease of the Daisy Leasing company on the west end of the Daisy ground. Average values taken from a full face range, principally in gold, from $251 to $585.

Two leasing companies, the Mohawk-Jumbo and the Francis-Mohawk, distributed dividends on Oct. 1, the former $60,000 and the latter $91,000. A dividend of $100,000 is expected from the Little Florence before the end of the month.

Fairview, Nev., Oct. 26.—A great strike has been made on the Cyclone group of claims, which is owned by John Harman and adjoins the St. Paul, Golden Boulder, Lena, Oro Plata, Ida, and Golden Slipper properties. The strike was made on the Cyclone claim proper.

A perpendicular shaft has been sunk on this claim, and drifts from the 100 level have been run east and west. In these drifts four feet of ore has been uncovered in places. The rock is fairly peppered with free gold. The ore will average $200 a ton for the entire four feet. This statement is confirmed by leading mine owners who have inspected the workings.

A sensational strike has also been reported on the Nevada Fairview, which is situated four miles due south of the Reliance and fully three miles south of the Mizpah. The ore is reported there to run better than $400 to the ton. Half the camp has left for the scene to investigate.

New York and Philadelphia and Fallon capitalists, including Robert L. Douglas and I. H. Kent of Fallon, have purchased the Mizpah group of claims on which a sensational strike was made two weeks ago. The price paid was $125,000.

Ely, Nev., Oct. 26.—Ely mines are reducing their forces. The Giroux Consolidated has dismissed 100 men and the Nevada Consolidated company has made a material reduction of its working forces at the Ruth and the Veteran Ely mines. At the Veteran fifty miners were discharged. It had been generally understood that the force was to be increased. At the Ruth and Star Pointer shafts about forty miners were dismissed.

In the Rickard-Ely, according to report a churn drill has struck a stratum of native copper at a depth of 1,051 feet. It is said to be the richest ore in the district.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 26.—The old camp of Hamilton, forty miles from Eureka and the same distance from Ely has awakened from its long sleep. Old mines, deserted for years, are being reopened and new mines are being developed. The first discovery was made in 1864 and the ores were rich in silver and lead. Altogether the district is credited with a production of $45,000,000. The Bambergers of Salt Lake have bought the Ne Plus Ultra for $30,000 and enough silver lead ore is in sight, it is said, to pay the purchase price. The Rocco-Homestake, across the gulch, has been paying dividends since it was reopened, four years ago. Other old mines give equal promise.

PROMOTERS OF BARNES-KING

Divided $640,000, Says a Mining Man of Helena---They Receive a Commission From Both Buyer and Seller.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 26.—Six hundred and forty thousand dollars is the amount which the promoters of the Barnes-King deal cleaned up, according to a mining man who made a statement with the agreement that his name would not be used. He is in a position to know concerning the deal.

He stated that the owners of the property received $1,200,000 for the mine. Of this sum $240,000 was given the promoters as a commission for selling the property. An additional $200,000 was received by the promoters from the new company for expenses incident to the transfer, and still another $200,000 was secured by them from the new company for having negotiated the sale of the Barnes-King. In other words, they received a commission from both buyer and seller.

Continuing, this man stated that it was his opinion that the property was all right. He said that he believed there had been poor management on the part of the company and that the mine was not understood.

"The men who took hold of the property were more used to permanent ore bodies," he remarked. "The veins in the Barnes-King are of the pocket or blanket formation. One place there is much ore and a few feet further there is none. This is the way the mine has always been.

"The new management has been going for $20-rock and ignoring entirely the lower grades of $2, $3 and $4 rock. This, I understand, was figured in by the engineers who reported on the property. What the company should do is to erect a mill where this low grade ore can be economically treated."

He said that with the exception of three or four months, when repairs and other work necessitated a shutdown, the mine paid a dividend every month under Barnes & King. He said he is convinced the property is still a good one.

The man who made this statement has never been connected officially in any way with the Barnes-King, though knowing a great deal of its affairs.

CALUMET & SONORA COMPANY

Purchases Sixty-Four Pertenencias of Mineral Land Said to Be Rich in Copper and Silver Ore—Important Strike of Gold Ore in Sonora Mine.

Cananea, Mex., Oct. 26.—Although it is popularly supposed that there is little doing in the way of mining transfers in Cananea at present, a large and very encouraging sale, involving the payment of $25,000 gold, is reported to have been put through. George W. Sanders, well known promoter, manipulated the deal, which caused the Calumet & Sonora company to purchase sixty-four pertenencias of mineral land, known as "La Piamonte" group, from Frisco Arnaldo for the sum mentioned.

The most encouraging portion of the sale is the confidence in the camp, its mineralization and future expressed by the purchasers in the transaction, as not a foot of development work had been done on the group, and it was on the merits of the surrounding properties that it was bought. The property is situated about three-quarters of a mile from the smelter, in a northerly direction, and lies in a portion of the camp generally accepted as being heavily mineralized. It is understood that the purchasers will shortly begin development work on their new acquisition.

The largest strike of gold, and in fact the only one of consequence which has been made within a radius of 100 miles, known to have been made at the Hole mine, the property of D. T. Green and J. A. Wilson of this city, situated two miles southeast of the Ojo de Agua, by an assay showing their ore to run 7.2 ounces silver, 10.72 gold, and 34 per cent lead to the ton. The assay is merely an average one, Mr. Green states.

The Hole property is one that has a history hard to realize, in view of the discovery of the rich values the ore carries, but on account of a dispute over the running expenses of the property it was practically abandoned five years ago, after being worked for less than a year, and was taken only recently by Wilson and Green.

Two shafts, one of forty feet and the other down ninety feet, are on the property. It was in the shallower one that the gold-bearing quartz was discovered. There has been considerable drifting and crosscutting.

The gold-bearing quartz is in a rich vein about three feet wide, it is stated, traversing and splitting the veing of galena, which was considered the notable feature of this mine. So poor looking is the rock that hitherto it has been practically thrown away in order to get out the galena and other mineralized rock which was in startling evidence.

It occurred to Green a few days ago that he had never had this rock assayed and in taking it to the office, as an after thought, he requested that it be run for gold, as well as silver and lead. He expected to find only a small trace, if any of the precious yellow metal, and his surprise and joy can well be imagined when the result of the assay was announced, and he found himself possessor of a fabulously rich proposition.

Just what steps toward development they will take in future has not been announced as yet, but it is probable that the owners will set about the development of the property on a large scale in the immediate future.

G. C. Eastman, for some time connected with the Golindrena Mining company, last week disposed of all of his interests in that company to J. H. Bishop, president of the concern, for a good figure. Included in the sale were several mining claims, a list being comprised of the Red Ant, P. E. M. X., Eastman, Havens and Courtis. These claims are scattered in various directions in this vicinity, the P. E. M. X. being located near the Capote of the Greene-Cananea company, and the others near the Ojo de Agua, while still others are in the Manzanal mountains. Mr. Eastman will not leave this section, but will devote his time and energies to the development of the San Francisco and Fortuna properties, which he states, present good showings in lead and silver. The amount of stock in the Golindrina company which was disposed of by Mr. Eastman, was more than 11,000 shares. The Golindrina is looked upon as a good proposition, it is stated, as it borders the famous Las Chispas mine on three sides.

The Las Chispas, the wonderful Arizpe mine, which has brought riches to its stockholders in the past, is troubled at present by a great shortage in wagons for transporting their ore, having on hand a large reserve awaiting transportation. This was the statement of Antonio Pedrazzini, nephew of the principal stockholders in the company and assayer there. Work on both the Carman and Grinedette claims, is proceeding well at present, mining and development steadily carried out resulting in good ore finds. The total production last month was 50 tons of concentrating matter and from 60 to 70 tons of high grade shipping ore.

At the Democrata mine, little of interest is to be noted in connection with the past week. Development and mining work being carried on steadily with average results. The new smelter furnace which is being installed will be completed shortly, but work is at present held up in a slight degree on account of the non-arrival of material from El Paso. The furnace when completed will have a daily capacity of 250 tons.

On both the Catallan and Norton claims of the Calumet & Sonora company, work is reported to be well under way with good results. This is especially true of the Norton claim, it is stated, ore having been encountered in the shaft which carries on the average 100 ounces in silver, 2 per cent copper, and a slight tinge of lead and gold. The shaft is now down to a depth of sixty feet.

At the Ortega mine of the Southwestern company work is going ahead steadily in the new opened ore body in the tunnel. Superintendent Morse states: "The ore encountered continues to increase in worth as work increases."

VEINS EXTEND ACROSS FLAT

Colusa-Leonard Extension Proves Continuity of Butte Hill Ore Deposits—Commercial Ore Opened on Two Lower Levels—After Ore Bodies in the Butte & London.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 26.—Developments which, with copper on the basis of six months ago, would have created wide interest in all of the properties on the flat east of the city, have been made in the Colusa-Leonard Extension ground during the past week. Copper in commercial quantities has been opened up on the 600 and 800-foot levels of this property, much to the delight of the management and to the people interested in all of the surrounding properties. The theory that the big veins of the hill extend across the flat has evidently been proved. With very little more development it would be possible for the Colusa-Leonard Extension company to take out from fifty to 100 tons of ore a day, the ore running nearly 11 per cent copper on the 600-foot level, and about 3 per cent, at the present time, on the 800-foot level, and on both levels there are also good silver values.

Five distinct veins have been encountered, all of them showing better width and values as depth is attained, and in order to get great stoping ground it is the policy of the company to sink the shaft, which is of two compartments, to a depth of at least 1,200 feet.

On the 600-foot level the cross-cut running north has opened up a two-foot vein of sulphide ore which carried nearly 11 per cent copper, the assay having been made from an average of the ore taken across the vein. A drift is now being run along the vein, and it is expected that a large ore body will be opened in a very short time. A cross-cut is also being run from the south side of the shaft on this level, which the management has every confidence will cut a rich vein.

The cross-cut which was run south from the shaft at the 800-foot level, has exposed a wide ledge in which there is a four-foot vein of sulphide ore. The greater part or this is milling ore, however, but with depth there is every indication that high values in smelting ore will be found. A drift is being run along the vein on this level in order that the ore may be blocked out. The dip of the vein is about eighty degrees, and at the rate with which it has widened out in the last 200 feet it seems certain that rich ore bodies will be opened at depth.

Directly east of the main shaft on the Colusa-Leonard ground is located the Sinbad claim, which is owned by the Colusa-Leonard, and which, at a depth of 500 feet, disclosed magnificent values. A vein carrying considerable copper glance was opened by a drift extending about 107 feet toward the main shaft, and to reach this ore deposit a drift is now being run on the vein on the 600-foot level of the Colusa-Leonard.

The property was visited last week by M. J. O'Shaughnessy, of the firm of Tracy & Co. of New York, which owns a controlling interest, and H. C. Deihl of New York and B. E. Wade of Chicago, heavy stockholders. They were highly pleased with the present stage of development, and expressed the belief that with a settlement of the copper situation the property will be in the producing class.

The foundation for the new first motion hoist has been completed, the new hoist is expected to arrive early next month. The timbers are already on the ground for the new gallows frame, which will be seventy feet in height. Other improvements are also under way, so that when the copper market improves and production is resumed, the Colusa-Leonard will be in position to work its property on an operating basis.

* * *

The Butte & London Copper Development company has started crosscutting from the 1,100-foot station, and, if the expectations of the management are realized, at least one vein of commercial ore will be cut within a month or six weeks. The company has information, based on measurements, that the vein cut in the Greenleaf shaft by the Boston & Montana company, at a depth of 840 feet, strikes through the ground of the Butte & London company a short way south of the shaft, and it is this vein that will probably be cut first. The vein in the Greenleaf is fifteen feet wide where cut in the shaft and carries good ore. The Boston & Montana, it is said, is preparing to crosscut to the vein at the 1,000-foot level.

It had been the original intention of the Butte & London to sink its shaft 1,500 feet deep, but, on the advice of H. V. Winchell, consulting engineer of the company, it was concluded to run one crosscut at the 1,100-foot level, where a big station was cut on either side of the shaft, and the crosscutting has started. Mr. Winchell is also consulting engineer for the Pittsburg & Montana company, and that company having found its best ore and largest ore bodies on the 800-foot level, east of the crosscut connecting the two shafts, the conclusion reached by him is that the Butte & London stands as good a show of finding ore at the 1,100 as it does to find it at the 1,500. The Pittsburg & Montana ore bodies on the 800 are south and east of the Butte & London shaft.

The Butte & London has a large area of ground, which is in line with several of the big veins on the hill, and the natural conclusion is that they cannot miss passing through the Butte & London property. The crosscuts will be extended both north and south far enough to thoroughly explore the ground at that depth.

The 1,800-foot level of the Edith May vein of the North Butte, has been practically demonstrated to be a con-

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Jones and Laughlin Steel Company Extends Its Mining Interests to Menominee Range by Acquiring the Dickie Exploration—Old Metropolitan and Northwestern Mines to be Reopened.

Purchasing the option to the so-called Dickie exploration, held by George A. St. Clair of Duluth, and acquiring the entire plant of buildings and machinery, the Jones & Laughlin Steel company of Pittsburg has extended its interests in the Lake Superior region to the Menominee range. The company has a large mine at Ishpeming and another at Negaunee, on the Marquette range, and it has important holdings on the Mesaba, in addition to which it is engaged in opening mines on the Wisconsin end of the Gogebic range, out up to the present time it has not entered the field on the Menominee.

The Dickie property is a tract of eighty acres in Section 24, 40-17, four miles west of the town of Florence, Wis. It was recently examined by Jones & Laughlin mining engineers, and on the strength of their reports the exploration was taken over. It is the understanding that a considerable body of low grade ore, suitable for use in open-hearth iron manufacture, has already been proved up, with indications the deposit will be found of much more important proportions. The shaft is down 100 feet. It will be sunk 300 feet further, and in addition much drifting will be done and the diamond drill will be employed.

It will be surprising if a mine of considerable proportions is not opened. Florence county is considered a likely field for the prospector, yet since the opening of the range it has been very largely neglected. There has been some exploration in scattered localities, but the work has generally been done by small individual interests lacking in capital and many promising properties have not been given the test they merited. It has long been commended as a peculiar fact that whereas the Menominee range formation cuts through Florence county, only two mines have ever been opened, those at Florence and Commonwealth, distant two miles one from the other, while on either side, in Michigan territory, important groups of producing properties have been developed in Iron county on the west, and Dickinson county on the easts.

Mr. St. Clair began work in Florence county about a year ago, and to date he has expended $25,000 or $30,000 in section 24. He has under option a second eighty-acre tract in that section. The St. Clair interests have had remarkable success in finding ore in lands discredited by other operators, notably so on the Mesaba, to which they have largely confined their operations, and they have rejuvenated more than one mine held worked-out and practically worthless. Just at present they are meeting with marked success in their mining operations on the Eastern Mesaba, a field that had been abandoned for many years.

Both the old Metropolitan and Northwestern mines, on the Menominee range, are to be reopened by Mr. St. Clair, preliminary operations to this end now being in progress. These properties are neighbors, adjoining in section 32-42-28, in the Felch mountain district, northeast of Iron Mountain, and they have not been wrought for many years. The Metropolitan was the principal mine in the field in the days when mines were working there. It was opened in 1882 and closed in 1888, achieving a total production of only 107,000 tons in seven years' work. It made no money for its owner, the Metropolitan Iron & Land company, but the company vastly more than recouped itself when it secured control of the big Norrie mine on the Gogebic range. The ore at the Metropolitan was of fairly good quality, but it was scarce.

The Northwestern mined 17,000 tons in 1883 and 1884. It was reopened some ten years ago. Considerable development work was done, and it is said that a large deposit of 50 per cent ore was located, but there was no market for a product of that grade at that time. Mr. St. Clair has been successful in securing control of a large tract of land in the vicinity, including the old Metropolitan, and it is understood to be his intention to sink the several shafts to a much greater depth. He is hopeful of finding a grade of ore carrying a higher percentage of iron.

The Chicago property, an old-time exploration in Iron county, Menominee range, has been taken over by the Buffalo & Susquehanna company and will be given a thorough test. The tract is located in section 26-43-34, east of Iron River and west of Crystal Falls, and was first explored as far back as 1882. It was abandoned shortly and remained idle until some work was done there in 1900 by the Stee icorporation interests. There is mixed ore in the shaft. The property is well located on the formation. The Buffalo & Susquehanna company will erect buildings, install machinery and proceed with exploratory operations throughout the winter. The same company has taken an option on the Fesing property, south of Corrigan, McKinney & Co.'s Dunn mine, in the Crystal Falls district, and will systematically test the mineral possibilities of that tract also. The general offices of the Buffalo & Susquehanna in the Lake Superior region are to be removed from Hibbing, Mesaba range, to Iron River, Mich., where a building is now being remodelled for their accommodation. George L. Woodworth, M. E., is the general superintendent.

Now that the contract has been awarded for the construction of the canal into which the Sturgeon river is to be divided, and the work of excavation is to start at once, all operations

MINE PAYS $51,992 ROYALTY

O'Brien Company of Cobalt Sends Check to Ontario Government Covering Three Months' Operations ---Bailey Cobalt's Good Strike.

New York, Oct. 26.—A Cobalt, Ont., dispatch to th Commercial says: The O'Brien Mining company has sent to the government a check for $51,992, the royalty for the three months ended Sept. 30. The royalty is on the basis of 25 per cent of the value of the ore mined, less certain charges for the handling. The agreement under which it is paid was made last fall, and the aggregate paid to the government since December, including the amount mentioned, is $222,945.06.

The Bailey Cobalt reports having made a good strike in the shape of a 15-inch vein of decomposed calcite, cobalt and silver. The strike was made close to No. 2 tunnel, on the top of the hill. Supt. Minard will sink a shaft on the new vein. The Bailey Cobalt made another important find last week in a drift from No. 1 tunnel, about 100 feet in. This strike comprises three veins, one calcite and two cobalt, smaltite and silver. All three carry native silver, and will make eighteen inches of No. 1 shipping ore at this point. Another vein about 150 feet in on No. 1 tunnel, is about eight inches wide and very promising.

The Temiskaming Mining company is making great progress in its development work. The main shaft is down 200 feet, and every foot further new silver deposits are being opened. Of three cars of ore shipped by the mine, the first is worth $125,000, and the other two are worth $225,000. Another car will be shipped this month, two in November and two in December. Crosscutting will be commenced at the 200-foot level to open the big vein. It is said on good authority that the company will soon pay an initial dividend.

The McKinley-Darragh mine is developing some rich ore and its concentrator will soon be giving effective results.

W. H. Hawley, who has had fifteen years' experience as a metallurgist in the West and Mexico, has been appointed to take charge of the metallurgical affairs and smelting operations of the Nipissing Mines company. He will have headquarters in New York.

THE KEWEENAW COPPER COMPANY

Developments at Medora Tract During Past Few Weeks Have Been of Encouraging Nature--- Plans for the Winter.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 26.—As depth is attained the showing at the Medora shaft of the Keweenaw Copper company grows better. The shaft has attained a depth of 865 feet, and is bottomed in one of the richest amygdaloid lodes ever opened in the Lake Superior district. The shaft is going down at the rate of at least one level per month, and is equipped with a hoist which is of sufficient size to carry it down to about 4,000 feet. The equipment in the way of compressors, etc., is likewise enough to meet every demand upon it for a year or more to come. The shaft is of two compartments, although theer is but one in use for the present.

It is the plan of the management to continue this winter with from ten to twelve drills regularly. There are now about 3,700 feet of openings at the Medora shaft, practically every foot of which shows excellent stamp rock. The character of the rock is very encouraging. Less calcite appears in it at the bottom than was noticed in the upper workings. The vein is also subject to less fissure intrusions than heretofore, and begins to show what it will do when it operates at still greater depth.

A station is to be cut at a depth of 350 feet for one of the sub-levels. The main level is at a depth of 775 feet. Drifting at this point is under way, and an excellent grade of rock is being blasted out. It is the rock in the bottom of the shaft which is causing the management so much gratification. It is of a rich chocolate color, shot heavily with copper. The rock resembles that hoisted from the Ahmeek, only appears to contain more copper. Pieces selected at random and broken into fragments plainly show the bright particles of the red metal.

It is the intention of the Keweenaw management to vigorously pursue the present course of development work, and when next spring is here the shaft will have reached a depth of about 1,200 feet, sufficient to clearly demonstrate the fact that Keewenaw county has never been given an opportunity to display the fact that there are to be found there some excellent copper deposits.

RICH YUKON PLACER GROUND

In Hunter Valley Not All Secured by Guggenheims' Agents---Ester Creek is the Scene of the Latest Strike.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 26.—Advices from Dawson state that although the Gugenheims' agents have done some close bargaining to obtain control of the rich placer ground on Hunker and Bonanza creeks, it is understood among local mining men that they do not begin to own all the rich sand bars in the Hunker valley. Among the well known creeks not obtained by these operators are the Hester, Gold Bottom and Last Chance. Along the Stewart river the controlling interest is in the hands of the Yukon Basin Gold Dredging company, whose concessions from the Canadian government include 105 miles of river frontage, or about 10,000 acres of rich dredging ground where aveargе values are said to run well over $1 per cubic yard. According to recent reports of Canadian government experts, the Yukon placer fields are of practically inexhaustible richness. By approved methods of operation by dredging these values are now capable of being recovered in commercial quantities.

The Moiser drege at Forty-mile is working in ground that averages $11 a yard.

A despatch from Chena says: Ester Creek is the latest scene of rich strikes. In a prospecting shaft on S-b Ester the claim of Berry Bros., formerly owned by George Gates of Chena, the workmen on Tuesday uncovered dirt four feet above bedrock that is said to run as high as $11 to the pan and that will average $6 to the pan. The claim was originally of Chena ownership. George Gates sold it to the Berrys and has regretted the fact ever since. It has turned out to be one of the richest claims in the Tanana.

The latest reports from the Chandlar district brought out by a miner who worked there seven months are encouraging. Ernest Nelhoff says that many individual claim owners have taken out from $4,000 to $9,000 each during the early part of the season, that is up to July 26, the date when Nothoff left. Yosetа, a Japanese, has ground that is yielding $100 a day to the shovel.

The Nabesna region, in the towering group of summits around Mount Wrangell, is the latest scene of copper discoveries in Alaska. There are but six parties, agregating seventeen men, in the whole district. There is one assayer there, and the mountains are huge deposits running 6 per cent copper, with occasional ledges of bornite running up to 60 per cent copper. The huge obstacle to development is the enormous cost of transporting supplies.

The output of the Tanana district for the year may equal or even exceed that of last year. The three banks at Fairbanks have already taken in very nearly $6,000,000 in dust and they estimate their receipts for the balance of the year on a conservative basis at two and one-half millions more.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT

Leasers on the Christmas Mine Declare Another Dividend---New Vein Opened by Leasers on the Adney Property.

Cripple Creek, Colo., Oct. 26.—The leasing firm of Becker & Travell, operating on the Christmas mine, has announced a dividend of $1,000 payable in October. The total disbursements to date are $10,000.

The Vindicator Consolidated Gold Mining company has declared an extra dividend of 1 cent a share for Oct. 25 in addition to the regular quarterly of 3 cents. The total for the two is $60,000. The company has disbursed to date $1,710,000.

The first shipment from the ore shoot recently opened on Stratton's Independence mine, Cripple Creek, consists of two carloads of $60 to $100 a ton gold values.

In the Elkton mine ore is being mined south and west of the shaft on the first, second, third, fifth and seventh levels, where ore is being broken down from 4 to 18 feet wide. The ore is of a good grade and is estimated at $50 per ton. The company is working one shift of men and is outputting 1,200 to 1,500 tons monthly.

The Ironmaster Leasing company, operating on the Ironmaster claim of the Jack Pot company, is in a new ore shoot 3 feet wide, which has been followed 70 feet. Cross vein values approximate $20 per ton.

The C. O. D. Leasing company, which holds a long time lease on the C. O. D. mine in Poverty gulch, will sink the shaft 100 feet to 1,000 feet depth, rebuild the shaft house recently burned and install new machinery. The mine adjoins the famous El Paso Gold King, the first shipper of the camp.

Burke and associates, operating on the Henry Adney property on the west slope of Beacon hill, are reported to have opened up a new vein in the mine at a depth of 550 feet. The vein just encountered measures two feet between walls and carries values from one and one-half to seventeen ounces in gold to the ton. This is the third gold body opened in the Henry Adney within the last ninety days. The vein, supposed to be an entirely new one, may be the extension of the rich shoot encountered about two weeks ago in the Old Gold property. The strike was made today while development work was being done on the vein opened in the Adney about a month ago. Burke and associates are making regular shipments and are getting returns of from $50 to $110 in gold to the ton.

J. O. Carper, operating on the War Eagle property on Bull hill, is breaking ore of a $50 grade from a vein a little over two feet wide. This ore body is being worked at a depth of 500 feet and is showing an improvement in values as development work is carried on.

The ore body recently opened at a depth of 170 feet in the Joe Dandy property on Bull hill continues to widen with development work. Values remain about the same and returns of from $18 to $35 to the ton are being obtained. All ore broken in this mine is being handled at the Joe Dandy mill and both high and low grades are treated without sorting.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Excellent Progress on Property of American Tungsten Company---New Style of Placer Machinery Tried at Rapid City.

Hill City, S. D., Oct. 26.—President John Truax of the American Tungsten Mining company reports excellent progress on his property, which is situated about five miles east of Hill City. During the last few years the American Tungsten company has made some interesting experiments with tungsten, for which there is a growing field. There is a finely equipped mill on the property which is capable of treating fifty tons a day. A shaft has been sunk over 100 feet, from which level a drift was run and a body of tungsten encountered. Further development of this vein is indicating the presence of a considerable quantity. Tungsten is used in the hardening of steel, and the market demands more than can be supplied.

Keyston, S. D., Oct. 26.—If the operation of a new style of placer mining machinery just installed here by the Downie-Wright company of Rapid City proves as successful as anticipated, placer mining in this section of the country at least will be revolutionized. The new device consists of four sluice boxes, ten feet long and three and one-half feet wide, arranged one above the other and each tilted at opposite ends to allow fall enough for the gravel to wash easily from the box to the next. The length of boxes resembles, in cattlemen's parlance, a lazy W. Above the top sluice box is a funnel shaped box into which is thrown the dirt, and below this is a grizzly to separate the large rocks from the boxes. Power is furnished by a four-horse gasoline engine, which keeps the three top boxes shaking constantly like a concentrating table. A screen, the meshes of which can be changed in size, separates the large pebbles from the sand as it leaves the stationary sluice box on the bottom. The fine sand is washed over an amalgam plate, where the last particles of gold are caught. A small box below the upper plate catches all that is left, and the light, valueless sand is washed out of this by the water leaving the plate. The machine is unusually light in weight, is built in sections and can be readily moved. It is inexpensive and requires little power.

It is the intention of the company to save the black sand, which, if it proves of value, will be run over concentrating tables. The machine is equipped for an all winter run, and when severe weather sets in it will be housed. Seventy-five men will be employed to keep the machine supplied with dirt from the extensive placer holdings the company has secured on Battle Creek, three miles below town. The creek bed is full of tailings from the early day workings of the Holy Terror mine, which produced some of the highest grade stuffed the Hills has ever had. For years men with simple sluice devices have worked the creek bed and made good wages, and it is believed that with the new machine large profits can be obtained from the coarse tailings that years ago could not be handled and were allowed to run to waste. This winter the company will tunnel into the hill near the creek and take dirt from near the bedrock. Next summer it will allow the tunnel to cave in and then wash all the gravel through the mill.

Deadwod, S. D., Oct. 26.—The Reliance Gold Mining company has taken up some active development work on its other properties located in Pennington and Custer counties in the central and southern hills, and these now bid fair to prove as valuable as the ground in Bald mountain. On one group of claims, situated two miles south of Oreville, near where the Clara Belle property has found some good ore in the past, the Reliance has opened up a gold ledge that assays about $4 per ton. Further south, on another group located eight miles west of Custer, tin has been struck in connection with the gold ore. The Reliance company found the tin in a drift off a fifty-foot shaft.

TO PASS NOVEMBER DIVIDEND

So Says President of Snowstorm Mining Company---Laying in Winter Supplies and Needed Improvements Take Much Money.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 26.—Thomas L. Greenough of Missoula, Mont., president of the Snowstorm Mining company, operating in the Coeur d'Alen district, east of Spokane, has given out this statement:

"It is probable that the Snowstorm dividend of $45,000 for November will be passed the same as was that for October. This is the season of the year when supplies for the winter must be laid in at the camp. Aside from supplies we have spent $50,000 in making improvements at the mine.

"The present prices of copper will have no effect on the Snowstorm mine unless all smelters in the vicinity are forced to curtail their output and later close down. The mine then necessarily will have to be closed because of not having a market for its ores. There is enough ore blocked out at the mine to keep the mill and mine running for the next three years, producing ore averaging 5 per cent. The supply is almost inexhaustible and there is no probability of the mine working out.

"Prices at which copper is now selling can not prevail long. It is evident that at 26 cents copper was selling too high, and is now taking the reaction, and the market price is entirely too low. With the metal selling at 18 or 20 cents, both producer and consumer would be satisfied. If the present prices prevail for any length of time the producers will begin to seriously curtail their output, when the brunt will be borne by the consumer, placing the shoe on the other foot.

"Extensive improvements in the way of office buildings, bunk houses and mine machinery, which have been added to the equipment of the Snowstorm mine, during the summer season, have necessarily taken a large amount of money, a part of which comes out of the monthly dividend. Mines of the quality and size of the Enowstorm should have a surplus on hand, but as yet we have not accumulated that."

On West End of Daisy Grand---Great Strike on Cyclone Group at Fairview---Ely Mines Reducing Forces.

Goldfield, Nev., Oct. 26.—A body of rich ore has been encountered in the lease of the Daisy Leasing company on the west end of the Daisy ground. Average values taken from a full face range, principally in gold, from $251 to $585.

Two leasing companies, the Mohawk-Jumbo and the Francis-Mohawk, distributed dividends on Oct. 1, the former $60,000 and the latter $91,000. A dividend of $160,000 is expected from the Little Florence before the end of the month.

Fairview, Nev., Oct. 26.—A great strike has been made on the Cyclone group of claims, which is owned by John Harnan and adjoins the St. Paul, Golden Boulder, Lena, Oro Plata, Ida, and Golden Slipper properties. The strike was made on the Cyclone claim proper. groupOE-yeaWrs.llcinfw cm cm cm cf

A perpendicular shaft has been sunk on this claim, and drifts from the 100 level have been run east and west. In these drifts four feet of ore has been uncovered in places. The rock is fairly peppered with free gold. The ore will average $200 a ton for the entire four feet. This statement is confirmed by leading mine owners who have inspected the workings.

A sensational strike has also been reported on the Nevada Fairview, which is situated four miles due south of the Reliance and fully three miles south of the Mizpah. The ore is reported there to run better than $800 to the ton. Half the camp has left for the scene to investigate.

New York and Philadelphia and Fallon capitalists, including Robert L. Douglas and I. H. Kent of Fallon, have purchased the Mizpah group of claims on which a sensational strike was made two weeks ago. The price paid was $125,000.

Ely, Nev., Oct. 26.—Ely mines are reducing their forces. The Giroux Consolidated has dismissed 100 men and the Nevada Consolidated company has made a material reduction of its working forces at the Ruth and the Veteran Ely mines. At the Veteran fifty miners were discharged. It had been generally understood that the force was to be increased. At the Ruth and Star Pointer shafts about forty miners were dismissed.

In the Rickard-Ely, according to report a churn drill has struck a stratum of native copper at a depth of 1,051 feet. It is said to be the richest ore in the district.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 26.—The old camp of Hamilton, forty miles from Eureka and the same distance from Ely has awakened from its long sleep. Old mines, deserted for years, are being reopened and new mines are being developed. The first discovery was made in 1864 and the ores were rich in silver and lead. Altogether the district is credited with a production of $45,000,000. The Bambergers of Salt Lake have bought the Ne Plus Ultra for $30,000 and enough silver lead ore is in sight, it is said, to pay the purchase price. The Rocco-Homestake, across the gulch, has been paying dividends since it was reopened, four years ago. Other old mines give equal promise.

PROMOTERS OF BARNES-KING

Divided $640,000, Says a Mining Man of Helena---They Receive a Commission From Both Buyer and Seller.

Helena, Mont., Oct. 26.—Six hundred and forty thousand dollars is the amount which the promoters of the Barnes-King deal cleaned up, according to a mining man who made a statement with the agreement that his name would not be used. He is in a position to know concerning the deal.

He stated that the owners of the property received $1,200,000 for the mine. Of this sum $240,000 was given the promoters as a commission for selling the property. An additional $200,000 was received by the promoters from the new company for expenses incident to the transfer, and still another $200,000 was secured by them from the new company for having negotiated the sale of the Barnes-King. In other words, they received a commission from both buyer and seller.

Continuing, this man stated that it was his opinion that the property was all right. He said that he believed there had been poor management on the part of the company and that the mine was not understood.

"The men who took hold of the property were more used to permanent ore bodies," he remarked. "The veins in the Barnes-King are of the pocket or blanket formation. One place there is much ore and a few feet further there is none. This is the way the mine has always been.

"The new management has been going for $20-rock and ignoring entirely the lower grades of $2, $3 and $4 rock. This, I understand, was figured in by the engineers who reported on the property. What the company should do is to erect a mill where this low grade ore can be economically treated."

He said that with the exception of three or four months, when repairs and other work necessitated a shutdown, the mine paid a dividend every month under Barnes & King. He said he is convinced the property is still a good one.

The man who made this statement has never been connected officially in any way with the Barnes-King, though knowing a great deal of its affairs.

CALUMET & SONORA COMPANY

Purchases Sixty-Four Pertenencias of Mineral Land Said to Be Rich in Copper and Silver Ore—Important Strike of Gold Ore in Sonora Mine.

Cananea, Mex., Oct. 26.—Although it is popularly supposed that there is little doing in the way of mining transfers in Cananea at present, a large and very encouraging sale, involving the payment of $25,000 gold, is reported to have been put through. George W. Sanders, well known promoter, manipulated the deal, which caused the Calumet & Sonora company to purchase sixty-four pertenencias of mineral land, known as "La Piamonte" group, from Frisco Arnaldo for the sum mentioned.

The most encouraging portion of the sale is the confidence in the camp, its mineralization and future expressed by the purchasers in the transaction, as not a foot of development work had been done on the group, and it was on the merits of the surrounding properties that it was bought. The property is situated about three-quarters of a mile from the smelter, in a northerly direction, and lies in a portion of the camp generally accepted as being heavily mineralized. It is understood that the purchasers will shortly begin development work on their new acquisition.

The largest strike of gold, and in fact the only one of consequence which has been made within a radius of 100 miles, known to have been made at the Hole mine, the property of D. T. Green and J. A. Wilson of this city, situated two miles southeast of the Ojo de Agua, by an assay showing their ore to run 7.2 ounces silver, 10.72 gold, and 34 per cent lead to the ton. The assay is merely an average one, Mr. Green states.

The Hole property is one that has a history hard to realize, in view of the discovery of the rich values the ore carries, but on account of a dispute over the running expenses of the property it was practically abandoned five years ago, after being worked for less than a year, and was taken only recently by Wilson and Green.

Two shafts, one of forty feet and the other down ninety feet, are on the property. It was in the shallower one that the gold-bearing quartz was discovered. There has been considerable drifting and crosscutting.

The gold-bearing quartz is in a rich vein about three feet wide, it is stated, traversing and splitting the veing of galena, which was considered the notable feature of this mine. So poor looking is the rock that hitherto it has been practically thrown away in order to get out the galena and other mineralized rock which was in startling evidence.

It occurred to Green a few days ago that he had never had this rock assayed and in taking it to the office, as an after thought, he requested that it be run for gold, as well as silver and lead. He expected to find only a small trace, if any of the precious yellow metal, and his surprise and joy can well be imagined when the result of the assay was announced, and he found himself possessor of a fabulously rich proposition.

Just what steps toward development they will take in future has not been announced as yet, but it is probable that the owners will set about the development of the property on a large scale in the immediate future.

G. C. Eastman, for some time connected with the Golindrena Mining company, last week disposed of all of his interests in that company to J. H. Bishop, president of the concern, for a good figure. Included in the sale were several mining claims, a list being comprised of the Red Ant, P. E. M. X., Eastman, Havens and Courtis. These claims are scattered in various directions in this vicinity, the P. E. M. X. being located near the Capote of the Greene-Cananea company, and the others near the Ojo de Agua, while still others are in the Manzanal mountains. Mr. Eastman will not leave this section, but will devote his time and energies to the development of the San Francisco and Fortuna properties, which he states, present good showings in lead and silver. The amount of stock in the Golindrina company which was disposed of by Mr. Eastman, was more than 11,000 shares. The Golindrina is looked upon as a good proposition, it is stated, as it borders the famous Las Chispas mine on three sides.

The Las Chispas, the wonderful Arizpe mine, which has brought riches to its stockholders in the past, is troubled at present by a great shortage in wagons for transporting their ore, having on hand a large reserve awaiting transportation. This was the statement of Antonio Pedrazzini, nephew of the principal stockholders in the company and assayer there. Work on both the Carman and Grinedetto claims, is proceeding well at present, mining and development steadily carried out resulting in good ore finds. The total production last month was 50 tons of concentrating matter and from 60 to 70 tons of high grade shipping ore.

At the Democrata mine, little of interest is to be noted in connection with the past week. Development and mining work being carried on steadily with average results. The new smelter furnace which is being installed will be completed shortly, but work is at present held up in a slight degree on account of the non-arrival of material from El Paso. The furnace when completed will have a daily capacity of 250 tons.

On both the Catalian and Norton claims of the Calumet & Sonora company, work is reported to be well under way with good results. This is especially true of the Norton claim, it is stated, ore having been encountered in the shaft which carries on the average 100 ounces in silver, 2 per cent copper, and a slight tinge of lead and gold. The shaft is now down to a depth of sixty feet.

At the Ortega mine of the Southwestern company work is going ahead steadily in the new opened ore body in the tunnel. Superintendent Morse states: "The ore encountered continues to increase in worth as work increases."

VEINS EXTEND ACROSS FLAT

Colusa-Leonard Extension Proves Continuity of Butte Hill Ore Deposits—Commercial Ore Opened on Two Lower Levels—After Ore Bodies in the Butte & London.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 26.—Developments which, with copper on the basis of six months ago, would have created wide interest in all of the properties on the flat east of the city, have been made in the Colusa-Leonard Extension ground during the past week. Copper in commercial quantities has been opened up on the 600 and 800-foot levels of this property, much to the delight of the management and to the people interested in all of the surrounding properties. The theory that the big veins of the hill extend across the flat has evidently been proved. With very little more development it would be possible for the Colusa-Leonard Extension company to take out from fifty to 100 tons of ore a day, the ore running nearly 11 per cent copper on the 600-foot level, and about 3 per cent, at the present time, on the 800-foot level, and on both levels there are also good silver values.

Five distinct veins have been encountered, all of them showing better width and values as depth is attained, and in order to get great stoping ground it is the policy of the company to sink the shaft, which is of two compartments, to a depth of at least 1,200 feet.

On the 600-foot level the cross-cut running north has opened up a two-foot vein of sulphide ore which carried nearly 11 per cent copper, the assay having been made from an average of the ore taken across the vein. A drift is now being run along the vein, and it is expected that a large ore body will be opened in a very short time. A cross-cut is also being run from the south side of the shaft on this level, which the management has every confidence will cut a rich vein.

The cross-cut which was run south from the shaft at the 800-foot level, has exposed a wide ledge in which there is a four-foot vein of sulphide ore. The greater part or this is milling ore, however, but with depth there is every indication that high values in smelting ore will be found. A drift is being run along the vein on this level in order that the ore may be blocked out. The dip of the vein is about eighty degrees, and at the rate with which it has widened out in the last 200 feet it seems certain that big ore bodies will be opened at depth.

Directly east of the main shaft on the Colusa-Leonard ground is located the Sinbad claim, which is owned by the Colusa-Leonard, and which, at a depth of 500 feet, disclosed magnificent values. A vein carrying considerable copper glance was opened by a drift extending about 100 feet toward the main shaft, and to reach this ore deposit a drift is now being run on the vein on the 600-foot level of the Colusa-Leonard.

The property was visited last week by M. J. O'Shaughnessy, of the firm of Tracy & Co. of New York, which owns a controlling interest, and H. C. Delhi of New York and B. E. Wade of Chicago, heavy stockholders. They were highly pleased with the present stage of development, and expressed the belief that with a settlement of the copper situation the property will be in the producing class.

The foundation for the new first motion hoist has been completed, the new hoist is expected to arrive early next month. The timbers are already on the ground for the new gallows frame, which will be seventy feet in height. Other improvements are also under way, so that when the copper market improves and production is resumed, the Colusa-Leonard will be in position to work its property on an operating basis.

* * *

The Butte & London Copper Development company has started crosscutting from the 1,100-foot station, and, if the expectations of the management are realized, at least one vein of commercial ore will be cut within a month or six weeks. The company has information, based on measurements, that the vein cut in the Greenleaf shaft by the Boston & Montana company, at a depth of 840 feet, strikes through the ground of the Butte & London company a short way south of the shaft, and it is this vein that will probably be cut first. The vein in the Greenleaf is fifteen feet wide where cut in the shaft and carries good ore. The Boston & Montana, it is said, is preparing to crosscut to the vein at the 1,000-foot level.

It had been the original intention of the Butte & London to sink its shaft 1,500 feet deep, but, on the advice of H. V. Winchell, consulting engineer of the company, it was concluded to run one crosscut at the 1,100-foot level, where a big station was cut on either side of the shaft, and the crosscutting has started. Mr. Winchell is also consulting engineer for the Pittsburg & Montana company, and that company having found its best ore and largest ore bodies on the 800-foot level, east of the crosscut connecting the two shafts, the conclusion reached by him is that the Butte & London stands as good a show of finding ore at the 1,100 as it does to find it at the 1,500. The Pittsburg & Montana ore bodies on the 800 are south and east of the Butte & London shaft.

The Butte & London has a large area of ground, which is in line with several of the big veins on the hill, and the natural conclusion is that they cannot miss passing through the Butte & London property. The crosscuts will be extended both north and south far enough to thoroughly explore the ground at that depth.

The 1,800-foot level of the Edith May vein of the North Butte, has been practically demonstrated to be a con-

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Jones and Laughlin Steel Company Extends Its Mining Interests to Menominee Range by Acquiring the Dickie Exploration—Old Metropolitan and Northwestern Mines to be Reopened.

Purchasing the option to the so-called Dickie exploration, held by George A. St. Clair of Duluth, and acquiring the entire plant of buildings and machinery, the Jones & Laughlin Steel company of Pittsburg has extended its interests in the Lake Superior region to the Menominee range. The company has a large mine at Ishpeming and another at Negaunee, on the Marquette range, and it has important holdings on the Mesaba, in addition to which it is engaged in opening mines on the Wisconsin end of the Gogebic range, but up to the present time it has not entered the field on the Menominee.

The Dickie property is a tract of eighty acres in Section 24, 40-17, four miles west of the town of Florence, Wis. It was recently examined by Jones & Laughlin mining engineers, and on the strength of their reports the exploration was taken over. It is the understanding that a considerable body of low grade ore, suitable for use in open-hearth iron manufacture, has already been proved up, with indications the deposit will be found of much more important proportions. The shaft is down 100 feet. It will be sunk 300 feet further, and in addition much drifting will be done and the diamond drill will be employed.

It will be surprising if a mine of considerable proportions is not opened. Florence county is considered a likely field for the prospector, yet since the opening of the range it has been very largely neglected. There has been some exploration in scattered localities, but the work has generally been done by small individual interests lacking in capital and many promising properties have not been given the test they merited. It has long been commended as a peculiar fact that whereas the Menominee range formation cuts through Florence county, only two mines have ever been opened, those at Florence and Commonwealth, distant two miles one from the other, while on either side, in Michigan territory, important groups of producing properties have been developed in Iron county on the west, and Dickinson county on the easts.

Mr. St. Clair began work in Florence county about a year ago, and to date he has expended $25,000 or $30,000 in section 24. He has under option a second eighty-acre tract in that section. The St. Clair interests have had remarkable success in finding ore in lands discredited by other operators, notably so on the Mesaba, to which they have largely confined their operations, and they have rejuvenated more than one mine held worked-out and practically worthless. Just at present they are meeting with marked success in their mining operations on the Eastern Mesaba, a field that had been abandoned for many years.

Both the old Metropolitan and Northwestern mines, on the Menominee range, are to be reopened by Mr. St. Clair, preliminary operations to this end now being in progress. These properties are neighbors, adjoining in section 32-42-28, in the Felch mountain district, northeast of Iron Mountain, and they have not been wrought for many years. The Metropolitan was the principal mine in the field in the days when mines were working there. It was opened in 1882 and closed in 1888, achieving a total production of only 107,000 tons in seven years' work. It made no money for its owner, the Metropolitan Iron & Land company, but the company vastly more than recouped itself when it secured control of the big Norrie mine on the Gogebic range. The ore at the Metropolitan was of fairly good quality, but it was scarce.

The Northwestern mined 17,000 tons in 1883 and 1884. It was reopened some ten years ago. Considerable development work was done, and it is said that a large deposit of 50 per cent ore was located, but there was no market for a product of that grade at that time. Mr. St. Clair has been successful in securing control of a large tract of land in the vicinity, including the old Metropolitan, and it is understood to be his intention to sink the several shafts to a much greater depth. He is hopeful of finding a grade of ore carrying a higher percentage of iron.

The Chicago property, an old-time exploration in Iron county, Menominee range, has been taken over by the Buffalo & Susquehanna company and will be given a thorough test. The tract is located in section 26-43-34, east of Iron River and west of Crystal Falls, and was first explored as far back as 1882. It was abandoned shortly and remained idle until some work was done there in 1900 by the Stee leorporation interests. There is mixed ore in the shaft. The property is well located on the formation. The Buffalo & Susquehanna company will erect buildings, install machinery and proceed with exploratory operations throughout the winter. The same company has taken an option on the Fesing property, south of Corrigan, McKinney &

O'Brien Company of Cobalt Sends Check to Ontario Government Covering Three Months' Operations ---Bailey Cobalt's Good Strike.

New York, Oct. 26.—A Cobalt, Ont., dispatch to th Commercial says: The O'Brien Mining company has sent to the government a check for $51,992, the royalty for the three months ended Sept. 30. The royalty is on the basis of 25 per cent of the value of the ore mined, less certain charges for the handling. The agreement under which it is paid was made last fall, and the aggregate paid to the government since December, including the amount mentioned, is $222,945.06.

The Bailey Cobalt reports having made a good strike in the shape of a 15-inch vein of decomposed calcite, cobalt and silver. The strike was made close to No. 2 tunnel, on the top of the hill. Supt. Minard will sink a shaft on the new vein. The Bailey Cobalt made another important find last week in a drift from No. 1 tunnel, about 100 feet in. This strike comprises three veins, one calcite and two cobalt, smaltite and silver. All three carry native silver, and will make eighteen inches of No. 1 shipping ore at this point. Another vein about 150 feet in on No. 1 tunnel, is about eight inches wide and very promising.

The Temiskaming Mining company is making great progress in its development work. The main shaft is down 200 feet, and every foot further new silver deposits are being opened. Of three cars of ore shipped by the mine, the first is worth $125,000, and the other two are worth $225,000. Another car will be shipped this month, two in November and two in December. Crosscutting will be commenced at the 200-foot level to open the big vein. It is said on good authority that the company will soon pay an initial dividend.

The McKinley-Darragh mine is developing some rich ore and its concentrator will soon be giving effective results.

W. H. Hawley, who has had fifteen years' experience as a metallurgist in the West and Mexico, has been appointed to take charge of the metallurgical affairs and smelting operations of the Nipissing Mines company. He will have headquarters in New York.

THE KEWEENAW COPPER COMPANY

Developments at Medora Tract During Past Few Weeks Have Been of Encouraging Nature--- Plans for the Winter.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 26.—As depth is attained the showing at the Medora shaft of the Keweenaw Copper company grows better. The shaft has attained a depth of 865 feet, and is bottomed in one of the richest amygdaloid lodes ever opened in the Lake Superior district. The shaft is going down at the rate of at least one level per month, and is equipped with a hoist which is of sufficient size to carry it down to about 4,000 feet. The equipment in the way of compressors, etc., is likewise enough to meet every demand upon it for a year or more to come. The shaft is of two compartments, although theer is but one in use for the present.

It is the plan of the management to continue this winter with from ten to twelve drills regularly. There are now about 3,700 feet of openings at the Medora shaft, practically every foot of which shows excellent stamp rock. The character of the rock is very encouraging. Less calcite appears in it at the bottom than was noticed in the upper workings. The vein is also subject to less fissure intrusions than heretofore, and begins to show what it will do when it operates at still greater depth.

A station is to be cut at a depth of 350 feet for one of the sub-levels. The main level is at a depth of 775 feet. Drifting at this point is under way, and an excellent grade of rock is being blasted out. It is the rock in the bottom of the shaft which is causing the management so much gratification. It is of a rich chocolate color, shot heavily with copper. The rock resembles that hoisted from the Ahmeek, only appears to contain more copper. Pieces selected at random and broken into fragments plainly show the bright particles of the red metal.

It is the intention of the Keweenaw management to vigorously pursue the present course of development work, and when next spring is here the shaft will have reached a depth of about 1,200 feet, sufficient to clearly demonstrate the fact that Keewenaw county has never been given an opportunity to display the fact that there are to be found there some excellent copper deposits.

RICH YUKON PLACER GROUND

In Hunter Valley Not All Secured by Guggenheims' Agents---Ester Creek is the Scene of the Latest Strike.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 26.—Advices from Dawson state that although the Guggenheims' agents have done some close bargaining to obtain control of the rich placer ground on Hunker and Bonanza creeks, it is understood among local mining men that they do not begin to own all the rich sand bars in the Hunker valley. Among the well known creeks not obtained by these operators are the Hester, Gold Bottom and Last Chance. Along the Stewart river the controlling interest is in the hands of the Yukon Basin Gold Dredging company, whose concessions from the Canadian government include 105 miles of river frontage, or about 10,000 acres of rich dredging ground where avearge values are said to run well over $1 per cubic yard. According to recent reports of Canadian government experts, the Yukon placer fields are of practically inexhaustible richness. By approved methods of operation by dredging these values are now capable of being recovered in commercial quantities.

The Canadian Mining company has also a dredge at Forty-mile is working in ground that averages $11 a yard.

A despatch from Chena says: Ester Creek is the latest scene of rich strikes. In a prospecting shaft on 8-b Ester the claim of Berry Bros., formerly owned by George Gates of Chena, the workmen on Tuesday uncovered dirt four feet above bedrock that is said to run as high as $11 to the pan and that will average $6 to the pan. The claim was originally of Chena ownership. George Gates sold it to the Berrys and has regretted the fact ever since. It has turned out to be one of the richest claims in the Tanana.

The latest reports from the Chandlar district brought out by a miner who worked there seven months are encouraging. Ernest Nelhoff says that many individual claim owners have taken out from $4,000 to $8,000 each during the early part of the season, that is up to July 26, the date when Nelhoff left. Yoseta, a Japanese, has ground that is yielding $300 a day to the shovel.

The Nabesna region, in the towering group of summits around Mount Wrangell, is the latest scene of capper discoveries in Alaska. There are but six parties, aggregating seventeen men, in the whole district. There is one assayer there, and the mountains are huge deposits running 6 per cent copper, with occasional ledges of bornite running up to 50 per cent copper. The huge obstacle to development is the enormous cost of transporting supplies.

The output of the Tanana district for the year may equal or even exceed that of last year. The three banks at Fairbanks have already taken in very nearly $6,000,000 in dust and they estimate their receipts for the balance of the year on a conservative basis at two and one-half millions more.

Leasers on the Christmas Mine Declare Another Dividend---New Vein Opened by Leasers on the Adney Property.

Cripple Creek, Colo., Oct. 26.—The leasing firm of Becker & Travell, operating on the Christmas mine, has announced a dividend of $1,000 payable in October. The total disbursements to date are $10,000.

The Vindicator Consolidated Gold Mining company has declared an extra dividend of 1 cent a share for Oct. 25 in addition to the regular quarterly of 3 cents. The total for the two is $60,000. The company has disbursed to date $1,710,000.

The first shipment from the ore shoot recently opened on Stratton's Independence mine, Cripple Creek, consists of two carloads of $60 to $160 a ton gold values.

In the Elkton mine ore is being mined south and west of the shaft on the first, second, third, fifth and seventh levels, where ore is being broken down from 4 to 18 feet wide. The ore is of a good grade and is estimated at $50 per ton. The company is working one shift of men and is outputting 1,200 to 1,500 tons monthly.

The Ironmaster Leasing company, operating on the Ironmaster claim of the Jack Pot company, is in a new ore shoot 3 feet wide, which has been followed 70 feet. Cross vein values approximate $20 per ton.

The C. O. D. Leasing company, which holds a long time lease on the C. O. D. mine in Poverty gulch, will sink the shaft 100 feet to 1,000 feet depth, rebuild the shaft house recently burned and install new machinery. The mine adjoins the famous El Paso Gold King, the first shipper of the camp.

Burke and associates, operating on the Henry Adney property on the west slope of Beacon hill, are reported to have opened up a new vein in the mine at a depth of 550 feet. The vein just encountered measures two feet between walls and carries values from one and one-half to seventeen ounces in gold to the ton. This is the third gold body opened in the Henry Adney within the last ninety days. The vein, supposed to be an entirely new one, may be the extension of the rich shoot encountered about two weeks ago in the Old Gold property. The strike was made today while development work was being done on the vein opened in the Adney about a month ago. Burke and associates are making regular shipments and are getting returns of from $50 to $110 in gold to the ton.

J. O. Carper, operating on the War Eagle property on Bull hill, is breaking ore of a $50 grade from a vein a little over two feet wide. This ore body is being worked at a depth of 800 feet and is showing an improvement in values as development work is carried on.

The ore body recently opened at a depth of 170 feet in the Joe Dandy property on Bull hill continues to widen with development work. Values remain about the same and returns of from $18 to $35 to the ton are being obtained. All ore broken in this mine is being handled at the Joe Dandy mill and both high and low grades are treated without sorting.

Co.'s Dunn mine, in the Crystal Falls district, and will systematically test the mineral possibilities of that tract also. The general offices of the Buffalo & Susquehanna in the Lake Superior region are to be removed from Hibbing, Mesaba range, to Iron River, Mich., where a building is now being remodelled for their accommodation. George L. Woodworth, M. E., is the general superintendent.

Now that the contract has been awarded for the construction of the canal into which the Sturgeon river is to be divided, and the work of excavation is to start at once, all operations

AT THE LYCEUM

The Mack-Leone Company Will Open for Five Nights in "Polly Primrose," Followed by "An Old Sweetheart of Mine."

The Mack-Leones will open at the Lyceum Sunday afternoon at 2:45, presenting for the first time "Polly Primrose." Miss Leone has returned to Duluth and will appear in the cast of "Polly Primrose," playing the part created by the Duluth girl, Adelaide Thurston. Polly Primrose is a beautiful story of old Georgetown, and is a very charming play. The Mack-Leone company has been well cast for the various parts, and a special effort has been made to provide such a scenic production for the play that it could be attractively presented. "Polly Primrose" will continue for five nights at the Lyceum, with the usual Sunday and Wednesday matinees. The Wednesday matinee will be at the regular day matinee will be the regular matinee price, 25c; while the night prices remain the same, 10, 25 and 50 cents.

NEW WESTERN PLAY.

W. A. Whitecar Coming in "An Old Sweetheart of Mine."

On Friday and Saturday, Jules Murry of New York promises to bring to the Lyceum one of his most extensively-advertised attractions of the season, W. A. Whitecar, in the new tale of the Western plains, "An Old Sweetheart of Mine." The play is named after the famous poem by James Whitcomb Riley, and is an idyl of the plains. A charming love story, set in the frame of a ranch of Western Texas, and told by real people, is the bait held out by this enterprising manager with this new play. Mr. Whitecar is already known here, having been seen as Jack Lumley in "The Mummy and the Humming Bird."

In this his new role, he plays the part of a man who has tasted what he thought was defeat, but what was in reality the most transcendent victory. His fight for a higher self is the theme of his new romance.

MISS LEONE BACK.

Ready to Take Up Her Work Enthusiastically Again.

Happy, healthy and ready to take up her work enthusiastically, Miss Maude Leone of the Mack-Leone stock company will return to the Lyceum next week, after an absence of about two months.

Miss Leone suffered from a complete nervous breakdown, and since leaving Duluth she has done nothing but seek to regain her lost health, in which she has been most successful. She has been in the East for a few weeks, reading a little, studying a little, and riding horseback a great deal.

"I am beginning to feel that Duluth is my home, and one is always glad to get back home," said Miss Leone, last evening as she was interrupted at her study of the part of "Polly Primrose," in which she will be seen next week.

"One never realizes the value of good health until one loses it. If we did we wouldn't work at such high pressure all of the time. This bracing Duluth air makes one ambitious, and I think people here lead the life strenuous more than they do in any city in the country."

LYCEUM NOTES.

News and Gossip of the Approaching Attractions.

"A Romance in Ireland," the new comedy drama in which the favorite young Irish singing comedian, Allen Doone, will be seen at the Lyceum in November, is said to be a clean, witty, novel entertainment.

* * *

Marie Cahill, in her "smart" musical play, "Marrying Mary," has the honor of having rejuvenated Daly's theater, New York, when it had passed almost into obscurity after the death of its illustrious founder. Miss Cahill will be seen here at the Lyceum, Nov. 5.

* * *

Henry W. Savage will offer the Pixley and Luders comic opera, "Woodland," at the Lyceum, Nov. 15 and 16.

* * *

Mildred Holland, who will be seen at the Lyceum in November, in Matthew Barry's play, "A Paradise of Lies," passed all her 1906 summer vacation season in Italy, studying local color and historic environment for the part of Lolita, which is said to be her greatest creation. Miss Holland has made several trips to Italy and Continental Europe, and her thorough knowledge of Italians and their customs enabled her to secure much valuable information and data.

* * *

Shakespeare has always a fascination for a certain portion of theater-goers, and to them the announcement that Louis James and his excellent organization is heading this way must be very gratifying. This season he announces a big revival of "The Comedy of Errors," and the startling information that he will play "The Two Dromios" himself. He also mentions that he will continue to play "Falstaff" in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," whenever the public want him.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

The Oriental Cozy Corner Girls Will Appear in Burlesque in Duluth All of Next Week, With the Usual Matinees.

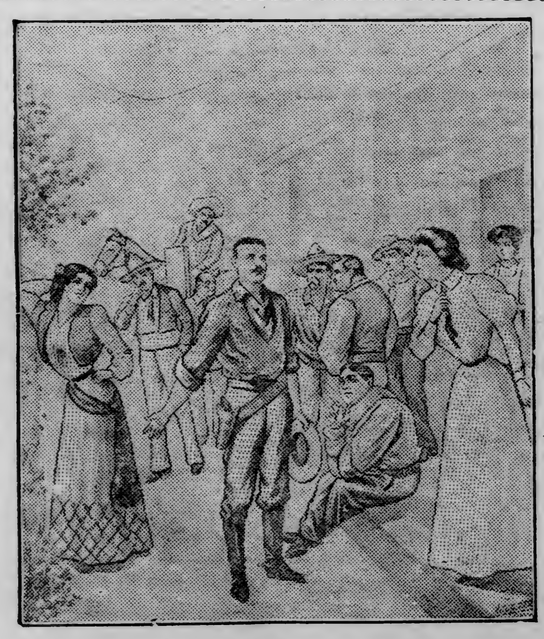

The Oriental Cozy Corner Girls, under the management of that pioneer in the field of burlesque, W. B. Watson, will be at at the Metropolitan all next week, giving the usual matinees.

Their performance opens with a nautical review called "A Honeymoon Trip," or "A Trip on the Joy Line," and its press agent says for it that it is the best burlesque Watson ever fostered.

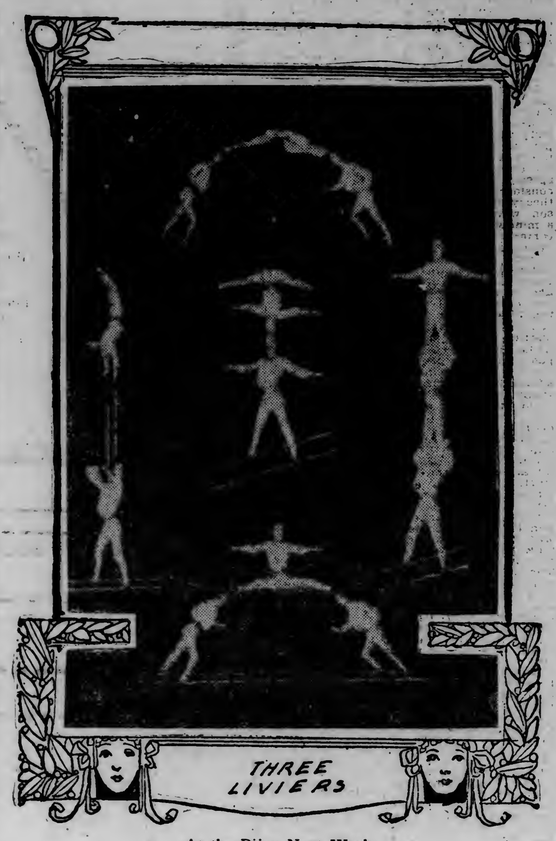

The management is said to have provided a handsome and complete scenic equipment. The same is said of the afterpiece, a new skit called "The Sculptor's Dream."

Both of these frolics brng out the full strength of the company, including a chorus of thirty comely young persons, who sing and dance during a score of tuneful musical number and ensembles.

The list of talent with the Oriental Cozy Corner company include many names well known to patrons of burlesque and vaudeville. Prominent among them are the New York Hippodrome act, Van Cleve, Denton and "Pete;" Frank Riley, the comedian; Miss Belle Travers; the petite song and dance girls, Lafferty and Ward; the physical culture artists, Sandow and Lambert; "The Red Feather Girls," Bruce and Dagneou, and the famous Irish comedians, Honan and Kearney.

AT THE BIJOU

Vaudeville Bill for the Week Includes "The Three Liviers," European Wire Acrobats, and an Original Sketch by Edgar Foreman and Company.

The vaudeville attractions booked to appear at the Bijou the coming week should attract considerable attention as the entire bill is composed of first-class acts from start to finish. Heading the bill will be "The Three Liviers," who are European performers on the parallel wires. This act is the only one of its kind in the world, and the wonderful feats performed can not be described in full. The feats performed are the "three high" on the single thread wires, "The Human Bridge," and many other feats of equal daring and ability.

A clever and well known act will be Hellman, the magician, whose new and mystifying tricks are compared to those of the Great Kellar, and other noted magicians.

A fine musical act will be offered by "The Musical Bell" and Belle Austin. The instruments played are the latest novelties, and besides being experts in the music line the performers have excellent voices and render several classical as well as popular selections.

One of the best acts of the week will be given by Jack and Bertha Rich, who introduce a sketch with lively musical numbers and expert dancing, with refined comedy throughout the act.

E. O. Blackburn will make his first appearance in Duluth, singing the illustrated songs. Mr. Blackburn comes highly recommended as a vocalist, and no doubt will become a favorite in Duluth as he has been in Chicago for the past several months.

As an added feature and one that stands alone in vaudeville of a high class nature, will be Edgar Foreman & Co., in Mr. Foreman's original playlet, entitled "The First Quarrel." The following item from the Detroit Free Press tells the merit and success of this clever act:

"'The First Quarrel' is a bright, sparkling comedy creation with a tinge of sentiment in which Edgar Foreman and company appear. It begins with jealousy, and ends with a happy reconcilation, after which several songs are introduced in an original style. Mr. Foreman's portrayal of the art of kissing and the modus operanda as practiced in the various cities of the United States was most amusing and created roars of laughter."

The moving pictures for the week will all be new and entertaining subjects featuring "The Balloonist," a sensational picture, and also the new films entitled "The Diabolo Top Spinner," a novelty picture, and the roaring comedy subject, entitled "She Won't Pay the Rent."

Matinees are given daily at 2:45 and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either telephone. A special school children's matinee will be given Saturday afternoon at 2:30, and regular performances on Sunday afternoon and night.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Belasco's New Theater, the Stuyvesant, Opened By David Warfield---Charles Klein's New Play Severely Handled by Critics.

New York, Oct. 26.—The theatrical event of the year, as, indeed, of a term of years, was the opening of David Belasco's new Stuyvesant theater by David Warfield in "A Grand Army Man." This letter has already brought the particulars of the story of the successor of "The Music Master," and there is no need to repeat. The advance demand for seats was enormous and the house was filled by a brilliant audience; but the first night was not in reality a money-making proposition. The majority of those present were there by invitation of the playwright-manager, and thousands of dollars were turned away. A few speculators had seats and offered them on the sidewalk at $6, and from that to $20. Anything that Belasco does is sure to attract attention, and so it was natural that everybody should be on the qui vive to see what the naturalized Californian had accomplished in the way of building a theater conforming precisely to his standard of art combined with the practical principles of his craftsmanship. The result was not disappointing. The interior is one of the most beautiful in America and, experts say, the world. The lighting of the theater is by concealed lights through stained glass, which gives a golden mellow effect, as though one were seated in a quiet library under a lamp of faverll glass. The capitals of the pillars form one effulgent mass of colored light. It is all Tiffany work. The balcony projects far into the auditorium toward the stage, so that the first row of seats is directly above the ninth row in the orchestra. The indispensable feeling of intimacy between the spectator and the actor is happily established by this arrangement.

* * *

Everything is rich and refined. The seats are plain and spacious, but the material is pigskin and the simple ornament is the Napoleonic bee, which has become a sort of heraldic emblem of Belasco. The inspiration of the great dramatists has been ingeniously invoked by installing their coats of arms in panels in the ceilings. They are of stained glass, through which the theater is illuminated from the top. The prevailing tone of the decorations and color scheme is walnut, and the lavish character of the ornamentation may be gathered from the fact that part of the furniture and panels are genuine antiques.

A large table in the smoking room (which, by the way, Belasco secured at the Stanford White sale, paying nearly $1,000 for it) is 500 years old, and there is authority for saying that Charles V and other royalty stretched their legs under it. One of the novelties of the opening night which attracted general attention was the innovation of chimes to announce the rise of the curtain. A somber gong rings somewhere out in the house and is answered by a smaller chime somewhere back of the curtain. Then there is a melodious scale of chimes, silence a little tinkle; the lights in the auditorium die out and the curtain rises.

Part of this arrangement is as old as the Shakespearean plays, but the elaboration of the idea, which serves to bring the audience back into the atmosphere of the play, is Belasco's.

* * *

One rarely sees such an audience even in New York as that which filled the little house to its capacity. Many of the prominent artists, musicians, dramatists and capitalists of the metropolis, with their ladies, rubbed elbows, looked splendid in the boxes and satisfied with their comfortable surroundings, and the evening had the festive air of a gala occasion. The homely pathos of the play through Warfield's masterful interpretation appealed with the same directness to the hearts of this fashionable gathering as it did to the sympathy of the New England folks who saw "A Grand Army Man" on its short preliminary tour, and the star as well as Belasco and his co-authors were called before the curtain by the enthusiastic audience. The star and his manager are credited with another success by almost unanimous force of opinion.

The Stuyvesant is a symbolic milestone in Belasco's career, marking the twenty-fifth anniversary of his arrival in New York from San Francisco (August, 1882), as the newly appointed stock dramatist and stage director of the Madison Square theater, under the Mallory brothers. He recently told some of his friends that his salary was $35 a week and $5 a night for every performance of his great success, "May Blossom," which ran for a year at that playhouse.

* * *

It is something to be thankful for not to have written a "Lion and the Mouse," and collaborated in a "Music Master," in order to escape such a sobering douche as was administered to Charles Klein by the critics Tuesday morning after the premier of his latest play, "The Step Sister," at the Garrick theater.

The play was announced to concern itself with "the meanest millionaire in America," but the sociological interest apparent in "The Lion and the Mouse" is confined to a few vague touches illustrative of the coarser Wall street methods, and the meanest millionaire proves on inspection to be an ardent young chap who has worked himself up from an office boy to something of a figure in the circles of frenzied finance. This reformed office boy finds his old employer in distress, makes love to his daughter and lends her the money that enables her father to break the sinister power which his stepdaughter exercises over him through her French husband for having lost her inheritance in an unfortunate speculation. And it turns out that the ex-office boy is neither mean nor a millionaire, but merely a huffer between the real mean man behind the scenes and the gullible public that has been buying swamp lands for convertible real estate.

With this feature eliminated there remains only a mildly interesting domestic drama of a heartless stepsister who tyrannizes her mother and younger relative by threats at the arrest of their fugitive father, and a quite elementary complication, which is solved by the juncture of two loving hearts that beat in the breasts respectively of the former office boy and the younger sister.

The play at several points starts interesting problems which never develop, and has the inconsistency of episodes that are not logically connected. The whole motivation is weak; the plot moves along the lines of least resistance and lacks the body as well as the breadth and depth of careful workmanship. One rarely sees a more unanimous verdict of condemnation. It was slated with a sputter of phrase that made a grand display of verbal pyrotechnics and added a sparkling chapter to the amenities of criticism. The author was callously reminded that he scored an equally brilliant fiasco last season in "The Daughters of Men," and one of his tormentors gravely raised the question whether he had more to do with writing "The Music Master" than lending his name to the authorship. As for "The Lion and the Mouse" the most that could be conceded in explaining its popularity was that it was a fluke.

But then these same fluent writers, it is well to remember, declared "The Lion and the Mouse" to be a flat failure in their reviews after the first night. The play at least was well acted and handsomely staged. The first act, which represents a fashionable dressmaking establishment conducted by the stepsister, is charmingly atmospheric. In the title role appeared Grace Filkins; in that of the pompous and pampered French nobleman, her husband, Frederic De Belleville; Mathilde Cotrelly played the mother; Bruce McRae, the reputed millionaire, and Chrystal Herne, the younger sister, a modern Cinderella, who is wooed and won by Prince Charming.

* * *

Edward Peple departs from the lines of his successful "Prince Chap" and follows the fashion in touring the atmosphere of his latest play, "The Silver Girl," to conform to the prevailing appetite for the rough and rugged romance of the West. With this atmosphere he combines the elements of the French school of Octave Feuillet, Meilhac and Halevy as evidenced in "Led Astray" and "Frou Frou." His latest production is not strictly a Western play, but it deals with Western characters in the main.

The piece was seen Monday evening at Wallack's, where it scored a success d'estime before a friendly audience. The title is that of a mine, and the complication deals with a young Western wife who comes East with her husband, one Jefferson Hunter, a mine owner (played by George Fawcett), to enjoy life to the brim. She has a flirtation with a New York lawyer, which grows serious. Reverses come, and Hunter, all unsuspecting, tries to persuade his wife to return with him to Nevada. He fails and starts alone. A beautiful young governess in the house, who has promised to become the wife of young Hunter, overhears the wife and her lover planning to elope that night on their return from the opera. Hunter loses his train, and unexpectedly returns to the house. The governess tells him what his wife is about to do, and he waits until they come home from the performance.

This leads up to the big, albeit theatrical situation of the play. As they are going he stops them and hands the lawyer a revolver, and takes one himself. "Shoot when the clock strikes," he says. As the chimes ring out the lawyer fires, but Hunter does not raise his hand. The two men confront each other in silence for a moment.

"Why didn't you shoot straight?" asks Hunter.

There is a reconciliation in the last act. It is the old story. The wife has learned the true value of her husband's love. The scene is Nevada. She comes and pleads for forgiveness, and the play ends thus.

* * * *

Joe Weber opened his New York season in "Hip, Hip, Hooray," last week; but the impression of enthusiastic joyousness conveyed by the title was not conveyed over the footlights, and the rather cool indifference with which it was received forms a noticeable contrast to the ardent reception accorded his former partner, Lew Fields, at the Herald Square, where "The Girl Behind the Counter' is the attraction, with prospects of an all-season's run.

Ever since the two comedians parted several years ago, Weber has had rather the best of it in the allotment of success.

* * * *

Arnold Daly missed it if he expected to reap the benefit of postponing his opening at the Berkeley theater to Tuesday evening in order to give the critics no excuse for not coming to see him. Barnum is credited with the saying, "I don't care what you write about me, so you don't ignore me." Daly is that sort and the press men know it. Accordingly, he met with indifferent notice at their hands, and the bottom almost dropped out of the reclame which the plan of starting a sort of Theater Antoine in New York might have provoked. But this scribe is true to Daly, believing in his art ideals and praying always for his success.

Three little playlets were offered, including a gruesome one-act Japanese dramalet called "The Martyr," presented by Madame Hanako, the Japanese actress.

These Japs have a fine sense of theatricalism and some of the acting by Hanako and her supporters deserved all the praise it received from the audience, appreciably moved as it was. The death scene was revolting to our finer sense, but there was a distinct charm in her coquetry, her comedy and emotional work.

* * * *

C. S. McLellan was represented in the program by a playlet called "The Shirkers," which preceded the Japanese tragedy. A cynical urbanite arrives at a lonely farmhouse on the Sussex Downs just after the tenant of the place has stabbed his wife in a fit of madness, resulting from the sense of utter loneliness, abandonment and grief over a lost child. The two men exchange places in life. The youth nurses the woman back to life and they live together for a year when each man begins to yearn for his original environments. When the woman learns of his intention to leave her she goes into the next room and stabs herself to death with the knife. The wanderer returns, but finds the woman dead and the youth about to set out on his return to the city. As a thriller the playlet fills the bill. It was played by Daly as the youth, Holbrook Blinn as the wanderer and Helen Ware as the woman.

The gloom of the program was somewhat counterbalanced by an airy little comedy by Frederick Nirdlinger, "Washington's First Defeat," in which Daly assumed the part of a rather effeminate young Washington and proved amusing in delineating the character along the lines of a satiric rebuttal of the cherry tree story and other familiar tales that represent the father of his country as a mollycoddle.

* * * *

It is announced that Bertha Galland has at last found a play and will resume her work on the stage, after a year's absence, the greater part of which was devoted to nursing her mother through a long and critical illness. Nothing has so far been disclosed regarding the character of her future vehicle, but the author is said to be a writer of established reputation.

* * * *

Edwin Milton Royle's latest play, "The Struggle Everlasting," has been abandoned by Florence Roberts, and "Zira" will be her piece de resistance during her Western tour. In the meantime a new play called "Sham," by Gertrude Bonner, will be put in rehearsal, and if satisfactory will serve Miss Roberts for her third attempt to establish herself on Broadway.

* * * *

James K. Hackett will not produce "The Fool and the Girl," by David Ward Griffith, in New York until some indefinite date in the vague future. The play opened in Washington and was given a week in Baltimore. It closed last Saturday night on the ground, as claimed, that no New York playable. The cast were Fanny Ward, Allison Skipworth and John Dean.

William Morris, former leading man of the Empire Stock company, is preparing to go into vaudeville in a light comedy, and Edwin Arden is organizing a small company of players to support him in a strong playlet which he will present in the vaudeville houses, while Dorothy Thomas, the young English woman who was brought over to create the leading female role in "The Evangelist," will be seen in the same houses with Howard Kyle in a short comedy by Augustus Thomas, entitled "A Proper Impropriety."

A movement is on in New York to start a big benefit for Rose Eytinge, the veteran actress who has been unable to play on account of failing health for some time. Few old-timers but remember Rose Eytinge as one of the really gifted actresses of her time, and it is said that the suggestion of a monster benefit for her is meeting with immediate responses that demonstrate it will be a success. Rose Eytinge began her career in the early 50s, when a young girl. She supported Booth, Davenport and Lester Wallack, and enjoyed her earliest triumphs as the leading woman for the latter's big company. It was during this time that she made her great hit as Nancy Sikes. After Wallack, Miss Eytinge joined the Daly company, and subsequently reached her greatest fame as the leading member of A. M. Palmer's famous organization, during which time she played all the classics then in vogue. In recent years Miss Eytinge has been a member of many prominent companies and has created a number of interesting character parts. If there is a veteran of the stage whose long and artistic service has earned for her a benefit, Miss Eytinge belongs in the fore ranks.

Victor Herbert, through his attorney, last week asked the supreme court of the United States to permit him to join his efforts with those of several writers of music who are seeking before the country's highest tribunal redress for wrongs said to have been done them by different music publishing houses. The action is brought for the purpose of determining the author's rights in the making of perforated music rolls to sell to various automatic pianos and other instrumental players. Mr. Herbert in his petition says that for years he has suffered through the unwarranted use of his music for such purposes, and that he has never derived one cent of revenue from the uses of the same for this work. He therefore, prays, as a disinterested composer, for the right to take a hand in the case now pending before the supreme court, in the hope that his case may have some bearing upon the ultimate establishment of a case which will do full justice to the hardworking composers.

His contention is that all writers are entitled to such fruits of their brains as may be covered in their copyrights, and that it is time the unwarranted use of their music by automatic machines is put a stop to.

Jerome K. Jerome has come over from England to take personal charge of rehearsals by Grace George and her company of his new play, "Sylvia of the Letters." Mr. Jerome will travel from town to town with the George organization and devote his entire time in the days intervening to instilling his ideas into the play of his novel creation. The English humorist says that he has turned to the stage because of Mr. Carnegie's generosity. His contention is that the general distribution of libraries by the ironmaster has made the sale of books something not near so profitable as it used to be, and so to make the needed money he finds the stage more remunerative. Mr. Jerome writes so well that the stage is the richer by this change in his plans.

Laura Burt began her starring tour in "The Walls of Jericho," in New Jersey, last week. Miss Burt is assisted in the play by Harry B. Stanford, the young English actor. The piece will be used in teritory not reached by James K. Hackett during the two seasons that he played the comedy in this country.

Clyde Fitch has turned to vaudeville and written a sketch for Georgie Laurence that was tried out last week, and made a decided hit. It is called "Miss Cobb, Manicurist," and is said to be a typical Fitch effort. The part allotted to Miss Laurence, who by the way made her first hit in a Fitch play, written for Maxine Elliott, is that of the slangy manicure who combines a sense of expression with a keen understanding of her patrons. Miss Cobb is something of a philosopher and a gossip also, and her remarks are said to be in the breezy Fitchian vein at all times. The funny idea in the sketch is that a rival sees a young chauffeur visit the manicure parlors of Miss Cobb and decides that the latter is trying to steal her young man. She drops into the establishment and starts to "rough house" it generally. After they have had a regular hatpin duel and torn pompadours and other appurtenances to pieces the caller discovers that the chauffeur is not her young man at all, but a chap who looks like him. Mutual explanations and all comes out right in the end.

Charles Wyndham has just brought out a new play in London that is attracting considerable attention. It is called "The Mollusc." The story concerns a woman who elects to do nothing, but keeps those around her busy all the time contributing to her desires. The play is odd, in that there are but four characters in it. The story was written by Hubert Henry Davies, whose ability to write delightful dialogue is well known in this country also. The reports from London say that the place is the hit of the season there.

Augustus Thomas, the playwright, is taking a sort of vacation from his regular occupation and is making political speeches in the East. The author is one of the most effective stump speakers in the Democratic party, and it is upon William Jennings Bryan's personal invitation that he is accompanying the latter upon his tour of the principal cities in New York state. After the campaign closes Mr. Thomas will get down to work upon the new play which he has written for John Mason, and in which the latter is to be made a star under the Shubert management.

Although the Chicago critics were none too kind to Lillian Russell and her new play, "Wildfire," that effort seems to have caught on at Powers's theater in the Windy city, and is running along to big business.

R. G. Knowles, the comedian now playing in this country in advanced vaudeville, has decided to stay over in America some time after his original dates are concluded. Mr. Knowles upon his last visit tried a few lectures that went so well that he is booking a similar tour after he finishes in the vaudeville houses. Knowles is an American, but made his fame as a single entertainer in London, and has been brought here on several occasions, always earning one of the biggest salaries paid in vaudeville where they talk now in four figures as if they were selling sand.

Of all unexpected places, it is said there is a growing Shaw cult in Paris and that the critics are seeking for Shaw plays adaptations of the brilliant Irishman's plays produced in the French capital. Paris is usually so taken up with itself that the outside finds little recognition there, and on this account the compliment to Shaw is all the more surprising. The next problem, however, is to see how Shaw, who never agrees with anything, will take this newest demonstration. If this keeps up the next thing we will have the usual spectacle offered of Shaw agreeing with himself.

The long advertised metropolitan premiere of "The Merry Widow" is booked for tomorrow evening, when this European hit will go into the New Amsterdam theater, New York, to stay for an indefinite period. Franz Lehar, the author of the score, was to have come over to attend the opening performance, but at the last moment he cabled Manager Savage that he would be unable to fill that engagement. "The Merry Widow" has been on on tour in the East for several weeks, being worked into final shape for its metropolitan presentations. This piece has been the rage in Vienna, Berlin and London, and so much has been said of it in advance that it will indeed have to be a wonderful success to live up to the expectations that have been built up for it.

Charles Henry Meltzer, who has recently resigned from the post of publicity promoter for the Metropolitan opera house under Conreid's direction to again take up musical criticism, is said to be at work upon a new grand opera, which he hopes to have produced in the near future.

The rumored separation of Henry Miller and Margaret Anglin in their artistic co-partnership that has been such a factor in the success of "The Great Divide," seems to have been only a rumor after all. It is reported that all alleged differences between the two stars have been adjusted, and that both Mr. Miller and Miss Anglin will continue in that play. This means that Miss Anglin's proposed tour of Australia is abandoned temporarily at least.

John Kellerd was engaged as a leading member of Amelia Bingham's tour of the principal one-night stands in the Richard Mansfield version and stage production of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Kellard has had experience with the dual role and is credited with a success in it.

VEINS EXTEND ACROSS FLAT

tinuous ore body for its entire length of 2,000 feet, whereas the 1,600-foot level contains but a length of 1,200 feet of commercial ore. The continuity of the vein on the 1,800-foot level is proven by the recent developments to the east on the Bell property and on the Cascade to the west. The average assay of the 700 feet of drifting at the latter depth is about 10 per cent, with values in some portions as high as 28 per cent. This vein will be disclosed at the 2,000-foot level before January, while in the meantime the Jessie vein will have been intercepted by the cross-cuts extending from the 1,800-foot level. Cross-cuts are being extended to the Berlin claim from the 800, 1,000, 1,200 and 1,600-foot levels of the active workings. This fact is significant as reflecting the confidence on the part of the management in the future of the Berlin veins. It is believed that the management is in possession of material information regarding the values in this direction, as if the purpose of the operations was with a view to proving up the territory. It is probable that the extension of but one cross-cut would be deemed sufficient. The 1,600-foot level cross-cut is now progressing through the Berlin claim and may intercept the vein at any moment.

have been suspended at the mine of the Loretto Iron company, five miles east of Norway, Menominee range. Two hundred men have been employed. The idleness will, however, be of short duration. Most of the men will be given work by the channel contractors, and the remainder will be employed in opening up ore deposits, the development of which will be made possible by the shift in the course of the river.

The Loretto mine is bounded on the east by the Sturgeon river and on the south and west by the Pine river, with a small stream known as Black creek to the North. Thus the mine is almost surrounded by water. The easterly drifts are under the bed of the Sturgeon at a depth of 280 feet. The ground between the river and the upper level is nearly all ore of a good quality and a large body of ore is known to exist on the east side of the river in the direction of the Eleanor mine upon which the Loretto company now has a lease. The Kewgenaw association of Boston, Mass., owns the land to the north and west.

The new channel to be built for the Sturgeon will be half a mile in length, and at one point the excavation will be fifty feet in depth. For the greater portion of the distance steam shovels can be used. It doubtless will take a year to complete the work. The project will cost a large sum of money, but when completed it will release a large body of high-grade ore and at the same time avoid all danger of such a disaster as that at the Mansfield mine in September, 1893, when the Michigamme river rushed into the workings without a moment's warning and caused heavy loss of life.

As the work of excavating the new channel progresses, the Loretto company will develop and open up its ore deposits so as to be in position to resume mining operations upon a larger scale than ever before in the history of the property. Recently there has occurred an extensive settling of ground in the Loretto, the caved area extending from the second to the sixth level, ninety feet on the vein and 400 feet in depth, but it had been fully anticipated and the men had been kept from the danger zone. The financial loss was nominal. A new battery of boilers is to be installed at the Saginaw mine, formerly the old Perkins property, at Norway, during the winter months. The Saginaw is looking well for a mine that was considered worked out years ago, and it will ship 30,000 tons of ore this season.

On the Marquette range the Foundation company of New York has started the work of sinking a concrete shaft at the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company's new Smith mine, in the Swanzey district, and has been busy with the preliminary operations for some weeks. The ledge at the Smith is down only sixty feet, but the overburden is quicksand in which ordinary methods of sinking are impossible. The shaft is within 100 feet of the Escanaba river, and it is extremely probable that a heavy flow of water will be encountered. However, it is expected to get down to the ledge within sixty or ninety days. The stripping operations in progress for some months have been finished at Oglebay, Norton & Co.'s Empire mine in the Cascade district on the Marquette. The overburden has been removed for an average depth of four feet in an area 200x110 feet. The Empire is a milling proposition, the only one on the range, and it will continue in operation throughout the winter with probably even more men than are now employed. The ore is hard and it is necessary to crush the product before shipping it.

In no section of the Lake Superior iron region is the geological formation so uniform as in the major portion of the Gogebic range. The district is remarkable also in that its product is almost entirely in the Bessemer class. So regular is the formation, and so thoroughly has it been determined that ore does not exist except between the grey and black slates, that when it is desired to open new deposits in any given place within the proved area, this particularly applying to the Michigan field, just east of the Montreal river, it has become the practice to dispense with the exploratory work characteristic of early days on the range and still in vogue elsewhere in the Lake Superior iron country. The trend of the formation ascertained by test-pitting, a permanent shaft, nowadays of steel, sunk in the slate footwall to considerable depth, generally about a thousand feet, and at convenient points crosscuts are driven. These crosscuts intercepting the ore at moderate or greater depth, the shaft is there, ready for duty, and much time has been saved. Of course should ore not be found, the heavy expenditure will have been made for naught; but this never happens.

The ore on the Gogebic lies deep, more so than in any other portion of the Lake Superior region, and generally it occurs in immense bodies. It has been said, and it appears with truth, notwithstanding that the first cargo was sent out as long ago as 1884, that the Gogebic is yet in its infancy. Developments at Ferdinand Schlesinger's Newport mine bear out this contention in their indication that ore not only exists 2,000 feet below the surface, but will be found even deeper, and doubtless materially deeper. Thus there is long life ahead for the mines in general, a number of which were thought not so many years ago to have practically reached the end of their productivity. The ore for the most part is found on successive layers of jasper dykes, especially on the Michigan side of the border line.

At the present time eight new steel shafts are going down on the Gogebic, these being at the Steel corporation's Aurora, Davies and Geneva properties; Oglebay, Norton & Co.,'s, Eureka and Asterold; Pickands, Mather & Co.'s, Brotherton, and Schlesinger's Newport mine to the east of the Montreal river, and at the Montreal Mining company's property on the Wisconsin side of the stream. In addition, preparations are making at the Steel corporation's Tilden mine, in Section 15, 47-46, to sink a shaft of steel to the westward of the present workings. The Tilden has three shafts now, Nos. 6, 9 and 10, the deepest of which is approximately 1,400 feet. The new "F" steel shaft at the Aurora is down 600 feet; it was started last fall. The mine is at present operated through two shafts sunk to depths of 1,024 and 1,160 feet, respectively. Ore is trammed by electricity.

At the Geneva property, in section 18-47-46, the Steel corporation is ssinking to a continuation of the ore body of the Newport, lying to the west. The shaft is very near the 2,000-foot level, at or somewhat below which point the crosscuts are expected to run into the deposits, to reach which a very large sum of money is being expended. A similar deep shaft is sinking at the Steel corporation's Davies property, also in 47-46. A depth of about 600 feet has been attained. The shaft will be one of the largest on the range. It is 8 by 24 feet inside of timbers, and contains four full-sized working compartments. Sinking is in progress also at the Puritan exploration, in section 17-47-46. The shaft is down approximately 1,000 feet. The Puritan tract comprises 160 acres, and is held under lease by the Steel corporation.

Just to the west of the Puritan, Davies and Geneva, the Newport is sinking one of the deepest, largest and most substantial shafts ever planned in any iron region. Th eshaft is down something over 1,000 feet, but it is not likely to go in commission much, if any, before the early part of 1909. It is going down for the purpose of developing for extensive mining the big bodies of excellent ore found at depths of some 2,000 feet in the east end of the property. Of five compartments, the shaft is 28 by 8½ feet in dimensions. It is steel-framed, and from collar down to and into the solid rock it is lined with concrete. Mining is already in progress at the west end of the Newport at a depth of 2,000 feet, from which point some 1,300 tons of ore are being hoisted daily over a single-skip road. Electrical tramming is in vogue.

At the east end of the mine, known as the Bonnie, a small chimney of ore was followed down from the surface to the fourteenth level. The size of this ore body was small, running some 40,000 tons per 100 feet in depah, but the ore was followed with the hope that at some point the chimney would encounter a dike and spread out along it into a deposit of considerable propositions. This was the theory of General Manager J. B. Thompson, who is an expert geologist as well as a mining man of rare skill, and is proved correct. The shaft cut the dyke at the fifteenth level. The ore is comparatively narrow along the dyke, but it has been followed for upwards of 2,600 feet. The shaft has been put down to the sixteenth and seventeenth levels, and these levels are being opend. This development at the Newport has gone far to prove the contention that the mines of the Gogebic district do not pinch out at such depth as had been reached at the deepest points pencarated, and it has greatly stimulated the new era of mining which is so largely adding to the horizon of the future of the range.

The steel-lined shaft sinking at Oglebay, Norton & Co.'s Eureka mine is nearing the 300-foot mark. The present operating shaft is down between 900 and 1,000 feet. The Eureka lies in sections 12 and 13, 47-46, and comprises 160 acres. In the same field Oglebay, Norton & Co. are sinking a steel-framed shaft at their Asteroid property. This also is down about 300 feet. Sinking was started early last winter and for a long time, or until the shaft was firmly anchored in the ledge, very slow progress was made because of a treacherous overburden of quicksand. The Asteroid is a new property and will be developed through the shaft now sinking. The shaft is 10x17 feet in size, outside measurements. Still another steel shaft is going down at Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Brotherton mine, to the east, in the Sunday Lake country. It is of four compartments, 8x24 feet in dimensions, and is not expected to go into commission within much less time than two years. Two other shafts, each down about 800 feet, are producing.

A second shaft is being opened at Corrigan, McKinney & Co.'s Colby mine, at Bessemer, where important discoveries have been made at depth the past year or two, and the same operator's Ironton mine, near by, is being deepened. The trramming at this latter property is done by electricity. The deepest opening is about 1,000 feet. Further depth is being attained all along at the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company's big Ashland mine, at Ironwood. A novelty at this property is the employment of horse labor in tramming. The Steel corporation's Pabst mine, a member of the Norrie group, and next west of the Newport, is down some 1,200 feet, and will, it is expected, cut the extension of the Newport ore bodies at a depth of about 1,900 feet. The Pabst has two shafts, one of which is a new one of steel, and the entire Norrie group has six. Tramming at the Norrie is for the most part done by electricity.

A very large deposit lying beneath the dyke which held the first body of ore attacked is being mined at the Montreal, on the Wisconsin side of the state boundary, and there is no question the property is destined to become one of the biggest producers on the range. It has already shipped two and one-half million tons at that. The present operating shaft is down to the twentieth level, and is to go down at least two levels more pending further developments. Half a mile nearer the Montreal river, to the east, a second shaft, No. 4, is going down. It is steel-lined. A depth of some 250 feet has been attained. Quicksand occasioned considerable trouble at the shaft, and for two months or more in the early summer little progress was made. It is planned to rush this shaft to completion at as early a date as possible. For this reason upraising will be started from the nineteenth level just as soon as that avenue has been extended from No. 3 shaft to the ground the new shaft is designed to penetrate. More than three-quarters of this distance has already been covered.

The old Germania mine, which also lies on the Wisconsin side of the river and is now known as the Harmony, presents a very good physical appearance and is developing well. It is nearing the 1,800-foot level. The Harmony is operated by Congressman Hayes and his brother, of Columbia, who formerly owned the big Ashland mine at Ironwood. The Hayes brothers gained widespread reputation as successful operators some years ago when they brought about a remarkable reorganization of the Ashland. The mine abandoned, thoroughly discredited on the supposition it was a work-out scram, the property reverted to them as the fee owners. The brothers set about to reopen the mine, and it was not long before their systematic exploratory work had developed the existence of even a greater amount of ore than had previously been shipped. They continued the work, all the while still further expanding the reserves, until finally the Cleveland Cliffs company, the Marquette range's biggest operator, purchased the Ashland for some $4,000,000. The Ashland is the biggest mine on the range, next to the Norrie, and it will be a heavy producer for some decades to come.

In the Matter of the Estate of Randolph N. Seaver, Deceased.

The petition of Nellie B. Seaver as representative of the above named decedent, together with her final account of the administration of said estate, having been filed in this court, representing, among other things, that she has fully administered said estate, and praying that said final account of said administration be examined, adjusted and allowed by the court, and that the court make and enter its final decree of distribution of the residue of the estate of said decedent to the persons entitled thereto, and for the discharge of the representative and the sureties on her bond.

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard, and said final account examined, adjusted and allowed, by the court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in the City of Duluth, in said County, on Monday, the 4th day of November, 1907, at ten o'clock A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald, according to law.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., October 12th, 1907.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

verses come, and Hunter, all unsuspecting, tries to persuade his wife to return with him to Nevada. He fails and starts alone. A beautiful young governess in the house, who has promised to become the wife of young Hunter, overhears the wife and her lover planning to elope that night on their return from the opera. Hunter loses his train, and unexpectedly returns to the house. The governess tells him what his wife is about to do, and he waits until they come home from the performance.

This leads up to the big, albeit theatrical situation of the play. As they are going he stops them and hands the lawyer a revolver, and takes one himself. "Shoot when the clock strikes," he says. As the chimes ring out the lawyer fires, but Hunter does not raise his hand. The two men confront each other in silence for a moment.

"Why didn't you shoot straight?" asks Hunter.

There is a reconciliation in the last act. It is the old story. The wife has learned the true value of her husband's love. The scene is Nevada. She comes and pleads for forgiveness, and the play ends thus.

In the cast, besides George Fawcett, are Jane Oaker as the wife, and Lillian Albertson as the beautiful governess.

Joe Weber opened his New York season in "Hip, Hip, Hooray," last week; but the impression of enthusiastic joyousness conveyed by the title was not conveyed over the footlights, and the rather cool indifference with which it was received forms a noticeable contrast to the ardent reception accorded his former partner, Lew Fields, at the Herald Square, where "The Girl Behind the Counter' is the attraction, with prospects of an all-season's run.

Ever since the two comedians parted several years ago, Weber has had rather the best of it in the allotment of success.

Arnold Daly missed it if he expected to reap the benefit of postponing his opening at the Berkeley theater to Tuesday evening in order to give the critics no excuse for not coming to see him. Barnum is credited with the saying, "I don't care what you write about me, so you don't ignore me." Daly is that sort and the press men know it. Accordingly, he met with indifferent notice at their hands, and the bottom almost dropped out of the reclame which the plan of starting a sort of Theater Antoine in New York might have provoked. But this scribe is true to Daly, believing in his art ideals and praying always for his success.

Three little playlets were offered, including a gruesome one-act Japanese dramalet called "The Martyr," presented by Madame Hanako, the Japanese actress.

These Japs have a fine sense of theatricalism and some of the acting by Hanako and her supporters deserved all the praise it received from the audience, appreciably moved as it was. The death scene was revolting to our finer senses, but there was a distinct charm in her coquetry, her comedy and emotional work.

C. S. McLellan was represented in the program by a playlet called "The Shifters," which preceded the Japanese tragedy. A cynical urbanite arrives at a lonely farmhouse on the Sussex Downs just after the tenant of the place has stabbed his wife in a fit of madness, resulting from the sense of utter loneliness, abandonment and grief over a lost child. The two men exchange places in life. The youth nurses the woman back to life and they live together a year when each man begins to yearn for his original environments. When the woman learns of his intention to leave her she goes into the next room and stabs herself to death with the knife. The wanderer returns, but finds the woman dead and the youth about to set out on his return to the city. As a thriller the playlet fills the bill. It was played by Daly as the youth, Holbrook Blinn as the wanderer and Helen Ware as the woman.

The gloom of the program was somewhat counterbalanced by an airy little comedy by Frederick Nirdlinger, "Washington's First Defeat," in which Daly assumed the part of a rather effeminate young Washington and proved amusing in delineating the character along the lines of a satiric rebuttal of the cherry tree story and other familiar tales that represent the father of his country as a mollycoddle.

It is announced that Bertha Galland has at last found a play and will resume her work on the stage, after a year's absence, the greater part of which was devoted to nursing her mother through a long and critical illness. Nothing has so far been disclosed regarding the character of her future vehicle, but the author is said to be a writer of established reputation.

Edwin Milton Royle's latest play, "The Struggle Everlasting," has been abandoned by Florence Roberts, and "Zira" will be her piece de resistance during her Western tour. In the meantime a new play called "Sham," by Gertrude Bonner, will be put in rehearsal, and if satisfactory will serve Miss Roberts for her third attempt to establish herself on Broadway.

James K. Hackett will not produce "The Fool and the Girl," by David Ward Griffith, in New York until some indefinite date in the vague future. The play opened in Washington and was given a week in Baltimore. It closed last Saturday night on the ground, as claimed, that no New York is available. In the cast were Fanny Ward, Allison Skipworth and John Dean.

William Morris, former leading man of the Empire Stock company, is preparing to go into vaudeville in a light comedy, and Edwin Arden is organizing a small company of players to support him in a playlet which he will present in the vaudeville houses, while Dorothy Thomas, the young English woman who was brought over to create the leading female role in "The Evangelist," will be seen in the same houses with Howard Kyle in a short comedy by Augustus Thomas, entitled "A Proper Impropriety."

A movement is on in New York to start a big benefit for Rose Eytinge, the veteran actress who has been unable to play on account of failing health for some time. Few old-timers but remember Rose Eytinge as one of the really gifted actresses of her time, and it is said that the suggestion of a monster benefit for her is meeting with immediate responses that demonstrate it will be a success. Rose Eytinge began her career in the early 50s, when a young girl. She supported Booth, Davenport and Lester Wallack, and enjoyed her earliest triumphs as the leading woman for the latter's big company. It was during this time that she made her great hit as Nancy Sikes. After Wallack, Miss Eytinge joined the Daly company, and subsequently reached her greatest fame as the leading member of A. M. Palmer's famous organization, during which time she played all the classics then in vogue. In recent years Miss Eytinge has been a member of many prominent companies and has created a number of interesting character parts. If there is a vetcran of the stage whose long and artistic service has earned for her a benefit, Miss Eytinge belongs in the fore ranks.

Victor Herbert, through his attorney, last week asked the supreme court of the United States to permit him to join his efforts with those of several writers of music who are seeking before the country's highest tribunal redress for wrongs said to have been done them by different music publishing houses. The action is brought for the purpose of determining the author's rights in the making of perforated music rolls to sell to various automatic pianos and other instrumental players. Mr. Herbert in his petition says that for years he has suffered through the unwarranted use of his music for such purposes, and that he has never derived one cent of revenue from the uses of the same for this work. He therefore, prays, as a disinterested composer, for the right to take a hand in the case now pending before the supreme court, in the hope that his case may have some bearing upon the ultimate establishment of a case which will do full justice to hardworking composers.

His contention is that all writers are entitled to such fruits of their brains as may be covered in their copyrights, and that it is time the unwarranted use of their music by automatic machines is put a stop to.

Henry Bernstein, whose successful play, "The Thief," is quite the sensation of the season thus far in New York, is said to have completed another powerful story that is soon to be brought out in Paris. It will likely find its way to America sooner than usual, now that the first piece has made such a hit. The new piece is called "La Foudre," and is to be produced at the Renaissance in Paris this week.

Jerome K. Jerome has come over from England to take personal charge of rehearsals by Grace George and her company of his new play, "Sylvia of the Letters." Mr. Jerome will travel from town to town with the George organization and devote his entire time in the days intervening to instilling his ideas into the play of his novel creation. The English humorist says that he has turned to the stage because of Mr. Carnegie's generosity. His contention is that the general distribution of libraries by the ironmaster has made the sale of books something not near so profitable as it used to be, and so to make the needed money he finds the stage more remunerative. Mr. Jerome writes so well that the stage is the richer by this change in his plans.

Laura Burt began her starring tour in "The Walls of Jericho," in New Jersey, last week. Miss Burt is assisted in the play by Harry B. Stanford, the young English actor. The piece will be used in teritory not reached by James K. Hackett during the two seasons that he played the comedy in this country.

Clyde Fitch has turned to vaudeville and written a sketch for Georgie Laurence that was tried out last week, and made a decided hit. It is called "Miss Cobb, Manicurist," and is said to be a typical Fitch effort. The part allotted to Miss Laurence, who by the way made her first hit in a Fitch play, written for Maxine Elliott, is that of the slangy manicure who combines a sense of expression with a keen understanding of her patrons. Miss Cobb is something of a philosopher and a gossip also, and her remarks are said to be in the breezy Fitchian vein at all times. The funny idea in the sketch is that a rival sees a young chauffeur visit the manicure parlors of Miss Cobb and decides that the latter is trying to steal her young man. She drops into the establishment and starts to "rough house" it generally. After they have had a regular catpin duel and torn pompadours and other appurtenances to pieces the caller discovers that the chauffeur is not her young man at all, but a chap who looks like him. Mutual explanations and all comes out right in the end.

Charles Wyndham has just brought out a new play in London that is attracting considerable attention. It is called "The Mollusc." The story concerns a woman who elects to do nothing, but keeps those around her busy all the time contributing to her desires. The play is odd, in that there are but four characters in it. The story was written by Hubert Henry Davies, whose ability to write delightful dialogue is well known in this country also. The reports from London say that the place is the hit of the season there.

Augustus Thomas, the playwright, is taking a sort of vacation from his regular occupation and is making political speeches in the East. The author is one of the most effective stump speakers in the Democratic party, and it is upon William Jennings Bryan's personal invitation that he is accompanying the latter upon his tour of the principal cities in New York state. After the campaign closes Mr. Thomas will get down to work upon the new play which he has written for John Mason, and in which the latter is to be made a star under the Shubert management.

R. G. Knowles, the comedian now playing in this country in advanced vaudeville, has decided to stay over in America some time after his original dates are concluded. Mr. Knowles upon his last visit tried a few lectures that went so well that he is booking a smillar tour after he finishes in the vaudeville houses. Knowles is an American, but made his fame as a monologue entertainer in London, and has been brought here on several occasions, always earning one of the biggest salaries paid in vaudeville where they talk now in four figures as if they were selling sand.

Of all unexpected places, it is said there is a growing Shaw cult in Paris and that his admirers are seeking to have adaptations of the brilliant Irishman's plays produced in the French capital. Paris is usually so taken up with itself that the outside finds little recognition there, and on this account the compliment to Shaw is all the more surprising. The next problem, however, is to see how Shaw, who never agrees with anything, will take this newest demonstration. If this keeps up the next thing we will have the usual spectacle offered of Shaw agreeing with himself.

The long advertised metropolitan premiere of "The Merry Widow" is booked for tomorrow evening, when this European hit will go into the New Amsterdam theater, New York, to stay for an indefinite period. Franz Lehar, the author of the score, was to have come over to attend the opening performance, but at the last moment he cabled Manager Savage that he would be unable to fill that engagement. "The Merry Widow" has been on on tour in the East for several weeks, being worked into final shape for its metropolitan presentations. This piece has been the rage in Vienna, Berlin and London, and so much has been said of it in advance that it will indeed have to be a wonderful success to live up to the expectations that have been built up for it.

The rumored separation of Henry Miller and Margaret Anglin in their artistic co-partnership that has been such a factor in the success of "The Great Divide," seems to have been only a rumor after all. It is reported that all alleged differences between the two stars have been adjusted, and that both Mr. Miller and Miss Anglin will continue in that play. This means that Miss Anglin's proposed tour of Australia is abandoned temporarily at least.

tinuous ore body for its entire length of 2,000 feet, whereas the 1,600-foot level contains but a length of 1,200 feet of commercial ore. The continuity of the vein on the 1,800-foot level is proven by the recent developments to the east on the Bell property and on the Cascade to the west. The average assay of the 700 feet of drifting at the latter depth is about 10 per cent, with values in some portions as high as 28 per cent. This vein will be disclosed at the 2,000-foot level before January, while in the meantime the Jessie vein will have been intercepted by the cross-cuts extending from the 1,800-foot level. Cross-cuts are being extended to the Berlin claim from the 800, 1,000, 1,200 and 1,600-foot levels of the active workings. This fact is significant as reflecting the confidence on the part of the management in the future of the Berlin veins. It is believed that the management is in possession of material information regarding the values in this direction, as if the purpose of the operations was with a view to proving up the territory, it is probable that the extension of but one cross-cut would be deemed sufficient. The 1,600-foot level crosscut is now progressing through the Berlin claim and may intercept the vein at any moment.

have been suspended at the mine of the Loretto Iron company, five miles east of Norway, Menominee range. Two hundred men have been employed. The idleness will, however, be of short duration. Most of the men will be given work by the channel contractors, and the remainder will be employed in opening up ore deposits, the development of which will be made possible by the shift in the course of the river.

The Loretto mine is bounded on the east by the Sturgeon river and on the south and west by the Pine river, with a small stream known as Black creek to the North. Thus the mine is almost surrounded by water. The easterly drifts are under the bed of the Sturgeon at a depth of 280 feet. The ground between the river and the upper level is nearly all ore of a good quality and a large body of ore is known to exist on the east side of the river in the direction of the Eleanor mine upon which the Loretto company now has a lease. The Keweenaw association of Boston, Mass., owns the land to the north and west.

The new channel to be built for the Sturgeon will be half a mile in length, and at one point the excavation will be fifty feet in depth. For the greater portion of the distance steam shovels can be used. It doubtless will take a year to complete the work. The project will cost a large sum of money, but when completed it will release a large body of high-grade ore and at the same time avoid all danger of such a disaster as that at the Mansfield mine in September, 1893, when the Michigammie river rushed into the workings without a moment's warning and caused heavy loss of life.

As the work of excavating the new channel progresses, the Loretto company will develop and open up its ore deposits so as to be in position to resume mining operations upon a larger scale than ever before in the history of the property. Recently there has occurred an extensive settling of ground in the Loretto, the caved area extending from the second to the sixth level, ninety feet on the vein and 400 feet in depth, but it had been fully anticipated and the men had been kept from the danger zone. The financial loss was nominal. A new battery of boilers is to be installed at the Saginaw mine, formerly the old Perkins property, at Norway, during the winter months. The Saginaw is looking well for a mine that was considered worked out years ago, and it will ship 30,000 tons of ore this season.

On the Marquette range the Foundation company of New York has started the work of sinking a concrete shaft at the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company's new Smith mine, in the Swanzey district. It has been busy with the preliminary operations for some weeks. The ledge at the Smith is down only sixty feet, but the overburden is quicksand in which ordinary methods of sinking are impossible. The shaft is within 100 feet of the Escanaba river, and it is extremely probable that a heavy flow of water will be encountered. However, it is expected to get down to the ledge within sixty or ninety days. The stripping operations in progress for some months have been finished at Oglebay, Norton & Co.'s Empire mine in the Cascade district of the Marquette. The overburden has been removed for an average depth of four feet in an area 200x110 feet. The Empire is a milling proposition, the only one on the range, and it will continue in operation throughout the winter with probably even more men than are now employed. The ore is hard and it is necessary to crush the product before shipping it.

In no other part of the Lake Superior iron region is the geological formation so uniform as in the major portion of the Gogebic range. The district is remarkable also in that its product is almost entirely in the Bessemer class. So regular is the formation, and so thoroughly has it been determined that ore does not exist except between the grey and black slates, that when it is desired to open new deposits in any given place within the proved area, this particularly applying to the Michigan field, just east of the Montreal river, it has become the practice to dispense with the exploration work characteristic of early days on the range and still in vogue elsewhere in the Lake Superior iron country. The trend of the formation ascertained by test-pitting, a permanent shaft, nowadays of steel, sunk in the slate footwall to considerable depth, generally about a thousand feet, and at convenient points crosscuts are driven. These crosscuts intercepting the ore at moderate or greater depth, the shaft is there, ready for duty, and much time has been saved. Of course should ore not be found, the heavy expenditure will have been made for naught; but this never happens.

The ore on the Gogebic lies deep, more so than in any other portion of the Lake Superior region, and generally it occurs in immense bodies. It has been said, and it appears with truth, notwithstanding that the first cargo was sent out as long ago as 1884, that the Gogebic is yet in its infancy. Developments at Ferdinand Schlesinger's Newport mine bear out this contention in their indication that ore not only exists 2,000 feet below the surface, but will be found even deeper, and doutless materially deeper. Thus there is long life ahead for the mines in general, a number of which were thought not so many years ago to have practically reached the end of their productivity. The ore for the most part is found on successive layers of jasper dykes, especially on the Michigan side of the border line.

At the present time eight new steel shafts are going down on the Gogebic, these being at the Steel corporation's Aurora, Davies and Geneva properties; Oglebay, Norton & Co.'s, Eureka and Asteroid; Pickands, Mather & Co.'s, Brotherton, and Schlesinger's Newport mine to the east of the Montreal river, and at the Montreal Mining company's property on the Wisconsin side of the stream. In addition, preparations are making at the Steel corporation's Tilden mine, in Section 15, 47-46, to sink a shaft of steel to the westward of the present workings. The Tilden has three shafts now, Nos. 6, 9 and 10, the deepest of which is approximately 1,400 feet. The new "F" steel shaft at the above is down 600 feet; it was started last fall. The mine is at present operated through two shafts sunk to depths of 1,024 and 1,160 feet, respectively. Ore is trammed by electricity.

At the Geneva property, in section 18-47-46, the Steel corporation is sinking to a continuation of the ore body of the Newport, lying to the west. The shaft is very near the 2,000-foot level, at or somewhat below which point the crosscuts are expected to run into the deposits, to reach which a very large sum of money is being expended. A similar deep shaft is sinking at the Steel corporation's Davies property, also in 47-46. A depth of about 600 feet has been attained. The shaft will be one of the largest on the range. It is 8 by 24 feet inside of timbers, and contains four full-sized working compartments. Sinking is in progress also at the Puritan exploration, in section 17-47-46. The shaft is down approximately 1,000 feet. The Puritan tract comprises 160 acres, and is held under lease by the Steel corporation.

Just to the west of the Puritan, Davies and Geneva, the Newport is sinking one of the deepest, largest and most substantial shafts ever planned in any iron region. Th eshaft is down something over 1,000 feet, but it is not likely to go in commission much, if any, before the early part of 1909. It is going down for the purpose of developing for extensive mining the big bodies of excellent ore found at depths of some 2,000 feet in the east end of the property. Of five compartments, the shaft is 28 by 8½ feet in dimensions. It is steel-framed, and from collar down to and into the solid rock it is lined with concrete. Mining is already in progress at the west end of the Newport at a depth of 2,000 feet, from which point some 1,300 tons of ore are being hoisted daily over a single-skip road. Electrical tramming is in vogue.

At the east end of the mine, known as the Bonnie, a small chimney of ore was followed down from the surface to the fourteenth level. The size of this ore body was small, running some 40,000 tons per 100 feet in depah, but the ore was followed with the hope that at some point the chimney would encounter a dike and spread out along it into a deposit of considerable propostions. This was the theory of General Manager J. R. Thompson, who is an expert geologist as well as a mining man of rare skill, and is proved correct. The shaft cut the dyke at the fifteenth level. The ore is comparatively narrow along the dyke, but it has been followed for upwards of 2,000 feet. The shaft has been put down to the sixteenth and seventeenth levels, and these levels are being opend. This development at the Newport has gone far to prove the contention that the mines of the Gogebic district do not pinch out at such depth as had been reached at the deepest points penearated, and it has greatly stimulated the new era of mining which is so largely adding to the horizon of the future of the range.

The steel-lined shaft sinking at Oglebay, Norton & Co.'s Eureka mine is nearing the 300-foot mark. The present operating shaft is down between 900 and 1,000 feet. The Eureka lies in sections 13 and 18, 47-46, and comprises 120 acres. In the same field Oglebay, Norton & Co. are sinking a steel-framed shaft at their Asteroid property. This also is down about 300 feet. Sinking was started early last winter and for a long time, or until the shaft was firmly anchored in the ledge, very slow progress was made because of a treacherous overburden of quicksand. The Asteroid is a new property and will be developed through the shaft now sinking. The shaft is 10x17 feet in size, outside measurements. Still another steel shaft is going down at Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Brotherton mine, to the east, in the Sunday Lake country. It is of four compartments, 8x24 feet in dimensions, and is not expected to go into commission within much less time than two years. Two other shafts, each down about 850 feet, are producing.

A second shaft is being opened at Corrigan, McKinney & Co.'s Colby mine, at Bessemer, where important discoveries have been made at depth the past year or two, and the same operator's Ironton mine, near by, is being deepened. The tramming at this latter property is done by electricity. The deepest opening is about 1,000 feet. Further depth is being attained all along at the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company's big, ashland mine, at Ironwood. A novelty at this property is the employment of horse labor in tramming. The Steel corporation's Pabst mine, a member of the Norrie group, and next west to the Newport, is down some 1,200 feet and will, it is expected, cut the extension of the Newport ore bodies at a depth of about 1,900 feet. The Pabst has two shafts, one of which is a new one of steel, and the entire Norrie group has six. Tramming at the Norrie is for the most part done by electricity.

A very large deposit lying beneath the dyke which held the first body of ore attacked is being mined at the Montreal, on the Wisconsin side of the state boundary, and there is no question the property is destined to become one of the biggest producers on the range. It has already shipped two and one-half million tons at that. The present operating shaft is down to the twentieth level, and is to go down at least two levels more pending further developments. Half a mile nearer the Montreal river, to the east, a second shaft, No. 4, is going down. It is steel-lined. A depth of some 250 feet has been attained. Quicksand occasioned considerable trouble at the shaft, and for two months or more in the early summer little progress was made. It is planned to rush this shaft to completion as early a date as possible. For this reason upraising will be started from the nineteenth level just as soon as that avenue has been extended from No. 3 shaft to the ground the new shaft is designed to penetrate. More than three-quarters of this distance has already been covered.

The old Germania mine, which also lies on the Wisconsin side of the river and is now known as the Harmony, presents a very good physical appearance and is developing well. It is nearing the 1,800-foot level. The Harmony is operated by Congressman Hayes and his brother, of California, who formerly owned the big Ashland mine at Ironwood. The Hayes brothers gained widespread reputation as successful operators some years ago when they brought about a remarkable rejuvenation of the Ashland. The mine abandoned, thoroughly discredited on the supposition it was a worked-out scram, the property reverted to them as the fee owners. The brothers set about to reopen the mine, and it was not long before their systematic exploratory work had developed the existence of even a greater amount of ore than had previously been shipped. They continued the work, all the while still further expanding the reserves, until finally the Cleveland Cliffs company, the Marquette range's biggest operator, purchased the Ashland for some $4,000,000. Now the Ashland is the biggest mine on the range, next to the Norrie, and it will be a heavy producer for some decades to come.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR ADMINISTRATION.

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —In Probate Court.

In the Matter of the Estate of Robert McKeever, Deceedent.

THE PETITION of Mary McKeever having been filed in this court, representing, among other things, that Robert McKeever, then being a resident of the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, died intestate, in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, on the 29th day of Sept., 1907; leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said petitioner is the widow of said decedent, and praying that letters of administration of the estate of said decedent be granted to Mary McKeever of Duluth, Minn.

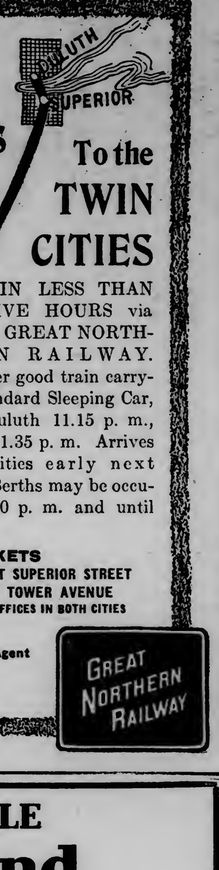

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth in said County on Monday the 18th day of November, 1907, at ten o'clock, A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in the Duluth Evening Herald according to law, and that a copy of this order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County, not less than ten days prior to said day of hearing.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., October 17th, 1907.

By order of Court.

SOCIETY

WITH Indian summer, that most exquisitely perfect time of year when, try as one will, nothing but peace on earth can prevail if one only consults Nature, comes also the time when really good housekeepers pull up the hardwood floors and carefully remove the paper from the walls in order that the house may have at least "one good cleaning." One's innermost nature rebels against the desecrating housecleaning being mentioned in the same breath as Indian summer and such perfect autumn days as Duluth has enjoyed, but truth will out and housecleaning has occupied the attention of a good many Duluth women.

There was much interest during the week in the lectures by Mrs. Kate Upson Clark and the functions attendant upon her week's visit in the city. Mrs. Clark was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Hubbell during the week. It was from Mrs. Clark's home in Brooklyn that the wedding of Miss Janet Welch and Ralph G. Hubbell took place last June. Several informal affairs were given during the week in Mrs. Clark's honor.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. House of 2210 East Superior street will issue invitations within a few days for the wedding of their niece, Miss Arline Arnold to Frank Leech, and the wedding will be of much interest to Duluth society. The wedding will be a home function and the day chosen is Thursday, Nov. 14. The wedding service wil be read at 2:30 o'clock. Mr. Leech and his bride will be at home in Duluth. Another wedding of much interest in Duluth society will be a November event, and the galetles attendant on these ceremonies will be among the prettiest events of the autumn.

The interest in the annual round-up of the Needlework guild is widespread, and at 310 East Superior street, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons of next week will be devoted to this charity by a large number of Duluth women.

The members of the assembly were hosts at the Spalding last evening at the first of the season's ball and the autumn party was a delightful one that was enjoyed by a large number of the dancing set. The decorations of the hall were simple, the orchestra's stand being decorated with palms and potted chrysanthemums and a few of the flowers were placed along the sides of the hall. La Brosse's orchestra played a delightful program of dancing music, and those present were:

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

Benefits of a Department Club.

The benefits that Duluth women might derive from a department club which would be loyally supported by the women of the city was demonstrated in part during the last week by the course of lectures by Kate Upson Clark of Brooklyn, who gave a series of lectures before the members of the Twentieth Century club, and to which a membership ticket in the club admitted the members. This is the first time that a Duluth women's club has brought an out of town lecturer to the city for which no more than the membership dues were required for attendance. This course of lectures will probably be the only course by an out of town lecturer that will be given this year by the club, but a most attractive course of study in the various classes has been arranged and there will be a course of lectures by Rev. J. Powell on Browning and his poems, and single lectures by the prominent educators of the city. To all of these the membership ticket admits. With all of the women's clubs of the city combined the opportunity for a larger work would be increased and many finer opportunities to hear people who have a message to give would be available.

Although the Twentieth Century club has been so long organized, and the object of the charter members has been to bring its work to any woman of the city who desires, there are yet many, among the more recent arrivals who do not know the requirements of membership.

The membership dues are $1.00 a year, and the constitution of the club says:

"Membership shall be based upon intelligence and character, without regard to race, politics or religion."

The series of lectures by Mrs. Kate Upson Clark, the last of which was given this morning at Steinway hall, have been received with delight by the Duluth women, and Mrs. Clark will be welcomed at any time she may return.

Kubelik's Assistants.

Jan Kubelik, on his coming American tour, under the management of Daniel Frohman, will bring forward as a solo pianist, Miss Berthe Roy, a 19-year-old pupil of the late Marmontel of the Paris Conservatoire.

As a girl of 10, Miss Roy astonished Paris with her extraordinary and musical intelligence. After two seasons of concert work, as a prodigy, she retired for serious study at the Conservatoire, until last winter when she appeared at many prominent recitals in Paris and then in New York city. Miss Roy's present engagement with Kubelik is, therefore, her American debut as a mature artist.

She is described as a young woman of poetic temperament, combining the charm and grace of French style with remarkable natural understanding of the deeper things in music.

Miss Roy comes naturally by her musical gifts, as she is a daughter of A. P. Roy, formerly organist of St. Roch, in Quebec.

Herr Ludwig Schwab, who was with Kubelik during the last American tour, and indeed has been his only accompanist for some years, will also serve in the same capacity on his present tour.

Ernest Schelling.

Ernest Schelling, the American pianist, is probably the dearest friend of Ignace Paderewski, his Polish confrere. Years ago Paderewski heard Schelling play and invited him to come and study with him. Schelling accepted the unusual proffer and for four years, he was a member of Paderewski's household. The attachment grew between them very sturdy, particularly after the death of Paderewski's son. Later, Schelling received on the night of his first triumph, a cablegram saying "My love and congratulations to you—once my pupil, now my colleague." It was in 1905 that Paderewski and Schelling were both touring in this country. In one of the wealthiest and most distinguished homes in New York, Schelling was welcomed with his friend Paderewski, and when several months later the courtly young American musician was married in that same home to the daughter of his host, Paderewski was announced as the best man. He was unable to be present at the wedding, owing to the physical and nervous distress that followed a railroad accident. During the past summer Mr. and Mrs. Paderewski were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Schelling at the latter's villa at Ragaz, in Switzerland.

Brilliant Young Pianist, Who Will Be Heard at Lyceum Nov. 18.

Olga Samaroff Arrives.

Mme. Olga Samaroff, the pianist who is to make her second tour of this country during the coming season under the management of C. A. Ellis of Boston, sailed on Tuesday, Oct. 15, from Cherburg on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. Mme. Samaroff arrived in New York on Oct. 22. She went directly to Boston where she will give her first recital on Monday afternoon, Oct. 28. Thence she will go to Buuffalo, where she is to give a recital, and her time will thenceforth be fully occupied until the first of May when she will leave America for an absence of several years.

She will play in Duluth in December under the auspices of the Matinee Musicale.

Bishop's Club.

The regular meeting of the Bishop's club will be held Tuesday evening of next week at the club rooms on West Fourth street. The leader for the evening will be Mrs. L. K. Daugherty, and the outline of study is as follows:

Book Review of Archbishop Ireland's "The Church and Modern Society."

German Literature Class.

The regular meeting of the German literature class of the Twentieth Century club will be held Tuesday afternoon of next week at the club room of the library. The meeting will be called to order at 2:30 o'clock, and the subject for study during the afternoon will be of the life and writings of Herder. Any one interested in the class is invited to attend the meeting.

Represented Duluth Chapter.

Greysolon duLhut chapter, of this city, of the Daughters of American Revolution was represented at the state meeting, which was held yesterday at Minneapolis, by Mrs. Julia M. Barnes. The Daughters of Liberty chapter had no representative at the meeting.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Three-Act Comedy by Professor Potter to be Staged.

Minneapolis, Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Jamieson" is the title of the three-act comedy which has recntly been completed by Prof. Potter of the English department, author of the popular western novel, "The Ballingtons," and it is almost certain that the play will be staged sometime in the near future. It is probable that the first performance will be given the Friday after Thanksgiving. The Christine Hill Stock company of the Lyceum theater has agreed to present the play.

"Binks," the new mascot for the gridiron heroes, takes his place today while Minnesota and Chicago are matched on the field. "Binks" is George Case's white bull dog, now the pet of the Gopher team. He has been chosen to fill the place left by "Sig," the big brindle growler of days gone by, who was dethroned after his disgraceful defeat at the hands of a Wisconsin pup. "Sig" was in Duluth last winter and there met his Waterloo in a fight with a common street dog from Wisconsin. Old age was supposed to be the cause of the defeat and loss of position.

The second "Purity Banquet" in the history of the big nine will be given Friday, Nov. 1, by the Minnesota team to the visiting Maroons. The successful affair of similar kind, held last year at Chicago, was the inspiration for the proposed entertainment. Plans are not yet matured, but it is likely that dinner will be served in the armory, with the teams coaches, students and alumni of both colleges present.

Work on the Junior Annual is progressing rapidly, the art, chronicle and literary committees having already made considerable headway. All work will be finished by Christmas and the '09 Gopher will appear on the first morning of May.

Bishop Gilbert society, at a meeting held Wednesday evening, drew up a resolution to be sent to the clergy of the Twin Cities asking for their co-operation in erecting a $25,000 clubhouse in honor of late Bishop Gilbert. An active canvass for funds has been started by the student pastor, Rev. Stanley Kibourne, and already several thousand dollars are in sight. Building operations will probably begin next spring. The clubhouse will not be located on the campus, but within the immediate vicinity.

Wednesday, appeared the first issue of volume fifteen of the Minnesota Magazine. The editors have put forth every effort to make the first number an adequate beginning for the most successful year the magazine has yet experienced. "On the Third Shelf" is the original and unique sketch written by Florence Godley. Guy Bland tells of "Two Conversations," while Harter, the managing editor, has contributed a bright interesting story, "The Experiment." Catherine Rittenhouse contributed the beautiful new cover design, the first attraction of the magazine.

"The Federation Movement in Austria," is the title of a recent book by Prof. Allin of the political science department, which has just appeared on sale. The book deals very clearly and comprehensively with the question and is also very interesting reading.

"Cap and Gown" is the name of the new senior co-ed society formed this week for the promotion of good fellowship among the girls of the graduating class. In former years the class president appointed a committee to see to the girls' social functions, but this year a meeting of the girls was called by Dean Comstock, the society was formed and officers elected. Already plans are made for spreads and other good times for the cap and gown.

Registrar Pierce says that the total enrollment this year is already almost to the 4,300 mark, and that after the February registration, it is likely that 4,500 will be reached. This includes members of all the colleges and summer school students.

SOCIETY

WITH Indian summer, that most exquisitely perfect time of year when, try as one will, nothing but peace on earth can prevail if one only consults Nature, comes also the time when really good housekeepers pull up the hardwood floors and carefully remove the paper from the walls in order that the house may have at least "one good cleaning." One's innermost nature rebels against the desecrating housecleaning being mentioned in the same breath as Indian summer and such perfect autumn days as Duluth has enjoyed, but truth will out and housecleaning has occupied the attention of a good many Duluth women.

There was much interest during the week in the lectures by Mrs. Kate Upson Clark and the functions attendant upon her week's visit in the city. Mrs. Clark was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Hubbell during the week. It was from Mrs. Clark's home in Brooklyn that the wedding of Miss Janet Welch and Ralph G. Hubbell took place last June. Several informal affairs were given during the week in Mrs. Clark's honor.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. House of 2210 East Superior street will issue invitations within a few days for the wedding of their niece, Miss Arline Arnold to Frank Leech, and the wedding will be of much interest to Duluth society. The wedding will be a home function and the day chosen is Thursday, Nov. 14. The wedding service wil be read at 2:30 o'clock. Mr. Leech and his bride will be at home in Duluth. Another wedding of much interest in Duluth society will be a November event, and the galeties attendant on these ceremonies will be among the prettiest events of the autumn.

The interest in the annual round-up of the Needlework guild is widespread, and at 310 East Superior street, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons of next week will be devoted to this charity by a large number of Duluth women.

The members of the assembly were hosts at the Spalding last evening at the first of the season's ball and the autumn party was a delightful one that was enjoyed by a large number of the dancing set. The decorations of the hall were simple, the orchestra's stand being decorated with palms and potted chrysanthemums and a few of the flowers were placed along the sides of the hall. La Brosse's orchestra played a delightful program of dancing music, and those present were:

Several affairs were given during the week in compliment to Miss Louise K. Noyes, whose departure from the city was so keenly regretted by so many Duluthians, and many of her friends in the city were grateful to the ladies of the Pilgrim Congregational church, who planned a public reception in her honor, thus providing an opportunity for many of her friends to greet her. The affair was given Monday evening at the church parlors, and was largely attended. The rooms were brightly decorated in scarlet and autumn leaves and in the receiving line were: Rev. and Mrs. Alexander Milne, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge and Mrs. W. B. Dunlop, with the guest of honor. Mrs. W. G. Hegardt assisted about the rooms. During the evening Miss Frances Woodbridge sang, and Mr. Milne presented Miss Noyes with a pearl and sapphire brooch from her friends in the church.

Presiding at the refreshment tables which were prettily decorated in red and white, were Mrs. Theron K. Hawkes, Jr., and Mrs. Albert Baldwin.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

The benefits that Duluth women might derive from a department club which would be loyally supported by the women of the city was demonstrated in part during the last week by the course of lectures by Kate Upson Clark of Brooklyn, who gave a series of lectures before the members of the Twentieth Century club, and to which a membership ticket in the club admitted the members. This is the first time that a Duluth women's club has brought an out of town lecturer to the city for which no more than the membership dues were required for attendance. This course of lectures will probably be the only course by an out of town lecturer that will be given this year by the club, but a most attractive course of study in the various classes has been arranged and there will be a course of lectures by Rev. J. Powell on Browning and his poems, and single lectures by the prominent educators of the city. To all of these the membership ticket admits. With all of the women's clubs of the city combined the opportunity for a larger work would be increased and many finer opportunities to hear people who have a message to give would be available.

Although the Twentieth Century club has been so long organized, and the object of the charter members has been to bring its work to any woman of the city who desires, there are yet many, among the more recent arrivals who do not know the requirements of membership.

The membership dues are $1.00 a year, and the constitution of the club says:

"Membership shall be based upon intelligence and character, without regard to race, politics or religion."

The series of lectures by Mrs. Kate Upson Clark, the last of which was given this morning at Steinway hall, have been received with delight by the Duluth women, and Mrs. Clark will be welcomed at any time she may return.

Kubelik's Assistants.

Jan Kubelik, on his coming American tour, under the management of Daniel Frohman, will bring forward as a solo pianist, Miss Berthe Roy, a 19-year-old pupil of the late Marmontel of the Paris Conservatoire.

As a girl of 10, Miss Roy astonished Paris with her extraordinary and musical intelligence. After two seasons of concert work, as a prodigy, she retired for serious study at the Conservatoire, until last winter when she appeared at many prominent recitals in Paris and then in New York city. Miss Roy's present engagement with Kubelik is, therefore, her American debut as a mature artist.

She is described as a young woman of poetic temperament, combining the charm and grace of French style with remarkable natural understanding of the deeper things in music.

Miss Roy comes naturally by her musical gifts, as she is a daughter of A. P. Roy, formerly organist of St. Roch, in Quebec.

Herr Ludwig Schwab, who was with Kubelik during the last American tour, and indeed has been his only accompanist for some years, will also serve in the same capacity on his present tour.

Ernest Schelling.

Ernest Schelling, the American pianist, is probably the dearest friend of Ignace Paderewski, his Polish confrere. Years ago Paderewski heard Schelling play and invited him to come and study with him. Schelling accepted the unusual proffer and for four years, he was a member of Paderewski's household. The attachment grew between them very sturdy, particularly after the death of Paderewski's son. Later, Schelling received on the night of his first triumph, a cablegram saying "My love and congratulations to you—once my pupil, now my colleague." It was in 1905 that Paderewski and Schelling were both touring in this country. In one of the wealthiest and most distinguished homes in New York, Schelling was welcomed with his friend Paderewski, and when several months later the courtly young American musician was married in that same home to the daughter of his host, Paderewski announced as the best man. He was unable to be present at the wedding, owing to the physical and nervous distress that followed a railroad accident. During the past summer Mr. and Mrs. Paderewski were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Schelling at the latter's villa at Ragaz, in Switzerland.

Olga Samaroff Arrives.

Mme. Olga Samaroff, the pianist, who is to make her second tour of this country during the coming season under the management of C. A. Ellis of Boston, sailed on Tuesday, Oct. 15, from Cherburg on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. Mme. Samaroff arrived in New York on Oct. 22. She went directly to Boston where she will give her first recital on Monday afternoon, Oct. 28. Thence she will go to Buuffalo, where she is to give a recital, and her time will thenceforth be fully occupied until the first of May when she will leave America for an absence of several years.

She will play in Duluth in December under the auspices of the Matinee Musicale.

Bishop's Club.

The regular meeting of the Bishop's club will be held Tuesday evening of next week at the club rooms on West Fourth street. The leader for the evening will be Mrs. L. K. Daugherty, and the outline of study is as follows:

Bible Study .....
Bishop McGolrick.
Current Events .....
Miss Knauff.
Paper on "Napoleon" .....
Dr. Mary McCoy.
Paper on "Tallyrand" .....
Mrs. L. K. Daugherty.
Song—"My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" .....
Saint-Saens.
Miss Jane Everington.

German Literature Class.

The regular meeting of the German literature class of the Twentieth Century club will be held Tuesday afternoon of next week at the club room of the library. The meeting will be called to order at 2:30 o'clock, and the subject for study during the afternoon will be of the life and writings of Herder. Any one interested in the class is invited to attend the meeting.

Represented Duluth Chapter.

Greysolon duLhut chapter, of this city, of the Daughters of American Revolution was represented at the state meeting, which was held yesterday at Minneapolis, by Mrs. Julin M. Barnes. The Daughters of Liberty chapter had no representative at the meeting.

Three-Act Comedy by Professor Potter to be Staged.

Minneapolis, Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Jamieson" is the title of the three-act comedy which has recently been completed by Prof. Potter of the English department, author of the popular western novel, "The Ballingtons," and it is almost certain that the play will be staged sometime in the near future. It is probable that the first performance will be given the Friday after Thanksgiving. The Christine Hill Stock company of the Lyceum theater has agreed to present the play.

"Binks," the new mascot for the gridiron heroes, takes his place today while Minnesota and Chicago are matched on the field. "Binks" is George Case's white bull dog, now the pet of the Gopher team. He has been chosen to fill the place left by "Sig," the big brindle growler of days gone by, who was dethroned after his disgraceful defeat at the hands of a Wisconsin pup. "Sig" was in Duluth last winter and there met his Waterloo in a fight with a common street dog from Wisconsin. Old age was supposed to be the cause of the defeat and loss of position.

The second "Purity Banquet" in the history of the big nine will be given Friday, Nov. 1, by the Minnesota team to the visiting Maroons. The successful affair of similar kind, held last year at Chicago, was the inspiration for the proposed entertainment. Plans are not yet matured, but it is likely that dinner will be served in the armory, with the teams coaches, students and alumni of both colleges present.

Work on the Junior Annual is progressing rapidly, the art, chronicle and literary committees having already made considerable headway. All work will be finished by Christmas and the '09 Gopher will appear on the first morning of May.

Bishop Gilbert society, at a meeting held Wednesday evening, drew up a resolution to be sent to the clergy of the Twin Cities asking for their co-operation in erecting a $25,000 clubhouse in honor of late Bishop Gilbert. An active canvass for funds has been started by the student pastor, Rev. Stanley Kibourne, and already several thousand dollars are in sight. Building operations will probably begin next spring. The clubhouse will not be located on the campus, but within the immediate vicinity.

Wednesday, appeared the first issue of volume fifteen of the Minnesota Magazine. The editors have put forth every effort to make the first number an adequate beginning for the most successful year the magazine has yet experienced. "On the Third Shelf" is the original and unique sketch written by Florence Godley. Guy Bland tells of "Two Conversations," while Harter, the managing editor, has contributed a bright interesting story, "The Experiment." Catherine Rittenhouse contributed the beautiful new cover design, the first attraction of the magazine.

"The Federation Movement in Austria," is the title of a recent book by Prof. Allin of the political science department, which has just appeared on sale. The book deals very clearly and comprehensively with the question and is also very interesting reading.

"Cap and Gown" is the name of the new senior co-ed society formed this week for the promotion of good fellowship among the girls of the graduating class. In former years the class president appointed a committee to see to the girls' social functions, but this year a meeting of the girls was called by Dean Comstock, the society was formed and officers elected. Already plans are made for spreads and other good times for the cap and gown.

Registrar Pierce says that the total enrollment this year is already almost to the 4,300 mark, and that after the February registration, it is likely that 4,500 will be reached. This includes members of all the colleges and summer school students.

Types of Costumes for the Different Daily Sessions- The Tailormade and the Dressy Gown- The New Trained Skirt in the Latter-Materials and Their Colorings.

When the Horse Show opens in New York next month a fashion show of unprecedented interest will likewise take place. The special productions of renowned American and foreign dressmakers, milliners and furriers will make their first public appearance during the five days of this great annual society event, and what are to be the styles of the coming winter are those modes which will receive their stamp of approval on this momentous occasion.

Advance Preparations.

For weeks past the high class houses have been busy designing and making garments and accessories for women of society and fashion whose presence at the show is of sufficient importance to create newspaper sensation all over the country. Just what these women are to wear is, naturally, of interest to women of every class.

Each day of the show is divided into three sessions, morning, afternoon and evening, and each session calls for its own particular style of dress. During the morning hours one sees only business women and feminine horse lovers mingling in limited numbers with the masculine contingent surrounding the enclosure, the boxes being comparatively empty. These one and all are garbed in the plainest of smart tailor-mades, natty headgear, footwear and accessories which go to the completion of the tailor-made girl's toilette.

The Typical Tailor-Made.

Much has already been said about the tailored costume, but the subject is sufficiently important to merit some additional suggestions at this time. Women of all ages will wear this year the smartest tailored suits that have ever been seen. As footwear grows smarter, and that seems daily,—skirts seem to grow shorter, until it is not unusual to see the full pleated skirt with its two or three bands above the hem, four and even five inches above the ankle. The short skirt is responsible for the high boots which are the feature of this year's footwear, the new heights being fourteen and fifteen buttons. High ten button boots were the feature of last year's Horse Show, since which time the vogue has grown to such proportions as to completely kill the favor of the low pump for street wear.

Topping these short skirts and high boots are jackets of lengths varying from hip to knee. The single breasted cont cutting away diagonally from the last button just below the waistline is considered the best all-round model, its semi-fit being suited to a great majority of figures, regardless of proportions. And with this tailored confection will be worn the most becoming millinery; large and medium sized felt hats of semi-tailored persuasion with smart wings, feather novelties and pert ribbon bows, millinery that is picturesque in its shaping but decidedly practical in materials. The hat usually matches the suit, though black hats with colored trimmings are equally good style, black being possible as a background for any color.

The Afternoon Toilette.

A change of toilette for the afternoon session is not compulsory, so that one may with perfect propriety wear the morning costume through the afternoon. But the woman who goes to the Fashion Show and she who attends the Horse Show are two wholly different types. One goes to see, the other to be seen, the clothes of the latter are the most elaborate confections that fashion permits for daylight hours.

Reigning Winter Modes.

Much speculation has been rife as to the prolonged vogue of the Japanese idea. The Horse Show will settle this question with many others for a season at least, for scarce a costume which does not embody the Oriental in a greater or lesser degree.

The modern adaptation of the empire is not without favor. Several of the best makers, with the world renowned Paquin as their leader, follow this mode in their latest models. On the other hand other designers cling to the princess, so that we have our choice of two of the most artistic types of costume that fashion has ever known.

The Trained Skirt.

While the short skirt is holding sway in suitdom, the long trained model returns again to the ranks of dressy costumes. French models are, of course, always long, regardless of fashions in America or anywhere in the world, for that matter. At last our own designers have branded the walking length skirt in costumes as demode this winter.

Fashionable Colors.

It is always interesting to note the color tendency at this gathering of fashionables. Purple, and the many shades and tones of this royal color, is classed as the novelty color of the season. Browns and greens in dull tones will be there too, but even though in greater numbers will not be remarkably conspicuous.

Magpie Combinations.

Black and white in combination will be the color scheme of many of the handsomest toilettes, the soft, lustrous pile of silk velvets, with rich laces, beautiful furs and chic millinery in this magpie combination adding no little charm to the natural beauty of the wearer.

Furs will make their season's debut at the Horse Show. Though the weather may not call them forth before this date, the Horse Show is the signal for their coming out, just as Easter is the time to don spring millinery. Countless novelties will be introduced by women of fashion whose wearing once of a given mode makes for it a season's vogue. Sealskin has returned to claim all its oldtime favor, since we are to wear the dolman again. Chinchilla is very fashionable for both day and evening wear, but too valuable for the possession of the many. The first quality of this beautiful pelt—Chinchilla A.—is very rare, consequently its exclusive price.

Short fur coats simple in mould and untrimmed save for handsome buttons will accompany many of the afternoon costumes, especially those which do not include a second or third piece—according to the dress style—of the dress material or velvet.

Furs for evening are more elaborate, carrying trimmings of beautiful laces, ruffles and pleatings of chiffon and malinette.

For the Evening Session.

Evening Show gowns are as elaborate as those for the morning are simple. The richest silks, satins, velvets, brocades, chiffons, crepes, lansdownes and similar weaves are employed with exquisite laces and embroideries. Bead and spangled ornaments are used on both skirt and bodice, and cord and braid trimmings are posed in every conceivable way. The style of these costumes is much the same as for the afternoon gown, the principal difference being in the materials and trimmings. While the conventional evening gown is low necked many very modish models are made with high necks and the new long sleeves. Close fitting guimpes of plain fine net without lining give the effect of full dress at a distance, and since it is effect that we are all striving for, this new fashion popularized early in the season by a Broadway star is sure to find many followers.

Week-end House Parties of Swagger Women and the Various Methods of Entertaining.

"One penalty of popularity," groaned a greatly sought after young bachelor, "is the difficulty of deciding which of the dozen or more week-end invitations to accept. My latest scheme is to toss all of the notes in the air, pick up the one that falls nearest to my feet and write to its author to say by which train she may expect me, whether or not her manner of entertaining house guests appeals to me. Of course, while this plan solves a weekly difficulty, it also has its drawbacks, for a month ago when I was in a particularly devilish mood, I billeted myself for a three days' stay with Mrs. Potterly who has a fancy for filling her house with clergymen and as many bishops as she is able to corral.

"Times when my debts and flirtations have pressed most heavily upon my conscience and I have been in precisely the chastened mood to endure the Potterly's menage, fate has sent me up the Hudson to pass the hallowed Sabbath in Mrs. de Poisson's house of mirth where the incessant laughter and chattering of her Newport following positively set my nerves on edge. That happened last week when I was so dumpish—owing to that beastly tailor—that Mrs. de Poisson, (who always speaks her mind) remarked that I contributed about as much liveliness to her party as a mummy.

"Never again do I accept an invitation to the George Gotrox. Their menus are too elaborate for my delicate constitution. It is absolutely vulgar to flaunt wealth on breakfast trays, anyhow, and the trays the Gotrox sent up 'the morning after' one of the wine spreads which they term dinners, upset my stomach for a month. It is an enormous house with so many guest rooms that they have set aside suites for such intimate friends as Mrs. de Poisson and Mrs. Carricks whose names are ever certain doors. Everyone makes whatever outside engagements he or she may desire and freely orders the servants about. It is like being in a hotel where one does not pay and consequently disdains the host. Not that Mrs. Gotrox does not know how to entertain, for she gives theatrical entertainments in that bijou theatre on their place that are rarely to be beaten on Broadway, but the odor of new wealth permeates every corner of the house and its atmosphere is not restful.

"The Johnny Alders house parties are delightful because they are so eminently respectable and at the same time unconventional, and there are so many jolly girls always about with whom to play tennis or golf or ride. All the women come down mornings in short skirts and one need not dress for dinner—it's boring if one is a bit tired—and Mrs. Jack is invariably good humored and so handsome. But all the same there are Fridays when I would be glad to go to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maltby's big Long Island place. There one must always be perfectly turned out at dinner time lest the stately Kate's great black eyes betray surprise. She certainly is stunning in evening garb and always so proper. No playing cards for high stakes in her drawing rooms, but any amount of good music and an opporunity to meet interesting people who do things and have actually read the books they discuss.

"Have you ever stopped at the Donald Campbell's little hunting box near Westbury? We always have the jolliest possible times there. Mrs. Donald never gives parties—the house wouldn't hold them—but she contrives to get precisely the right people together; men and women who like one another but not so sentimentally that they want to pair off like the animals in Noah's ark. Suppose a fellow arrives at about tea time, one or other of the household meets him at the station with a trap and tells him who's expected while they're driving to the house. Dinner's a leisurely meal for which all the girls dress elaborately—the Campbells never have any frumps about their place—and afterward there are billiards or pool or cards or perhaps some girl gets at the piano and makes everybody sing and dance. Donald always has a lot of automobiles and traps in commission and anybody may go for a spin when and where they like. Somehow, although the Campbells apparently do not make any effort to entertain, everybody usually remains until their invitation limit.

"Not long ago, when I had it all framed up to accept a bid to Bob Costerly's bachelor establishment out Westchester way, Mark Jasper bulldozed me into going over to his mausoleum in Jersey. The only people stopping there were Jasper's grandparents who are devoted to cards. So down we squatted after dinner Saturday evening and played bridge until midnight. Next morning the weather was glorious, but just as we were starting for the golf club, Mark's automobile broke down and as he had not another conveyance, we dawdled about until after luncheon when his religiously unscrupulous ancient relatives suggested more bridge. We played four hours, scarcely pausing for dinner—and the only clever person in the Jasper household is the cook!

"Within a hundred miles of Manhattan there is no more hospital house than the Bartons. Thirty people, some of whom came as many miles, sat down to luncheon the last Sunday I stopped there, and the conversation touched on every topic of public or social interest. Mrs. Barton has a genius for seating her guests where they will do the most good or the least harm. She put all the Wall street crowd at one end of the table, the philanthropists at the other and those who talk scandal in a bunch. Then she had a new set of people for dinner so that none of the house guests had a chance to bore each other and in consequence we returned to town Monday morning thoroughly rested and in good humor.

"But Mrs. Otis Mapes has reduced week-end parties to an exact science. At 'Strawfields' a guest feels as perfectly free as though he or she were in their own home. If one lunches as well as breakfasts in one's own room and does not appear at all until dinner, nobody says anything. If one likes to wander about the grounds or browse in the library instead of playing bridge in the drawing room or smoking in the billiard room, it is all the same to Mrs. Mapes and the girls who, although deserving their reputation for ultra exclusiveness, certainly understand the art of making house parties delightful."

Some Little Fads of Fashion.

Another labor-saving scheme for the busy house wife whose sewing is but one of many duties—buttonholes by the yard. Inch wide strips of muslin are worked with buttonholes at the proper distance. These are used on garments where the fastening is made invisibly, that is on a fly.

At the same counter is another sewer's help, shirt waist bands of cambric, made in all the popular sizes, and properly buttonholed.

A new shopping purse is the apron bag, made of soft leather somewhat in the form of a pouch. It is oval in shape with the upper edge folded over and fastened down with patent fasteners. To the point which this folding of the bag makes is attached the strap handle which may be slipped over the wrist or worn on the belt like a chatelaine.

Tortoise shell finds another use as toilette article fittings. Brushes and combs are backed with this costly shell, button hooks, shoe spoons and manicure articles have handles of it, and beautiful trays are cut in various shapes.

Along with her veils and other accessories the New York tailor-made maid is wearing yellow chamlos pique one clasp gloves. Of course their color would not be practical for general wear were it not for the fact that they are so easily cleaned, being washed in tepid water and soap on the hands, taken off and allowed to dry in the open air.

Wide black stitchings are again seen on colored gloves of every shade. This carries out the black trimming idea which distinguishes many of the season's colored costumes.

French women, it is said, are wearing this fall a single beautiful long stemmed red rose, pinned below the bustline to the front of the tailored coats. A pretty style but a feminine extravagance when one considers the cost of these flowers in America and their short life. Doubtless we shall remain true to our winter bouquet of violets with their delicate perfume as long as they can be had at the present nominal figures.

London theaters, music halls and concert halls provide seating accommodation for 327,000 people.

SPORTS of the WEEK

High School Sports.

Duluth as a city has many cares of business and little time for amusement. Especially on a Saturday afternoon, with the rush of week end business, to monopolize the attention of a vast majority of its population, one would think it had little interest in such a supposedly inconsequential affair as a high school football game.

But the crowd at last Saturday's game at Athletic park was a revelation. It was a pretty tribute to Duluth's interest in its youthful population. It was well timed encouragement to the boys of the Duluth high school, who seek to gain honor for themselves and their school on the athletic field.

The city which encourages good manly sports is neither going backward or remaining stationary. The city which encourages its high school boys, urges them on to build themselves up by manly sport and shows them that they are factors in its life is doing a good work toward making them good citizens. Duluth is interested in its high school and its high school students. The extent to which it supports high school sports is testimony to the fact and a good example for other cities to follow. Nothing is lost by it.

A. A. Up in Arms.

One thing is certain. The cities forming the big Class A organization are getting mighty chesty. They think they are in big league class and they want to have a big league. The baseball given the American association public during the season just closed was of a very punk variety. Joe Kelly's Toronto team made the champions of the association look pretty weak at the finish of the season. So the American association blames it all on the national agreement, and its drafting provisions.

One day, the American association, press and magnates are howling for the formation of a Class A league, with the association and the Eastern league to form it, they to be given the privilege of drafting from the other Class A leagues. Then, their voices growing stronger, they swell up and announce that they will withdraw from the National association and go it alone, enter Chicago and put the American and National leagues on the ker blink.

This would be a funny old world if everybody were perfectly satisfied. Certainly the baseball world would be queer if that were so. No sooner is one baseball war over than another is started. The National and American leagues had a tempestuous time before they decided that they could dwell in harmony side by side. Then the Tri-State, which gave the big leagues more trouble than any outlaw organization ever did, was brought into the fold. During the past year, everything went along swimmingly. Baseball was never so prosperous, all things considered. Nobody could see a cloud on the horizon and the men, who make a business of baseball, were shaking hands with themselves.

Now comes the American association with a tale of woe and a yell of defiance. The men who talk of fighting the strongly entrenched baseball organizations of the United States are shouldering a mighty big contract—one which is likely to crush them to earth. And if they go down, it will be all up with them. It is much easier for the drafting rules to be revised so as to take some of the burden from the minor leagues than it is to carry on a baseball war successfully.

The whole matter hinges around the question of whether Chicago can support another big league team. For if the American association breaks away, it will consider itself a big league and will choose Chicago as the battle ground on which to assert its rights. Many good things have been overdone. Chicago is supporting two big league teams admirably. Nearly everyone in the Windy City has sworn allegiance to one or the other. If the American association breaks in, it may find itself up against a stone wall, with few supporters, less financial backing and the victim of a general game of freeze-out.

The American association claims it has lost its best men by draft. The big leagues pay the salaries and should have the good men. The American association towns could not carry on league ball on the scale of support given the two minor organizations. The draft rule gives young players an avenue by which they may mount to more fame and better salaries than the American association can pay. The American association has the same privilege in regard to the leagues under it. The association magnates claim they must take the big league deadwood. Not necessarily. There are many good players in the bushes, who could make some of the men, who played in the American association last year, look like clumsy elephants on the ball field.

A baseball war is a series thing. Not only for those actually engaged in it, but for the entire baseball world, it may spell destruction of prospects and disaster in finances. When the American league entered the lists against the National, there was room for another major organization. Now there is no excuse for another big league. The prospects for baseball in every town on the association circuit might be irreparably destroyed by such a step, and the association magnates will think well before they take it. Young players, with a future to make, will not jump to an outlaw organization with uncertain prospects, without salaries larger than the American association can afford to pay. It has made good money in recent years, and might better patch up its differences and let the sea remain unruffled.

Talk Is Inexpensive.

Joe Rogers is now in England with Tom O'Rourke, ostensibly to challenge Hackenschmidt to wrestle or to box any man in the British Isles. Rogers is a fair wrestler, not to be compared, however, to either Frank Gotch, or Beells, while as a boxer he is very much to the novice. However, O'Rourke, who knows the boosting game better than almost any manager in the business, is keeping him to the front, and a cable of about two columns recently stated that Rogers made Hackenschmidt crawl, and that the Russian had refused to meet him. This leads B. L. Goldberg of the New York Evening Mail to muse as follows:

"O my! O my! Oh my! It's getting worse and worse. These long-distance inflated, fistic reputations are liable to result in an international war. Palmer and Squires put a crimp in our opinion of John Bull. And on top of this Joe Rogers, our own prize specimen of holiday beef, goes over to England and advertises himself as the champion wrestler, fighter, pot-walloper, all-around athlete and everything else worth mentioning of America. If Joe has to make a showdown (let us hope he won't), then the British subjects will rise up in a body and come over to wipe America off the map. If they gauge our fighting ability by the Rogers standard, they will imagine that a couple of good, strong English truck drivers could cross the ocean and put the whole Western hemisphere on the bum.

"The Hague peace tribunal should pass a law against gaining a reputation under false pretenses. Rogers met a bald-headed college student and put him out in a couple of rounds without hitting him once. That's all we know about Joe.

"Joe's folks had better have his life insured to the limit if he signs up to go against Hackenschmidt over in England."

We're Wid Ye.

Minnesota's football warriors have not done anything yet this season to make the good people of this great state sit back complacently and prepare to watch them gallop Alonzo A. Stagg's men from the Midway district of Chicago.

Neither have Dr. Williams' men exhibited such prowess with the pig-hide oval to make Minnesotans reasonably certain that the Carlisle Indians will not repeat Custer's raid, speaking from a football standpoint.

Indian Will not Repeat Custer's Raid.

In fact, the University of Minnesota football team has thus far proved a decided disappointment to those whose fondest hopes are for five successive victories for the defenders of the honor of the Gopher school on the diamond.

Those hopes are not shattered. Next Saturday Northrop field will see a great gathering of football enthusiasts and a great battle. Nov. 16 will see another great crowd and another great battle. Whether Minnesota wins or loses, Minnesota's sympathies will go with its football men. They will be encouraged in victory or defeat and Minnesota hopes for the Gophers' success.

Down with Chicago!

The Prodigal Returns.

Michigan is coming back.

The Wolverines, after trying to join hands with the effete East, to the discomfiture of the rough and ready West, have turned back in the road, and, though it will be with a wry face, they will swallow the conference rules, five-game schedule, freshman eligibility rule and all.

Mich. Doesn't Belong to the East.

Michigan hasn't been actually snubbed by the eastern universities. Neither has it been greeted with wide open arms and welcomed to the athletic fields of the Atlantic coast. It isn't natural for strong opponents to be given an overwhelming welcome.

Michigan doesn't belong to the East. It is a western university and should be western in athletics as well as in geography. The conference rules were irksome, but means for changing or rescinding them were always at hand. The University of Minnesota made some suggestions last spring, which would have corrected most of the evils, but could get no co-operation. Together, Michigan and Minnesota might have brought about the changes. But Michigan was taken up with the eastern idea.

Now that the eastern idea didn't pan out just as they thought it would, the Wolverines are coming back. Not with offerings of humility, but with assurance that they will be welcomed. And they will. Michigan, with its superb athletes, adds an interest to western athletics not to be despised. At the same time, the members of the "Big Nine" cannot afford to let Ann Arbor men take the firmest grasp on the big whip and rule the ring. It's up to the western schools to get together, strike out some of the obnoxious rules now on the code, adopt some more sane regulations, and live as a happy family for the furtherance of pure, wholesome athletics.

What's the Scent?

Bob Deady, a Philadelphia fight promoter, should look well to the moral drawn from the fable of the dog that leaped. Mr. Deady has the monumental nerve to announce to the world that he will bring Jawn O'Brien from retirement, if the realms from which a member of the great D. & O. club howls attempts at justification, can be called retirement.

Mr. Deady must have been dead a long, long while. At least, he escaped a whiff of the malodorous wave, which swept over the country, when Jawn opened his jar of experiences and reminiscences and proudly told of the many times the gullible public had dug up their good dollars to see him gracefully fake it with some other disreputable creature.

O'Brien's days as a prize fighter are over. The American fight public will stand for a faker until he is found out. But when the faker flaunts his nefarious achievements in the faces of those he fleeced, he must drop out of the fight world forever. They are talking of matching O'Brien with Hugo Kelly. Kelly is too wise to put his foot into anything like that. His little affair with Tommy Ryan last year isn't entirely forgotten. Hugo will know enough to be on the square in the future, and nobody will believe that any fight O'Brien engages in will be on the level.

No Negro Need Apply.

The poor, ebony-hued gentlemen of the fight game have nary a place to lay their weary heads or swing their arms. The big fighters of this country have drawn the color line sharp and straight. Sam Langford and Big Sam McVey both went to England looking for Gunner Moir, and they were met with the information that the National Sporting club had forbidden bouts with colored men. It's up to the negroes to do something besides fight for a living.

But Joe Gans' fame goes merrily on, and Jack Johnson wants a bout with Tommy Burns.

Advertising Medium.

What would the temperance advocates on the International Hockey league circuit have to say if the league magnates should be so short sighted as to accept that cup offered by a Canadian whisky company as a trophy, for which the league is asked to paly its series of games next season?

Wouldn't there be a howl, though?

Imagine a professional organization on a scale such as the International league cheapening itself by hanging up a trophy offered by a whisky company.

Monumental nerve on the part of that whisky company!. Imagine the International Hockey league as a hard-working advertisement for a special brand of Canadian whisky.

If isn't very likely that the International league will accept the trophy. The magnates are too wise to offend a large number of its patrons by playing for such a prize. The snub would be a proper one for the company. A whisky company might fittingly offer a cup for local competition with propriety, but as for asking an international organization to advertise its brand of ophidian nightmare producer, is an extent to which even an American company might not go without a blush.

Cutting Off Noses.

The San Francisco fight promoters are a near-sighted lot. They can't see any further than their own hands, provided they think any of the long stuff of verdant hue is winging its way toward their outstretched palms. "Get the money" is the motto formed in letters of fire and blazing brightly before their greedy eyes at every turn in the road. If they can't get the coin by pulling off good square bouts, they want to get it by unfair means and, sad to say, they adopt the latter course all too frequently.

The history of the fight game in San Francisco is a history of war. It is a history of rank fakes and wretched fizzles, of grasping, grinding fighting for the monopoly of a business, which one promised great returns on the Pacific coast and which actually has made some men rich. But the greed for gold led the promoters into paths beset with pitfalls and wires strung ankles high. For many months past, they have been leaping the obstructions and getting along after a fashion, buo now they are crowding each other and in the jostling it is more than likely that all will go down together.

If any one circumstance has contributed more than any other to putting the fight game in the United States down, it is the attitude of the San Francisco promoters. The remainder of the country has grown sick of the stories of corruption on the Pacific coast in fighting, as in other circles, with the public always the victim of the wiles of those in power. Nearly every state has shut down on fighting to prevent a repetition of the conditions prevailing on the coast.

Now the 'Frisco promoters are again fighting among themselves. They do not seem to realize that California is about the only state in the Union in which the game has any sort of a footing. They are looking to the further swelling of their bulging pockets and are in a grasping war to prevent each other from gaining any advantage. This, in view of the recent fizzles on the coast, has turned the new board of supervisors against the game and the chances are it will be killed entirely. Just because a crowd of fight promoters don't know enough to be satisfied with a good thing.

Secret Practice.

The reformer isn't happy unless he is reforming something, is a belief as old as reform itself. If there are no corrupt conditions to remedy, the rabid reformer hunts around for something, which he thinks will bear the brunt of his attentions.

Football is over-reformed, at least in the West. Not that the football rules committee has not done its work well. There are few people, who would willingly abandon the open game for the smashing, gridding, crashing formations of former years. But in the West, with one fell blow, football was given a jolt, from which it will not recover for some years, when the freshmen eligibility and the five-game schedule rules were adopted and the training table abolished.

Now they are talking of abolishing secret practice. Fiddlesticks! The ingenuity of coaches, who have devised new plays and formations and sprung them on surprised opponents, for victory, has made the game of football. Why should any school or college throw the gates of its practice field open to opponents, who could watch the play and report new formations to their own teams for immediate use? No reason in the world.

A man preparing a dark horse for a race might as well invite every race track follower within reach to take the time of the nag the day before the race, when doing his best. When a wrestler devises a new hold, he doesn't spread the fact broadcast over the land and put his opponents on their guard. He waits to use it for his own advantage.

Every coach is anxious to turn out a good team. He must depend upon his own resources for a good many ideas in developing his team and those ideas are his, for his own use and advantage. He would be a poor coach, who would tip his team's signals off to an opponent. Yet he might as well do that as admit every Thomas, Richard and Henry to the field, where he drills his men.

This despite the fact that Harvard has abolished secret practice and the Yale Weekly Alumni is advocating its abolition. The wise football men will not take up the cry. People want to see new plays, sprung at unexpected moments. Without secret practice, new plays would be impossible. Every play would be old as soon as the inventor began to show it to his men, for no college would lose an opportunity to have scouts watch an opponents' work, if the doors were thrown wide open and everyone given access, regardless of color or class.

CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE WEST WILL BE AT STAKE

In Chicago-Minnesota Game at Minneapolis Next Week.

The Great Steffens is Not Greatly Feared by Gophers.

The football championship of the West will be decided next Saturday. Until the whistle proicaiming final time is blown on Northrop field next Saturday, none will dare say either Minnesota or Chicago is the strongest team in the West. That is yet to be decided. The football world, or such part of it as is interested in Western football, must await the result, with anxiety or passing interest, as the case may be.

Prediction are worthless, and reviews of the respective teams insufficient. Eckersall may harp on the weakness of the Minnesota ends and the lack of speed shown in the Gopher back field, and Minnesota supporters may point with pride to the inefficiency of Steffens in the game on Marshall field last year, but the fact remains that neither Stagg nor Williams will be caught napping and the two finest teams in the West will face each either on Northrop field next Saturday.

One fact is certain. The Minnesota line is stronger than that which Stagg has developed. Whether the heavy, powing tactics of the Minnesota backs will be effective enough to gain ground for touchdowns is a question which Dr. Williams must solve. He will not depend entirely on his grinding style of play, however. He is too wise for that. There is such a thing as wearing his own team down with heavy work as well as his opponents, and that is a condition, he will seek to avoid. The back field will claim a goodly part of his attention, and they will give the maroon ends some work.

Chicago seems to think that they have a good line on Minnesota's strength and that strength does not include a thorough knowledge of the new style of football. There's a big mistake. Minnesota had a lot of things Chicago didn't see in the game on Marshall field last year. The heavy field and the consequent slowness of the play, did not allow Williams to spring what he had up his sleeve.

Good Cards Hidden.

Neither has Chicago seen them this year. There were a couple of Chicago men in the stands last Saturday, when the Gophers played Nebraska, but Schuckecht kept his good things under cover, by Williams' orders and the Chicago men went back to the Windy City none the wiser on Minnesota's work with the new rules. They saw nothing but Minnesota's straight football and the work of Capron's mighty toe.

Neither will those ends, who were weak in the Ames and Nebraska games be weak when they line up against Chicago next Saturday, if past performances count for anything. Williams has a happy faculty of bolstering up weak spots until they are as strong as the spots, which appear the strongest. Minnesota's work against Ames and Nebraska wasn't a fair indication of what the team can do by any means. The backs, which were slow in starting, may prove surprisingly fast, when they get into the thick of the fray with Stagg's mighty Maroons. Minnesota is not noted for big scores against weak teams, but at the same time, there are none who will say that Minnesota has ever been weak against the strong teams.

Minnesota will not go into the game with the idea that the weight and strength of their line, superior to that of Chicago, will offset the speed of the Chicago backs so much that victory is assured. Every man on the Minnesota squad will go through a week of hard work before the big game. The gates will be closed and Williams will bring into play all his knowledge of football to drill into the team knowledge and ability to down the only team, which can claim right to battle for the championship of the West. When the team faces Chicago, next Saturday, it will be for the supreme test, with the knowledge that victory is not be gained by feeble efforts, but by the best possible football they can play.

Stagg Not Idle.

In the meantime, Stagg is not idle. The victories over Indiana and Illinois are no indications that Minnesota is to be a mark also; Indiana is weak and Illinois by no means strong. The Chicago forwards had an easy time ripping the Illinois line to pieces so that Steffens might have an open field for his sensational work. The Chicago forwards will not be able to do that with the Minnesota line. It is more likely that they will be themselves ripped apart, unless Stagg succeeds in strengthening them so that they will be able to combat Minnesota's style of play.

Stagg must depend largely on the great Steffens. "The Second Eckersall" he is called, but unless his development is great this year, Minnesota need not fear him unduly. Steffens is a good man in an open field. He is fast on his feet, quick to throw himself into holes and is the best ground gainer Chicago has. But he was able to do little against the Gophers last year. Marshall stopped him repeatedly, and although Minnesota has not an end like Marshall this year, Williams' ends will be drilled to watch for Steffens and Iddings and it's a good many chances to one that they succeed.

Will Watch Capron.

To offset Steffens, Minnesota has Capron. While the Gopher ends will be keeping a close watch on the wily back, the Maroons will work desperately to prevent Capron from using his toe to advantage. He has wone two games for Minnesota this year and Chicago fears that he will another. His kicking will play an important part in the game and should Chicago's fleet backs prove too much for Williams' machine, Minnesotans must place their hopes in Capron and his booting ability.

One week more of hard work, one week more of planning and scheming, one week more of anxious waiting and the only big truly Western game of the year will be on.

All this is without once considering Michigan as a candidate for western honors, for Michigan, in cutting away from the conference, has forfeited all right to claim western titles. The Wolverines may have a team which would defeat either Minnesota and Chicago, but because of their actions, they are prevented from proving their superiority. But Michigan has not a stronger team than the Maroons or Gophers. No supporter of either team would admit such a thing. The machine which Yost develops this year may be strong, it may win every game played, but from its work up to the present, it looks as though Minnesota or Chicago would have little trouble trailing the maize and blue in the dust.

Confusion, if not chaos, is evident in Michigan's football field. The lineup has not been the same for a week at a time. Shifts and stusttitutions are going on with such rapidity that one cannot keep track of the men Yost considers strong enough for the machine on which he is to stake his football reputation this year. That those shifts are to develop the team for Ohio State and Vanderbilt is possible, but it is more likely that Yost is working with but one idea in mind, the retrieving of the loss at Philadelphia last year, when the many-time champions of the West went down before Pennsylvania.

Yost says he fears Ohio State and Vanderbilt. Possibly he does. Herrenstein and McGugin, big men in little institutions, have made the best of their opportunities and Yost discovered last year that they were not to be held too lightly. Michigan won from Vanderbilt, but it was by the narrowest of margins. The defeat of Carlisle by the Southerners gave the football world an inthmation of which might have happened to Michigan. That it may not happen this year, Yost will send his men against Vanderbilt keyed to the highest pitch and the same will be true of Ohio State. The results of these two games will give an indication of Michigan's strength.

Michigan-Pennsy.

But in the eyes of the football world, there is only one big game on the Michigan schedule. Michigan should win from Ohio State and Vanderbilt and probably will. If it doesn't, there is something wrong. The element of uncertainty is scarcely discernible, but with the Pennsylvania game it is different. On Michigan devolves the honor or the responsibility of defending the football of the West against the East. Many, with a lack of knowledge of extenuating circumstances, took Michigan's defeat by Pennsylvania last year as an indication that the scale of superiority was greatly overbalanced in favor of the East. Without Capt. Curtis last year, Michigan's team was but a shadow of its former self. Its organization was demoralized and its efficiency diminished an untold amount. Michigan's defeat was almost as certain as the defeat of a blind man in a duel or an army without a commander. There was but one result probable.

Barring unexpected developments, Pennsylvania will face a different state of offairs this year. No Yost machine is to be despised and Yost has plenty of time to perfect one this year. His methods may be peculiar, but his results will undoubtedly be satisfying and Pennsylvania will find the team, which faces it this year, far different in drilling, and execution than that of last year. Johnny Garrells may be gone, but a lost star doesn't seem to worry Yost. He has never shown inability to fill their places with an "almost as good" article.

The Michigan-Pennsylvania game will be the real criterion for the comparison of Eastern and Western football this year, but the Minnesota - Carlisle and Chicago-Carlisle games will furnish considerable data to be utilized on the side. The Indians, with an expanded field of activity, cannot be called strictly an Eastern team. Their style, for they have developed it with a view to meeting Minnesota and Chicago on common ground. However, the Indians play a number of the Eastern teams, and though their defeat by Vannderbilt last year, proved that comparative scores are almost useless, their success or failure against Chicago and Minnesota will mean much to the West.

Old Score With Carlisle.

Minnesota has a score with Carlisle, which the Gopher supporters hope will be wiped out. The defeat on Northop field last year was a sad blow to Minnesota. The Gophers did not play their game. None, who saw the contest, will see that the same football prevailed as that exhibited in the Chicago game. The defeat was a setback. Minnesota will not be caught napping this year. They will be ready and waiting for the Indians when they come Nov. 16 and loafing play will not be the rule.

Wisconsin has dropped out of consideration in determining the holders of Western honors. Faculty regulations have assisted conference rules to practically place the Badgers in a minor position in Western football. Illinois and Iowa are worthy opponents for the Madison eleven and Illinois and Iowa can be classed as nothing better than second-raters to Minnesota and Chicago. Today, Wisconsin meets Illinois. Next Saturday, the Badgers will play Iowa and, winning both games, there is no hope but that they will be eliminated when the Gophers play at Madison, Nov. 23.

There are some surprises in Western football this year. Ames' strength against Minesota was not expected. Neither was Nebraska's ability to hold the Gophers without a touchdown. Wabash has shown surprising strength and Ohio state is a factor among the lesser schools.

Taken from every side, there are none to dispute the claims the winner of next Saturday's game at Minneapolis will have to Western honors. Minnesotans believe in their team. They believe in Williams and his ability. And they believe Minnesota will win. But they are not so sure of the fact that they are holding Chicago as weak and powerless. It must be a great game, regardless of results—the one really big game of the West for the year.

A SHORT REST TO "TALK IT OVER"

JOSEPH DONAUER, FRANZ HEINRICH, AND P. S. ANNEKE.
Planning the Slaughter of a Few Partriges.

BOOM FOR BASKETBALL IN DULUTH THIS WINTER

With the Y. M. C. A. taking the initiative, basketball promises to flourish in Duluth during the coming fall and winter season. Already the devotees of the popular indoor sport are getting into action and by the time the snow drives football from the limelight and indoor sports take the place of prominence, the basketball teams of Duluth will be in shape for contests, which will satisfy the instincts of spectators, who love, good, clean, fast sport.

To him, whose knowledge of basketball is limited to the part it has played in athletic circles of Duluth, the real standing of the game in athletic circles of the country is buried. The Y. M. C. A. has played a little basketball, the militia companies have gone into the game on a small scale and some of the big wholesale houses were represented by teams in recent years, but it does not take the place that it should in the winter sports of Duluth and those, who are booming the game this year, are doing so in the hope that it will gain its proper position.

In colleges, athletic clubs and institutions of all kinds, wherein athletics are encouraged, basketball has made wonderful strides in recent years. Not only among those who play the game, but among the public in general, the game has attained a good measure of popularity and it is making strides each successive year. Nearly every big city and many of the smaller towns have basketball leagues of school or club teams, and the public cheerfully gives up its spare change to see the boys perform. It is a game, in which strength does not play so great a part, as speed and endurance. Ability, nerve, and accuracy in directing the course of the ball are the essentials of a good basketball player, and the practice of the game is designed to develop those faculities.

The Y. M. C. A., probably the greatest factor in the United States in the promotion of pure athletics, has done much for basketball. In every Y. M. C. A. gymnasium in the country it is given a high place. Every member of the gymnasium classes is urged to play it and encouraged to persevere. It has been an invaluable aid in the development of indifferent athletes and the strides it is making in popularity conclusively prove that its importance is appreciated. The progress has been general. Basketball is not a fad, but a good, wholesome game, better than which no indoor sport has been devised.

Conforming with the general policy of the association, the Duluth Y. M. C. A. will adopt an aggressive course in the furthering of basketball in the city this year. The business men, young men and boys will be given all possible time for the game, and the physical director and his assistants will do all they can to teach its general idea first and intricacies as the season advances.

Already, the candidates for the first team, which will represent the Y. M. C. A. in competition with city teams outside of the association, and teams from out of the city, have begun practice and have had several successful gatherings already. The Y. M. C. A. was represented by a good team last year and only one of the five was missing when the squad turned up for practice the first night this fall. Besides the veterans, there were seven or eight others, by no means novices in the game, and they have all pitched in to work for places on the team.

It is not expected the Y. M. C. A. five will take on any outside teams before a month or two has passed. About Christmas, they will play two games with Bemidji and they will probably be the first games with an out of town team. They may get into action with local aspirants for honors earlier, although they will have a merry time playing among themselves until the big five is picked.

Outside of the Y. M. C. A., the city will not be shy on basketball. The different militia companies will work out in the Armory and they will be in the field with one or two teams to represent each of the infantry companies and the naval reserves. Marshall-Wells will be represented by a team and it is also possible that F. A. Patrick company will have a five, bearing its name. A city league is more than a possibility and the organization of one may be taken up, if sufficient material presents itself.

DULUTH Y. M. C. A. SQUAD FOR FIRST TEAM.

Within the limits of the Y. M. C. A., all of the classes will be active in the game. The basketball committee of the association has already made arrangements for the organization of an association league, to be composed of teams picked from members of the young men's and business men's classes. Leaders will be appointed by the basketball committee and they will choose teams from their respective classes to form a league of from four to six teams. Six will probably be the number.

Each leader will only be allowed to choose from his own class and no "jumping" will be permitted. The schedule will be prepared as soon as the number of teams is determined upon and the league will probably get into action within a few weeks.

At the boys' department, basketball is also being encouraged, with center ball, a new sport, which is taking well with the youngsters. The boys have become quite proficient at basketball and in some of them, embryo lights of future college teams shine out. They like the game and it is their principal form of amusement and recreation.

CAMP INTERPRETS THE NEW FOOTBALL RULES

Confusing Forward Pass and Other Rules Clearly Explained in Bulletin by Expert.

Walter Camp, editor of the football rules, who presided at the last meeting of football officials at New York, is to issue a bulletin containing his rulings in regard to the interpretation of several of the playing rules which came up for discussion at that meeting.

There were several very important points decided by Mr. Camp.

The first, in importance was the decision that under the spirit of the rules a forward pass which does not cross the line of scrimmage at a proper point, or one which hits the ground before the ball touches a player, is not a foul. The fifteen-yard penalty may not be declined by the offended team, as the ball is dead the moment it strikes the ground; and it is the duty of the referee to blow his whistle if the ball does not pass five years to one side of the point where the ball was put in play.

Should the offensive team be declared "offside" or otherwise violate the rules at the beginning of a play which results in an illegal forward pass, the defending team may decline the offside or foul penalty and request the referee to inflict the penalty for the illegal pass. But if the defending team makes an illegal forward pass, the penalties are not neutralized, but the offside team is to be given the five-yard penalty for the defenders' foul or offside play.

In rule 3, section 2, it was decided that if a substitute failed to report to the referee when he entered the game the subsequent finding out of the official of this fact should result in not only the loss of fifteen yards to the team breaking the rule, but that the player also shall be disqualified from further participation in the game.

In rule 4, section 4, it was ruled that if time expires during a play which results in a fair catch, time shall be allowed for the try for goal, or for one play from scrimmage.

Regarding rule 6, section 11, it was ruled that in the event of a try for a goal from the field the ball strikes the ground and then bounds over the crossbar of the goal it shall count a goal.

In response to a question regarding the position of the center rush while putting the ball into play, Mr. Camp ruled that "he may assume any position so long as he conforms to Section 1, Paragraph 1, and Section 2 of Rule 8."

Pertaining to Rule 12, it was agreed that in case of a fair catch from a punt out the restraining line of the defenders of the goal be allowed within ten yards of the point where the catch is made.

Rule 13, Section 3—A player of the kicking side which has made a fair catch may not advance beyond his line with the ball in his possession. The referee must inflict the penalty without being demanded by the defending team.

Rule 16, Section 4—A side may not occupy by delay the last two minutes of the game under the rules and then refuse to play for two minutes longer.

Another important decision regarding the forward pass was made. Mr. Camp made an arbitrary ruling for cases where an illega forward pass is made from behind the goal line. It was that a safety shall be declared when a player makes an uncompleted forward pass from behind his goal line, no matter on which down the pass occurs. The reason for his decision is that the ball was given the initial impetus by the team defending the goal.

Rule 6, Section 6 was made to read: "It is also a touchdown when a kicked ball (other than a kickoff, free kick or a place kick, or drop kick which passes over the cross bar) goes over the goal line either on the fly or after striking the ground before being touched by a player of either side."

Mr. Camp cautioned the refree to be careful in determining when the progress of the ball was stopped while a rush was in progress, and not blow the whistle simply because there was a mass of players about the ball. He also decided that if a player rushing the ball out from behind his own goal line was tackled and thrown back across the line the referee should not declare a safety, but should rule that the forward progress of the ball was stopped inside the field of play.

There are a few more suggestions made to the officials:

That before a game or a half begins the referee shall warn the team kicking off that in event of offside play at the kickoff the defending team may decline the penalty for the offside and take the result of the play following the kickoff.

Substitues who enter the game at the beginning of the second half must report to the referee just as if they were substituted while the teams were on the field.

The referee may shorten the halves of a game if, before it begins, he thinks darkness would interfere with the playing of the full time. But he may not shorten the game for any other reason, and if the captains of the contesting teams cannot agree to the time of the halves the referee has no alternative except to make the teams play the prescribed periods.

Football games thus far this season seem to indicate larger scores than last year. While in several instances the results of the most important struggles for the past two weeks have shown a descending ratio in the scores made, the majority of the stronger teams have rolled up many points against their weaker opponents, who are taken on in the practice affairs of early season. Last week's work was a good example of this fact. In a dozen games the winning teams rolled up more than double the figures made in 1906, while the losers made but eight points against eighteen of last year. But taking the season as a whole, the played and unplayed portions, the weaker teams will no doubt far surpass the number of points made against their stronger neighbors last year, due to the new game. The new rules seem to be working out well in all parts of the country. The only bad feature about the work of the various teams is a tendency many are already showing to hurl the ball rather indiscriminately on forward passes, whether they have succeeded in getting a man down the field where he can take the pass or not.

This is likely to make the game flukey in a way. Many teams, when they have been scored on several times by their opponents, reason that the best thing to do is to throw the ball as far as they can toward the opponenat's goal, for they have nothing to lose and everything to gain, even though they are unable to get a man at the other end to receive the pigskin. It's a good bet that their opponents will try to catch the ball and run it back, and a fumble here is likely to mean a touch down if the luck is running in the right direction. More teams are perfecting the use of the forward pass, however, and a more general use of the play with far better results is the program this year, although some teams, as in the above case, are prone to trust to luck too often to carry them through.

EAST GRAND FORKS HIGH SCHOOL TEAM CLAIMS THE FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Title Won By Defeat of Speedy Players of Warren.

Shown to Be Fastest Team in Northwestern Minnesota.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The East Grand Forks high school football team has demonstrated its superiority over the teams of Northwestern Minnesota. Every question as to the right of that team to claim the championship was settled in the fast game against the speedy players of Warren, when the local team pulled out a victory, winning over them with a score of 29 to 0.

While the members of the East Grand Forks team are comparitively light this year, a remarkable amount of speed has been injected into the game, with fine team work evident in every play. It was this fact that won the honors for the school. In games against heavier opponents, the champion players showed up excellently, making gain after gain through the lines, while trick plays are worked well.

The winning of the championship of the northwestern section of Minnesota, the East Grand Forks team has a right to come forward as a contestant for the teams of the eastern part of Minnesota, and while nothing is definite as yet, it is very probable that a series of games will be arranged for the first of next month in the eastern part of Minnesota.

The northwestern section of Minnesota includes a number of remarkably good aggregations. The high schools of Crookston, Ada, Hallock, Fosston, Warren, Bemidji, Grand Rapids, Red Lake Falls and East Grand Forks are included in the division, and the honor just attained by East Grand Forks is, therefore, an enviable one.

The table of games played this year among those high schools shows that Ada and Fosston were put out of the running early by Crookston. Ada defeated Fertile, thus putting that team away, while Grand Rapids was bested by the latter team. Bemidji was in turn beaten by Grand Rapids. Hallock was put out of the race by Warren, thus leaving only the team of that city and East Grand Forks undefeated.

The East Grand Forks team was coached this year by R. A. Fawcett of Grand Forks, N. D., who also had charge of them last year. Fawcett is a former North Dakota university player, and has a way of getting the best there is out of his men. During the past month and a half he has had the players working steadily, with the reward of championship honors.

It was perhaps because of the fact that nine of this year's players were members of last year's team that the victory was won this season. John Zipoy, Frank Zipoy, E. Sullivan, Benson, Holley, Wickwire, Quigley, McIlraith and Routley are all old-timers in the game. Hogan and Mero are the two new men on the first team.

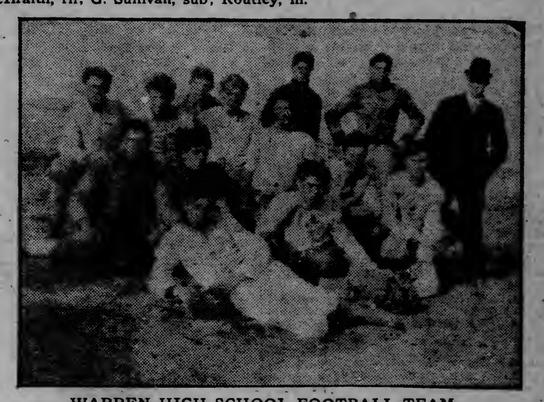

The backfield is composed of Quigley at full, Wickwire at quarter, with McIlraith and Routley at half. These men play together in fine shape, being effective in both mass and open play. Mero, a new man, went in at center this fall and has made good. At the guard points, Benson and Hogan are stationed, and have proved their mettle. The tackles, Frank Zipoy and E. Sullivan, are also well placed, and do excellent work, while the end positions are particularly well cared for by Capt. J. Zipoy and Holley.

The Warren team has not had the advantage of thorough practice this season, many of the members of the team returning to school only a few weeks since. However, Coach Foker got the men in pretty good shape, and they made a creditable showing against the faster East Grand Forks men.

GETTING AN EARLY START

Calumet Baseball Enthusiasts Organize for Next Season.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 26.—At a meeting of the baseball enthusiasts of Calumet this week, an association, the object of which is to further baseball in Calumet and provide a starting point for the formation of a league of Upper Peninsula cities, with one or two from Wisconsin and Minnesota, was formed with the following officers:

President, Dr. R. R. Spaulding.

Secretary and treasurer, D. C. Harrington.

Board of directors, Dr. R. R. Spaulding, William Duncan, John T. Dunn, Samuel Jeffery, George Williams, Horace Phillips, Charles Wickstrom and D. C. Harrington.

The permanency of this organization will, of course, depend upon the success in persuading the other towns to enter the circuit. No difficulty in this respect is anticipated, however, as it was announced at the meeting that baseball men in several of the cities in prospect had written here stating that a berth in the league contemplated was greatly desired.

The board of directors was instructed to confer with T. P. (Ted) Sullivan in regard to the actual organization of the circuit. Ted has offered his services for this purpose and if satisfactory arrangements are made he will be given charge of the work and will make a trip to the towns that are being considered as possible members to get the proper people interested. The expenses of this trip will be forwarded by Calumet people and those of the Portage Lake towns. If the league is successfully organized, this expense will be sharde pro rata by the different clubs.

As a forecast it may be stated that the circuit now looks like Calumet, Portage Lake, the Soo, Duluth, Ashland and Appleton or Green Bay. In the event of any of these failing to get in, there remain Escanaba, Marquette, Iron Mountain and Ishpeming to pick a substitute from. Any one of these would probably make a good ball town if the right persons were placed at the head of it.

It was thought when the plan of a stock company to finance the Calumet club was first suggested that twenty-five members would be all that could be easily secured to back the team to the extent of about $100, but the fans have thought so well of the system that at the meeting twenty-four had already pledged to put in their share and there will probably be ten or twelve more, bringing the membership in the company up to about thirty-five.

SPIRIT LAKE BRANCH TO CLOSE

Sunday Will End the Season for River Parties.

Sunday will be the last day the Spirit Lake branch will be open.

The news will be received with regret by many Duluthians, although they realize that the season is growing late. The branch has been one of the most popular resorts in Duluth since the fly season ended, and almost every day the club house was well filled.

During the beautiful Indian summer weather of September and October, its popularity increased and last Sunday no less than forty guests were served dinner there.

But the weather cannot be relied on after Nov. 1 and the branch will be closed next week, although arrangements may be made so that snowshoe parties can get meals served there during the winter months, if they give notice in advance.

During the last two weeks the members of the Boat club have discovered that it is just a pleasant walk from the end of the car line to the branch and almost every evening a party of young people has taken the trip.

MUNCH TO MEET LOCAL SKATERS

Northwestern Champion to Hold Forth at Temple Rink.

Speed skating on rollers is on the bill for Duluth people next week, as Joe Munch of St. Paul, champion roller skater of the Northwest, will be at the Temple rink all week, to race against his own record and to meet all comers. Monday night, he opens in a race with Walter Wiggins, one of the fastest of the local boys. Dufor, Le Beau and McCallum are other probable opponents during the remainder of the week and it is very probable that several other fast local skaters will make a try with the champion.

Munch was seen here last year and his exhibitions were greatly enjoyed. He is fast and graceful and makes a fine appearance on the floor. He met all comers last year and didn't see a shadow of defeat, though he had some of the speediest men Duluth could offer against him.

JOSEPH MUNCH,
Champion Roller Skater of the Northwest.

Munch is a St. Paul boy and has raced at Nashville, New Orleans, St. Louis, Columbus, Cincinnati and many other points throughout the country. He won his title of Northwestern champion at a big tournament in Minneapolis last March and since then he has met many fast men in other parts of the country without suffering defeat. He will invade Canada during the coming winter.

Henry E. Jones of Tampa, Fla., writes: "I can thank God for my present health, due to Foley's Kidney Cure. I tried doctors and all kinds of kidney cures, but nothing done me much good till I took Foley's Kidney Cure. Four bottles cured me, and I have no more pain in my back and shoulders. I am 62 years old, and suffered long, but thanks to Foley's Kidney Cure I am well and can walk and enjoy myself. It is a pleasure to recommend it to those needing a kidney medicine." Sold by all druggists.

BIG INDOOR GAMES ARE ON

M. J. Sheridan Breaks Pole Vault Record for Distance.

New York, Oct. 26.—The Indoor Athletic association opened last night at Madison Square Garden with the first of track and field championships of the Amateur Athletic Union. Many of the stars who competed in summer games took part, and one record went by the board. M. J. Sheridan of the Irish A. A. C., won the pole vault for distance with a jump of twenty-eight feet, breaking the previous record of 27 feet, 7¼ inches, held by William Baird of Philadelphia. N. L. Moores of the New York A. C., was second with 24 feet, 11 inches.

Next in interest was the two-mile run, which was won by G. V. Bonham of the New York A. C., who finished fifteen years ahead of his team-mate, F. A. Baird, in 9:42 1-5. The two men raced neck and neck until the final lap, when Bonham by a magnificent spurt left his opponent far in the rear.

Con Leahy, the Irish champion, sprained a tendon during the high jump trials, and failed to play. He made a jump of 5 feet, 11¼ inches, which tied for third, but because of the accident was unable to jump off the tie. The final heat of the seventy-five-yard dash, while run in slow time, furnished an exciting finish, Seitz winning by a narrow margin over Smithson of Portland, Ore.

SPRINTER BEATS ROLLER SKATER

John St. Antoine Wins From Le Beau in Novel Contest.

John St. Antoine, sprinter, defeated Francis Le Beau, roller skater, in a race at the Lincoln Park roller rink last night, before a large crowd. Le Beau essayed to go five and one-half laps on rollers, while St. Antoine should run four laps. Falling on the second turn, Le Beau failed to get up speed enough during the remainder of the race to overcome St. Antoine's lead, and the sprinter won by almost a lap.

The race was a novelty in Duluth. St. Antoine has run against ice skaters here, but Duluth people had never seen him go against the roller skating game. He showed ability on the floor and, even if Le Beau had not fallen, it is doubtful if he could have gained the lap and a half needed to get on even turns with the runner. In the two final laps, he showed good speed, but St. Antoine jogged easily and was never in danger after Le Beau's fall.

PLAN BOOM FOR HOCKEY

Duluth Enthusiast Outlines Plan for Amateur Hockey.

Would Have a Circuit Covering the Entire Northwest.

A scheme for the organization of an amateur hockey league to embrace the entire Northwest, or that part of it in which hockey is played, has been broached by a Duluth hockey enthusiast and, though it is visionary to a certain extent, it is practical if taken in hand by the right parties and pushed through.

The scheme provides for a league of sixteen clubs to be drawn from the Soo, the Copper country, the Head of the Lakes and the Twin Cities, to play throughout the entire winter and bring up with the determination of the amateur hockey champions of the Northwest.

On account of the doubtful support, which some of the teams must necessarily receive, and the fact that the players cannot give themselves up entirely to the playing of hockey, the scheme does not provide for a regular schedule, in which every team meets every other team, but it proposes an elimination scheme, with a preliminary, semi-final and final series and in such a scheme lies the only possibility for the success of such a venture. The teams would be divided into sections as follows:

Section 1—Tagonas and Marlboroughs of Canadian Soo, high school and city teams of American Soo.

Section 2—Houghton, Hancock, Calumet and Lake Linden or Dollar Bay, Mich.

Section 3—Northern Hardware and City teams of Duluth, Columbias of Superior and Two Harbors.

Section 4—Two St. Paul and two Minneapolis teams.

The schedule plan as outlined by the "bug" who conceived the league plan, would call for a preliminary series covering six weeks, beginning the week of Dec. 8. During the preliminary series, the teams in each section would confine themselves to their own district, each team playing four games against each of the other teams, or twelve games in all, if two games a week are played, or two games against each of the others, if one game a week is played, though the two games a week plan looks like the best. A standing would be determined by percentage, as in any regular league. The preliminary series would terminate Jan. 18, with one team at the head in each section, probably pretty well fixed financially for the expansion in the semi-finals.

In the semi-finals, the leaders in Section 1 and Section 2 would be played against each other in six games, three games at one place and three at the other. Section 3 and Section 4 would be played against each other in the same way, leaving one leader at each end of the circuit.

Narrowed down to the finals, a series of six games is provided for between the two remaining teams, the winner to take the trophy. In case of ties in either the finals or semi-finals, the two teams would arrange another series to decide.

With one week between the preliminaries and semi-finals, and one week between the semi-finals and the finals, the season would cover the time between Dec. 8 and March 1. After the preliminaries, the eliminated teams would drop into the independent class and their season will not necessarily be ended with their dropping from the league scheme.

The plan looks like a god one to decide the championship. It calls for local leagues in all four districts and the expansion on a definite plan, instead of the hit-and-miss plan of deciding amateur championships as a rule. In all four districts hockey is popular and the amateurs given fairly good support, and a league on a broad plan such as that proposed would undoubtedly arouse considerable interest among the public. With very little probability of Duluth's entering the International league this year, the amateur organization would do a great deal to promote the game here, and it would probably have the same effect in the other cities included in the proposed circuit.

"CHIEFS" ARE OUT FOR HONORS

Football Team of Former Stars Organized at Bemidji.

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 6—(Special to The Herald.)—An independent football team has been organized under the name of "Bemidji Chiefs," and the eleven will play many of the independent teams of the Northwest, before the season's close. The "Chiefs" will be composed of several old players, who have won fame on the gridiron to the organization as a whole, and will be a very strong one.

The first game of the season is being played today on the local gridiron, the opponents of the "Chiefs" being the Bemidji high school football team. The contest will, undoubtedly, be a good one, and the winning team will be awarded a handsome loving cup, donated by a local business man.

T. H. McCann, a former manager of the Georgetown University football team is coaching the "Chiefs," and indications are that he will make the eleven one of the strongest in the north half of the state.

The following is the lineup of the team: W. Markhan, c; Hillaby and Ed. guards; Joe Markhan and Hud Fisk, tackles; Fred Smith and Scott Stewart, ends; Southworth, quarter; Getchell and Collins, halfbacks; Kelly, fulul back.

Jeffersons Win.

The Jefferson Junior football team easily defeated the Highlanders yesterday afternoon at Green's farm, by a score of 15 to 0. The Jeffersons showed greater speed and knowledge of the game than did their opponents, and the Jefferson backs repeatedly got away for long gains.

BIENNIAL BLUE BOOK IS TO BE CONDENSED.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Once in two years, at the beginning of every congress, there is published what is known as the government blue book, giving certain information about every man or woman drawing any pay from the government, from the president of the United States down the line to the charwomen in the federal buildings. This publication has grown to be very bulky. It began about thirty years ago, when there were about 50,000 people in the classified service, but now that the number is upwards of 300,000, the need for cutting down the size of the publication is very apparent. Under the old system it takes two volumes, each larger than a Webster's unabridged dictionary, to hold all the names. The cost of the publication has been close to $100,000. This year the cost will be cut down to about $28,000, and all the information contained in the two large volumes will be condensed and carried in one comparatively small one. For the first time, too, this blue book will be ready for distribution to members of congress on the opening day of the session.

FRENCH OFFICER ARRESTED AS SPY

Stole Naval Signal Book and Naval Cipher Code.

Paris, Oct. 26.—The arrest of Ensign Charles B. Ullmo of the French navy at Toulon Thursday on the charge of being a spy, and who later confessed to having abstracted a naval signal book and the naval cipher code, was followed yesterday by the arrest at Vendome of an officer named Berton, who is charged with negotiations with an agent of Morocco for the sale of military secrets. The arrests are creating a great sensation, and as Ullmo is a Hebrew, the papers term his case a second Dreyfus affair.

It appears that Ullmo offered certain documents to the minister of marine for $30,000, saying that unless his offer was accepted he would sell them to a foreign power. A dummy correspondence was begun, ending in Ullmo's arrest. A search of his lodgings revealed that he not only possessed the secret code signals, but was in possession of complete plans for the mobilization of the French navy, the location of harbor mines in the event of war, photographs of the mechanism of France's famous seventy-five millimeter field guns, etc.

The cases of Ullmo and Berton added importance to the debate which opened in the chamber of deputies yesterday afternoon on the importance of the state and naval defenses in connection with the charges made in the book entitled "Are we defended?" recently published by Charles Humbert, an expert army and staff officer of Former War Minister Andre, and the magazine article on the same subject, of which Gen. Langlois is the author.

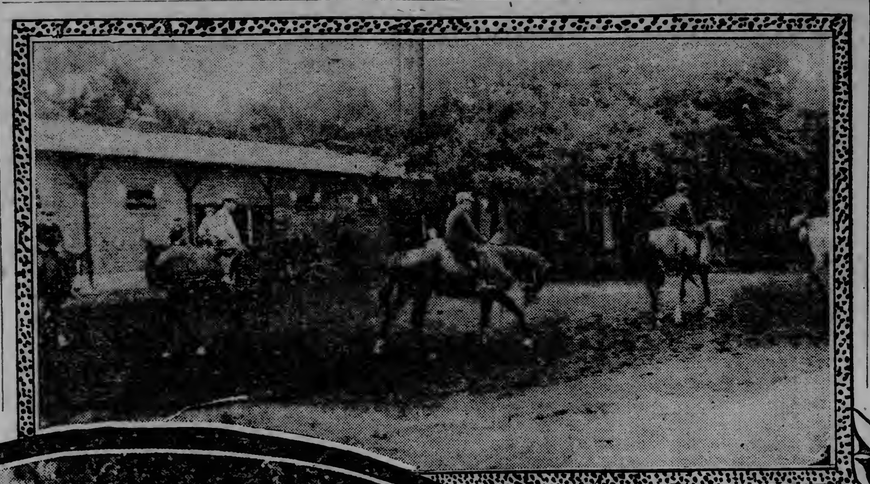

Mm. Gauthier and Lasies, authors of interpellations, spoke at length on the disorganization said to exist in the army, citing statements made by M. Humbert and Gen. Langlois and contending that this deplorable condition of affairs was the result of anti-military propaganda and the political favoritism and dilation introduced since the day of Gen. Andre.

BY DEXTER MARSHALL.

(Copyright, 1907, by Dexter Marshall.)

The head and front of the "American influence in racing" on this side of the water this year is to be found in the little suburban town of Maisons-Laffitte, not more than half an hour's ride from Paris, on the Railroad of the West. For it is there that four or five of the seven or eight Americans who have become most prominent, training French race horses for a living and as a career, make their headquarters.

H. Eugen Leigh from Kentucky, busiest trainer and most conspicuous exponent of American methods in France, comes first on the list by reason of his achievements. Wallace Davis, from New York, whose establishment also is at Maisons-Laffitte, has been training horseso for the French tracks a little longer than Leigh and stands very high, yet Leigh outclasses him in number of horses trained as well as all the other trainers, Turner in a fine establishment of his own, although not on such an extensive scale as Leigh's, and Shields for one of the Lazard brothers, big French bankers. Archie McIntyre is training for Ed Gillis, the English owner. William Bryan has a training stable of his own, Dhuleep Singh, the Hindu prince, being one of his patrons. Johnny Campbell trains for Gus Pfizer, the American owner. All these American trainers are at Maisons-Laffitte.

Adelbert Reiff, brother of Johnny Reiff, who went over from France to England to win the British Derby with Orby for Richard Croker, trains at Chantilly, and so does Eddy Ross. Most of the American trainers now in France went there to ride horses, not to train them, and some of them, like Turner and Shields, still ride occasionally. But these five, Turner, Deb Reiff, Archie McIntyre, Ross and Shields, have practically lived out their riding days and now are in the trainers' class permanently.

It is quite within bounds to say that all the American trainers in France are making money; possibly some of them are not making as much, net, per annum as Vanderbilt is paying William Duke, his salaried American trainer, but some are making a good deal more, no doubt. And there is no reason why their earnings and profits shouldn't increase with the years, since the racing authorities of France, and the French race-going public as well, are convinced, firmly and permanently, that there is no way to keep French racing at its best except to have the horses trained according to American methods and, whenever possible, by American trainers.

As a matter of course, in such circumstances, there are plenty of Frenchmen who claim that their methods are now as "American" as those of the Americans themselves. Doubtless these Frenchmen try to master the American way, and will train all horses intrusted to them in faithful imitation of the methods they have seen applied by Leigh and others during the last few years. Some say, however, that the Frenchmen can't acquire the American method by studying it or imitating it, since its most essential principle is the treatment of each horse according to its own individuality, and, except in the large, so to speak, not according to the rule, but Leigh says the French trainers are coming on wonderfully well and that some of them are doing great work.

Those who disagree with him argue that the trainer, like the jockey, is born, not made, and that while the English jockey—born to the busines nine times in ten—may grasp the essence of American methods, nither the French trainer nor the French jockey, born and bred, is able to do so; that, in fact, they might just about as reasonably try to learn to fly.

Maisons-Laffitte has about fifty training establishments within its borders, there being many English as well as American and French trainers. The town is dominated by racing and racing men entirely, and its population includes an unusually large proportion of Britons and Americons.

Not only is the English tongue spoken as freely as the French—and perhaps more so—at the training quarters, but it is to be heard all over the town, in the cafes and wine shops and on the streets, particularly from the cab drivers; sometimes pretty badly mangled, of course, but still English. It is a "mixed H," Anglican English, however, and not at al. American; for, below the jockey's grade, American employes in French racing are about as scarce as in any other business which Americans go into in France.

English and Anglo-American employes are in the majority at all the training quarters, however, the Anglo-French generally being of pure English blood, though often half-caste, as the children of English jockeys, or stable boys, born of French wives, are termed at Maisons-Laffitte. Their English lacks the aspirate altogether and is one of the most curious things in language to be found anywhere in the world.

Leigh's Seven Hundred Victories.

Eugene Leigh, the best-known trainer in France—for more horses and more winners at that have been prepared by him for the track than by any other one trainer, either American, English or French—has a big series of stables at his Maisons-Laffitte headquarters, with stall capacity for 101 horses in training, and twenty more at his overflow stables nearby.

He has no track upon his grounds, as Vanderbilt has, and there are no art tiles in his stables as there are at Edmond Blanc's luxurious headquarters at St. Cloud, but there is plenty of room on his place for ordinary exercising, while the track upon which to give the horses the necessary gallops is near by, and the stables are fitted with every known contrivance, sanitary and otherwise, for the health and comfort of the horses. Some of these filled the French with unbounded astonishment when first put in, but today they look with approval upon them all, not excepting even the clever American machines, which will groom a horse as well and as thoroughly in a minute, when skillfully handled, as a good stable boy can in an hour's hard work.

All this tends to increase Leigh's popularity as a trainer, although, of course, it is the fact that so many of the horses he has had charge of cut good figures upon the track that keeps his training stables full. His victories, won in four years, numbered 700 in July. At one time this year his two stables contained 120 horses in training. Between seventy and eighty of them have been winners in the season of 1907.

In many ways French racing is conducted upon much different lines than that in the states. All the tracks are run by what is practically a syndicate, in connection with the Society for Improving the Horse, under the auspices of the Jockey club, of which Baron Rothschild, Edmond Blanc and other prominent French horse owners are members. The government gets 7 per cent of the profits yielded by the betting, 4 per cent being devoted to the maintenance of a dozen or twenty stud farms of French horses—"hacks," draft horses, hunters and carriage horses, as well as race horses—and 3 per cent to charity. The racetracks are scattered all over France, but in the vicinity of Paris more than anywhere else. The horses are transported between places at some distance apart by rail, as in America, but between training quarters and nearby tracks and from track to track in the vicinity of Paris by horse vans.

The horse vans form practically a cab service for the equine aristocracy of France, and the big, handsome horse carriages, each of which cost about $1,000 and is drawn by a heavy pair of fine looking horses, add to the vehicular variety of the streets in Paris and the roads in its vicinity. Curiously enough, although a few of these vans are operated by Frenchmen, Leigh owns more of them than all the other van owners put together, his van business being about as big as his training business. He has forty vans at Maisons-Laffitte and at St. Denis twenty more; in the busy months of the year he has about ninety vans in commission.

The man in charge of his van service here is a wonderful British specimen named Perin. In the course of his services in France, his English has taken on many strange Gallic turns that would make him a joy to any one with a liking for the study of odd human specimens and spare time enough to indulge his inclination. At the height of the training season, including his own racers, horses to be trained and van horses, Leigh's stables contain nearly 200 horses and employ about 150 men and boys.

Leigh left the United States, where he had been training his own horses and those of others for some years, and went to England in 1900. There he trained a string of horses for Frank L. Gardner, now a well-known member of the permanent American colony in Paris. After a year in England Leigh went to France, establishing himself first at Chantilly, near its famous race track, but later removing his stables to their present quarters.

It was quite natural that French owners should look somewhat askance upon his methods at first. It was natural that they should suspect him of "doping" some of the supposed unpromising horses which won under his training. It was quite natural that big owners should hold off a while before giving their horses over to his care. At all events, their attitude was anything but receptive at the beginning, and Leigh had few horses, save Gardner's to train for some time.

But somehow the horses placed in his care soon began to make good and, gradually, one owner after another brought horses to him. Gardner got out of racing some time ago, but, as I have indicated, Leigh's stables are now crowded to their capacity. Year by year he has added more stalls, and workmen are busy this fall making still further additions. His patrons this year include H. Rigard, the duchess of Feltre, Dr. Chapard, Marino Clado, R. Chan. Bracasy and others among French owners, Miles the Englishman, and Martin, who is a Spaniard in spite of his English name.

The Leigh trained horses have not yet won many of the great "flat" races, however, although he trains for "flat" racing as well as hurdle racing and steeplechases; but they have won a very large proportion of the two latter classes, as well as many of the minor "flat" races. Thus Chi-Lo-Sa, owned by Dr. Chapard and trained at the Leigh establishment, won the grand hurdle race of Paris this year, the prize for which is 50,000 francs. This horse had been suffering so badly from cracked heels in the spring that few though him fit for racing, yet after Leigh's treatment and training he was able to come in first in one of the most important of French racing events.

Leigh has a few horses of his own, and some of them have shown pretty good form. He will continue to race moderately in the future as he has raced in the past, but he has no intention o festablishing a big stable and going in to capture the great prizes of the French turf with his own horses, at least not in th near future.

Leigh's Career in America.

Eugene Leigh is 47. His boyhood was passed in Illinois and he got into racing right early in life.

"I was a jockey whe only a little lad," he said at Maisons-Laffitte to the writer. "That is, I rode horses on race tracks by the time I was knee high to a grasshopper, but I had to serve a stiff aprenticeship around the stables before I was able to ride a race. I followed the horses from one small track to another—county fair tracks, some of them—in Illinois and Michigan. 'Bushwhacking' we called it then; and I 'buswhacked' as far west a Nebraska and as far south a Texas. Those were the good old days of 'quarter horses.' After a while I got a breeding farm in Kentucky, near Lexington—La Belle. I called it—and did quite a business. Then I sold both farm and horses, all but ome yearlings which I kept in New Jerey.

"One day I thought I'd come over to this side of the water for a six-weeks' vacation and to see the sights. I have never been back. That is my story."

Leigh got his name well before the entire French people—not merely the racing public, but all classes—soon after his arrival in France by the humanitarian movement which he started, although he hadn't the slightest idea of putting himself to the front by the course he pursued. But early in his stay he noticed that the jockeys on the French tracks wore very long spurs, which they used too freely, as well as the whip. There had been reform in the use of the whip and spur in America before this, and, as Leigh had oberved the horses ran just as well when not severely spurred and whipped, while, beyond a doubt, the comfort of the animals was increased greatly by the reform.

So in one way and another he set about to introduce gentler treatment of the French racehorses, and today, although spurs are still used, they are well filed, and do not cut and tear the horses as of old, while the whip is wielded with much greater moderation than formerly. Three years ago his work was recognized by a gold medal, which he wears on his watch guard, and which is about the only piece of yellow metal that he ever displays. The medal bears this inscription:

PRIX DU CONSUL A MR. LEIGH (EUGENE). 1904. Societe Protectric Animeux a Paris.

Eugene Leigh is a typical American horseman, with ruddy cheeks, a stocky but active figure, and haft and mustache that are getting gray. His home is not far from his training stables at Maisons-Laffitte, but he visits Paris nearly every day—not by train nor in a horse-drawn rig, but in a motor car, of course. He likes France and the part he is playing in its racing life, but he's a good American for all that. He speaks French well enough to make himself understood clearly, but with a decided Illinois accent, and all his "help" speak English, while his headquarters in Paris are at a hotel where English is as easy as French to most of the employes. In one particular he differs radically from nearly everybody he meets here—he never drinks anything alcoholic, not even red wine.

He has helped a good many of the American jockeys to make places for themselves in France. At one time and another he has employed several of those who are now very well known on the French tracks.

Other Maisons-Laffitte Trainer.

Wallace Davis trains the racehorses owned by Eugene Fischoff, one of the best-known American owners on the French turf, and whose important stable is at Maisons-Laffitte. Fischoff is a big factor in obstacle racing in France, and last year his stick-jumping nags led all French horses of their class. Davis trained Flying Star, who won the French Oaks in 1906, and Pamphile, who won the first race at Longchamps thi year. While they have not won as many races as those trained by Leigh, the Davis trained horses have captured more important events, and this puts Davis easily second among all the American trainers here.

Nash Turner has been so successful as a trainer in France that his business has outgrown his original stables and he has been obliged to build others. It will be remembered that he won a goodly number of important races for the late William C. Whitney before going to France, and today he would be one of the best riders on either side of the water were it not for his weight, which has been increasing for some time, in spite of his efforts to keep it down. Even at that, he rode and won several good races last year and has not been an entirely unknown quantity as a jockey this year. One of his most important winnings this year was the Prix MacKenzie's Grieves at Maisons-Laffitte, on Merino's Inconnu, trained by Davis.

Turner's main stables are beautifully situated, a mile or more from the Maisons-Laffitte station and are reached b ya charming drive over the best of tree-shaded French roads. Both Davis' and Turner's training quarters are handsomer than Leigh's, but that is because the latter has occupied his present plaec only a year and hasn't had time ti make everything spic-and-span as yet. Turner's most important patrons are the Viscount Fontarce, H. Letillier, R. Balli and T. P. Thorn, the American.

Thorn, who is a man of substantial means, has been a figure on the French turf for eight or ten years. One of his horses is called "Thoughtful Liar," a name which makes the Frenchmen shake their heads; a "crazy Americanism," which they can neither appreciate nor understand. Thorn likes a fast motor car almost as well as he likes a good horse, and is known by his fellow expatriates from the great Republic of the West as an all-round sport. He lives in Paris, but his automobile takes him to Maissons-Laffitte almost daily when he is not at one or other of the big French meetings.

Henry Shields' work for Lazard, the big banker, whose stables, which contain about twenty horses, are at Maisons-Laffitte, has given him a reputation worth having. He has been away from America, where he was a jockey with a good record, about four years. He rode in Russia a year ago and then, coming to France, was Leigh's jockey for two years more. Then the misfortune which sooner or later befalls all jockeys, befell him—he became too heavy—and he had to enter the lists as a trainer.

Maisons-Laffitte is the home also of Johnny Campbell, who was well known in the states thirty years ago in harness racing. In the days when Maud S was cutting down the trotting record every year he was a popular driver, and at one time was in partnership with Wolcott and Mayor Nolan of Albany, men whose names used to be familiar to all who kept posted as to speedy owners and their horses. Later Campbell left the harness racing field and became a jockey-owner, riding his own horses. He left the states four years ago and established himself in France as a trainer of race horses. At first he trained for certain prominent horse-owning members of the French nobility, but now he is employed by Augustus Pfized, a New Englander originally, who has a stable of twenty or twenty-five horses, and enjoys French life so well that he is not likely soon to return to America.

The Reiff Boys in Europe.

The success of Adelbert Reiff as trainer at Chantilly for Michel Ephrussi, the Greek banker in Paris, has been as marked in its way as that of his brother John. "Deb" Reiff was a jockey in the states so long ago that he is mostly thought of as a trainer only nowadays, but in his time he had quite a name as a rider of fast races. He began to do good work for Richard Croker after Enoch Wishard left him and returned to America. Then he went to France and for awhile trained the horses of a rich Russian who is well known on the race tracks here. He did so well with the Russian's horses that he was offered more money to go to Italy and take charge of Sir Roland's big stable of horses. They scored so many winnings that Ephrussi called Adelbert back to France. The quality of his training is evidenced by the frequency with which the names of his horses are seen upon the winners' lists. Johnny Reiff has not yet found his way into the trainers' ranks and doesn't expect to in the near future.

There were four boys in the Reiff family, three of whom have been prominent in the racing world. Lester, the oldest, who never has figured in French racing, was one of the pioneers in the introduction of the American style of riding on the other side of the water. It was Lester Reiff who won the Derby for Whitney on Volodyovski in 1901. The same year he lost the St. Leger stakes by a head and claimed a foul, which was not allowed. He had been in England with his brother Johnny three years, landing on the other side in 1898. In '99 and 1900 Lester led all the English jockeys in winnings and earnings, the latter being more than $30,000 a year. Sloane was then second, while Johnny, only 15, was third.

Lester Reiff made a great reputation in the states at Monmouth, where he once rode Queenie Trowbridge, against whom the betting odds were 100 to 1, to victory, her backers winning $100,000. One year he had 143 winnings in 353 mounts. Te Reiff boys are natives of Findlay, Ohio, and were taken to Europe by John McCafferty and Enoch Wishard, who trained for Croker so many years. Lester was warned off

Bemidji, Minn., Oct. 26. — (Special to The Herald.)—George A. Bradwell of Bemidji, formerly a corporal of Co. AT THE HEAD OF THE LAKES IS BREWED FITGER'S BEER

¶ The proper water for brewing is one of the greatest elements in the making of good beer. Scientific tests have proven that the water of the Great Lakes, and particularly of Lake Superior, is the best in the world for the purpose. For this reason A. Fitger & Co. built their brewery at Duluth twenty-five years ago. Their expert brewers were given the best equipment and best materials obtainable. Thus the high standard of Fitger's Beer was established and today it is known as the best in the land. Your home deserves a case.

AT THE HEAD OF THE LAKES IS BREWED FITGER'S BEER

¶ The proper water for brewing is one of the greatest elements in the making of good beer. Scientific tests have proven that the water of the Great Lakes, and particularly of Lake Superior, is the best in the world for the purpose. For this reason A. Fitger & Co. built their brewery at Duluth twenty-five years ago. Their expert brewers were given the best equipment and best materials obtainable. Thus the high standard of Fitger's Beer was established and today it is known as the best in the land. Your home deserves a case.

Thief River Falls

Thief River Falls, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The contracts for the improvement of the Roseau river in Roseau and Kittson counties was awarded to Jerry Sherwood and Charles Sutliff of Litchfield. This is known as ditch No. 1, and includes the straightening of the channel of the river so as to prevent overflow and allow the drainage of the lands. The amount of dirt that it is estimated will have to be removed is 1,000,000 cubic yards, which at the price of the contract will amount in the total of $54,000. Another ditch will likely be dug some distance south of Red Lake Falls in the southern end of this county.

The board of county commissioners met to consider the petition filed some months since for the removal of the county seat from Red Lake Falls to Thief River Falls. The petition was not considered, three of the members, Commissioners Demann, Pigen and Lindquist, passing a resolution that the present petition could not be considered in view of the fact that the original petition that was stolen a year ago was still in existence, and that they had no authority to act on the present one. The matter will come up at the term of court that sits on Oct. 28 and an appeal can be taken so that it will get into the supreme court for the spring term. If the decision is in favor of Thief River Falls it will mean an election in the spring.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

TOWN FIGHT OVER AUTO

Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls in Merry Row.

Echo of County Seat Fight Between the Two Towns.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—That there is no love lost between this city and Red Lake Falls because of the rivalry between the two towns over the impending county seat fight is well illustrated in an incident that is absorbing the attention of the respective inhabitants. The matter at issue is an automobile owned by George Elder of this city, which has furnished material for a fight or two, both in court and out. The machine was left in Red Lake Falls by George Gray, who was arrested in that town for stealing horses in North Dakota. It was stored in Dan Goran's barn and when Mr. Elder went after his property he was confronted with a bill for storage of $1 per day. This he considered excessive and refused to pay. Then he put up bonds and began replevin proceedings that he might secure possession of his property and allow the courts to determine a fair amount of storage. Deputy Sheriff Isaacson seized the auto under a writ of attachment, but before he got away with it Goran and others are alleged to have assaulted the officer and taken it away from him. Then Sheriff Nelson and Deputy Sheriff Lee got into the game. They undertook to serve the writ and during the excitement Goran is said to have assaulted the deputy. Next came a warrant for the arrest of Goran on the charge of assaulting an officer and he was bound over to the grand jury.

When the sheriff took possession of the automobile he found that some thief had removed the two hind wheels, making it impossible for him to remove the machine. As he could get no assistance from any citizen in Red Lake Falls he swore in sixteen deputies and proceeded to Red Lake. As soon as an attempt was made to remove the auto an injunction was secured, which prevented the officers from taking the machine from the livery barn. The matter will be sifted out in the term of the district court that convenes at Red Lake Falls on Oct. 28. While the real trouble seems to be that there is a county seat fight on between the two towns, to any person of common sense it is hard to understand why disinterested parties should take such an active part in attempting to frustrate the efforts of regular officers to perform their legal duties.

TOWN WIDE OPEN.

Sensational Charges Made Againt Officials of East Grand Forks.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sensational affidavits were forwarded to Attorney General Edward T. Young, Governor John A. Johnson and Sheriff Louis Gonyea of Polk county advising them that the lid is completely off in East Grand Forks and has been for many weeks.

A detective from a Minneapolis agency has been in East Grand Forks for a week and has collected an amazing amount of evidence showing that gambling is carried on openly, saloons never close day or night or on Sunday, and that houses of bad repute to the number of five are allowed to flourish on Demers, the main avenue.

It is charged that draw poker, roulette, stud poker and half a dozen other games are allowed to run and there are scores of slot machines.

Charges against certain officials are also made in the affidavit. Slot machines are said to be in operation in the saloons.

JAP STRIKE-BREAKERS

Liable to Cause Serious Trouble in Shops at Willmar.

Willmar, Minn., Oct. 26.—Because of the importation of Japanese workmen to take the places of the striking boilermakers at the Great Northern roundhouse here, serious trouble is threatened. The strike has been in progress six weeks, and it is rumored that unless the Japanese are pulled off the strike may become general among roundhouse employes here.

APPEAL TO COURTS.

Disgruntled Taxpayers Begin Proceedings Against State Tax Commission.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 26.—The state supreme court has granted the petition of Foley Bros. & Kelley and the Foley Bros. Building company for writs of certiorari directing the members of the state tax commission to bring into court on Nov. 6, the records of the proceedings with relation to the application of these companies for an abatement of their taxes.

The tax commission has refused to investigate the matter on the ground of lack of jurisdiction. The petition states that the county board of abatement by a majority vote voted to abate the taxes, but the county auditor refused to reduce the tax on the books of the county. The refusal of the tax commission to take this matter up was based on the ground that their authority to pass upon the assessment was derived from section 801 of the revised laws of 1905, under which the state acted in these matters prior to the creation of the commission. It is a question of the jurisdiction of the commission which will have to be settled before the commission will pass upon the alleged injustice of the assessments.

CHANGE OF WIND BEAT MAJ. HERSEY

Brave American Aeronaut Takes His Defeat With All Grace.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—"It was a magnificent race, one of the best ever held, and it has demonstrated that America is the ideal country for ballooning. Its results will be to give a decided impetus to ballooning in this country, even though the cup was won by the German contestants.

That is the way Maj. H. B. Hersey, summed up the great international balloon race which started from St. Louis Monday, and in which he was one of the contestants.

Maj. Hersey takes his defeat in the race philosophically and, like the true sportsman, declines to hold a post mortem on the result or to explain how and why he might have done better. An examination of the map which he carried with him, and on which his course is carefully marked out shows, however, that had not the wind veered while his balloon was over Lake Erie, throwing him from his easterly course to an almost northerly one, he would have had a fair chance to distance the other competitors.

FAMINE IN WOOD TO BE EXPECTED

Cordwood for Mining Purposes Said to be Very Scarce.

Negaunee, Mich., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is liable to be a famine in cordwood in mining portions of the country this winter, certainly in those localities which depend upon Upper Michigan as their source of supply. Because of the extremely high cost of operation and the almost universal scarcity of labor, many producers have gone out of business, notwithstanding a booming market at quotations the highest ever known. In the Crystal Falls district, Western Menominee range, where 20,000 cords of hardwood were cut last season, only two concerns are operating this fall, and together they will get out only 7,000 cords, the most of which will be shipped to Milwaukee. Exactly similar conditions prevail in other portions of the maple belt.

It is estimated that in the entire Upper Peninsula, there is not more than two months' supply of dry hardwood available for home consumption. Many dealers have been unable to supply the fuel all summer. Green hardwood, unsatisfactory as it is, will be almost impossible to secure, for the reason that it will be held until seasoned, when its value increases greatly. Dry hardwood that last year at this time was retailing at $6 a load, is now eagerly bought at $7.

CREMATED IN BOARDING CAR

Horrible Fate of Michael Leponto of St. Paul.

Walhalla, N. D., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Michael Leponto of St. Paul, Minn., burned to death and William Stansbury of Willmar, Minn., fatally burned in a railroad boarding car seven miles north of here early Thursday morning. The scene of the accident is just over the Canadian border.

Leponto and Stansbury were members of a railroad construction crew that is putting in the Mowbray extension from Walhalla to Manitoba. Leponto was foreman of the gang and was sleeping with Stansbury in the office car.

The stove tipped over in some way and set fire to the car. The men had been asleep and did not wake until their escape was cut off. The men in the other car were awakened by shouts. They ran to the car and succeeded in getting Stansbury out, frightfully burned. Leponto's body could not be rescued. Leponto's son was a member of the rescue party.

A special train was run up from Walhalla and took Stansbury to the hospital at this point. The charred body of Leponto was also brought here on the train. Leponto's son is protrated by his father's awful fate. Leponto is also survived by a wife. Not much is known concerning Stansbury.

ALIENATION SUIT

Against Marinette Man is Dismissed by the Court.

Marinette, Wis., Oct. [illegible].—(Special to The Herald.)—The suit of Thomas Haggerty of Green Bay against W. E. Cleary of this city for $25,000 for alienation of his wife's affections, was dismissed in the circuit court by Judge Hastings. Mr. Haggerty is a business man of Green Bay, who was recently divorced. Mr. Cleary is the repreesntative of the National Biscuit company.

The alleged incident which caused the divorce and damage suit occurred about a year ago.

BROTHERHOOD OF OWLS.

First Lodge East of Rocky Mountains Organized at Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first lodge of the Brotherhood of Owls organized east of the Rocky Mountains has been instituted here by M. J. Hessian of Seattle, with the following officers: Executive, F. B. Wadsley; vice executive, J. P. Fahnlender; vicar, Harry Laurent; nest physician, Dr. O'Keefe; secretary, L. F. Berthelmey; master of the nest, Neil Kelliher; warden, G. B. Knott; trustees, W. J. Higgins, R. R. McKinnon, J. W. Ross; traeshurer—S. H. Ashley. A committee was appointed to look up a suitable hall. The next meeting will be held Nov. 4.

FARGO BANKS RICH.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 26.—The clearings at the Fargo clearing house Thursday were $100,177.74. For week ending Thursday the clearings were $732,333.56, which is $197,819.46 greater than they were for the corresponding week in 1906, when the clearings were $534,514.10. This is an increase of 36 per cent which would indicate that the people in the West are not worrying much over the Eastern panic.

DR. CAMPBELL DENIES

Report There Are Many Patients in Asylum That Should be Out.

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charges made by a Menominee man that there were patients confined to the institution who are in no manner mentally deranged, and who have been committed simply because their relatives do not want the bother and expense of caring for them, are denied by Dr. Campbell, superintendent of the Newberry asylum. He admits that of the 675 inmates, a number which is straining the accommodations, there are approximately fifty who could be safely cared for at home, but he points out in the connection that the institution is not only maintained for the restraint of cases so violent as to constitute a menace to the public, but also as a hospital for the treatment of the mentally diseased.

Clerk of Court Maimed for Life by Carrying Gun Cocked.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jason J. Kidder, clerk of court of Otter Tail county, accidentally shot himself Thursday while hunting near Perham, and lost his left hand as a result.

Mr. Kidder was carrying his gun, cocked, through the brush, and while reaching ahead with his left hand to push the brush aside, he got his hand in front of the muzzle of the gun, and at the same instant the gun was discharged by the brush catching the trigger. His wrist was so badly injured that amputation was necessary.

Mr. Kidder is a veteran of the Spanish-American war, and was elected as clerk of court three years ago.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

Morris—The new Assumption church of this city will be dedicated on Sunday by Right Rev. Bishop Trobec of St. Cloud, Minn., assisted by a large number of priests. Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul will preach the dedicatory sermon.

Willmar—L. W. Bowen, superintendent of the Willmar division of the Great Northern, has been transferred to the Spokane division, with headquarters at Spokane, and left with his family for that city last evening. George S. Stewart of Breckenridge will succeed Mr. Bowen here.

Royalton—At the inquest held over the remains of C. H. Carlstaad, the laborer who was found dead in the Jacobson camp, near Pierz, it was found that death was due to a rupture of the right ventricle of the heart. At first it was supposed that he had committed suicide, and the inquest was held to discover the cause of his death.

Little Falls—Gus Lindgren, landlord of the eWst hotel of this city, sold his lease and hotel furniture to H. S. Eton of St. Paul Thurusday morning. Mr. Eton has already taken possession, and the hotel is still open to the public.

WHITE PLAGUE HIGH

IN MORTALITY LIST

Pulmonary Tuberculosis Chief Cause of Death in Government Figures

Out of only two-fifths of the population of the United States, more than half a million lives were offered up in 1905 as a sacrifice to diseases. Startling as this death rate may seem, it was less than that for the preceding year. but was in excess of the number of deaths registered for any other year. The death rate from Nephritis, Bright's Disease, Apoplexy, Cancer, Diabetes, and Appendicitis is increasing, while that from old age, bronchitis, convuisions, peritonitis and scarlet fever is decreasing.

TUBERCULOSIS LEADS.

The greatest death rate recorded for any one disease in this year was that from the pulmonary tuberculosis, amounting to 57,870. Pneumonia follows closely, with a death rate of 39,068, exclusive of broncho penumonia. The much-dread cancer shows a steady growth. The death rate figures 24,330. These figures are taken from statistics as compiled by the United States census bureau, and they are official. It is appalling to note the great number of deaths resulting from the diseases, deaths that in many instances can be prevented by timely and proper treatment; treatment that is found usually in the hands of a specialist, and treatment that has been perfected by long and continued experience in practice.

The local physician is of vast importance. He is always ever ready and prompt, but from his limited experience in the treatment of these particular diseases, he is probably not sufficiently familiar to treat them as scientifically as one who has grown up in this particular special practice. Dr. Rea, as a specialist in these diseases, ranks high in favor. He has been engaged in this particular line of practice for nearly twenty years. He is thoroughly familiar with the phases of each disease and its condition of severity in the climates in which it is more prevalent.

As for instance—Kentucky, Tennessee, Louisiana, Mississippi and some of the coast states, where the altitude is low, where the moisture is exceedingly great, and where the atmosphere is dense, the pulmonary diseases prevail. In the Western states in the high altitude of the middle states, the percentage of pulmonary diseases is much less. In the Great Lake region, such as Superior, Huron and Erie, and in the Red River valley country, there is more tuberculosis than in the nearby highlands. Some cures he has made:

Ole Satrom, Colgate, N. D., cured of fistula and piles by the Hyperdermic Injection Method.

Mrs. J. Schoonover, child, Skibo, Minn., cured of partial paralysis, loss of flesh, and general debility.

Miss Sweden Bird Island, Minn., cured of early consumption and bronchial catarrh.

R. R. Gray, Sheldon, N. D., cured of deafness.

Mrs. N. W. Larson, Wilmar, Minn., cured of bronchial catarrh that had almost gone into consumption.

R. C. Duea, Sharon, N. D., cured of chronic rheumatism.

Mrs. O. Heen, Meckinock, N. D., cured of chronic eczema which had spread all over her body.

Mrs. G. F. Nordin, Wilmar, Minn., cured of eczema and bad blood.

J. A. Carlson, Kirkhoven, Minn., cured of chronic rheumatism, could hardly walk, and had lost all hopes.

Hugh Frazur, 1522 East Superior St., Duluth, Minn., cured of neuralgia and rheumatism.

Mrs. Herbert Watt, Duluth, Minn., cured of female troubles, and liver and stomach troubles.

Hans Homelvig, Fargo, N. D., cured of varicocele by Injection Method.

Mrs. Albert Tessman, Excelsior, Minn., cured of ulcerated leg (big leg.)

Louis Bicking, Watertown, S. D., cured of consumption and stomach troubles.

Miss Anne Gieving, McIntosh, Minn., cured of early consumption.

C. J. Wendt, Duluth, Minn., cured of chronic eczema all over the body. Of two years' standing.

William Reid, Little Falls, Minn., cured of cancer of the lip in one treatment.

H. P. Jackson, Morris, Minn., cured of long standing piles. Cured it without operation.

L. S. Dreasler, Ellison, N. D., cured of fistula of the rectum. Quickly cured of this most terrible disease.

Mrs. Martin Downs, Wilmar, Minn., cured completely of partial blindness.

Gregor Johnson, Harwick, Minn., cured of ulcerated sore leg. Thought he was crippled for life.

Ole Larson, Wild Rice, N. D., cured of a disease of stomach.

Mike Ritman, Litchville, N. D., cured of external piles.

Special to The Herald: We are pleased to announce a professional visit of Dr. Rea to the following towns:

Ashland, Wis., Knight Hotel, Thursday, Oct. 31.

Superior, Wis., Superior Hotel, Friday, Nov. 1.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

Hallowe'en Boys.

Hiding, creeping, sneaking,
Everywhere about;
Whispering in lowest tones,
With ne'er a laugh nor shout.

Taking gates from hinges
Hanging them in trees;
Piling debris in the yards
High up as men's knees.

Placing pails of water
'Gainst the front hall door:
Then ringing loud the door bell,
And scampering off before

The door be quickly opened
By master in undress,
Who gets himself most thoroughly
Drenched to the skin. Goodness!

And through the hours till midnight,
(When Hallowe'en is o'er)
The boys who 're fond of mischief
Do all they can—and MORE.

MAUD WALKER.

Conundrums.

Why are people, preparing to make a journey, like the forests in springtime?

They are leaving out of their trunks what they expect to wear.

What is most needed in the world?

Bread.

Can you tell why man is never without animals as companions?

Because he takes two calves with him wherever he goes.

When are chickens like horses?

When getting curried.

When is a mill like a clock?

When running.

Reads backwards and forwards the same;
It expresses the sentiments warm from the heart,
And to beauty lays principal claim.

A STRANGE HALLOWE'EN HAPPENING.

BY MAUD WALKER.

It was a cold October morning, the day before Hallowe'en, and the great city awoke to look out upon the first suggestion of winter. From an old untenanted tumble-down building—which had been condemned as unsafe for people to live in—came a little boy of perhaps ten years of age. His face was dirty, his hair uncombed and his clothing thin, ragged and soiled. He raised a pale, sad face towards the sky which was only to be seen by looking upward, for the tall buildings cut off all the firmament save that directly overhead.

"Ugh, it's cold!" And the boy shivered and turned up his coat collar. "Wonder what I'll do for a warmer coat this winter. But how hungry I am! I must hurry to the newspaper office and get my papers. But if business is as bad today as it was yesterday there'll be little to eat on. Gee, but I've had a hard time since my dear mother died and my father was taken to the hospital all cut up by a street car! It is a year now since dear mother was tooked away from us, and over a month since poor old father was hurt so that he'll probably die. Let's see—today's visitors' day at the hospital. I can go and see him between three and four o'clock this afternoon. Well, I must get to selling papers, or I'll not eat this morning."

So saying, the little boy, whose name was Neddie Smith, hurried off down the street which was being rapidly filled with pedestrians, all of them shivering, hurrying, miserable-looking beings, out early in quest of work. It was yet too early for the regularly-employed to be out. But soon the better-to-do class began to mix with their wretched brothers and sisters, and the day advanced rapidly.

Neddie Smith got his bundle of papers counted out to him and with his small stock in trade tucked under his arm he went down the street crying his wares: "First edition, papers! papers! all about the horrible train wreck—papers! first edition, papers!"

Neddie had not long been a street newsboy. As you have learned from his morning soliloquy, his mother was dead and his father seriously injured and lying in a hospital. Before these dire calamities had happened in Neddie's life his home had been a clean and wholesome one, though very poor. His father had been a factory worker and his mother a plain seamstress, sewing by the day in private homes. But the combined incomes of the parents merely met their living expenses, nothing being saved for that "rainy day" which now poured as a deluge on the head of the helpless but hopeful Neddie.

After his mother's death Neddie and his father had kept the little three-room flat, and Neddie had continued to attend school. But a home without a mother was a sad and barren one, indeed, and the place soon became unkept and dirty, in spite of Neddie's efforts to "keep it as his dear mother had done." And his father was too tired at evening time to lend a hand at tidying up the place. He managed to prepare meals for his boy and himself, but other tasks were left to the untutored little Neddie.

And then had happened the most terrible thing. Neddie's father while crossing a crowded street was knocked down by a passing street-car and so badly injured that now his life was dispaired of. Soon after this terrible accident the landlord of their little flat seized the furniture for rent and Neddie found himself on the street parentless, penniless and homeless.

At first Neddie, heart-heavy, was dazed. Which way to turn, what to do to sustain life, he did not know. He wandered about the streets the first day of his homelessness, his mind and heart so full of his poor injured father that he forgot he had nothing to eat and nowhere to sleep or shelter himself from the night.

But at last tired-out nature asserted itself. As the darkness fell Neddie's weary limbs gave out and hunger cried aloud within him. He had no blood relatives to whom he might apply for immediate help. He was too proud to go to strangers who would doubtless call him a beggar. So he hunted about for some place where he might creep for the night. On the morrow he would hunt for work. By chance he found the old tumble-down tenement house that had been condemned, and which stood silent, empty, waiting its final destruction at the hands of hired despoilers. Into this abode the child crept and slept on the bare floor. And here he slept each night for a whole month, earning a few cents each day selling papers. The money went for food—food of the worst kind. At the baker's Neddie would buy cheap sweet cakes, and from a street vender he would buy "hoky-poky" and pickles. So you will not wonder that soon the child became pale and weak, feeling each night as he lay down to sleep on the cold floor of the silent tenement house that nothing short of a fire could arouse him again to action. But each morning there was the thought of his father and the cry of his gnawing stomach to send him forth into the street again.

And thus the time passed, arriving at the morning on which this story opens—the day preceding Hallowe'en.

By nine o'clock Neddie had sold out his stock of papers and had a profit of seven cents. With this splendid sum—for it was more than Neddie usually made of a morning—he went to a baker's and bought some cakes. Then, having three cents left he wandered about till he saw a hot-coffee vender measuring out steaming black stuff from a sort of oven-pail. Men and women and children were buying this liquid and drinking it to keep out the cold and check their hunger. Neddie bought three cents' worth, which was given him in an old tin cup which he handed back to the vender after having drunk the contents.

"Now," he said to himself, "I'll wander round in the park till time to go to see poor father." Once in the park Neddie made bold to wash his face and hands in the playing fountain. He wiped them dry on a bit of paper he found lying on a park bench. He was anxious to look as neat as possible when he called to see his father.

At the hour when visitors were allowed to call upon their sick at the charity hospital Neddie was admitted to his father's bedside. The poor man lay like one already dead, so colorless he was. But he opened his eyes when Neddie whispered "Father dear, it's me—Neddie, come to see you." Then in a very weak voice the father whispered to his little boy who was so soon to become an orphan indeed: "Dear boy, I cannot get well. The doctor told me so this morning. I have a fatal hurt inside—I—will—not—be—here—long. But I cannot die—and leave you—in this great—cruel—city. Promise me that—you'll go—into the—country and find—a home. You are a good—boy—and—an honest man's son. You'll find some good soul—who'll take——"

But the voice became too weak for Neddie to hear more. The poor man's eyes went shut and his breathing came hard. Neddie felt a pang at his heart and a sob rose to his throat which he smothered, fearing his father would think him weak. A nurse, coming at the moment, saw the change in the sick man's condition and hurried Neddie away. As she did so Neddie suddenly turned to her with a supplicating voice: "Please, oh, please, good lady, allow me to stay somewhere near. I fear my father is dying. I can't bear to leave him now. I may never see him again if I am sent away."

Although the nurse was hardened to sights of grief and pain this little plea from a grief-stricken child was too much for her to refuse, and leading Neddie to a small anteroom, near to the ward in which his father lay, she bade him wait there till she came for him.

The afternoon wore away, and the lights were sent flickering like fire-flies throughout the big hospital. And still Neddie sat in the anteroom unnoticed by anyone. Just as he was on the point of going to someone to make inquiry about his father's condition the nurse who had brought him there entered. Her face was serious and sympathetic as she bent over Neddie, saying: "It is all over, child. Your father died half an hour ago. It will be impossible for you to see him now. Shall——"

But Neddie did not wait for anything more. Turning quickly, that the nurse might not see his face, so drawn with grief and eyes filled with bitter tears, he fled from the building, smothered sobs shaking his thin little body. No, he did not want to see his father—now. It would do no good since he could not speak to him nor feel the caress of his dear hands. He had gone, then, to join the dear mother. And Neddie was alone in the world. As fast as he could go he ran towards the West. A faint glow of the setting sun still reddened the sky, and Neddie knew that in that direction lay the country. His father had told him to leave the cruel city—to go to the country where some good soul would care for him.

That night Neddie lay in the shelter of a haystack, eating one of the cakes he had kept from the morning's meal. When the dawn broke he rose and started toward a farm house near by. But the barking of a big dog sent him on down the road, away from the farm. He walked all day, resting at intervals on the roadside. But everywhere the farm houses looked so fine and big that he feared to go to their owners to ask for a home where he might work for his board. He knew that the prosperous and well-fed could not understand his deplorable condition, and would call him a young tramp and send him about his business or turn him over to the county authorities to be sent to the poor house. And Neddie could not bear the thought of becoming a dependent.

And so another night—Hallowe'en night—found Neddie still a wanderer. He had entered the outskirts of a little town at dusk and had felt so lonely and sad that he sank down near to a big barn to rest. As he lay there in the moon light he wondered what would become of him, for he was nigh unto starvation. Hearing something crawling in the grass near him he got up and climbed into a covered wagon—a wagon such as grocers deliver their goods in to customers. Once inside the wagon he hid himself beneath the seat and an old blanket. Being worn out he soon fell into a profound sleep from which the noise of merrymakers did not rouse him. Boys and girls, as well as many grown-ups, were out in force to celebrate the gay occasion of Hallowe'en in regular country fashion. A group of boys raided the barn in whose shed Neddie slept so soundly in the delivery wagon. They seized hold of the wagon's tongue and drew it down the street, yelling and laughing gaily as they went along. But throughout his ride Neddie slept on, dreaming that he was in a warm house and enjoying a good supper.

The merrymakers drew the old wagon into a beautiful lawn, yard to a handsome private home. Right up to the front door they drew it and left it standing there. Then they went away, laughing to think how angry Mr. and Mrs. Drew would be when they came to their front door the next morning and found the unsightly wagon marring their well-kept lawn.

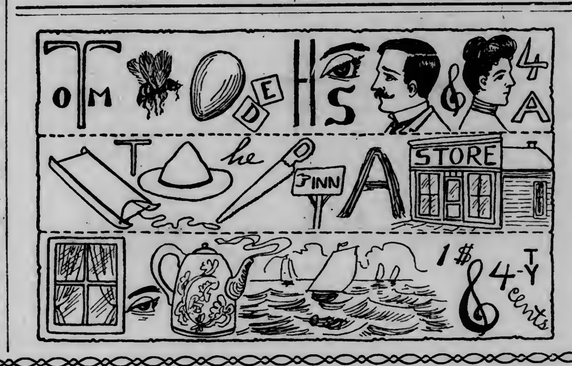

About 7 o'clock on the following morning Neddie was awakened by a soft hand on his face. "Why, it's a little boy, as sure as I'm alive!" It was a woman's voice, a sweet, motherly one. Neddie opened his eyes and thought he was dreaming. Sitting up he said: "Oh, I must be dreaming all this. I never saw this place before. Oh, I hope it was all a dream about dear father dying." Then tears welled up in his eyes and he said to the surprised lady who was looking in on him: "I don't know whether or not I'm awake. I left the city last night—after my father—died. I was so—so—lonesome and—and had nowhere to go."

The lady looked pityingly into Neddie's face, saying: "Come little boy, come into the house and tell me how you came to be here. You are awake and not dreaming. Last night was Hallowe'en, and doubtless you were out merrymaking with the town boys and got in here to hide, and so fell asleep."

Neddie went into the house with the lady and soon she had heard his pitiful story, told in detail from the date of his mother's death. After Neddie had finished she put her arms around his shivering little form and said through her tears: "Yes, dear little boy, your father was right. You have found the soul who will take you and love you and give you a home. You were brought to us in a very strange way—a veritable Hallowe'en gift. And here you shall remain. My husband will be delighted, for you shall grow up to take the place of a dear little son we lost a year ago. Only yesterday we were discussing the advisability of adopting a little son, and here he is this morning—right at our front door. So, come and meet your foster father, then you shall have something to eat. After that comes a bath, some nice new clothes and—home and LOVE."

There was a small boy named Tom West,
Who in vanity extended his chest;
No boy any where
Could assume such an air,
Just because he was flashily drest.

The Kea, or, Mountain-Nestor.

A strange bird is the Kea, or Mountain-Nestor, a parrot belonging to South Island, New Zealand. Its color is monotonous, and in no way is it of striking appearance; but it has won for itself an unenviable reputation through its habit of diet. Since man became an inhabitant of the island, and there raised his flocks of sheep, this bird has fed upon mutton in preference to any other food. Its manner of procuring a dinner is after this fashion: A flock of Kea, or Mountain-Nestors, will surround a sheep and drive it from its companions. Then they torment it till, from sheer exhaustion, the poor animal sinks helplessly to earth to become the vicious flock's prey. Upon its unprotected back the birds swarm, literally eating the quivering thing alive, for death does not come to relieve the tortured animal till the birds have picked through its back into the intestines, thus wounding it mortally and causing slow death.

This bird has been known to attack horses also, and owing to its evil propensities, the sheep farmers of the island are doing their utmost to exterminate it.

Doesn't take off his hat to King Edward.

There is just one English noble who don't have to take his hat off to King Edward. This is Baron Forester, whose ancestors in the time of King Henry VIII. were granted this special privilege because of some service he performed for the crown. This was a noticeable feature of the King's coronation, but Lord Forester, after wearing his hat for a few moments just to confirm this peculiar privilege of his family, took his hat off like the remainder of the crowd of English, Scotish and Irish noblemen.

KATIE'S HALLOWE'EN.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

Little Katie Donivan lived with an old aunt, a lady who had long ago forgotten that she had ever been under sixty years of age, and therefore was not the right sort of person to rear a child. But Katie, being an orphan, had no choice in the matter of a home and guardian and was very grateful to her stern old aunt for shelter, food, clothing and schooling. But sometimes she found her home life very dull indeed. If she sang and played about the house her Aunt Maria would call out to her: "Children should be seen; not heard!" And if Katie begged to be permitted to go skating or coasting—or to participate in any of the childish sports of her school associates—the prim old aunt would shake her head emphatically, saying: "It is a wicked waste of time to play. When you have finished your school tasks and household duties you should sew and mend, or read some helpful book."

And so it was that the time not spent in the school room was very tedious to Katie, whose only companion was her Aunt Maria. Occasionally her little girl friends were allowed to make formal calls upon her, but during such calls aunt Marin sat in the parlor and helped her little niece to entertain the company. And Aunt Maria's way of entertaining children was to tell them how much better and smarter children used to be than now; to tell of her own straight-laced youth and her superiority over the children of the present generation.

The day before Hallowe'en Katie's comrades at school planned upon what they called "a lark" for the following evening after supper, and as usual Katie was invited to be one of the gay party.

"Well, you know how Aunt Maria is about such things," said Katie. "But maybe—if you'll go home with me and ask her to let me join you she'll relent a bit and consent, being as it's Hallowe'en."

That evening Katie's two most intimate friends, Lucy and Grace, accompanied her home and very solicitously asked Aunt Maria's consent for Katie to make one of their Hallowe'en party on the following evening.

"Hallowe'en party!" And Aunt Maria threw up hands and eyebrows in consternation. "Not if I know myself," she exclaimed. "Why, it's nothing but roughness and rudeness, this going about playing pranks with people's property. No indeed, Katharine doesn't go a step out of this house after supper—if I know it. She's being brought up as girls should be brought up, in a quiet, stay-at-home and mind-your-own-business manner. No tom-boying for a girl under my roof. I can promise you."

And so the Hallowe'en matter was settled so far as Katie was concerned. And the little girl's heart was heavy in consequence. All that evening she found her mind wandering from her books while engaged in getting tomorrow's lessons. She was continually thinking of what the world would be like if all women were like Aunt Maria. The mothers of her little friends were so different. Why, there was Grace's mama, as jolly as any of the children, playing games with her little daughter and her young friends. And how much interest she always took in Grace's parties and childish pleasures, too. And Lucy's mama was the same way. She would lay aside her work any time to tell a story to an assembled group of little folks; and it was not unusual to see her out coasting with Lucy and Lucy's friends of an evening, not only keeping close watch that no one was hurt in the sport, but enjoying the fun as keenly as any of the younger ones.

And thus thinking Katie heaved a deep sigh, a sigh so deep that her aunt, sitting at the opposite side of the table, overheard it and looked up from her sewing.

"Are you sick, Katherine, that you make that horrible noise?" she asked, sarcastically.

"No-o-o, Aunt Maria," answered Katie. "I was just feeling a little sorry. That's all."

"Sorry about what?" asked Aunt Maria, looking shocked at her niece's daring to hint that she could possibly have anything to be sorry about while under her roof.

"Oh, sorry that I can't go with the girls and boys tomorrow evening to celebrate Hallowe'en. You know I'm only twelve years old, Aunt, and staying at home all the time gets a bit tiresome."

"You are an ungrateful girl," said Aunt Maria sharply. "I'm bringing you up just as strictly as I know how. Why, I'm even more strict with you in some things than my own mother was with me when I was a girl. You should appreciate such bringing up, Katharine." Then the offended old lady arose, put away her sewing for the night and excused Katharine from the sitting room. As she said good night to the little orphan—with whom she was trying to be just in her old-fashioned way—there was a knocking at the front hall door.

"Now, who can that be?" asked Aunt Maria. "It's eight o'clock, and no hour for callers. In half an hour every one should be in bed and the lights out."

She went to the door and there found old Dr. Jones. He was Grace's grandfather, and knew Katie and Katie's Aunt Maria well. In fact, when he and Aunt Maria were young they had been sweethearts, but a little misunderstanding had caused them to drift apart. And so Aunt Maria had remained single all her life, never having found any other young man who could take the place in her esteem (Aunt Maria never thought of love) that young Billy Jones had held there.

And even after Billy Jones had become a full-fledged young doctor of medicine, and married pretty Gracie Turner, he and Aunt Maria remained good friends. And now that the doctor was a grandfather, and Aunt Maria old enough to be a grandmother, their friendship was a deep one, Aunt Maria often going to the doctor for advice in matters of business.

"Why, Dr. Jones! What on earth are you here for at this time of night?" asked Aunt Maria, holding the door open, but not inviting her visitor in. "I hope there's nothing the matter with any of your folks."

"No, no, Maria," answered the doctor. "But there's something the matter with YOUR folks—I think. May I come in and chat a bit? It wants half an hour till bed time."

"Certainly, come right in," said Aunt Maria, her tone cordial, but her manner reluctant. She did not approve of late hours, even for visitors.

The good old doctor entered the sitting room and took his chair beside the comfortable grate fire. "Has Katie gone to bed so early?" he asked, looking about for the little girl.

"Just gone, sir," said Aunt Maria. "I'm raising Katharine by clock work, you know. No staying up after a certain hour at night and no lying abed after a certain hour in the morning. I believe in regularity." And Aunt Maria looked at the clock with a meaning glance. "Well, friend Maria," said the doctor, "since it is getting on close to your bed time I guess I'd better be making my visit short. But the truth is, Maria, I came over here tonight to talk over old times—when you and I were young. Do you remember the time we all went to the country in the big bob sled—and got tumbled out in the snow?"

"Oh, I guess I do," said Aunt Maria, laughing heartily as she recalled a chapter of her girlhood. "Yes, yes. But how long ago that all was! Why, I'd almost forgotten it,—really would never have thought of it again hadn't you refreshed my memory. Well, we were a gay company that night, weren't we?"

Then old Doctor Jones and Aunt Maria recalled many happy incidents of their youth, husking bees, harvest-home festivals, county fairs, wedding festivities and other occasions of gaity when youth lets loose its spirit. And so they sat and talked and laughed till suddenly Aunt Maria heard the clock strike. Looking up in surprise she almost gasped. Then, with chiding in her voice she turned to her jolly visitor:

"Dr. Jones, do you see that it is ten o'clock? Mercy me, I never heard it when it struck nine! Where were my wits, anyway?"

"Back in the happy past, Maria," smiled the good doctor. "We were young again for an hour and a half tonight, and now that we are old again let us not forget that others are young as we were once, and that youth has its own requirements. And while I think of it, Maria, I came over expressly to ask you to reconsider your decision in regard to little Katie's making one of the Hallowe'en party tomorrow night. My little Gracie has told me that you refused to grant your consent to her going. But since you have just had a peep into the folded pages of your own past, enjoyed once more the sweet springtime of life, and its innocent gaity, don't bar those precious memories from your mind. Stay young in heart and help the young in years to be happy. What do you say to Katie's going with the party tomorrow evening? They are planning on a gay time with a supper at our house after they have torn the town up." And the good doctor laughed merrily, his blue eyes twinkling as he rose to take his departure.

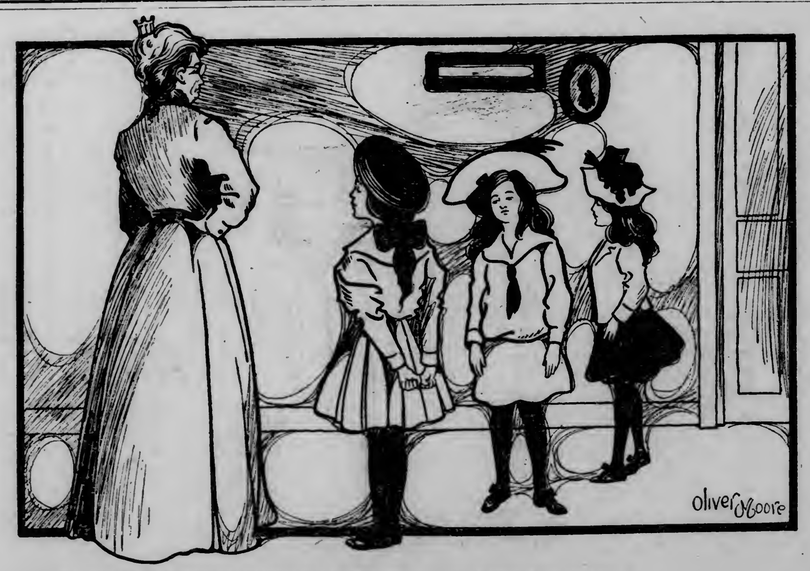

Aunt Maria's face flushed a bit. She felt for the first time that perhaps she had been a little too strict in her methods regarding the rearing of Katie. "Well," she said, "I guess she may go. The only thing, Doctor, is this; when we—you and I were young—we never had these rough Hallowe'en parties. We were more decorous in our conduct."

"You have surely forgotten again that bob-sled ride," reminded the doctor. "And the barn dance we had out at old Tom Atkins' farm, when we liked to have wrecked the barn and the house as well with out merrymaking. But you were the young one then, Maria, and now it is Katie. Do you see the difference?"

"I see, I see," admitted Aunt Maria. "And what's more, Doctor, I'll try to keep my girlhood days closer to the surface of my thoughts in future, especially when Katie is in mind. So now good night. And say to Grace that she may count Katharine in on the Hallowe'en doings. It may not be just the PROPER thing, but we can't always be right. The best of us will make mistakes sometimes."

"You are correcting your gravest mistake tonight," declared the good doctor, and shaking his hostess' hand he bowed good night and went down the street whistling like a boy, he was so happy to have accomplished his purpose.

"Yes, it's good to be young," sighed Aunt Maria. "But mercy on us! I had most forget that I was ever a girl. Well, Katharine may thank the doctor if she has a gay time tomorrow evening. But all the same I don't approve of such frivolity, even though I was as silly when young. But I have given my word, and I'll stand by it. Katharine may go with the young folks whenever she wishes to. I'll stand in her way no longer, for after all, I'm a real OLD MAID, and don't really know so much about rearing children as I ought to."

"No, indeed, Katharine doesn't go a step out of this house after supper."

Little Snip.

Dear little Snip, a tiny young pup,
Plays in the yard through the day;
But when the night falls and stars come out
He sleeps in his kennel on hay.

He is a dear doggie, as every one says,
And of tricks he knows not a few;
He will stand very straight when begging a bite,
And as thanks he will shake hands with you.

He will jump through a hoop and toss up a ball,
He will carry a cane anywhere;
Indeed, little Snip's a mighty fine dog,
As fine as you'll find anywhere.

DULUTH PEOPLE TAKE ACTION OF BANKS IN A GOOD NATURED MANNER

Joking References to 'Clearing House Checks' Are Heard.

H. M. Peyton Says the Flurry is Not a Serious One.

A. L. Ordean Says Banks Are Simply Protecting Local People.

Joking references to "clearing house checks" and "needing the money" were heard on all sides in Duluth today, and they denoted the spirit in which Duluth people took the action of the banks in refusing to be milled of their ready cash for the benefit of Eastern institutions.

A conference of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth bankers was held yesterday at Minneapolis to adopt some measures for self-protection, and it was decided to pay out no money on checks, certificates of deposit or drafts, except for small sums. The plan went into effect this morning.

Many of the large eastern banks have already taken this step, and if the Northwestern banks had not followed suit it would mean that they would be drained of every dollar of their ready cash in forty-eight hours.

Small Checks Honored.

Persons requiring money for personal needs will be accommodated and their checks honored as usual with the cash, but large sums will be paid by certified checks payable through the clearing house. The savings banks will also require the sixty and ninety-days' notice to which they are entitled by law.

"I haven't ten cents, but I can give you a clearing house check," a citizen would say to his cigar dealer, and the restaurant men were approached with numerous facetious requests for credit or the cashing of checks for small amounts.

On all sides the business men seemed to recognize the wisdom of the course taken by the bankers of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth, and they take the situation in a very good humored way.

The action of the board of trade in suspending operation was the most serious feature to the local situation today. It means the tying up of grain shipments temporarily, but the condition is believed to be but temporary.

Much Better Feeling.

The big rally in the price of coppers gave a much better feeling along the street. North Butte, that reliable barometer of market conditions, rallied several points, and the brokers were marking up advances of a full point at a time in many of the New York stocks.

On the whole the feeling was most optimistic in the city and everybody looked for an early recall of the order of the banks.

Mr. Peyton's Views.

Hamilton M. Peyton, president of the American Exchange bank, when asked regarding the situation, as applying to Duluth depositors and general business interests, expressed the firm conviction that there was nothing in the situation of an alarming nature.

"It is purely a matter of protection for the depositors," said Mr. Peyton. "We have a large reserve fund that is not tied up in any way. We are simply following the lead of Chicago, St. Louis, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Milwaukee and other cities. The decision to refuse to permit the cash withdrawals is only a measure that is taken in the interests of the depositors. I have been with the bank since it was organized, and I will say that never has it been in better financial condition. There is not a weak spot anywhere. The decision of the banks is simply an expedient to allow business to adapt itself to the new conditions. I do not anticipate that the present condition is anything but a mere flurry. There is absolutely nothing in the financial conditions to cause any worry, nor need depositors have the least apprehension as to the course adopted for the present by the banks."

Mr. Ordean's Views.

METHODS OF PRECAUTION

Taken by Many Banks to Prevent Withdrawal of Money.

Certificates and Checks Are Issued Instead of Cash.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—The banks of this city are today largely upon a checking basis. They have taken the step of refusing to pay out large amounts of currency, and will not return to the former manner of doing business until the financial condition in the East improves. In all banks belonging to the Clearing House association, or affiliated with it, depositors seeking today to withdraw money were given checks of the bank itself, instead of the actual cash. The depositors are allowed to draw the full amount of their balances, but they were compelled to accept the bank's checks instead of currency.

The rule requiring savings bank depositors to give thirty days' notice before drawing out less than $100, and sixty days' notice before drawing out more than $100, was also put in force.

The local banks declare that they were compelled to adopt these rules, because of the action taken by the banks in the East, which would soon have drained this city of its cash resources.

Boston, Oct. 28.—The Boston Clearing House association today decided to issue clearing house loan certificates bearing interest at 7.3 per cent. The high rate of interest is for the purpose of retiring the certificates at the earliest possible date. The New York rate is 6 per cent.

The loan committee of the clearing house will pass upon collateral and approve the issue of the certificates at 75 per cent of the market value of the securities.

Leading bank officials declared that the adoption of the clearing house certificates for the settlement of bank balances was solely as a precaution against the withdrawal of money by persons desiring to hoard it, or to take advantage of high currency rates in other cities.

Kansas City, Oct. 28.—There was no appearance of a run on any of the banking institutions here when they opened for business today, and the leading bankers reiterated that they had complete confidence in the situation.

The clearing house yesterday decided to issue certificates and that the action would be put into effect today. This applies to thirty local banks and trust companies. This rule not to pay over the counter cash in excess of $100 a day, or $200 a week to any one customer on open account, was put into force also, and currency shipments to the country correspondents were stopped temporarily. Trust companies and savings banks likewise enforced the time rule, agreeing to pay out not to exceed $20 a week.

Similar action was taken by the banks at Kansas City, Kan., and Rosedale and Argentine, Kan., suburbs, and at none of these places was there any excitement.

PAVILION AT BUTTE BURNS.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 28.—The immense pavilion at Columbia Gardens, Butte's chief pleasure grounds, the property of Former Senator Clark, burned yesterday. The building contained a large dancing floor, cafe and several valuable collections. Loss, $50,000.

APPOINT STATE LIBRARIAN.

Bismarck, N. D., Oct. 28.—The state library commission has appointed Miss Vena K. Miller of Madison, Wis., state librarian at a salary of $1,500. She will assume her duties on Nov. 1. For the last two years she has been state library visitor for Wisconsin.

OLD MINER IS TO STUDY LAW

He Expects to Practice His Profession in Butte.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 28.—Mitchell B. Haggerty, miner, and an officer of the Western Miners' Federation, has entered the law school of Yale university to fit himself for admittance to the bar of Montana. He expects to practice in Butte.

Haggerty is about 50 years old, and the father of two boys. Mrs. Haggerty is here with him, and she, too, will study at Yale, having chosen sociology and elocution.

Haggerty is a man of strong personality. Of average height, he is broad shouldered, but of rather spare frame. His smooth shaven features are inclined to be sharp, but his expression is frank and friendly.

At the law school Haggerty refused to say anything about himself or Mrs. Haggerty, save that they hoped to study for further usefulness in Montana.

ROYALTY AT PARIS

King and Queen of Spain Spend a Few Hours at Capital.

Met at Station by President Fallieres and Others.

Paris, Oct. 28.—King Alfonso, Queen Vivtoria, their son, prince of the Asturias, and their suites, passed a few hours in Paris today while on their way to England. Although traveling incognito as the duke and duchess of Covadonga, the king and queen were recognized with royal honors, the public building displaying the Spanish as well as the French colors.

President Fallieres, Premier Clemenceau, Foreign Minister Pichon, the Infanta Isabella, aunt of King Alfonso, King George of Greece, and the members of the Spanish embassy, welcomed them at the railroad station. The young prince was sleeping soundly in the arms of the countess, his head governess, and did not wake up while the exchanges of speeches of welcome and thanks were being made. King Alfonso is popular in Paris, and the crowds of people lining the streets through which he passed, gave him a cordial reception. During the afternoon President Fallieres and King Alfonso exchanged official visits and the latter, this evening, will dine with the president at the Elysees palace, after which there will be an entertainment, including private theatricals. The royal party will leave Paris at midnight for Cherbourg, where they will embark tomorrow for England on board the British battleship Renown.

CASE IS HARD NUT TO CRACK

An Important Inheritance Tax Decison Long Held Up on Appeal.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 28.—The Tozer inheritance tax case is beginning to be the subject of speculation by lawyers.

This case was heard by the state supreme court early in the April term, but no decision has yet been rendered. It is the only case left over from the April calendar for decision, and a month is now gone of the new term.

This case does not involve the constitutionality of the inheritance tax law, which has been affirmed already, but it will decide whether the tax may be avoided by the fiction of a corporation. David Trozer, the millionaire Stillwater lumberman, some time before his death organized the David Tozer company, to which he transferred all his property and gave the stock in this company to his children, but had a lease executed by which he continued in control until his death, which terminated the lease, of course.

It is claimed by the state that there was really no transfer of property and that it must all pay the inheritance tax. The company was organized before the 1905 inheritance tax law was passed, but after the passage of one of the previous laws, which was afterward knocked out by the courts. So it is claimed that the transfer and lease were solely for the purpose of evading the inheritance tax. Evidently the supreme court has found the case a hard nut to crack.

MONEY GAVE OUT

When She Was in Minneapolis En Route to Duluth.

Minneapolis, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Jennie Hanson, who arrived in Minneapolis with her four children, Thursday, vowed vengeance on the head of the Associated Charities, when she could not get transportation to Duluth without an investigation.

She came from Peoria, Ill., and was going to fill a position as housekeeper on a farm near Duluth. When she reached Minneapolis, her money gave out, and she was taken home by people who found her in the Union station, Thursday night.

E. T. Lies offered to write to her home and corroborate her story, but she said she would expose the Associated Charities if they wouldn't give her transportation without writing. She finally left the office, saying, "Oh, well, when my trunk gets here tonight, I'll have plenty of money, anyway."

MOTHER IS UNNATURAL

Makes Daughter Sleep in Basement With the Dog.

Treats All Her Other Children in a Kindly Manner.

New York, Oct. 28.—The case of Mrs. Annie Mohr of Corona, R. I., charged with compelling her 7-year-old daughter to sleep in the basement with a mongrel house dog, and with otherwise ill-treating the child, is attracting attention to the unnatural treatment by a mother of her own child. Her family is in comfortable circumstances and there are two other children, both of whom are well kept and well clothed. Martha, the abused child, is the second child of the three in the family. Both the elder and younger sisters, who were in court when the mother was arraigned, looked happy and smiling.

Peter Mohr, the father, in testifying, said his wife took a strange and unaccountable dislike to Martha, and all efforts to overcome it were unavailing. They finally gave the child out for adoption, but its foster mother soon died, and they were compelled to take Martha back home again.

No amount of persuasion could induce Mrs. Mohr to accept the little one as her own, and since then the child has simply lived like an outcast. When she appeared in court her body was covered with bruises, the marks of repeated beatings, while she cowered in fear every time an unexpected move was made. In noticeable contrast to her two sisters, Martha's clothing was coarse and ragged.

The case is still pending in court, but meantime a children's society is caring for Martha.

NEW FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Will be Given to Abyssinia by King Menelik.

Adis-Abeba, Abyssinia, Oct. 28.—King Menelik has taken an important step in the direction of giving Abyssinia a constitutional form of government, in issuing a decree today, providing for the formation of a government on European lines. Simultaneously with the publication of the decree, his majesty announced the appointment of five ministers, who will preside respectively over the departments of foreign affairs, justice, finance, commerce and war.

WINS THIRD TIME.

Plaintiff in Big Ashland Damage Suit Gets Large Verdict.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—After a deliberation of fourteen hours, the jury in the case of August Jazdewski vs. Barker & Stewart Lumber company, brought in a verdict for $7,500 in favor of the plaintiff. It it said that several of the jurymen voted for a verdict as low as $4,000, while others voted as high as $15,000, and it took some time to get together. In his first trial, Jazdewski was non-suited. The supreme court sent the case back, and a jury gave him $5,000. The supreme court sent the case back on a technicality, and this time he gets what is considered a fair verdict, $7,500.

MORRIS AT WHITE HOUSE.

Duluth Judge Stops at Washington on His Way Home.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Judge Page Morris of Duluth left Washington with Mrs. Morris for New York, going from there home. He has been East since early October as a delegate to the Episcopal convention at Richmond, and stopped off in Washington for a few days to renew old acquaintances.

He paid his respects to President Roosevelt on Saturday.

SPANIARDS FOR OXEN

Thousands Compelled to Drag Plows in the Philippines.

Held by Tagalos and Are Treated in a Cruel Manner.

Madrid, Oct. 28.—A Spaniard named Bulguera, a recent arrival from Manila, has caused some excitement here by a story to the effect that there are more than 4,000 Spanish prisoners in Bulacan province, Island of San Juan del Monte. They are held by Tagalos, who compel them to drag their ploughs. They are whipped and treated like beasts of burden, and the only reward they get is a scanty ration of green corn.

Bulguera has related his story to a correspondent of El Pueblo, and he says that in June last ninety Spanish prisoners tried to escape by swimming. Practically all were drowned, he says. He succeeded in landing on the opposite bank and was subsequently able to reach Manila. Then he went to the American authorities, who provided him with passage for Cadiz. He reached that port in September, but was only able to reach his native town a few days since, where he had long been given up for dead.

EATEN NO FOOD FOR FOUR YEARS

Friends of Oliver Perry Want Him Released From Prison.

New York, Oct. 28.—Efforts which are being made by a few of his steadfast friends to have the sentence of Oliver Curtiss Perry commuted, have revealed the fact that for four years the daring criminal who, in 1892 startled the entire country with the boldness of his train robbing exploits, has not eaten a particle of food, or worn a stitch of outer clothing except a toga.

Since Nov. 19, 1903, he has received nourishment through a tube, not because it is necessary, but simply because he was determined to die rather than eat regular prison fare. Perry declares he will never take a bite of food so long as he is in Dannemora hospital.

Perry claims that he is not insane, and that he will prove it by eating again and wearing clothing if given his freedom. He says he wants to go to some quiet spot and lead a respectable life for the remainder of his days. The man is blind, having himself ruined his eyes in the hope that he would bring his relatives, who deserted him years ago, to his aid.

BISHOP OF LONDON

Tells His Parishioners of Lessons He Learned While in America.

London, Oct. 28.—The bishop of London, in his sermon Sunday at the Church of the Holy Trinity, said there were several lessons he had brought back from America.

"There is far greater generosity, love and trust between different bodies of Christians and between schools of thought in the same church in America than here in England," said Dr. Ingram.

"It was like going into another atmosphere to pass from the wrangles of Great Britain into an atmosphere where they are unknown.

"It was a great lesson to be present at the general convention of the churches in the United States, highly instructive to see a millionaire from Wall street sitting side by side with a workingman, both representing New York. It was true democracy. There are no parlor cars in the American church."

DIES OF INJURIES.

Newport, Ark., Oct. 28.—Ed Robinet of Diaz, the first of four victims of a negro highwayman operating around Newport Saturday, died of his injuries yesterday. Robinet was shot through the lungs and fell from his horse. The negro then took his money, watch and horse, and left him lying in the road. The negro afterward held up Ed Pegg, a negro, taking $50 and a bottle of whisky.

THE UNITED STATES BUYS ALL THE GOLD OFFERED IN LONDON; ABOUT $5,000,000

SARAH TRUAX,
Well Known Actress, Who Prefers the Role of Wife to That of Histrionic Star and Will Marry Lawyer Charles Albert of Minneapolis and Retire From the Stage. Miss Truax Was First Married to Guy Bates Post, From Whom She Was Divorced Last April.

Price Was $19.50, a Little Higher Than Last Quotation.

Both Paris and London Were Bidders Against Americans.

New York Financiers Optimistic Over the Present Situation.

London, Oct. 28.—The United States secured all the bar gold offered today in the market, totalling nearly $5,000,000. The price paid was $19.50. This is 3½ cents higher than previous quotations, indicating the keenness of the competition. Both Paris and London bid against the United States.

New York, Oct. 28.—Fortified by the remedial plans adopted Saturday for the protection of New York's supply of currency, financiers began the new business week in a hopeful frame of mind. They were especially encouraged by the precautionary measures taken in other cities, including the issuance of clearing house certificates at various other centers besides New York, believing that these measures will be effective throughout the nation at large in keeping necessary supplies of cash within the control of the banks for the purpose of carrying on the business of the country. The greatest danger throughout has been the tendency of small depositors to withdraw their funds from the banks and to place them in safe deposit vaults, where they were withdrawn absolutely from circulation in the channels of trade, where they are so badly needed.

The importation of gold is expected to assume large proportions and will aid greatly in providing funds for the banks. Up to date the engagements for import amount to $5,000,000 by the National City bank, $2,000,000 by the Chase National bank and $1,500,000 by Heidelbach, Ickleheimer & Co. Gold to the amount of $5,000,000 probably will be offered in the open market in London today, and it is hoped that the United States will secure the larger proportion of the amount.

American securities in London showed sharp advances at 1 p. m. today. Amalgamated Copper advanced 1½, Atchison 1⅞, Union Pacific 1¾, and other shares were fractionally higher.

Lines of depositors remained in front of the doors of the Lincoln Trust company and the Trust Company of America, despite the heavy rain which fell throughout the night. The all-night line at the Lincoln Trust company numbered eighty persons and forty-five were waiting their turn at the Trust Company of America.

Three persons remained in line all night in front of the Riverside bank, a small state institution at Eighth avenue and Fifty-seventh street. At 9 o'clock the line in front of this bank numbered thirty-five persons.

One of the most important questions to be decided by the clearing house today was whether or not to admit the trust companies to membership in the clearing house and to a share in the advantages to be derived from the privilege of issuing clearing house certificates. The only opposition known to have been made to this plan was based on the fact that the trust companies are required by law to maintain a reserve of only 15 per cent of their deposits, while the national banks are required to hold a reserve of 25 per cent. Some of the bankers contend that this disparity in legal reserve requirements would give the trust companies an advantage over the banks if they were admitted to the clearing house and given the full support of the banks.

Lazard Freres engaged $1,500,000 in gold for import from London today. This makes $11,000,000 in gold engaged for importation since last Friday.

The Trust Company of America resumed payment to depositors as usual at 10 o'clock today. There were fifty depositors in line.

The Lincoln Trust company opened for business this morning, as usual. The line of waiting depositors was much smaller than at the opening hour of Saturday.

At the Northern bank, a state institution, at 693 Broadway, there were sixty persons in line at the opening hour.

The loan committee of the clearing house co-operated today with the members of the clearing house in the issuance of the clearing house certificates, as they were required.

Debit balance reported by the banks at the clearing house today were small, and the collateral offered in pledge of certificates was generally acceptable.

Lazard Freres subsequently increased their engagement of gold made today to $2,000,000. This makes the total $11,500,000 engaged for importation since the gold import movement began last week.

STATE OF OKLAHOMA

Will be Formally Admitted to the Union on Saturday.

Constitution Has Arrived and Will be Signed by President.

Washington, Oct. 28.—President Roosevelt will issue the proclamation admitting the new state of Oklahoma on Saturday, Nov. 16, next. The constitution was formally placed in his hands by Governor Frantz and a large delegation from Oklahoma at 11 o'clock this morning.

The constitution is typewritten on parchment and does not contain the election ordinances. The president will go over the instrument with the attorney general carefully. While not enthusiastic over the terms of the document President Roosevelt has made it known that he regards it as within the terms of the enabling act and that he has no further discretion and will sign the constitution.

HAS $6,000,000 BRAIN.

Moritz Rosenthal, the Oil Trust's $1,000 Per Day Lawyer.

New York, Oct. 28.—It was learned today that Moritz Rosenthal, the Standard Oil's $1,000-a-day lawyer, is originator of the unique defense to be made by the $160,000,000-corporation in the government suit to dissolve it.

It was his conception of the defense that caused the Standard to employ him at the unprecendented salary, which began last spring.

Estimating Rosenthal's salary to represent a return of 6 per cent in property value, his friends here figure that the actual market value of his brain exceeds $6,000,000.

Rosenthal's friends say he is a "thinking machine," yet there is little in his clean cut appearance to suggest heavy mental strain. His face is unmarked by a wrinkle.

Rosenthal evidently believes his body is the strong box in which his treasure is stored.

He will not talk of himself except in connection with his strength and health, and he preaches fresh air, exercise and sleep to any one who will listen.

"I stay in bed eight hours every night," he said, "whether I am able to sleep or not; I always stay the full time.

"I go through physical exercise for fifteen minutes when I get up and then take a cold plunge."

OFFERS LARGE AWARD

For Villian Who Threw Railroad Switch and Derailed Train.

Moorhead, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Agent Gust Johnson of the Great Northern authorizes the announcement that the company will pay a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who threw a switch which caused the derailment of the Oriental Limited train in this city Wednesday evening.

THE UNIVERSALISTS.

Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—Strides made by the church in the work of advancing religion among the young were recounted at today's session of the general convention of Universalists, which is in session in this city. A devotional service opened the day's proceedings and was conducted by Thomas Stratton of Vermont. The convention will adjourn Wednesday.

CONFIDENCE IN LONDON.

American Stocks Open at Higher Prices With Good Transactions.

London, Oct. 28.—The confidence felt here in the general soundness of the financial situation in the United States was further evidenced at the opening of the stock exchange this morning, when American Rails were pushed up 2 to 3 points over parity, a fair amount of business being transacted. The certainty of a drain of gold from here to New York, however, affected consols and other gilt-edged securities. Discounts remained firm, and the fears of dear money prompted the selling of

BANKERS AND MERCHANTS ALL AGREE THAT FINANCIAL CRISIS HAS PASSED

New York, Oct. 28.—Bankers and merchants, in brief statements and interviews made public today, agree that the financial crisis has passed, and all look for constant improvement from now on.

William E. Nash, president of the Corn Exchange bank, who, as acting chairman of the clearing house committee, was closely in touch with the situation last week, said: "We should recover rapidly from the present trouble, and things in banking matters will go on a stronger basis than ever before. I feel optimistic and happy, in view of the present aspect of the crisis, which I have felt for a long time was bound to come. We are passing from an era of bad banking to one of good banking."

Andrew Mills of the Dry Dock Savings bank, dean of the corps of saving bank presidents of the city, said: "There can be no doubt that the financial hysteria through which we have just passed will be of lasting benefit, not only to this city, but the country at large. Confidence is being rapidly restored, and I know it is generally conceded that the banking institutions of New York are perfectly sound."

A. Barton Hepburn, president of the Chase National bank, said: "The use of clearing house certificates cannot be avoided in any exigencies like the present, until congress gives us some wholesome legislation on the currency question. With the clearing houses of all commercial centers issuing clearing house certificates, it would seem to provide a sufficient object lesson to induce reform in the currency laws in the next session of congress."

Gustav H. Schwab, an exporter, said: "In my opinion we have seen the worst of the crisis. I look forward to a speedy readjustment, in which it will be found that everything is all right."

John Arbuckle, coffee and sugar merchant, said: "It seems to me that business generally is so good that the situation in the financial field must improve. From what I have seen and heard of existing conditions, I have formed the impression that instead of saying 'The worst is yet to come,' as is so frequently said when serious conditions arise, we should all say, 'The worst is all over, and normal conditions will soon be resumed.'"

Robert Houget, silk merchant and banker, said: "Such a disturbance as the financial world has just passed through is like a cyclone. It does all its damage in a hurry. I think the financial cyclone has spent its force. From this time I look for a great improvement."

Cornelius N. Bliss, wholesale dry goods merchant, said: "There is little doubt that the serious danger is over."

James E. Nichols of Austin, Nichols & Co., wholesale grocers, said: "I believe the financial situation is well in hand now, and the action of the clearing house and banks will establish credit as soon as the hysterics of the public has diminished. Mercantile business everywhere in the country is excellent."

FORTUNES DEMANDED IN PERSONAL INJURY CASES

Several important personal injury cases were filed this afternoon for hearing during the November term of the district court.

In the case of Albert Wiith vs. the Minnesota Land & Construction company, the complainant says that while working on the defendant's track, north of Pelican lake Feb. 10, 1907, he lost his left eye and sustained severe injuries to his left arm and hand by the explosion of dynamite, which he was preparing for blasting. He asks for $30,338, claiming that he was unused to the handling of explosives.

Erick Blispa asks for $10,465 damages from the Oliver Iron Mining company, claiming that his legs were crushed by the falling of an ore car while he was employed in the Winnifred mine, owned by the defendant. The injury occurred April 1, 1907.

William Pepper claims that while working in the Munro Tenner mine, owned by the Oliver company, he fell into a pit, breaking two ribs and injuring his shoulder. He asks for damages to the amount of $3,052.70.

THIRD WARD DEMOCRATS

There will be a meeting of Democrats of the Third ward at Ringsrud's Wall Paper Store, No. 110 First avenue west, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 29, at 8 p. m., for the purpose of choosing a candidate for alderman, and other important business. A large gathering is desired, the more the merrier.

By order Third Ward Democratic Committee.

MINNESOTA TO LEAD ALL STATES

In Number of Marine Recruits for Month of October.

One recruit, Ernest Hicks of New York City, was secured by the marine recruiting officers this morning, making in all over seventy men who have been secured for this branch of Uncle Sam's service at Duluth this month. The officers hope to give Minnesota the biggest number of any district in the country this month.

According to a statement of the recruiting of the whole country for the month of September, just received by Sergeant Hutchins at the local office, only two states, New York and Illinois, were ahead of Minnesota during last month. A total number of 46 men were secured in Illinois, 42 in New York and 39 in Minnesota. The total for the country was given at 420.

The army and navy both had several applicants awaiting examination today, but none of them had been sworn in.

CONFIDENCE RETURNING

Leading Copper Stocks Have Good Rally During the Day.

Bulge is Largely Due to Activity in the Metal.

Confidence in good measure returned to the copper stock market today, and the leading issues had a good bulge over Saturday, closing at better prices.

In Boston, the feeling about the financial situation was very optimistic, and this, with the great improvement in the metal market, kept the market bowling along throughout the session, with prices going up most of the time.

Before the close, prices fell off from the high point of the day, but at the end of the session they showed a good margin over the closing prices on Saturday.

Although quiet and neglected during the early part of last week, copper metal is very active at the present time, and the strength in the metal was in a large measure responsible for the advances in the stocks.

Advances of from ¾ cent to 1 cent in both the bid and asked prices of all grades of copper metal were reported. Europe is buying a great amount of copper. The sales of 60,000,000 pounds of copper in London, Saturday, by the Amalgamated company, was reported, and the sale of 50,000 pounds of Lake Copper, at 14 cents a pound, was also reported. This last-named grade of copper was selling at 12⅞ cents a pound Saturday.

The call money rate in New York ranged from 12 per cent to 50 per cent during the day.

North Butte, Amalgamated and several of the other leading copper issues advanced 3, 4 and 5 points over Saturday's close during the session. The close was higher than Saturday.

North Butte opened a point and a qaurter higher at $37, which was the low price of the day for the stock. With generous buying, the price bulged to $39.75. The close was $38.50 bid and $39 asked.

Amalgamated was also actively traded in and had a good tone, the low price of the day being $50. The opening was $50.25 and the high price $51.12½. The closing price was $50.25 bid.

Greene-Cananea opened at $6.25, advanced to $7, declined to $6.75 and closed at $7 bid and $7.25 asked.

Butte Coalition opened at $12.50, bulged to $15.25 and closed at $14.50 bid and $14.75 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $95, advanced to $100, declined to $96.50 and closed at $96 bid and $97 asked. Anaconda opened at $31.75, went to $33.75 and closed at $32.50 bid.

Superior & Pittsburg had a healthy advance, going from $8.25 to $9.50 and closing at $9.25 bid and $9.50 asked.

The local banking situation had its effect on the local curb. Globe Consolidated sold at $4.62½, $5.12½ and $4.50 and closed at $4.25 bid and $4.50 asked. Denn-Arizona sold at $3.37½, advanced to $3.62½ and closed at $3.50 bid and $3.75 asked.

Carman sold at $2.25 and closed at $2.25 bid and $2.50 asked. Butte & Superior at $1.62½ and closed at $1.75 bid and $2 asked. Copper Queen of Idaho at $1 and closed at $1 bid and $1.06 asked and Cliff at $1.12½ and closed at $1.06 bid and $1.12½ asked.

Keweenaw was $4.75 bid and $5 asked, Hancock $5 bid and $5.50 asked, Nipissing $6.75 bid and $6 asked, Warren $3 bid and Calumet & Sonora $5 bid and $5.25 asked.

Black Mountain sold at $4.75 and $4.50 and closed at $4.50 bid and $4.75 asked.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial says: "There have been heavy sales of copper at 12½ cents for lake and 12⅛ to 12¼ cents for electrolytic. These are the market prices now prevailing. A very considerable portion of the buying has been for foreign account. The large amount of copper now being exported is not going to Europe for storage, but for delivery to consumers. Domestic manufacturers have been considerable buyers, also. The inquiry for copper is very active, and were the money market easier, it is probable that every pound of surplus copper could be sold at the prices named.

"I have confirmed the report that the United Metal Selling company has sold about 30,000,000 pounds of copper recently at a fraction above 12 cents per pound.

"The 12½-cent copper market is the result of necessity on the part of a few producers. These companies were obliged to sell as their working capital was all tied up in their accumulation of copper. This week's sales have relieved the strain. I do not believe the largest producers will continue sellers for long or to great amount at present prices. If only one or two of them refuse to sell there must be an early advance, probably to 14 or 15 cents. It is my advice to consumers to engage their copper as far ahead as possible at this level of prices."

What Would Our Country Be Without Decorative Art?

Imagine, if you can, an American city void of all decorative influences. The public buildings would cease to be a source of national pride and homes would be robbed of the cheery comfort and coziness so alluring to the tired soul.

We are decorators in the true sense of the broader interpretation of the word. It matters not whether it be a palatial mansion, a place of business or a cozy home. When it comes to the finishing touches, we can "Deliver the Goods."

We specialize in luxurious imitation leathers, velours, tekkos, frock papers, pressed designs, hand prints and other wall stuffs, both domestic and imported. Type cannot picture the soft delicate floral designs, rich two-tones, warm tints and beautiful pictorial effects. As to prices—they are really surprising as to their moderation.

THE POLICE COURT GRIST

Two Old Timers Given Stiff Sentences For Drunkenness.

Judge Cutting disposed of two old-timers in police court today, imposing a penalty of $20 and costs or thirty days in the case of Peter Sivini, charged with habitual drunkenness, and one of $15 and costs or fifteen days in that of William Wilson, arraigned upon a similar charge.

Wilson has been in police court several times before, and it is claimed has a bad record. He has a natural antipathy to work, and is said to have frequently accosted people on the streets for a loan. Lieut. Fiske informed the court that Wilson has a prison record, and has been an annoyance to the police for some time.

* * *

Oscar Bjork offered to carry a man's grip from the Union depot, acording to the report of the police officer making the arrest, and claimed that he lost it. The suspicion is that he disposed of the grip, and the police are investigating.

Bjork claimed that he was not drunk, and denied the allegations. His case will be heard later this afternoon.

* * *

William Quirk, hailing from Coleraine, came down to have his ear treated. He brought along $25, he says, but that amount had dwindled down to less than that number of cents this morning, when he awoke in the prisoner's quarters at the city jail.

Quirk drew the minimum fine and some good advice relative to seeking medical advice, rather than grog shops.

* * *

Mako Gurala and Steve Secovich took on some fighting whisky Saturday night, but the load was sufficient to prevent their doing each other any great bodily harm. As honors seemed about even, judging from their appearance, the court imposed a fine of $1 and costs in each case.

* * *

Oscar Londquist, a young man of but 22 years, pleaded guilty to being drunk yesterday. The boy could not explain how it happened, and marveled at the peculiar strength of "a few" beers, which could result in putting him out of commission so readily. He drew the minimum sentence.

* * *

John Lasbis, with his head wrapped in bandages, declared he was not drunk yesterday. He was arrested with another man on Garfield avenue, and the pair had considerable difficulty over a quantity of beer they had purchased the night before. His case will be heard later this afternoon.

* * *

Barney Armstrong, hailing from Michigan, declared that he was ordinarily a man of sobriety and peaceful propensities, but that he fell by the wayside Sunday. The court gave him one and costs and some wholesome advice.

Food Poisons

Men of affairs, women of society and children with active brains are too often sedentary in their habits, giving little time to exercise. To this evil is added that of high and irregular living—as a result, the stomach cannot stand the demands upon it. The abused and overtaxed stomach does not properly do the work of digestion, food taken in ferments and the poison permeates the whole system. The body loses in weight and becomes a prey for the attack of whatever disease it may encounter.

Did it ever occur to you how busy that stomach of your is? It only holds three pints, but in one year you force it to take in 2,400 pounds of material, digest it and prepare it for assimilation into the blood. No wonder it rebels when overworked. We crowd it with steaks and pastry, irritate its juices with spices and acids, and expect the stomach to do its work. It can't do it.

All over the inner layer of the stomach are glands which secrete the juices necessary to digestion. The entrance of food into the stomach is the signal for these glands to do their work. The more the food, and the more indigestible, the greater the demand upon them and upon the muscles of the wall adjoining.

Think of the tons of high-seasoned game, sweetmeats and appetizers crammed into this little four-ounce mill, and then wonder, if you will, why you are dizzy or nauseated or constipated. Don't blame your stomach or curse your fate that you should be born so unfortunate. Blame yourself and apply the remedy.

First, get a small package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, taking one after each meal and at bedtime. They are not a medicine, but a digestive. Your stomach is worn out and needs help, not medicine. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do the work that the stomach fails to do. There's enough power in one grain of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to digest 3,000 grains of ordinary food, so you needn't fear that anything you eat will remain in your stomach undigested.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will rout the poison because they remove the cause—food fermentation. They are nature's own cure for dyspepsia. The host of troubles dyspepsia is father of cannot be numbered, for a healthy stomach is the source of all health.

Seize your opportunity before worse conditions confront you. Send today for a free trial package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They will bring your stomach relief. F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

NO ACTION WAS TAKEN

Mass Meeting of Republicans Failed to Clear Situation.

Selection of Candidate Left to Committee of Forty.

It was a somewhat disappointed gathering of Republicans that left the city council chambers Saturday evening, after a short session, at which there was considerable eloquence and party spirit demonstrated, but at which the election of a candidate for the mayoralty race, the purpose of the meeting, was postponed.

Early in the meeting a resolution was read and adopted, calling for the appointment of a general committee of forty men, five from each ward, to be elected at ward meetings to be held Thursday. This committee will meet on Nov. 5, and name the candidate decided upon.

This places the naming of a candidate in the hands of forty men, who will make a thorough canvas of the situation meanwhile, and decide according to the general sentiment as they find it.

Were Not Satisfied.

Following the resolution, there was considerable dissatisfaction expressed by prominent members of the party present. H. B. Knudsen spoke, and expressed his dissatisfaction at the method of selecting a candidate. He was of the opinion that a candidate should be named at the meeting, with no further delay, so that the people might have an idea of who they were expected to support.

W. M. Thompson addressed the meeting, and was strongly opposed to the delay which such a method would result in. "This procrastinating is the rock on which we have always split," he remarked. He was of the opinion that the leaving of the selection of a mayoralty candidate to a committee of five was encroaching upon the rights of the people, and thought that it would be resented.

Mr. Thompson went into the subject of the qualifications of a candidate at length, and expressed himself as hopeful that a Republican could be elected anayor of Duluth, providing he had the qualifications, the individuality and a record back of him.

He paid Alderman Watson S. Moore a very high compliment at this point of his remarks by turning to him and remarking, "The strongest man the Republicans of this city could select as a candidate is Alderman Moore," and the applause which followed was evidence that a popular chord was struck in mentioning the alderman's name in connection with the mayoralty race.

Watson S. Moore Speaks.

Mr. Thompson stated that Alderman C. S. Wilson of the First ward would be his second choice for the nomination. Mr. Moore was called upon and made a brief but earnest talk. He stated that he could not consider the nomination for the reason that he believed a man who should have the responsibility of so high an office as mayor of a city like Duluth, should confine his entire time to the duties of the office. He would not be able to do this and for that reason could not consider being a candidate.

Alderman Moore spoke very earnestly of party duty and the importance of selecting the right kind of a candidate. "The Democrats get into office when the Republican party is tottering on its feet and has no stability. We must stand for a principle and when we do, with the right kind of a candidate, we can elect him," he remarked warmly.

Alderman Moore threw a hot shot in the direction of the present mayor by stating that with the right kind of a candidate the Republicans could drive him to the golf links for all time. He thought that Alderman Tessman, spoken of as a candidate, would be out of the running and thought Alderman Wilson was the man to defeat all comers in the race. At the mention of the name of Mr. Wilson, the applause was loud and repeated.

Clever Politician.

"The Republicans must nominate a good man for no other will win if Cullum decides to run. He will not run if you select a good man, but he will run if you put up a poor man. Dr. Cullum is one of the cleverest politicians that Duluth ever produced. He has given a fair administration, and though he has not been as heavy on law enforcement as I might desire, he has acted when forced to," remarked Alderman Moore.

W. E. Culkin was an earnest speaker at the meeting. He urged the party workers to rally to the standard of their party, and thought that the time was ripe for a glorious victory.

"We have a number of clean, conservative Republicans in this city, and we want one in the mayor's chair," he remarked. "We will have one there, too, if we get down to business and name the right kind of a candidate. We do not want any lukewarm campaign. We want work." He stated that the present administration was willing to do what sentiment prompted and was woefully lacking in principle.

C. S. Mitchell spoke briefly but earnestly, urging the party workers to feel an enthusiasm in the coming campaign. "Select your man and then stand by him. If he is elected, let him be mayor; not try to hold the office for him," he remarked.

L. A. Barnes spoke, and thought that the number of candidates was small, considering the amount of good timber in the party in Duluth.

C. B. Miller ventured the opinion that the next election will be a Republican victory, and stated that it all depended upon the man selected by the Republicans as their candidate.

Haven Is Silent.

W. E. Richardson, N. B. Morrison, Henry Markney, John G. Ross and others spoke briefly. Alderman Haven, who has been prominently mentioned as likely to be a candidate, was present, but declined to make any remarks. He stated after the meeting that he had nothing further to say at this time relative to becoming a candidate. He was of the opinion that it was for the people to decide as to their choice for the mayoralty race.

John G. Ross said that the meeting, so far as the primary object was concerned, had not been a success.

He thought that T. W. Hugo would be the logical candidate, and suggested that a secret ballot be taken to determine the sentiment of those present upon the possible candidates, but Chairman Hanks was of the opinion that this would be out of order, in view of the fact that a resolution had been passed providing for other means of determining public sentiment.

PLAN NEW PARK FOR LAKESIDE

Will Ask Government to Improve Fish Hatchery Grounds.

Business men of Duluth are planning to add another improvement to the Lakeside district by asking the government to make a park of the ground between the building and the street at the fish hatchery. The plan has been endorsed by Congressman J. Adam Bede, and it is expected that Senator Nelson will assist in the movement.

The land was donated by the Lakeside Land company for the hatchery, and considerable more land was given than there was actual need of for the buildings. The plans for the improvement make it necessary for an appropriation of $40,000, and this amount is about equal to that the government saved by securing the ground for nothing.

The plan involves the improvement of the banks of the river and also along the lake shore. There will be cement walks and there will be fancy seats and benches along these, and flower beds will be planted about the grounds.

Supt. S. P. Wires of the hatchery says that the building can be improved at a small expense in such a manner that it could be nearly doubled in capacity. The capacity at present is 14,000,000 fry. The operating expenses would not be increased.

ACCUSED OF PEONAGE.

Millionaire Planter is Bound Over for Examination in Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 28. — O. B. Crittendon, a millionaire, was arraigned before a United States commissioner on a charge of peonage Saturday and bound over for preliminary examination.

His plantation employs 1,000 Italians and Spaniards, and Crittendon is accused of holding the former in bondage.

The evidence on which the arrest was made was gathered by Mrs. Mary Grace Quackenbush, a New York woman lawyer in the United States justice department.

JUMPS INTO THE HARBOR

Minneapolis Man Throws Himself From N. P. Dock.

Apparently Regrets His Action When It is Too Late.

The belief that he was being pursued by some strange enemy, caused D. A. West of Minneapolis to commit suicide yesterday afternoon, by throwing himself into the harbor from the edge of the Northern Pacific dock, No. 4, at the foot of Sixth avenue west.

West appeared at police headquarters Saturday evening and asked for lodging. He appeared to be in a nervous condition, and was suffering from the hallucination that some person was pursuing him. He was given lodging for the night, and as he appeared quite rational in the morning, the police released him.

In the afternoon he appeared on the dock near the tug office, and poising himself on the edge, raised his arms above his head and plunged into the water. It was a deliberate case of suicide, although those who witnessed the act say that the young man struggled after he was in the water and apparently regretted the act when it was too late.

Capt. Byers of the tug Record saw the man take the plunge, and jumping into the tug Carrington went to his rescue, but was too late. The life-saving crew responded to a hurried call, and after dragging the spot for a few minutes, recovered the body, but all efforts to restore life failed.

The body was taken to Durkan & Crawford's morgue, where the police identified it.

COLLIDES WITH FREIGHT TRAIN

One Killed, Over Forty Injured in Wreck in Texas.

Dallas, Texas,— Oct. 28.—The Missouri, Kansas & Texas sounthbound passenger train No. 207, heavily loaded with passengers coming to visit the Texas state fair, collided with a freight engine while running at full speed, seven miles north of Dallas early yesterday. Fireman F. C. French of Denison was instantly killed and forty or more persons were injured, some of whom, it is thought, will not recover.

Both of the engines were practically demolished. The baggage car was thrown upon the tender, the trucks of the coaches were turned almost completely around, the ends of three cars were stove in and the first two coaches were telescoped.

A relief train was made up at Dallas and hurried to the scene of the wreck, arriving there about two hours after it occurred. This train, however, carried no physicians and no medicines or bandages for the injured. The train, bearing the injured, returned to Dallas yesterday afternoon and those most seriously hurt were hurried to the hospitals while those whose injuries were of a less serious nature were tended by the company's surgeons who met the train at the depot.

Those most seriously injured are: T. E. Lusk, Jackson, Mich., seriously injured about the back, with internal injuries, may die; Sam Nolen, Royse, Texas, leg broken in two places, serious; Adelaide Ray of Denison, Texas, (colored), serious internal injuries, may not recover; J. G. Royce of Denison, ankle fractured; J. C. Blair of Denison, engineer of the passenger train, left ankle sprained, left shoulder dislocated and face badly cut and bruised; Bob Sladen, engineer of the freight engine, back, head and spine hurt, serious.

DROPS DEAD IN PARADE

Charles W. Potter is Stricken During A. O. U. W. Celebration.

Succumbs to Heart Failure While Marching With Comrades.

The parade of the members of the A. O. U. W., yesterday afternoon, was marred by a tragedy which occurred near the intersection of Lake avenue and Third street, and which cast a gloom over the entire proceedings. Charles W. Potter, aged 45 years, a member of the order, who was in the parade, suddenly lurched forward as the parade was ascending the hill at the point mentioned, and with a groan sank lifeless almost at the feet of his comrades in the procession. The tragedy for a time almost broke up the ceremonies.

A physician was at the side of the unfortunate man shortly after he fell, but life was extinct. Death was due to heart failure, caused by over-exertion, it is thought.

As the parade passed Pilgrim Congregational church, Mr. Potter complained of feeling ill, and dropped out of the ranks for a moment, leaning up against a tree by the road side. He recovered, however, and assumed his position in the line of march, marching with his companions up the hill until they reached the intersection of Lake avenue and Third street, when he again reeled from the ranks, and in a vain effort to clutch a tree near by to support himself, sank lifeless to the ground.

The band, which was accompanying the parade, stopped its martial music as soon as the tragedy was learned of, and the deepest sympathy was expressed on every hand by fellow lodge men of the deceased.

Mr. Potter was a prominent member of Rice's Point lodge, No. 80, and has been a resident of this city for twenty years. He was a steam fitter by trade, and is survived by the widow and five children. The family resides at 1424 West First street, and Mrs. Potter was at the church where the exercises were held when her husband died.

The remains were taken to the undertaking rooms of Forward & Co., and were viewed by many sorrowing friends during the afternoon. The wife was neary prostrated by the sudden death of her husband. Dr. McCuen will hold an autopsy today to discover the exact cause of death.

SHOWS INCREASE IN POPULATION

The New City Directory Guesses Duluth's Population as 86,188.

According to the annual guess of C. B. Stanley, superintendent of the Duluth Directory company, the population of Duluth Oct. 1, was 86,188, or a gain of 4,885 over the estimated population by the same directory concern a year ago.

The population of Superior, as given out by the directory company, is 41,760, or an increase of 2,952 over the figures of a year ago. The total population of Duluth-Superior is estimated at 127,948.

The directory company has completed the compilation of names and is about to issue the twenty-sixth annual edition of its directory for this city.

In arriving at its estimated figures of the population the directory people multiply the number of the names in the directory by 2¼, which they claim is a fair multiple to apply in the case of this city. In older communities, the directory people use a multiple of 2½ and sometimes 3.

The new directory will have 36,404 names and that for Superior will have 18,500 names.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Mack-Leone players in "Polly Primrose."

METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

WARM RECEPTION.

Miss Maude Leone is Enthusiastically Welcomed.

There was no luke-warmness about the reception given Miss Maude Leone on her return to the Lyceum yesterday afternoon and last evening, after an absence of several weeks from the Mack-Leone Stock company.

The Lyceum was packed to the roof. Every seat was sold out, two or three score of people were standing, and many others were turned away from the evening performance.

Miss Leone appeared in the title role of "Polly Primrose" and she entered into the spirit of the part with all the enthusiasm and vigor that have made her such a favorite in Duluth. She was charming as the impulsive young southern girl.

Mr. Mack was never seen to better advantage than in the role of the young northern spy. His makeup was perfect, and his acting of the careful, painstaking type that has made him so popular in the city.

The members of the company all showed up to good advantage. They seemed to be well prepared, and the play "went" better than any first performance in many weeks.

The scenery and mountings of the play deserve special mention. Mr. Mack is giving this feature far more attention than the ordinary stock company manager, and the result is a stage setting that would do credit to the best of the traveling companies.

Here Is a Mystery.

Florence Belval of Marie Cahill's famous "long-skirted" chorus which comes in "Marrying Mary" to the Lyceum, Tuesday night only, Nov. 5, created much talk in New York during the run of the piece at Daly's theater, because of her beauty and the mystery which surrounded her. It is known that she is a prominent society girl and that Belval is an assumed name, but no one has been able to identify her, nor has any one told on her. The society editors of the New York papers have all taken a look at her and they cannot identify her, although they are supposed to know every one worth while. Miss Belval considers it a great joke and will tell no one her proper name. She is an expert pianist, and has taken up the stage for the experience it will give her in acquiring ease and pose. She is a very pretty girl and is an excellent singer and dancer.

The Burlesquers.

George W. Rife's own company, the Oriental Cozy Corner Girls, are at the Metropolitan all the week, giving the usual matinees. There will be one of these tomorrow. The organization is said to be the largest in point of numbers on the Empire circuit, and the olio contains the names of such well-known actors as Lafferty and Ward, Van Cleve, Denton and "Pete," the mule (from the New York Hippodrome), Lena Bruce and Clara Dagneau, John Honan and Pat Kearney and Young Sandow and Otis Lambert, physical culture experts.

NEGRO LYNCHED FOR STEALING 75 CENTS.

Macon, Ga., Oct. 28.—Passengers on the Central of Georgia train, coming through Byron, Ga., brought an account of the lynching of a negro, John Wilkes, at that place Saturday night.

The negro robbed two small boys of 75 cents. When Marshal Thomas Johnson made an effort to arrest him the negro attempted to shoot the officer. A general fight followed, with the result that the negro was arrested and locked up. At a late hour unknown persons forced an entrance, dragged the negro from his cell and riddled him with bullets. The body was then burned upon a log fire prepared for the occasion. The charred remains were taken up yesterday morning and were viewed by a large crowd.

PROMINENT MAN KILLED BY AUTO.

Chicago, Oct. 28. — James Reddick, chairman of the Republican county central committee and public administrator, was instantly killed yesterday morning by the overturning of an automobile in which he was riding, near Libertyville, a suburb of Chicago. Mr. Reddick, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taylor, and Mr. and Mrs. William W. Ellis, the other occupants of the car escaped with only slight injuries. The accident was due to the skidding of the automobile on a muddy road, which caused it to upset in a ditch.

Mr. Reddick occupied a rear seat with his wife, and although she was thrown to a place of safety, he was caught beneath the tonneau and crushed to death.

TURNPIKE TO BOUNDARY.

Roseau, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is reliably stated that the Canadian government is about to build a substantial road from Sprague south to the international boundary, the road to be four rods wide. It is the intention to do the greater share of the work this winter, completing in the spring.

The board of county commissioners will contract for the building of a bridge across the Roseau river, near C. S. Richardson's place, this year, and with some minor improvements on the Sprague road, Roseau will be brought within fifteen miles of a railroad.

BAD WRECK REPORTED

Vessel Masters Say Unknown Steamer Went Down Saturday.

Severe Northwest Gale Was Raging on Lake Superior.

Dispatches from Fort William state that captains of vessels arriving there yesterday reported the wreck of an unknown steamer on Lake Superior during the storm of Saturday. It is believed that all on board were lost.

It was at first thought that the lost vessel was the Canadian steamer Wexford, which left for the lower lakes with a cargo of grain, but that steamer reached Sault Ste. Marie early yesterday morning.

Local vessel agents could throw no light upon the identity of the wrecked steamer. They say that none of their boats are more than four or five hours late in arriving at the Head of the Lakes, and that there are none which can not be accounted for this morning.

The northwest gale which prevailed on Lake Superior for several days was a severe one and was accompanied by snow squalls. Incoming captains say that it was one of the worst storms of the season. Many ships put in at different ports for shelter.

Nearly all of the boats of the upbound fleet are coming in several hours late.

THE OLYMPIA STRANDED.

Gilchrist Boat, Loaded With Coal, is on Grecian Shoal.

Colchester, Ont., Oct. 28.—The steamer Olympia of the Gilchrist fleet is stranded on Grecian shoal one and a quarter miles south of this point in Lake Erie. The steamer is upbound, heavily laden with coal, and lies in a badly exposed position. Tugs have been sent for and it is believed the vessel can be released if they arrive before a storm comes up. The vessel is resting easily and is in no immediate danger.

WORKING ON MOORE.

Reid Wrecking Company is Raising Sunken Steamer.

Detroit, Oct. 28.—With the big wrecking tug James Reid, and the barge Belle Hanscomb, the Reid Wrecking company has begun the work of raising the sunken steamer John W. Moore, lying near Mamajuda light, Detroit river. It is probable that the pilot house of the Moore will be moved to the barge, to give freer access to the sunken hull.

Masters have felt a little nervous in passing the wreck at night, notwithstanding it is marked by two white lights, so President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers has placed a white light on the red buoy which marks the channel to the eastward and nearly abreast of the wreck. This light will remain until the Moore is raised and removed from the channel. The light is giving good satisfaction to masters who pass at night.

MASTERS ARE SUSPENDED.

Licenses Taken Away From Captains O'Toole and McFarlane.

Detroit, Oct. 28.—Local Inspectors Galwey and Meno have suspended Capt. Martin O'Toole of the passenger steamer Flora for fifteen days, and Capt. Daniel McFarlane of the steel sand steamer McKerchey for forty-five days. These suspensions follow as the result of the investigation of the collision between the two vessels in the Detroit river near Walkerville several months ago.

Capt. O'Toole is found guilty of failure to blow the danger signal of four shorts blasts, prescribed when boats are approaching each other, and the pilot of either fails to understand the course or intention of the other. It is shown that Capt. O'Toole checked his boat and backed, as the rules provide, but did not blow the danger signal.

Capt. McFarlane is declared guilty of neglect to blow the signal or to check his vessel. He is further found guilty of violation of the rule relating to unnecessary whistling, concerning which there has been considerable agitation during the season. This is the first penalty imposed at this port for violation of this rule. The rule reads:

"Unnecessary sounding of the steam whistle is prohibited within any harbor limits of the United States. * * * Any master on conviction shall be suspended by the inspectors."

Just before the collision the McKerchey blew a private signal or salute to parties on a dock on the east side On the Flora this signal was confused with the usual passing signal.

Canadian Yacht Wrecked.

Goderich, Ont., Oct. 28.—While attempting to enter the harbor for shelter Saturday the steam yacht Laurine ran on the submerged breakwater in course of construction at the mouth of the harbor. Local tugs failed to release the vessel and tugs of the Reid Wrecking company were sent for, but before they could get here the yacht had become a total wreck and was abandoned. The yacht was recently purchased from Hiram Walker by the Canadian government and fitted up for use as a fishing cruiser. The boat was en route from Walkerville to Georgian Bay ports to enter service when wrecked.

Cumberland Aground.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 28.—The steamer Cumberland, upbound, ran aground on the Canadian bank below the Point Edward elevator through the disabling of her steering gear. Tugs are working on her.

MARRIED AT TOWER.

Frank Shoberg and Miss Husselbad Married by Bride's Brother.

Tower, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—A pretty home wedding occurred Saturday evening at the home of Frank Shoberg on North Second street, when Rev. Husselbla of Nebraska, married Mr. Shoberg and Miss Ida Husselblad. The officiating clergyman is a relative of the bride. Miss Sigied Nordstrom acted as bridesmaid, while William Husselblad, a brother of the bride, was best man.

Both bride and bridesmaid wore white and carried roses. Miss Tillie Thorpe played the wedding march. The house was prettily decorated with potted plants. Only a few intimate friends and the relatives of the contracting parties were present. A sumptuous wedding supper was served. The couple will be at home in their residence on North Second street.

SNOW ON RANGE.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—About two inches of snow cover the Mesaba range as a result of the storm of Saturday afternoon and evening. For a time Saturday the snow melted as fast as it fell, but later it remained, and the surrounding country presents a wintry-like appearance. The weather is not cold, and the snow is not expected to remain long.

COOKE BOUND OVER.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Cooke has been bound over to the next term of the district court on three charges of selling liquor on Sunday, the evidence being secured by the two Minneapolis detectives employed through the Law and Order league.

FIGHT AT CHURCH FESTIVAL.

Budapest, Hungary, Oct. 28.—During a church festival in the village of Czarnova yesterday a conflict arose between factions in the congregation which led to the intervention of the gendarmes. A free fight resulted between the peasants and the gendarmes, in which eleven persons were killed and a score wounded.

Polglase and James Sullivan, Independents. Fourth ward—E. J. Elnum, Republican; Edward E. A. Johnson, Independents.

Great interest is being taken in the approaching contest by the citizens generally. The mayor has been repeatedly referred to in the public prints as a "victim of circumstances" and a "much abused official." The reproduction of a little municipal history will serve to enlighten the public as to the reasons for some of this criticism which has been referred to as abuse.

It was in March, 1902, that W. H. Eaton was first elected mayor of Virginia, defeating A. N. Thompson, the former mayor, by a small majority. At that time city elections occurred annually and Mr. Eaton's term would have expired April 15, 1903. But before the expiration of his term he and the council adopted a resolution placing the city government under a new law with biennial elections, thus perpetuating themselves in power until Jan. 1, 1904. At that time Capt. M. L. Fay was considered Virginia's foremost citizen and deserving to honor him for the good he had done in standing by the city and showing his faith in its future by erecting several substantial buildings immediately after the fire of 1900. The voters elected him mayor over W. H. Eaton, who was a candidate for re-election.

During all of Mayor Fay's administration, which was marked by a strong fight with the saloon element, W. H. Eaton, his backers and sympathizers opposed everything that Mr. Fay favored, whether right or wrong, whether for the good of the city or not. Because Mayor Fay wanted the main business street paved, which it badly needed, they opposed it and did everything they could to block the project, although after Mr. Eaton again became mayor one of his first moves was to begin work on the paving project.

Mayor Fay desired strongly to have the city purchase the light and water plant, so that much-needed improvements and extensions of water mains could be made. This move was also strongly opposed by Eaton and his backers. How Mayor Fay endeavored to get back at this element by punishing the saloonkeepers is well known history. He went so far in his anger that he overdid things. This gave the members of the Eaton machine the opportunity they had been seeking, and their chief went into office with flying colors two years ago. The heavy majority Mr. Eaton received at that time evidently encouraged him to assume the role of dictator in practically everything pertaining to the government of the city.

Instead of profiting by Capt. Fay's errors and avoiding them, he proceeded forthwith on a similar line of conduct, and all through his term he has fought public improvements and other desired legislation simply because certain personal political opponents desired them. He has successfully opposed much-needed public improvements for two years, even when they would not cost the city a cent, the property owners being desirous of paying for them and men of means offering to furnish the money with which to build them.

Shortly after the present administration went into office the school board decided to erect the John A. Johnson school building. Messrs. Stein & O'Rourke were the owners of the Southside addition. They were also political opponents of Mayor Eaton. They wanted the school located in their addition. Mayor Eaton strongly fought that location. The school board also opposed that location. But the people of the Southside addition turned out in force and carried a special election called to decide upon the location. So the school had to go there. Although defeated, Mayor Eaton still sought to play a trump card. The property owners of the Southside addition petitioned for the building of two sanitary sewers, one to drain the district around the new schoolhouse, the other in the alley between Poplar and Cedar streets, where was located the "big ditch." The latter sewer was particularly desired by the Cole & McDonald Exploration company, who wanted to make sewer connections with their new machine shop and the residence they had erected for their machine shop foreman. The members of this company were also political opponents of Mayor Eaton. He decided that neither of these sewers should be built. The council promptly passed a resolution authorizing the construction of the sewers, and the mayor as promptly vetoed it. He gave as reasons that the city had insufficient funds; that there must be some way of draining the water that flowed through the "big ditch," etc. Aided by decisions rendered by the city attorney, whose appointment the mayor had dictated, he was able to thwart the will of the council and of the property owners at every turn, even after his alleged reasons for vetoes had been overcome. Finally the school board saw the mayor and made it plain to him that it would no longer do to oppose a sewer for the new school. So he gave in on that proposition, but through another convenient decision by the city attorney, compelled the council to separate the two sewers so that one could be constructed and the other delayed.

The schoolhouse sewer was constructed late last fall and the resolution authorizing the building of the other was again vetoed. Finally the water that flowed through the "big ditch" was taken care of by another ditch constructed by the Missabe railroad. Then the big ditch became a stagnant, stinking pool of filth. Still the mayor opposed the sewer. Finally the citizens of the district became so indignant that they held a public meeting and threatened to appeal to the state board of health if the sewer was not built forthwith. That brought the mayor to time, and the sewer is now being constructed after nearly two years of delay.

Mayor Eaton owns a cow and thereby hangs another tale. When he came into office there was a pound ordinance on the books, but the mayor said it was no good. He wanted the council to pass an ordinance giving cows the privilege of the streets and lawns in the day time. The council thought otherwise and appointed a poundmaster under the old ordinance. Mayor Eaton called the poundmaster to his private office and discharged him. The council then passed a new ordinance along the lines of the old one and the mayor vetoed it. Finally, late this summer the council passed the ordinance over his veto by unanimous vote, but he has steadfastly refused to enforce its provisions and cows, horses, pigs, goats and all other animals have free access to the streets and private property of the citizens, while the cows and horses travel the sidewalks at will, befouling them and making frequent repairs necessary. Members of the council desired to compromise by appointing an official herder to look after the cows, but the mayor insisted on his way or no way at all. He gave as a reason his solicitude for the poor man who owns a cow. The fact is that 90 per cent of the cows in town are owned by people in comfortable circumstances owning homes.

The board of review of tax assessments is composed of the mayor and council, and it is pointed out that with one or two exceptions, all the members of the board had their personal property assessments reduced below the assessor's figures. Mayor Eaton's was reduced from $1,215 to $60. It is considered somewhat remarkable that, outside of the mayor and his official family, City Assessor Rinnet found only two or three property owners upon whom he levied too high personal property assessments—all the more remarkable when it is known that the council elected Mr. Rinnert to office and voted the money to pay his salary.

The next Sunday after Mayor Eaton went into office the saloons of the city opened their side doors and they have remained open nights and Sundays ever since, with the exception of one Sunday last June, when a part of them closed their doors on an order alleged to have emenated from Mayor Eaton, probably with the idea of saving himself from being removed from office should any citizen carry the matter up to the attorney general. While this action of the mayor in permitting the saloons to remain open nights and Sundays was expected by those who voted for him, and consequently there is no criticism on that score, there was considerable disappointment on the part of many who voted for him, that he permitted the slot machines to resume business after they had been out of commission for five months. His defense of this action is that the city needs the revenue that is derived from fines received from the machine owners, but his opponents claim that if his regard for the poor man's welfare was as high as he claims, he would abolish this source of revenue, which comes almost solely from the pocket of the deluded poor man, and raise it from general taxation instead.

Ex-Mayor Fay and his council, during their last year in office, voted to raise $5,000 by general taxation. The next year Mayor Eaton and his council raised $27,560, and this year voted to raise $31,300. With the saloons increased from thirty-five to fifty-two in number during the two years, the fines from slot machines also increased, and the large increase in general taxation there is a very comfortable balance in the treasury. The only public work of permanent character undertaken during the two years for which the city treasury must foot the bills is the new fire hall, the contract for which was not let to the lowest bidder, and the new steel bridge across the narrows, neither of which has been fully paid for as yet. When these are paid for the treasury balance will be practically exhausted. Fifty-two saloons bring a revenue of $26,000 yearly, the slot machines and other municipal court fines about $5,000 per year, and adding $31,300 to be raised by general taxation makes the very respectable total of $63,300 to carry on the government for next year.

As a consequence of Mayor Eaton's evident determination to enforce only such laws and ordinances as he sees fit, and to sanction only such ordinances and resolutions passed by the council as suit his personal views and desires, there is generally very lax observance of any of the city ordinances. The laws governing the health and cleanliness of the city are wantonly violated. No attempt is made to enforce the ordinance regarding dog licenses, and the street commissioner is powerless in the matter of obstructions of streets and sidewalks because of lack of co-operation on the part of the mayor and police.

Choosing as his associates and closest political friends many of those who seek financial gain through the non-enforcement of certain laws and ordinances, the people realize that the mayor's position is vulnerable and consequently the very lax observance of other laws and ordinances by the general public.

It was as a result of a quite general protest against this condition of affairs by citizens owning homes and other property in the city that led to the nomination of an independent ticket for the coming election. The leaders of this movement express themselves as believing that the citizens of the community as well as the duly elected representatives of the people should have some voice in the regulation of public affairs as well as the mayor, and with an occupant of the executive chair amendable to reason and uncontrolled by any faction or machine, there would be some opportunity for the desires of the majority to prevail, and the city thus relieved from alleged one-man domination.

EVELETH READY FOR ELECTION

List of Those Who Will Ask Support of Voters.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The time for filing petitions has closed and it is apparent that W. J. Davey will continue to hold his present position of city treasurer, as no one has filed a petition for the place, in opposition to him.

Those whose names will appear on the ticket on election day are alphabetically arranged: Mayor, Frank Johnson, Neamich Maxwell and George W. Mulligan; municipal judge, Frank Mattson, J. C. McGillvray, Vivian Prince and Edward Skeel; alderman, first ward, E. H. Hatch and Joseph Thibaut; alderman, second ward, Tony Azzo and C. R. Johnson; for alderman, third ward, E. Andrews and Joseph Zini; for alderman at large, Frank Carlson, Matt Doyle, A. N. Peterson, Solomon Sax and Tim Shea.

The next registration day, which will be the last, occurs on the coming Tuesday. This will give those citizens who have not registered before, a chance to vote.

With the announcement of the list of candidates, the air that has been full of rumors and false reports, has cleared up. The friends of all the candidates are calling attention of the voters to the good points that are possessed by their respective candidates. This is particularly true of the candidates for alderman-at-large, toward which office the center of the campaign seems to have shifted.

LEVELING UP FOR NEW TOWN

Steel Company Starts Work on New Sparta Townsite.

Sparta, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Steel corporation today placed a gang of men leveling up the new townsite of Sparta, two miles south of here preparatory to moving the town. Two tracks have been laid over the site and waste is being hauled from the Gilbert mine and used to fill up the uneven places. There is great joy here, as it means beyond a doubt the company will keep its promise to use all its influence to make the new site the real Sparta instead of the Gilbert townsite, which is also being boomed by certain interested parties. It is expected that as soon as navigation closes and ore shipping ceases the Iron Range road will furnish cars for moving many of the buildings in the present town to the new site. The new year will, in all probability, see the town moved to the new site and next year active mining will be carried on where Sparta now stands. The steel company will not only do everything possible to make the new town the Sparta of the future, but has promised to build a union depot for both the Iron Range and the Missabe which at present pass over the new site.

MOTHER IS SCARED.

Two Drunken Finns Carry Off Her Children and Are Arrested.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two Finns from Chisholm, considerably the worse for liquor, created a sensation here Sunday by driving through the city, making a lot of noise and finally grabbing up a couple of children of Mrs. M. E. Osherman, as though to kidnap them. The mother ran frightened after the two men, and the police were appealed to. The two men were arrested and placed in jail, while the children were returned to their mother.

EJECTMENT SUIT

Long Drawn Out Piece of Litigation Over Some Land.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—An action similar to the Rabb-Shea case, recently concluded, has been brought forward in the office of the clerk of the district court. Its purpose is to eject the defendants (Malinda Tanner and Michael Cronin) from the land upon which they are living within the prescribed line of Cedar Island lake. The plaintiffs are William H. Murphy, Elisha H. Flinn and Selwyn Eddy, executors and trustees under the will of one William H. Murpry, deceased, and Elisha Flinn and Temple E. Dorr.

The action is brought on parallel lines to the one against Wickey and Burns in 1895, which was decided in the district court by Judge Page Morris and Judge Cant in favor of the defendants. The case was later carried to the United States appelate and supreme courts, where the decision in each instance, affirmed the findings of the lower court, leaving Burns and Wickey in possession of the land and deeribing by metes and bounds what land the plaintiffs were entitled to.

A decision is now being awaited from the general land commissioner in Washington as to whether the Faison survey is complete. That survey has the meander line on the north shore, nearer the lake than the Howe survey, and as a result cuts off part of the land claimed by the settlers. The interested settlers have asked, not that the survey be annulled, but that the portion lying between the two conflicting meander lines be surveyed and the lots attached to those described by Faison.

TO REACH FLOODWOOD.

County Commissioners Have Decided Upon Some Important Road Work.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—County Commissioner Neil McInnis of Eveleth, and Commissioners Patterson and Sundeen of Duluth, were at Alborn recently to inspect the Swan Lake road that runs west from the railroad. The commissioners are trying to have connections made so that Floodwod, which is on the line, may be reached. To accomplish this eighteen miles of road will have to be built. The commissioners have a good base to work from as the Swan Lake road is one of the oldest roads in the county. Together with the Miller trunk road, it forms the basis of the network of roads that must, in time, be built throughout the county.

WORE RED COATS.

Eveleth Hunters Took No Chances on Being Shot At.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Red coats were the order in town yesterday. Many residents decided to go hunting and wore scarlet colored clothes as preventatives against being mistaken for animals. The snow that fell thickly all day Saturday made the hunting conditions very favorable.

Sacks were filled with small birds in plenty and some were successful in bringing down some big game. The hardware stores reported good business on ammunition and rifles for all day Saturday.

The majority of the hunting was done within a three-mile radius of Eveleth, the hunters going, in most cases, on foot to their hunting spots.

EVELETH WON.

Second High School Team Defeats the Second Virginia.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The game that was played between the second team of the Eveleth high school with a similar group from the Virginia high school resulted in a score of 11 to 0 in favor of Eveleth. The game was largely a punting one, both touchdowns being directly or indirectly the result of Siegel's punting. The line-up of the teams was as follows:

| Eveleth. | Position. | Virginia. |
|---|---|---|
| Mulligan | R. E. | Martin |
| Turnquist | R. T. | Hawkinson |
| Anderson | R. G. | Owens |

The game that was scheduled for Sunday afternoon between the Biwabiks and the Eveleth city team has been postponed because of the poor condition of the grounds.

MISTAKEN FOR WARDEN.

Andrew Ran Murderously Attacked by Three Deer Hunters.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Apparently mistaken for a game warden Andrew Ran was shot by Mike Imra, Joe Ardovitsh and another whose name is unknown, Sunday afternoon and perhaps seriously injured. Ran came across them having a deer in their possession which they had just killed. Evidently thinking he was a warden they opened fire and he fell wounded. Then they fled, but Irma and Ardovitsh were subsequently captured by Policeman Donahue and Deputy Sheriff King.

Ran was taken to the Rood hospital, where several buckshot were extracted from his face. The shooting took place about half a mile from here on the Brooklyn road.

CHARGED WITH THEFT.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Utrecht was arrested Sunday and placed in jail on the charge of robbing three men in a saloon Saturday night, relieving one of a gold watch, a second of $4.80 in cash and a third of a jackknife.

RANGES IN BRIEF

Grand Rapids.—Frank Bowden, who is in St. Mary's hospital at Duluth, where he is receiving treatment, is reported as much better and his friends state that it will not be long before he will be out.

Hibbing.—John A. Healy, proprietor of the Hotel Hibbing, has made some extensive improvements in that hostelry. A steam laundry has been installed in the basement. Mr. Healy has also installed an independent electric light plant. It is operated by a twenty-five horsepower steam engine and has a capacity of 200 incandescent lights.

McKinley.—Miss Elizabeth Oslund and Alfred Oslund of Duluth are spending a very pleasant time with their sister, Mrs. Sam Horrocks.

Biwabik.—Miss Beatrice Thomas, who was taken to Rochester to undergo an operation for appendicitis, is rapidly, recovering and it is expected that she will be brought home in a short time.

Coleraine.—A Halloween concert and social will be given at the high school auditorium in this city on Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the M. E. church.

Grand Rapids.—Forest fires are raging in section 1, township 55, range 25, Itasca county, near Grand Rapids, and in sections 4 and 5, back of Sugar lake. They are burning also at or near the government dam, three miles southwest of this village.

Bovey.—The scholars in the Bovey buildings have been transferred to the new building. The new schoolhouse cost about $27,000. There are four teachers and about 175 scholars.

Hibbing.—Charles Green, captain of the Agnew mine, was taken to the Rood hospital Saturday suffering from typhoid fever. His condition is serious.

Bovey.—The new Fitger hotel, which cost about $25,000, will be opened this week. The structure is a substantial building of brick.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Mrs. Wesley Feetham, general secretary of the Duluth Young Women's Christian association, and Mrs. J. A. Watterworth, chairman of the building committee, returned yesterday morning from a tour of inspection of a number of Y. W. C. A. boarding homes and new buildings, as an aid in the planning of the new Duluth association building.

"At every city we visited," said Mrs. Feetham this morning, "wonder was expressed that in its five years of existencee the Duluth association should have 1,000 members, the money for a new building, and that the needs of the work should demand such an increase in equipment. Throughout the country there is a wonderful appreciation for the work and in every community which we visited there was a support and interest in the work that shows that the Y. W. C. A. appeals to a great number of people. The experience of every association that has been provided with a new building and increased equipment has been that the work has grown with the increased facilities out of all proportion to the provision made for it. That is nne thing that we in Duluth must be careful about. The new building should accommodate all the different demands that are pressing now for attention and provision made for the inevitable growth that must come in such a prosperous city, where the work has met with such support.

"Regret was expressed at every association where the new building was erected without a swimming pool or without an auditorium. The latter need not be large, but the devotional service and gatherings which are so great a part of association life, must be provided for. The swimming pool, wherever it is installed, has been a great success, and in those association buildings which are without one, plans are being considered for having one installed.

"The Duluth association has asked less from the public since its organization than many associations throughout the country, and in building our new home it is our hope to construct it practically so that the needs of the young women may be satisfied.

"In the newest and most up-to-date buildings, the single room plan is being used, and that will be followed in the Duluth building. There will be few double rooms. In many of the buildings the rooms are furnished by individuals. In this manner, although there is in most cases a uniform amount of money expended, the rooms had a variety and inviduality that were pleasing. At South Bend., Ind., we found the most complete building that we visited. It was a gift to the association from Mr. and Mrs. George Wyman of that city. The association has been occupying the building since April, and it is already too small. At Detroit, where the association has been installed in its building for three years, the gymnasium is the only part of the work that can adequately meet the demand. Other associations that we visited were at Milwaukee, Rockford, Ill., Elgin, Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland.

"The general plan for the Duluth building will not be changed, but we found our trip most profitable and suggestive."

Aside from the suspension of the exchange, there is nothing else worthy of mention in the local financial situation.

AKRON SAVINGS BANK CLOSED TEMPORARILY.

Akron, Ohio, Oct. 28.—The Dollar Savings bank has been closed by order of the directors until after the funeral of Mr. Boron, the dead cashier. In the meantime a further investigation of his accounts is going on and a movement is also on foot to have the other banks of the city take this institution over. The clearing house association of the city is holding a meeting today and will announce a policy in reference to the savings accounts of the city.

The sixty-day limit has been ordered enforced on all savings accounts in the banks of the city.

KANSAS COMPANY CLOSED.

Kansas City, Oct. 28.—The Bankers Trust company, with deposits of $800,000, closed at 10:15. Cashier J. C. Hughes said that they had decided to close temporarily because the clearing association had refused to extend to them the privileges granted the thirty other leading banks here of issuing clearing house certificates.

BANKS REMAIN CLOSED.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 28.—Every bank in Oklahoma City remained closed today, in accordance with orders issued by Territorial Governor Frank Frantz. It is understood that the order affects all national banks in Oklahoma and Indian Territory.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Information received from Rockport, Ky., states that the historic home of the late general Don Carlos Buel at Airdrie, on the Green river, was destroyed by fire Saturday night.

Dr. M. J. White of the marine service at Seattle has received a telegram from Surgeon General Wyman at Washington authorizing Dr. White to carry out his recommendation that all vessels on the Sound be fumigated at once. This applies to every vessel large enough to hold a rat.

Gen. William Booth of the Salvation Army, who was suffering from exhaustion upon his arrival at Pitisburg Saturday from Columbus, Ohio, attended three meetings Sunday at the Alvin theater, and was apparently much improved, showing but slight evidence of his recent illness.

A. Mirti, a banker, who while editor of the newspaper Progresso Italo Americano, vigorously assailed the Black Hand, was assaulted while on his way home in New York Sunday night and dangerously injured. He was cut severely with a razor. Fran Amenlo is under arrest as the assailant.

Officials of the Chicago telegraph companies announced Sunday that they would reopen all of their important branch offices throughout the city Monday. These offices have been closed since the beginning of the operators' strike on Aug. 8. The action of the companies was made possible by the return of more than fifty strikers during the past two days.

Fred A. Boron, cashier of the Dollar Savings bank at Akron, Ohio, and one of the most prominent men in the city, was shot and killed in his home Sunday afternoon. His family was away and a servant girl returned to the house shortly after 7:30 o'clock and found him lying on the floor, dead. The police are investigating.

WORKMEN CELEBRATE

Members of Ancient Order Hold Anniversary Exercises Here.

Prominent Members Tell of Progress of the Organization.

Duluth members of the Ancient Order of United Workmen conducted appropriate observances yesterday of the thirty-ninth anniversary of the founding of the order.

More than 1,000 men were in line when the Workmen marched from their hall to the First Methodist Episcopal church, Third avenue west and Third street, where the exercises of the day were held.

The line of march took the parade up Lake avenue to Third street and along Third street to the church. The members walked in double column, to the martial music of a band.

It was expected that Merrill C. Tifft of Long Prairie, Minn., state grand master workman of the order, would be present and deliver the principal address of the afternoon, but he was unable to be there. Otherwise the program was carried out as planned.

Charles E. Larson of St. Paul, grand recorder for the Workmen of the state, spoke of the financial condition of the order at the present time. He told of the money that had been paid out to beneficiaries during the many years that the order has had a membership in Minnesota, and referred to the advantages of membership.

F. H. White of this city, past grand master workman, spoke on "Workmanship in Duluth." He told of the great strides that had been made within the last few years by the order, and said that no small measure of the city's present prosperity and future greatness was due to the energy and steadfastness of citizens of the Ancient Order of United Workmen type.

W. S. McCormick gave a most eloquent address on the benefits of the order, dwelling on the subject of charity. The closing address of the afternoon was given by Rev. E. C. Clemens, presiding elder of the Duluth district of the Methodist Episcopal conference, whose topic was "The Ideal Workman."

T. J. St. Germain, financier of the local lodges of United Workmen, presided during the exercises yesterday. He said the order now had a membership of 1,600 in Duluth, and that an effort would be made to have the total pass the 2,000 mark before another year.

Three numbers were sung by the Y. M. C. A. quartet, and Miss Cora Hilliard sang "Oh, Dry Those Tears" and "The Hills of the Gods."

First National bank, when questioned regarding the local situation, gave the same assurance that Mr. Peyton voiced in stating that there was nothing in the situation or the decision arrived at by the banks to give the least cause for alarm. Mr. Ordean said that the reserve funds of the banks were in no way affected, that they were not pinched for funds, but rather the course adopted was for the sole reason that the city and the depositors of the bank required the protection against outside interests. In other words, outside influences rather than anything in the local situation was the motive that prompted the course adopted by the bank.

"Both the immense cotton and wheat movements have required a vast amount of money," said Mr. Ordean. "Thirty millions of dollars have been sent into the Northwest this fall and surely there must be a great amount of cash somewhere in the West. We are adopting the restriction measures simply as a protection for our depositors and the interests represented by the bank. There is no cause for apprehension. There is nothing here that would necessitate such a policy, but to protect ourselves against heavy drawing from the outside we have deemed it a wise policy to adopt the measures instituted this morning."

The following statement was given out to the Associated Press at the meeting in Minneapolis yesterday:

"In view of the action of the banks in the central reserve cities of New York, Chicago and St. Louis, in refusing to ship money against balances due us, be it resolved,

"That for the protection of our commercial interests, and for the purpose of preventing a drain of money from the banks, the banks and bankers of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth do hereby agree to adopt substantially the plan recently adopted in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Pittsburg Milwaukee, Indianapolis and Des Moines and other cities, viz.:

"That we will not pay out money on checks, certificates of deposit or drafts, except for small sums, and that for the present no money will be furnished to bank correspondents, but we will certify checks on balances in our hands, payable through our clearing house only. The savings banks and trust companies and the savings departments of the banks having such departments will require the sixty and ninety days' notice to which they are entitled by law.

"When it is realized that 93 per cent of the business of the country is transacted by means of checks and only 7 per cent by means of money, it will be readily seen how little inconvenience will be caused to the business community by the plan adopted by the associated banks. The payment of checks and drafts, through the clearing house, will proceed in the usual way through the regular channels. These checks and drafts may be deposited in the banks as heretofore, and their protection has been fully provided for by this action.

"Outside of the above restriction, business will be conducted as usual, and it is believed that these conditions will be temporary and of short duration."

Signed by the following:

Minneapolis banks—First National bank, Northwestern National, Security National, National Bank of Commerce, Swedish-American National, Hennepin County Savings, St. Anthony Falls bank, German American bank, Farmers' and Merchants' Savings, Minnesota Loan & Trust Co., Swedish American Savings, Northern Savings bank.

St. Paul banks—First National bank, National German American bank, Merchants' National bank, Second National bank, Capital National bank, Scandinavian American bank, American National bank, State Savings bank, Security Trust company, Stock Yards National bank.

Duluth banks—First National bank, American Exchange bank, City National bank, Duluth Savings bank.

Kenneth Clark, president of the Merchants' National Bank of St. Paul, last night made a statement to the Associated Press explaining that the banks of the three cities have not suspended payment, that small payments would be made over their counters and that checks and drafts for large amounts, both of individual depositors and of out of town banks, would be paid through the clearing house.

EBERHART IN DULUTH.

Lieutenant Governor Visits Old Friend in the City.

Lieutenant Governor O. A. Eberhart of Mankato was in Duluth yesterday, the guest of Rev. Carl G. Olsen, pastor of Bethany Lutheran church in the West end.

Mr. Eberhardt and Rev. Mr. Olson are old friends, their acquaintance having begun when both were residents of the state of Nebraska. Rev. Mr. Olson came to Duluth from Nebraska about a year ago, but Lieutenant Governor Eberhardt has lived in Minnesota longer than that.

The lieutenant governor spent the day with his friend here and returned today to St. Paul.

"Great rosy checked baldwins, their shiny faces smiling a welcome from the display windows of the fruit dealers' shops remind one of delightful pilgrimages into Uncle Billy Curtis' orchard, there to plunder his premium tree of the delicious fruit. One almost feels like wrapping one's legs about a telephone pole and closing one's eyes, shinning up said pole in imitation of upward climbs to the lower branches of that favorite tree, there to revel in the delights of stolen fruits. Baldwins and telephone poles. Ye gods! Think of it!"

PROMPT AND WHOLESOME ACTION.

Following the example set by the banks of New York, Chicago, Milwaukee and other large financial centers, the banks of the Twin Cities and Duluth yesterday decided to issue clearing house certificates, and to refuse for the present to pay out large amounts of money in cash. The certificates will be just as good as money, because they will be backed by all of the banks.

This was an obviously sensible and necessary thing to do.

If this prompt and timely action had not been taken by the combined banks of Minnesota, the great financial centers, to which money naturally gravitates anyway, would have quickly absorbed the Northwest's supply of currency, returning nothing but clearing house certificates, since these have become the medium of exchange in these places.

This action preserves to Duluth and the Twin Cities their present supply of money for local uses. It stops unnecessary withdrawals of money, it will not disturb business in the slightest degree, and it will solidify and give additional strength to the financial situation.

There are no financial troubles in the Northwest, but since New York, owing to the acute condition there, has taken hold of the situation in this manner, the adoption of similar methods in Duluth and the Northwest has become necessary as a measure of self-protection. Otherwise, if Duluth had continued to meet Eastern drafts with cash, getting only clearing house certificates in return, the result would have been that Duluth's cash would have gone East.

As 93 per cent of the business is done by check, this move will not affect business in the slightest degree. Money will still be available for payrolls and similar purposes, and within a very short time a return to normal methods will be possible.

It is an emergency measure, due to the fact that the country at large has not money enough in circulation to meet extraordinary business needs, and to the desire of the bankers of Duluth and the Northwest to keep the Northwest's supply of money at home for local uses.

THREE-STORY HOMES FOR $1,000.

How would those who wish to build themselves homes, but are appalled by the cost and disturbed by the delays involved, like to have a nice, substantial, warm and cozy 3-story house built for them in twelve hours at a cost of $1,000?

They would like it, of course, but the suggestion will probably be met with the remark that they don't do such things any more since Aladdin's lamp was mislaid.

Nevertheless Thomas A. Edison says that is what is going to happen in a very short time, and it is really not a wonderful result at all compared with some of the weird and unexpected things this wizard of invention has brought about, like the incandescent electric light and the talking machine.

By the use of molds and concrete Mr. Edison proposes to revolutionize home-building. He has his plans, which have been vaguely sketched before, pretty well advanced, and next spring he is going to build a house by the mold method.

The other day he took some people into his laboratory and showed them a model of a Queen Anne cottage, very attractive in form, and stated that this was the model according to which he was going to make his first experiment. He said that by means of these patent molds it would be possible for any contractor to build a house of solid cement twenty-five feet wide and forty-five feet deep, three stories high and capable of comfortably housing three families, for $1,000.

When his scheme was first announced, several years ago, the objection was made that it would be unsightly to have a lot of houses made from the same mold, and that such uniformity would create an ugly city. Uniformity does not make for scenic beauty, but it is not alone by the use of concrete molds that uniformity in house-building is created. There are working men's suburbs near Philadelphia, for instance, where row upon row of brick houses, all exactly alike, stretch as far as the eye will carry, creating an atmosphere of dullness and monotony that is unspeakable.

But there can be more than one mold, and doubtless a set of molds can be arranged so that by alteration in the outside features a pleasing variety can be attained. The molds will cost money, but after a contractor is equipped with a few sets he can build houses indefinitely with but small further cost.

The houses are to be built of concrete, but with a new composition devised by Mr. Edison, consisting of one part of cement, three parts of sand, and five parts of quarter-inch crushed stone.

While these buildings can hardly be such as would appeal to those of ample means, it is not at all improbable that they will solve the important problem of furnishing the workingmen with cheap and comfortable homes. A manufacturer, for instance, could build a large number of them for his employes, and the cost would be so small that the rent would be only trifling.

THE FREE SEED FOLLY.

The action of the Farmers' National Congress, in adopting without a dissenting vote a resolution recommending the discontinuance of the free seed farce, reminds us again of this expensive folly to which congress still clings in spite of its absurdity and its wastefulness.

Once upon a time the department of agriculture was experimenting with new varieties of seeds of various sorts, and for that purpose it had them planted and watched in various sections of the country, to observe the relation between soil, climate and the new seeds. This distribution was occasionally made through members of congress, and as congressmen came to see that the ability to distribute these experimental seeds provided them with further opportunities to "jolly" their constituents, they demanded more and more seeds.

Pretty soon the demand got beyond the power of the department to meet it, so congress stepped in and appropriated money with which to buy seeds for this purpose. Thenceforth the experimental part of the process was pure pretense. The department could not furnish enough experimental seeds, so it had to go into the market and buy seeds from dealers. At best these seeds were of ordinary virtues, and very often the government has been defrauded and the dealers have dumped their poorest seeds upon it, so that few of them would grow at all and those that did grow were as likely to produce weeds as vegetables.

Now the annual expense of this distribution, not including the cost of carrying the seeds through the mail, is about $300,000. Most of the seeds are wasted. Each congressman gets 12,000 packages containing several varieties, and with this collection he seeks to buy the favor of his constituents.

The practice might be pardonable if any useful purpose whatever were served, but no good comes out of it. For farmers, to whom most of the seeds go, they are in quantities too small to be of real service, so they are given to the children or thrown away. Many congressmen, to save the trouble of addressing the separate packages, send large quantities to the postmasters for distribution, and often the postmaster either gives them all to a personal friend or throws them out of the back door.

It is time congress abolished this ridiculous practice, which cumbers the mails during the distribution period with "free" matter for the transportation of which the government has to pay, and which costs the government a large sum annually without bringing any useful result. Even the hope of the congressman that it will make him votes is vain, because the recipients understand the situation and make a joke of the "congressional seed graft."

If the congressmen want to give seeds to their constituents, let them buy them out of their own pay. There is no reason why the government should stand any part of their campaign expenses. The rivers and harbors bill and the public buildings bill are already furnishing enough campaign material at government expense, without asking the people to pay for this petty and ridiculous little graft.

A POWERFUL WEAPON.

If the Sherman anti-trust law is to be rigidly enforced, to its logical extent of destroying every trust and combination of capital in the country and of restoring industry to the primitive form of widespread competition, the federal department of justice has discovered a method that will do it about as quickly as anything that has been suggested or could be imagined.

This is by the seizure of trust-made goods as soon as they become interstate commerce.

Few people realized, until the government seized $7,000 worth of cigarettes belonging to the tobacco trust in Virginia the other day, as reported at the time in The Herald, that the Sherman law contained such a powerful and drastic clause. But it does, and here it is:

> Any property owned under any contractor or by any combination or pursuant to any conspiracy and being in course of transportation from one state to another or to a foreign country, shall be forfeited to the United States and may be seized and condemned by like proceedings as those provided by law for the forfeiture, seizure and condemnation of property imported into the United States contrary to law.

In other words, wherever there is a trust or combination that seeks to control prices or products or both, the commodities covered may be seized by the government as soon as they emerge from the state of their manufacture or production and become interstate commerce.

In this case 9,000,000 cigarettes, made by the tobacco trust, were seized in transit by the government, and will be condemned and sold unless the courts interfere. The consignment was in transit from the British-American Tobacco company, Limited, located in Petersburg, Va., and Durham, N. C., to New York and foreign countries. The British-American Tobacco company is deemed by the government a co-conspirator with the American Tobacco company in the control of the tobacco business, and it is charged that they have entered into a "combination in restraint of trade, pursuant to a conspiracy in restraint of trade," to quote the complaint in the seizure case.

If this weapon proves as sound and sharp as it looks, and if it be energetically used, the trusts might just as well quit. The effects of its use will be far-reaching. No trust will dare permit its goods to become interstate commerce, because the minute they leave the state of origin the government will seize and condemn them. That means that the trusts cannot do business, because none of them can earn dividends on business confined to one state, with the prospect that ultimately state action will deprive it even of that field.

Therefore the progress of this test case will be watched with vast interest. If it succeeds, this will prove the simplest and most effective method imaginable of fighting the trusts.

MISLEADING DIRECTORY ESTIMATES.

The publishers of the Duluth directory have come out after their usual fashion with an estimate of the population based on the number of names in their book, giving Duluth a population of 86,188 and Superior a population of 41,760. Both are too high.

Now of course we should be glad to believe these figures if we could, but since we know that they are exaggerated and that they are founded upon an arbitrary method of guessing, we might as well say so. Otherwise, if we continue to follow them until a real census is taken, and the census figures then show a marked decrease, the outside public will have license to believe that the population of Duluth has fallen off when in reality it is steadily and healthily growing.

When the last census was taken, in 1905, it showed Duluth to have 65,000 people. The directory figures of the same year showed 76,262. The census, though undoubtedly it missed some people, as it is practically impossible to get them all, was much nearer correct than the directory figures.

Duluth is growing right along, as the scarcity of houses, coupled with the large amount of building that has been done, proves conclusively. No good can be gained, however, by encouraging grossly exaggerated estimates. If Duluth people accept the directory figures, and claim 86,000 people, and continue to follow the directory estimates until 1910, when the federal census is taken in that year it will appear that there has been a falling off in population, which will be a very poor advertisement.

They used to talk about flimsy things being "such stuff as dreams are made on," but it would be more up to date to say that they are "such stuff as directory estimates are made on."

"Conscience makes cowards of us all." So does fashion.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Like Rudyard Kipling's jockey, Brunt, who after the spill over the jumps of an Australian hurdle race, where four jockeys and as many horses were killed, Louis Leeholder, who is staying at the Lenox, always heeds the hunch that comes to him occasionally as a forewarning, as a whispering from fate or some other equally mysterious occult manifestation.

It was in the early days of the Denver & Rio Grande, when accidents were as common as federal investigations are today that the incident occurred that has given Mr. Leeholder unshaken confidence in the infallibility of his fate warning. He owes his life to the admonition that came to him, he says, and should the voice whisper to him again he would unhesitatingly follow its dictates.

He was riding in the day coach in a kind of a half doze when the voice out of the mysterious unknown came to him. He was suddenly awakened. A voice was imploring him. It warned him to leave the train. No reasons were given for the requested action, but yet there came to the half-awakened man some subtle divination, some weird augury of the intentions of fate. He ran and jumped from the moving train as it was pulling out of the little station and stood on the platform of the depot in a tremble as if he had just escaped some dreadful calamity.

Mr. Leeholder had paced the depot platform for about an hour when a man, terrified and pale, breathless and weak from his exertions and the terrible sight he had witnessed, in a voice shaken by fear, told of the wrecking of the train in a gorge not four miles beyond the station. The train had been derailed and had gone into a canyon, killing or mortally injuring most of the passengers.

The anticipation of a terrible catastrophe, a warning, a forecasting as to the designs of time saved him from a death accompanied by horrible suffering. Since then he has had no other manifestation of this occult mystery. He has never been in a position where his life was endangered, but he firmly believes that should such a exigency arise the little God of his good fortune would promptly and swiftly come to his rescue.

* * *

For three score years Jean Busheau has labored in the woods. Beginning as a lad of 16 in the primitive forests of Canada, and bringing the chapter of his labors down to the modern setting of Northern Minnesota, this man who labors hard and regularly at the age of 76, as other men sometimes never labor in the course of their lives. He has worked for the company he is with for the past forty years. He has repeatedly been requested to cease from the more strenuous labors and accept some position where he will not be called upon to exert his physical energies. He has steadfastly refused. His long labors with the company have earned him a rest; his advanced age would caution moderation, yet this patriarch of the forest repulses any effort to place him in a position where ease and physical comfort would be his lot. His salary would go on were he to stop his labors entirely, yet labor, hard and tedious, is to him the elexir of life, and he passes down the long line of declining years with as light a step and as steady a hand as does the average man of two score years.

Mr. Busheau, who was at the St. Louis yesterday, can vividly recall the songs of the French-Canadian woodsmen. To listen to him is like reading a chapter of Gilbert Parker. During the years spanned by his labors he has watched the decimation of the primeval forest by the eager desires of large interests, until today he shakes his head with a sad little pathetic movement, as he talks of the conditions that have made straggling remnants of the forests that he knew and loved.

This ancient laborer has never signed any recommendation for a malt whisky or a highly advertised patent medicine. His inspiration and hardihood have been drawn from the springs of nature. He has loved the great primitive wildness of the woods, the fresh vigor of outdoor life, and to him the narrow confines of "civilization" are like the bounds of a cage that imprison a restless tiger. He doesn't know when he is going to quit his labors, but, he says, "as long as I efel as chipper as I do now, I will go right on puttin' in ten long hours a day."

And so Jean Busheau will probably pass across the Great Divide working in the woods he loves. He wants to die in harness, he says, and perhaps fate will be kind to the old woodsman and permit him to die among the scenes that he has loved since a lad, back in the primitive forests of Eastern Canada.

The Basis.

Burroughs: It is as true as any law of hydraulics or statics that the workmanship of a man can never rise above the level of his character. He can never adequately say or do anything greater than he himself is.

New York Life.

Correspondence of the Pall Mall Gazette: The life of New York seems a tragic matchiche, a religious can-can, the maddest blend in all Christendom of common sense and lunacy, dignity and folly, poetry and a furious pogrom against everything that makes for beauty.

THE WEATHER.

After a little fit of the sulks Saturday, the weather turned off nicely again yesterday, and today the glorious Indian summer of last week was in full sway again. It was cooler, of course, but still comfortable, with no signs of winter weather. The weather man expects it to be warmer tomorrow, though partly cloudy. Last night's lowest was 26 degs. and yesterday's highest was 35 degs.

A year ago today it was clear and fair.

The sun rose this morning at 6:45 and sets tonight at 4:58, making 10 hours and 13 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Light to heavy rains occurred during Sunday or last night in most districts east of the Mississippi river attending the passage of a low pressure disturbance from the lake region to the Middle Atlantic states. The Dakota high pressure now overspreads the entire Mississippi valley region, its influence causing much cooler weather in the latter district, the Ohio valley and lake region. Freezing temperatures prevail throughout most of the Northwest and as far south as Iowa, Nebraska and Wyoming. The baramoter is falling over the Plateau region, attended by rains in that section. Conditions favor rising temperature in this locality tonight and Tuesday, accompanied by increasing cloudiness."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures, as recorded by the weather bureau:

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Oct. 28.—Local forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m., Tuesday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesabe and Vermilion iron ranges: Partly cloudy weather with rising temperature tonight and Tuesday. Fresh southerly to easterly winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Forecasts until 7 p. m., Tuesday: Wisconsin—Fair tonight, probably becoming unsettled Tuesday; rising temperature.

Minnesota—Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday; slowly rising temperature.

Upper Lakes: Winds mostly light and variable tonight, shifting to southerly on Michigan and Huron Tuesday and becoming fresh. Generally fair except rain or snow on Superior.

FLASHES OF FUN.

Philadelphia Ledger: Reporters met the returning delegate to the peace congress.

"Did you muzzle the dogs of war?" they asked him.

"Naw," he said, with some asperity, "we couldn't even muzzle each other."

Baltimore American: "Young Rhymer seems to think he owns Miss Prettyface since he apostrophized her in his poem."

"He has a right to think so. Isn't an apostrophe the sign of the possessive case?"

Philadelphia Press: "Of course he has barrels of money now, although early in life he had quite a checkered career."

"Well, no one need complain of a checkered career in the beginning so long as it's exchequered in the end."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Is sae an active member of the New York smart set?"

"No, she's too hopelessly conservative."

"What do you mean by that?"

"She's only been married once."

New York Sun: Knicker—I believe the office should seek the man.

Brocker—Yes, but we won't be really happy till the flat seeks him.

Baltimore American: "It's somewhat odd that a tailor will send his customers trousers on credit."

"Why shouldn't he if the customers are reliable?"

"Because no matter what the customers are, trousers on credit are always breeches of trust."

Philadelphia Press: Mrs. Subbubs—Breakfast won't be ready for twenty minutes yet, George.

Mr. Subbubs — What? I thought the cook had everything fixed.

Mrs. Subbubs—So she has; everything except that new "instantaneous breakfast food."

Chicago Tribune: "You may say what you like about old Hunks, but I know him to be a man that studies to please—"

"Shucks! He's the most cross grained, ill conditioned old—"

"Be kind enough not to interrupt me. I was going to say I know him to be a man who studies to please himself, and nobody else on earth."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1887.

Charles Arthur has returned from a trip through the iron regions and can now spin yarns with any of the old explorers and miners. Mr. Arthur's health is materially benefited by the trip.

John Ryan to Richard C. Sloan, lot 443, block 84, Second division, $1,200.

G. W. Kimberly to David Oglivie and Annie M. Kilgore, lots 162 and 164, block 42, Third division, $1,700.

David A. Duncan to Charles E. Keyes, lots 81, 83, 85, 87, 89, 91, 93 and 95, block 162, Third division, $5,400.

The Vermilion Iron & Land company has disposed of one-half interest in all its lands for $300,000. There are nearly 2,500 acres owned by this company situated in 60-11, 62-10, 62-13, 62-14, 64-6, 64-5, 65-5 and 63-12. Messrs. Parent and Hendricks of St. Paul are said to be at the head of the syndicate making the purchase. No change will be made in the officers of the company, and Maj. T. B. Hoover will continue to direct the work of opening up the vast ore deposits.

Hon. Roswell P. Flower of New York, Senator Philetus Sawyer of Wisconsin, Henry Seibert of New York, O. W. Potter and Jay C. Morse of Chicago, John George of Milwaukee, George N. Ball of Boston, Henry Folger of Kingston, Ont., Col. Isaac H. Wing of Bayfield, Wis., George C. Stone, C. Tower, Jr., and P. B. Winston went to Tower yesterday to visit the mines and the extension of the railroad from Tower eastward.

W. E. Turner was in the city yesterday, purchasing the outfit for his new restaurant and bakery, which he will open on Nov. 1.

Harry Mee, representing Mee Bros., has gone to Manistee, Mich., where he will complete arrangements for the erection of a large lumber mill at Ely. It is expected the extension of the Duluth & Iron Range road to Ely will be ready for traffic by April.

Mr. and Mrs. James Widger left last evening for Scotland, their former home, and will spend the winter there.

It is reported that J. Adam Bede of the Paragrapher contemplates starting a newspaper at the West end.

The St. Clement's society has several objects of contention at its bazaar, and the candidates for the prizes are as follows: For a lady's gold watch, Theresa Norton and Maggie O'Connor; for a gentleman's gold ring, John J. Cullen and Michael Lynch; for a gold mounted double harness, Timothy Ryan and William Miller; for a gold-headed umbrella, Henry H. Ball, and no one opposing.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Big Falls Compass: It is easier for a woman to crochet an opera shawl and finish ten tidies than to mend one pair of socks, and by the same rule, a man can dig ten acres of potatoes in less time than he requires to carry a gladiola plant down cellar.

Lake Crystal Union: It's funny after 100 years the Democratic party does not know enough to improve the opportunity when presented. Bryan will ruin the party and he will run it to Davy Crockett's locker. Johnson is the only man who stands a ghost of a chance.

Crookston Times: Be as ready to give credit to your friends as you are to strangers.—Exchange.

Absurd. Why, we know our friends!

Elk River Star-News: A Britisher interviewed at St. Paul says we ought to eat five meals a day. At present prices one has to hustle to get three meals.

Anoka Free Press: The Mississippi Valley Lumberman informs us that the reason why lumber is so high is because those who buy it bid up the market. Yes, we have noticed the crowds at the lumber yards fighting for a chance to pay $30 for $10 lumber, and getting mad when the dealer refused to charge more than $24 for $8 stuff—that is, we have noticed it in our dreams.

Buffalo Journal: If the government really wishes to dissolve the paper trust it cannot accomplish so much in any other way than by refusing to carry or practically free the many tons of advertising literature through the mails. Uncle Sam is the bill distributor for many alleged periodical publications, which are conducted wholly for advertising purposes. The mail order papers forced the resignation of the fourth assistant postmaster general, Mr. Madden, who was attempting to do his duty by drawing the line at legitimate publications, and since his resignation the policy of the department has been modified.

Princeton Union: Rev. Nichert of the First Baptist church of Fort Wayne, Ind., has come to the conclusion that 450 members of his church are hypocrites and he will ask them to resign. A minister who objects to hypocrites in his congregation might just as well go out of business. The proper step for him to take would be to make endeavor to reform these hypocrites.

Willmar Tribune: There is some talk going on of putting Senator Clapp on the Republican ticket as candidate for vice president in order to offset the Johnson boom. The supposition is that if Johnson is nominated for president by the democrats, the nomination of Clapp for vice president by the Republicans will keep Minnesota in line. It would be interesting to see it tried. Clapp tried his level best to defeat Johnson last year—and Johnson ran only about 8,000 votes ahead of his ticket. That is a fair showing of the comparative strength of the two men with the voters of Minnesota.

The Financial Situation.

Before we have decided
That we're up against a snag
In the money situation,
Let us pause and chew the rag.

At present there's an effort,
Which seems to be quite fair
To all concerned, at making
Financial circles square.

The squaring of the circle,
As everybody knows,
Is just about the hardest
Of any sum that grows.

It isn't mathematics
That they figure with to find
An answer to this problem
Which disturbs the public mind.

It's more like moralmatics
That they're using on the job
Of differentiating
Which is right and which is rob.

It was up to them, they figured,
To gather all the wad
That could be had, regardless
Of government or God.

They didn't stop at trifles
Like honesty and those,
But harvested whatever
The money-blossom blows.

Oh, yes. But now it's diff'rent;
There's honesty in sight,
And all these bunco-bankers
Are taking hurried flight.

The honest men are doing
The proper thing today,
We don't know where they're going,
But they are on the way.

—W. J. LAMPTON in New York World.

On the Trail in Kansas.

Iola Index: Determined that the red mist of crime which shrouds in crimson mystery the death of Caroline May Sapp must be cleared away, convinced that the cruel palm of the hand of a fate now most terrible must be opened to disclose the bloody finger prints of murder most revolting, and with practiced eye and tact born of ripe experience inspecting every possible clue and cross-examining any one, every one who he thinks may reveal information of value, a man with a jaunty carriage, springing step and keen, piercing eyes is mingling with the people of Moran.

The Cold Gray Dawn.

On the edge of a bed sat a rounder one morn—
Ach Looey, ach Looey, ach Looey,
His head was athrob, he was feeling forlorn—
Ach Looey, ach Looey, ach Looey.
Said I to him: "Chappie, what was it you tried?
Did you go against lobsters or oysters well fried?"
With a shake of his poor aching head he replied:
"Chop sooey, chop sooey, chop sooey!"

CONFIDENCE.

New York World: Nowhere in the United States is there any financial panic, crisis or even serious embarrassment except in New York city and Pittsburg. Even in New York the only financial institutions affected are those whose officers went into outside speculation with other people's money.

American farm crops are selling this year for an aggregate sum of $6,500,000,000, the largest amount that agriculture has ever returned to the people of any country in any year. The mines are working at a high state of productivity. More coal will be unearthed, more pig iron smelted, more steel plates rolled this year than ever before. In the South the cotton crop is bringing twice what it did ten years ago. The New England mills are humming busily. Everywhere wages are high and employment easily obtained.

If this were a time of business failure, of lack of employment, of poor crops, of general poverty, financial depression would be expected and a lowering of values would be inevitable. But why should there be a panic in New York when the community is prosperous? Why should values be shaken when legitimate business is earning such profitable returns?

The answer is simply because certain New York banks and trust companies abandoned their legitimate functions to become gambling institutions. Instead of confining themselves to the business of sound banking, their officers took their depositors' money for use in private speculation. As well might they have taken the banks' cash to Canfield's gambling house or to the boookmakers at the race track.

Country Manual Training.

Century: Even manual training needs new direction as it touches country life. It may not be necessary to eliminate the formal exercises of model work and weaving and the like; but some of the practical problems of the home and farm may be added. How to make a garden, to lay out paths, make fences and labels, are manual training problems. How to saw a board off straight, to drive a nail, to whittle a peg, to make a tooth for a hand hay rake, to repair a shoe, to sharpen a saw, to paint a fence, to hang a gate, to adjust a plow point, to mend a strap, to prune an apple tree, to harness a horse—the problems are bewildering from their very number. Manual training can be so taught in the schools that are equipped for it as, in ten years, to start a revolution in the agriculture of any commonwealth.

Look Away From the Ticker.

New York Times: The banker, who is under the necessity of keeping his assets liquid, may be under the necessity of studying the ticker, even regarding securities of whose value he is assured, but the individual investor, the average person of moderate means, who neither borrows nor lends, is prudent in looking away from the ticker to the property. If satisfied with the income realized, and if convinced that it is not imperiled, then Wall street's vagaries may be watched like a storm at sea by those on dry land. The income and its security, not the price, should concern the moderate person strange to Wall street, and wondering what all this disturbance is about. The individual who knows his own affairs, and is secure regarding them, need not worry at all about the woes of others, except philanthropically. The prophets may wrangle all they will about how bad things are, or may become, they will not affect at all those whose income is sure.

Spendthriftiness.

The man who spends his all has fun;
The man who saves his all has none;
Yet it is best, the wise ones say,
To save some for a rainy day.
But, if 'tis hard to save a bit,
And easy to spend all of it,
Just let her slide—the fun you'll gain,
And like as not 'twill never rain.
—L. FRANK BAUM'S Father Goose Year Book.

Society News in Kansas.

Atchison Globe: It is not polite to call a man Aleck unless that is his name.

How much does a bridegroom usually pay the preacher who marries him?

Our experience with Western society is that it is very pleasant until the singing begins.

In the Whitelow-Sapp love affair at Moran, Kan., Whitlow told Miss Sapp that he would sell his dray and leave the country. This threat caused Miss Sapp to kill herself. In a novel, the hero would have threatened to close his studio.

BATHGATE SCORCHED.

North Dakota Town is Damaged by a Thirty Thousand Dollar Fire.

Bathgate, N. D., Oct. 28.—One whole block on both sides of the central business street of this city was destroyed by fire, buildings and stock, Saturday. The blaze started in the Howard grocery store, and the origin is unknown. The alarm was given at 10:30 in the morning and it was 2:30 in the afternoon before the town fire department had the flames under control, and only by good management were the flames prevented from spreading to other blocks. The losses include buildings, which are a total loss in several cases amounting to about $30,000. It is estimated that the insurance will not exceed one-half the loss.

DIGGING FOR WELL, COMES ACROSS COAL.

Fosston, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The importance of a discovery made a few days ago within a short distance of the business center of Fosston can only be imagined. The fact remains that coal was actually dug from the ground at the depth of about twenty-six feet by Messrs. Canfield and Johnson, while engaged in excavating a new well for John Vig on his residence property, Harrison avenue.

Mr. Vig is mysteriously reserved in regard to the surprising find, but admits that coal was dug from the well as stated above and to verify his assertion has shown a piece of it measuring about twelve inches long and five or six inches in diameter. It is not of a kind ever brought into this locality and the truthfulness of the workmen and the owner of the ground cannot be questioned. It was taken from the earth close to where the clay overlays the quicksand. How much more there may be in the ground about is unknown, but the possibilities should the coal be found in quantities here can scarcely be estimated. Further investigations will undoubtedly be made, but for the present the possessor of this miniature mine holds his own council.

TWO TRAGIC DEATHS.

Winona, Minn., Oct. 28—Louis Restfeldt, 59 years old, committed suicide in a room in the Milwaukee house by shooting himself in the right temple. He had been on a prolonged spree.

August Ratza, employed at the Laird-Norton mill, was killed by falling down an elevator shaft.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

INTEREST IS SLIGHT

Cloquet's Coming City Election Promises to be Tame Affair.

Nominating Convention is to be Held Tuesday Evening.

Cloquet, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—A week from tomorrow, Nov. 5, the biennial election of officers for the city of Cloquet will be held. Many candidates for the various offices have been mentioned, but as yet there are no signs of a very exciting time on election day. At the meeting of the city council held Monday evening, it was decided that a committee of three be appointed for the purpose of calling ward caucuses for nominating candidates for city offices. This committee has called the various ward caucuses for this evening at 8 o'clock, to meet at the following places: First ward, in the city hall; Second ward, in the Finish Temperance hall; Third ward, in the Crescent hotel; and at which meetings a ward alderman and five delegates to the city convention will be nominated.

The present city officials have proved entirely satisfactory, and the fact that they have paid the old debts, which amounted to about $15,000, and left a cash balance of $14,000 in the treasury, speaks well for them. A number of the present officers are candidates for re-election, but there are others who will not be candidates, as they feel that they have not the time to spare to devote to the city's business that a person should have in looking after the interests of the municipality.

Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock the city convention will be held in the city hall to nominate a mayor, two aldermen-at-large, a city treasurer and a special municipal judge.

CAR SHORTAGE MAKES IT HARD

For Farmers to Get Money and Pay Their Bills.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The threshing machine men in this city are finding great trouble in making their collections, but think that if the present good condition of the weather keeps up they will be able to finish their collections by the end of the month, or the middle of November. They attribute the cause principally to a shortage of cars as it is now very difficult for the railroads to keep the elevators open and the farmers are finding trouble in disposing of their grain.

Another cause is that only about two-thirds of the wheat is threshed. The threshing crews are all very short owing to the scarcity of labor and the progress is very slow. They say that the machine sales this year are greatly below the sales last year, some saying that it has been about half what it was then. The farmers have been patching up their old machinery and making it serve this year instead of buying new machines, and the only farm machinery that is being sold at the present time is plows and drills.

CALUMET'S NEW HOSPITAL

Officers Are Elected and Name is Decided Upon.

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trustees of the new public hospital of Calumet held a meeting in the rooms of the Laurium club and perfected the organization of the hospital association. It was decided to designate the new hospital the Calumet Public hospital.

The following officers were elected: President, Charles Briggs; first vice president, William J. Uren; second vice president, Dr. A. L. Lawbaugh; secretary, Col. J. P. Peterman; treasurer, James T. Fisher.

Committees were named as follows:

Executive committee—Paul P. Roehm, A. W. Kerr, Dr. A. L. Lawbaugh, Johnson Vivian, Jr., Frank S. Carlton.

Finance committee—James Macnaughton, Peter Ruppe, James T. Fisher.

House committee—Col. J. P. Peterman, Col. W. H. Thielman, Edward Ulseth.

Auditing committee—Fred Smith, Frank H. Schumaker, W. J. Uren.

LARGE TIMBER TRACT

In Lake Superior Country Has Just Changed Hand.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twelve thousand acres of fine timber land in the Lake Superior country has been sold by J. M. Pereles and others of this city to the Huron Bay Lumber company of Grand Rapids, Mich., the consideration being $220,000. The land is covered with valuable hardwood timber an dis located at Huron Bay and Arvon, Mich. tI is reported that the Grand Rapids firm will make immediat arrangements to cut the timber and erect a sawmill for turning it into hardwood lumber.

GETS CANADIAN TIMBER.

East Grand Forks Lumberman Has Secured Big Concession.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Bonners Ferry Lumber company of Bonners Ferry, Idaho, of which R. H. McCoy of the Grand Forks Lumber company, which operates a big sawmill at East Grand Forks, is president, has secured a concession of 108,000,000 feet of Canadian timber on the Mayie river, which empties into the Kootenai in Idaho, after flowing across the Canadian boundary into Idaho. This timber, which is all to be floated down the river to the big mills at Bonners Ferry will be sawed there.

G. R. Ismon, for years a cruiser for the Grand Forks Lumber company in the pine districts of Northern Minnesota, is now located just across the Canadian line from East Port, Idaho, where he says there are millions of feet of fine timber which will keep the sawmills going for many years to come. He states that thousands of lumberjacks, who spent years in Minnesota and Wisconsin, are now located in the West in the section of country where he is. Scores of the big lumbermen of this section are now interested in Canadian timber.

WRECK VICTIMS BURIED AT SOO

Five Who Perished on Cyprus Are Given Burial.

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 28.—The bodies of Frank Eisendorf, Thomas McCarthy, Barney McCondell, the man whose name is supposed to be either Myers or Luberger and the unknown deckhand, the five remaining victims of the Cyprus wreck, were buried at Riverside cemetery, all efforts to find relatives or to effect better identification where necessary having proved futile.

The bodies were buried under the instructions and at the expense of the Pickands-Mather company. A pleasant lot was secured and the bodies were all cared for in every respect, having been embalmed and placed in very nice caskets. Excellent markers will be placed at the graves.

It was thought for a time that investigations were to lead to the finding of relatives of the man whose name is supposed to be Myers of Luberger and it was thought that the body would be held for a while longer, but all the clues proved to be groundless, so that the body was buried along with the others. The efforts made by the steamship company and all others interested to care well for the bodies of the wreck victims, locate relatives and the like is occasioning much favorable comment.

FACING STRIKE OF DAIRY MAIDS

Farm Lasses Want More Money or Will Quit Jobs.

Waupaca, Wis., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Farm wives of Waupaca county face a strike among dairy maids and farmer girls who "work out." Hundreds of good looking and capable country girls who have heretofore been content with wages of $2 and $2.50 a week, now demand double this money and threaten that if they do not receive it that they will go to Milwaukee or Chicago and apply for positions in the big stores or factories. Along with their demand for higher wages, the girls ask that they be given three afternoons and three evenings off each week. While there is no organized movement, many girls are leaving the places where they have worked for years and country matrons say that it is impossible to persuade them to remain, although they are shown every kindness.

LOVED WIFE'S SISTER.

North Dakota Russian Arrested as He Was Eloping With Her.

Minot, N. D., Oct. 28.—Chicki Broth, a Russian, who has been living near Garrison, was brought to this city by Sheriff Lee and placed in the Ward county jail. Broth is charged with attempting to elope with his wife's sister who was also brought to this city as a partner in the escapade.

Broth was arrested near Flaxton, where he had headed from Garrison. The complaint was filed by Mrs. Broth.

HIRED MAN DECAMPS.

Jamestown, N. D., Oct. 28.—H. J. Startzell, a farmer living eight miles west of Pingree, left his farm a few days ago with a bunch of cattle, which he had to deliver, and left his new hired man, with whom he was but little acquainted, but thought could be trusted at least with farm stock, in charge of his stock until his return. Startzell returned home the next night and found that the man had disappeared and had taken with him a horse, a 32-40 rifle, hat, pair shoes, stick pin, raincoat and saddle.

The horse stolen was a small gray mare, weight about 950 or 1,000 pounds, had wire cut on inside of right hind leg.

TO QUICKLY CURE A COUGH OR COLD

A never failing home remedy for coughs and colds is made from the following formula to be mixed at home:

"Two ounces of glycerine, one half ounce of Concentrated oil of pine, one half pint of good whiskey, mix and shake thoroughly; use in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours."

This, if followed up, will cure any cough that is curable or break up an acute cold in twenty-four hours. The ingredients all can be gotten at any drug store. Concentrated oil of pine comes put up for medicinal use only in half ounce vials enclosed in small birch wood cases designed to protect it from heat and light. The bulk oils and the patent medicine imitations sometimes put up in wooden boxes should be avoided as they contain resin and other impurities that produce nausea and permanent kidney trouble. To get the right article be sure it is the "Concentrated" oil of pine as this is really the only soluble pine preparation known to science and is the result of the experiments made in the pine forests of Maine where camps were established for the treatment of throat and lung diseases and where so many remarkable cures were effected.

DIED OF TETANUS.

Boy Injured in Wreck at Buffalo, N. D., Did Not Survive Injuries.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Clarence Erickson, the young man who received injuries to one of his feet at Buffalo, N. D., at the same time David More was fatally injured, died at St. John's hospital from lockjaw, which was a result of his wounds.

Erickson was 17 years f age and was run over by the cars at the same time the 11-year-old son of Banker G. S. More of Buffalo was killed. The Erickson boy's injuries consisted of crushed foot and he was brought to this city and put in the hospital, where it was thought unnecessary to amputate the member until a few days ago. However, tetanus poisoning set in and the lad succumbed despite the efforts of the physicians.

GRAND MARAIS FIRE.

Fred Bromer's Building is Destroyed, Entailing Large Loss.

Grand Marais, Minn., Oct. 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The worst fire in this city in years did heavy damage to the two-story building of Fred Bromer on Monroe street a few days ago, entailing a loss of about $4,000. Only the hardest work on the part of the volunteer department and the bucket brigade saved a large livery barn across the street and other buildings. The heaviest losers in the Bromer block were Bergstein & Cohen, who occupied the lower floor and lost all their stock. They were insured for $1,500. Mr. Cohen estimates that they had $3,000 worth of stock on hand. The occupants of the rooms upstairs were heavy losers. Edward Sterling lost about $500 in household goods. Hans Kasper lost about the same amount. Ed Johnstone, Leo Gross and P. J. Bayle lost all of their effects. Mr. Johnstone, who is engaged at the Bramer mill, probably had few of his belongings with him; Mr. Gross and Mr. Bayle had been hunting and saved nothing but the clothes they were wearing. The building was insured for $1,200, which was several hundred dollars less than the value of the structure.

FATHER L'HIVER,

Aged Priest, Pioneer in Grand Forks, Dead at Eighty-Two.

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Father L'Hiver, who was the second priest of the Catholic parish in Grand Forks, died Saturday at the Mercy hospital in Devils Lake. News of his death caused profound sorrow among his many friends everywhere. He was 82 years old, but was quite vigorous up to the time of his death. His work among the Indian settlers in the vicinity of Dunseith has been notable.

Father L'Hiver came to Grand Forks in 1879 and remained in charge of the parish here until 1883. While here he built a temporary church.

EASY FOR CROOKSTON.

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The football game here Saturday between the high school teams of Crookston and Detroit was all one sided, the locals winning by a score of 35 to 0. The visitors outweighed the locals, and were a husky lot, but lacked knowledge of the tactics of the game under the new rules. The locals played a brilliant game throughout. The pluck of the visitors excited the admiration of all present, as after the first few minutes' play it was seen that they had no chance to win.

MINNESOTA IN BRIEF

Crookston—Thomas Jorgenson was examined as to his sanity in probate court and was sent to Fergus Falls accompanied by O. H. Dale of Erskine, near where the unfortunate young man, who is but 28 years of age was found wandering about.

St. Cloud—Word has reached St. Cloud of a most deplorable condition in the family of a well known farmer in Mayhew Lake, Benton county, Anthony Zielowski. The family comprises besides the father and mother, five young children, all of whom, including the parents, are ill with diphtheria.

Minneapolis—Governor John A. Johnson, Dean W. S. Pattee and other notable people will join with the congregation of Bethlehem Swedish Lutheran church in the celebration of the thirty-third anniversary of its organization. The event will be observed Wednesday evening at the church, Lyndale and Fourteenth avenues north.

Crookston—Messrs. Sullivan and Sims have dissolved partnership as contractors on the Euclid ditch, being ditch No. 66. Mr. Sullivan having the contract all to himself and has a full force working on the same at the present time.

Floodwood — Frank Cole has arrived here from Garrettson, S. D., with a carload of horses and implements for use during the winter in his logging camp on the upper Floodwood.

Sauk Centre—County Superintendent of Schools Paul Ahles, has issued calls for sectional meetings of teachers of the county to be held in six different cities and towns as follows: Sauk Centre, St. Cloud, Melrose, Albany, Paynesville and Kimball.

DAKOTAS IN BRIEF

Hot Springs, S. D.—Fire destroyed the Hiawatha hotel and Catholican and Siloam bath houses. The loss is $30,000; insurance $15,000. The fire is supposed to have started from electric wires.

Fargo, N. D.—W. B. Walker, charged with mailing obscene literature, was returned to Fargo by United States Marshal Shea and will stand trial. He was a teacher in the northern part of the state and was adjudged insane after his arrest and taken to an asylum at Washington, from which he has been discharged as cured.

Grand Forks, N. D.—In vain Mrs. J. McCutcheon, who came here from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., pleaded with State's Attorney Wineman to aid her in her efforts to secure the pardon of Joe Bassanella, her brother, who was sentenced to life imprisonment a few years ago for the murder of Axel Anderson, a homesteader.

Minot, N. D.—The 5-year-old daughter of Maywor Plant of Forest River was seriously burned while playing around a rubbish fire in the yard. The mother's hands were badly burned in putting out the fire.

Fargo, N. D.—Barney Gray, son of a prominent Valley City banker, was arrested in Fargo Saturday on a statutory charge preferred by a prominent young woman of Fargo.

Ardoch, N. D. — Considerable mystery surrounds the disappearance of Thomas McMahon, who left the Park hotel last Wednesday. At one place on the Red river marks were found where some person had gone into the river, but no evidence of his having come out. McMahon was undoubtedly temporarily insane when he left Ardoch, and his friends have grave fears that he is either dead in the timber or has been drowned in the river.

Fargo, N. D.—C. D. Vallier of Des Moines, Iowa, was bound over to the district court by Judge Ryan on the charge of carrying concealed weapons. Vallier was arested Thursday by Officer Mullen just as he was in the act of drawing a loaded revolver.

Williston, N. D.—In a published statement, T. S. Becker of this city refuses to be a candidate for state cenator from this district. He, however, would consent to being a candidate for state's attorney of Williams county.

Minot, N. D.—Frank Gillespie, a Great Northern engineer, is dead, at the Ward county hospital from injuries received in a wreck near Foxholm about a week ago. Gillespie was engineer of a passenger train whose engine plunged through a bridge.

Larimore, N. D.—Train No. 4, east bound, over the Great Northern, was the first train to reach Larimore that had traveled over the new double track between Devils Lake and Church Ferry. Conductor S. S. Reid was in charge.

WISCONSIN IN BRIEF

Chippewa Falls—After waiting eighteen years, the government has granted Mrs. Ida E. Boardman of Thorpe, a widow's pension. During these years efforts have been made to locate her husband and it is now believed that he was drowned in a river near Pomeroy, Wash.

Waukesha — George Sperl, aged 76, a well known resident of this city, where he had resided nearly fifty years, is dead after an illness of only two days. Mr. Sperl was born in Germany in 1832.

Chippewa Falls — Vassily Andrejertca Ebell of New York, a leader among the Russians in this country, is here, interviewing prominent citizens and also officers of the American Immigration company, with a view to locating a large Russian colony in Chippewa county and in other parts of northern Wisconsin.

Menomonie — J. E. Florin, municipal judge of this city, has received the appointment as counsel for the state fire warden, at a salary of $1,800 a year. The work will keep him from home most of the time.

Manitowoc—Grant Cromwell, aged 20, a transient, employed as a farmhand, was sentenced to one year at Waupun in the municipal court, when he pleaded guilty to the theft of a $200 violin. He took the instrument from a wagon at a party and it was found secreted in his room.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Houghton—A jug of alcohol and a match, in the Atkin pharmacy basement, resulted in an explosion which slightly burned Thomas Rickard, who is employed in the pharmacy and caused a slight fire in the basement which was quickly extinguished by L. H. Atkin.

Calumet—Postmaster Charles J. Wickstrom expects to receive additional mail boxes in the near future, and these will be placed in convenient places throughout the village of Red Jacket. The corner of Seventh and Scott streets is to receive one of these boxes.

Red Jacket—Out of a total of $19,887 due the village of Red Jacket in taxes, Treasurer Schneller reuorts that he has collected a trifle better than $10,000, leaving $9,000 still to be collected.

Hancock—John Kukko of Ely, Minn., and Mike Jokisalo of Red Lodge, Mont., officers of the Grand Lodge of Knights of Kaleva, are visiting the Copper country lodges.

Treasures Found in Our American Forests.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers of this and other countries. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., believes that our American forests abound in medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them, and, in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the most marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action.

The reason why "Golden Medical Discovery" cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

To aid in healing old sores, or ulcers, apply Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve to them while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" to purify and enrich the blood.

Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve is cleansing and pain relieving. It destroys the bad odors arising from suppurating, or running, sores and puts them in the best possible condition for healing.

The "All-Healing Salve" is a superior dressing for all open, running, or suppurating, Sores or Ulcers. For healing open wounds, cuts and scratches it is unsurpassed.

If your medicine dealer does not have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock mail 50 cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive it by return post.

In treating all open sores, or ulcers, boils, carbuncles and other swellings, it is important that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery be taken persistently to purify the blood and thereby remove the cause of the trouble. It is in the blood that the great battle of health has to be fought. The ulcer and the sore are simply the scarlet flowers of disease, with roots running down into the blood. These roots must be eradicated or the disease will break out afresh. "Golden Medical Discovery" cleanses the blood of all foul and poisonous accumulations, pushes out the dead and waste matter, and thus purifies the entire life current. Disease in the flesh must die out when it is no longer fed by foul blood. "Golden Medical Discovery" effectively cures disease in the flesh by curing its cause in the blood.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic drains, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements caused by weakness, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines and physicians had failed.

Nursing mothers and over-burdened women in all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by overwork, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating, restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable pelvic catarrhal drain, prolapsus, anteversion or retroversion or other displacements of womanly organs, from weakness of parts, will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully, and fairly persistently, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take as candy.

Perfect Womanhood

The greatest menace to woman's permanent happiness in life is the suffering that comes from some derangement of the feminine organs.

Many thousands of women have realized this too late to save their health, barely in time to save their lives.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging, that she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has backache, headache, bearing-down sensations, nervousness, irregularities or the "blues," she should start at once to build up her system by a tonic with specific powers, such as

It cures Female Complaints, such as Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and all Organic Diseases, and is invaluable in the Change of Life. It dissolves and Expels Tumors at an early stage. Subdues Faintness, Nervous Prostration, Exhaustion, and strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility, Indigestion, and invigorates the whole female system. It is an excellent remedy for derangements of the Kidneys in either sex.

RAILROADS

MAY AFFECT RAILROADS.

Money Tightness May Cause Reduction in Traffic.

Duluth railroad men are discussing what the probable effect on shipping the temporary tie-up of ready money will be. They are asking each other whether shippers will show a tendency to hold up a little in their shipments while the first effects of the temporary stringency are in force.

Most of the railroad men are of the opinion that shipping will not suffer at all from the action of the banks in curtailing money. Some of them believe, however, that shipping will be influenced by the action of the banks and that receipts at the Head of the Lakes will show a decided falling off until the first effects of the hampered method of doing business have worn off, in grain at least this will be the case.

IN EFFECT AT ONCE.

Low Rates Offered From Duluth to New York.

It is stated here today that the St. Paul-Chicago lines will offer a reduction in the through fare to New York tomorrow. This will mean that the Duluth traveling public will be able to travel from the Head of the Lakes to New York for $18.50, a reduction of about $6 from the present rate.

It is not probable that the cut of the Erie will have any effect upon the St. Paul-Chicago fare. Unless some of the preferential lines get busy with a cut it is hardly possible that a reduction in the $8 fare will be made. But to meet the combination fare on through Eastern business it will be imperative for the lines doing business west of Chicago to adjust their through tariff to meet the new combination rates made possible by the reduction of the Erie.

NO EXCITEMENT.

Depositors Allowed to Draw Out Sums Under $100 at Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Within an hour after the opening of the doors, fully 400 people were lined up at the withdrawal windows of the Illinois Trust & Savings bank, which has the largest number of savings accounts in the city. Depositors were allowed, if they wished, to take out sums under $100, but for all amounts over this the full legal notices were required. The majority of those in the banks during the early part of the day gave notice of their intention to withdraw money. There was no excitement.

In the Hibernian Savings bank about one hundred people had given notice of withdrawal before 11 o'clock, and as many more were waiting in line. At the other savings banks it appeared to be on a normal basis.

Depositors having checking accounts did not appear to be worried in the least by the situation, and business proceeded upon normal lines in all of the banks.

CITY BRIEFS

Death of C. F. Backman.

Sunday at the residence, 2114 West Fourth street, occurred the death of Carl F. Backman, an old-time resident of Duluth. Death was due to pneumonia from which deceased had been a sufferer for only a few days. He is survived by the widow and two sisters. The funeral will be held Wednesday with short services at the residence at 1:30 p. m. and from the First Swedish Mission church at 2:30 p. m.

Services in Country.

Rev. Carl G. Olson, pastor of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church, conducted services at Five Corners yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Five Corners is located about eight miles from the city.

Judge Morris Will Return.

Judge Page Morris, of the United States court for this district, will return to Duluth the last of the week after a prolonged vacation since the early part of September. The judge has been in the East most of the time visiting his old home in Virginia. He also attended the Episcopal convention at Richmond. Several cases of importance will be taken up next week by Judge Morris among them being the Murphy suits involving iron ore lands valued at many millions of dollars.

Council Will Meet.

The council meets tonight in regular session and there is little of interest outside routine work to come before that body. The session will probably be a short one.

Two Small Fires.

The fire department was called out shortly before noon today by a small blaze which started in a residence at 316 West Fifth street. The damage was slight and the fire soon extinguished. Sunday, the department responded to an alarm from the Western Union offices on Superior street. The switch board was out of order in some respect and a slight blaze started which was extinguished without any damage being done.

Case Not Yet Finished.

The contest case of John E. C. Schumann against the state of Minnesota over a tract of land in the Beaver Bay district was continued today at the land office. Schumann, who settled on the land two years ago, denies the claim of the state that the land is swamp and is fighting to retain possession of it. The case was begun Saturday morning.

Chief Troyer Back.

Chief of Police Troyer returned today from Goshen, Ind., where he was called by the death of his mother, who passed away the latter part of last week.

James P. Hutton Here.

James P. Hutton, one of the corps of well-known writers Henry W. Savage employed to do the press work in connection with the tour of "Madam Butterfly" last season, and who has many friends in Duluth, is in the city for a few days, in the interests of "The Prince of Pilsen," which is coming soon under Savage auspices. Mr. Hutton's company has been out West, and he reports that business is big there and that the people have lots of money.

Lumbermen Sue on Contract.

William O'Brien and Ab Smith, lumbermen, have started suit against the Pulpwood company, to recover judgment for $1,126.40 alleged to be due them on a $5,815.76 pulpwood contract. The papers have been filed in the district court.

Settler Alleged Insane.

Information of insanity was lodged in the probate court this morning against John Tiala, a Finlander, 50 years of age, residing about eighteen miles north of Biwabik. The information was filed by John Ljung, a neighbor of Tiala, who claims that the latter has melancholia, as a result of sickness. Tiala is said to be afraid of everybody. A deputy sheriff has been sent to Biwabik to bring Tiala to Duluth for examination.

P. J. Borgstrom Seriously Ill.

Peter J. Borgstrom, for some time past a clerk in the county auditor's office, is seriously ill with pneumonia at his home in West Duluth. Yesterday his family had practically given up hope, but today his condition is said to be much better, although Mr. Borgstrom is not yet out of danger.

Range Court Begins.

Judge J. D. Ensign, Clerk of the District Court J. P. Johnson, and Sheriff W. J. Bates have gone to Hibbing, where the range term of the district court opened in the municipal court room this morning. There are seventeen court cases for trial at the first range term, after which the court will hold a term in Virginia. The fact that there are so many cases for trial at the range term is likely to result in some change in the date hereafter, as the court will have more than enough work on the range to carry the term over into the regular November term of district court here.

Married Without Delay.

Henry Boffer and Eva Walker, both of St. Louis county, secured a marriage license in the county clerk's office today, and moved along a few doors to the probate court, where Judge Middlecoff tied the knot.

WEST DULUTH MILL BURNING

The Old Merrill & Ring Structure is in Flames.

Shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon, fire was discovered in the north wing of the old Merrill & Ring mill at the foot of Main street in West Duluth. A telephone call summoned the West Duluth fire company and a quick spread o fthe flames through the wing necessitated a second call, taking No. 2 company to the scene of the fire.

Several streams were put on the flames and within half an hour after the first alarm, it looked as though the flames would be confined to the wing in which they originated, and would be kept from piles of lumber, owned by the Alger-Smith company and piled on the Merrill & Ring docks near the mill.

The Merrill & Ring mill was shut down fully a year ago, and the origin of the fire is a mystery. The building is owned by the Merrill & Ring company, and the machinery was sold some time ago to the Duluth Iron & Metal company. Some of it has been removed and that remaining is of little value. About two months' cut from the Alger-Smith mill, nearby, has been piled on the Merrill & Ring docks and measures were being taken to prevent a spread of the flames to it.

The Merrill & Ring mill was erected in 1881 and was operated continuously up to about a year ago. Since that time only a watchman has been employed there. The company has been cancelling the insurance on the building, and there is little insurance on it at present.

HOLDING THEIR COPPER SHARES

Michigan People Have Plenty of Faith in the Metal.

W. I. McMaster, agent of the South Shore at Hancock, was in Duluth today and expresed his opinion that the people of the Copper country had the utmost confidence in the recuperative ability of copper and were not selling, but on the contrary were buying where they could secure the capital.

"They have plenty of faith in the ability of copper to resume a high mark again," said Mr. McMasters. "People who have stock are holding on to it, while people who have not all their stock paid for are backing it up as rapidly as they can secure the necessary funds. They believe copper is forced down by unnatural influences and believe that now is the time to buy, not to let go of stocks."

Mr. McMaster expressed the opinion that many copper holders had further increased their stock whenever the opportunity presented itself. "Copper is hard to buy in the Copper country right now, but anyone that wants to dispose of stock can find a ready purchaser," he said.

LITTLE LOGGING BEING DONE

Camps Far Behind Owing to Scarcity of Men.

W. L. Kenny, representing the interests of a large lumber company of Bassett, was in Duluth today endeavoring to hire men for the starting of several of the camps that the officials of the company are ready to put in operation.

Mr. Kenny says that operations will fall far behind the average before the companies can secure sufficient men to begin operations on anything like a normal scale. There are only a few men in the woods at the present time, and until the men begin to come from the harvest fields, the lumbering contractors have little hope of getting enough labor to work at 25 per cent of a normal cutting.

Any man that wants to work can secure employment, regardless of whether he has had any experience in the woods. Mr. Kenny is here trying to get enough men to start one of the camps, but finds that men are very scarce. He expressed the opinion that lumbering operations would be normal when the influx of laborers from North Dakota began.

CONSERVATIVES GAIN IN RUSSIAN DUMA.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 28.—Up to noon today twenty-four additional members of the lower house of the Third Russian parliament had been elected. ## BLAINE IS DEFEATED

Duluth Wins Glorious Gridiron Victory From Superior Team.

Railroad Wreck and "Rough House" Features of Game.

On a field of slimy, clinging clay and in a drizzling rain, which developed at times into a veritable downpour, the Duluth Central high school football team won the Head of the Lakes championship Saturday by defeating Blaine high school of Superior at Superior by a score of 4 to 0. Nearly 3,000 people, nearly half of them from Duluth, cheerfully stood through the rain to see the teams do noble battle on the muddy field and Duluth gain a victory, sweeter than any other they could conceive.

It is said the score should have been greater. The Duluth players charged after the game that incorrect measuring of the distance turned the ball over to Superior within the last few minutes' play, when Duluth had carried the oval to within a few inches of the Superior goal line.

Be that as it may, Duluth won. The Central high school boys showed a superiority of play which the close score does not indicate. Crawford's good right leg carried the victory, when he boosted the ball between the goal posts early in the first half, but the honor of gaining the only score for his team would not have been Crawford's on a dry field. Duluth showed superiority at every turn of the play. Their punting was more effective, their line held more steadily, their backs circled the ends behind better interference and with more speed than the Superior backs. But the gripping clay held them back. They slipped when they turned, and several times, when Duluth runners broke away from the crowds, apparently for long gains, the treacherous ground impeded their progress and they fell, to be pinned to the earth by their opponents.

Duluth Was Strong.

Duluth showed vast improvement in the play, and Superior was weaker than the Duluth supporters were led to expect. The great Buchanan tore off one 30-yard run, but at other times he was powerless against the hard tackling Duluth ends. The Superior line was as a wall of flimsy cotton before the charges of the Duluth forwards. Three times Peterson, the Blaine quarter, tried to drop-kick a goal from the field, and as many times the Duluth forwards broke through the line and blocked the ball as quickly as it had left his toe.

The Duluth line was strong. Only twice during the entire game did Blaine make first down, and then on long runs by the halves. Buchanan made one 30-yard run and Sherman had another of 20 yards to his credit, but they were the only Superior men to succeed against the strong Duluth defense.

The Forward Pass.

The forward pass was Duluth's strong point. Caulkins' handling of it was beautiful. Out of eight attempts he failed only twice, and those two times the Duluth men slipped in the clay and were prevented from reaching their position to receive the pass. From 15 to 30 yards were gained on each forward pass, and the Superior men were totally unable to fathom the Duluth formations for the ground-gaining play.

The Blaine team found the forward pass an unwieldy means of gaining ground. They tried it three times for as many failures. On each attempt the ball failed to pass outside of the required five yards from the center of the line of scrimmage. Once it was particularly disastrous. After Sherman had carried the ball to Duluth's ten yard line with a twenty-yard run, the forward pass was tried. Peterson threw the ball directly over the center and it was carried behind the goal line, but was brought back and Duluth held for downs, securing the ball and punting out of danger.

Much Punting.

Punting played a prominent part in the play in both halves, with Superior doing the greater part. In the second half, the game resolved itself largely into a punting duel. Neither side could do much in the mud and they contented themselves with punting after two tries for gain after securing possession of the ball. As a rule, the punting was weak, though both Crawford and Peterson got off some good boots.

Crawford was again the star of the Duluth eleven. Up to about the middle of the second half, when he suffered an injury to his neck, he was into the thick of every play. His tackle-out-of-position bucks were effective ground gainers and his work in the line was great. After his injury, he continued to play and held his own for the remainder of the game.

Caulkins showed great improvement. He used his head to greater effect, kept the play on the move all the way and handled the team in a manner pleasing to the Duluth rooters. His handling of forward passes was well-nigh perfect and when called upon, his tackling was sure. The only two runs of consequence made by Superior might have gone for touchdowns, but for his excellent work on the defensive.

Cummings, too, played better ball than on the previous Saturday. He was a ground gainer around the ends and on the defensive, his play was effective. On the whole, the entire Duluth team played great ball. It was the crucial game of the year, the one on which more depended than any other. A victory over Superior has more sweetness in it for Duluth people than any other, and the boys worked as they never did before to gain the victory yesterday. They gained it honestly and fairly. They showed superiority all the way—superiority of form on offensive and defensive and superiority in knowledge of the game.

"Rough House" Started.

The game was marked by two incidents, which detracted somewhat from Duluth spectators' enjoyment of it. Between the halves, elated over the prospects of victory, the Duluth students, headed by one of the boys carrying a large Duluth Central high school pennant, started to march around the field. When they reached the Superior side of the grounds, somebody precipitated an embryo riot by tearing the pennant from the staff. Instantly, all was confusion. The Duluth boys tried to rescue their banner and they were met by repulses, more forcible than gentle. The policemen broke into the crowd and tried to separate the combatants, but they were handled rather roughly. It ended in the pennant being torn to bits, and the crowd being broken up into little groups, which started a small altercation after nearly every play. The incident did not serve to generate a cordial feeling between the students of the two cities and was regretted by the members of the faculty of both schools, who were forced to witness it.

Railroad Wreck.

On the return trip the Duluth contingent had another unpleasant experience. Near the Great Northern roundhouse, a collision was threatened between their train and a freight crossing on a diagonal track. In throwing on the air, the engineer of the special jolted his train from the rails and the engine and the front coach bumped along on the ties for a considerable distance. Nobody was injured in either the row at the grounds or the accident to the train, but those in the front coach were shaken up some and a little scared. Some of the members of the excursion party walked across the swamp to catch a car, while the others remained on the train, the coaches still on the track, being backed away from the derailed coach and sent ahead on another track.

The Game Itself.

The game began with Blaine kicking off to Duluth's 20-yard line. A forward pass was worked, but was brought back again on account of off-side playing. Cummings made five yards, being forced out of bounds and Duluth punted, the ball being carried back to Duluth's 40-yard line. After two ineffectual attempts to gain through the Duluth line, Peterson tried a kick from placement, but it was blocked and Crawford gained fifteen more on a forward pass. Superior held for downs and the ball went over.

Superior gained five yards in two downs and punted out of bounds. Cummings gained five yards, but Bowen failed to gain and on the next down, Blaine took the ball. They failed to gain and punted out of bounds ten yards past the point of scrimmage. Bowen gained five yards and Cook made two yards through the line. Caulkins and Bowen made short gains and Crawford punted to Superior's 15-yard line. The Duluth line held and Superior punted, Duluth securing the ball on Superior's 25-yard line. Cook made a short gain through the line and Cummings ripped off twenty yards on a beautiful forward pass. McFadden gained about a yard and brought the ball to the center of the field. A forward pass took it to the 2-yard line, but Duluth lost three yards on the next scrimmage. Crawford dropped back to the 15-yard line for a drop kick and booted it squarely between the posts. Duluth 4, Superior 0.

The remainder of the half was played on about even terms, both teams punting frequently. The half ended with Duluth having possession of the ball in the center of the field. Buchanan pulled off a 30-yard run in the latter part of the half and Peterson made two runs for a field goal, but both failed.

Duluth Gets Scare.

Duluth kicked off to Superior to start the second half and Sherman gave the Duluth supporters a scare early in the half. He took the ball from a scrimmage and ran twenty yards to Duluth's ten-yard line, where he was nailed by Caulkins. On the next play, Superior sent the ball across the line on a forward pass, which crossed the center of the line of scrimmage and was not allowed. With few longs, gains and many punts on both sides most of the half was played in the center of the field, with neither goal in danger. The rain and mud made conditions worse every minute and several good runs by Duluth men were brought up short by their slipping in the mud. Finally, with about two minutes to play, Bowen, Cummings and Cook made long gains and brought the ball within a few inches of the Superior goal line. Duluth claimed first down, but the officials turned the ball over and Superior kicked out of danger. Duluth holding the ball in the center of the field, when time was called.

Numerous wrangles and several injuries in the second half took our considerable time and when the game ended, it was so dark, the men could hardly see the ball.

The teams lined up as follows:

| Duluth. | Position | Superior |
|---|---|---|
| McFadden | left end | Clark |
| Paine | left tackle | Zieman |
| Helmer | left guard | Long |
| Coventry | center | A. Smith |
| Pare | right guard | St. Pierre |
| Crawford | right tackle | Nord |
| Duncan | right end | J. Smith |
| Caulkins | quarter | Peterson |
| Bowen | left half | Sherman |
| Cummings | right half | Buchanan |
| Cook | full back | Bradley |

Referee and umpire—Schofield of Nellsville, Wis., and Doane of Milaca, Minn. Field judge and head linesman, Erlow of Superior and St. John of Duluth. Time of halves, 25 and 20 minutes.

Two Harbors Wins.

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Two Harbors Athletic Association Football team defeated the Nelson Dewey high school of Superior, Saturday, by a score of 6 to 0. Nelson Dewey was within striking distance of the Two Harbors goal line several times, but failed to put the ball across.

BIG GAME OF THE YEAR

Minnesota-Chicago Game Now Center of Football Interest.

All Records for Attendance Will Probably be Broken.

Minneapolis, Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The one important topic now in the Western college world is the Minnesota-Chicago game next Saturday. It looks now as if this game would settle the championship. No person who has watched the two teams play will dispute the fact that they are in a class all by themselves. Wisconsin is down and out of anything that even bears a resemblance to a championship team. The terrific drubbing the Illini gave the Cardinals last Saturday put a quietus on any hopes Wisconsin might have cherished. Iowa has an admittedly weak aggregation this year. Michigan, although she does not admit it, must still be called a Western team. However, she plays but one game that amounts to anything, and that is not with a Western team. So it narrows down to the Maroons and the Gophers. Coaches Williams and Stagg are veterans at the business and have records that cannot be beaten anywhere.

No Giants This Year.

The forthcoming game will be largely a battle of brains instead of brawn. All the stories of Minnesota's weight are pipe derams. It needed no expert, for instance, to see that the Gophers weighed fully twenty pounds to a man less than the heavy bunch from Nebraska. The stories in the Chicago dailies of the enormous size of the Gophers make anyone smile who has seen them. The team is the lightest that Minnesota has had during Dr. Williams' tenure. But beef doesn't count this year as it did under the old rules. It is field generalship and variety of plays that does the business. The team that can execute the play that the other side is not prepared for, is the team that wins. Confidence is supreme at Chicago. However, it is to be noticed that Stagg isn't doing the talking. He remembers that Minnesota has never turned out a weak team since his old chum, Harry Williams, has had charge of affairs here.

That Chicago has a mighty back field everyone admits. That Minnesota has a stone wall defense is conceded. Unless Stagg's friends are talking unadvisedly, he has a whole deck of cards up his sleeve that he is going to play. None of Dr. William's friends are saying what he has in the way of new plays. Nobody knows except the squad and the coaches, and they are imbued with the same talkless spirit as the doctor.

There has been an immense amount of talk recently in university circles about Chicago spies in the Gopher camp, but nobody can narrow it down to an authentic source, and no member of the squad believes it. That Stagg would consent to such a thing cannot be believed. That he would allow it to be done against the Gophers is unthinkable. It must not be forgotten that the two coaches, although rivals, have been the closest of friends since they were classmates at old Yale.

Heavy Seat Sale.

The sale of seats for the game has been unprecedented. Manager Reed expects a crowd of 25,000 spectators, special trains are coming from all over the Northwest. Two thousand tickets have already been sold at Chicago. Five hundred of the old ski-u-mah boys are coming from North Dakota and Montana. Every seat offered here has been sold, and are at a premium. People in the Twin Cities are already trying to get seats from the blocks allotted to Duluth and other Minnesota cities. The football world in the West is keyed to the highest pitch. Already newspaper men are arranging for special wires. The telephone and telegraph companies are installing a lot of apparatus at every point allowed for such things. The students at Chicago, who must stay home, are arranging to receive reports of every play by long-distance telephone. The Minnesota Alumni association at Chicago and New York are to receive reports every few minutes. All in all, it is to be the biggest game Minnesota has ever played.

Chicago people are coming here by the thousands. It is the one big event for the sport-loving people of the Windy City. They are arranging for special trains and special rates. The Minneapolis society people are arranging many social functions in honor of friends who will be here.

It is the desire of the management that every element of rowdyism be suppressed. To that end the Minneapolis police force will have a large number of representatives in the crowd. Plain clothes detectives will be on hand in abundance.

The University of Chicago band is coming forty strong and will try to drown the music of Proxy Northrop's orchestra—which is not slow.

Most of the fraternities are arranging banquets for visiting brothers. It is to be the greatest day in football that the West has seen up to date.

WAGNER IS THE LEADER

Great Honus is Hardest Hitter in Pulliam's League.

"Newt" Randall Stands Ninety-Third in List With .211.

The great Honus Wagner carried off the batting honors of the National league again this season, according to the official averages of the players, just announced. Wagner led the league with an average of .350, with Magee of Philadelphia second with .328 and Beaumont of Boston third with .322. The only other .300 hitter in the entire league is Leach of Pittsburg, with .303. Chance was the hardest hitting Cub, and he stands seventh in the list with .293. Schulte is twelfth with .287 and Kling thirteenth with .284.

Wagner was in 142 games and was at bat 515 times. He made 98 runs, and 180 hits for 284 total bases. He had 38 two-base hits to his credit, 14 three-base hits and 6 home runs. He also led the league in stolen bases, with 61, his nearest opponent in that branch of play being Hagee of Philadelphia and Evers of Chicago, with 46.

"Newt" Randall, Duluth's native son, who played with Chicago and Boston, stands ninety-third in the list of hitters, with an average of .211. He was in 94 games and was at bat 336 times. He made 22 runs and 71 hits for 91 total bases. He had 10 two-baggers and 5 triples to his credit. He made 8 sacrific hits and stole 9 bases.

The batting averages of the teams of the National league were as follows: Pittsburg, .254; New York, .251; Chicago, .250; Cincinnati, .247; Boston, .243; Philadelphia, .236; St. Louis, .232; Brooklyn, .232.

WASHBURN IS DEFEATED.

Ironwood Highs Win Game in Wisconsin Town by 17 to 0.

Washburn, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Before fully 1,000 people, the Ironwood High School Football team defeated the Washburn team here Saturday by a score of 17 to 0. The Ironwood team outclassed the local men completely. They were heavier and faster and showed a greater knowledge of the game under the new rules. Washburn played a strong defensive game, but they were unable to check the advances of the visitors, and on the offensive, they were powerless against the greater weight and form of their opponents.

The Ironwood team put the ball across the goal line twice in the first half and kicked goal once. Washburn played a stronger game in the second half and prevented Ironwood from scoring more than once. The field was wet and slippery and the game was played in a drizzling rain.

ELY REGAINS HONORS.

Tower High School Team Defeated by 11 to 0 Score.

Ely, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a well played game here Saturday, the Ely High School Football team regained its lost ground for the championship of the Vermilion range by defeating the Tower team by a score of 11 to 0. On the previous Saturday, Tower had won by 5 to 0 and Ely's victory will probably mean another game to decide the championship.

Both teams played good ball Saturday, but Ely showed great improvement over the form of the previous game. Carlson scored the first touchdown on a long run after securing the ball from a fumble. Skalla kicked goal. The second touchdown came on a trick play, Harry running two-thirds the length of the field. Skalla failed to kick the goal.

TEAMS PLAY TO TIE.

Bemidji Chiefs and High School Have Good Game.

Bemidji, Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The football game played here Saturday between the "Bemidji Chiefs," the newly organized independent team, and the Bemidji high school eleven was the hardest-fought contest ever pulled off on the local gridiron. The game ended in a tie, 5 to 5, each side making a touchdown.

The teams lined up as follows:

"Bemidji Chiefs"—W. Markham, center; Hillaby and Edd, guards; J. Markham and Hod Fisk, tackles; Fred Smith and Scott Stewart, ends; Clem Southworth, quarter; Getchell and Collins, halfbacks; Kelley, fullback.

High School — Grenneman, center; Kreatz and Boyer, guards; Roberts and Lycan, tackles; Hendrum and Kruse, ends; Getchell and Carter, halfbacks, Shook, quarter; Peterson, fullback.

Hummers Lose.

The Hummers, a juvenile football team, suffered their first defeat of the season yesterday on the grounds at Twelfth avenue east, losing to the All-Stars by a score of 11 to 0. The Hummers claim that the game was framed up for them, as the All-Stars were composed of the strongest members of some of the best juvenile teams in the city. The game was fiercely contested, but the All-Stars were heavier and faster than their opponents and were never in danger of defeat.

Glaze is a Hero.

Dispatches from the East on Saturday's game between Dartmouth and Amherst indicate that Jack Glaze, who pitched for the Hibbing ball team during the past summer, is a hero. He is playing quarter on the Dartmouth team, and distinguished himself by saving the day with a goal from placement near the end of the second half. The score of the first half was 5 to 5. In the second half Glaze kicked a goal after a touchdown and Amherst scored again, Dartmouth having a lead by 11 to 10. Glaze kicked a beautiful goal from placement, bringing the score to 15 to 10, the final count.

FIERCELY FOUGHT GAME.

Grand Rapids Defeats Bovey by Score of 4 to 0.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Oct. 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—A field goal by Kramer of the local team two minutes before the final call of time gave the Grand Rapids city team a 4 to 0 victory over Bovey in a hard fought contest here yesterday. During the entire game, both steam showed great form. The ball went back and forth, nearly all of the play being in the center of the field. Both teams were forced to put repeatedly and little advantage was shown on either side at any time.

The Grand Rapids team was weakened somewhat by the absence of two of the regular players, but the substitutes put up a good game and Bovey was never very dangerous. The game was witnessed by a good crowd.

HIBBING HIGHS EASY.

Grand Rapids Team Runs Away With Range Eleven.

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 28. — (Special to The Herald.)—The Hibbing High School Football team was easy for the Grand Rapids highs here Saturday, the boys from Itasca county winning by a score of 22 to 0. The game was played in a heavy snowstorm and the wet field undoubtedly held the score down.

Grand Rapids scored twice in the first half on straight football and kicked both goals, the call of time leaving the score 12 to 0. In the second half, Grand Rapids again crossed the goal line twice, but failed to kick either goal.

Crescents Defeated.

On the grounds at Twelfth avenue east yesterday, the Eighth Avenues defeated the Crescents in a football game by a score of 10 to 0. Both teams played good football and a large crowd watched the game.

Yesterday Dr. Molzalan drove into a country store and returned home unexpectedly, finding McIlvain. McIlvain fled and Dr. Molzalan and his wife engaged in a fight. McIlvain returned armed with a pistol and began shooting. One of the bullets killed Mrs. Molzalan and four struck her husband. McIlvain was shot in the face. He was arrested and placed in jail here.

OLD SORES FED AND KEPT OPEN BY IMPURITIES IN THE BLOOD

If Old Sores were due to outside influences, or if the cause was confined strictly to the diseased flesh around the ulcer, then external treatment and simple cleanliness would cure them. But the trouble is in the blood, which has become unhealthy and diseased, and keeps the sore open by continually discharging into it the impurities and poisons with which the circulation is filled. This poisonous condition of the blood may be the remains of some constitutional trouble; the effect of a long spell of sickness, or because the natural refuse of the body, which should pass off through the proper avenues, has been left in the system and absorbed into the blood. Again, the cause may be hereditary; but it does not matter how the poison becomes intrenched in the blood, the fact that the sore will not heal is evidence of a deep underlying cause. Salves, washes, lotions, etc., may cause the place to scab over temporarily, but the blood is not made any purer by such treatment, and soon the old inflammation and discharge will return and the sore be as bad or worse than before. S. S. S. goes down to the very bottom of the trouble, cleanses and purifies the blood, and makes a permanent cure. S. S. S. enriches and freshens the circulation so that instead of discharging unhealthy matter into the place, it carries rich, tissue-building, flesh-healing blood to the diseased parts and in every way assists in a natural cure of the sore. ## FIRST WIFE

Of Michael McDonald Will Make Fight for His Wealth.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Mary McDonald, the first wife of the late Michael McDonald, former gambling boss, claims that she should have her dower due, that she was not legally divorced, and that the second wife, Dora Feldman Barclay McDonald, has no right to any share in the estate. Notice of the suit has been served on the executors of the will.

The suit is expected to open up fresh scandals bearing on the inner life of McDonald, from the time of his arrival in Chicago from Niagara Falls, where he had been a cab driver, up to the time of his death, a few months after the killing of Webster Guerin, for which crime Dora McDonald was indicted. In the meantime the first Mrs. McDonald seeks to enjoin the executors from paying any money from the estate to the second wife. Judge Barnes is expected to hear the petition.

ENGAGED FOR 21 YEARS.

Courtship of Two Decades at Last Ends in Marriage.

New York, Oct. 28.—When Rev. James P. Byrnes, rector of St. Patrick's church at Richmond, L. I., Sunday night, pronounced the words that made John Seaver and Margaret M. Pfaff husband and wife, a courtship that has endured twenty-one years was brought to a conclusion.

Two decades have come and gone since Mr. Seaver and Miss Pfaff began their courtship. Their other friends of that time have grown families now, but Seaver and his sweetheart put the care of their inwalid fathers above their own happiness. That's the reason the nuptials have been delayed.

WIFE DISCOVERS BODY

Of Her Husband, Who Short Time Before, Hanged Himself.

Edgerton, Wis., Oct. 28.—Becoming despondent because of continued ill health, Robert Peach, aged 45 years, one of the best known tobacco growers in Rock county, committed suicide by hanging himself to a rafter in one of his tobacco sheds. His body was discovered by Mrs. Peach, and while the body was still warm when it was cut down, all attempts at resuscitation failed.

DRAINAGE MEANS MUCH

Benefits to Accrue From Reclamation of Swamp Lands.

Minnesota Has 5,980 Square Miles of Swamp Lands.

Some idea of the immensity of the swamp land area in this country, and the possibilities in the way of reclamation of such acreages is shown in a bulletin recently issued by the United States department of agriculture, entitled "Swamp and Overflowed Lands in the United States, Ownership and Reclamation."

The conclusion reached is that there are 77,000,000 acres of swamp land east of the Rocky mountains that may be reclaimed by drainage. An average price of $8 per acre is put on the land, and a price of $60 per acre when its value shall have been increased through drainage.

The discussion shows that the best methods of reclamation put the cost per acre at $15, making a net increase in value per acre of $37. In carning capacity the reclaimed land in the grain-producing district of the Middle West is placed at $15 to $20 per acre, while in other localities where cabbage and garden truck is cultivated, the net income is placed at over $100 per acre.

Based on the department's reports at the end of June, 1906, the states entitled to swamp lands, under congressional grants, have claimed more than 82,000,000 acres of land. Of these Minnesota has claimed 5,472,375 acres; Michigan, 7,292,278 acres; Wisconsin, 4,802,872 acres, and Iowa, 4,527,816 acres. One-half the land granted by the various acts has gone to the states of Florida, Arkansas and Louisiana, while the other half has been distributed along twelve other states, all in the Middle West, except Oregon. There are several thousand acres remaining to be patented, but these are mostly in small tracts, and in many places no surveys have been made.

To get its information the department of agriculture made inquiry of the county officials, and, in case of sparsely settled regions, of the township officers.

In Minnesota and Wisconsin special agents were employed to make studies of the swamps and report on the probable benefit of their drainage. The result showed 77,000,000 acres capable of reclamation and made fit for cultivation by the building of simple engineering structures, of which 5,980 square miles are within Minnesota alone.

The discussion further shows that about 95 per cent of the swamp land is held by private ownership.

All this land, it is claimed, can be reclaimed, as the engineering problems are simple. Most of the work will have to be done under state drainage laws. In fact the observance of those laws, and the co-operation of the owners, are necessary. Most of the states, like Minnesota, provide for an assessment of the cost, and the law is said to work out well. The conclusion reached in the report is that all states with large swamp areas should have drainage laws, wisely administered.

In conclusion, the report suggests that the 77,000,000 acres of swamp and overflowed land, if drained and made healthful, and made into 40-acre farms, would provide homes for 1,825,000 families. Swamp lands, when drained, are very fertile, as has been shown by the experience of farmers in drained areas, near Duluth.

Besides the immediate benefits from the increased productiveness of the lands, through drainage, there is a greater and a more lasting benefit in reclamation, by reason of the permanent increase in the taxable value of a commonwealth, the increase in healthfulness of communities, and the possibility of construction of good roads.

Factories, churches and schools will be opened up, and the active young farmers emigrating from the older settled portions of the county need not go to Canada to seek cheap lands when they can find better homes within their own borders.

Hard Times in Kansas.

The old days of grasshoppers and drouth are almost forgotten in the prosperous Kansas of today; although a citizen of Codell, Earl Shamburg, has not yet forgotten a hard time he encountered. ## THE COURTHOUSE QUESTION

Protest Against the Adoption of the Grouping Plan.

To The Editor of The Herald:

I want to protest, in the name of the lightweight taxpayers, and as one of them, to the present courthouse agitation. The courthouse question in all its bearings has been threshed over for years; the advocates of a down town location have won and bought the Fourth avenue site; the Herald, as well as those who took sides with it on the question, has sung the praises of that location without stint; and plans for the new building, in a general way at least, have been practically agreed upon. In the former discussions the talk was all for a courthouse useful, conveniently located, and pushed to an early completion; now it is for a courthouse beautiful, and a location to properly display its beauties. Then it was said that the county records were in serious danger in the old building, and that a safe place should be prepared for them without an unnecessary day's delay; now, no mention is made of the time that is being wasted. Then, whenever it was suggested that the old site on the hill is a pretty good place, it was answered that the cost of office room for doing the county business, court rooms, etc., during the period of construction, would be greater than the county could stand for; now The Herald endorses the statement that so rich a county as St. Louis should have a county building that would rival the state capitol.

When you start in for the esthetic in such affairs who knows where it will end? If some other eminent architect in such affairs should say it was a mistake to build so fine a house on a down town site, but that its proper place was one the pinnacle above the boulevard, who can guarantee us that the proposition would not be taken up as enthusiastically as is the grouping plan? It seems to me that most of those who are now hurraning for the grouping plan discounted their judgment in the matter when they hurrahed just as vociferously for the Fourth avenue site.

Division of the county seems to be an admitted prospective fact. In that event I understand that St. Louis will hav to pay the new county for its share of the property owned by the whole county at the time of division. In spite of that. It was sold by some one at a meeting held in Duluth recently for the discussion of this question that, because of the large proportion of taxes paid by the iron range towns, Duluth's share would be only about one-seventh of the cost of the new building. A correspondent said in The Herald of a few days since, in effect: "I haven't the article at hand to quote from varbatim—that because a large and wealthy portion of the county would be set off for a new county within the next few years Duluth should work now for the courthouse beautiful, seeming to imply that St. Louis would be ahead, at the time of the division, the amount of the new county's share of the cost. The Herald, in last night's editorial, seems to endorse the proposition that the iron range towns should take as great interest in the courthouse beautiful as should Duluth; and no doubt that is true in one sense. But are such statements fair? When St. Louis has to hand back to the new county its share of the cost of the new building, won't those who have been figuring on Duluth's one-seventh of the cost feel as if they have been flim-flammed? When the county has been divided, won't $1,000,000-courthouse be ample for the needs of St. Louis county for a good many years, comparatively small as it will be then? These questions seem to me appropriate, with taxes being kited as they are; with the city bonded to the limit, or beyond; and with expensive street improvements going on and projected.

Mr. Jenswold struck the righ chord when he said that while we expect Duluth to be a great city, it is not one now, and we should build in accordance with the present needs and means.

I believe the building should go ahead as already practically agreed upon, and that the commissioners should not be hampered by all this talk. If the question is to be opened up again, I believe the new house should be built on the old site on the hill. And I believe a majority of the voters would second the motion with regards to these sentiments. If this affair was being managed by the ladies, with all due respect to them, we might expect it to have turned as it has done, for they are privileged to change their minds as often as they like, either with or without reasons, but such a condition don't do credit to the business men who have had charge of it. Respectively,

IRA COBURN.

RUNS FOR GOVERNOR TO SAVE EXPENSES.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Because he says he can't afford to live in Washington on the salary he gets, Representative Watson is going to run for governor of Indiana. Watson is the Republican whip of the house, and has been regarded as one of the coming men, but he finds that he can't hold on long enough to get there. He was reminded that the salary had been increased from $5,000 to $7,500.

"I know it," he answered glumly. "but in the end a man grows old and finds himself impoverished. If I don't get the governorship, I shall retire to private life. I'm through with the house.

TERMS OF SALE

This sale is made pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 204, of the General Laws of Minnesota for 1905.

All purchasers of timber at this sale will be required to pay 25 per cent cash at the time of sale, based on the appraised value of timber. Bidders will be required to deposit certified checks or cash. The amount required to be paid down must be paid before the close of the sale in every case. If any purchaser fails to pay the amount required before the close of the sale, the timber on the tract in question will be re-offered and sold to the highest bidder. I wish to call particular attention of all prospective bidders to these requirements so there will be no misunderstanding.

Permits will be issued for only two logging seasons, and the timber must be cut and removed within that time, unless the timber board unanimously agree to extend the permit one logging season. In no event can more than one extension be granted.

Permit holders must furnish a bond with at least two sureties, who can justify in double the amount of the sale price of the timber covered by the permit. Purchasers must also record bark marks in the office of the surveyor general of the district in which the land covered by permit is situated; said marks must be in the name of the State of Minnesota, and no other bark marks may be used for timber covered by the permit than those so recorded. In addition all logs cut on the State land must bear the State stamp mark, MIN.

LESSONS OF SITUATION

Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele Speaks on Financial Conditions.

American People Suffering From Overdose of Prosperity.

"Give an Account of Thy Stewardship" was the subject of Rev. Arthur H. Wurtele's sermon delivered yesterday at the Episcopal Trinity Pro-Cathedral in which were pointed out the moral lessons to be gained from the present financial situation.

"There are two questions that the public have a moral right to ask of every man of wealth," said Rev. Wurtele. "The first question is, 'How did you get it?' The other question is, 'What are you doing with it?' The wealth of the kings of finance, the great manufacturers and copper kings, belong not to themselves alone, but to the great human race of which they are the representatives, and I say the public has a right to ask these questions of them because of this fact.

"As all alike share, so the wealth is really held in trust for the great mass of the people. The people felt secure in trusting the men of ability with their savings, but suddenly began the investigations by the federal government, and it was found that the kings of finance had failed to live up to their stewardship. Then the nation asked them to give an account of their stewardship.

"The prosperity of the country especially the West, has been almost unparalleled. Deposits in all the banks have been enormous, but for all this the manipulators in Wall street have been in a wild panic. The stewards of the country's wealth must now realize their responsibility to the people. The nation has demanded honesty and integrity and there must be a clearing out of the adventurous and suspicious speculators and a saner, safer and steadier business policy for the country at large must be evolved.

Overdose of Prosperity.

"The American people during the past year have been suffering from an overdose of prosperity, and too much prosperity is dangerous for a man. It makes him forget the humility of his position in the universe. So wealth has often times proved a curse. Moral progress brings with it an increase of prosperity, but material progress, unless accompanied by an equivalent progress in morality, is always the forerunner of decline.

"Men and women have thrown morality and religion to the winds and have entered the temple of Mammon to worship the Golden Calf that the Aaron of Speculation had set up. Gold seemed all powerful and they forget that there ruled one mightier God to whose unbending laws of life, of health and of morals, mankind must in the end make himself submissive. They forgot the church and the office was their temple.

"But suddenly the inflated balloon of speculation has burst. Men find their wealth is a dream, and life becomes real once more and into his life adversity may bring a little of the quiet charm of sincere religion, may bring him the wealth of peace, of love and the riches of Christ. This is the noblest prosperity the soul of man can possess.

"Our standards as a nation must be higher than stock quotations. Our ideals must be above money values. Character is stronger than wealth. Love is more potent than riches. The will is one of the greatest powers in the world."

Rev. Wurtele pointed out also the lessons to be gained also for the individual man or woman. There is the wealth of physical strength which some people neglect. If a man cannot give a good account of his stewardship in this respect he may be told, 'Thou mayest no longer be steward.'

"The wealth of the home is the contentment of wife and happy children. Greater far than the barbaric wealth of gold and silver is the wealth of the mother who can proudly point to her healthy children and say, 'These are my jewels.'

"Your wealth is all you have, all you own, all you are, but you are only the trustees, the guardian to use your power to uplift the human race, to make the world a happier place to use it for the benefit of your fellowman and the glory of amighty God."

RIGHTEOUSNESS THE THING.

Rev. J. R. Davies Would See Ambition Under Control.

Rev. J. R. Davies, pastor of Grace M. E. church, urged his hearers yesterday to take some place, whichever one they were most fitted for in the general scheme of things, and work for righteousness without letting sordid ambition get the upper hold.

"God is calling for men of righteousness to take the places of responsibility and trust, and society is repeating the call," said Rev. Mr. Davies. "Take this name unto you, not for ambition, but for righteousness. Be faithful to the spirit of the name you have, and God will add unto you. You will then have that spiritual life which will be a guarantee against the abuse of the power which this promise offers to all men."

MORE TRUTH IN BIBLE.

Rev. Powell Says It is Greatest Religious Book.

Rev. John W. Powell delivered the second sermon of his series on "The Gospel and the New Age," yesterday morning at the Endion Methodist church. The subject of the sermon was "The New Bible."

Rev. Powell maintains that it is impossible to understand Christianity apart from the Bible. He says that the modern minister is confronted with a widespread indifference to the Bible and a profound ignorance as to its contents. He declares that the Bible has not been changed materially by critical scholarship except that its discrepancies have been explained and its development made clear.

"An intelligent man may read the Bible today as his mother read it except that his attitude will be different," said Rev. Powell.

"Modern science is decidedly averse to miracles, stories of which abound in the old and new testaments. But the important things in the Bible are not its miracle stories—the important things are its ideas about God and duty and destiny.

"Jesus Christ is the great miracle of the Bible. The resurrection of Christ, whether we believe it to have been an actual, physical event, or merely a subjective impression on the minds of the disciples, convinced them that their Lord lived. This conviction has been the source of Christianity's power to move the world."

Rev. Powell explained that the Bible is also of value as the history of the Jewish race and of the life and works of Christ himself. This value is aside from the spiritual value.

"But the real reason why the Bible holds its place of authority among the world's religious books," said Rev. Powell, "is that it contains more truth than the rest. Its vision of God is loftier, its conception of manhood truer, its doctrines of humanity more convincing."

GRAND JURORS ARE SUMMONED

List of Those Who Will Pass in Criminal Matters.

Sheriff Bates has served summonses on the persons who will serve as grand jurors to consider the criminal cases that will come before them for the November term of the district court, which will open one week from Wednesday morning. The grand jury will comprise seventeen residents of Duluth, two of Hibbing, one each from Chisholm, Ely and Mountain Iron. The sheriff is still serving summonses on those who will serve as petit jurors for the November term.

There are comparatively few criminal matters on the slate for the grand jury at the coming session, in fact the criminal calendar gives promises of being the lightest for several terms past.

Those who will serve on the grand jury are as follows: James McMartin, William D. Dean, George F. Kennedy, Ronald M. Hunter, Nels C. Hendricks, Augustine Murphy, A. A. Barr, William A. Hicken, D. H. Costello, Edwin M. Ferguson, John W. Rowley, Willard L. Smith, William T. Murnnian, Charles H. Glover, Daniel A. Christy, Charles G. Traphagen, Duluth; Willard G. Shane, Chisholm; William H. # SMALL BOY AND HIS GUN

Youngsters Make Trouble for the West Duluth Police.

Will Stop Firing of Guns Within the City Limits.

The small boy and his gun are making considerable trouble for the West Duluth police, and the members of the force ar ekept busy watching for the youngsters.

Hunting outside the limits of the city doesn't seem to satisfy the youngster with a new 22-caliber gun. He wants to shoot everything in sight, and that sometimes includes things, shooting at which is liable to cause greater damage.

The police have received numerous complaints of the practice of youngsters firing their rifles within the city limits, where a stray bullet is likely to wound somebody. Those who haven't rifles use air guns and slingshots, with the same results. The glass insulators on telephone and electric light poles are favorite targets, and the company employes are kept busy replacing the broken ones.

The police have entered into a vigorous campaign against the small boy and his gun. Boys under a certain age are not permitted to carry a gun at all, and it is an offense for anybody to fire a gun within the city limits, so the police have the power to break up the practice, if they succeed in corraling a sufficient number of the offenders.

GRIDIRON ACCIDENTS.

One Boy Has Leg Broken, and Another Collar Bone.

Henry Mason, the 13-year-old son of Mrs. John Mason, 4009 Rene street, is suffering from a broken leg, and Henry Klovstand has a broken collar bone as the result of football accidents in West Duluth Saturday and Sunday.

Young Mason was the victim of Saturday's accident. He was playing with a number of other boys at Thirty-ninth avenue west and Grand. It was not a regular game, but the boys were kicking the ball around the lot. Young Mason tackled another boy and in the resulting piling up, Mason's leg was pinned under his body and fractured.

Klovstand was a member of the West Duluth team, which played a 5 to 5 tie game with the Billings Park team yesterday afternoon. Early in the second half Klovstand was into the thick of a scrimmage and was badly crushed, his collar bone being fractured. He was given attention and will be around again in a few weeks.

Clothing Stores Open.

The clothing stores of West Duluth remained open yesterday, despite the protest against the practice at the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club Friday night. The club took no action on the subject, but the practice was strongly condemned by individual members and the merchants were urged to close their places of business. The "lid" was not on yesterday, however, and it looks as though only an agreement among the merchants themselves will succeed in placing it on.

A FREAK OF THE "JUICE"

Foreman Receives 12,000 Volts of Electricity and Lives.

C. F. Kielley Has a Miraculous Escape at Furnace Plant.

C. E. Kielley, foreman at the Zenith Furnace company plant, had an experience one evening last week which he will not care to repeat again, and his escape from instant death is considered by experts in electrical work as next to a miracle.

Mr. Kielley came in direct contact with live wires, carrying a current of 12,000 volts, and beyond a badly burned hand and a decidedly uncomfortable feeling throughout his entire body, suffered no ill effects from the same.

Together with a workman, he was taking measurements with a tape for a piece of work at the company's plant. Knowing of the presence of the live wires running parallel across the space, Kelley took the precaution to secure for the purpose a common cotton tape, as he supposed, but which later circumstances developed had fine strings of metal wire running through it to lend it stiffness.

The workman assisting him was perched upon a step-ladder, with Mr. Keilley at the other end of the tape. He accidentally dropped the tape, which fell across the live wires. A sensation as of a thousand pins and needles being driven into his body made the foreman fairly dance a jig, and he dropped the tape like a red hot iron. The wires were burned completely off where they came in contact with the tape, and the foreman received a severe burn to the hand holding the tape.

A peculiar thing in connection with the accident was that at the time he received the shock his leg was pressed firmly against an iron pipe, and he was standing on a concrete floor, both the floor and the iron pipe being good conductors for the current. How he escaped instant death is a miracle experts are unable to explain.

A workman standing some distance received a severe shock, although the foreman cannot say whether it was from the falling tape striking him or not.

TOP LAYER IN THE TUB

Was Butter, the Next Oleo, and Chicagoan Shot the Peddler.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—The worm turned when a long-suffering Chicagoan shot a peddler who had sold him olemargarine, when he paid for good country butter. When Carl Hitle, the peddler, of 6426 Cottage Grove avenue, appeared at the home of Sol Rosenfeld, 2803 Dearborn street, and offered choice country butter with the sweet smell of the clover of the farm still clinging to it. Rosenfeld bought. He took a small tub and smacked his lips in anticipation of a feast.

After the peddler had departed Rosenfeld inspected his purchase. He delved deep into the yellow mass and illusions vanished with a shock. There was a layer of sweet golden butter on top. The rest of the tub was just olemargarine, uncolored, unsavory, uninviting.

Rosenfeld, enraged, ran after the peddler. The peddler ran, too. Rosenfeld shot him in the back. At the hospital the surgeons dug out the bullet and said Hitle was not badly hurt. Therefore the police locked him up and he is in jail charged with selling unstamped oleomargarine.

FROM HOSPITAL TO PRISON CELL

Woman Accused of Bigamy Recovers From Serious Illness.

From the hospital back to prison was the fate of Mrs. Julia Fitzburg, better known here as Mrs. David Gerow, today, the woman having recovered from her attack of diphtheria and been released from the contagious ward at the hospital.

She will be tried at the next term of court on the charge of bigamy.

Prison life and her illness have told on the young woman, and from a robust, healthy looking person she has faded away to considerable less weight than when she told the court her plausible story of her illtreatment at the hands of her husband, now serving a sentence from assault upon her.

P. Savich, another prisoner who was taken with diphtheria, was taken back to the county jail today to complete his sentence.

CHANCE FOR STANDARD.

Good Indications for Oil in Parts of North Dakota.

Westhope, N. D., Oct. 28.—The Great Northern Oil, Gas & Pipe Line company has begun a systematic search for oil and gas in this part of North Dakota, and is making good progress. The promoters believe there is oil and gas in Bottineau county in commercial quantities and will not give up the quest until convinced to the contrary.

In drilling for water, gas has been found in no less than ten different places scattered over the county.

Alexander Anderson, who lives four miles west of Bottineau, drilled a gas well over two years ago, and burned gas about two years, and would yet only the well caved in.

Gas was struck on the Parker farm, nine miles south of Westhope, July 3, 1907, and has been flowing ever since.

Gas in the well on the Parker farm is strong enough to throw the casing cap fifty feet in the air, and when drilled in, blew mud and water 100 feet into the air.

Geiger has not smiled since.

NO TRADING ON LOCAL BOARD OF TRADE FLOOR

Duluth Firms Refuse to Supply Cash for the Country.

Were Being Handed Certified Checks for Ready Money.

There was no trading either in the options or in cash grain on the floor of the Duluth board of trade today and it is unlikely that business will be resumed in the local wheat pit until the financial situation improves sufficiently to permit the Western banks to get money from the East to pay for the grain.

"The action of the board in doing away with trading today does not mean that the board has suspended or that it or any of the firms which hold membership in it are in difficulty," said Charles F. Macdonald, secretary of the board of trade, to a reporter for The Herald.

"The board is open and most of the traders are on the floor, but there is no activity in the options or cash grains. The banks are unable to get money from the East to pay for the grain and, until they can, little business can be transacted here.

"The finances are that this will be only temporary. The tying up of the movement of grain will impress upon all the necessity of immediate action of some kind. This will probably bring about a crisis and the bankers and the grain interests as well are confident that things will take a turn for the better very soon and that business can be resumed on a normal basis."

C. it Buying Grain.

The country elevators have stopped the buying of grain. Orders to stop buying were sent out to the country line elevators yesterday. Buying will not be resumed until the banks are able to get all the money from the East necessary to move the crop.

The Minneapolis chamber of commerce is open today, but there is very little doing. Option trading is the only business that is being transacted. The Chicago board of trade is also open, with trading on the same limited basis.

Members of the local grain exchange, when seen on the floor of the board this morning, were optimistic concerning the situation, despite the fact that no trading was going on in the local pit.

They feel that the situation will straighten itself out very soon, and confidently expect that the grain movement can be started again without any serious delays.

The Situation Here.

The situation in a nutshell is as follows: Duluth firms are very heavy shippers to Eastern and foreign markets. Grain is bought and shipped East. Payment is made through New York to the Duluth firms. That means that the Duluth men do not get cash for their grain, but get a New York clearing house certified check. But this check cannot be cashed in Duluth and the firms have to make their remittances to the grain shipper in cash. It wouldn't take many days' trading to exhaust the ready cash of the strongest firm in the country under such a system, and rather than be placed in such a condition the board members decided not to do any trading until matters adjusted themselves. The position of the board firms is identical with that of the local banks. They don't propose to supply the cash on which to do the grain business of the Northwest, and take paper in return, no matter how good the paper may be.

In Chicago, Minneapolis, New York and Winnipeg, where trading was done, wheat closed lower, the money situation being responsible tor the weakness.

The December option closed 2¾c lower in Chicago, 2¾c in Minneapolis, 1⅞c in and 1½c lower in New York and Winnipeg. The May option closed 2c lower in Chicago, 2¼c in Minneapolis, 1⅞c in New York and ¾c in Winnipeg.

The foreign markets were off. Liverpool closed 1½d to 1⅝d lower, Paris ½c to ¾c lower, Budapest ¾c lower and Berlin ¾c higher.

December corn closed ¾c lower in Chicago and was ¼d lower in Liverpool. December oats closed 2⅛c lower.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat was steady at the start with values unchanged. The late advance in America on Saturday offered an opportunity for profit-taking and as a result of such realizing, prices eased ¾d to ⅝d. Following the decline the market steadied some, owing to the fact of small shipments from both Russia and the Danube. Again at midday an easier undertone developed on the poor inquiry for both cargoes and parcels and the neglected condition of the spot market. Prices at this time were ¼d to ½d lower than Saturday.

"Corn was firm during the early trading with values unchanged. Offerings were light, due to the small American shipments, and the steadiness of holders. Prices at midday were generally ½d higher."

World's shipments of wheat and corn last week, the week previous and the corresponding week a year ago are shown as follows:

| | WHEAT. Last Week. | Previous Week. | Last Year. |

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Breaks Heavily at Opening, Extreme Decline Being 4 Cents.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Wheat at the opening today broke heavily the extreme decline being 4 cents. The cause of the slump was the financial situation in New York, which induced a strong bearish feeling. A break of 4 cents on the curb at Minneapolis, also was a strong factor in the local situation. Liverpool cables were steady, but this fact was utterly ignored. December wheat opened 2¼c to 2⅝c lower at 97½c to 98c, sold off to 96c and then rallied to 97½c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 867 cars against 1,017 cars last week and 834 cars one year ago.

The market became steadier in the last half of the session on buying by cash houses and elevator interests. The close was steady with December 2⅜c lower at 97¾c.

The corn market was very weak in sympathy with wheat. Trading was not heavy. December corn opened ¾c to ⅞c lower, at 57⅜c to 57¼c, sold down to 56½c and then rallied to 57⅛c. Local receipts were 367 cars with 125 cars of contract grade.

The close was steady with December ⅝c lower at 57¾c.

The weakness of wheat and corn caused a severe slump in oats, and prices in this grain did not rally as readily as with wheat and corn. December oats opened ⅝c to 1¼c lower, at 50c to 50½c, sold off to 48⅜c and then rallied to 49⅝c, selling off again to 49c. Local receipts were 438 cars.

The provisions market was weak because of the declines in grain. January pork opened 15c lower, at $14.75. Lard was 10c lower, at $8.50; ribs were 5@7½c lower at $7.57½.

Close wheat—Dec., 97¾c; May, $1.05?. Corn—Dec., 57¼c; May, 59½c. Oats—Dec., 49c; May, 52½c. Pork—Jan., $14.67½; May, $15.00. Lard—Jan., $8.50@8.52½; May, $8.70. Ribs—Jan., $7.62½@7.65; May, $7.92½. Rye—Cash, 73c. Barley—Cash, 65@80c. Timothy, $4.70. Flax and clover, nothing doing. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 94@97c; No. 3 red, 91@95c; No. 2 hard, 94@98c; No. 2 hard, 91@97; No. 3 spring, 90c@$1.00; No. 1 and 2 northern, nothing doing. Corn—No. 2, 57½c; No. 3, 57½c. Oats—Nos. 2 and 3, nothing doing.

WEAK IN NEW YORK.

Grain Markets Decline in Gotham Because of Banks' Action.

New York, Oct. 28.—The financial condition in New York, and the action of the local banks in deciding to issue clearing house certificates and to demand full legal notice on withdrawal of time deposits caused a weak market in all of the grain pits today. Wheat within a short time after the opening struck a point 4c lower than the close of Saturday.

The opening for December wheat was 97⅝c to 98c, which was 2¾c to 2⅝c under the final quotations of Saturday and from this point the prices slid down to 96c. At 10:30 it was holding around 97c. The selling was in quite large volume, but the demand was slack, and buyers were to all appearances extremely reluctant to take hold. Brief rallies took place after the breaks, but the principal buyers were shorts. There was little buying for investment and the refusal of the banks to pay out large amounts of cash limited the opportunities of prospective purchasers to put the margins demanded by the brokers.

Both corn and oats were weak for the same reasons as affected the wheat market. During the first hour December corn ruled about 1 cent below the close of Saturday, and oats about 1⅛c lower.

Grain Gossip.

Chicago, to Paine, Webber & Co.: Wheat—There was a fairly comfortable feeling among grain traders here early until decided weakness was shown in the Northwest markets, where there was a good deal of pressure for funds to take care of the spring crop movement. Prices were so unsettled on the curb at Minneapolis that the market started with a sharp break, which was partly caused by the preventative measures taken by banks to strengthen their position. During the rest of the day the trade seemed nervous and the volume of business was considerably restricted. New York claimed good export bids there and business only restricted by financial conditions. Cash wheat was offered 5 cents lower at Kansas City. Both cash and speculative trade is at somewhat of a standstill for the present, and it will be well for the trade to be conservative until the financial situation clears.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

The market opened today with no material changes over Saturday's quotations. Prices are firm, however, and buyers were early on the market. Apples are active and prices inclined to move up, although no change is quoted today. The following prices are quoted up to noon today and furnished by the secretary of the exchange:

GENERAL ASSASSINATED.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 28.—Gen. Maximoffskl, director of the department of prisons, of the ministry of the interior, was shot and killed today. The general was the highest responsible official connected with the Russian prisons, and it is supposed that this was the reason he was selected for assassination by the terrorists.

COPPER ADVANCES.

New York, Oct. 28.—The price of copper advanced about 1 cent a pound on the metal market today as a result of heavy buying from abroad. The price of tin was also moved up about 1½ cent per pound.

SOME SECRET INKS.

Baltimore Sun: Letters written with a solution of gold, silver, copper, tin or mercury dissolved in aqua fortis, or, simpler still, of iron or lead in vinegar does not stain a white paper, will remain invisible for two or three months if kept shut up in the dark, but on exposure for some hours to the open air will gradually acquire color, or will do so instantly on being held before the fire.

Each of these solution gives its own peculiar color to the writing—gold, a deep violet; silver, slate; lead and copper, brown; but all possess this common disadvantage—that in time they eat away the paper, leaving the letters in form of perforation. There are a vast number of other solutions that become visible on exposure to heat or on having a heated iron passed over them, the explanation being that the matter is readily burned to a sort of charcoal, simplest among which we may mention lemon juice or milk, but the one that produces the best result is made by dissolving a scruple of sal ammoniac in two ounces of water.

STOCKS ARE STRONGER

Trading Was Light, But Market Had a Steady Undertone.

Early Advances Partly Lost Owing to Lack of Money.

New York, Oct. 28.—Prices of stocks opened at sharp advances over Saturday, with the exception of some of the less active issues, in which there were declines. American Smelting started 2 points higher, as did Northern Pacific, Sugar, Westinghouse Electric and Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred, Amalgamated Copper rose 1½, Union Pacific 1¼ and Louisville & Nashville, Atchison, Erie first preferred, Anaconda and Utah Copper 1. North American sold at a decline of 2⅞, Central Railroad of New Jersey 2, Southern Pacific preferred 1½ and American Car about a point.

Some of the active stocks yielded after the initial dealings, Union Pacific, Reading and American Smelting reacting a point. Elsewhere the tendency was sharply upward, but buying was very light. Toward the close of the hour the market rallied to the opening level or above, Amalmagated Copper rising to 51⅜, a gain of 2⅜, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie gained 1¾; Mackay companies, 5⅝; St. Louis Southwestern preferred, 4¼; Illinois Central, National Biscuit, Consolidated Gas, 3; Westinghouse Electric, 4; Great Northern Ore Certificates, Pressed Steel Car preferred and Manhattan, 2½; Baltimore & Ohio and New York Air Brake, 2¼; Northwestern, National Lead, 2; Chicago Great Western preferred "A," 1½; Norfolk & Western and Delaware & Hudson, 1⅜; Missouri Pacific, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Federal Mining preferred, 1; American Agricultural Chemical preferred yielded ⅞; Pacific Coast, 4½; American Locomotive preferred, 2; International Pump preferred, Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred, United States Rubber first preferred and National Lead preferred, 1.

Illinois Central rose 4; American Telephone, 5; Republic Steel preferred and Pittsburg Coal preferred, 3; Anaconda, Tennessee Copper and Utah Copper, 2¾; Union Pacific, 2; Atchison, 1¾; Denver & Rio Grande, Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Colorado Fuel, 1½, and some others a point. These advances were maintained, but business was very light. Bonds were firm.

The tone of the market at 1 o'clock remained strong. There was practically no business in the active stocks. Some minor stocks made substantial advances. Northwestern preferred rose 10 points; Westinghouse Electric, 5; Federal Mining preferred, 5; Manhattan, 3½; Denver & Rio Grande, 3; Atchison preferred, 2½; Delaware & Hudson, 2⅜.

The market closed irregular. Difficulties in re-arranging loans with the dissolution of the bankers' pool to supply stock exchange needs caused a recession all around. Reading fell 2¼ below Saturday; St. Paul, 1⅝; Northwestern and American Smelting, 1, and some other active stocks a fraction. The selling was not in large volume.

Stock Gossip.

Logan & Bryan, New York, to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was irregular today, but displayed a steady undertone. Call money continues high, but a good investment demand is noted. It is difficult to predict the trend of the market under existing conditions.

New York Money.

New York, Oct. 28.—Close: Money on call, strong, 6 to 75 per cent; ruling rate, 50; closing bid blank, offered at 6 per cent. Time loans, nominal. Prime mercantile paper, 7@7½ per cent. Sterling exchange, firmer, with actual business in bankers bills at $4.83@4.83.25. Bar silver, 60½c. Mexican dollars, 47⅝c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, irregular.

St. Paul Livestock.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 28.—Cattle—Receipts, 14,000; 10@15c lower. Veal, 50c lower. Steers, $4@6.50; cows and heifers, $2.25@5; calves, $2@5.50; stockers, $2@5.50; feeders, $2.25@4. Hogs, 2,500; 15c lower. Range, $7.85@8.20; bulk, $7.95@8.10. Sheep, 12,000; dull. Yearlings, $5.25@5.50; ewes, $4.25@4.75; lambs, $6.25@6.50.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Oct. 28.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 8 points to an advance of 4 points, near months being lower under liquidation in the absence of support, while later positions were relatively steady on covering and in response to steady cables. Immediately following the call the active months worked up to a net gain of 3 to 5 points owing to a better feeling regarding financial conditions and expectations of a reaction as the result of the large short interests, but local sentiment was rendered bearish by the reports of increased Southern offerings and during the middle of the morning the market was barely steady with prices about 5 points lower at 4 points higher.

Spot closed steady, 15 points lower; middling uplands, 10.80; middling gulf, 11.05; sales, 1,500 bales. Futures closed barely steady; closing bid: October, 9.85; November, 9.88; December, 10.08; January, 9.88; February, 9.85; March, 9.90; April, 9.98; May, 10.00; June, 10.01; July, 10.03; August, 9.97.

Chicago Livestock.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Cattle—Receipts, about 21,000; market steady; beeves, $3.60@7.10; cows, $1.20@5; calves, $4.50@6.75; Texans, $3.50@4.40; westerners, $3.20@5.75; stockers and feeders, $2.40@4.50. Hogs—Receipts, about 16,000; market 5c to 10c higher; light, $5.65@6.20; mixed, $5.60@6.25; heavy, $5.55@6.20; rough, $5.35@5.50; pigs, $4.50@5.65; bulk of sales, $5.60@5.90. Sheep—Receipts, about 40,000; market weak; native, $2.70@4.45; western, $2.70@5.45; yearlings, $5.20@5.50; lambs, $4.50@7.20; western, $4.50@7.15.

Copper Gossip.

Despite the sharp advance in the price of stocks today and the news of a better demand for the metal, a rumor to the effect that all mining operations at the properties of the Greene-Cananea Copper company had ceased, was heard along Superior street.

When seen by a Herald reporter at the offices of the Greene-Cananea company, on the fifth floor of the Lyceum building, F. P. Kennedy, secretary of the company, declined to deny or confirm the story.

"I am very sorry, but I have nothing to say about the matter," said Mr. Kennedy, when asked if the stories of the complete shut-down at Greene-Cananea were true.

"I know that production at the Greene-Cananea mines has been curtailed, but further than that I have nothing to give out."

The rumor was freely discussed in the brokers' offices along the street this morning. All of the brokers said they had heard it, but were unable to state positively that it was correct.

At any rate, the price of the stock was not unfavorably affected by the rumor during the morning. It opened in Boston at $6.25 and advanced to $7.

* * *

New York to Gay & Sturgis: At the offices of the United Metals Selling company the clerks for the last day or two have been forced to start work at 6 o'clock in the morning in order to keep up with the orders, and Phelps, Dodge & Co., after making large sales on Friday at 12¼c, raised the price Saturday to 13c, with no apparent diminution of orders.

It is estimated that since the buying movement began, at least 100,000,000 pounds of copper has been sold in New York at one time, and it is said on good authority that if sales continue on this scale a day or two longer, the surplus stock of copper, which has been talked of so much, and has been so depressing an influence on the market, will be cut down at least by half.

* * *

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: The market today opened strong on the belief that measures adopted have stopped the panic. All business today almost without exception is being for cash, the strength shown was more than usually of moment. Nearly $15,000,000 in gold has up to now been engaged for the import and the general adoption of clearing house certificates has pretty well quieted excitement in New York. A 60 per cent call rate and the breaking out of runs on banks in scattered localities is however a reminder that immediate recovery is impossible.

Locally the coppers were at times almost bouyant and the rise uncovered a short interest of greater proportions than generally believed. At any rate a very sharp demand to borrow stocks developed. Copper is fairly 13½ cents, and we understand 14 cents has been offered for small lots. As usual, Europe got the cheap supply. Coppers might easily recover further after a reaction from this rally.

* * *

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The world is now money for investment and protection, but not a cent for speculation. The banks in New York and Boston are doing their best to discourage speculation for the time being. Money was scarce at 50 per cent. Shorts in copper were the principal buyers today and the advance was rapid. The metal situation is much improved and the demand for copper will soon clean up all the surplus at these prices.

Will Meet to Name an Aldermanic Candidate.

Third ward Democrats will meet tomorrow evening to select a candidate for alderman from that ward. The term of Alderman Jordan expires this year, and he is out again for the office. It is understood that he will have no opposition, although some may develop at the meeting to be held Tuesday.

Should President Tessman become a candidate for mayor and be elected, another vacancy would occur in the Third ward. Things promise to be rather lively in the ward this year.

SMALL MORSE BANK CLOSES.

Bath, Me., Oct. 28.—The Bath Trust company, a small bank controlled by Charles W. Morse of New York, closed its doors today. State Bank Examiner Skelton immediately took charge.

SUPERIOR NEWS

DOLED OUT PITTANCES

Superior People Can Draw Only $10 at a Time.

Business Being Done on Cashier's Check Almost Entirely.

When the banks of Superior opened their doors this morning, a severe set of precautionary rules were in effect. Not a dollar would be paid to any man, except to conduct his ordinary affairs and business. Only $10 would be paid in currency to any depositor, and that only on proof of urgent need.

At a meeting of the representatives of the five Superior banks, the measures were decided upon. All of the banks are in the agreement. They are the First National, American Commerce, American Exchange, Union Commercial and Savings, and the Superior State bank.

The aim of the banks is to have all business conducted by checks until the present financial crisis has passed. People wishing to draw funds from the bank were given certificates of deposit to be used as legal tender until such time as the banks are in a position to pay currency without fear of depleting their resources.

In the savings departments, the same plan was adopted. Savings depositors are allowed to draw $10 at a time for their immediate needs, and no complete withdrawals will be allowed for the present. Certificates of deposit and cashiers' checks take the place of currency.

Superior business men are accepting the situation philosophically. They realize that the banks have taken the action in the interests of their depositors and to prevent dangerous runs. On the Superior board of trade there was practically nothing moving this morning, on account of the shortage of money with which to carry on trades.

Will Leave Superior.

E. C. Berryman, one of the prominent photographers of Superior and of the Northwest, has sold his business to C. J. Rolfe, a photographer of Salina, Kansas, and will leave Nov. 5 for San Diego, Cal., where he will make his future home. Mr. Berryman was president of the Wisconsin State Association of Photographers, two years ago. Although he has built up a very successful business in Superior, he is said to have had a tempting offer to go into business in the California city, and has decided to make the change.

Holds Law Unconstitutional.

Under the ruling of the supreme court of Wisconsin disputes between the cities and towns or other divisions of the county over assessments, will hereafter be taken before the courts for settlement, instead of the state tax commission. The ruling was obtained in the assessment case of various towns in Bayfield county, complained of by the town of Iron River, Wis. There may be some complications for the reason that the tax commission has been acting for the past two years in assessment cases. Now that the statute under which they acted is held unconstitutional there is a possibility that taxes levied under a re-assessment by the commission may be questioned.

New Rule for Bankrupts.

According to the ruling of Judge Quarles of the federal court of Wisconsin, referees in bankruptcy or their attorneys cannot retain the services of the bankrupt or of those who may be acting for the petitioning of creditors. The court holds that the administration of the bankrupt's affairs must be carried on by wholly disinterested parties in order that the proceedings may be impartial. The court fixes the maximum fee levied by the referee in non-asset cases at $5. Monthly reports will be required of the referee showing a detailed statement of the amounts received from all sources and other expenses of the administration.

Arrested for Coat Theft.

Accused of stealing an overcoat from a guest in the Commercial hotel, John Leonard was arrested and held in custody at the police station last evening. Leonard told the police he had taken the coat by mistake. The police say the coat was taken from a chair in the lobby of the hotel and that Leonard did not disclose its whereabouts until put through the "sweat box."

TOOK A FORTY FOOT TUMBLE

Workman Drops From Scaffolding at People's Brewery Plant.

Olaf Hanson, a carpenter, employed upon the construction of the building being erected by the People's Brewing company at Forty-second avenue west and Third street, fell from a scaffolding a distance of about forty feet, today, shortly before noon, and received some severe bruises and a general shaking up.

No bones were broken in the fall, although the man was picked up senseless by his fellow workmen, and it was at first thought that he was killed outright.

He was taken to St. Mary's hospital and his injuries attended to. He recovered consciousness shortly after arriving at the hospital, and the attending physicians are of the opinion that he will recover.

UNITY CLUB MEETING.

"Criminology and Penology" to be Discussed by Speakers.

This evening at 8 o'clock the second meeting of the Unity club will be held at the Unitarian church, corner of Eighth avenue east and First street. The discussion will be on "Criminology and Penology." The regular speakers will be Judge W. A. Cant and Rev. Kirby S. Miller. An open discussion will be allowed after the addresses of the regular speakers. The subject is a most important one and it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

JURORS MUST PASS ON DEED

If Instrument is Genuine Macomber Will Get Title.

Arguments to the jury were made today in the case of Warren Macomber against O. D. Kinney and others, to settle the question of ownership to a the deed running from Warren Macomclaims on a patent, and the defendants claim on a transfer by deed and by tax title.

The case has been on trial for several days, and has been bitterly contested at every step, Mr. Macomber claiming that the deed on which the defendants base, largely, their claim of title, was a forged one.

It is up to the jury to decide whether the deed running from Marren Macomber to Michael Fink, deceased, was genuine, or was a forged instrument. If the jury decides that the deed was a genuine one, the case will be decided in favor of those who base their claim on the deed. If the deed is held to be a forgery, it is understood that Macomber will still have to defend his claim against a tax title to the property.

Judge Cant, this morning, heard the arguments in the case of Charles R. Stai against Aruthur D. Garrett and others, a suit in which Mr. Stai seeks to clear title to lands in Merchant Park's addition, township 51-14, Woodland Park and Chandler's Park additions of Duluth. This afternoon the court is hearing a couple of Torrens cases instituted by the LaRue Investment company.

FOR NATIONAL INCORPORATION

Senator Macomber Prepares Bill Applying to Interstate Companies.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Senator McCumber of North Dakota laid before President Roosevelt today the draft of a bill which he has prepared for introduction in the senate on the convening of congress.

The measure provides for a national incorporation of associations doing an interstate business. Incorporation under the proposed act will not be compulsory, but it will allow the formation of new companies and permit existing companies to avail themselves of new charters under its terms. When chartered under the act, corporations will be under the supervision of the secretary of the department of commerce and labor, who will have access to their books and records. It prohibits the issuance of stocks in excess of the valuation of the assets of the company, to be determined by the secretary of commerce and labor, except for improvement and betterment.

TREATY BETWEEN RUSSIA AND JAPAN

Has at Last Been Received by United States.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The state department has received a complete translation of the new treaty of commerce and navigation and fisheries between Rusisa and Japan. The department has for the first time obtained possession of its important details. All the questions between these two governments originating in the late war have now been settled, except the limitation of the frontier between the Russian and Japanese possessions in the island of Saghalin, and the settlement of the Japanese claims for the maintenance of Russian prisoners of war.

The treaty follows closely the convention in force before the war and provides for mutual most favored nation treatment instead of a tariff; for liberty of residence and travel; for equal rights before the courts; the ownership of personal property and the right to transmit the same; for liberty of conscience and the burning of the dead, and for most favored nation treatment as to the ownership of land, not now open to foreigners in Japan.

SUPREME COURT ACCEPTS CASE

Young's Petition Granted and He Will be Allowed Bail.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The supreme court of the United States today granted the petition of Edward T. Young, attorney general of Minnesota, for a writ bringing the contempt proceedings against Mr. Young in connection with the enforcement of the railroad rate law of that state, to that court for review, and enlarged the scope of the order so as to permit of his admission to bail. He is now under sentence by Judge Lochren of the federal court on the charge of instituting a proceeding in the Minnesota state courts in the face of a prohibition by the federal court. The action of the supreme court will bring the entire subject before that court.

The important question of the respective jurisdictions of the state and federal court in cases in which state railroad legislation is involved, which has arisen in many states, notably in North Carolina, will necessarily be considered in this suit and it may prove to be a test case along new lines.
